Message from Rector

This is a matter of immense pleasure that the participants of 73rd Senior Staff Course are going to publish a souvenir to garner the sweet memories of their course period. I congratulate all the participants of the course, particularly the souvenir committee, for their sincerest efforts to bring out the souvenir.

The souvenir bears important significance. Besides strengthening the bond among the participants, this will act as a medium of exchange of professional knowledge, skills and attitude. This is also an indication of team work which BPATC wants to inculcate among the trainees in all of its training programs.

The Senior Staff Course has been designed, among others, to improve the problem solving, decision making capacity of the participants, to make them inspired to bring innovation in their respective workplaces, and above all, to enhance the capability to analyze the political, social, economic and cultural environment of the organization they are working for. With the ever increasing citizens' expectation and demand from the government, these knowledge, skills seem to be essential for anyone operating in the leadership position in public sector. I believe that the training program has contributed in the wider dissemination of those knowledge and skills among the participants.

I wish all the participants a very successful professional and personal life.

A.K.M. Abdul Awal Mazumder

Message from Course Director

I am delighted to learn that the participants of 73rd Senior Staff Course are publishing a souvenir. It was my honour to be associated with this Course. The participants were found to be enthusiastic and keen to benefit themselves from the course curricula. The participation of two armed forces members has given extra hue to the course. They blended well with the course and contributed immensely.

I hope the friendship that the participants have developed during last six weeks at BPATC will go a long way in their lives during the professional career and beyond. From BPATC perspective, we tried our best to make the course intellectually challenging and professionally rewarding.

I wish all the 22 participants a success.

Note from Editor

Bearing the theme of 'Workplace is our second home', the 73rd Senior Staff Course launched for 18 October to 01 December 2015 at BPATC. The souvenir titled 'ANIRBAN' is an appreciable and honest attempt of all the participants to treasure the sweet memoirs in brief but illustrious events of the course. When this souvenir finds in our hands the Victory Month has started. In this regards we remember the Great Soul of our Father of the Nation Bangabandhu Sheikh Mujibur Rahman. At the same time our salutation will be preserved for all Martyrs' who fought for Independence of our Country.

The job of editing and publishing a souvenir is wearisome and challenging not only because it requires relentless efforts and sincerity but also due to the fact that it needs considerable amount of time. I have been overwhelmed to have the cordial and sincere cooperation from my dearest participants. I will owe to them forever. I convey my heartfelt gratitude and thanks to the Rector, Course Advisor, Course Director and Coordinators who have come forward with their constant direction, guidance and selfless support to publish this souvenir and pivoted every endeavor to let it emerge as wonderful literary piece as well.

Last, but not the list my deepest regards for the members of the souvenir committee. May Allah help us all perform our assigned duty with utmost sincerity, honesty and devotion. Forget-me-not.

MD. ABUL KALAM AZAD

Colonel

We see captaincy in many places basing on events. Someone can see captaincy travelling 28 kms from Dhaka zeropoint on the left side of Dhaka-Aricha highway. There is a beautiful gate standing with citation 'Bangladesh Public Administration Training Centre'. The beauty of a thing can be observed (1) from outside only, (2) from inside only and (3) from both inside and outside, the most unique case. BPATC is unique of its kind in 54 acres of land, possibly falling in third category. The scenic beauty of the campus can definitely please anyone. Someone will be charmed with the L-shaped or 6-shaped (from gate 2) or 9-shaped (from gate1) lake at the left side of the entry through gate number 2 out of 3 gates. The floating boats and ducks made it more attractive with dates and coconut trees, and hump with tea garden on the banks. Seemingly, things are happening automatically in this autonomous administrative organization. The leadership is most effective when the philosophy of the leader is followed equally both in presence and in absence of the leader. Things are well orchestrated and laid out in a planned manner and picturesque style. The campus is very neat and clean. Anyone attempting to walk/jog right after fazr prayer along 2.2 kms track all along the boundary wall will hardly come across a dry leaf on his way. Every individual is working on his own accord in the respective field. The campus is connected by corridors to facilitate movement in all seasons without any inconvenience. The arrow and direction finding writing not only guide people to reach right place but also make them disciplined to follow appropriate side of the way without hindering others movements. There are words of cautions for personal safety in stair side, on glass doors etc.

Public administration training attempts to explain how decisions in government are made as well as administering projects to carry out those decisions. Studying public administration can be an extremely rewarding experience for anyone looking to give back to their community by solving difficult problems. US President Woodrow Wilson, one of the great proponents and teachers of public administration, wrote, "It is the object of administrative study to discover, first, what government can properly and successfully do, and, secondly, how it can do these proper things with the utmost possible efficiency and at the least possible cost either of money or of energy." Thus, the training on public administration helps participants realize the different ways to accomplish these two objectives. It is the "bureaucrats," who do the majority of governmental tasks and functions. Some of these bureaucrats are public administrators and have a difficult job. They have to come up with implementing solutions to the most daring of society's challenges. They advise elected officials of the strengths and weaknesses of public programs. A public administrator manages public agencies, sets budgets, and creates government policies. Luckily, public administration training prepares participants to successfully solve problems and find solutions. The Coordination of Government activities is essential for implementing the government's policy. It constitutes a focal point of knowledge that combines human quality and advanced technology.

The 73rd SSC started with the theme 'Workplace is our second home'. This is the first take away souvenir. The most important part of captaincy is punctuality. The leader echoed that if someone can be punctual in the office can be punctual in discharging duties having no job pending for the next day. Thus, service delivery can be effective and client friendly. The respected Rector takes many sessions with the participants and prefers citing and setting positive examples. He also cited many examples on values and ethos, manner and etiquettes etc. which are essential for good governance. In the process, study of great leaders are coming into focus for learning lessons from others experience. The faculties are vibrant and encourage doing things ideally. The participants will be passing out with same luggage that they entered with but with heavy take away package of lessons to apply to workplace.

Proper training and its application is required to move our organizational/societal/country ship but it cannot by itself provide adequate navigation e.g. governance. For this we must look to our public administration under the captaincy of institutional leaders. Officers in the hierarchy of public administration can take an opportunity to pull back the curtain of mistrust and turn the spotlight on the successes of the government. They are the most essential parts of the civil administration. They can express their leadership by handling the "nitty gritty" efficiently as per the learning and following the renowned leaders. Their dedication can improve service delivery. It is obvious that  $1+1+1+\dots+1=100$ , so officers taking training from BPATC should be motivated to apply the learning in workplace which in turn will make service delivery and governance more to most effective.
