PREFACE TO THE SECOND EDITION.

THE numerous changes made in the Bengal Tenancy Act by the B. C. Act of 1907 and the E. B. A. C. Act I of 1908 have necessitated considerable changes in the notes on the amended sections. With regard to these as also the portions of the Act of 1885, which has not been affected by recent legislation, I have deavoured to make the present edition thoroughly up-to-date by reference to cases decided since the publication of the first edition.

The price lists of staple food crops prepared under s. 39 of the Bengal Tenancy Act and published in the local gazettes are of great importance in the termination of suits for enhancement of rent against occupancy raiyats on the ground of rise of prices of staple food crops; I have therefore on the suggestion of some friends, who have great experience in such matters, thought fit to append in this edition a statement of the prices for the year 1887-1909, which I hope will be found useful.

PREFACE TO THE FIRST EDITION.

I have endeavoured to arrange the notes in such a way as to make them useful to the Bench and the Bar. Notes of cases under the old law which are still applicable or which have a bearing on the present law will be found in their appropriate places. I have also cited some English cases and some important unreported decisions of the Calcutta High Court which, I expect, will be found useful.

In one of the appendices at the end will be found a collection of some important rulings on matters such as Resjudicata, Proof of lease, &c., &c., which do not appropriately come under any of the sections of the Bengal Tenancy Act. I thought, however, that these rulings might prove useful to the legal profession on questions that often arise in connection with Bengal Tenancy cases.

SOME OF THE SUGGESTIONS OF THE AUTHOR FOR THE AMENDMENT OF THE BENGAL TENANCY ACT.

[For his other suggestions: see his Minute of Dissent published in the Calcutta Gazette, January 10, 1923, Part IV, pp. 109—123]

1. In a Resolution passed on the 7th July 1921, the Bengal Legislative Council recommended the Government to appoint a Committee consisting of officials and non-officials to consider and report what amendments are needed in the Bengal Tenancy Act.

2. Orders appointing the Committee were issued in Government Resolution No. 7383 L. R., dated the 20th August, 1921.

3. The Committee held 43 meetings under the able presidency of Hon'ble Sir (now His Excellency) John Kerr. In the Committee the members got every opportunity of placing their views orally and also in writing and all the most important questions were allowed to be freely discussed.

4. I had the honour of being appointed a member of the Committee and was allowed the greatest latitude to place my views in and out of the Committee in the fullest way possible and I had also to take part in some sub-committee meetings.

5. I wrote out three printed books for the help of the Committee explaining my views for certain changes which I had advocated. I should express my thanks that all the points dealt with by me in the printed books were considered and discussed in the meetings.

6. The deliberations of the Committee which the majority arrived at were recorded and printed and from those printed notes Mr. C. Tindall, C.I.E., made the final draft of the Bill with the greatest precision and care, with the help of Babu Pranendra Narain Chaudhuri of the Provincial Judicial Service who was also a member of the Committee.

7. As I was asked by Mr. Tindall on some occasions to assist him I can testify to the great ability with which he finally drafted the Bill.

8. Our Report and the Bill were published in the Calcutta Gazette, Part IV, dated the 10th January 1923, and the Bill was circulated for public opinion.

9. But no Bill has been introduced as yet and some more time may be required for the purpose and probably it would be necessary to make certain changes in the final draft before it is introduced into the Council.

10. The last edition of my Bengal Tenancy Act was published in January, 1922, and I am glad to be able to say that the members of the Committee freely used my Book in their deliberations.

11. The last edition of my work being out of print for sometime I have thought it proper to bring out a new edition and I hope the additional notes up to date may be of some help to the deliberations of those who are now in charge of making a final draft Bill for introduction.

12. In view of the intricacy and importance of the proposed legislation I note below certain suggestions for consideration of the gentlemen now in charge of the Bill.

13. With this view and also to be of some help to the profession I venture to make the following comments upon the Bengal Tenancy Act. The members of my profession may find them to be of some interest in considering the various anomalies which are now to be found in the working of the Act.

14. For the preparation of the final draft Bill I beg to suggest that a Bill for the amendment of certain sections of the Bengal Tenancy Act will not serve the purpose successfully unless the Bill is directed not only to the Bengal Tenancy Act, but to other cognate Acts and Regulations. So it will be useful to make now one draft Bill embodying amendments of the Bengal Tenancy Act, Certificate Procedure Act, Putni Sale Law, and if possible, the Revenue Sale Law and also the Landlord and Tenancy Procedure Act VIII of 1869 (B. C.). All these Acts and Regulations may be combined together and one Bill for amendment of all these laws may be introduced.

15. With the above preliminary observations I first intend to point out that the Bengal Tenancy Act deals with agricultural lands, and the non-agricultural lands are dealt with by the Transfer of Property Act.

16. That the Bengal Tenancy Act deals with agricultural lands is to be found out from the classification of tenants under s. 4 of the Act. S. 4 classifies tenants under the Act under 3 principal classes of tenants.

1. Tenure-holder.
2. Raiyat.
3. Under Raiyat.

The definition of tenure-holder is not very happy. It says primarily the purpose is cultivation or collection of rent. Collection of rent necessarily means collection from raiyats and a raiyat means primarily a person who cultivates. So a tenure-holder is to collect rent from a raiyat who is primarily to cultivate. Consequently the person who is to be in immediate occupation of the land is primarily to cultivate the land.

An under-raiyat is a person who holds immediately or mediately under a raiyat. But an under-raiyat may occupy his land solely for dwelling purposes. Still he may be an under-raiyat within the meaning of the Act.

So ordinarily speaking only tenants for cultivation come within the purview of the Bengal Tenancy Act.

I have already pointed out that the definition of the tenure-holder is not happy. Suppose a putnidar or tenure-holder who has 100 bighas of lands lets out 50 bighas to cultivating raiyats and lets out the remaining 50 bighas to mercantile and manufacturing tenants. If the lands are equally divided for agricultural and non-agricultural purposes how can it be said that the tenure is one governed by the Bengal Tenancy Act and not by the T. P. Act.

If the original purpose is both agricultural and non-agricultural no one of these purposes can be said to be the primary purpose. Under these circumstances it is difficult to say that such a tenure is to be governed by the B. T. Act. There are great differences in the result. If the case is governed by the T. P. Act the period of limitation for bringing a suit for rent is either three years or 6 years according as the contract of lease is registered or not under Art. 116 or 110 of the Limitation Act; whereas if the case is governed by the Bengal Tenancy Act the period of limitation is practically 4 years; i.e., the rent suit is to be brought within 3 years from the last date of the agricultural year.

Moreover, if such a tenure is governed by the Bengal Tenancy Act all the sections of the Act apply.

The law is therefore not very clearly stated in the definitions as to the circumstances which will determine whether a ganti or putni tenure will be governed by the Bengal Tenancy Act or by the T. P. Act.

It seems that much depends on the meaning of the word "primarily" as used in the definition. It becomes a very difficult question in each case to determine whether a tenure should be governed by the T. P. Act or by the Bengal Tenancy Act.

17. In regard to raiyati holdings it is understood that the homesteads which are on a part of the agricultural holdings are governed by the Bengal Tenancy Act and it has also been enacted in s. 182 of the Bengal Tenancy Act that where a raiyat holds his homestead otherwise than as part of his holding the incidents of his homestead are governed by the same rules as his occupancy holding. The section is not quite clear whether the homestead of the raiyat and the separate occupancy holding should be under the same landlord or in the same village. The case law on the point does not give reasons satisfactorily and clearly.

18. If a raiyat sublets a portion of the raiyati holding to a tenant exclusively for homestead purposes it has been ruled that the sub-tenant becomes an under raiyat within the meaning of the Bengal Tenancy Act and not under the T. P. Act.

19. It will thus appear that the state of law as is to be found in the statute and as explained by the case-law is in a state of chaos and it requires that the law should be clearly enacted.

20. I should note that the definition of "holding" in section 3, cl. (9), is not satisfactory. I have dealt with this matter in my note of dissent and I have suggested that the definition should be changed. The case-law is in conflict. The cases are noted in the Book.

21. Chap. III relates to "tenures." It will appear that the limit of enhancement of a permanent tenure-holder may be very excessive; and at the same time there is no remedy open to the tenure-holder to relinquish it in favour of the landlord. Moreover, it often happens that for no fault of the permanent tenure-holder, the tenure becomes a losing concern; the landlord should, therefore, be compelled to proceed against the defaulting tenure when he obtains a decree for rent.

22. Non-permanent tenures are not expressly declared to be heritable or transferable. The law should be clearly laid down.

23. Where a permanent tenure-holder dies, the landlord should not be bound to make all the heirs parties to rent suits unless they take care to get their names registered. The case law in this respect is in an unsatisfactory condition.

24. The law relating to trees, so far as the non-permanent tenure-holder are concerned is nowhere defined. These should be made clear.

25. There is one matter which has been left out of consideration in its appropriate place. From the classification of tenants, it appears that one class excludes the other. So a fixed raiyat cannot be an occupancy raiyat and an under-raiyat also cannot be an occupancy raiyat. But it appears that the illustration to s. 183 of the Bengal Tenancy Act and s. 113 recognise that an under raiyat may acquire a right of occupancy by custom.

26. S. 183 lays down that there may be a custom which is not repugnant to the Act, but an under-raiyat's right of occupancy is repugnant to the subject or context of the Bengal Tenancy Act. There was no such custom before the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Act nor do I hardly know of any case where the elements to prove such a custom have been found or laid down.

27. It is true, however, that Revenue Officers in almost all districts of Bengal in preparing Record-of-Rights have entered under raiyats as having right of occupancy; no one knows where they got such authority and no one knows what elements they looked into in getting themselves satisfied that the under-raiyats acquired right of occupancy by custom. When such a right has been thus entered under s. 102 it has been erroneously thought by the Civil Courts that under s. 103B of the Bengal Tenancy Act the entry is presumptive evidence of the proof of such custom.

M. Jalim Ullah Fahmi

28. In this connection it should also be pointed out that according to s. 19 of the Act all rights of occupancy created previous to the Bengal Tenancy Act have been recognised. Under the old law a fixed raiyat could acquire right of occupancy and as such his right has been retained under s. 19.

29. But it is erroneous to suppose that a person who acquires the status of a fixed raiyat after the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Act can also acquire a right of occupancy. The case law to the contrary should be considered to have been erroneously decided.

30. There is no necessity in defining the right of occupancy to use the word "village;" simply "land" is sufficient.

31. In regard to the question relating to 'Burgadars,' 'Adhiars,' 'Bhagchasis,' and 'Dhankararidars,' etc., i.e., who are either labourers or, who being tenants, pay a rent in produce merely, the law should be entirely changed.

It is always a vexed question whether such a person is a tenant or a labourer or a licensee. There are numerous decisions of the High Court all of which cannot be reconciled and there has been a long discussion on the subject recently in the country which go one way to show that the law in this respect is in a very unsatisfactory condition. I should suggest that the matter should be entirely left to the free contract of the parties and there should be no commutation of rent and the Bengal Tenancy Act should not apply.

32. Middle class Bhadralokes as well as poor widows, and tenants generally during their minority as well as sebaits of idols are compelled to employ bargadars, etc., as a means of their subsistence. To consider these cases as cases of tenancy and then to allow a commutation seems to me a great hardship which should be remedied.

33. In regard to trees the law is understood to be that permanent tenureholders and raiyats at fixed rates have the right to cut and appropriate trees but the statutory law on this point is silent.

34. In regard to occupancy raiyats and non-occupancy raiyats, the law as to trees is not well understood.

35. S. 29 of the Bengal Tenancy Act has been interpreted in a way which has caused much mischief to the landlords. It has been uniformly ruled that an agreement to enhance the rent of an occupancy raiyat by more than 2 ans. in the rupee is wholly void and that the part up to 2 ans. cannot be enforced. If this is the interpretation of s. 29, the section should be altered and it should be clearly enacted that where there is an excess of over 2 ans. in the rupee the amount up to 2 ans. should be considered to be valid.

36. The proper meaning of s. 29 has not been clearly understood by the Courts when they have said in certain cases that progressive rents by more than 2 ans. in the rupee cannot be contracted.

37. S. 38 is silent as to whether a tenant can take the plea of reduction in a suit for rent brought by the landlord. This ought to be made clear.

38. The law relating to Aborigines introduced in Chap. VIIA is practically an exception to the general rules contained in the Act. It requires to be revised on all points.

39. As to alteration of rent for alteration of area under s. 52 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, the cases are not uniform in laying down the proposition of law and so they require to be reconsidered and settled by the statute.

40. The Full Bench ruling under cl. (b) of s. 52 which over-rules the Division Bench case seems to have laid down the law which cannot be worked out.

41. The presumption under s. 50 arising under sub-sec. (2) for payment of rent at a uniform rate of 20 years requires modification. The modification which may be suggested should be 20 years anterior to 1850, i.e., when the rule was first enacted.

42. The procedure in rent suits should be as speedy as possible and in this respect s. 148A should be simplified. All that should be made necessary in the case of co-sharers is that they should all be made parties and all such information as are available to the plaintiff should be mentioned without any complications whatsoever. Summonses in all cases should be by registered post. Where a landlord proves by affidavit the truth of his claim he should not be required to give any formal evidence. Such affidavit may be filed along with the plaint and a decree might be passed in ex parte cases upon such affidavit merely and it would be necessary for the landlord to prove his case by further evidence only when the tenant appears and insists upon it. The tenures and holdings in the first instance should be attached and sold and there should be no process against the tenants personally which almost always does a great mischief to the tenants.

43. In regard to the Record-of-Rights the practice now is that the Bazar land, Chandina land and other non-agricultural lands are made the subject of entries under s. 102. This is unnecessary and the Bengal Tenancy Act does not authorize Revenue officers to deal with non-agricultural lands. The Revenue Department know all these but do not change the rules. This vexes the people very much ; they are unnecessarily required to incur large expenses for looking over the works of the Revenue officers in this respect. According to law the entries in regard to these non-agricultural holdings have no value and parties do not derive any benefit therefrom. The High Court however has in certain cases ruled that these entries have some value. It is submitted that these decisions are erroneous in law.

44. I think I ought to point out here that the recent Full Bench case in which it has been decided, that an application under s. 105 withdrawn with liberty to bring a fresh one cannot be maintained requires consideration by the Legislature. Without discussing the correctness or otherwise of this Full Bench decision, it is submitted that for the good of the country the law should be changed by the Legislature.

45. It was generally understood in this country that a tenant cannot be sued for rent except within the jurisdiction of the court where the lands lie but a decision has been rightly or wrongly made by the Calcutta High Court to the effect that a tenant may be sued for rent wherever he resides irrespective of the question as to where the lands lie. This interpretation of the law should be altered.

46. There should be a summary procedure provided for speedy realisation of rent in cases proved to the satisfaction of the Government that there would be no oppression by the landlord. In this respect the Summary Certificate Procedure as provided for in Chap. XIII A should be extended to all cases of registered kabulyats and where there has been a record of rights up to the claim of Rs. 50 at least.

47. The question as to transferability of occupancy holdings has always been a vexed question. In my note of dissent.* I have stated my reasons why this right ought not to be given to occupancy raiyats. Neither the economic condition of the country nor the habits of the people have been such that by granting the right of transferability the occupancy raiyats will improve their position. On the contrary the condition of the people will be prejudicially affected if occupancy holdings are made transferable.

48. S. 179 of the Bengal Tenancy Act has been rightly or wrongly interpreted to mean that in granting a mokurari lease in a permanently settled area an abwab or illegal tax may be levied. This was never the intention of the Legislature when Reg. VIII of 1793 was passed, not was there any such provision in Act X of 1859 or Act VIII of 1869 (B. C.). There is also nothing expressly stated in s. 179 of the B. T. Act but on account of the bad drafting of the section the lawyers have got loopholes to make this argument which has been accepted by the courts, and subsequently when s. 74 was amended the Legislature has accepted the interpretation. I personally know of a case where there was a contract that in the case of any marriage in the family of the landlord the tenant would have to pay a certain tax ; according to s. 179 such an agreement would be valid. The result may be that when the family will be large the tenant would be required to pay large sums of money every year, to the landlord. It is suggested that the law should be made clear.

14. SAVINGS FOR SPECIAL ENACTMENTS :

Bengal
Tenancy Act
plete Code.

I. Bengal Tenancy Act not a complete Code :—The Bengal Tenancy Act is not a complete Code: Chandra Binode v. Sheikh Ala Bux, 48 Cal. 184, (Special Bench), 24 C.W.N. 818 at p. 848, s. c., 31 C.L.J. 510. See also Kripa Sindhu v. Annada, 35 Cal. 34 (F.B.), s. c. 11 C.W.N. 983, s. c. 6 C.L.J. 272. It does not profess to incorporate the general principles of the law of contract, and the doctrines of equity jurisprudence in so far as they may have to be applied in the determination of disputes between landlords and tenants; 44 Cal. 771; s. c. 20 C.W.N. 1340; s. c. 24 C.L.J. 541 (Mookerjee and Cuming, JJ.).

Preamble indicates the general scope of the Act.

Entire law of landlord and tenant has not been amended.

2. Amend and Consolidate certain enactments :—“.....the preamble of the Bengal Tenancy Act, which may be referred to as indicating its general scope [See Maxwell on the Interpretation of Statutes, 3rd edition p. 59, and Turquand v. Board of Trade, L.R. 11 App. Cas. 286] shows that the Act is intended to amend and consolidate, not the entire law of landlord and tenant, but only certain enactments relating to that law. The old law (see Act X of 1859, secs. 105 and 108, and Act VIII of 1869 B. C., secs. 59 and 64) contained provisions for the execution of rent-decrees obtained by co-sharer landlords for their separate shares of the rent as well as those obtained by all the joint-landlords acting in concert. But the Bengal Tenancy Act* contains provisions only in respect of rent-decrees of the latter sort.....” Per BANERJEE, J., (MACLEAN, C. J., concurring) in Kedar Nath v. Ardha Chandra, 5 C.W.N. 763 (at p. 766).† The preamble of an Act cannot be made use of to control the enactments themselves when they are expressed in clear and unambiguous terms: Powell v. Kempton Park Race Course Co., [1889] A.C. 143, see Nepra v. Sajer, 31 C.W.N. 128 (notes), s. c., 103 I.C. 662 (Per Mitter, J., Panton, J., agreeing).

the Act—Observations of Jenkins,
C. J.

“It was not the design of the Act, as I understand it, to deprive a tenant of the rights that he otherwise possesses against a third person between whom and himself there was no relationship of landlord and tenant. It was only intended to deal with such rights as existed between landlord and tenant”: (Per Jenkins C.J., N. R. Chatterjea, J., agreeing, 4 April, 1915): Krishna Chandra v. Satish Chandra, 20 C.W.N. 872; see notes under sch. III art 3.

Patna High Court bound to interpret Bengal
Tenancy Act according to the Calcutta
High Court

3. Interpretation and Construction of the Act: Duty of Patna High Court :—By the Cursus Curia of judicial authority laid down by the Calcutta High Court, the Patna High Court is bound, in cases where the facts are in para materia with such current of authority and more specially so in interpreting and construing an Act such as the Bengal Tenancy Act which applies to Bengal as well as to the province of Bihar which was formerly within the jurisdiction of the Calcutta High Court: * Ganga Singh v. The Chairman of the District Board, Patna, [1919 Pat.] p. 235, (Atkinson and Manuk J. J., 10 Feb. 1919).

* Article 6 of Schedule III has since this decision been amended.

† The correctness of the decision in the case of Kedarnath v. Ardha Chandra was doubted and it was held that under sch. III art 6 as amended by Act I. (B. C.) of 1907, a decree for rent obtained before the passing of Act I, (B. C.) of 1907 in a suit by a co-sharer landlord is subject to the same period of limitation as a decree in a suit by the entire body of landlords: Thakuram v. Mahendra Nath Dey Sarkar, 10 C.L.J. 463—A contrary view seems to have been taken in the case of K. B. Dutt v. Gostha Behary, 16 C.W.N. 1006 s. c., 16 C.L.J. 379; see notes under sch. III. art 3.

4. Interpretation of Statutes:—One Act is not to be considered to take away the rights and privileges conferred by a former Act unless it is quite clear from the provision that it does so: Shiba Kali v. Chuni Lal, 31 C.W.N. 1007 (Cuming & Mallik, J.J.). It is a well established principle of law that retrospective effect ought not to be given to a statute unless an intention to that effect is expressed in plain and unambiguous language: Ibid. Enactments which are declaratory in form are not necessarily retrospective in their operation: Young v. Adams, (1898) A.C. 469. If an Act touches a right in existence at the passing of an Act no retrospective effect should be given to the Act unless a clear intention to that effect is manifested: Colonial Sugar Refining Co. v. Irving, (1905) A.C. 369; see Nepra v. Sajer, 31 C.W.N. 128 (notes) s. c., 103 I.C. 662. It is not permissible to refer to a Bill which is not passed into law for the purpose of construing what an earlier Act meant: Ibid.

5. Landlord and Tenant:—The Bengal Tenancy Act, according to its preamble, is an Act relating to the law of Landlord and Tenant, and therefore all its provisions must be applicable only to suits in which the parties stand in the relation of landlord and tenant and therefore Art. 2 of Pt. I, Sch. III, is not applicable to a suit for rent by an assignee of the arrears from the landlord as the assignee is not the landlord of the defendant, Mahendra v. Kaliash, 4 C.W.N. 605; (see notes under Schedule III article 2), but the assignee stands in the shoes of the landlord, and such a suit is a rent-suit for the purpose of jurisdiction of the Court in which such suit is to be brought; Sris Chandra v. Nasim Quazi, 4 C.W.N. 357 (F. B.); s. c., 27 Cal. 827. The person to whom the land, the rent for which is claimed, as also the arrears of rent are transferred, is an assignee of the whole interest of the landlord and is a "landlord" within the meaning of this Act: Sashi Kumar v. Sita Nath, 7 C.L.J. 425; See also Pramada Nath v. Ramani Kanta, 7 C.L.J. 139; s. c.; 35 Cal. 331, s. c., 12 C.W.N. 249. A sale held at the instance of an assignee of a rent-decree who is not an assignee of the landlord's interest in the land has at most the effect of a sale held in execution of decree for money under the Civil Procedure Code; Munarattan v. Harinath, 1 C.L.J. 500.

Suit for rent by an assignee.

Limitation in such suits.

Jurisdiction.

Assignee of decree but not assignee of land.

Where a landlord brought a suit for an amount reserved in the lease and which was payable to the superior landlord and which he had not paid, held that the suit was for the purpose of limitation, one not for rent under the Bengal Tenancy Act but for damages: Hemendra Nath v. Kumarnath, 32 Cal. 169, s. c., 9 C.W.N. 96, but see Basanta Kumar v. Ashutosh, 27 Cal. 67; see notes under s. 3 cl. (5).

Rent payable to superior landlord—limitation.

A landlord after losing his interest in the land may bring a suit for rent against the tenant under the provisions of this Act: Srimonto v. Mahadeo, 31 Cal. 550; s. c., 8 C.W.N. 531; at p. 533, and where a landlord after obtaining a decree for arrears of rent, loses his interest in the estate, he can still execute his decree as a landlord and as a rent-decree, Khetra Pal v. Kriharthamoyi, 10 C.W.N. 517 (F. B.); s. c. 33 Cal. 566, (which overruled the case of Hem Chander v. Monmohini, 3 C.W.N. 604) ; see also Manindra Nath v. Ashutosh, 25 C.L.J. 626, s. c., 21 C.W.N. 1132. Where a decree for rent under which a holding was sold had been obtained by the decree-holders and the decree covered a period during which they were not sole landlords but merely co-sharer landlords, held that the decree was a rent-decree and could be executed as such and the holding passed by the sale ; Sarup Sahu v. Jagarnath, 2 Pat. L. J. 194 (Chapman and Roe J. J., Feb., 9, 1917).

Out-going landlord.

Where the landlord lost his interest before the institution of the suit for arrears of rent, held that the decree was not a decree for rent : Forbes v. Maharaj Bahadur, 41 Cal. 926, s. c., 18 C.W.N. 747 (P.C.). But where a landlord after executing the decree which he obtained for rent loses a part of his interest, the sale is one under the Bengal Tenancy Act : Syedunnissa Khatun v. Amiruddi, 45 Cal. 294, s. c., 21 C.W.N. 847 s. c., 25 C.L.J. 629 where all the cases have been discussed : (Mookerjee and Beachcroft J. J., 23 April 1917). But when a ticcadar after the termination of his ticca brought a suit for rent and subsequently sold a holding in execution of the decree and in the meantime the landlord in possession has obtained a decree for rent falling due after the termination of the ticca, held that there could not be two charges, and the landlord in possession was entitled to the first charge : Srimanto v. Mahadeo, 31 Cal. 550 s. c., 8 C.W.N. 531. A landlord after he has sold the tenure in execution of a decree for arrears of rent cannot sue the auction-purchaser of the tenure for rent which has fallen due between the date of the decree and the date of the auction purchaser's purchase under that decree : Faez Rahaman v. Ram Sukh, 21 Cal. 169. A trustee is not precluded from executing a decree as a rent-decree by reason of the fact that the landlord's interest in the land has not become vested in him : Chhatrapat v. Gopichand, 4 C.W.N. 446 : s. c. 26 Cal. 750.

Rent falling due after date of decree

There cannot be two first charges.

Trustee.

Cessation of landlord's interest.

Lease of the same land to two persons.

Interest between Zemindari and putni.

Conflicting rulings.

As to the history of judicial opinion on the question of the effect of the cessation, partial or entire, of the interest of a landlord on his right to enforce realisation of arrears of rent by sale of the tenancy under the Bengal Tenancy Act, see notes under s. 65.

When two persons obtain leases of the same land, the subsequent lessee cannot treat the former as a tenant without any assignment from the landlord his right to receive or enhance the rent ; Kullum Sheikh v. Pachu Mandal, 11 W.R. 128 ; see also Ram Kanai v. Fakir Chand, 8 C.W.N. 438.

An intermediate interest can be created between a zemindari and a putni : Raj Kumar v. Prabal Chandra, 9 C.W.N. 656 ; Modhusudan v. Devendra Nath, 7 C.L.J. notes portion p. 23 ; consequently the intermediate holder is the landlord of the Putnidar. A contrary view has been taken in the case of Bibi Jarao Kumari v. Hanifuddin, 14 C.W.N. 389. The question came up for decision before Carnduff and Richardson J. J., who held, following the case in 9 C.W.N. 656 and disagreeing with the view taken in 14 C.W.N. 389, that an intermediate interest can be created between a zemindari and putni ; unreported second appeal No. 2604 of 1913, Nilambar Ghose v. Mir Mahachanuddin decided on the 2nd Jan., 1914. See notes under s. 3 cl. (4) and also notes under s. 65.

Although this Act applies to landlords and tenants, s. 157 provides that in a suit for possession against a trespasser, the plaintiff may claim an alternative relief for rent.

but it is open to the landlord to repudiate the relation to treat him as a trespasser and to evict him as such ; on the other hand, it is open to the tenant to indicate at the time he encroaches, that he intends to hold the encroached lands for his own exclusive benefit and not to hold them as he held the lands to which they are adjacent ; in this event, the landlord, though willing to treat him as a tenant, may be driven by an assertion of a hostile title, to a suit to eject him as a trespasser. The question arises what period of limitation, if any, is applicable to a suit for ejectment by the landlord.....In my opinion, in the first class of cases, art. 142 of the second schedule of the Limitation Act would apply, and the landlord, if he wishes to eject the defendant must bring his suit within 12 years of the dispossession ; if he does not do so, his title to recover actual possession would be barred, although his title to receive fair rent would not be barred, because the possession of the tenant, so far as the latter right is concerned, has never been adverse."

Character of encroachment—intention.

Hostile title. Limitation.

Possession by a person will be presumed to be held in his own right and adversely to the true owner, but while a tenant taking advantage of his position as such, takes possession of lands belonging to his landlord not included in his holding, the presumption is that such lands are added to the tenure and form part thereof for the benefit of the tenant so long as the holding continues and afterwards for the benefit of his landlord, unless it clearly appeared by some act done at the time that the tenant made the encroachment for his own benefit: Muthuvakkoothavan v. Orr, 35 Mad. 618 approving the case of Gooroodas v. Issur Chandra, 22 W.R. 246 ; it is not necessary that the tenant trespasser should prove that his trespass was known to his landlord to justify this presumption: Muthuvakkoo v. Orr, 35 Mad. 618.

Possession prima facie adverse.

Where a tenant to the knowledge of the landlord asserted a hostile title to an encroachment made by the tenant, held that the landlord had no enforceable title under art. 144 of sch. I of the Limitation Act: Birendra Kishore v. Lakshmi, 22 C.L.J. 129.

Hostile title.

Where a proprietor sued a tenure-holder for recovery of possession of land and proved that he had a good title to the land prior to 12 years before the institution of the suit, held that he was entitled to claim the presumption that he was in possession at that time and that his possession continued till within 12 years of the institution of the suit and that art. 144 of sch. I of the Limitation Act applied: Midnapur Zemindary Co. v. Pandav Sardar, 2 Pat. L. J. 506 (Mullick and Atkinson J. J.) ; see in this connection Gopal Krishna v. Lakshiram, 9 Cal. 745 (F.B.) ; Ishan Chandra v. Raja Ramranjan, 7 C.L.R. 364 (P.C.) ; Raktoo Singh v. Sudharam, 25 C.L.J. 60 (P.C.).

Presumption.

Where a tenant encroaches upon the land of his landlord and is in adverse possession of the absolute interest for twelve years, then the landlord's rights should be held to be completely extinguished ; but if the adverse possession is in respect of a limited interest, as tenant, then the landlord is entitled only to claim rent: Midnapur Zemindary Co. Ltd. v. Pandav Sardar, 2 Pat. L. J., 506 at p. 511 (Mullick and Atkinson J. J., 20 April 1917).

Adverse possession.

Where a tenant encroached upon the land of the landlord in his character as a tenant, the landlord is dispossessed only in a limited sense who should bring a suit for khas possession within 12 years: Gopeswar v. Peary Sundary, 27 C.W.N. clxviii (168 notes portion) :

Landlord dispossessed in a limited sense—Limitation.

Landlord may get additional rent or recover possession.

(Newbould J.), confirmed on Letters Patent appeal, (Sanderson C.J. and Richardson J., 18 July 1923). If a tenant encroaches upon the adjoining waste of his landlord, the landlord may either sue him for possession within 12 years of his knowledge or he may treat him as a tenant and get additional rent: Abdul Hossain v. Afsaruddin, 34 C.L.J. 481; the case of Ishan v. Ramranjan, 2 C.L.J. 125 was followed.

Suspension of rent.

16. Dispossession by Landlord : Suspension of Rent : Apportionment of Rent :—The doctrine of suspension of rent, where the tenant has not been put in possession of part of the subject leased, has been applied where the rent was a lump rent for the whole land leased treated as an indivisible subject. It has no application to a case where the stipulated rent is so much per acre or bigha: Katayani v. Uday Kumar, 52 I.A. 160 s. c., 52 Cal. 470 s. c. 30 C.W.N. 1.

Apportionment of rent even where rent reserved is a lump sum for the whole land: Katayoni's Case explained.

In the case of Susil Kumar v. Rajani Kanta, 31 C.W.N. 990 July 22, 1927, their Lordships (B. B. Ghose and Roy J.J.), upon a review of authorities, observed that even where the rent reserved is a lump sum for the whole land there may be apportionment of rent: their Lordships observed that in the Privy Council case of Katayani v. Uday Kumar, 52 I.A. 160, their Lordships of the Judicial Committee did not lay down that where the rent is fixed in a lump there would be suspension of rent on the ground of dispossession of a part of the demised premises by the landlord and there should not be any apportionment in any case and that it was not necessary for their Lordships of the Judicial Committee to express either disapproval or approval of the application of the doctrine of suspension of rent in the cases in which it has been applied, but their Lordships only stated the circumstances in which it has been applied.

B. B. Ghose and Roy, J. J., in the case of Susil Kumar v. Rajanikanta, 31 C.W.N. 990 observed as follows:—"The rule that rent is suspended on account of dispossession of the tenant from a portion of the demised premises is one derived from the English common law. An application of this rule to this country in its rigid form can hardly lead to justice. The origin of the rule in England has its historical basis. The application of this rule may be salutary in certain circumstances but it can only be applied in this country as a rule of equity, justice and good conscience. Whatever may be the law in England I do not think that the technicalities of the English common law should be imported in this country, particularly in the mofussil irrespective of any consideration whether the application of such rule would meet the ends of justice. To hold that in every case of dispossession of the tenant from a part there should be an entire suspension of rent.....seems to me hardly consistent with justice. We may apply any rule of English law as a rule of equity, justice and good conscience with reference to the circumstances of a case, but such a rule must be applied with caution. I do not see why he (the tenant) should not pay rent for the land of which he remains in possession. The Court should always endeavour to apportion the rent whenever possible and be very careful in applying rule of suspension of rent which can only be allowed in exceptional cases having regard to the circumstances of the case." The cases of Reeve v. Bird, 1 Cr. M. & R. 31 (1834); Stokes v. Cooper, 3 Camp 514n; s. c. 14 R.R. 829n (1814); Neale

v. Mackenzie, 1 M. & W. 747, s. c. 46 R.R. 478 (1836) and Upton v. Townend, 17 C.B. 30, s. c. 104 R.R. 562 (1855) were explained.

It has been held in a series of cases that where a tenant dispossesses his tenant from a part of his leasehold lands, the landlord's right to claim rent is suspended in respect of the entire leasehold: Dhunput v. Mahomed Kazim, 24 Cal. 296, Lalita Sundari v. Surnamoyi, 5 C.W.N. 353; Ramcharan v. The Administrator General of Bengal, 9 C.L.J. 578; Chandrakanta v. Ramanath, 11 C.L.J. 591; Asutosh v. Joylal, 17 C.L.J. 50; Godai Mulla v. Aminuddi, 18 C.L.J. 509; Dwijendra Nath v. Aftabuddi, 21 C.W.N. 492.

The tenancy is not terminated by eviction: Dwijendra Nath v. Aftabuddi, (Narendra v. Dwijendra), 21 C.W.N. 492 at page 494 col. 2, s. c. 25 C.L.J. 53; the true position is that the eviction of the tenant, whether from part of the demised premises or from the whole, entails a suspension of the entire rent, while the eviction lasts, whether the tenant remains in possession of the residue or not; the tenancy is not terminated, nor is the tenant discharged from the performance of his covenants other than payment of the rent, such as covenant to repair: Ibid.*

Effect of eviction
or whole.

To constitute an eviction, it is not necessary that there should be an actual physical expulsion by force or violence from any part of the premises: any act of a permanent character done by the landlord or his agent with the intention of depriving the tenant of the enjoyment of the demised premises or any part thereof operates as an eviction: Dwijendra v. Aftabuddi, 21 C.W.N. 492 at p. 496 col. 1; s. c. 25 C.L.J. 53.

What constitutes an eviction.

Where a landlord evicted the tenant from a part of the lands demised, held that in a record of rights, it is competent to a settlement officer to record that no rent is payable: Ibid.

Entry in
rights.

The real right of the zemindar to receive rent from the tenants depends upon his securing to the latter quiet possession and giving them proper and lawful means of realising rents from the raiyats; Kristo Soonder v. Chundra Nath, 15 W.R. 230. Where the tenant defendant was dispossessed of the land leased to him by a third party to whom the landlord, (plaintiff) had given a lease of the same land and assisted him in the dispossession, it was held that the landlord was precluded from suing the tenant for rent during the period of such dispossession, though the latter had recovered a decree for possession with mesne profits: Kadambinee v. Kasee Nath, 13 W.R. 338. Where in execution of the decree for arrears of rent A., the landlord, put to sale the holding of the tenant and the auction-purchaser who purchased the holding could not get possession on account of the acts of the landlord's servants, held in a suit for rent by the landlord that it should be dismissed: Maharaj Kumar Sri Newas v. Buksh Harihar, 14 C.W.N. lxxv. (notes portion p. 75) A landlord is not entitled to rent when the landlord has not actually ejected the lessee, but interfered in the collection of rents and encouraged the raiyats to deposit their rents with him as superior landlord: Kristo Soonder v. Chandra Nath, 15 W.R. 230. See also Gopnund Jha v. Lall Govind, 12 W.R. 109. Where the act of the landlord is not merely a trespass but something of a grave character interfering substantially with the enjoyment by the tenant of the property demised to him, there is a suspension of rent during such interference though there may not be an actual eviction; and if such interference be in respect of even a portion of the property, there should be no apportionment of the rent, the whole rent being equally chargeable upon every part of the land demised; but if the interference is in respect of only a certain portion of the demised property, the rent for which is separately assessed there should be apportionment, Dhanpat v. Mahomed Kazin, 24 Cal. 296; and when the lease reserves rent at a certain rate per bigha, it cannot be said that each bigha of land is separately assessed and separately charged with rent, and therefore a landlord is not entitled to recover rent for the lands in the possession of the tenant when he has dispossessed the tenant from the other lands of the tenure: Harro Kumari v. Purna Chandra, 28 Cal. 188. See also Saripjan v. Aftabuddin, 13 C.L.J. 115; but it has been held in the case of Surendra v. Kalikant, 14 C.W.N. ccvii, (207 notes portion), that the rule that partial eviction causes suspension of entire rent applies even where the rent was settled at a certain rate per unit of measurement. The law does not require that there should be a complete eviction of the lessee in order that he may be exempted from liability to pay rent: Rani Lalita v. Rani Surnomoyi, 5 C.W.N. 353. See also Mahomed Jeallya v. Sukheannessa, 14 C.W.N. 446, s. c. 11 C.L.J. 606. Where a landlord took kabuliyats from the under-tenants of his tenant but the latter was not dispossessed, held that the tenant was liable to pay rent when as a matter of fact he was not dispossessed and was never disturbed: Srimati Moni v. Kalachand, 9 C.W.N. 871. A tenant is not entitled to claim suspension of rent when he is dispossessed not by the landlord but by the other lessees of the landlord, Kaliprasanna v. Mathuranath, 34 Cal. 191.

* The following cases were relied on: Hodgskin v. Queenborough, Willes, 129; Peclat v. Boosey, 31 L.J.C.P., 281; 8 Jur. N. S. 1107; 136 R. R. 862; Morrison v. Chadwick, 7 C.B. 266; 78 R. R. 627 and Newtoa v. Allin, 1 Q. B. 518.

Complete eviction not necessary.

Tenant liable for rent when not actual dispossession.

A tenant's right to suspension of entire rent for eviction from a substantial portion of land continues till effective steps are taken by the landlord to restore him to possession: Purna Chandra v. Rasik Chandra, 13 C.L.J. 119.

A tenure-holder is entitled to withhold rent where his landlord is directly or indirectly concerned in the dispossession: Mosudan v. Satis Chandra, 44 I.C. 658 (Patna).

Partial eviction.

Where lessee did not get possession of a part.

The rule of law that partial eviction by the landlord causes the entire suspension of rent was not extended to a case where a part of the land comprised in a tenancy, was lost by diluvion, and on reformation of the same, was settled by the landlord with a third person: Raicharan v. Administrator General of Bengal, 36 Cal. 856; s. c. 13 C.W.N. 853. The tenant in such a case may claim a proportionate abatement of rent: Ibid; the rule that when a landlord is responsible for the partial eviction of his tenant from the demised premises, there is a suspension of the entire rent, has been adopted in England not without considerable divergence of opinion. It would not be right to extend the application of such a rule, which may often operate harshly to cases to which the principle on which it is founded is clearly inapplicable: (Ibid) Per Mookerjee J. The rule of law that partial eviction by the landlord causes the suspension of entire rent has been held also inapplicable to a case where the tenant did not get possession of a portion of the land demised, in the beginning of the tenancy : Annada Prasad v. Mathuralal Nag, 13 C.W.N. 702, s. c., 9 C.L.J. 585 ; in such a case the tenant is bound to pay proportionate rent : Ibid. In this case the lessee was prevented from taking possession of a portion of the demised land by another lessee to whom the said portion was demised by a subsequent lease, and it was held that as the landlord was found not to have acted mala fide, and the lessee so far from repudiating the lease kept possession of the remaining portion and even paid rent subsequently to the creation of the second lease, the lessee could not, in a suit for rent by the landlord, ask for a suspension of the whole rent, and was bound to pay proportionate rent. The principle laid down in the case of Annada Prasad v. Mathura Nath, 13 C.W.N. 702, s. c., 9 C.L.J. 585, was followed by D. Chatterjee and Beachcroft J. J., in the case of Sarada Prasad v. Manmatha Nath, 19 C.W.N. 870, in which case the facts found were as follows : the tenant had not been put in actual possession of a portion of the demised land notwithstanding this the tenant went on paying the full rent ; it was held upon these facts that the tenant was not entitled to suspension of rent but was entitled to abatement.

Abatement of rent.

There should be an apportionment of rent where a comparatively small portion of the demised lands was found to have originally belonged to the lessee and to have been included in the lease by mutual mistake ; the whole lease should not be set aside : Raimoni Dasi v. Mathura Mohon, 16 C.W.N. 606 ; s. c., 15 C.L.J. 665 ; s. c., 39 Cal. 1016.

Apportionment where mutual mistake.

Where a landlord put a holding to sale and purchased the same, and the tenant subsequently got the sale set aside and was at liberty to go back to the possession of the land as a matter of fact was invited by the landlord to take possession and notwithstanding the tenant did not take possession and there was nothing to shew that the landlord obstructed the tenant in any way, held that the landlord was not required before suing for rent to put the tenant into possession : Gopal Chandra v. Krishna Chandra, 9 C.L.J. 595.

Where after setting aside of sale tenant did not go to take possession.

Where a landlord dispossessed the tenant from a portion of the land demised and afterwards handed over possession of the portion dispossessed of by him, held that the landlord after handing over the possession is not entitled to claim any rent even for the portion which was in the possession of the tenant, for the period antecedent to the date of the handing over of possession by the landlord : Ashutosh v. Joy Lal, 17 C.L.J. 50 ; to hold otherwise would be to render absolutely nugatory the rule as to suspension of rent as punishment for the dispossession by the landlord of the tenant from a portion of the land demised ; Ibid.

Rent for period antecedent to restoration to tenant of dispossessed portion.

A vendor is bound to give possession to his vendee ; so also as a general rule the lessor is bound to give possession to his lessee ; Gopal Chandra v. Krishna Chandra, 9 C.L.J. 595 ; where a putni was sold under Reg. VIII of 1819 and purchased by the landlord and subsequently the sale having been set aside at the instance of the putnidar, the landlord gave notice to the former to resume possession of the putni taluk and the Putnidar did not take possession and there was nothing to shew that the landlord in any way obstructed the tenant, held that a suit by the landlord for rent is maintainable and that the landlord was not bound to put the unwilling tenant into possession before bringing a suit for rent, Ibid.

Lessor bound to give-possession to lessee. Landlord before bringing a rent-suit is not bound to put unwilling tenant into possession of land which landlord dispossessed.

A tenant is not entitled to suspension of the entire rent when a landlord did not on account of a bona fide mistake put the tenant in possession, the lands being largely jungle and little known: Katyani Dasi v. Uday Kumar, 49 Cal. 257 (affirmed on appeal, 52 I.A. 160, s. c. 52 Cal. 417). The entire rent will not be suspended when the tenant knew in the beginning of the tenancy that some portion was in possession of another; he is entitled to a reduction of rent of that portion: Narendra Chandra v. Manindra Chandra, 49 Cal. 1019, s. c. 26, C.W.N. 826, (N. R. Chatterjee and Pearson J. J.). Where the landlord having let out a portion of a land to an earlier lessee lets it out again with other lands to a subsequent lessee and fails to deliver to the subsequent lessee possession of the entire land to him the entire rent is suspended: Manindra Chandra v. Narendra Chandra, 46 Cal. 956, (Fletcher and Cuming J. J.): the cases of Neale v. Mackenzie (1836), 1 M.L.W. 747, S. S. 46, R. R. 478 and Smith v. Raleigh, (1814) 3 Camp. 513, S.C., 14 R. R. 829 were followed, and the case of Stokes v. Cooper, (1814) 3 Camp. 514n, S.C., 14 R. R. 829n and Annada Prasad v. Mathura Nath, 13 C.W.N. 702 were distinguished.

In the absence of a contract to the contrary the lessor is bound on lessee's request to put him in possession of the property and the lessee has a good defence in an action for rent: Udai Kumar v. Katyayani, 49 Cal. 257, s. c., 35 C.L.J. 292, (Mookerjee, Newbould and Pearson J. J.). A person who has been deprived of possession of part of the demised premises should not be held liable for the whole rent; the principle applies with greater force where the dispossession took place by any act of the landlord: Mesbahuddin v. Abdul, 34 C.L.J. 119, (N. R. Chatterjee and Panton J. J.).

The rule of law as regards suspension of rent has been introduced into this country as a rule of equity, justice and good conscience or rule of policy.

In order to apply the rule of law regarding suspension of rent on account of eviction by landlord the court must look to the circumstances of each case and the facts necessary to cause suspension of rent must be distinctly found. The facts necessary to cause suspension of rent on account of an alleged eviction of landlord by the landlord must be distinctly found in order to bring into operation this rule which has been applied as a punishment to the landlord for his illegal acts.

"Eviction" signifies that there must be something done by the landlord with the intension of depriving the tenant of the enjoyment of the demised premises. In this case the rent was apportioned: Bisweswar v. Kali Charan, 44 C.L.J. 27 (Cuming & B. B. Ghose, J. J.). The cases of Upton v. Townend, 17 C.B. 30 and Dhunpat v. Muhammad Kazim, 24 Cal. 296 were referred to.

To apply the doctrine of suspension of rent on account of eviction by landlord the finding must be clear that there has been an eviction in fact and the question must be tried whether the lessor was a party to the eviction and it must also be found as a fact as to whether the act was done by the landlord with the object of depriving the tenant of the peaceful enjoyment of any portion of the demised premises: Tarap Sheikh v. Kunja Behari, 44 C.L.J. 191 (B. B. Ghose & Panton, J. J.). The doctrine of suspension of rent has been applied where the rent was fixed in a lump for the whole land leased, treated as an indivisible subject, and it cannot be applied where the rent is to be fixed according to the area in possession of the tenant: Ibid. The principle of suspension of rent is inapplicable where the tenant is liable to pay according to the stipulation at so much per bigha per year: Ibid. (Katyayani v. Uday, 52 I.A. 160, s. c., 52 Cal. 470, s. c., 30 C.W.N. 1 (P.C.) followed.)

Actual physical ouster by a title paramount is not necessary to prove eviction; there must be clear proof of title of the person claiming paramount title and consequently proof of absence of title of the lessor: Ram Ranjan v. Jayantilal, 44 C.L.J. 449. (Walmsley & Chakravarti, J.J.).

In the absence of a contract or custom there is no obligation on the part of the landlord to provide the tenants with the means to cultivate their lands, held that the tenants in this case were not entitled to suspension of the nagdi rent on the ground that the landlord did not provide the necessary irrigation facilities: Partab Narayan v. Nathan Singh, [1924 Pat.] p. 173, s. c. A.I.R. 1924 Pat. 605.

17. Dispossession by a third person of land in tenant's possession :—Where there is a current lease and the tenant is dispossessed by a third party, time does not commence to run against the landlord in a suit for possession until the expiration of the lease: Kishwar Nath v. Kali Sankar, 10 C.W.N. 343; Krishnagovind v. Hari Charan, 13 Cal. 101; see also Krishna Govind v. Hari Charan, 9 Cal. 367. But when the lease has expired and the tenant is holding over with the landlord's consent, and the possession of such third party is adequate in continuity, in publicity and in extent so as to shew that it is possession adverse to the landlord, the latter is not precluded from determining the tenancy and suing the trespasser in ejectment, and his right to sue will be barred after 12 years of such possession: Kishwar Nath v. Kali Sankar, 10 C.W.N. 343; see also Radhamoni v. The Collector of Khulna, 4 C.W.N. 597.

Right of suit by landlord for recovery of possession when tenant is dispossessed

18. Adverse claim by tenant :—The possession of a tenant for life is not rendered adverse within the meaning of the Limitation Act by a notice from the tenant that he claims to be holding on a perpetual or hereditary tenure so as to bar a suit for possession on the expiration of the life-tenancy: Beni Pershad v. Dudhnath, 27 Cal. 157. If during the continuance of the tenancy of a person he sets up as against the landlord a higher interest in himself it cannot operate to create in him by prescription an indefeasible right in respect of such interest: Seshamma v. Chickaya, 25 Mad. 507. A suit for ejectment brought 12 years after the repudiation of the tenancy by the tenant is not barred by limitation: Srinivasa v. Muthusami, 24 Mad. 246. It has been held in the case of Bagdu Manjhi v. Durga Prasad, 9 C.W.N. 292 that a farmer may acquire by prescription the right of permanent tenant by setting up such higher right adversely to the Zemindar. See notes under heading No. 14.

Setting up of a higher interest.

Repudiation of tenancy.

A lessee after entering into possession under a lease cannot acquire any title by adverse possession against his lessor unless he distinctly asserts such a title to his knowledge and give him notice that he asserted such a title: Reajaddi v. Chand, 24 C.L.J. 453 but the lessee cannot dispute the title of his landlord without first going out of occupation: Ibid; see notes under heading Estoppel, heading no. 19. Failure to pay rent to the lessee does not alone operate to create in favour of the lessee a title by adverse possession : Reajeddi v. Chand, 24 C.L.J. 453.

Denial of liability for more than 12 years.

While a contract of tenancy is in force neither party can practically obtain a variation thereof, by persisting for a long period in his assertion that the term is otherwise than what it really is : Birendra Kishore v. Fuljan Bibi, 25 C.L.J. 467 ; in this case the denial of liability to pay rent for more than 12 years was held as not to secure a variation of the terms of the contract and the suit for assessment was held not to be barred by limitation : Ibid.

Adverse possession.

In a suit for khas possession with an alternative prayer for assessment of rent, held that long possession by the defendant on his own account far beyond the statutory period and that no rent had been paid are elements that are required for a plea in bar by reason of adverse possession : Kadir Bux v Birendra Kisore, 22 C.L.J. 119. (Jenkins C. J., Mookerjee and Beachcroft J. J.).

Title by prescription, cannot be claimed against the landlord.

No tenant of lands can obtain any right to a permanent tenancy by prescription in them against his landlord from whom he holds the lands : Nainapillai v. Ramanathan, 28 C.W.N. 809 (P.C.).

Assertion of hostile title by tenant. Limitation Act s. 28.

A person who is, in fact, in possession of land under a tenancy or occupancy title cannot, by a mere assertion in a judicial proceeding and the lapse of six or twelve years without that assertion having been successfully challenged (the possession remaining all the while on the same footing), obtain a title as an under proprietor to the land. Sec. 28 of the Limitation Act has no application to such a case : Raja Mohammad Mumtaz Ali Khan v. Mohan Singh, 28 C.W.N. 840 (P.C.).

If the person encroaching upon other land is not a tenant, then the mere fact of his open and continuous encroachment would prima facie be possession adverse to the fullest extent against the landlord. As a tenant it is presumed in the landlord's favour that the possession is only under a claim of a limited right. If the possession is under a claim which is adverse to the landlord though only to a limited extent then for the purpose of the right which the tenant is claiming the possession of the tenant is no longer the possession of the landlord. The landlord coming into Court must show that he has been dispossessed not in the full sense of the word but in its limited sense within twelve years of the suit : Nekjannessa v. Abbas Molles, 40 C.L.J. 160 (Rankin and B. B. Ghose J.J.).

Non-payment of rent, effect of.

Mere non-payment of rent or discontinuance of the payment of rent does not create adverse possession : Giris Chandra v. Sri Krishna*, A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 168 (Mookerjee and Walmsley J.J.).

As a general rule, the possession of the tenant is that of his landlord and will be so deemed until the contrary appears : Ibid.

To enable a tenant to hold adversely to his landlord, it is necessary for him to renounce the idea of holding a tenant and to set up and assert an exclusive right in himself : Ibid.

It is essential that tenant's acts of ownership, should be of such an open, notorious, and hostile character that the landlord must have known of it : Ibid.

Eviction by title paramount.

19. Dispossession by title paramount :—See notes under s. 52.

In a suit for rent, the tenant can set up eviction by title paramount of that of his lessor as an answer ; and if the tenant is evicted

* The cases of Prasanna Kumar v. Srikanth, 40 Cal. 173, s. c. 17 C.W.N. 137 and Jagdeo v. Baldeo, 27 C.W.N. 915 s. c. 36 C.L.J. 499 were followed from part of the land, and apportionment of the rent may take place : Surendra Narain v. Dinanath Bose, 43-Cal. 554 ; the onus is on the lessee to shew what is the fair rent of the lands from which the tenant has been evicted : Ibid.

Eviction by title paramount is a good defence to a suit for rent ; to constitute such a defence three conditions must be fulfilled (1) the eviction must be from something actually forming part of the premises demised, (2) the party evicting must have a good title and (3) the tenant must have quitted against his will : Noorijan Sardar v. Bimola Sundari Gupta, 18 C.W.N. 552 ; it has been held by all English authorities that forcible dispossession is unnecessary ; all that is necessary is that the landlord should claim the rent and the tenant on such notice attorns to him because he is not entitled to resist the claim : Ibid ; see also Hill v. Saunders, 4 B. and C. 529 (1825).

20. Estoppel :—"It is well-settled that the creation of the complete relation of landlord and tenant has the effect in law of estopping the tenant to deny the validity of the title which he has admitted to exist in the landlord ; the estoppel arises, not by reason of some fact agreed or assumed to be true, but as the legal effect of carrying the contract into execution, of the tenant taking possession of the property from the hand of the lessor : Bamandas v. Nilmadhav Saha, 44 Cal. 771 at p. 777 s. c., 24 C.L.J. 541 ; enjoyment by permission is the foundation of the rule that a tenant shall not be permitted to dispute the title of his landlord : Bhaiganta v. Himmatt Bidyakar, 24 C.L.J. 103, s. c., 20 C.W.N. 1335. Principle.

Where a tenant came into possession under a former owner and entered into an agreement with the defendant to pay him rent in ignorance of the defect in the defendant's title he may shew that the defendant is not his landlord : Gregory v. Doidge, 3 Bing. 474 ; see also Rogers v. Pitcher, 6 Taunt 202 ; Williams v. Bertholomew, 1 B. & P. 326. Where tenant can prove that landlord has no title.

The rule that a tenant is estopped from denying the title of his landlord applies only to the title of the landlord who lets the tenant in. If the tenant did not obtain possession from a person who was only recognised as landlord either by express agreement or by attornment or formal acknowledgment by payment of rent he may always shew that his conduct was due to mistake or ignorance of facts relating to title, misrepresentation or fraud : Ketu Das v. Surendra Nath, 7 C.W.N. 596. Where in a suit for rent the tenant denied the execution of the kabuliyat propounded by the plaintiff, pleaded that it was forged and denied payment of rent under it to the plaintiffs, and failed to establish his pleas, held that the tenant was not entitled to prove that the plaintiffs were not his landlords, although he had not been inducted into the hand by the plaintiffs : Ibid. Where a deed is executed by a tenant in favour of a person, the real owner and not the benamidar is the landlord whose title the tenant is estopped from denying under s. 116 ; in a suit by such benamidar for rent, the tenant can deny his right to sue on the ground that he is not the person entitled : Kuppa v. Thinugnana, 31 Mad. 461 ; where in a rent-suit the defendant pleaded that there was no patta (lease), although there was a kabuliyat and therefore the tenancy was not proved, held that the suit might be treated as one for occupation and the defendant could not be heard to say that he was not patta. Rule of estoppel works against a tenant who got possession from the landlord. Rent suit. Benamidar. Want of a patta.

liable for use and occupation : Sheokaran v. Parbhu Narain, 31 All. 276. See sec. 115 of the Evidence Act Complete relation of landlord and tenant.

Tenant cannot deny landlord's title without restoring possession to landlord by surrender.

Tenant to restore possession before denial of title.

The creation of complete relation of landlord and tenant in law estops the tenant from denying the validity of the title which he has admitted to exist in the landlord : Bamandas v. Nilmadhab, 44 Cal. 771 ; the estoppel arises not by reason of some fact agreed or assured to be true, but as the legal effect of carrying the contract into execution of the tenant taking possession of the property from the hand of the lessor : Ibid ; see also Bhaiganta v. Himmat Bidyakar, 24 C.L.J. 103. S. 116 of the Evidence Act rests on the principle that a tenant who has been let into possession cannot deny his landlord's title however defective it may be, so long as he has not openly restored possession by surrender to his landlord : Bilas Kunwar v. Desraj Ranjit, 22 C.L.J. 516 (P.C.).

A tenant who has been let into possession cannot deny his landlord's title, however defective it may be so long as he has not openly restored possession by surrender to his landlord : Bilas Kunwar v. Desraj Ranjit, 19 C.W.N. 1207 (P.C.).

A tenant cannot dispute the landlord's title without first going out of occupation and thereby making it clear that he intended to dispute the title of his landlord : Reajaddi v. Chand, 24 C.L.J. 453 (Sanderson C.J., and Mookerjee J.).

A lessee, so long as he retains the possession he obtained from the lessor, cannot even after his term has expired set up in the lessor's suit for ejectment the defence that the lessor had no title at the time the lease was granted : Bhaiganta v. Himmat Badyakar, 20 C.W.N. 1334 s. c. 24 C.L.J. 103 ; this rule has not been affected by s. 116 of the Evidence Act : Ibid. See also Alimuddin v. Ainuddin, 38 I.C. 534.

Possession must be surrendered before tenant denies title.

Attornment to person claiming under title paramount.

Estoppel.

Where a person executed a kabuliyat and got possession of a portion of the demised land, he is estopped in a rent-suit to deny the title of the landlord and say that the latter is a benamidar of another person : Prabhat Chandra v. Bijoy Chand, 50 Cal. 572, (C. C. Ghose and Panton J.J.). Once the relationship of landlord and tenant has been established the tenant must surrender possession before he can set up a claim to be the real owner : Allah Bakhsh v. Lal Khan (Lahore case), 67 I.C. 269. The case of Makhan v. Baisakhi, 50 I.C. 591 was followed. It is open to the tenant to prove a subsequent lesser of the landlord's title, the estoppel mentioned in s. 116 of the Evidence Act refers to the beginning of the tenancy : an eviction by title paramount may be proved and it is not necessary for the tenant to go out of possession, and he may consent to change his title by attornment to a person with title paramount : Ram Chandra v. Pramatha Nath, 35 C.L.J. 146.

Plaintiff landlord is not competent to eject the defendants* as trespassers where he accepted rent from them for the lands in suit in the name of the deceased raiyats. The effect of this acceptance of rent is to constitute the defendants tenants under the plaintiff : Bali Mohammad v. Janaki Nath, A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 535 (Mookerjee and Rankin J.J.)

Payment of rent where no-estoppel.

Mere payment of rent to a person does not prevent the tenant in a suit brought by the latter to show that the plaintiff was not the person who acquired the interest of the previous landlord and thus title can be denied: Abdul Razak v. Promada Sundari, 80 I.C. 22 (Per Mukerjee, J. 24 March 1924.)

21. Pleading:—It is open to a party to plead tenancy and limitation in the alternative: Keamuddi v. Haramohon, 7 C.W.N. 294; see also Jonardan v. Sambunath, 16 Cal. 806 and Dinomonee v. Doorga Pershad, 12 B.L.R. 274, s. c. 21 W.R. 70 (F.B.) Where plaintiff and defendant both claimed under the same landlord and defendant further took a plea that plaintiff's suit was barred by limitation, the Lower Appellate Court found plaintiff's title proved and that defendant's alleged tenancy was not proved and refused to go into the question of limitation raised by the defendant: held that the question of limitation must be decided: Keamuddi v. Haramohon, 7 C.W.N. 294; see notes under "Estoppel", ante, heading No. 20.

Question of limitation.

22. Effect of non-payment of rent:—It is well settled that when the relation of landlord and tenant exists between two persons in respect of any property, the mere non-payment of rent, though for many years, is not sufficient to show that the relationship of landlord and tenant has ceased: Rameshar Koer v. Dalpin Saheba, 7 C.L.J. 202; see also Troylucho v. Mahima Chunder, 7 W.R. 400; Elahee Buksh v. Shaik Janav, 24 W.R. 386; Rungo Lall v. Abdool Guffoor, 4 Cal. 314; Patia v. Sadashiv, 7 Bom. 40; Bama Charan v. Administrator-General, 6 C.L.J. 72. In the case last mentioned, a decree for rent was made although there was no payment of rent for nearly half a century; see also the observations in the case of Digumber Mitter v. Ramsoonder Mitter, S. D. A. 617, referred to with approval by Peacock C.J. in Thakooranee Dasee v. Bisshesur Mookerjee, B.L.R. Sup. F.B. 202 at pp. 321, 322; s. c., 3 W.R. Act X 29 at p. 104 (Great Rent case).

Relationship of landlord & tenant does not cease for non-payment of rent.

As to the effect of non-payment of rent: see notes under heading No. 18: Birendra Kishore v. Fuljan, 25 C.L.J. 467.

Failure to pay rent to the lessee by the lessor does not alone operate to create in favour of the lessee a title by adverse possession, Reajaddi v. Chand, 24 C.L.J. 453.

Failure to pay rent does not create title by adverse possession.

In a suit where assessment of rent was prayed, the defendant proved long possession beyond the statutory period and during that period there was no payment of rent by the defendant, held that there were the elements for a plea in bar by reason of adverse possession: Kadir Bux v. Birendra Kisore, 22 C.L.J. 119 (Jenkins C.J., Mookerjee and Beachcroft J.J.).

Assessment of rent.

A rent-free grant may reasonably be inferred from long possession without payment of rent: Nawab Ali v. Birendra Kisore, 22 C.L.J. 124 (Mookerjee and Beachcroft J.J.); see also Bissonath v. Brajomohan, 10 W.R. 61 and Radha Gobind v. Prakash, 14 W.R. 108; see also Jafer Ahmed v. Birendra Kisore, 22 C.L.J. 126. See notes under s. 24.

Rent-free grant.

The holder of a rent-free holding is entitled to possession of all lands forming accretions thereto, but he is not entitled to hold the same rent-free: Baidyanath v. Nandalal, 18 C.W.N. 1206.

Accretion to rent-free holding.

23. Easement—Prescription:—A tenant of land cannot acquire an easement by prescription in other lands of his lessor: Moni Chandra v. Baikanta Nath, 9 C.W.N. 856. See also Udit Singh v. Kashiram, 14 All. 185 and Jeenab Ali v. Allahuddin, 1 C.W.N. 151. It does not make any difference if the tenant has permanent rights in the land ; a tenant always derives his rights from the lessor and as the latter cannot have the right of enjoyment of an easement as of right against himself, so neither can have his tenant against him : Moni Chandra v. Baikanta Nath, 9 C.W.N. 856.

24. Payment of cess :—It is open to the zemindar and the tenure-holder to contract themselves out of the provisions of s. 41 of the Bengal Cess Act : Mohanund Sahay v. Saidunnessa, 8 C.L.J. 525.

A contract by a tenant to pay to the superior malik the whole of the road-cess payable by the landlord is not illegal : Ashutosh v. Amir Molla, 3 C.L.J. 337, see also Bholanath v. Chunder Madhob, 6 C.L.J. 212 ; see also Krishna v. Mohendra, 13 C.L.J. 212 ; Gobinda Chandra v. Lalitmohon, 22 C.L.J. 571.

A tenant cannot bring an interpleader suit against
lord.

25. Interpleader suit by tenant :—An interpleader suit, with a prayer for declaration of the titles of the several sets of defendants in the disputed land, by the tenant against the landlords in whose favour he has executed several kabuliyats is not maintainable : Shelly Bonnerjee v. Raj Chandra, 37 Cal. 552 ; a tenant has no right to bring a suit to have it determined which of two defendants, both of whom claimed rent from him, is his landlord : Kaylash Chandra v. Goluk Chandra, 2 C.W.N. 61 ; see also Nanji v. Umatul, 15 C.L.J. 653. See notes under s. 61 and s. 149.

26. Service tenure :—See notes under s. 181.

27. Decree by a Co-sharer Landlord for Use and Occupation :—See s. 65 : Kesho Prasad v. Ram Deni, 2 Pat. 183.

Settlement
by one co-owner—
others.

28. Effect of Settlement by one Co-owner :—Where a tenant is inducted on the land by a co-sharer landlord, the other landlord has the right to sue for joint possession : Balgovind v. Dwarka Prasad, 1 Pat. 394, s. c., 66 I.C. 55.

(5) "Rent" means whatever is lawfully payable or deliverable in money or kind by a tenant to his landlord on account of the use or occupation of the land held by the tenant :

In sections 53 to 68, both inclusive, sections 72 to 75, both inclusive, Chapter XII, Chapter XIV and Schedule III of this Act, "rent" includes also money recoverable under any enactment for the time being in force as if it was rent.

Headings of Notes.

2. DEFINITION.
3. MONEY RECOVERABLE AS RENT.
4. WHAT IS RENT.
5. WHAT IS NOT RENT.
6. STIPULATION FOR FUTURE RENT.
7. HAJABAD RENT.
8. CESS IN EXCESS OF TENANT'S PORTION.
9. CESS : RENT IN KIND.
10. LAWFULLY PAYABLE.

11. SUIT FOR DAMAGES FOR USE AND OCCUPATION.
12. ARREAR OF RENT: ACTIONABLE CLAIM.
13. MISCELLANEOUS CASES.

1. Alterations and amendments:—The word and figures “Chapter XIV” were inserted by both Bengal Act I of 1907 and the Bengal Tenancy Amendment Act (1 of 1908) of the East Bengal and Assam Council.

2. Definition:—The word “rent” has been defined in the sense in which it would be understood without any statutory definition: Jotindra Mohan v. Bibi Jaroa Kumari, 33 Cal. 140 s. c., 10 C.W.N. 291 (P.C.).

3. Money recoverable as rent:—See Act V of 1875 (B.C.) Money recoverable as rent. sec. 38; Act IX of 1880 (B.C.) secs. 47, 64A; Act II of 1882 (B.C.), sec. 74; and Act V of 1871 (B.C.) Money payable under sec. 42 (b) of the Bengal Drainage Act (VI of 1880) is money recoverable as rent within the meaning of this section: Monmohini v. Priya Nath, 8 C.W.N. 640. See also Nafar Chandra v. Jyoti Kumar, 11 C.W.N. 57.

4. What is rent:—Where a proprietor of an estate made a grant of certain villages and the grantee agreed to pay to the grantor a proportionate share of the Government revenue, held that the amount payable by the grantee is rent: Dwarkanath v. Dambaru-dhar, 33 Cal. 278 (Carnduff and Richardson J.J., July 28, 1910.) Cess. ‘Rent’ includes cess,—Nobin v. Bansinath, 21 Cal. 722; Mohesh v. Umataara, 16 Cal. 638; Kishori v. Sarodamani, 1 C.W.N. 30. Chowki-dari tax payable by the putnidar under the putni settlement is rent: Asanulla v. Tirthabasini, 22 Cal. 680. Dak-cess claimed under the contract by which rent is payable is rent within the meaning of s. 153: Watson v. Sreekristo, 21 Cal. 132. Produce rent payable by a burgadar is rent.—Shoma Mehta v. Rajani, 1 C.W.N. 55; Taj-uddin v. Ram Prashad, 1 All. 217 (F.B.); Jamna Das v. Guni Meah, 21 W.R. 124; Sreenath v. Dwary Dhallie, Suth: Ref. S. C. C. 113. See also Lalji Panday v. Barhamdeo, 16 C.W.N. 89. But see Kade Mondal v. Akadali, 14 C.W.N. 629. See notes under the Preamble and under s. 69. The term “rent” in s. 162 includes S. 169. rent: Bejoy Chand v. S. C. Mookerjee, 5 C.L.J. 27, notes, but see Manindra Chandra v. Asar Mahumed, 12 C.W.N. cxliv. A sum of money agreed to be paid to a third person on behalf of the landlord is rent: Mohebut Ali v. Mahomed, 2 C.W.N. 455 approved of in Basanta Kumari v. Asutosh, (F.B.) 4 C.W.N. 3: s. c., 27 Cal. 67. See also Jnanada Sundari v. Atul Chandra, 32 Cal. 972. Rent, when Assignment of rent. assigned, continues to retain the character of rent, and a suit for rent is a rent-suit for the purpose of jurisdiction: Sris Chandra v. Nasim Quazi, 27 Cal. 827, s. c., 4 C.W.N. 347, although the provisions as to limitation as provided in this Act do not apply to such a suit: Mohendra v. Kailash, 4 C.W.N. 605. A suit for rent by a person as heir of his father is a suit for rent, and no succession certificate is required as the ‘debt’ sued for is rent: Nagendra v. Satadal, 3 C.W.N. 294. Liability to pay to a person with whom the occupier has no relationship of landlord and tenant is liability to pay rent within the meaning of s. 3, cl. (5)—Mohima v. Hazari, 17 Cal. 45; Binad Lal v. Kalu Pramanick, 20 Cal. 708 (F.B.). See notes under sec. 5. Suit by an heir. Tenancy originating under a trespasser.

Revenue payable by putnidar. The revenue payable by the Zemindar and agreed to be paid by the Putnidar is rent: Gour Gopal v. Gosta Behari, 21 C.W.N. 214.

Mogli. "Mogli" is a word of doubtful meaning and at the best imports no more than that the rent assessed represents a proportion of the Government revenue: Nawagarh Coal Co. v. Beharilal, 20 C.W.N. 1135.

Grant of forest rights. A grant for cutting and removing trees is a grant of forest rights and the consideration payable is rent and such a suit for rent should be instituted under s. 148 B. T. Act: Bande Ali v. Amud Sarkar, 12 C.W.N. 415.

Rent in sicca rupees. A contract to pay rent in sicca rupees should be maintained whether its date is prior or subsequent to 1836: Dhakeswar v. Ram Pershad, 43 I.C. 753.

Damages for use and occupation interest. S. 169. 5. What is not rent:—Damages for use and occupation are not rent: Kali Krishna v. Izzatunnissa, 1 C.W.N. lxxviii. Interest payable upon an over-due instalment is not rent: Kailas v. Taraknath, 25 Cal. 517; 1 C.W.N. lxiii. The term "rent", in s. 169 does not include interest: Monindra Chandra v. Asar Mohamed, 12 C.W.N. cxliv, but see Bejoy Chand v. S. C. Mookerjee, 5 C.L.J. 27 notes.

Decree by a co-sharer landlord. A decree by a co-sharer landlord for his share of the rent is not decree for rent under the Bengal Tenancy Act: Durga Charan v. Kali Prasanna, 3 C.W.N. 586; Prem Chand v. Mokshoda, 14 Cal. 201; Jagabandhu v. Jadu, 15 Cal. 47; Beni Madhub v. Joad Ali, 17 Cal. 390 (F.B.); Sita Nath v. Atmaram, 4 C.W.N. 571. As to the effect of assignment, see notes in the previous para and notes under the preamble. The word "rent" does not necessarily include interest; Bhugabati v. Basanta Kumari, 11 C.W.N. 110: s. c. 5 C.L.J. 69.

Sum agreed to be paid for the landlord. A sum agreed to be paid by a putnidar as Government-revenue is not rent: Jotindra Mohan v. Jaroa Kumari, 10 C.W.N. 201 (P.C.); where a tenant agreed to pay a particular sum as rent to the superior malik and the remaining sum to the landlord as profit, held that a suit for money payable to the superior landlord but not paid is a suit not for rent but for damages: Hemendra Nath v. Kumar Nath, 32 Cal. 169 s. c., 9 C.W.N. 96.

An amount kept in deposit to the tenant for payment to a third party is not rent: Luchmi v. Deokari, 19 C.W.N. 174.

A suit upon an agreement by the defendant to pay a certain sum to the creditor of defendant's landlord for the rent due to the landlord is not a suit for rent: Hridoy v. Jayram, 4 C.L.J. 402.

Interest created between a Zemindari and a Putni. Where there was a putni and subsequently a lease was given by the zemindar above the putni, held that the sum payable by the previous putnidar to the subsequent lessee is rent: Raj Kumar v. Probal Chandra, 9 C.W.N. 656. See also Madhusudan v. Devendranath, 7 C.L.J. 23 notes. See notes under the Preamble; also see notes under s. 3 Cl. 4, and s. 65.

Out-going landlord. Where a certain sum was mentioned in the lease as rent and there was a further stipulation to pay a certain quantity of molasses and in lieu thereof Rs. 10, held that this sum was not recoverable as rent as it was a mere personal undertaking of the tenant: Rajnarain v. Panna Chand, 7 C.W.N. 203; where a decree-holder mentioned in the sale proclamation a certain sum as rent, held that in additional sum agreed to be paid by the lessee cannot be claimed as rent against the purchaser of the holding; Ibid.

Rent assigned to be paid to the superior landlord cannot be sued for by the immediate landlord as long as the arrangement of assignment subsists: Debendra v. Paresh Nath, 4 C.L.J. 119. Rent assigned by whom to be paid.

A decree for rent due in respect of two holdings is not a decree for rent: Bipra Das v. Rajaram, 13 C.W.N. 650. See notes under s. 65. Rent for two holdings.

Mafi is not rent; it is a deduction from the rent allowed to jeth raiyats by the landlord, in consideration of their performing certain duties; Sheikh Safait v. Sheikh Wazuddin, 1 Pat. L. J. 504. Mafi

The word Malguzari cannot be rendered as rent much less as actual rent. It ordinarily means revenue: Chattra Kumari v. Broucke, 54 I.A. 432, s. c. 47 C.L.J. 90 (P.C.)—per Lord Sinha. Malguzari.

As to what is an awab and not rent, see notes under s. 74.

6. Stipulation for future rent :—Where there is a stipulation for future rent it accrues automatically: Makbul Ali v. Joges Chandra, 21 C.W.N. 534; see under s. 29 under heading “effect of realisation of rent at a reduced rate.”

7. Hajabad rent :—Where the custom pleaded was that the entire rent for the hajabad lands must be remitted, irrespective of the extent of the destructive effect of the inundation of the crops, held that the custom was unreasonable and uncertain: Sibnarain Mookerjee v. Bhutnath, 28 C.L.J. 148, s. c. 22 C.W.N. 422. The custom of total or partial remission of rent was recognised in the case of Bejoy Chandra v. Akhil, 51 Cal. 314 (N. R. Chatterjee and Panton J. J.)

8. Cess in excess of tenant's portion :—A contract by a tenant to pay to the superior malik the whole of the road-cess payable by the landlord is not illegal: Asutosh v. Amir Molla, 3 C.L.J. 337, see also Narendra v. Gora Chand, 3 C.L.J. 391, see also Bhola-nath v. Chunder Madhub, 6 C.L.J. 212. It is open to the Zemindar and the tenure-holder to contract themselves out of the provisions of s. 41 of the Bengal Cess Act: Mahamud Sahay v. Saidunessa, 8 C.L.J. 525. Contract to pay cess in excess of tenant's portion.

The liabilities of the parties in respect of cesses are to be determined according to the statute, unless there is a clear provision in the lease to shew that the parties have contracted themselves out of the provisions of s. 41 of the Bengal Cess Act: Gobind Chandra v. Lalit Mohan, 22 C.L.J. 571; where a landlord lets out a tenure at Rs. 90 per annum including cesses, held that the landlord took upon himself to bear the cesses: Jogendra Nath v. Apara Prasad, 45 I.C. 616.

9. Cess: Rent in kind :—Cess is payable in respect of all lands held by a raiyat whether he pays rent in money or in kind: Joges Chandra v. Ananda, 26 C.W.N. 368.

10. Lawfully Payable :—See notes under sec. 74.

11. Suit for damages for use and occupation :—In a suit for rent where no alternative claim is made for use and occupation, no rent can be decreed on that footing: Lukhee Kant v. Sumeerooddi, 13 B.L.R. 243 (F.B.); Bhukhi Koer v. Ram Khelwan, 17 C.W.N. 311. The landlord is entitled to rent or compensation for the use of the land, where he is unable to prove the kabulivat under Use and occupation. Where landlord unable to prove lease.

which rent is claimed ; see also Surnomoyee v. Dino Nath, 9 Cal. 908 ; see also Azim Sirdar v. Ramlall, 25 Cal. 324 : Ibid.

Where in a suit for rent the landlord could not prove the lease for want of a patta, and the tenant pleaded non-liability, held that the landlord was entitled to treat the suit as one for use and occupation : Sheo Karan Sing v. Maharajah Parbhu Narain, 31 All. 276 ; but the question whether the landlord is entitled to rent for use and occupation depends upon the claim which is stated in the plaint and where a claim for rent on account of such occupation is not made in the plaint the landlord is not so entitled : Ibid ; see also Surendra Narain v. Bhai Lall, 22 Cal. 752, Rachhea Singh v. Upendra Chandra, 27 Cal. 239 and Gobinda Sundar v. Srikrishna, 10 C.L.J. 538. A suit for damages for use and occupation can be maintained against a tenant who has occupied the premises by the permission or sufferance of the landlord, though the terms of the tenancy have not been settled with precision : Lalji Panday v. Barhamdeo, 16 C.W.N. 89 at p. 91 ; see also Rochester v. Pierce, 1 Campbell 466 Kanailal v. Nitai Chand, 12 C.L.J. 612 ; in these circumstances, the law implies a contract or promise by the tenant to pay to the landlord a reasonable sum for such use and occupation : Lalji Panday v. Barhamdeo, 16 C.W.N. 89 at p. 91.

* Where claim for use and occupation is not made in the plaint.

Tenant by sufferance.

Implied contract.

The mere fact that the landlord accepted rent at a reduced rent from that stipulated for in the kabuliyat for some time does not bind the lessor to accept rent at that rate in future, at the reduced rent in future, as the reduced rent might have been accepted as a matter of indulgence which might be put an end to at any time : Manindra Chandra v. Durga Sundari, 20 C.W.N. 680 ; see also Baijnath and Raghunath, 16 C.W.N. 496, Kailash Chandra v. Darbaria, 20 C. W. N. 347. Durga Prosad v. Rajendra Narain, 37 Cal. 293, on P. C., 41 Cal. 493, s. c., 18 C.W.N. 66. Under S. 92, proviso 4 of the Evidence Act any variation of rent reserved by a registered lease must be made by a registered instrument and oral evidence is inadmissible to prove such variation ; an agreement is none the less oral because it is inferred from the conduct of the parties : Manindra Chandra v. Durga Sundari, 20 C.W.N. 680 ; see also Lalit Mohan v. Gopali Chack Coal Co., 39 Cal. 284. Evidence of payment of rent at a lower rate than that stated in the kabuliyat is admissible to shew that the intention of the parties was that the kabuliyat from the very first was not intended to be acted upon or that there had been a waiver of the strict terms of the lease : Ibid ; see also Beni-Madhab v. Lalmoti, 6 C.W.N. 242 ; see also Kailash Chandra v. Darbaria, 20 C.W.N. 347. See notes under s. 29.

12. Arrear of Rent : Actionable claim :—An arrear of rent in respect of land subject to the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, is moveable property and is also "debt" in the sense in which that word is used in the definition of "actionable claim" in sec. 3 of the Transfer of Property Act. Where a purchaser of a proprietary interest in land acquires at the same time and under the same instrument a right to recover the rent in arrear at the time of the purchase, the right to recovery of such rent is an actionable claim within the meaning of secs. 3 and 136 of the Transfer of Property Act : Sheo Gobind Singh v. Gouri Prasad, 4 Pat. 43. (Dawson Miller, C.J. and Foster, J.). See also the case of Hiralal Singh v. Tripura-charan Roy, 40 Cal. 650, (F.B.)

13. Miscellaneous cases :—A custom, whereby a landlord is entitled to a certain rent for fruit trees in addition to the ordinary rent payable in respect of the land, is not illegal : Rameshwar Singh v. Wazul Haque, A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 294.

The right to Bankar, Jalkar, and Phalkar was always an exception from the abolitions made by the Regulation which have abolished abwabs. Rent in respect of fruit trees or other classes of trees may well be charged in addition to the ordinary rent for the land : Ibid.

Amaldastaks are not leases. An Amaldastak does not create ordinarily any tenancy right but is an order or hookoomnama to the people to go and take possession : Hargobind v. Keshwa Prasad, [1924 Pat.] p. 297 (Jwala Prasad, A. C. J. and Kulwant Sahay J.).

Mahanunda rent is a fixed amount not depending upon the out-turn of the crops grown : Raghunandan v. Ram Sunder, [1924 Pat.] p. 355, s. c., A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 299 (Dawson Miller C.J. and Mullick J.).

(6) "Pay," "payable" and "payment," used with reference to rent, include "deliver," "deliverable" and "delivery."

(7) "Tenure" means the interest of a tenure-holder or an under-tenure-holder.

Headings of Notes.

1. UNDIVIDED SHARE OF LAND.
2. BABUANA :
3. MISCELLANEOUS : Chukani, Jagir.

1. Undivided share of land :—An undivided share of land is not a holding, for a holding has been defined to be "a parcel or parcels of land held by a raiyat and forming the subject of separate tenancy" [see S. 3 cl. (9)], and it has been held that the words "a parcel or parcels of land" mean an entire parcel or entire parcels of land. See the cases noted under S. 3 cl. (9). But an undivided share of land may constitute a distinct tenure, for, in the definition of tenure we find it stated that a tenure means the interest of a tenure-holder, and the definition excludes the idea that an undivided share of land cannot be a distinct tenure. An undivided share of land may be an entire estate ; see notes under S. 3 cl. (1) ; and if a tenure is created of the land comprised in an estate which may happen to comprise an undivided share of land, it will be a distinct tenure ; if a separate tenancy is created by a separate lease it is a distinct tenure ; see notes under s. 159 under heading "what constitutes a separate tenancy."

2. Babuana :—Holders of Babuana property in the Darbhanga Raj are liable to pay Government-revenue and cesses to the Raj ; Hitendra v. Rameshur, 18 C.W.N. 42.

The condition in a Babuana grant to a junior member of the Darbhanga Raj family that the grantee shall regularly pay the Government revenue and cesses due from the portion of the estate given in babuana, to the Raj treasury, does not create a charge in favour of the Raj in respect of overdue arrears of revenue and cesses upon the property granted : Rameshwar Singh v. Janeswari, 18 C.W.N. 129.

Kulachar. Babuana and Sohag grants differ essentially in their nature from absolute grant and are subject to the Kulachar under which they are authorised and in accordance with which they are made:

Descent. Ekradeswar Singh v. Janesswari, 18 C.W.N. 1249 (P.C.). Babuana and Sohag grants descend in the family of Durbhanga not in one male heir only but to all the existing male heirs in the male line of the grantee as co-parceners: Ibid; see also Durgadut v. Rameshwar, 36 I.A. 176, s. c., 13 C.W.N. 1013. See notes under S. 3 cl. (8).

Chukani. 3. Miscellaneous:—A chukani tenure in the district of Rungpur is not a temporary tenure under the Transfer of Property Act terminable at six months' notice but a raiyati leasehold which may develop into occupancy right: Jogendra Nath v. Chandra Kumar, 42 Cal. 28.

Jagir. A grant of a jagir is a grant for life only, but in the absence of any contract to the contrary, the addition of the words putra poutradi kramé to the grant implies an absolute and heritable estate and passes an estate of inheritance: Ram Saran v. Ramnarayan, 42 Cal. 305.

(8) "Permanent tenure" means a tenure which is heritable and which is not held for a limited time.

Headings of Notes.

1. HOW A PERMANENT TENURE IS CREATED.
2. NOABAD.
3. HERITABILITY.
4. PERMANENT TENANT.
5. UNDER-GROUND RIGHTS: MINERALS.
6. SPLITTING UP.
7. SUIT BY SHEBAIT FOR RECOVERY OF POSSESSION.
8. DEBUTTUR.
9. BRAHMOTTAR: RENT FREE GRANT.

1. How a permanent tenure is created:—Although S. 107 of the Transfer of Property Act requires that a permanent tenure under that Act must be created by a document in writing, and registered, the Bengal Tenancy Act nowhere says that a written document is necessary to create a permanent tenure.

But it has been held that one cannot get a permanent tenure under the Bengal Tenancy Act or under any other Act except by a registered document: Hasiswari (Kasiswari) v. Harinath, 40 I.C. 100 (Per Fletcher and Newbould J.J.). It is submitted with great respect that the decision, so far as regards permanent tenures of agricultural lands, is not in accordance with law, for no documents are required to be in writing unless there is any special or specific law to that effect. S. 107 of the Transfer of Property Act, which provides as to what leases are required to be in writin, has no application to agricultural lands in Bengal (s. 117 T. P. Act). Therefore a permanent tenure which consists of agricultural lands is not required to be in writing.

2. Noabad:—"A term which literally means land newly cultivated, i.e., since 1764 but is generally used to denote not only cultivated lands but even hills, rivers, roads, etc. which were not included in one or other of the estates according to the measurement of 1764", District Gazetteer of Chittagong, Vol. I, p. 139.

The designation Noabad has long been loosely employed to denote all lands in which the proprietary interest vests in the State, including not only cultivated lands, but even hills, rivers, roads, etc., which are not susceptible of cultivation—Ibid at p. 147.

The Noabad taluqs comprise a number of tenures of widely varying character. The Noabad taluqdars are the most important class of tenants found upon the Government estates. They hold directly under the Government as landlord for a term of years and at the expiry of that term are entitled to resettlement of such portion of the taluq as is cultivated, the uncultivated portion being at the absolute disposal of the Government. Ibid, at p. 148.

A noabad mahal held under Government implies a hereditary and transferable title in perpetuity subject to payment of rent for all lands under cultivation. Jogesh Chandar v. The Secretary of State, 18 C.W.N. 531. A noabad is not necessarily temporarily settled; it may be a permanently settled one: Maqbul Ahmed v. Hargobinda, 8 C.L.J. 470. Government is in the same position as an ordinary zemindar in respect of Noabad lands and is not bound to grant a patla: 35 C.L.J. 580.

3. Heritability:—The rule of construction that a grant made to a man for indefinite term enures only for the life of the grantee and passes no interest to his heirs, does not apply to cases where the term can be definitely ascertained by reference to the interest which the grantor purports to convey.—Lekhraj v. Kunhya, 3 Cal. 210 (P.C.). The word “mokurari” may import perpetuity, but this is not the necessary meaning of the word.—The Bengal Government v. Nawab Juffer Hossein, 5 Moo. I.A. 467. The word “mokurari” alone raises no presumption that a tenure is intended to be hereditary.—Sheo Prosad v. Kali Das, 5 Cal. 543; Bishen Chand v. Parameswar, 15 Cal. 342. The words “mokurari istemrari” may mean either permanent during the life of the person to whom the grant is made or permanent as regards hereditary descent: Monoranjan v. Rajah Lilla Nund, 13 B.L.R. 124. A mokurari istemrari tenure shall be presumed to be heritable until the contrary is proved, Lukee v. Roy Hari, 3 B.L.R. 226. The words “istemrari” and “makurari” are interchangeable expressions, and the word “istemrari” does not per se convey an estate of inheritance and not necessarily a perpetual hereditary tenure: Pandit Agin Bind v. Mohon Bikram, 30 Cal. 20 s. c., 7 C.W.N. 314. A perpetual mokurari lease implies that the tenancy is permanent, heritable and transferable and that the rent is fixed in perpetuity: Mohanand v. Syedunnessa, 12 C.W.N. 154. When a grant did not contain any words expressly limiting the grant to the life of the grantee nor making the tenure descendible to heir, and the grant of land was made as a present for the purpose of planting a garden and was made as a present for the purpose of planting a garden and was made ‘subject’ to “faithful service,” held that the grant was only a life grant: Syed Mohamed v. Ram Narain, 7 C.L.J. 90. See notes under secs. 7 and 179.

Grant for indefinite term.

Mokurari.

Istemrari.

Where grant did not contain words limiting to life.

Long possession of a tenant, succession and transfer may give rise to the inference that a holding is a permanent one. A sale-certificate which was the origin of the defendant's title and which expressly declared that the holding was a maurasi one would be a relevant fact, although the plaintiff was no party to the suit in which the sale-certificate was obtained as having taken place in the transaction by which the transfer was effected; Handas Tanti v. Upendra Nuruin Shaha, 16 C.W.N. 74.

Generation to generation.

The tenant who claims a hereditary right under a document which does not contain the words from "generation to generation" has a heavy onus to discharge: Pradyot Kumar v. Sarat Chandra, 21 C.W.N. 809.

Jagir.

A grant of jagir is a grant for life only, but in the absence of any custom to the contrary the addition of the word ("পুত্র পৌত্রাদি") putra poutradi, in the grant implies an absolute or heritable estate and passes an estate of inheritance: Ramsaran v. Ramnarayan, 42 Cal. 305.

Babuana.

Except that a Babuana grant is made to a male and a Sohag grant is made to a female there is no difference so far as the right to succession: Ekradeshwar v. Janeshwari, 21 C.L.J. 9 (P.C.) these grants differ essentially in their nature from absolute grants and are subject to the family custom under which they are authorised and in accordance with which they are made: Ibid; as to family custom in the Darbhanga family: Ibid.

Darbhangaj Raj.

Maintenance grant in Pachete Raj.

A maintenance grant in the Pachete Raj is for the life of the grantee but is liable to be resumed by the successor of the grantor, should the latter die during the life time of the grantee: Choto Bahira v. Purna Chander, 21 C.L.J. 144.

See notes under s. 3 cl. (7).

Acceptance of rent at the same rate for a long period.

Each case governed by its own merits.

Where origin of tenancy not known.

Lease for building purposes.

4. Permanent tenant:—The mere fact of an acceptance of rent at the same rate for a long period of years would not be conclusive against the landlord to shew that the lease was of a permanent nature, if the origin of the lease be known; J. Winterscale v. Sarat Chandra Banerjee, 8 C.W.N. 155. But the circumstances of a particular case may properly lead to such an inference, each case depending upon its own circumstances: Ibid. Where the origin of a tenancy cannot be traced but it is proved that the rent has been paid for a long period at the same rate and that there has been no attempt to enhance the rent, that a pucca building has existed for a long time and that the tenure has on many occasions been transferred, held that the tenancy was permanent at the date of its creation: Ismail Mahmud v. Asmatulla, 8 C.W.N. 297. But each case depends upon its own circumstances: J. Winterscale v. Sarat Chandra, 8 C.W.N. 155. See also on this subject, Ismail Mahomed v. Mrinmoy Dasi, 8 C.W.N. 301; Upendra Krishna v. Ismail Mahomed, 8 C.W.N. 889: s. c., 32 Cal. 41; Nilratan Mandal v. Ismail Khan Mahomed, 32 Cal. 51; 8 C.W.N. 895; 31 I.A. 149 Ismail Mahomed v. Raj Kumar, 11 C.W.N. 527; Nabakumari v. Behari Lal, 11 C.W.N. 865 (P.C.): s. c., 34 Cal. 902: s. c., 6 C.L.J. 122; Bipin Behari v. Lala Bhagwat, 9 C.W.N. 699; Bagha Majter v. Durga Prasad, 9 C.W.N. 292; where a lease is given for building purposes the Court may well presume that it was intended to be a perpetual grant: Promoda Nath v. Sreegovindo, 9 C.W.N. 463; see also Juhoree Lal v. Dear, 23 W.R. 399; Ismail Mahomed v. Joygoon Bibi, 4 C.W.N. 210: s. c., 27 Cal. 570; Lala Beni Ram v. Telamaddin Khan, 15 C.L.J. 220: s. c., 16 C.W.N. 567, where Mookerjee and Carnduff J. J., have reviewed the cases on the subject. See also Nemai Chandra v. Mohamed, 9 C.L.J. 475, where Mitra and Caspersz J. J., held that there would arise a presumption of permanent tenancy from the circumstances of the case although there was a stipulation in the kabuliyat that on a transfer by assignment one-fourth of the purchase money should be paid to the landlord.

Presump-
tion.

As to leases of dwelling houses, see notes under s. 182.

Dwelling houses.

Where a mokurari lease contained a clause that the lease would be cancelled on default of payment of rent, held that the forfeiture clause in no way affected its permanent character: Megh Lal v. Raj Kumar, 11 C.W.N. 527: s. c., 34 Cal. 358: s. c., 5 C.L.J. 208; as to what is a mokurari lease, see notes under s. 189.

Forfeiture
clause.

The long possession of a tenant, succession and transfer of an interest in a tank, may give rise to the inference that the holding is permanent: Haridas Tanti v. Upendra Narain, 22 C.L.J. 75.

Long possession,
etc.

Where a tenancy was held for three generations, the rent had remained unchanged, there were buildings on the land and at the inception of the tenancy nazar was paid, held that a legitimate inference might be drawn that the tenancy was of a permanent character at its inception: Binodelal v. Preo Mohan, 20 C.W.N. liii (53 notes portion).

character.

Mere long possession and uniform payment of rent are not by themselves sufficient to make a tenant a permanent one. The material elements are—the land has been let out for purposes of residence, that it had been so occupied and there had been instances of transfer and succession and that structures were erected on the land: Kedar Nath v. Madhusudan, 37 C.L.J. 478, (Mookerjee and Chotzner J.J.).

Long
possession and uniform rent not sufficient;

A permanent tenancy created before the passing of the T. P. Act, for the purpose of habitation, is not transferable by custom, except by custom or express contract to that effect or unless pucca structures are erected thereon: Safarali v. Abdul Rashid, 29 C.W.N. 428: s. c. 39 C.L. 585.

A permanent tenancy cannot be acquired by prescription: A. S. N. Nainapilli v. Ramanathan, A.I.R. 1924 P.C. 65 (Madras Case).

Held, on a construction of a lease that it was a tenancy at a fixed rent: Golam Rahaman v. Gurudas, A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 505.

Held, upon a construction of a lease that the tenancy is permanent and heritable: Rajmohan v. Tara Prasanna, A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 354.

Where the origin of the tenancy is not known but the tenant and his successor have been in occupation of the land for over 60 years and the rent was never varied and the tenancy was treated as heritable and the land was let out for residential purposes, held that the tenancy was permanent: Makhan Lal v. Arun Bala, A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 465.

Where origin not known.

It does not matter that there was no pucca structure: Ibid.

A dwelling house need not be brick-built in order to indicate that the tenancy was intended in its inception to be of a permanent character : Ibid.

The question as to whether permanent tenancy can be presumed is a mixed question of fact and law : Ibid.

original tenancy,
not known.

In a suit for ejectment in which the defendant claimed a permanent tenure in the disputed land, the date of the lease is known, but the terms are to be inferred from the subsequent conduct of the parties, the original purpose of letting was not known and there were successions and transfer and uniform payment of rent, held that the burden of proof was on the tenant to show such facts as make the inference of the permanence of the tenure a reasonable inference : Jnanendra v. Nasea Dasi, 39 C.L.J. 526 (Rankin J., 18 June 1924).*

An assertion in the kobala executed by a tenant in favour of his transferee, that his right in it was a permanent one, was admissible in evidence in such a suit, under sec. 13 of the Evidence Act : Ibid.

Facts necessary to establish
nency.

In order that the presumption of permanency may be drawn it must be established that the origin of the tenancy was unknown and that substantial pucca structures were built without objection by the landlord : Abdul Hakim v. Elahi Baksha, 52 Cal. 43,† s. c., 29 C.W.N. 138. (Per Chakravarti J., Greaves J. agreeing, 9 June 1924) ; Pucca stairs and pucca privy within a Municipality are not structures which a reasonable landlord can object to so long as the tenancy subsists : Ibid.

The fact that the tenant is allowed to continue in possession of lands for generations, without alteration of rent, is of common occurrence in this country and is usually attributable to the reluctance of the landlord to eject a tenant from his home so long as he does not make himself objectionable and regularly pays his rent. Mere forbearance to enhance the rent or eject the tenant, where the right exists, means nothing : Ibid.

The tenancy in the absence of proof of any definite terms of permanency, would be at best one from year to year : Ibid. Absence of written lease could not improve the position of the tenant, because he must know under what terms he held the land of his lessor : Ibid.

The circumstances of each case must determine whether the presumption of permanency should be made or not : Ibid.

The question as to whether upon the facts found, the presumption of permanency can be raised, is a question of law and is open to correction in second appeal : Ibid.

Before the Transfer of Property Act there was no statute dealing with homestead land as distinguished from agricultural land—No person, after the Transfer of Property Act came into operation, can claim to hold a permanent tenancy in what is called bastu land, unless it was created by a written and registered lease : Ibid.

In such cases where the terms of the original tenancy cannot be directly proved, the inference of permanency of the tenancy is made upon two broad principles (1) the first principle is, that in cases where the origin of the tenancy is unknown and its inception is lost in antiquity, the principle of a lost grant is invoked by the tenant and from the conduct of the parties and the surrounding circumstances the court is asked to presume that the tenancy was a permanent one—the conduct of the landlord in recognising succession, transfer and in standing by, when pucca buildings have been raised upon the land are mainly relied on in finding out the terms of the lease at its inception. (2) The second principle is that of equitable estoppel against the landlord shewing that the lease was a terminable one: Ibid.

* The case of Nilratan v. Ismail, 32 Cal. 51 was followed.

† The case of Maharam Chaprasi v. Telamuddin, 16 C.W.N. 567; s. c. 15 C.L.J. 220 not followed.

Decided cases shew the existence of the following elements, in order that the presumption of permanency of a tenancy, may be raised:—(1) The origin of tenancy for residential purposes must be unknown; (2) existence of permanent pucca buildings on the lands built long before any controversy arises and that to the knowledge of the landlord; (3) uniform payment of rent; (4) recognition of succession and transfer by the landlord: Ibid.

Absence of either of the first two elements will be ordinarily fatal to any claim of permanency on the theory of a lost grant. Absence of the 3rd and the 4th elements usually will raise difficulties in the way of raising the presumption, but may not be decisive if there are other circumstances in aid of the presumption: Ibid.

5. Underground rights :—It must be presumed that the zemindar is the owner of the underground rights appertaining to a tenure granted by him in the absence of evidence that he parted with them : Harinarayan Singh v. Sriram Chakravarti, 37 Cal. 723, s. c., 14 C.W.N. 746 (P.C.) s. c., 11 C.L.J. 653 ; reversing the ruling in the case of Sriram Chakravarti v. Harinarayan Singh, 33 Cal. 54, s. c., 10 C.W.N. 425 ; s. c., 3 C.L.J. 59. The holder of a permanent tenure in the absence of all evidence of the terms of the lease should not be presumed to own the underground right : Jyoti Prashad v. George Methew Darby, 38 Cal. 845.* s. c., 16 C.W.N. 241. There is no difference in principle between a lessee for years and a lessee in perpetuity when nothing is known or can be inferred about the intention of the parties at the inception of the lease : Ibid, see also Abhiram v. Shyama Charan, 14 C.W.N. 1 ; s. c., 36 Cal. 1003.

Lease for years and lease in perpetuity.

A permanent lease including "all rights of various kinds" with the exception only of homestead would include the minerals : Shamia Charan v. Abhiram, 10 C.W.N. 738 ; s. c., 33 Cal. 511 ; s. c., 3 C.L.J. 306.

As to sub-soil right, see also Bagdu Majhi v. Durga Prosad, 9 C.W.N. 292, Tituram v. Cohen, 2 C.L.J. 408 ; Megh Lal v. Raj Kumar, 11 C.W.N. 527 ; s. c., 34 Cal. 358 ; s. c., 5 C.L.J. 208.

Temporary interest.

The cases of Prince Mohomed Baaktiar Shaha v. Rani Dhojomonni, 2 C.L.J. 20 and In re Saramonanda Das, 7 Bom. 109 "deal solely with the rights of persons who possess temporary interests in the land and the rights of lessees for years ; and it is well established that such persons have no right to the minerals underlying their land and can only work mines, quarries or pits which are open when they come into possession of the land." (Per Pratt and Pargiter, J.J., in Sriram v. Kumar Harinarain, 10 C.W.N. 425 at p. 428 : s. c., 33 Cal. 54).

Putni :
Right to Minerals.
Durbust zemindari hakuk.

A grant of a putni containing the words Durbust Zemindari Hakook includes the mining rights : Ali Quader v. Jogendra Narain, 16 C.L.J. 7 (Prinsep and Hill, J.J.).

There is no substantial difference between Durbust Zemindari hakuk and Durbust hakuk so far as a putni lease is concerned : Raja Bhupendra Narayan Sinha v. Rajeswar Prosad Bhakat, 32 C.W.N. 16, s. c., 46 C.L.J. 307 (B. B. Ghose and Roy J.J.). The word 'Durbast' means "all" 'entire' and 'hakuk' is plural of 'hak' which means 'right' and when the zemindar grants 'Durbust hakuk' he grants 'Durbust hakuk' of his zemindari right. Ibid. "Mai hak hakuk" only refers to the rights that were granted previously and not to all the rights of the grantor : Ibid.

In the case of Satya Niranjan Chakravarti v. Ram Lal Kabiraj, 52 I.A. 109 at p. 117, s. c., 29 C.W.N. 725 at p. 731 it was held by their Lordships of the Judicial Committee that the question whether or not a putni lease as such conveys the minerals to the

* The names of the case as reported in 38 Cal. 845 are JYOTI PRASAD v. LACHIPUR COAL CO.

Putnidar is, so far as the Judicial Committee is concerned, still open. The judgment of Prinsep and Hill, J.J. in the case of Ali Quader v. Jogendra Narain, 16 C.L.J. 7 has not been overruled by the decision of the Judicial Committee in Giridhari Singh v. Megh Lal Pandey, 44 I.A. 246, s. c. 45 Cal. 87, s. c. 22 C.W.N. 201, which was a case of a mokurari and not a putni lease.

Where in a putni lease no reservations were made about minerals but only about some other insignificant matters and the mahal in question was leased "without any deduction the Chhyarad land and water, mal and sayers, etc., darabast hakuk," it was held that the putnidar and the darpatnidar as grantee were entitled to all the minerals included within the putni grant: Raja Bhupendra Narain Singh v. Rajeswar Prosad Bhakat, 55 Cal. 35, s. c., 32 C.W.N. 16, s. c. 46 C.L.J. 307.

B. B. Ghosh, J., in his judgment in this case in 32 C.W.N. 16 at p. 21 observed: "The next question is whether by the grant of a putni taluq underground rights have been conveyed. I will rest content by referring to the observations of their Lordships of the Judicial Committee in the case of Satya Niranjan Chakravartty v. Ramlal Kaviraj, L.R. 52 I.A. 109, s. c. 29 C.W.N. 725, 731. Their Lordships did not agree with the dictum of the Patna High Court that the judgment of Prinsep and Hill, J.J., in Ali Quader Hossein v. Jogendra Narayan Roy, 16 C.L.J. 7, has been overruled by the decisions of the Privy Council cited in the judgment. It follows therefore that that case decided by the learned judges of this Court is still good law so far as we are concerned; unless we are prepared to differ from it and refer the question decided there to a Full Bench, we are bound to follow it. We are not prepared to differ from what was laid down in that case, so we are bound to follow the law laid down in it."

The owner of the underground right is justified in doing all such acts as may reasonably be necessary: Kumar Rameswar v. Ram Nath, 10 C.W.N. 17; s.c., 33 Cal. 462; Kerr v. Pawson, 25 Beav. 394; Williamson v. Woolten, 3 Drew. 210; Harris v. Ryding, 5 M. & W. 60; s.c., 52 R.R. 622; Spoor v. Green, L.R. 9 Each 99; Earl of Jersey v. Guardians of Pen, 22 Q.B.D. 555; Attorney General v. Ewelme Hospital, 17 Beav. 366; In re Purmanandas v. Jeewndas, 7 Bom. 109; Tituram v. Cohen, 2 C.L.J. 408; Girish Chandra v. Sris Chandra, 9 C.W.N. 255. Extent of underground rights.

In the absence of proof that the mineral rights were vested in the holder of a Digwari tenure before or at the time of the Permanent settlement, the zemindar with whom the estate in which the tenure was permanently settled by Government would have the rights to the minerals: Durga Prasad v. Braja nath, 16 C.W.N. 482; s.c., 39 Cal. 696. Mineral rights—Digwari tenure.

Grant of jagir land implies no grant of the soil but a personal grant only of the revenue thereof to the grantee: Ragpojirao v. Lakshimanvad, 17 C.L.J. 17 (P.C.). Jagir.

A bemiadi patta (lease without a term) does not make the lease a permanent one although rights to minerals were granted and although it was heritable: Parshman Koer v. Tulsi Koer, 39 I.C. 638 s.c., 2 Pat. L.J. 180. Bemiadi patta.

Mogoli Brahmottur grant of a mouja does not pass any minerals under it to the grantee: Kunja Behari v. Durga Prasad, 42 Cal. 346 Mogholi Brahmottur (Fletcher and Richardson J.J.). (Harinarain v. Sriram, 37 Cal. 123 and Jyoti Prasad v. Lachipur, 38 Cal. 845 followed).

Where a mouja was held under a Mogholi Brahmattar grant of which the origin of the tenancy is not known, and it did not appear that at the date of the grant any mines had been opened or that right to minerals had been acquired by the grantee, held that minerals did not pass: Kunja Behari v. Durga Prasad, 19 C.W.N. 203 (Fletcher and Richardson J.J., 7 May 1914); where the mineral rights were never in contemplation of the parties when the lease was granted (in the year 1830) the presumption is that no subsoil rights passed by the grant: Nawabgunj Coal Co. v. Beharilal, 20 C.W.N. 1135 s.c., 1 Pat. L.J. 275 s.c., 2 Pat. L.W. 324. (Patna High Court: Atkinson and Kingsford J.J.).

Minerals Minerals will not be held to have formed part of the grant, in the absence of express evidence to that effect: Shashi Bhusan v. Jyoti Prasad, 44 Cal. 585 (P.C.), s.c., 21 C.W.N. 377, s.c. 25 C.L.J. 265.

Absence of express words in a grant. The case of Jyoti Prasad v. Lachipur Coal Co., 14 C.L.J. 361, s. c., 38 Cal. 845, s. c., 16 C.W.N. 241 was affirmed and the cases of Harinarayan v. Sriram, 11 C.L.J. 653, s. c., 37 Cal. 723 and Durga Prasad v. Brajanath, 15 C.L.J. 461, s. c., 39 I.A., 133, s. c., 39 Cal. 695 were followed in the Privy Council case of Sashi Bhusan v. Jyoti Prasad, 44 Cal. 585 (P.C.) and it was held that although a tenure may be permanent, heritable and transferable, and at a fixed rent, minerals will not pass as forming part of a grant in the absence of express evidence to that effect. The cases of Jyoti Prasad v. Lachipur Coal Co., Harinarayan v. Sriram and Durga Prasad v. Brajanath were also followed in the case of Kunja Behari v. Durga Prasad, 20 C.L.J. 304, s.c., 42 Cal. 396* and it was held that minerals did not pass in a Mogholi Brahmottur grant.

Brahmottur The effect of a grant of a rent-free brahmottur of the whole of a moujah made before or after the Permanent Settlement is not to transfer any mining rights: The Nawabgunj Coal Co. v. Sashi Bhusan Ray, 42 Cal. 346 s. c., 19 C.W.N. 203 (Stephen and Mullick J.J.).

Maintenance grant. In a maintenance grant for life there was no express provision authorising the grantee to open new mines and to appropriate the minerals therefrom, held that the grantee had no right to grant a mining lease for the purpose of opening and working new mines: Christian v. Tekaitmi, 20 C.L.J. 527; s. c., 19 C.W.N. 796 (Mookerjee and Beachcroft J.J.).

The interest of a khorphosdar (i.e., of a maintenance grant) heritable in the male line is resumable on the failure of heirs and therefore does not carry with it the subsoil rights: Biswanath v. Surendra, 19 C.W.N. 102 (Chitty and Teunon J.J.).

In the case of a maintenance grant (Khorphosh) heritable in the male line, where the reversion remains in the grantor, the mineral rights do not pass without words of express grant or by clear implication: Udai Pratap v. Jagat Mohan, 6 Pat. 638 (Dawson Miller, C.J. & Kulwant Sahay, J.).

* See Ram Chandra v. Ganesh Chandra, 21 C.W.N. 404; this case relates to the case of a contract for working coal out of Mogholi Brahmottur land.

The minerals do not pass if the lease does not contain clearly the terms that the subsoil right is granted ; this principle applies as well as to rent-free grants as to grants of tenures at fixed rents : Raghunath v. Durga Prasad, 47 Cal. 95 (P.C.). The following cases were followed : Hari Narayan v. Sriram, (1910) I.L.R. 37 Cal. 723 ; Durga Prasad v. Brajnath, (1912) I.L.R. 39 Cal. 696 ; s.c., I.L.R. 39 I.A. 133 ; Sashi Bhushan v. Jyoti Prasad, (1916) L.K. 44 I.A. 46.

Rent-free grants and tenures at fixed rents.

6. Splitting up :—Where a tenure which was held from long before the Permanent Settlement was in the year 1884 split up into two tenancies, held that the old tenure did not exist in the shape of the two new tenancies, the land held by the tenure-holder being affected by the division under cl. (3) of s. 50 of the Tenancy Act : Uday Chandra v. Nripendra Narayan, 36 Cal. 287, s. c. 13 C.W.N. 410 ; but it has been subsequently held in another case that the subsequent splitting up of a permanent tenure into more than one will not affect the permanent nature of the tenancies : Jyoti Prasad v. George Mathew Darby, 16 C.W.N. 241. The case of Uday Chandra v. Nripendra Narayan, 36 Cal. 287, s. c. 13 C.W.N. 410, was distinguished on the ground that the case proceeded on the special wording of s. 50 of the Tenancy Act and had therefore no application to a tenancy which had been divided long before that enactment ; moreover the case in 16 C.W.N. 241, was one in which s. 50 of the Bengal Tenancy Act had no application.

Effect of splitting up.

7. Suit by shebait for recovery of possession :—A suit by a shebait for recovery of possession of land covered by a permanent lease, granted by his predecessor in interest without any legal necessity and not for the benefit of the endowment, is barred by limitation, if brought more than 12 years after the grant ; each succeeding shebait does not acquire a fresh start for the purpose of limitation ; Madhusudan v. Radhika Prasad, 16 C.L.J. 349 (Mookerjee and Beachcroft J.J., 30 Aug. 1912), following the case of Damodur v. Lakhan, 37 Cal. 885.

Suit for possession barred, if brought 12 years after grant of a permanent lease.

8. Debuttur :—In the case of Satyasri Ghosal v. Kartik Chandra Das, 15 C.L.J. 227 Jenkins C.J. observed (N. Chatterjee J. agreeing, Jan. 29, 1912) : "The presumption in favour of a permanent tenancy implies, that there is ground for inferring that the tenure was always intended to be and always intended to be and always was hereditary, or that it acquired that character by subsequent grant. But a presumption in favour of a transaction assumes its regularity : it cannot be made in favour of that which offends legal principle. It is this that prevents our accepting the view of the lower appellate court as final, for it would seem that the property to which the presumption has been applied is debuttur. If it was debuttur at the time the tenancy originated, then this would affect the applicability of the presumption, for, to create a new and fixed rent for all time, though adequate at the time, in lieu of giving the endowment the benefit of an augmentation of a variable rent from time to time would be a breach of duty in a shebait and is not, therefore presumable." See also Moharanee Shibessouree v. Mothura Nath, 13 M.I.A. 270 (275).

9. Brahmottar : Rent-free grant :—In Bengal Rajas and rich zemindars in ancient days made numerous rent-free brahmottar grants to learned Pandits and Brahmins of saintly character for their maintenance. At this distance of time most of the original grants recorded in country papers have been lost. Long possession by the grantees and their successors under a claim of rent-free brahmottar grant is all that can be expected after a long lapse of time in proof of a legal origin of such grant. Whether a presumption of a lost grant should arise or not must depend upon the circumstances of each case. Care must always be taken to see that long possession is clearly established to have been enjoyed under a definite claim of right in such a manner that in the circumstances it was likely to have attracted the notice of the person or persons whose rights are adversely affected by such a claim; Rai Kiran Chandra Roy Bahadur v. Srinath Chakravarti, 31 C.W.N. 135 (Per Chakravarti, J., Panton, J., agreeing).

(9) "Holding" means a parcel or parcels of land held by a raiyat and forming the subject of a separate tenancy.

Headings of Notes.

1. GENERAL EXPLANATION.
2. "PARCEL OR PARCELS OF LAND."
3. LAND HELD BY AN UNDER-RAIYAT.

I. General explanation :—The following illustration will explain the section :

A and B are joint proprietors of an estate. A lets out his one-half share as a tenure of a parcel of land by one lease ; B lets out his one-half share of that parcel separately by another lease ; there become two distinct tenures ; A or B may sue alone for ejectment or enhancement and the decree obtained for rent is a rent-decree. But if A lets out his one-half share of land as a rayati tenancy and there are stipulations that A alone will be entitled to sue for rent or enhancement or ejectment, and B lets out by a separate lease his undivided share with all rights of enhancement, ejectment &c., still according to the case-law A or B cannot alone sue for enhancement or ejectment ; it has been held that the tenancy under A or B is not a holding. The case-law is to the effect that a parcel or parcels of land means "an entire parcel" or "entire parcels of land."

The practical difficulty is that the landlord cannot, although there is a separate lease, bring a suit for enhancement of rent under s. 30, for it is the landlord of a "holding" who can bring such a suit ; it is not possible to bring a suit jointly with his co-sharer landlord for the leases are separate, the rent is separate and the stipulations are different. Likewise the decree for rent is not a rent-decree but a money decree.

It is suggested therefore that the definition of "holding" should be altered and in this respect the definition of "tenure" should be looked into, and the definition may be altered thus :

"Holding" means the interest of a raiyat in the land which he holds and which forms the subject of a separate tenancy.

The word used in s. 30 is "holding" and the word in s. 105 is "land" ; it has therefore been held that although the landlord of an undivided share of a parcel of land which has been let out by a separate lease cannot bring a suit for enhancement under s. 30, but he can make an application for settlement of rent under s. 105, as the word used in s. 105 is "land" and not, "holding."

2. "Parcel or Parcels of Land" means entire parcel or entire parcels and therefore an undivided share in the lands comprised in a holding is not a holding: Hurry Charan v. Rajah Runjit, 25 Cal. 917, s. c., 1 C.W.N. 521; Baidya Nath v. Sheikh Jin, 2 C.W.N. 44; Hurribole v. Tassimuddin, 2 C.W.N. 680; Ahadulla v. Gagan Molla, 2 C.L.J. 10; Parbatty Debya v. Mathuranath, 16 C.W.N. 877, s. c., 16 C.L.J. 9; Binayak v. Sominuddi, 24 C.W.N. 1022; Bahadur Ahmed Moulavi v. Hemanta Kumar Roy, 29 C.W.N. 613 (Cumming & B. B. Ghose, J.J.). Under Act VIII of 1869 (B.C.) a raiyat could acquire a right of occupancy in a share of an undivided property: Baidyanath v. Sudharam, 8 C.W.N. 751; see also Jardine Contra. Skinner & Co. v. Rani Sarat Sundari, 3 C.L.R. 140.

Undivided share cannot be holding.

Where a raiyat executes a kabuliyat in favour of A, an eight annas landlord, and another kabuliyat in favour of B, the other eight annas landlord, held that the sale of the 8-ans. which the tenant holds under A, does not give the latter a right to khas possession, Swarnamoyi v. Gayratulla, 20 C.W.N. ciii (103 notes portion, Fletcher and Newbould J.J.).

Right to Khas possession.

It is submitted that an undivided share in an entire parcel of land may be a distinct holding, for the term "holding" means a parcel or parcels of land &c., &c., unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context (as will be found in the earlier part of s. 3). If an undivided share of a plot of land which has been separately settled and for which a separate kabuliyat is given is not considered to be a holding, the landlord is practically without any remedy to recover rent, for the decree cannot be executed as a rent-decree under s. 65; and as a money-decree it cannot be executed, as the holding, not being transferable, cannot be sold.* Unless therefore an undivided share forming a separate tenancy is not considered to be a holding within the meaning of this section there will be a repugnancy in the subject or context in interpreting s. 65. It has already been pointed out above that an occupancy right could be acquired in an undivided share of a holding under the old law. Petheram, C.J. observed in the case of Hurry Churan v. Runjit, 25 Cal. 917, s. c. 1 C.W.N. 521 that an undivided share of a plot of land forming the subject of a distinct tenancy may be a holding and that the words parcel or parcels of land do not exclude the idea that a share though undivided cannot be a holding.

Whether an undivided share in a holding may be a holding as defined in this section.

Observations of Petheram, C. J.

It has been held by Richardson J., that there can be a raiyati interest in an undivided share or part of land: Banku Behari v. Benode Kumar, 13 C.W.N. notes portion cclxiv (264). See notes under s. 65.

3. Land held by an under-raiyat:—Land held by an under-raiyat is not a holding within the meaning of s. 3 Cl. (8): Arsadulla v. Mansubali, 16 C.L.J. 539 (D. Chatterjea and N. Chatterjea J.J.).

Headings of Notes.

1. ALTERATION.
2. NON-URBAN AREA.
3. CL. (b).

1. Alteration : These clauses have been substituted for the former clause by the Bengal Tenancy Amendment Acts of Bengal and Eastern Bengal : the former clause was as follows :—

(10) "Village" means an area included in a village map of the revenue survey within the same exterior boundary, or where no such maps have been prepared, such area as any officer appointed by the Local Government in this behalf may determine after local inquiry held on such notice as the Local Government considers sufficient for giving information to all persons interested. Former village (10)

2. Non-urban area : The term "village" as defined in sub-sec. (10) before amendment by Act 1 (B.C.) of 1907 was held to be not confined to non-urban areas : Syed Hassan Ali v. Gobind Lal Basak, 9 C.W.N. 141. Village.

3. Cl. (b) : The Collector of the 24 Parganas in exercise of the power conferred by this clause and with the sanction of the Board of Revenue declared certain areas to constitute villages within the meaning of this Act. A list of the said villages will be found in the Appendix.

Several notifications have been published in the Local Gazette to the effect that the surveys carried out under the orders of Government under s. 3 of the Bengal Survey Act, 1875 (Beng. Act V of 1875), and sub-sec. (1) of s. 101 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, be adopted as defining village for the purpose of cl. (10) (b) of s. 3 in several areas of several districts. A list of the said notifications and areas is to be found in the Appendix.

Village.

The word "village" is to be found in ss. 20 (1), 21 (1) and 115A. According to s.s 20 (1) and 21 (1) a person who does not hold land in a village cannot be a settled raiyat and cannot acquire a right of occupancy.

Where a certain area was declared as village in the year 1912 and the tenant held that land for 12 years a part of which was subsequent to 1921, held that the tenant did not acquire a right of occupancy: Janabali v. The Port Canning and Land Improvement Company, 40 C.L.J. 167 (Rankin and B. B. Ghose J.J.) ; this was decided before the Amending Act of 1925.

See notes under sec. 21.

(11) "Agricultural Year" means, where the Bengali year prevails, the year commencing on the first day of Baisakh, where the Fasli or Amli year prevails, the year commencing on the first day of Asin, and, where any other year prevails for agricultural purposes, that year;

The Bengali and the Vilayati (or Armlī) year are solar: the Fasli is a lunar year.

The Bengali year commences on the 1st of Baisakh which generally corresponds to the 12th or 13th April.

The Fasli year commences on the 1st of Aswin which generally corresponds to some day in September; this being a lunar year, an intercalary month is inserted every third (sometimes second) year in order that the year may commence in the same season.

The Vilayati or Amli year commences on variable dates in Bhadra or Aswin.

See notes under Sch. III, art. 2.

(12) "Permanent Settlement" means the Permanent Settlement of Bengal, Bihar and Orissa, made in the year 1793.

(S. 50 Cl. 2) Date of the Permanent Settlement : When a question arises as to whether a tenant is entitled to the presumption under s. 50, cl. (2) the fact that the estate within which the tenure in question is situated was not permanently settled in the year 1793, does not make any difference: Tamasha Bibi v. Asutosh Dhar, 4 C.W.N. 513.

Sunderbans.

This case was relied on by D. Chatterjee and Mullick J.J., in the case of Khettermani v. Jiban Krishna, 21 C.L.J. 315, and it was held that a part of the Sunderbans would be a permanently settled area even if settled after 1793, the definition in cl. 12 of s. 3 of the Bengal Tenancy Act notwithstanding.

(13) "Succession" includes both intestate and testamentary succession.

Occupancy raiyat, death of, without heir

Vesting of occupancy holding on the landlord after death of raiyat :—The word, "succession" does not include the case of the vesting of an occupancy holding on the landlord on the death of an occupancy raiyat: Mukta Keshi v. Pulin Behari, 13 C.W.N. 12.

(14) "Signed" includes "marked", when the person making the mark is unable to write his name; it also includes "stamped" with the name of the person referred to.

IX of 1833, subordinate to the Collector, and is required to perform all the duties assigned to him by that functionary : Phanindro v. Emperor, 40 Cal. 465 ; s. c., 17 C.W.N. 571.

2. Powers of a Collector :—All officers in charge of sub-divisions have been invested with the powers of a Collector for the purpose of discharging the functions referred to in ss. 12, 13, 15 and 69 to 71 of this Act (Calcutta Gazette, 1886, Pt. 1, pp. 466, 1892). The Deputy Collector of Howrah and the Senior Deputy Collector of Gaya have also been invested to exercise the functions of ss. 69 to 71 : Calcutta Gazette 1886, Pt. I, p. 652 ; and 1893, Pt. I, p. 274).

No. 2446 L. R.—The 22nd Aug. 1910. In exercise of the power conferred by cl. (16) of s. 3 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885 (VIII of 1885), the Lieutenant Governor is pleased to appoint all officers in charge of sub-divisions in the province of Bengal, except those in the Chota Nagpur Division, to discharge in their respective sub-

No. 1579 L.R.—The 19th Sep. 1910—In exercise of the power conferred by cl. (16) or s. 3 of the Bengal Tenancy Act 1885 (VIII of 1185), the Lieutenant Governor is pleased to appoint all officers in charge of sub-divisions in which section 58 of that Act is in force to discharge in their respective sub-divisions the functions of a Collector under the said section 58.

See Appendix.

When by a notification all the officers in charge of sub-divisions were appointed to discharge the functions of a Collector under ss. 12, 13, 13, and 15, such appointment creates the officer a Collector under this clause for the purpose of carrying out the duties under those particular sections, and do not make him a Collector "for all purposes of the Act": Mohabat Singh v. Umatul Futima, 28 Cal. 66. Ss. 12, 13, 15 and 69 to 71.

3. Whether Collector can Delegate Powers :—It seems that when a Collector is appointed by the Local Government to discharge any of the functions of a Collector under this Act, he has no power to delegate the said powers to any other officer.

(17) "Revenue-officer," in any provision of this Act, includes any officer whom the Local Government may appoint, by name or by virtue of his office, to discharge any of the functions of a Revenue-officer under that provision.

Appointment of Deputy Collectors to discharge the functions of Revenue officers :—See Appendix. See also notes under s. 3 clause (16).

(18) "Registered" means registered under any Act for the time being in force for the registration of documents.

I. Documents which are required to be in writing and registered :—(1) The following documents are required to be in writing and registered under the Bengal Tenancy Act : Documents required to be in writing under the Bengal

Tenancy
Act ;

- (a) Transfer of a permanent tenure or share thereof, and raiyati holdings at fixed rent or rate of rent, or share thereof, by sale, gift or mortgage. See ss. 12, 17 and 18.
- (b) Agreement enhancing money-rent of occupancy raiyat under s. 29.
- (c) Agreement for enhancement of rent of a non-occupancy raiyat under ss. 43 and 46.
- (d) Leases by an under-raiyat by virtue of which the landlord of the under-raiyat is entitled to recover increased rent under s. 48 cl. (a).
- (e) Subleases by a raiyat under s. 85 (1).
- (f) A sublease of a raiyati holding in respect to which the benefits under cl. (4) of s. 87 may be obtained.
- (g) Notified incumbrances within the meaning of s. 161.

under the Transfer of Property
Act.

(2) Documents which come within the meaning of ss. 54, 59 and 123 of the Transfer of Property Act: (s. 107 of the Transfer of Property Act does not apply to agricultural leases ; see s. 117 of that Act ; and consequently leases under the Bengal Tenancy Act do not require to be in writing, but if they are reduced into writing they are required to be registered if they come within the meaning of s. 18 of the Indian Registration Act.

tenure.

A permanent tenure under the Bengal Tenancy Act or under any other Act is to be made by a registered instrument: Hasiswari (Kasiswari) v. Harinath, 40 I.C. 100. It is submitted with great respect that this decision is open to doubt in as much as the Bengal Tenancy Act nowhere provides that a permanent tenure is required to be in writing, and consequently no writing and registered document is necessary.

Putni
tenure

It should be pointed out however that a patni lease is required to be in writing under Reg. VIII of 1819 and as such is required to be registered.

Registra-
s. 90.

A lease attested by any officer engaged in making a settlement or revision of settlement of land-revenue and which forms part of the record of such settlement, is exempted from registration under s. 90 cl. (a) of the Indian Registration Act.

Registration Act.

Also leases coming within cl. (d) of s. 90 of the Indian Registration Act do not require registration. Certain resumed balagasti paikan lands in the district of Midnapur were leased out in the year 1906 by an unregistered patta by the Collector on behalf of the Secretary of State ; the lower appellate court held that the patta did not require registration under cl. (d) of the Registration Act, held by Jenkins C. J. and Holmwood J., that the patta did not require registration: Makhanlal v. Debendra, 19 C.W.N. cciii (203 notes) but see the case reported in 12 All. L. J., p. 219.

Registration Act,
s. 90.

(3) Documents which are not required by the Bengal Tenancy Act to be in writing, if reduced into writing, are required to be registered if they come within the meaning of s. 18 of the Indian Registration Act, and not exempted under s. 90 of that Act.

Oral lease.

The letting out of agricultural land need not be by a document only ; it may be by oral agreement or even by conduct of parties: Alamulla v. Surendra Kumar, 69 I.C. 57. The fact that the tenant has the option at the end of the term of one year to continue his tenancy does not make the lease a lease for more than a year and as such the lease does not require registration: Faijuddin v. Asrab Ali, 37 C.L.J. 475.

A compromise in a rent suit fixing payment of rent for future years does not require registration: Ram Pedarath v. Shorai Koery, [1920 Pat.] p. 114; such a compromise is admissible in evidence: Ibid. Compromise.

An agreement to lease intended to operate as a present demise is a lease within the meaning of clause (d) of s. 17 of the Registration Act and as such inadmissible in evidence in a suit for specific performance of its terms if it is not registered, even though the tenant is in possession: Sanjib v. Santosh, 26 C.W.N. 329; (Rankin J.). The relationship of landlord and tenant may be proved without production of lease, by proof of payment of rent and acceptance by the landlord: Raj Kumari v. Shyama Bibi, 25 C.W.N. clxiii, (163 notes portion). Agreement to lease.

Lease not necessary.

An amalnama being neither a lease, nor an agreement to lease within the meaning of s. 3 of the Registration Act, is admissible in evidence without registration: Lakshan Chandra v. Takim Dhali, 39 C.L.J. 90. Amalnama.

The case of Dwarka Nath v. Ledu Sikdar, 33 Cal. 502 was referred to. Apart from s. 17 (3) of the Registration Act an amalnama authorising a grantee to take possession and intended to be followed by a formal Kabuliyat even if deemed compulsorily registrable is inadmissible only for the limited purpose mentioned under s. 49 of the Registration Act, as evidence of a transaction affecting immoveable property comprised therein: Lakshan Chandra v. Takim Dhali, 39 C.L.J. 90.

No writing is necessary for surrendering a tenancy. But when the original lease is registered the surrender of a portion of the tenancy with an abatement of rent must be by a registered instrument: Gopal Chandra v. Harendra Nath, 63 I.C. 483. See notes under s. 3 cl. (4). Surrender when to be in writ-
registered.

2. Amalnama:—An agreement by a landlord to grant a lease upon the tenant fulfilling certain conditions is not a lease or an agreement to lease requiring registration: Dwarkanath v. Ledu Sikdar, 33 Cal. 502. Where an amalnama recited that the tenant verbally applied for grant of certain lands and that he was permitted to hold and clear the jungle (the lands being then covered with jungle), that he should be allowed to hold without payment of any rent for nine years, that on the expiration of that period of time, the lands would be measured and assessed at a certain rate and that upon the execution of a kabuliyat by the tenant a patta would be granted to him, and that if the grantee fails to reclaim the lands within nine years for which he was allowed occupation it would be in the power of the landlord to settle the land with any body he pleases, held that the document was neither a lease nor an agreement to lease within the meaning of sec. 3 of the Registration Act and did not require registration: Ibid. Amalnama not a lease.

tion of an amalnama.

The question whether an instrument made a present demise or was merely an agreement to make a future demise must depend upon the paramount intention of the parties: Champakalatika v. Nafar Chandra, 15 C.W.N. 536. A dastak which merely allows a tenant Intention of the parties.

- Dowl. to take possession of the land and to cultivate it does not require registration: Ahmud v. Tohi, 13 C.W.N. 267; when a dowl i.e. a memorandum showing the rents payable by the tenants bearing their signatures merely evidences that the rent which was previously payable partly in kind and partly in cash would hereinafter be paid in cash only, it is not an instrument relating to an interest in immovable property and does not require registration: Haraprasad v. Ramnarayan, 11 C.L.J. 22; the case of Narain Coomary v. Ramkrishna, 5 Cal. 864 was considered and applied in this case; also Satyesh Chunder v. Dhunput, 24 Cal. 20; Obai Goundan v. Ramlinga, 22 Mad. 217. The case of Syed Surdar v. Amzad Ali, 7 Cal. 703, Dwarkanath v. Ledu Sikdar, 33 Cal. 502; Narayanan v. Mutheah Servai, 35 Mad. 63 and Champaklatika v. Nafar Chandra, 15 C.W.N. 536 were all discussed in the case of Sheikh Elahi v. Sheikh Hukum, 18 C.W.N. 38, where a document described the land intended to be demised and set out the boundaries thereof and proceeded to say that "according to your prayer I grant this amalnama to you for creating houses after reclaiming the said homestead. You will dwell thereon on payment of rent Rs.....from year to year.....you will abide the survey and settlement within a month on executing a kabuliyat you will take a patta which I shall grant," and it was held that it was compulsorily registrable.
- Compulsory registration. *
- Rights by words of mouth. When the rights claimed by a person may legally be created by words of mouth, those rights cannot be disturbed by the granting afterwards of a registered kabuliyat: Ismail v. Ali Mahomed, 13 C.W.N. notes portion p. 104 (civ.)
- Document varying rent. 3. Document varying rent:—A document varying the rent reserved in a registered lease requires registration: Lalit Mohan Ghose v. The Gopali Chuck Coal Co., Ltd., 39 Cal. 284, s. c., 16 C.W.N. 55 (F.B.).
- Reduction of rent. 4. Reduction of rent:—A subsequent agreement reducing rent requires registration: Durga Prasad v. Rajendra Narain, 18 C.W.N. 66 (P.C.).
- Transfer of Property Act. 5. Transfer of Property Act s. 107:—The terms of a tenancy which do not come within s. 107 of the Transfer of Property Act can be proved by oral evidence: Sarat Chandra v. Jadav Chandra, 21 C.W.N. 206.

CHAPTER II.

CLASSES OF TENANTS.

4. There shall be, for the purpose of this Act, the following classes of tenants (namely):— Classes of tenants.

- (1) tenure-holders, including under-tenure-holders,
- (2) raiyats, and
- (3) under-raiyats, that is to say, tenants holding, whether immediately or mediately, under raiyats; and the following classes of raiyats (namely):—

- (a) raiyats holding at fixed rates, which expression means raiyats holding either at a rent fixed in perpetuity or at a rate of rent fixed in perpetuity.
- (b) occupancy-raiyats, that is to say, raiyats having a right of occupancy in the land held by them, and
- (c) non-occupancy-raiyats, that is to say, raiyats not having such a right of occupancy.

2. Act X of 1859—Act VIII B. C. of 1866—Raiyat and der-raiyat :—The distinction between a raiyat and an under-raiyat is recognized from before the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Act. Distinction between raiyat and under raiyat—

Old law.

The previous Acts (X of 1895 and VIII B. of 1865) contemplate the existence of the under-raiyat; under Act VIII B.C. of 1869 an under-raiyat cannot acquire a right of occupancy: Kamini v. Prosunno, 24 C.W.N. 685.

3. Raiyat at fixed rent:—A raiyat at fixed rent or rate of rent may also be an occupancy raiyat: Sarbeswar v. Bijaychand, 49 Cal. 280, s. c., 24 C.W.N. 15; see also Midnapur Zemindary Co. v. Sadhumoni, 54 Cal. 681 (Duval & Mitter, J.J.), s. c., 34 C.L.J. 233, (Sanderson C.J. and Richardson J.). A raiyat paying as rent a fixed quantity of paddy is a raiyat at fixed rent: Manmatha Nath v. Probodh Chandra, 73 I.C. 416, (Mookerjee and Rankin J.J.); see also Dinanath v. Sati Prasad, 36 C.L.J. 220, s. c., 27 C.W.N. 115, (Mookerjee and Chotzner J.J.).

A tenant whose rent is fixed in perpetuity is a raiyat at fixed rate: Satish Chandra v. Upendra Nath, 63 I.C. 592, (N. R. Chatterjea and Panton J.J.).

See notes under heading No. 6 and under ss. 18, 21 and 160.

4. Occupancy right under a Hindu widow:—An occupancy right acquired by a raiyat when an estate was in the hands of a Hindu widow cannot be questioned by a reversioner: Harmonoge v. Ganour, 37 I.C. 360 (Patna) Roe and Jwala Prasad J.J.

Under-
raiyat-
Right of
occupancy.

5. Whether an under-raiyat may also acquire a right of occupancy:—From the classification of tenants it seems that a raiyat can acquire an occupancy right and that an under-raiyat cannot do it.

But it appears from s. 183, ill. (2) that an under-raiyat cannot acquire a right of occupancy by custom or usage: See Rajah Peary Mohan v. Badal Chunder, 28 Cal. 205, s. c., 5 C.W.N. 310, this case was remanded for the determination of the question whether the defendant who was an under-raiyat could claim a right of occupancy. It also appears from sec. 113 that an under-raiyat may acquire a right of occupancy.

It was observed by Mookerjee J., in the case of Akhil Chunder v. Hossain Ali, 19 C.W.N. 246 that by a special usage or custom an under-raiyat might acquire a right of occupancy. See also the case of Isvar Sant v. Torendra, 42 C.L.J. 560 (Newbould & Graham J.J.). Fletcher J. (Shamsul Huda J., concurring) stated in the case of Gopal Mondal v. Tapai Sankhari, 46 Cal. 43, s. c., 22 C.W.N. 618, that the opinion expressed by Mookerjee J., seems to be in accordance with the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act. It was further decided in that case that an under-raiyat can acquire a right of occupancy by custom or usage, and on acquisition of such occupancy right continues to be an under-raiyat and is not liable to be ejected under s. 49 Bengal Tenancy Act.*

* From s. 113 and s. 183, illustration (2) it appears that the Act recognises right of occupancy in an under-raiyat, but the Act is silent as to the provisions which will apply to an under-raiyat (having a right of occupancy) in regard to enhancement, ejectment, transfer or succession and also as regards other matters. S. 183 provides that nothing in the Bengal Tenancy Act shall affect any custom, usage or customary right not inconsistent with or not expressly or by necessary implication modified or abolished by its provisions. Now, according to the classification of tenants in s. 4, one class excludes the other, and therefore occupancy raiyats who are a distinct class of tenants exclude the under-raiyats who are another class of tenants; so it is submitted that s. 183 excludes the idea of an under-raiyat with a right of occupancy; it is no

See notes under secs. 49, & 183.

A person who enters into possession of land under a Zuripeshghi lease, the primary object of the lease not being to create the relationship of landlord and tenant but to provide a security as between debtor and creditor, cannot acquire occupancy rights in the land during the period of the lease: Kharag Narayan v. Dwarka Prasad, 3 Pat. 465, s. c. A.I.R. 1924 Pat. 580, (Das and Ross J.J.). See notes under Preamble and s. 116: Ramjiram v. Bansi Rahut, 4 Pat. 89.

Zurpeshghi
lease.

6. Status of fixed raiyat and of occupancy raiyat in the same person :—According to the classification of tenants in this section it seems that a person cannot be both an occupancy raiyat and a fixed raiyat. According to the old law (Act X of 1859, and Act VIII B. C. of 1869) a fixed raiyat, if he was in possession of land for twelve years continuously as a raiyat, became an occupancy raiyat as well. In s. 37 of the Revenue-sale Law we find the words “fixed raiyat with right of occupancy.” According to s. 19 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, a person who had an occupancy right in respect to any land before the passing of this Act “shall have a right of occupancy in that land”; so, fixed raiyats, who had occupancy right before the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Act, are still occupancy raiyats, and consequently they are protected from ejectment by a purchaser at a sale for arrears of rent, inasmuch as an occupancy right is a protected interest under s. 161. See Ichhamoyi v. Kailas, 18 C.W.N. 358.

raiayat and occupancy raiayat in

Upon an interpretation of Secs. 20, 21 and 160 (f) of the B. T. Act of 1885 it has been held that after the passing of that Act, a person may have at the same time in respect of the same land a right of occupancy and also the right of a raiyat holding at a fixed rate. In other words the two status may exist in the same person at the same time even though the incidents of two kinds of holding may be diverse in character: Sarbeswar v. Bijoy Chand, 49 Cal. 280, s. c., 26 C.W.N. 15, s. c., 34 C.L.J. 233 (Sanderson, C. J. & Richardson J.). The status of a raiyat at a fixed rate can be satisfactorily or logically combined with that of an occupancy raiyat. The higher status would supersede so much of the lower as might be inconsistent doubt true that illustration (2) of s. 183 recognises right of occupancy in an under-raiyat, and that illustration assumes (and it is submitted wrongly assumes) that right is not inconsistent with the provisions of the Act. So, the illustration is against the provision of s. 183, and against the spirit of the other provisions of the Act. It is true that s. 113 speaks of an under-raiyat with a right of occupancy; but that part of the section was an addition by the Bengal Council long after passing of the Bengal Tenancy Act which is an Act of the India Council. The Bengal Council might have introduced the matter on account of the erroneous illustration of s. 183. [s. 113 occurs in chap. X of the Act, and in regard to the drafting of this chapter X which was enacted by Bengal Act III of 1898] Jenkins C. J. observes in the case of Umedulla v. Ramchandra, 14 C.W.N. 812 “of the careless drafting which mars this very important Act.”

No rule has been laid down anywhere as to what elements are necessary for an under-raiyat to acquire a right of occupancy by custom or usage.

Moreover, a right of occupancy is a creature of the statute and can only be acquired under ss. 20 and 21 of the Bengal Tenancy Act and the corresponding sections of Act X of 1859 (s. 6) and Act VIII B.C. of 1869. See notes under ss. 19, 21 and 48.

with it and either status might be used as a shield so far as it extended : Ibid.

A person who has already acquired an occupancy right does not by obtaining a grant of a fixed rent lose that occupancy right. Similarly a raiyat holding at a fixed rate from the inception of the tenancy may subsequently acquire a right of occupancy, e.g., by continuous occupancy, for twelve years so as to be protected under sec. 160 of the B. T. Act : Ibid.

The contrary view taken by Mukerjee, J. (Jenkins, C. J. not expressing any opinion) in Bhutnath v. Surendranath, 13 C.W.N. 1025, s. c., 11 C.L.J. 298) was considered to be obiter, and the cases of Abdul Gani v. Makbul, 42 Cal. 745, s. c., 20 C.W.N. 185, Lakhi v. Mokal Ali, 27 C.L.J. 293, Lakhi v. Hamid Ali, 27 C.L.J. 284 were discussed : Ibid.

In the case of Midnapur Zemindary Co. v. Sadhumoni, 54 Cal. 681 (Duval & Mitter J.J.), Sarbeswar v. Bijoy Chand, 49 Cal. 280 was followed, and the dictum of Mukerjee J. in Bhutnath v. Surendranath, 13 C.W.N. 1025 was not followed. See also Rajmohini v. Nagendra, 94 I.C. 310 (Suhrawardy & Mukerji, J.J.).

8. Status of under-raiyat when the raiyat acquires the superior right :—Where A was an under-raiyat under B, an occupancy raiyat, who purchases the superior tenure subsequently, held that A continued to be an under-raiyat : Akhil Chandra v. Hassan Ali, 19 C.W.N. 246 : see notes under s. 22.

Ticcadar.

9. Possession as a Ticcadar :—Possession as a ticcadar and not as a cultivating tenant does not confer occupancy right : Stonewigg v. Sheo Rachhaya, 35 I.C. 622 (Patna).

Sublessee by under-raiyat.

10. Tenants holding immediately or mediately under raiyats : cl. (3) of s. 4 :—The words “immediately or mediately” shew that an under-raiyat may also sublet and the sublessee is an under-raiyat.

5. (1) “Tenure-holder” means primarily a person who has acquired from a proprietor or from another tenure-holder a right to hold land for the purpose of collecting rents or bringing it under cultivation by establishing tenants on it, and includes also the successors in interest of persons who have acquired such a right.

(2) “Raiyat” means primarily a person who has acquired a right to hold land for the purpose of cultivating it by himself, or by members of his family or by hired servants, or with the aid of partners, and includes also the successors in interest of persons who have acquired such a right.

Explanation.—Where a tenant of land has the right to bring it under cultivation, he shall be deemed to have acquired a right to hold it for the purpose of cultivation, notwithstanding that he uses it for the purpose of gathering the produce of it or of grazing cattle on it.

(3) A person shall not be deemed to be a raiyat unless he holds land either immediately under a proprietor or immediately under a tenure-holder.

(4) In determining whether a tenant is a tenure-holder or a raiyat, the Court shall have regard to—

(a) local custom; and

(b) the purpose for which the right of tenancy was originally acquired.

(5) Where the area held by a tenant exceeds one hundred standard bighas, the tenant shall be presumed to be a tenure-holder until the contrary is shown.

I. Nature of Tenancy whether a question of law :—The question as to the nature of a tenancy is a question of law : Salatudass v. Jadunath, 8 C.W.N. 774 (F.B.) : also see Ramdyal v. Midnapur Zemindari Co., Ltd., 15 C.W.N. 26. According to Jenkins C. J., the Full Bench (Salatudass v. Jadunath, 8 C.W.N. 774) does not seem to lay down that when a question arises as to the nature of a tenancy all questions of fact which are necessary for the decision of that point can be dealt with in second appeal : Ramanuj v. Midnapur Zemindari Co., Ltd., 16 C.W.N. 725 (Jenkins C.J., N. Chatterjee J. concurring).

Nature of tenancy, a question of law.

The question whether a tenancy is to be regarded as one at will or one of a permanent nature is a matter in which a substantial question of law is involved : as to what inference may legitimately be drawn from the facts found is clearly a mixed question of fact and law : Surendra Nath Roy v. Dwarkanath Chakravarti, 44 Cal. 119, s. c., 21 C.W.N. 530 (Sanderson C.J. and Mookerjee J.).

The question whether a tenure was permanent or not is not merely one of fact: Pradyot Kumar v. Sarat Chandra, 21 C.W.N. 809.

Though a substantial question of law may, and generally does arise in determining whether the tenant is a raiyat or a tenure holder, the point depends ultimately on questions of fact: Tarini Singh v. Satnarain, 6 Pat. L.T. 787, s. c. 90 I.C. 895, s. c. A.I.R. 1926 (Pat.) 190 (Dawson-Miller C. J. and McPherson J.). The case of Rajani Kant v. The Secretary of State, 45 I.A. 190, s. c., 46 Cal. 90, s. c., 23 C.W.N. 649 referred to.

A question as to the nature of a tenancy is a question of law and may be dealt with in second appeal and the High Court is entitled to draw its own conclusions and inferences as to the legal incidents of the tenancy in order to judge the character of the tenancy and the status of the tenant: Jogesh Chandra Roy v. Tazar Ali, 85 I.C. 757 (Per Mukerji J., Walmsley, J. agreeing).

2. Tenure-Holder or Raiyat:—Whether a person is a tenure-holder or a raiyat depends on questions of fact; one must look to the attendant circumstances to judge of the purpose: * Rajani Kant v. The Secretary of State, 45 I.A. 190, s. c., 46 Cal. 90 (P.C.), s. c., 23 C.W.N. 649 (P.C.); (affirming the decision of the Calcutta High Court—Chitty and Teunon J.J.); in this case the tenant reclaimed the land in order to make money out of it by letting land to cultivators; the original tenant was not a cultivator; he was by caste a Kayestha, by occupation a petty Government official, when he took the land originally there was no tenant on the land; at some later date actual cultivation was being done by peasants who paid rent to the original tenant; upon these or other facts the High Court held that the tenancy was a tenure and not a raiyati holding. The Privy Council affirmed the decision of the High Court.

Though reclamation of the whole jote by the settlement holders and cultivation by their own ploughs may not be absolutely inconsistent, it is entirely contrary to experience in this province in cases where the tenancy is a tenure or the tenant proposes to settle raiyats upon the land and become a rent receiver, more specially where the settlement holder belongs to an agricultural caste or tribe: Tarini Singh v. Satnarain, 6 Pat. L.T. 787; s. c. 90 I.C. 895.

The judgment of Field J. in Durga Prasanna Ghose v. Kali Das Dutt, 9 C.L.R. 449 does not support the proposition that the definition of "raiya" and tenure-holder given in the Bengal Tenancy Act did not reproduce the meaning which they had previously borne: Rajani Kant v. The Secretary of State, 46 Cal. 90 s. c., 23 C.W.N. 649 (P.C.) (affirming the decision of the Calcutta High Court—Chitty and Teunon J.J.).

Original purpose for which the land is let out determines the nature of the tenancy: Beni v. Trailakhya, A.I.R. 1922 Pat. 425 (Jwala Prasad and Bucknill J.J.).

The word thika was held to mean the creation of a tenancy, and mokra to mean mokurari i.e. rent fixed in perpetuity: Rishikesh v. Satis, A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 123. (The document was written in Oriya character).

* The case of Debendra Nath v. Bibudhendra, 45 I.A. 72, s. c., 45 Cal. 803, s. c., 22 C.W.N. 674, s. c., 27 C.L.J. 543 was relied on.

The status of a tenant may be determined by subsequent conduct if the terms of the creation of the tenancy cannot be proved by direct evidence: Abkaipada v. Ator Dome, A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 294 (Newbould J.). See also Kazemani v. Manik Chandra, A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 156 (C. C. Ghose and Panton J.J.).

A kabuliyat by a tenure-holder to his own landlord is no evidence as to status of his own under-tenant: Bhajan v. Balai, A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 375.

3. Definition of tenure-holder not exhaustive :—The definition of a tenure-holder does not seem to be exhaustive; the occupants of the land from whom rent is to be collected must occupy lands used for agricultural or horticultural purposes.—Umrao Bibi v. Syed Mahomed, 27 Cal. 205, s. c., 4 C.W.N. 76. See also Durga Sundari v. Umdatunnessa, 18 W.R. 234, s. c., 9 C.L.R. 10. See also Mahesh Jha v. Manbharan, 5 C.L.J. 522.

Definition of tenure-holder not exhaustive.

The definition of "tenure-holder" merely formulates the pre-existing law and the insertion of the words "bringing it (the land) under cultivation by establishing tenants on it" introduced no change in the law: The Secretary of State v. Jadav Chandra, 21 C.W.N. 452; see also The Secretary of State v. Gobind Prashad, 21 C.W.N. 505.

Pre-existing law.

4. Definition of raiyat not exhaustive :—The definition of raiyat is not exhaustive, and it seems that a tenant holding land for horticultural purposes is not excluded by it: Hurry Ram v. Nursingh, 21 Cal. 129; Umrao Bibi v. Syed Mahomed, 4 C.W.N. 76: s. c., 27 Cal. 205. Neither the definition of tenure-holder nor the definition of raiyat is exhaustive: Mahesh Jha v. Manbharan, 5 C.L.J. 522.

Definition of tenure-holder not exhaustive.

The word "raiya" does not necessarily indicate a jote within the meaning of the B. T. Act: Safarali v. Abdul Majid, 47 C.L.J. 27 (Duval & Mitter J.J.).

5. Is a Putni tenure governed by the Bengal Tenancy Act :—See notes under the Preamble heading No. 10.

6. Intermediate interest between a Zemindari and a Putni :—In the case of Raj Kumar v. Probal Chandra, 9 C.W.N. 656, it has been decided that an intermediate interest can be created between a Zemindari and a Putni. Also see Madhusudan v. Devendranath, 7 C.L.J. notes portion, p. 23.

Intermediate interest between a Zemindari and a Putni.

It is submitted with great respect to the learned Judges who decided this case that the decision is contrary to the spirit of law. Having regard to the provisions of the Putni Regulation it appears that there cannot be any intermediate tenure between a Zemindari and Putni. So, where a Zemindar grants a lease above a Putni, it should be construed to be only an assignment of the rent payable to the Zemindar and there is no relationship of landlord and tenant between the so-called lessee and the Putnidar.

These decisions are contrary to the spirit of Reg. VIII of 1819.

It has been held in Jaroakumari v. Hanifuddin, 14 C.W.N. 389 that a zamindar cannot lawfully create a permanent tenure between his own interest and a putni taluk of the first degree: (Caspersz & Doss J.J.); but this view of the law has been dissented from by Carnduff & Richardson J.J. in unreported SA. No. 2694 of 1913, Nilambar Ghosh v. Mir Maha Chanuddin, decided on the 2nd January 1914: see notes at p. 4.

7. Creation of Intermediate Tenure between two interests, or concurrent leases :—A zemindar or tenure-holder who carves out a tenure is competent to interpose between himself and his tenant an intermediate holder who may realise the rent payable to himself by his original tenant ; but he cannot prejudice the position of the first tenant, take away or destroy the value or effect of the prior interest or limit its extent : Johur Mull v. Jatindra Nath, 34 C.L.J. 79 J. 163, (Richardson and Suhrawardy J.J.) The case of Ramkanai v. Fakir, 8 C.W.N. 438, was followed.

Occupancy right under a trespasser.

8. Raiyat : Acquired a right to hold land : Tenancy under a Trespasser :—When a person acquires a right to hold land bona fide from one whom he bona fide believes to have the right to let him into possession of the land, he is a raiyat, although the person under whom he holds may be a trespasser : Binad Lal Pakrasi v. Kalu Pramanick, 20 Cal. 708 (F.B.) ; Mohima Chunder v. Hazari, 17 Cal. 45. A raiyat who occupies land for a period of 12 years acquires a right of occupancy therein, whether the person under whom he holds has any title to the land or not : Sreemutty Zulfun v. Radhika, 3 Cal. 560, S.C. 1 C.L.J. 388 : Ameer v. Sheo Sahai, 19 W.R. 338—Peary Mohon v. Radhika Mohan, 8 C.W.N. 315 and Upendra v. Pratab, 8 C.W.N. 320, where the case of Binad Lal v. Kalu Pramanik, 20 Cal. 708 (F.B.), has been discussed and distinguished : also see Madhu v. Sabar Ali, 14 C.W.N. 681 at p. 685.

Binad Lal Pakrasi case discussed and distinguished.

The rule laid down in the case of Binad Lal Pakrasi, is based upon the assumption, that the tenant entered upon the land and held under a de-facto proprietor who might not be the real owner in good faith ; when that element is wanting, the rule laid down there does not apply : Peary Mohan v. Radhika Mohan, 8 C.W.N. 315 ; (on Letters Patent appeal) 5 C.L.J. 9. It is a general principle of law that no one can confer upon another person any right in property which is not his own ; this is the general rule and cases like that of Binad Lal Pakrasi are exceptions to the general rule : Ibid. The law as laid down in the case of Binad Lal Pakrasi made a great encroachment on the strict law : Upendra v. Pratab, 4 C.W.N. 320.

The principle of the decision in Binod Lal Pakrasi only applies where raiyats are settled upon land by a person in defacto possession as landlord who is afterwards found to have no title. It is not applicable in every boundary dispute or in every case where a question of parcel and no parcel arises : Tepu Mahammad v. Tefayet Mahammad, 19 C.W.N. 722, (Richardson and Mullick J.J.). This case was followed in Mohesh Chandra v. Hemendranath, 46 C.L.J. 575 (Mitter J., Rankin C.J., agreeing, June 24, 1927). The question as to whether a settlement bona fide or not depends on the circumstance as to whether the settlement was taken from a person who although was ultimately found to have no title, was at any rate in actual possession of the lands in suit : Ibid.

The principle of the decision in Binad Lal's case should not be extended so as to affect the application of the doctrine of lis pendens ; Madan Mohan v. Raj Kishori, 20 C.W.N. 88, but tenants who were settled on the land by the mortgagor before the mortgage suit, but after the mortgage, can keep their lands against a mortgagee purchaser upon proof that the leases in their favour were granted on the usual terms in the ordinary course of management: Ibid; the burden of proof is upon the leases: Ibid. Want of good faith either on the part of the lessor or the lessee makes the rule in the case of Binad Lal inapplicable: Krishnanath v. Muhomed Wafiz, 21 C.W.N. 93, s.c., 23 C.L.J. 563; the principle cannot be applied to the case of a person who took a lease from the owner after his interest had been sold in execution of a decree: Ibid.

The principle in the case of Binad Lal is an encroachment upon the ordinary rule of law that a grantor is not competent to confer upon the grantee a better title than he himself possesses and must be cautiously applied and is not to be extended: Ibid.

Where a person took a lease of land (partly jungle and partly waste) from one of several co-owners and afterwards that land fell in the exclusive share of another co-sharer in the partition of the parent estate, held that the lessee was a tenant of the latter, and his position was not worse than what it would have been, if he in good faith accepted settlement from a trespasser in actual occupation of the land: Dakhayani v. Mono Raut, 19 C.W.N. 407.

A raiyat who has occupied and cultivated land for more than 12 years under a landlord who has no title to the land, acquires a right of occupancy under s. 6 of Act X of 1859 and Act VIII (B.C.) of 1869: Brajobasi v. Ram Sankar, 23 C.L.J. 638.

Where a raiyat entered into possession illegally under a Ticca. thikkadar, and after the expiry of the thikka, the superior landlord took no step to eject him, held that by lapse of time the raiyat acquired occupancy right: Sheogobind v. Mahipal, [1924 Pat.] 191, s.c., 81 I.C. 321, (Mullick and Bucknill J.J.); the case of Binad Lal v. Kalu 20 Cal. 708 was relied on and the case of Jogendra v. Kesho Prasad, 77 I.C. 929 distinguished.

9. Certain terms: It is well-known that the word "raiyyat" Raiyat. is loosely used as synonymous to praja (i.e., a tenant).

The word "raiyyat" does not necessarily mean an agricultural tenant. It is often used in the mofussil in its wider sense as meaning a tenant in general. A lessee of a piece of homestead land is ordinarily a tenant and not a raiyat: Bidhumukhi v. Gobinda, 42 C.L.J. 78 (Chakravarty, J., Cuming, J., agreeing).

It has also been held that the word "raiyyat" is sometimes used in official documents to mean tenants in general: The Secretary of State v. Jadav Chandra, 21 C.W.N. 452, (Teunon and Chaudhuri J.J.), casual mention of the tenants as 'raiyyats' in judgments in suits in which no issue had been framed or question raised as to the status of the tenants cannot be regarded as recognition by courts of the tenants' status as raiyyats: Ibid.

The word "praja" means a tenant: The Secretary of State v. Praja. Gobind, 21 C.W.N. 505.

A Korfa tenant is not necessarily an under-tenant of a raiyat; Korfa. he is a sub-lessee, whether of a talukdar or of a raiyat: The Secretary of State v. Jadav Chandra, 21 C.W.N. 452; see also Emoduddin v. Danesh, 39 I.C. 240 (Fletcher and Richardson J.J.).

A Chukani jama in the district of Rungpur is a raiyati lease-hold Chukani which may develop into occupancy right: Jogendra Nath v. Chandra Kumar, 42 Cal. 28 (Holmwood and Chapman J.J.). "The chukanidars too have often raiyyats under them, and in some cases, especially in the larger jotes there are four or more degrees before you get to the actual cultivator" (Report of the Rent Commission in 1876: (see 42 Cal. 28 at p. 32).

Jote.

The description of a property as a jote does not necessarily shew that it is not a tenure: Syed Nawab Ali v. Hemanta Kumari, 8 C.W.N. 117.

The word "Jote" does not necessarily mean the interest of a cultivator: Rajani Kanta v. Yusuf Ali, 21 C.W.N. 188 (N. Chatterjea and Richardson J.J.).

'Jote' is a general term and is not equivalent to 'raiyaati jote': Midnapur Zemindary Co. v. Naresh Narain Ray, 48 I.A. 49, s. c., 48 Cal. 460 (P.C.), see also Krishnendra v. Kusum, 76 I.C. 324.

It is undoubtedly open to strangers to shew that, although the tenancy is described as a jote, its real character is that of a tenure. (Per Mookerjee, J., Teunon, J., concurring), Promatha Nath v. Nilmani, 14 C.L.J. 38 at p. 42.

Mahal.

The word "Mahal" is not used in connection with the interest of a raiyat: Rajani Kantha v. Yusuf Ali, 21 C.W.N. 188.

"Without right jote mahal."

Where in a kabuliyat the description was in the words "without right jote mahal", held that it was not clear to shew that the tenant admitted that the lessor was a raiyat: Ibid.

*Bhadro-
cultivation.*

".....the fact that the plaintiffs are bhadrologues, does not by itself shew that the lands were not acquired for the purpose of cultivation, as most bhadralogues in the village in this country carry on cultivation by servants or labourers..." Ibid (Per N. Chatterjea, J., p. 191, col. 2, bottom.)

Sarasari.

Whether the word "Sarasari" refers to the variability of the rent or the nature of the tenancy is one of construction: Pradyat Kumar v. Sarat Chandra, 21 C.W.N. 809.

Bhagchasis.

Bhagchasis are not necessarily tenants. Kedar Mondal v. Ahod Ali Molla, 14 C.W.N. 629, see also Kumeda Prasanna v. The Secretary of State, 19 C.W.N. 1017. See notes at p. 6.

Bargadar.

As to whether a bargadar is a tenant, see notes under the preamble at p.p. 5 and 6.

Noabad.

A Noabad Mehal implies a hereditary and transferable title in perpetuity subject to payment of rent for all lands under cultivation: Jogesh Chandra v. The Secretary of State, 18 C.W.N. 531. A Noabad taluk may or may not be a permanently settled taluk: Ashraf Ali v. Karam Ali, 22 C.W.N. 1025; see also Maqbul Ahmod v. Hara Gobinda, 8 C.L.J. 470. See notes under Sec. 3.

Sarbarkari.

On a construction of a patta creating a sarbarakari jama whereby the grantee was conferred the power to realise the rents &c., payable by the putnidars and sue the latter on behalf of the grantor and using the grantor's name, held that it did not create any interest in land as that of a tenure-holder but only a personal obligation between the grantor and the grantee: Jaroa Kumari v. Hanifuddin, 14 C.W.N. 389.

Kaimi and mokurari.

For the meaning of the word "Kaimi" see notes under s. 18 and for the meaning of the word mokurari see notes under s. 179.

Kayemi: Where a raiyat in granting a sub-lease describes himself as a Kayemi raiyat he thereby necessarily does not imply that he is a fixed raiyat: Nadiram v. Srinath, 24 C.W.N. 93.

Where a tenure was recorded as Kaimi and not mokrari it was Kaimi. held that the landlord was entitled to enhance the rent: Broja Das v. Bankim Chandra, 51 Cal. 454.

The expression "Kaimi Mourashi raiyati" in a lease of homestead land means a permanent heritable tenancy of homestead land. Bidhumukhi v. Govinda, 42 C.L.J. 78, (Chakravatry, J., Cuming, J. agreeing.)

'Mahatran' is heritable, transferable and non-resumable grant: 'Mahatran.' Pratap Chandra v. Raja Jogadish Chandra, 40 C.L.J. 331.

The term "itnam" as applied to the permanently settled area in Chittagong imports a permanent, heritable and transferable tenure; and it is well settled that the word "taluk" primarily imports permanency: Jogesh Chandra v. Mokhal, 25 C.W.N. 857. A grant for an indefinite term enures at least for the life time of the grantee: Ibid. See notes under Sec. 6. Itnam.

"Ticca" tenancy means interests which are not permanent: 'Ticca.' Manmatha Nath v. Anath Bandhu, 23 C.W.N. 201.

The word "borokta" used in a kabuliyat means in due and proper time" and does not import any fixity as to rent: Bisseswar v. Braja Kanta, 33 C.L.J. 296, s.c., 62 I.C. 49. 'Borokta.'

10. Agricultural purpose:—See notes under the heading No. 9, Agricultural and non-agricultural leases, pp. 7 to 9.

11. Presumption: Cl. (5) is a provision not of substantive but adjective law; Jagabandhu v. Magnamayi, 44 Cal. 555, s.c., 24 C.L.J. 363, s. c., 22 C.W.N. 89; the presumption applies to tenancies created under the old law, Ibid; the fact that a tenancy has been subdivided into two tenancies before the Bengal Tenancy Act would not prevent the application of Cl. (5): Ibid. This clause is not restricted in its application to suits or proceedings between landlords and tenants under the Act; Ibid. Cl. (5)—adjective law.

The presumption arising under Sec. 5 (5) of the B.T. Act, 1885 applies to all cases whether the interest was created before or after the Act was passed: Balunki Rout v. Kunja Behari, I.L.R. 6 Pat 698 (F.B.).

The law assumes that "ordinarily a larger area than 100 bighas would make cultivation by the personal agency of the tenant improbable. The presumption provided in sub-sec. (5) of s. 5 is founded on that hypothesis": Debendra v. Bibhudendra, (Per Right Hon'ble Mr. Ameer Ali): 45 I.A. 72, s. c., 45 Cal 803, s. c., 22 C.W.N. 674, s. c., 27 C.L.J. 543 at p. 546. Assumption that tenure consists of a larger area than 100 bighas.

The presumption under s. 5 sub-sec. (5) is a rebuttable one: Dalglish v. Damodar, 8 C.L.J. 533. There is no provision in cl. (5) of sec. (5) or the Bengal Tenancy Act that when the area held by a tenant is less than 100 bighas, the tenant is to be presumed a raiyat until the contrary is shown: Tara Nath v. Iswar Chandra, 16 C.W.N. 398. Presumption rebuttable.

In order to determine whether the presumption under Sec. 5 is rebutted the real and the true test is to see for what purposes the tenancy was created, and where the lease is equivocal the attendant circumstances have to be looked to to judge of the purpose for which the tenancy was created: Karuna v. Secretary of State, 100 I.C. 466, s. c., A.I.R. (1927) Cal, 413. Duval and Mitter J.J.).

The presumption under cl. (5) is not rebutted by shewing that a tenant has reserved a portion of the land to be cultivated by himself or by his servants: Bibhudendra v. Debendra, 20 C.L.J. 140 (Sanderson C. J. and Mookerjee, J.) ; affirmed in P.C., 45 I.A. 72 s. c., 45 Cal. 803).

Presumption when not applicable.

Area in excess of statutory limit.

The presumption laid down in sub-sec. (5) is not applicable when the terms of the original grant are known: Secretary of State v. Digambar, 27 C.L.J. 334.

Where the land held in tenancy was from the first in excess of the statutory limit it was held that the tenants were not raiyats within the meaning of this Act: Bengal Indigo Co. v. Raghubar Das, 23 I.A. 158 s. c., 1 C.W.N. 83 (P. C.). This case was distinguished in the Privy Council case of Damodar v. Dalglish, 38 Cal. 432 on the ground that in the latter case there was no finding of fact to rebut the presumption under s. 5 cl. (5).

Jote not necessarily a raiyati holding.

The description of a property as a jote does not necessarily shew that it is not a tenure and that it is simply an ordinary cultivating "jote" or holding. If the area of a jote exceeds one hundred bighas, the presumption in the Bengal Tenancy Act should be applied under which, until the contrary is shown, the holding must be regarded as a tenure: Nawab Ali v. Hamanta Kumari, 8 C.W.N. 117 ; see also Gokul v. Pudmanund, 29 I.A. 196 s. c., 29 Cal. 707. If the area of a jote exceeds one hundred bighas the presumption should be applied that it is a tenure: Nawab Ali v. Hemanta Kumari, 8 C.W.N. 117.

It is undoubtedly open to strangers to shew that, although the tenancy is described as a jote its real character is that of a tenure Promatha Nath v. Nilmani, 14 C.L.J. 38 at p. 42.

Area exceeding 100 bighas, if conclusive evidence of tenancy being a tenure.

The words of s. 5 cl. (5) afford no ground for holding that the fact that the land exceeds 100 bighas is not conclusive evidence that the tenancy is a tenure ; in cases of this description the final determination depends upon the facts as disclosed in each case ; Midnapur Zemindary Co. v. Sham Lal Mitra, 15 C.W.N. 218.

Second appeal.

Intention of the Full Bench in regard to a question as to the nature of a tenancy.

Where the lower Appellate court held that the presumption under sec. 5, cl. (5) of the Bengal Tenancy Act that a holding comprising an area of more than 100 bighas of land was a tenure and not a raiyati holding had not been displaced by the contrary being shown, held—that it was not open to the High Court in second appeal to interfere with the finding of the lower Appellate Court that the holding was a tenure: Ramanuj v. The Midnapur Zemindari Co., 16 C.W.N. 725. "I do not think that it was the intention of the Full Bench in the case of Sulatu v. Jadu Nath, 8 C.W.N. 774 to lay down that when a question arises as to the nature of a tenancy questions of fact which are necessary for the decision of that point can be dealt in second appeal." Ibid. The presumption contained in s. 5 sub-sec. (5) arises even in the case of tenancy created before the Act came into force ; the test of a raiyati interest is to see in what condition that land was when the tenancy was created: Khatajan Bewa v. Aswini Mohan, 9 C.L.J. 82 notes.

In a reclamation lease, the area of the land being 2,000 bighas, the grantee was to bring the lands under cultivation at a progressive rent and he was to enjoy the profits of the lands by bringing them under cultivation either by himself or by making settlements with tenants, held that the grantee was a raiyat: Secretary of State v. Digambar, 27 C.L.J. 334.

Where a prajagiri settlement was made of land far in excess of 100 bighas and the full rent was payable after a period, held that the presumption was that the lease was a tenure and was not negated by the fact that the lessee undertook to reclaim the jungles: The Secretary of State v. Gobind Prashad, 21 C.W.N. 505. Prajagiri settlement.

Where a jumma which consisted of more than 100 bighas of land and was entered in the record of rights, held that the presumption was rebutted by shewing that the holding was originally created at its inception for cultivating purposes although the lands were in the possession of bhagchasis (who are not necessarily tenants): Kumeda Prosunna v. The Secretary of State, 19 C.W.N. 1017. Origin of tenancy.

Where a ticcadar took a lease of lands exceeding 100 bighas in area "to cultivate by sowing indigo or other crops either by means of khas cultivation or through tenants, held that it was a tenure: H. Manners v. Harihar Koer, 19 C.W.N. 149. Ticcadar.

A tenure-holder does not become a raiyat with regard to all land that comes into his direct possession, because the lease authorises him to cultivate these lands: Ibid. Tenure holder—raiya.

12. Standard bigha : One standard bigha is equal to 14,400 square feet or 1,600 square yards—100 bighas are therefore equal to 33 acres (an acre being considered to be equal to 4,840 square yards. Standard Bigha.

13. Tenant of homestead land under a raiyat : See notes at p. 8 and also under sec. 182.

14. Original purpose for which tenancy is created : Nature of tenancy : In determining the status of a tenant, the court must not, when the terms of a lease are ambiguous, confine its attention solely to the terms of the lease, but must also consider the evidence or surrounding circumstances and the subsequent conduct of the parties in regard to the subject matter of the lease: Midnapur Zemindari Co. v. Bamapada Roy, 13 C.L.J. 485. Original purpose of tenancy.

In construing the terms of a deed, the question is not what the parties may have intended, but what is the meaning of the words which they used: Manindra Chandra v. Durga Prasad, 21 C.W.N. 707.

Where the language of a written instrument is clear reference is permissible for its interpretation to the conduct of the parties: Rohim Buksh v. Shajed Ahmad, 19 C.W.N. 1311. Construction of deed—conduct.

In deciding the question of the character of a tenancy not only the origin but also the subsequent conduct of the parties should be taken into consideration: Midnapur Zemindary Co. Ltd. v. Sham Lal Mitter, 15 C.W.N. 218. Where the original area of the lands was considerably more than what could be cultivated by the tenant himself or by members of his family or hired labour and the tenant was not a member of the cultivator class, and where subsequent settlements were also of large areas and the total area held by the tenants exceeded 1300 bighas, held that those circumstances led to the conclusion that those lands were taken for the purpose of settling tenants on them and that the lease was a tenure: Ibid. Where a lease stated that "you shall enjoy the jungle land on bringing the same under cultivation and causing the same to be held Area exceeding statutory limit.

meaning of. in jote by other persons (আবাদ করিয়া ও জোতাইয়া) held, that there is nothing in these words to render it improbable that the intention was that the land should be brought under cultivation by establishing tenants thereon: Ibid.

Rule of law in the case of Midnapur Zemindari Co. too broadly laid down.

Subsequent conduct of, the tenants, if it alters the nature of tenancy.

Rule laid down by N. Chatterjee, J.

Ambiguous terms of lease.

Land cultivated by subtenants.

Cultivation Tenure—holder.

Reclamation lease.

True test to determine

The rule of law stated in the case of the Midnapur Zemindari Co. 15 C.W.N. 218, that in deciding the question of the character of a holding, not only the origin of the tenancy, but also the subsequent conduct of the parties should be taken into consideration, is, according to the opinion of Mookerjee and Teunon J.J., (15 C.W.N. 902, footnote), too comprehensively formulated, and one of the cases (Midnapur Zemindari Co. v. Bamapada Ray, 13 C.L.J. 485) upon which reliance was placed by the learned judges deciding the case in 15 C.W.N. 218 does not furnish any authority for the proposition. According to Mookerjee and Teunon J.J., in the case in 15 C.W.N. 902, s. c., 14 C.L.J. 38 where the terms of the original grant are unambiguous, it cannot be laid down as an invariable proposition of law that the nature of the tenancy is necessarily altered by the subsequent conduct of the parties. Their Lordships further say "It would be very difficult to hold, that by subsequent conduct of the parties the nature of the tenancy might be altered to the detriment of the under-tenants." All these cases were discussed by N. Chatterjee J., (Pramada Nath v. Asiruddin, 15 C.W.N. 896 at p. 905, 20th June, 1911) and his Lordship lays down this Rule:—I think that it is only in cases where the terms of the lease creating the tenancy are ambiguous or in cases where there is no written lease and it is not clear what the original purpose of tenancy was that the courts should look into the subsequent conduct and surrounding circumstances to determine the nature of the tenancy. Any other view may lead to anomalous results.

Where the terms of the original grant are ambiguous or the terms upon which the tenancy was created cannot be proved by direct evidence, the subsequent conduct of the parties may be considered with a view to determine the nature of the tenancy: Bamapada Ray v. Midnapur Zemindari Co., 16 C.L.J. 322 (Mookerjee and Beachcroft J.J.). Where it was found that a considerable portion of the land was brought under cultivation not by the defendants but by tenants settled by them on the land: held, that the defendants were tenure-holders and that the tenancy in its inception was created for agricultural purposes: Ibid; see also Durga Prasanno v. Kalidas, (1881) 9 C.L.R. 449 and Laidly v. Gour Gobinda, (1885) 11 Cal. 501.

It is possible for a person to be a tenure-holder although a part of the land in his occupation is cultivated by himself, and was intended to be cultivated by himself: Bibhudendra v. Debendra, 20 C.L.J. 140 (Sanderson C. J., and Mookerjee J.), (affirmed in P. C., 45 I.A. 72 s. c., 45 Cal. 803. That a tenure-holder may retain lands in his own possession will appear from cl. (4) of s. 7.

Where by the terms of amalnamas the grantees were authorised to "enter upon and by cutting jungle and otherwise to reclaim the lands, held that the leases were reclamation leases as may be granted to actual cultivators or to middlemen—but the terms relating to subsequent re-newals suggested that the tenancies were regarded as tenures: The Secretary of State v. Jadav Chandra, 21 C.W.N. 452.

The true test to determine the question is to see in what condition the land was when the tenancy was created; if raiyats were already in possession of the land and the interest created was a right not to the actual physical possession of the land, but to collect rents from those raiyats, that is not a raiyati interest: Pramatha v. Nilmoni, 14 C.L.J. 38, s. c., 15 C.W.N. 902 footnote, (Mookerjee and Teunon J.J. February, 1911). Where the plaintiffs purchased a tenancy at a sale held in execution of a decree for arrears of rent and after their purchase executed a kabuliyat (lease) in favour of their superior landlords, the nature of the tenancy must be determined primarily with reference to the lease, Ibid; when a lease recited that there were resident tenants on the land demised, that it was a lease for a term of 12 years and yet was regarded as temporary tenancy and that the lessee was to hold the land either in khas or by letting it out to tenants, held, that each of these three elements serves to indicate that the interest created in favour of the lessees was that of tenure-holders, Ibid. Subsequent conduct, while it may throw light upon the nature and origin of a tenancy, cannot be taken to affect its terms: Ibid.

The cases of Promotha v. Nilmani, 14 C.L.J. 38, Promada v. Asiruddin, 15 C.W.N. 896 and Bamapada v. Midnapur Zemindary Co., 16 C.L.J. 322 were considered in the case of Secretary of State v. Digambar, 27 C.L.J. 334 and it was held by Mookerjee and Walmsley J.J., that in cases where the origin of the tenancy is unknown the mode of user of the land may furnish a valuable clue to determine the original purpose of the tenancy and where the terms of the grant are ambiguous, evidence of conduct subsequent may also be admissible.

The mere fact that a tenant has sublet his lands, does not by itself establish conclusively that he is a tenure holder, the intention of the parties is to be looked at: Ibid. Where a tenancy was originally created for cultivating purposes at its inception (the area was more than a hundred bighas), and the lands were in the possession of bhagchasis, held that bhagchasis were not necessarily tenants and the tenancy was a raiyati holding and not a tenure: Kumeda Prosanna v. The Secretary of State, 19 C.W.N. 1017.

Effect of subletting.

A tenancy which was originally created for the purpose of cultivation and not collection of rent was partly held niz-jote and partly let out to tenants, held that this did not change the original character of the grant (which was raiyati) even in respect of the portion let out: Baidya Nath v. Sudharam, 8 C.W.N. 517.

Land held as niz-jote and also through sub-tenants.

There is nothing to prevent the landlord and tenant notwithstanding the existence of an unambiguous lease to alter the original nature of a tenancy by agreement, and there may possibly be cases where subsequent conduct may be set up as evidence of such agreement; but where no such agreement is set up and it is clearly proved that the land was originally acquired by the tenant for cultivating it by himself or by hired seryants or by members of his family the character of the tenancy is not affected by the mere fact that land was subsequently let out to tenants: Pramada Nath v. Asiruddin, 15 C.W.N. 896 at p. 905 (Per N. Chatterjea, J.).

Subsequent express or implied agreement altering the nature of the tenancy.

If at the inception of a certain tenancy it was not a middleman's interest, subsequent letting out of the lands would not convert the nature of the tenancy: Mrittunjoy v. Kenatullah, 5 C.L.J. 53 see notes under s. 181.

Tenancy originally for cultivation,

"S. 5 of the Bengal Tenancy Act defines the status of a tenure-holder as also of a raiyat, but neither the definition of a tenure-if may be converted

holder nor that of a raiyat, as has been repeatedly held is exhaustive, and nothing has been shewn to us to lead us to the conclusion that a person who may have originally acquired a large tract of land ostensibly with the object of cultivating it himself or by his servants or members of his family, may not afterwards convert himself, so far as third parties are concerned, into a rent-receiver and give those persons as against himself the right to remain upon the land without being liable to be ejected at his instance." Per Ameer Ali, J. (Pratt, J., concurring): Mahesh Jha v. Maubhaan, 5 C.L.J. 522, at p. 526. No principle has been laid down in this case which may have the effect of binding the landlord.

Where a raiyat treats his holding as a tenure and lets the land to tenants, held that as between the lessor and the lessee the land may be taken to have been acquired for the purpose as stated in the lease but it is open to a person who is no party to the contract to shew the real purpose of the tenancy: Rajani Kanta v. Yusuf Ali, 21 C.W.N. 188; (Per N. Chatterjea J.).

Where at the inception of the lease the character of the tenancy is raiya, it is not altered to a tenure if subsequently it is let out to tenants; Ibid. See also Kulwant v. Babu Ram, 43 I.C. 940 (Patna case.)

tenancy

Where the origin of the tenancy is not known or the terms of the documents are ambiguous, what has to be considered is the attendant circumstances and in such a case the method in which the tenancy has been and is enjoyed can also be considered in order to come to a proper solution of the question relating to the tenure; Lal Ghosh v. Nilkantha, A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 340, (Walmsley and Mukerji J.J.).

The presumption arising under sec. 5 (5) of the Bengal Tenancy Act though of considerable importance in a case where the origin of the tenancy is not known, is of little consequence where the terms of grant are known and are not ambiguous. In cases where the terms of the grant are equivocal, the Court must rely upon the attendant circumstances and evidence of subsequent conduct is also admissible: Jogesh Chandra Roy v. Tazar Ali, 85 I.C. 757 (Per Mukherji, J., Walmsley, J., agreeing).

15. Burgadar. As to whether a burgadar is a tenant, see notes at pp. 5, 6.

When the origin of the tenancy is not known evidence of the mode of dealing with the land demised and the acts and conditions of the parties generally constitute the evidence as to the status of the tenant: Makhan Lal v. Arun Bala, A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 465.

Where in a patta there was a stipulation that the tenancy will be heritable and that there will be excess rent assessed upon excess area, held that this stipulation alone is not sufficient to establish that the tenancy is a tenancy at a fixed rent: Eshaque Sheikh v. Matilal, 81 I.C. 1043, s. c., A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 294. The cases of Golam Rahaman v. Gurudas, 38 C.L.J. 350; Bhairab Chandra v. Midnapore Zemindary Co., 38 C.L.J. 372, Surja Prasad v. Midnapore Zemindary Co., 38 C.L.J. 369 were discussed. See notes under s. 3, cl. (5) and also Hargobind v. Keshwa Prasad, [1924 Pat.] p. 297.

16. Zuripeshgi Lease: A zuripeshgi lease is not a mere contract for the cultivation of the land let, but it is also intended to constitute a real and valid security to the tenant for the principal sums which he advances and interest thereon; the tenant's possession is, in part at least not that of cultivator merely but that of creditor operating repayment of the debt, by means of security and therefore a right of occupancy cannot be created.—Bengal Indigo Co. v. Raghubur Das, 23 I.A. 158; s. c., 24 Cal. 272; s. c., 1 C.W.N. 83 (P. C.), where the plaintiff granted to the defendants a zuripeshgi pattah which provided for a lease for five years, and that the whole of the rent for that period was to be taken by the zuripeshgidar on account of the profits of their zuripeshgi with the exception of one rupee which was to be paid yearly to the proprietors; and that if the zuripeshgi money was not paid at the end of five years, the zuripeshgidars would remain in possession until payment, it was held that this did not create a raiyati holding—Ram Khelawan v. Sambhoo, 2 C.W.N. 758. Neither of these cases is authority, for the proposition that a raiyat by taking a zuripeshgi lease of land of which he was previously or then put in possession as a raiyat, loses his raiyati status or divest himself of his right to acquire a right of occupancy in the land: Ramdhari v. Hill Mackenzie, 10 C.W.N. 351.

It was held in the Privy Council case of Damodar v. Dalglish, 38, Cal. 432 that the tenant's possession under a zuripeshgi lease which merely provided for a part of the rent to be paid in advance—there being no stipulation for the payment of interest on the money so advanced—was that of cultivators and not of creditors as well; and the lands being found not to be proprietor's private lands there was nothing to prevent the tenants acquiring occupancy right therein.

A raiyat by taking a zuripeshgi lease of land of which he was previously in possession as raiyat does not lose his raiyati status or divest himself of his right to acquire a right of occupancy in the land: Lal Bahadur v. Mackenzie, 19 C.W.N. 229. Although in a zuripeshgi lease power was given to cultivate the land or to get it cultivated, it was held upon a construction of the lease that no raiyati interest was created: Ibid.

A zuripeshgi may be both a lease and a mortgage: Chaturgan v. Tilakdhari, 71 I.C. 470, (Ross J.).

A zuripeshgidar is not a tenant but a mortgagee where the contract was not merely for cultivation but also constituted a real and valid security: Tilakdhari v. Chaturgun, [1924 Pat.] 4.

Where a raiyat executes an usufructuary mortgage of his holding and then takes a lease of the holding from the mortgagee, he does not cease to be a raiyat holding under the proprietor and is not an under-raiyat: Tiludkhari v. Chaturgun, 3 Pat. 266; s.c., A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 118.

Where a zuripeshgi transaction in respect of a holding is not merely a contract for the cultivation of the land but also constitutes a real and valid security to the transferee for the principal sum advanced by him and for the interest thereon, the position of the transferee is not merely that of a cultivator but of a creditor holding the land as security, and therefore, he is not a raiyat within the meaning of s. 5 cl. (3) of the B.T. Act: Ibid.

TENURE-HOLDERS.

Enhancement of rent.
Tenure held since Permanent Settlement liable to enhancement only in certain cases.

Enhancement of rent.

6. Where a tenure has been held from the time of the Permanent Settlement, its rent shall not be liable to enhancement except on proof—

(a) that the landlord under whom it is held is entitled to enhance the rent thereof either by local custom or by the conditions under which the tenure is held, or

(b) that the tenure-holder, by receiving reductions of his rent, otherwise than on account of a diminution of the area of the tenure, has subjected himself to the payment of the increase demanded, and that the lands are capable of affording it.

Essentials necessary in absence of proof of custom.

Permanent tenure, if required to be in

1. What is necessary to be proved :—Where local custom is not proved the Court has to determine 1st, whether the tenure has been held from the time of the Permanent Settlement ; and 2ndly, what are the conditions under which the tenure is held : Kazi Nural Huq v. Birendra Kishore, 38 C.L.J., 121.

2. Whether any document is necessary to create a permanent tenure :—"One cannot get a permanent tenure under the Bengal Tenancy Act or under any other Act except by a registered document : " Hasiswari (Kasiswari) v. Harinath 40 I.C. 100 (Fletcher writing and Newbould J.J.). It is submitted with great respect that the decision so far as regards a permanent tenure of agricultural lands, is not in accordance with law ; unless there is any specific law no transaction is required to be in writing. S. 107 of the Transfer of Property Act which lays down the provision as to what leases are required to be in writing and registered has no application to tenures of agricultural lands (see S. 117 T.P. Act). and registered.

Act.

As to what documents under the Bengal Tenancy Act are required to be in writing see notes under s. 3 cl. (17) ante.

3. "Enhancement of rent" and "additional rent." :—A Decree for decree for enhancement of rent can never have retrospective operation and back-rent cannot be claimed at enhanced rate in the suit in which enhancement is claimed, but a tenant is entitled to claim back-rent for additional area : Ejel v. Felai, 21 C.L.J. 315 (Mookerjee and Beachcroft J.J.). enhancement has no retrospective operation.

4. S. 51 of Regulation VIII of 1793 :—Section 6 is founded upon the first sub-section of s. 51 of Reg. VIII of 1793. S. 51 has now been repealed ; see Schedule I.* Reg. VIII
s. 51.

5. Identity of permanent tenure :—The mere fact that rent was once enhanced by mutual agreement does not destroy the identity of the tenure ; where there was an agreement that rent would not be enhanced but subsequently to buy peace the tenant agreed to pay enhanced rent, held that the same tenancy continued subject to the same provisions as were contained in the original tenancy : Ramanuj v. The Midnapur Zemindary Co. Ltd., 16 C.W.N. 725 (Jenkins C.J. and N. R. Chatterjea, J.). Identity of tenure is not destroyed by enhancement of rent by agreement.

6. Splitting up or Consolidation :—See under heading Splitting up, under sec. 3 cl. (8), and also notes under s. 52. Splitting up or consolidation.

A part of a taluk (tenure) which was existing at the date of the Permanent Settlement was assigned to a certain person and the assignment was confirmed by the landlord, held that it was not a new tenure and the rent was not liable to enhancement except under cl. (a) and cl. (b) to s. 6 : Chandra Kanto v. Ramkrishna, 24 C.L.J. 275 s. c., 20 C.W.N. 1002 (Sandersen C. J. and Mookerjee J.). Mookerjee J. remarked as follows at p. 1005 of 20 C.W.N. : "Now, it is well settled that the continuity of a transferable tenure is not affected by subdivision or by consolidation [James Hills v. Huralal Sein, 3 W.R. Act X Rul. p. 135 ; and Kazee Khoda Nawaz v. Naba Kishore Rai, 5 W.R. Act X Rul. p. 53]. The decision in Udaychandra v. Nripendra Narayan, 36 Cal. 287, s. c., 13 C.W.N. 410 which is apparently an authority in support of the contrary view, overlooks, as I had occasion to point out in Adit Singh v. Sukharaj 17 C.L.J. 435 the pre-existing law on the subject in this Court. Besides, as it turned upon the construction of cl. (3) of s. 50 of the Bengal Tenancy Act it has no bearing upon the case before us."

No zemindar or other actual proprietor of land shall demand an increase from the talukdars dependant on him, although he should himself be subject to the payment of an increase of jama to Government, except upon proof that he is entitled so to do, either by the special custom of the district, or by the conditions under which the talukdar holds his tenure, or that the talukdar, by receiving abatements from his jama, has subjected himself to the payment of the increase demanded, and that the lands are capable of affording it.

7. What tenures are liable to enhancement :—See notes under s. 7.

8. Suit for both enhancement and arrears of rent :—A suit for both enhancement and arrears of rent is maintainable. The causes of action, although separate may be joined under s. 45, C.C.P. (Act XIV of 1882) ; Gudar Tewari v. Brijnandan (unreported second appeal No. 2268 of 1899).

9. Enhancement suit different from a suit for rent at old rate :—A suit to enhance is very different from a suit to recover arrears of rent at the rate originally fixed ; and when a suit for enhancement of rent is dismissed the plaintiff is not entitled to decree, at the old rent : Soorasoondare v. Golam Oli, 19 W.R. 141, (P.C.) but the rule prescribed in this case does not apply to cases where the suit is not simply a suit for enhancement, but a suit for rent at the old rate as regards some years and at enhanced rate for others : Ghunshyam v. Tara Prasad, 8 Cal. 465. See also Bhajanath v. Grant, 22 W.R. 13 ; Bhugwan Dutt v. Shew Mungal, 22 W.R. 256 ; Bhubo Soondaree v. Kasheenath, 22 W. R. 351.

Presumption that zemindar is entitled to enhance.

10. Enhancement suit : Presumption :—A suit to enhance proceeds on the presumption that a zemindar holding under the perpetual settlement has the right, from time to time, to raise the rents of all the rent-paying lands within his zemindari, according to the Pergunna or current rates, unless either he be precluded from the exercise of that right by a contract binding on him, or the lands in question can be brought within one of the exemptions recognised by Reg. VIII of 1793 ; and it also assumes that the defendant has some valid tenure or right of occupancy in the lands which are the subject of the suit : Bamasoondari v. Radhika Chowdhurani, 13 W.R., 11 s.c., 5 B.L.R. (P.C.) 8, s. c., 13 M.I.A. 248. See also Sarada v. Uma Sankar, 44 C.L.J. 385. See also notes under Sec. 7, heading No. 2.

II. Partition of tenure :—When by the original arrangement there was one tenancy under one holding, held that it came to an end when the parent estate was partitioned and the effect of the partition was to create separate and distinct tenancies under the proprietors of each of the estates, and s. 188 would not preclude one of the proprietors of each of the distinct estates from maintaining a suit for enhancement : Hem Chandra v. Kali Prasanna, 26 Cal. 832.

Proof of a tenure existing from the time of the Permanent Settlement.

12. Tenure held from the time of the Permanent Settlement : Proof :—In order to prove that a tenure has been held from the time of the Permanent Settlement it is sufficient if it is shown that it existed and was capable of being registered in the zemindar's sheristha at the time of the Decennial Settlement. Bamasoondari v. Radhika Chowdhurani, 13 W.R. (P.C.) 11. The fact of a tenure not having been registered under the provisions of Reg. VIII of 1793, s. 48 does not deprive a tenure-holder of the benefit of s. 51 : Rajah Nilmoney v. Ram Chuckerbutty, 21 W.R. 439, s. c., 4 B.L.R. P.C. 8.

In a suit for ejectment brought by a purchaser of an entire estate under Act XI of 1859, Defendant set up that his tenure existed from the time of the Permanent Settlement held, that the onus in the first instance lies on the defendant and it is discharged when defendant proves possession for a long time and the suit was dismissed on the proof by the defendant that his tenure existed in the year 1798-99 : very long Nityanund v. Banshi Chandra, 3 C.W.N. 341 ; no hard and fast rule time. can be laid down as to when the burden of proof shifts from one side to the other and each case must be governed by its own merits : Ibid ; see also Nagendra Lal v. Nabab Ali, 10 C.W.N. 503. It is not necessary that direct evidence should be given to prove the existence of a tenure from before the Permanent Settlement ; a presumption in favour of its existence arises from the proof of the existence of a tenure for a very long time, say from 1824 : Ananda Chandra v. Kunjo Behari, 8 C.L.J. 177.

A suit for the enhancement of the rent of a tenure held from Suit for before the Permanent Settlement is governed by s. 6 of the B. T. enhance-Act.—In the absence of the local custom, if the landlord does not ment, sec. 6 prove the fact that by the conditions under which the tenure is held, B. T. Act. he is entitled to enhance the rent, his suit must fail : Birendra Kisore
v. Ali Ahmad, 84 I.C. 86 (Newbould and B. B. Ghosh J.J.) The question whether the landlord has succeeded in proving the necessary conditions under s. 6 of the B. T. Act is primarily a question of fact : Ibid. No inference can be drawn in favour of the landlord as to the conditions of the tenancy by reason of an assessment which was never accepted by the talukdar and to which the talukdar submitted under compulsion : Ibid.

The owner of taluks formed long before the Zemindari in s. 5 cl. (3) of Reg. VIII of 1793, which was not repealed when the Zemindari was created. The rent of such a taluk cannot be enhanced : Birendra Kisore v. Ali Ahmed, 39 C.L.J. 605.

13. Tenures not held from the Permanent settlement :—
 The Act is silent as to the grounds of enhancibility of tenures not held from the time of the Permanent Settlement—There are no legal restrictions on the enhancement of the rent of such tenures except such as may be imposed by the terms of the leases under which the tenures are held : Bamasundari v. Radhika, 1 W.R. 172 ; Satyamand
v. Haro Kishore, 15 W.R. 474. When a tenure is not held from the time of the Permanent Settlement the Zemindar has a prima facie right to ask for enhancement of the tenure unless there is anything to prevent him from doing so : Saroda v. Umasankar, 44 C.L.J.
 385. The case of Bama Sundari v. Radhika, 13 M.I.A. 248 was relied on. See also notes under Sec. 7, heading No. 2.

14. Onus : The plaintiff is to start his case by proving that Plaintiff to the existing rent is below the customary rate : Hem Chandra v. Kali prove that dependent talukdar held, the onus was upon the zemindar to shew rate is 15. Enhancement of Rent by Ijaradar : Unless there is an Ijaradar. express stipulation against the enhancement of rent by an ijaradar he can exercise that power : Doorga Prasad v. Joy Narain, 2 Cal. 474 ; Rushton v. Girdharee, 21 W.R. 46.

16. Receiving reductions : When there was a simple state-Reg. VIII ment of the plaintiff that by degrees the rents became less and he of 1793, was entitled to claim an enhancement, held that this was not the s. 51.
 abatement contemplated by s. 51 of Reg. VIII of 1793 : Nabo Kristo
v. Taramanee, 12 W.R. 320.

ment of rent of tenures.

17. Etmam (Itmam): See notes under s. 7.

7. (1) Where the rent of a tenure-holder is liable to enhancement, it may, subject to any contract between the parties, be enhanced up to the limit of the customary rate payable by persons holding similar tenures in the vicinity.

(2) Where no such customary rate exists, it may, subject as aforesaid, be enhanced up to such limit as the Court thinks fair and equitable.

(3) In determining what is fair and equitable, the Court shall not leave to the tenure-holder as profit less than ten per centum of the balance which remains after deducting from the gross rents payable to him the expenses of collecting them and shall have regard to—

(a) the circumstances under which the tenure was created, for instance, whether the land comprised in the tenure, or a great portion of it, was first brought under cultivation by the agency or at the expense of the tenure-holder or his predecessors in interest, whether any fine or premium was paid on the creation of the tenure, and whether the tenure was originally created at a specially low rent for the purpose of reclamation; and

(b) the improvements, if any, made by the tenure-holder or his predecessors in interest.

(4) If the tenure-holder himself occupies any portion of the land included in the area of his tenure, or has made a grant of any portion of the land either rent-free or at a beneficial rent, a fair and equitable rent shall be calculated for that portion and included in the gross rents aforesaid.

1. Nature of tenancy.: The question as to the nature of a tenancy is a question of law: Ramdayal Giri v. Midnapur Zemindary Co., 15 C.W.N. 263; also see Sulata Das v. Jadunath, 8 C.W.N. 774 notes at p. 57 and Ramanuj v. Midnapur Zemindary Co., 16 C.W.N. 725. See notes under s. 5. Nature of tenancy, question of law.

2. Liable to enhancement:—A suit to enhance rent proceeds on the presumption that zemindar holding under the Permanent Settlement has the right from time to time to raise the rents of all the rent-paying lands within his zemindari, according to the Pergunna or current rates, unless either he is precluded from the exercise of that right by a contract binding on him, or the lands in question can be brought within one of the exemptions recognised by law: Bama Sundari v. Radhika, 13 M.I.A. 248, s. c., 13 W.R. (P.C.) 11; s. c., 4 B.L.R. 8 (P.C.). Presumption in a suit for enhancement.

When a tenure is not held from the time of the Permanent Settlement, the Zemindar has a prima facie right to ask for an enhancement of rent of the tenure, from time to time, unless there is anything to prevent him from doing so: Saroda Prasad v. Uma Sankar, 44 C.L.J. 385 (Sanderson, C. J. & B. B. Ghose J.): The case of Bama Soondery v. Radhika, 13 M.I.A. 248; s. c., 13 W.R. 11 (P.C.) relied on.

Enhancibility of rent of a tenure, where there is no direct evidence as to what the actual terms are, can be inferred from other circumstances of the case Ibid. The onus of proving in the first instance that the rent is a fixed one, is on the tenant—Ibid. The grant of a Putni connotes that the rent is fixed. Mere mention of a talug as a putni talug does not create a putni talug; there may be other terms in the document which may shew that although the word "putni" was used it was not really a putni talug—Ibid.

For the enhancement of rent it is first necessary to show that the rent is liable to enhancement, and then whether there is a customary rate and when this has been negatived then only there may be enhancement up to such limit as the Court may think fair and equitable: Midnapur Zemindary Company v. Sridhar Mahata, 49 Cal. 866, s. c., 36 C.L.J. 96, (Mookerjee and Cuming J.J.). See also Jogesh v. Izzat Ali, 40 C.L.J. 585 (Suhrawardy and Cuming, J.J.). Essentials necessary for proof.

Before a Court can take action under sub-sec. (2) it must be definitely found that no customary rate exists. The finding that the Plaintiff has failed to prove the customary rate is not sufficient to give customary jurisdiction to the Court to proceed to determine to what extent the rent should be enhanced: Ram Sundar v. Satindra Mohan, 85 I.C. 190 (Cal.) (Suhrawardy and Cuming, J.J.).

Every tenure whether permanent or otherwise is subject to the incident of enhancibility of rent: Yakub Ali v. Raj Kumar, 65 I.C. 527, (Suhrawardy and Cuming J.J.) where at the inception of the tenancy there was no condition excluding the tenure from the operation of the ordinary liability for enhancement of rent, the same state Incident of enhancibility attaches to every tenure.

of things should be held to exist on the date of the publication of the record of rights: Ibid. The mere fact of payment of rent at a uniform rate for any number of years apart from the presumption under s. 50, does not raise any presumption of fixity of rent: Ibid.

forbearance.

Mere forbearance on the part of a landlord does not justify the inference that the tenure is not enhanceable: Bhairab Chunder v. Midnapur Zemindary Company, 38 C.L.J. 372, (Mookerjea and Chotzner J.J.).

It cannot be held in a case brought under the Bengal Tenancy Act that any presumption arises as to the fixity of rent from mere payment of the same rate of rent for a number of years apart from the presumption arising under sec. 50 of the Act. To hold otherwise would be to require every landlord to enhance the rent of every tenant under him at certain intervals of time which he might not himself desire to do: Brajodas v. Bankim, 51 Cal. 454.

The word usually employed in creating a fixed rent in perpetuity is the word "mukurari" though no doubt the absence of such word is not conclusive if other words are found in the grant which clearly show that such a rent was intended to be created: Krishnendra v. Kusumkamini, 54 I.A. 48, s. c., 31 C.W.N. 514, s. c., 45 C.L.J. 305 (P.C.).

Where the terms of a patta provided inter alia, that "all profits and losses shall be yours and you shall on no account be competent to pray for any reduction of the rent. You shall abide by the survey and Settlement of rent to be made by me when necessary," held that there were no terms from which it could be inferred that the landlord abandoned his right to enhancement, whilst the express provision that the rent would not be reduced negatived the contention. Ibid.

Prima facie
rent liable to enhancement.

Prima facie the rent is liable to enhancement unless the landlord has precluded himself by contract from such enhancement. There should be definite materials in the patta before a court comes to the conclusion that the common law has been excluded.

A landlord is not precluded from enhancing the rent of his tenant although in the patta it was stated that the tenant was to hold from 'generation to generation,' that he was not to get remission of rent and that he should pay cesses separately and in addition to rent: Jonab v. Shivakumari, 46 C.L.J. 253 (Rankin, C.J. and Mitter J., June 24, 1927). The case of Krishnendra v. Kusum Kamini, 54 I.A. 48 was referred to.

The word Kaimi does not import fixity of rent: Fazel v. Keramaddi, 31 Cal. 960: Meherali v. Kalai Khalasi, 19 C.W.N. 1129.

As to the meaning of the words istemrari and mukurari see notes under s. 179; as to the meaning of the word Kaimi see notes under s. 18.

Mourasi.

Where the patta is a mourasee one, but the rent fixed in the lease does not appear to have been fixed and invariable, its terms do not protect the tenant from enhancement: Taruck Chandra v. Madhoo Soodan, 5 W.R. Act X 80. The term "tika mohito" can never be construed as conferring a permanent or mourasee lease at a fixed rate. The words are not tantamount to "mourasee" or "istemrari": Nuffer Chandra v. Gossan Joysingh, 3 W.R. Act X 144.

Tika mohito.

progressive
rent,

Where by an amalnama, the tenant, for clearing and cultivating the land, was to pay no rent for 3 years, then 4 annas per bigha for one year, 6 for another, and 8 for third, until the rent from 1267, reached the rent of 10 annas at which it was to remain, but no period was fixed for the duration of this rent of 10 annas a bigha, held that there was nothing to prevent the landlord from putting in force any claims to an enhanced rent: Puddo Monee v. Paramanund, 7 W.R. 158. Where the terms of a document were that the lands covered by the deed "shall be held rent-free for five years and then for the year 1255 at the rate of five annas per bigha for the year 1256 at the rate of 10 annas per bigha and from the year 1257, the rate to be paid every year shall be the poora dastoor or full customary rate of 14 annas", held that by such a condition the landlord did not bind himself never to exercise the privilege of enhancing the rents: Bhurut Chunder v. Gourmonee, 11 W.R. 31; see also Sasee mukhee v. Nades Ali, 11 W.R. 164. But where it appeared from the kabuliyat that a how-ladaree amulnama had been granted without any rent for the first year, at varying rates less than Rs. 5 a kanee up to 1264 and in the year 1264 and after at the full customary rate of 5 rupees per kanee held that the rent was not liable to enhancement beyond the rate of Rs. 5: Gopal Lall v. Golam Ali, (P.C.) 19 W.R. 141. A similar question arose in a case which came up for hearing before Wilson and Maclean J.J., and their Lordships in delivering Judgment said as follows:—"Now, the question is shortly this: When land is let for the purpose of clearing jungle or other reclamation and on this ground or any other ground mentioned in the lease, a reduced rent is provided for the first few years, and it is said that the rent is to be at such and such rate, a sum as the full rent—does that mean, as the word seems to import that the full rent is to be the full rent as long as the tenure subsists, or is such a rent liable to enhancement under the provisions of the Rent Law? We agree with the lower Appellate Court in thinking that the decision of the Privy Council in Sooru Soondery Debee v. Golam Ali, (9 W.R. 65) is an authority for holding that the former view is the true one, and that in the present case that rent cannot be enhanced: Huro Prasad v. Chundee Churn, 9 Cal. 505. Where the words in the pattah were as follows:—"Having, according to the instalment, paid the rent, year after year, you may continue to enjoy the profits. After this, in no manner shall enhancement be demanded." Held, there could not be any enhancement during the existence of the pattah: Punchanun v. Pearymohun, 2 W.R. 225. See notes under s. 179. Where the kabuliyat was in the following words: "We will get no remission of jama on drought, inundation and patit. If in addition to the land mentioned in this kabuliyat any excess be found on measurement we will pay separately at the rate of etc., etc." Held that the terms of the kabuliyat did not prevent the landlord to sue for enhancement: Ram Kumar v. Robert Watson & Co., Ltd., 9 C.W.N. 334.

Poora dastoor, or customary rate.

Lease for clearing jungle or reclamation

Agreement barring enhancement.

Agreement to pay rent on excess land.

Where the facts were as follows:—(1) The tenancy was for the purposes of reclamation, but when it originated is not known; (2) The tenancy is not limited in its duration, and has descended from father to son and from son to grandson; (3) The rent fixed in respect of the lands originally comprised in the tenancy has never been altered; (4) Excess lands reclaimed from time to time have been included in the tenancy and rent has been assessed on such additional lands: but at each settlement the rent assessed at the previous settlement has been left untouched; the rent has so continued invariable for at least half a century before the date of the suit; (5) in two of the leases, the rent was made progressive, the full amount being reached in the fourth year, and it being agreed that the lessee should thenceforth continue to pay the full amount; and (6) two of the leases entitled the lessee to hold excess lands at a rate which was fixed in the contract: held that from these circumstances the inference might be legitimately drawn that the tenure was permanent, the rent had been fixed in perpetuity and that the rent was not liable to enhancement: Robert Watson and Co. v. Radhanath, I.C.L.J. 572. Where the same rate of rent prevailed over 60 years, though the total rent went on increasing with the increase in the area, held that the proper inference was that the rent was fixed: Ramdoyal v. Midnapur Zemindari Co., 15 C.W.N. 263 following the case of Robert Watson & Co. v. Radha Nath Singh, I. C.L.J. 572. From the mere fact that rent had been once enhanced by compromise it does not follow that it can be enhanced again: Ramanuj Das v. The Midnapur Zemindary Co., 16 C.W.N. 725; it was further held that the same tenancy continued subject to the same provisions. But the fact that rent was once enhanced and the tenant submitted to such enhancement negatives the inference as to the fixity of rent: Bama-pada v. Midnapur Zemindary Co., 16 C.L.J. 322.

enhancement
by compromise

The use of the words "Taluka pattah" would prima facie shew that the interest granted to the lessee was intended to be a permanent one. But in this country, the grant of a permanent lease does not mean that the rent is fixed in perpetuity; the decisions in this Court which have come down from the old Sudder Dewani Court show that the rule has always been in this country that generally, when the lease is a permanent one, the rent is liable to enhancement, unless the landlord has precluded himself by a contract or is by law precluded from claiming an enhancement: Upendra Lal v. Jogesh Chandra, 22 C.W.N. 275 (Per Fletcher J., Richardson J., agreeing); see also Taruck Chandra v. Modhoosudan, 5 W.R. Act X Rul. p. 80 Gayratulla v. Girish Chunder, 12 C.W.N. 175, Mehar Ali v. Kalai Khalasi, 19 C.W.N. 129. A permanent mokurari lease implies that the tenancy is permanent, heritable and transferable and that the rent is fixed in perpetuity: Mahanand v. Syadmuss, 12 C.W.N. 154, s. c., 8 C.L.J. 525. The word "mokurari" means 'with fixed rent,' that is to say, when applied to a tenure, it means a tenure held at a fixed and permanent rate of rent: Goyratulla v. Giris Chandra, 12 C.W.N. 175.

Mokurari.

Where it was stipulated that the tenant should in addition to rent pay the cess as may be settled by Government in future and should further pay standard rent for all additional land to be found on measurement, held that the tenancy was at fixed rent: Golam Rahaman v. Gurudas, 38 C.L.J. 350.

Standard
additional land.

The word 'Barokta' meaning in due and proper time does not import any fixity as to rent: Biseswar v. Braja Kant, 33 C.L.J. 296 (N. R. Chatterjea, Newbould, J.J.).

Barokta.

Where variableness of jumma is the normal condition, the mere naming a sum certain in connection with the grant of a descendible tenure, does not import of itself fixity to that sum, in the absence of positive words, or of other words to show that such was the original design: Ibid.

Variability of rent, normal condition.

It was held upon the facts in the case of Amarnath v. Hrishikesh 64 I.C. 829 that the tenure was held at a fixed rent: (Mookerjee and Pantou J.J.)

of lease.

Where it was stipulated that the tenant would cultivate from generation to generation and was to pay a ticca mokra rent, held that the tenant held at a fixed rent, although no premium was paid : Reshee Case v. Satischandra, 64 I.C. 774, (Mookerjee and Panton J.J.)

Where there was a stipulation that the tenant would have to pay additional rent for additional land at the kabuliyat rate, held that thereby the tenancy was not exempted from enhancement : Surja Prasad v. Midnapur Zemindary Co., 38 C.L.J. 369. This case was followed by Mookerjee and Chotzner J.J. in the case of Bhairab Chunder v. Midnapur Zemindary Company, 38 C.L.J. 372.

As to enhancibility where the terms of the lease are ambiguous the rights of the parties may be regulated by subsequent conduct ; unless the landlord is precluded from the terms of the contract and the lands cannot be brought within the exceptions under Reg. VIII of 1793, he is entitled to sue for enhancement, the mere fact that a tenure is hereditary does not shew that it is not enhancible : Bhupendra v. Harihar, 24 C.W.N. 874 ; (Mookerjee C.J. and Fletcher J.) ; the expression putni taluk in the contract did not import that the tenure was not merely hereditary but was held on a rent fixed in perpetuity : Ibid.

In order to ascertain the effect of a grant resort must be had to the terms and the whole circumstances ; where the words used were saliana jama kamel harshal, held that the meaning of the word saliana being "annual," and that of jama kamel being "the full amount of rent" and that of harshal being "all years to come," the tenure was not liable to enhancement : Mahomed Janu v. Majub Ali, 27 C.W.N. 328, (Mookerjee and Chotzner J.J.).

Where the arrangement was that the tenure should not be liable to rent for the first four years, after that it would carry on a progressive scale until in 1298 it reached one rupee one anna per bigha, and since there was no enhancement by operation of law, held that the maximum rent reached in 1298 and it was the fixed rent of the tenure so long as it would last : Port Canning Land Improvement Corporation v. Katyani Debi, 47 Cal. 280, (P.C.), (19 June, 1919), s. c., 24 C.W.N. 368.

If there is an indication in the lease that there will be no enhancement and that for excess area an additional rent would be levied at the rate at which the original area is held, held, that the rent is not enhancible although the word mokurari is not used in the lease : Chandi Charan v. Azizernessa, A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 18 ; the interest stipulated although high is enforceable at law.

Where a lease stipulated that if in future any enhancement of rent or cesses be made according to law by the superior landlord or collectorate the landlord would be entitled to recover the enhanced rent and cesses from the tenant, held that the lease cannot be said to be held at a fixed rent or rate of rent : Johara Banoo v. Ganga Chandra, A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 222, (Greaves and Ghose J.J.).

See notes under s. 3, cl. (8).

Where a tenant was recorded as having kaimi interest and not mokurari and the tenant did not bring a suit for correction of the entry under s. 106, held, that the tenant was not entitled to rely upon s. 50, cl. (2) of the Bengal Tenancy Act, and no presumption arose under s. 50 even if it was shown that the rent was not varied for more than 20 years before the institution of the suit: Brajadas v. Bankim Chandra, 51 Cal. 454 (Newbould and B. B. Ghosh J.J.).

Reclamation and cultivation by grantee.

Where a lease lays down that the grantee would enjoy the land by reclamation and cultivation from generation to generation and that the jama would be paid into the office of the landlord from year to year, held that the rent is fixed in perpetuity: Reshee Case v. Bhuvan Mohan, A.I.R. Cal. 1924, p. 361.

Presumption as to mokurari.

The mere fact that a certain rate is mentioned with respect to excess land that may be found in possession of the tenant does not create a presumption as to the mokurari nature of the holding: Ramijuddin v. Radhakant, 80 I.C. 987, (Suhrawardy and Duval J.J.).

Assertion of title as permanent tenant.

3. Permanent tenancy acquired by prescription :—Where a tenant set up a permanent tenancy but the landlord obtained a decree for khas possession and obtained symbolical possession merely, and the tenant continued to be in possession for more than 12 years by asserting on several occasions his title as permanent tenant to the knowledge of the landlord, held that the tenant acquired by prescription a right to hold lands as a permanent tenant: Bagdu Majhi v. Durga Prasad, 9 C.W.N. 292.

Effect of fresh arrangement superseding a decree for enhancement.

4. Suspension of decree for enhancement by contract :—Where the landlord had obtained a decree for enhancement of rent and subsequently the landlord and the tenant made a fresh arrangement between themselves and in pursuance of this arrangement a kabuliyat was executed by the tenant by virtue of which the tenant was allowed to hold a lease at a less rent, for a certain number of years on certain conditions and if the conditions were not fulfilled then the whole rent fixed by the decree would be levied, held that the arrangement embodied in the kabuliyat had the effect of superseding the enhancement decree; and that, upon the expiry of the term of the kabuliyat, if the landlord sought to enhance the rent he must do so by having recourse to the procedure laid down by the Rent law: Nobin Chunder v. Gour Chunder, 6 Cal. 750, s. c., 8 C.L.R. 161.

Acquiescence where enhanced rent agreed to be paid by one of several joint tenants is paid for some time. One of several joint tenants agreeing to pay enhanced rent liable for his share only; but other tenants liable to pay original rent.

5. Agreement to pay enhanced rent by one of several joint tenants :—Where one of several joint tenants had agreed to pay an enhanced rent and the rent had been paid for four years; held that it might be assumed that the co-sharers had acquiesced in the arrangement made; Brahunuddi v. Mohun Chunder, 8 C.L.R. 511; but where one of several joint tenants executed a kabuliyat at an enhanced rent for the entire tenure; held that he could not be made liable for enhanced rent in respect of any share exceeding his own share: Ram Taran v. Asmatulla, 6 C.W.N. 111. Where a co-tenant executes a separate kabuliyat for his share in the tenancy, the landlord cannot sue the other tenants on the basis of the new arrangement without proving that they agreed to the division of the tenancy: unreported Second Appeal No. 116 of 1900: Sourav Nama Sudrani v. Nabadi Chunder (decided on the 17th February 1903). See notes under s. s. 65 and 159.

6. Circumstances under which the tenure was created—brought under cultivation :—Cl. (a) of sub-sec. 3 clearly indicates that a tenure-holder within the contemplation of the Act must be a person who holds land which is used for agricultural or horticultural purposes: Per Banerjee J., Umrao Bibi v. Syed Mahomed, 27 Cal. 205, s. c., 4 C.W.N. 76: see notes under s. 5.

7. Road-cess return :—In a suit for enhancement of rent by a fractional shareholder the road-cess returns which had been filed by another share-holder were considered to raise a presumption that the existing rate was not fair so as to shift the onus on the tenant to rebut the presumption: Hem Chandra v. Kali-Prasanna, 8 C.W.N. 1 (P.C.); under sec. 114, cl. (g) of the Evidence Act the Court awarded an enhanced rate upon such return: Ibid.

Road-cess return by one share-holder, if binding upon others

8. Stay of the operation of limitation of rent-suits for pendency of an enhancement suit :—Where a suit for the recovery of arrears of rent was brought more than three years after the due date, held that the fact that a suit for enhancement had been brought by the plaintiff within that period and in that suit the plaintiff had claimed enhanced rate for the year in question stayed the operation of the law of limitation: Hem Chunder v. Kali Prasanna, 8 C.W.N. 1.

9. Fair and equitable rent :—Where in an enhancement suit under this section the rent assessed by the lower Court amounted to 70 per cent. on the net assets after deducting collection charges, held that the rent settled was somewhat larger than what was fair and equitable: Ram Kumar v. Robert Watson & Co., Ltd., 9 C.W.N. 334.

10. Joint landlords must sue together for enhancement :—See notes under s. 188.

11. Collection Charges :—Allowing a profit of 40 per cent. for the costs of collection to the tenure-holder in assessing enhancement of rent is not a low rate: Surja Prosad v. Midnapur Zemindary Co., 38 C.L.J. 369, Eshaque Sheikh v. Matilal, 81 I.C. 1043. See also notes under ss. 5 and 18.

Collection charges—40 per cent.

12. Etmam (Itmam) :—Itmam (properly ihitam, meaning "entrusted to") is a class of under tenure in the District of Chittagong. Generally speaking, the taluqdar under whom there are itmamdars occupies the position of a mere rent receiver with respect to the land included in the itmam. During the recent settlement itmamdars have been recorded, and the status of each, whether as tenure-holder or as ryot, has been determined; but the rent has been revised in each case, being assessed, in cases where the itmandar is a tenure-holder, upon the basis of the rents paid to him by his ryots: See in this connection District Gazetteer of Chittagong, Vol. I, pp. 149-151. An etmam (itmam) tenure in Chittagong which has not been proved to have existed from the time of the Permanent Settlement is excluded from the operation of Sec. 6 of the B. T. Act and its rent is enhancible under Sec. 7 of the B. T. Act. No presumption of fixity of rent in favour of the tenant can arise from the fact of a tenure, e.g., etmam tenure in Chittagong, being permanent, heritable and transferable: Upendra Lal v. Jogesh Chandra, 47 C.L.J. 112 (Per Mukerji, J., Cuming J., agreeing, July 27, 1927). The case of Port Canning Land Improvement Company v. Katyani 47 Cal. 280 (P.C.) s. c., 32 C.L.J. 1, was distinguished and the case of Krishniendra v. Kusum Kamini, 54 I.A. 48, s. c., 31 C.W.N. 514, s. c., 45 C.L.J. 305 (P.C.), was referred to.

the enhancement shall be gradual; that is to say, that the rent shall increase yearly by degrees, for any number of years not exceeding five, until the limit of the enhancement allowed has been reached.

I. Analogous law :—S. 36 provides a similar rule relating to occupancy raiyats ; it has been held that that section has no application to the case of a tenant who was in possession of the land for some years without paying rent : Sujauddin v. Jadunath, 18 C.L.J. clxvii (167 notes).

I. Calculation of fifteen years :—Where a decree for enhancement was passed by the Sub-Judge originally and the decree was affirmed by the High Court and then also by the Privy Council on appeal, held that the period of fifteen years was to be calculated from the date of the decree of the Sub-Judge : Surja Kanta v. Hemanta Kumari, 5 C.L.J. 87, notes portion.

Distinction

and S. 37.

2. Period within which a suit for enhancement may be brought :—This section unlike s. 37 is silent as to the period within which a suit for enhancement cannot be brought ; s. 37 which applies to the enhancement of rent of an occupancy raiyat provides that a second suit for enhancement cannot be brought within 15 years, but s. 9 only says that the court will not pass a decree within 15 years but is silent as to whether suit instituted within 15 years is maintainable. It seems, therefore, that a suit may be brought within the time, and if 15 years expire during the pendency of the suit, a decree may be then passed.

10. A holder of a permanent tenure shall not be ejected by his landlord except on the ground that he has broken a condition on breach of which he is, under the terms of a contract between him and his landlord, liable to be ejected :

6. INCIDENTS OF A PERMANENT TENURE.

1. Non-payment of rent :—A stipulation in a putni lease that by reason of non-payment of rent by the putnidar he would forfeit his tenancy is not valid,—Mohebut Ali v. Mahomed, 2 C.W.N. 455. Such a stipulation by a permanent tenure-holder is not valid : Samant Radha v. Ananta Prasad, 4 C.L.J. 521. Non-payment of rent does not determine the relation of landlord and tenant : Apurba Krishna v. Asutosh, 9 C.W.N. 122. See notes under ss. 65 and 76.

2. Notice to quit :—A notice to quit which directs the tenant to vacate a certain quantity of land under his landlord is not bad in law merely because it includes some land which the tenant is found to hold under the landlord : Shama v. Charan, 2 C.W.N. 106. See notes under ss. 89 and 155.

3. Onus :—When a landlord sues for possession of land lying within the ambit of his estate on the ground that it is mal and not lakhiraj of the defendant, the burden of proof in the first instance is upon the plaintiff ; the reason of the rule is mainly that where possession for a long time by a defendant is admitted to be undisturbed, the plaintiff must give affirmative proof of the land being part of his estate : Sheikh Milan v. Mahomed Ali, 10 C.W.N. 434 ; also see Hari Har v. Madhab Chandra, 8 B.L.R. 566. Where a defendant claims to be a permanent tenure-holder and not a raiyat the onus lies upon him to prove this : Nilmani v. Mathura Nath, 5 C.L.J. 413. In a suit by a landlord for khas possession of land in defendant's possession, the defendants set up and proved an intermediate tenure, held that it was on the plaintiffs to shew that the parcel of land sought to be resumed was outside such tenure. In this respect it makes no difference whether the plaintiff admits the existence of the under-tenure or the defendant proves such tenure to exist, although denied by the plaintiff : Rajendra Kumar v. Mohim Chandra, 3 C.W.N. 763. Possession by the defendant of a tenure of limited extent within the plaintiff's putni raises no presumption of title upon his seizure of a piece of land and claiming it as part of his tenure, and the onus lies upon the defendants to prove that the land is included in their mokurari holding and not upon the plaintiffs to shew that it is not : but where a tenant has been in long and peaceable occupation of land as part of an admitted tenure, it lies upon the landlord in a suit for ejectment to prove in the first instance that the land is his khas property and not the tenant's : Nanda Lal v. Jajneswar, 6 C.W.N. 105*.

When a tenant of land claims a permanent tenancy the onus is upon him to prove that he has such a right upon the tenant : Nainapillai v. Ramanathan, 28 C.W.N. 809 (P.C.)

* See the case of Rajah Sahib Perhiad Sein v. Durga Persad, 12 M.I.A. 286; Ram Mon v. Ahmuedhen, 20 W.R. 374; Raj Kissen v. Pearee Mohun, 20 W.R. 421, Huree Mohun v. Goreebullah, 22 W.R. 417; Nobocoomar v. Oozir, 23 W.R. 238; Beharee v. Paryag, 23 W.R. 291; Rhedoy v. Nobin, 12 C.L.R. 457; Balai Ahir v. Bhuggobutty, 11 C.L.R. 476; Mohima Chunder v. Mohesh, 16 Cal. 473; Forbes v. Mahomed, 12 B.L.R. 210; Huryhur v. Madub, 14 M.I.A. 152.

A person who is, in fact, in possession of land under a tenancy or occupancy title cannot, by a mere assertion in a judicial proceeding and the lapse of six or twelve years without that assertion having been challenged successfully (the possession remaining all the while on the same footing) obtain a title as an under-proprietor to the land. Sec. 28 of the Limitation Act has no application to such a case: Mumtaz Ali v. Mohan Singh, 28 C.W.N. 840 (P.C.).

The two aforesaid cases i.e., the cases in 3 C.W.N. 763 and 6 C.W.N. 105 as well as the case of Sheodeni v. Chaturbhuj, 12 C.L.J. 376, were considered by Mookerjee and Beachcroft J.J., in the case of Protap Chandra v. Judhistir, 19 C.W.N. 143, and it was held that it is not the law that because a defendant is found to be a tenant of some land under the plaintiff, the burden is thereby cast upon the plaintiff to establish that the land he seeks to recover is outside the tenancy of the defendant; the burden would ordinarily be on the defendant to prove the tenancy under which he claims to hold it.

The mere fact that the defendant holds some land under the plaintiff as tenant would not be sufficient to throw upon the plaintiff the burden of showing that in respect of any other land in the zemindari which the defendant may be found to be in possession of, he has no right as tenant; the burden of proof in a case like this is on the tenant: Gopini Debi v. Ram Taran, 19 C.W.N. 140, the principle laid down in Rhidoy Krista's case 12 C.L.R. 457 throwing the onus on the plaintiff should be held applicable to cases where the land sought to be recovered is admitted by the plaintiff to be contiguous to the holding of the defendant or that it has come to his possession by encroachment: Ibid.

Party in possession.

Where the owner of land seeks to recover possession on the allegation that the party in possession has no right to continue in it and his title to possession is proved or admitted he can claim a decree unless the party in possession proves the existence of a tenancy which entitles him to retain possession: Narsing v. Dharani, 9 C.W.N. 144; where neither party set up a tenancy in an ejectment suit the Court cannot go behind the pleading and find that the defendant is a tenant: Sujjad v. Ganga Charan, 9 C.W.N. 460. See notes under s. 89.

Onus upon defendant when plaintiff proves to be owner.

Where in a suit for ejectment the defence set up a tenure by purchase from a former tenant, and the plaintiff proved that he was the owner of the land, held that it lay upon the defendant to make out that he is a tenure-holder and was entitled to remain upon the land: Hiramoti v. Annada, 7 C.L.J. 553.

Suit for rent instituted after ejectment decree in respect to arrears prior to ejectment decree.

4. Suit for rent for a period prior to ejectment suit:— A decree-holder who has obtained a decree for ejectment is entitled to bring a suit for the arrears of the period prior to the ejectment decree and cannot by such conduct be regarded as having waived the rights he had obtained under his ejectment decree: *Mansar Ali v. ss. 11, 18, 25, 44, 49, 89 and s. 178 (1) (c)]. Denial of landlord's title is not a ground of forfeiture under any of the aforesaid sections; so denial of landlord's title under no circumstances can be a ground of forfeiture. When the Bengal Tenancy Bill was passed into law there was an amendment proposed that the following be added to s. 44 as a ground for eviction :—

"on the ground that he has disclaimed the title of his landlord before any public officer or Court."

The Hon'ble Mr. Reynolds said :—"I think if the hon'ble member desired to raise this question it should have been raised in connection with section 25. Notice of a similar amendment was given and withdrawn, and I was under the belief that it was withdrawn because the position was untenable."

The Hon'ble Mr. Ilbert said :—"I cannot advise the Council to give legislative sanction to what may fairly be described as an obsolescent doctrine of English Law. I will not call it an obsolete doctrine, because it still appears in the text-book. But I call it an obsolescent doctrine, because it is very rarely enforced, and when attempts are made to enforce it the Courts regard with disfavour and limit its application in every possible way.

"And it appears to me that the doctrine is even more dangerous in Bengal than it is in England. Owing to a variety of well-known circumstances, such as the fact that the raiyat usually does not derive his title from contract, to the comparative rarity of written agreements, to the absence of definite landmarks, and to the shifting from natural causes of such landmarks as exist, it is often a matter of extreme doubt whether the relation of landlord and tenant exists between two persons with respect to a particular land. And when the existence of such a relation is denied or questioned on either side, we are by no means entitled to assume that the grounds for denying or questioning it are fraudulent or improper. We have done our best, by various provisions of this Bill, to lessen the number of excuses for alleging this doubt, and to provide for cases in which it is alleged in good faith. Thus we have in section 60 carried a step further the policy of the Bengal Registration Act by enacting that where rent is due to the proprietor, manager or mortgagee of an estate, the receipt of the person registered under the Land Registration Act, 1876, as proprietor, manager or mortgagee of that estate, or of his agent authorized on that behalf, shall be a sufficient discharge for the rent, and the person liable for the rent shall not be entitled to plead in defence to a claim by the person so registered that the rent is due to any third person. We have by another section enabled a tenant who entertains a bonafide doubt as to the person entitled to his rent to pay the rent into Court. We have said that when a person is sued for rent, and admits that rent is due but pleads that it is due to a third person, the plea is not to be entertained except on terms of payment into Court. And we have endeavoured to help the landlord who is in doubt whether to treat an occupant as tenant or as a trespasser, by authorizing him to claim, in a suit for trespass, as alternative relief, a declaration that the defendant is liable to pay for the land in his possession rent at a rate to be fixed by the Court. By these and other provisions we have endeavoured to assist, as far as is practicable and reasonable, both landlords and tenants, and I am not prepared to go further."—Extract from the Proceedings of the Council of the Governor-General of India; dated 6th March 1885.

rent and the rent-suit being dismissed the landlord brings a suit for khas possession, the landlord is entitled to succeed in as much as the question as to the relationship of landlord and tenant is barred by the rule of res judicata.

Sections providing grounds for ejectment.

The sections providing the grounds upon which a landlord may eject a tenant are ss. 10, 18, 25, 44 and 49. Denial of landlord's title is no ground of ejectment under any one of the provisions of those sections. All these sections provide that a tenant cannot be ejected except upon the grounds mentioned therein. So a tenant denying his landlord's title is not liable to ejectment under the Bengal Tenancy Act.

Denial of title, no ground of forfeiture under the Bengal Tenancy Act.

Denial of landlord's title is no ground of forfeiture under the Bengal Tenancy Act: Debiruddin v. Abdur Rahim, 17 Cal. 196; Sheikh Nizamuddin v. Momtazuddin, 5 C.W.N. 263; see also Dhora Kairi v. Ram Jewan, 20 Cal. 101; but a denial before the Bengal Tenancy Act was passed operates as a forfeiture of the tenant's right whether the case is governed by the Transfer of Property Act or by the ordinary Rent Law which was in force before the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Act: Ananda Chandra v. Abraham Soleman, 4 C.W.N. 42; A tenant denying his landlord's title under Act VIII (B.C.) of 1869 forfeit his tenancy: Nizamuddin v. Momtazuddin, 28 Cal. 135, s.c., 5 C.W.N. 263; and the rule that a denial of the relationship of landlord and tenant does not entail a forfeiture, does not apply where the denial is given effect to by a decree of Court. The plaintiff, owner of a durputni taluk, had sued defendant No. 1 for rent; the defendant having denied plaintiff's title, the plaintiff withdrew the suit and a subsequent suit for rent which was met by the same defence was dismissed on the ground that there was no relationship of landlord and tenant; plaintiff then brought a suit for khas possession and defendant again denied relationship of landlord and tenant; it was held that plaintiff was entitled to khas possession and the rule that the denial of relationship of landlord and tenant does not entail a forfeiture, did not apply to the case: Nilmadhub v. Anantram, 2 C.W.N. 755, followed in Ramgati v. Pranhari, 3 C.L.J. 201.

When denial of title is a ground of forfeiture.

Denial of landlord's title given effect to by a decree of Court.

Conflicting views.

The case of Nilmadhub v. Anantaram, which seems to be in conflict with the case of Deberuddi v. Abdur Rahim, 17 Cal. 196, which was followed in the case of Faiz Dhali v. Aftabuddin, 6 C.W.N. 575, where in a suit for rent defendant denied plaintiffs' title, and the suit having failed, the plaintiffs sued to eject the defendants on the ground of denial of landlord's title and it was held that the rule that denial of landlord's title does not work as forfeiture did not apply and plaintiff was entitled to a decree for khas possession and that defendant was estopped by a matter of record from pleading, that he was plaintiff's tenant. Rampini, J., in delivering the Judgment of the Court observed as follows:—

Observations of Rampini, J.

"The facts of the case are these: In a previous rent suit between the parties it was decided that the defendants were not the plaintiff's tenants. The plaintiffs now brought this suit to eject the defendants.

"The Court of first instance held that, as a matter of fact, the defendants were the plaintiffs' tenants; and so relying on the case of Dhora Kairi v. Ramjeevan Kairi, 20 Cal. 101, it dismissed the plaintiffs' suit for khas possession.

"The Subordinate Judge has, however, given effect to the ruling Dhora Kairi v. Nilmadhub Bose v. Anantram Bagdi, 2 C.W.N. 755 (1898), to the effect that 'the rule that a denial of the relation of landlord and tenant does not entail forfeiture' does not apply where that denial is given effect to by a decree of Court. Ramjeevan distinguished.

"The learned pleader for the appellants contends that the Subordinate Judge should not have followed this ruling, and that the decision in this case is in conflict with that in the case of Dhora Kairi v. Ramjeevan Kairi 20 Cal. 101 (1890), and he invites us to refer the matter to a Full Bench. We, however, think that there is no conflict between the two cases and that the Subordinate Judge has rightly followed the more recent ruling. It has been found, as a matter of fact, that in the previous suit between the parties the defendants were not tenants of the plaintiffs, and the parties in this suit, that is to say, both the plaintiffs and the defendants plead that the defendants are not tenants of the plaintiffs. That being so, it seems to us that the Munsif should not have found in favour of the defendants a fact which they themselves in their pleadings deny. Furthermore, we think that the defendants are now estopped by a matter of record from pleading that they are the plaintiffs' tenants; and that being so, the plaintiffs are quite entitled to turn them out and take khas possession of the land."

Also see Ramgati v. Pranhari, 3 C.L.J. 201, where the same view has been taken. See also Hara Nath v. Kamini Kumar, 3 C.L.J. 25n, where it was further held that the question of title decided in the rent suit does not operate as res-judicata in the subsequent suit for ejectment.

It is submitted that the principle of estoppel cannot be invoked to defeat the plain provisions of a statute. (See Jagabandhu v. Radhakrishna, 36 Cal. 920). Estoppel.

Although their Lordships deciding Faiz Dhali's case did not give effect to the argument of the vakil that the case of Nilmadhub v. Anantram, 2 C.W.N. 755, was in conflict with Dhora Kairi v. Ramjeevan 20 Cal. 101, the same question when it arose for discussion in the case of Malika v. Makhan, 9 C.W.N. 928, s. c., 2 C.L.J. 389, was answered by their Lordships (Stephens and Mookerjee, J.J.), in a different way; their Lordships say:—"But, in our opinion, the decision in those two cases (Nilmadhub v. Anantram, 2 C.W.N. 755 and Faiz Dhali v. Aftabuddin, 6 C.W.N. 575) is not consistent with the principle deducible from the cases of Debiruddi v. Abdur Rahim, 17 Cal. 196 and Dhora v. Ramjeevan, 20 Cal. 101, in which it was pointed out that there cannot be any eviction from an agricultural holding governed by the Bengal Tenancy Act on the ground of forfeiture incurred by denial of the landlord's title inasmuch as such ground is not specified in ss. 25, 44 and 49 of that Act which enumerate the grounds of ejectment of occupancy raiyats, non-occupancy raiyats and under-raiyats respectively." (For further reasons, see 9 C.W.N. at pp. 932 and 933). Conflicting opinions.

But in Khater Mistri v. Sadruddi Khan, 34 Cal. 922; the cases of Nilmadhub v. Anantram, 2 C.W.N. 755 and Faiz Dhali v. Aftabuddin, 6 C.W.N. 575 and Ramgati v. Pranhari, 3 C.L.J. 201, were followed, and according to their Lordships who decided the case of Khater v. Sadruddi "the learned Judges who decided the case of Sremati Mallika v. Makhan do not expressly say that the case of Nilmadhub v. Anantram and Faiz Dhali v. Aftabuddin, have been wrongly decided."

The case of Nilmadhub v. Ananta Ram, 2 C.W.N. 755, Faiz Dhali v. Aftabuddin 6 C.W.N. 575, Ramgati v. Pranhari, 3 C.L.J. 201 and Khater Mistri v. Sadruddi, 34 Cal. 922 were followed by Chitty and Richardson J.J., in the case of Sheikh Miadhar v. Rajanikant, 14 C.W.N. 339; the case of Mallika v. Makhanlal, 9 C.W.N. 928 was distinguished and the observations in the latter case were considered obiter.

Where in a rent-suit the tenant denied the relationship of landlord and tenant and got an adjudication to that effect, held in a suit subsequently brought by the landlord for khas possession that the question as to the relationship of landlord and tenant was res judicata and the defendant could not assert his title as tenant in such suit: Ekabbar Sheikh v. Hara Bewa, 15 C.W.N. 335; Jenkins, C. J., in delivering judgment said as follows:—"what was held in Sreemati Mallika Dasi v. Makhan Lal Chowdhury, 9 C.W.N. 928 was based on what was decided in Debiruddi's case 17 Cal. 196 and Dhora's case 20 Cal. 101. But turning to those cases, it becomes apparent from the facts that in neither of them could the plea of res judicata arise.....Therefore, I venture to think that so far as this case can be rested on the plea of resjudicata those cases do not touch the matter."

In the case of Ramgati v. Pranhari, 3 C.L.J. 201 their Lordships followed the decisions in Nilmadhub v. Ananta Ram, 2 C.W.N. 755 (1898) and Faij Dhali v. Aftabuddin, 6 C.W.N. 575 (1902) and held that where denial of landlord's title is followed by a decree of Court such denial operates as a forfeiture.* Their Lordships said:—"We are of opinion that the defendant is really estopped by a matter of record from setting up his tenancy under the plaintiff, his denial of the relationship of landlord and tenant having been given effect to by a decree of the Court, which affirmed such denial; and that this would make the matter res judicata." Ghose J., however in discussing the case of Mallika Dasi v. Makham Lal, 2 C.L.J. 389 said that some of the observations made by the learned Judges who had decided the case of Mallika Dasi are "somewhat in conflict" with the view expressed in the case of Nilmadhub v. Anantram, 2 C.W.N. 755 and Fayz Dhali v. Aftabuddin, 6 C.W.N. 575.

such a case

Where a suit for rent was dismissed on the denial by the tenant of the landlord's title and on appeal by the landlord, the suit was withdrawn by him with liberty to bring a fresh suit, held in a subsequent suit by the landlord for khas possession that the only decree that could be relied on was a decree which ceased to exist owing to the withdrawal of the suit by the landlord and so the denial of the relationship of landlord and tenant by the tenant did not work any forfeiture as it was not given effect to by a decree of the court: Pyari Lal v. Hem Chundra, 16 C.W.N. 730.

A lessee of a service tenure incurs a forfeiture of his tenancy by denial of the landlord's title: Anandamayee v. Lakhi Chandra, 33 Cal. 339; notice to quit is necessary but it must be shewn that the landlord, by some act or other, declared his intention to determine the tenancy before the suit: Ibid. See also Haidari v. Nathu, 17 All. 45 and Ansar Ali v. O. E. Grey, 2 C.L.J. 403. See also notes under s. 181.

In a suit for ejectment based on the ground of forfeiture by reason of the denial of landlord's title, it was found that the denial was by the recorded tenant and not by the unrecorded co-sharers in the tenancy; held that a person, representing the tenancy in the books of the landlord, was entitled to bind his co-sharers for the purposes of the tenancy; but when he repudiated the tenancy, he must be taken to have acted beyond the scope of his authority; his disclaimer consequently could not operate as a forfeiture of the tenancy: Birendra Kishore v. Bhubaneswari, 39 Cal. 203.

In a case under the Transfer of Property Act it was held by Rampini and Sharfuddin J.J., that a denial of the existence of the relationship of landlord and tenant and setting up a third party as landlord in a previous rent-suit by some of the landlords amounts to renunciation of all by the tenant, and the latter, therefore, incurs a liability to have his tenancy forfeited: Bhikharee v. Dhakeswar, 7 C.L.J. 483.

A permanent tenant is liable to forfeiture on the ground of disclaimer of the landlord's title: Annada Charan v. Mohim Chandra, 26 C.L.J. 261. In this case it was assumed that the case was one under the Transfer of Property Act. See also Kally Dasi v. Monmohini, 24 Cal. 440; Abhiram Goswami v. Shyama Charan, 36 Cal. 1003 (P.C.) s. c., 10 C.L.J. 284.

To constitute a disclaimer, it must be the renunciation by a party of his character as tenant by setting up a title in a third person or by claiming title in himself: Annada Charan v. Mohim Chandra, 26 C.L.J. 261.

In order to involve forfeiture of the tenant's interest for denial of landlord's title, the denial must be expressed and not implied and must precede the institution of the suit for ejectment on the ground of denial of title: Samundar v. Mekhlal, 37 I.C. 935 (Patna High Court.)

There is no disclaimer of the relationship of landlord and tenant where the tenant puts the landlord to the proof of his alleged title of purchase, nor where the tenant merely questions the extent of the landlord's interest and his title to receive the entire rent: Mallika v. Makhan Lal, 9 C.W.N. 928, s. c., 2 C.L.J. 387. A disclaimer contained in the written statement of the defendant cannot be made the basis of a decree for ejectment in the suit: Ibid.; the disclaimer must be before the date of the ejectment suit: Ibid.; see also Nizamuddin v. Mamtazuddin, 28 Cal. 135, s. c., 5 C.W.N. 263.

A plea of non-liability for rent on the ground of not obtaining possession of the land is not a repudiation or rescission of the lease: Harasundari v. Jogendro Nath, 9 C.W.N. 387. A denial of the existence of landlord and tenant and setting up a third party as landlord in a previous rent-suit by some of the landlords amounts to renunciation of all the landlords by the tenant; the latter therefore incurs forfeiture and makes himself liable to be ejected: Bhikharee v. Dhakeswar, 7 C.L.J. 483: all the landlords must show their intention under s. 111 of the Transfer of Property Act before they can succeed in a suit for ejectment: Ibid.

Repudiation of tenancy by a recorded tenant does not bind an unrecorded tenant. Denial of landlord's title in a suit for rent brought by some of several joint landlords. Service tenure.

Disclaimer.

Express denial necessary.

Putting the landlord to proof of his title is no disclaimer.

Act VIII, B.C. of 1869.

Plea of non-liability of rent.

Denial in a suit for rent by some of several landlords.

Disclaimer.

A disclaimer must be a renunciation by the party of his character of tenant either by setting up a title in another or by claiming title in himself: Pratap v. Biraj, 19 C.L.J. 77. A mere renunciation of tenancy without denial of the landlord's title, though it may operate as a surrender, cannot amount to a disclaimer; Ibid. Where in a rent-suit, the tenant defendant repudiated the plaintiff's allegations that there was some land recorded in his name in the books of the plaintiff and that he had paid rent in respect thereof and asserted that there was no relationship of landlord and tenant between the plaintiff and himself in respect of such land, held, that such allegations were not a disclaimer of the title of the landlord and did not terminate the tenancy; Ibid.

Waiver of forfeiture for denial of landlord's title.

In the case of Kedarnath v. Amarchandra, 28 C.W.N. clxviii (168 notes), a notice to quit was held to have waived the forfeiture for denial of landlord's title by notice to quit.

6. Incidents of a permanent tenure :—There is nothing in the law which prevents tenants having permanent heritable rights at a fixed rent from using the land in any manner they think fit so long there is no risk to the right of the landlord to recover the rent payable. A tenant is therefore entitled to make excavations: Barada v. Bhupendra, A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 56 (Walmsley and B. B. Ghose J.J.).

*Sunderbans :—*Where in a lease granted by Government in respect of Sunderbans lands for forty years there was a stipulation that if the tenant would not make a certain area cultivable within a certain time he would forfeit the tenancy, and that the Government would be able to measure the land to ascertain if the said area was made cultivable, held that Government was entitled to resume if the area stipulated be not cultivated and that Government was not bound to make the measurement: Nabakumar v. Rudra Narain, 28 C.W.N. 589 (P.C.).

Perpetual grant effect of.

Where according to the terms of the grant of lands to two brothers, the grant was perpetual; the grantees and their descendants were to pay a fixed rent and enjoy the lands generation after generation; the descendants of the grantor were to realise the fixed rent generation to generation; and in the event of default of payment of the fixed rent for three kists, the fixed lease was to be void; held that the grant was permanent in its duration, fixed in the rental, descendible to heirs, and was to be held generation after generation: That is to say, the grant was an absolute perpetual, heritable, and transferable grant, and that the grant was not resumable: Gopal Ojha y. Ramadhar, 82 I.C. 204 (Pat.). (Jwala Prasad and Macpherson J.J.).

A tenant holding under a lease of a permanent character has no power to make excavations of such a nature as to cause substantial damage to the property demised, although by the terms of the lease he has power to make excavations: Girish Chandra v. Sirish Chandra, 9 C.W.N. 255.

Clause as to alienation must be express.
Brit tenure

A clause of forfeiture should be strictly construed, so a covenant not to alienate would not affect the right of the tenant to alienate a part or portion: Venkataramana v. Krishna Bhatta, 81 I.C. 1006.

A brit tenure does not escheat to the Crown on the death of the holder without heirs unless it is shown to be a permanent tenure:

Srikanta v. Jag Sah, 3 Pat. 818. (Dawson Miller C.J. and Mullick J.).

11. Every permanent tenure shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, be capable of being transferred and bequeathed in the same manner and to the same extent as other immovable property.

I. Onus.—Where the defendant alleges that he holds a permanent tenure, the burden of proving that fact lies on him and it is not for the plaintiff to shew that he is not a tenure-holder, but a raiyat,—Nilmani v. Mathura Nath, 5 C.L.J. 413. There is no presumption that any tenure held is not a transferable tenure, and in a suit by a landlord to recover khas possession on the ground that the defendants purchased in execution of a decree the rights of the other defendants (who were her tenants) which were not transferable; held that the plaintiff was bound to start his case: Doya Chand v. Anund Chunder, 14 Cal. 382. But this case was dissented from in the case of Kripamoyi v. Durga Gobind, 15 Cal. 89, where in a suit brought to recover possession of certain lands forming part of the putni of the plaintiffs and constituting the raiyati holding of one M. which lands were sold in execution of a money decree and purchased by the defendant, the latter set up that the tenure held by M. was of a permanent and transferable nature, it was held that the defendant was to prove the transferability of the tenure.*

Presumption of transferability.

Contra.

2. Heritability of non-permanent tenures :—Where a lease is created for a definite term it is heritable: Khitish Chandra v. Bhikan Mamad, 19 C.L.J. 448; see also Tejchand Bahadur v. Srikanta Ghose, 3 M.I.A. 261, s. c., 6 W.R. (P.C.) 48.

3. Transfer :—The word “transfer” in s. 11 includes a lease: Harimohon v. Atulkrishna, 19 C.W.N. 1127. Non-permanent tenures seem to be non-transferable: Hiramati v. Annada Prasad, 7 C.L.J. 553. (Maclean C.J. and Coxe J., concurring, observed as follows: “It is noticeable that s. 11 of the Bengal Tenancy Act enacts that every permanent tenure shall, subject to the provisions of the Act, be capable of being transferred: nothing however, is said about non-permanent tenures. If it had been also intended to make them heritable, we might have expected the legislature to have said so. This section seems to import that non-permanent tenures are not to be regarded as transferable: (Ibid at page 555): 'This case was distinguished in the case of Bhagaban Das v. Bisweswar, 44 C.L.J. 435 at p. 439 (Mukerji J., Greaves agreeing) where it has been held that unless there is some special provision in the B. T. Act or in some other Act which prohibits the transfer of non-permanent tenure the general provisions contained in sec. 6 of the T. P. Act as to the transferability of tenures will hold good.

Contra.

But it has been held in the case of Khitish Chander v. Bhikan Mahmud, 19 C.L.J. 448 that a granting of a lease for general purposes and for a term of 105 years is sufficient to show that the interest is assignable; it was further held that such a lease is transferable when the conduct of the parties points to its having been regarded on both sides as transferable and treated as such. See notes under heading No. 8.

Stipulation by lessee not to transfer void under s. 10 of the Transfer of Property Act. Involuntary transfer.

By a clause in a lease it was stipulated that the lessee would not transfer in writing the land leased to him, and that if he did so, the sale to be void; the land was sold to the defendants in execution of a decree obtained against the lease; in a suit for ejectment by the assignee of the lessors: held, that the condition was void under sec. 10 of the Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), no right of re-entry being reserved by the lease to the lessors: held also that the land having been sold against the will of the lessee by the act of the court, the lessee could not be said to have voluntarily transferred his interest: Nilmadhab Sikdar v. Narathan Sikdar, 17 Cal. 826. See also Tomaya v. Jimaha Ganpaya, 7 Bom. 262 and Subharaya v. Krishna, 6 Mad. 159. When there is no condition of forfeiture in a lease a covenant by the tenant not to transfer cannot restrain the latter from transferring: Annada Charan v. Dasarath, 40 I.C. 444.

Assignment operative although agreement not to transfer Stipulation not to transfer; absence of a clause as to right of re-entry. S. 11 of the Transfer of Property Act, not repealed by ss. 10 and 11 of the B. T. Act

Where a tenant agreed not to transfer the land in any way without a letter from the landlord, held that the assignment was operative notwithstanding the covenant: Basarat Ali v. Manirulla, 36 Cal. 745.

In the absence of any right of re-entry reserved in a lease, an assignment by a lessee is operative against the lessor notwithstanding a covenant restraining the lessee from transferring without the written permission of the lessor: Basarat Ali v. Manirulla, 36 Cal. 745 s. c., 10 C.L.J. 49; the remedy lies in a suit for damages; Ibid; see also Williams v. Earle, L.R. 3 Q.B. 739.

A condition in a permanent lease restraining alienation is not void: s. 11 of the Transfer of Property Act has not been repealed by ss. 10 and 11 of the Bengal Tenancy Act: Kesav Lal v. Haraset, 12 C.L.J. 126; where the tenure-holder alienated the land in breach of his contract, the court did not enforce the clause of re-entry but ordered him to pay compensation under s. 155 of the Bengal Tenancy Act; Ibid.

Where there was a stipulation in a lease not to sublet without the permission of the lessor, without any clause for re-entry, held that it was a covenant and not a condition and that a sublease without consent of the lessor was valid but the lessor was entitled to damages: Sital Prasad v. Nawab Dildar, 1 Pat. L.J. 1; a condition in general terms against subletting is not sufficient to prove that the condition is for the benefit of the lessor within the meaning of s. 10 of the Transfer of Property Act; there must be something in the circumstances of the case or in the nature of the property or in the wording of the lease from which it might be inferred that the provision was intended directly for the benefit of the landlord: Ibid.

A lease in perpetuity is forfeitable for breach of a covenant notwithstanding that it is permanent: Dwarkanath v. Mathuranath, 21 C.W.N. 117 at p. 121 col. 2 (Per Mookerjee J.); s. c., 24 C.L.J. 40; see also Abhiram v. Syama Charan, 36 I.A. 148, s. c., 36 Cal. 1004; s. c., 14 C.W.N. 1.

A covenant for re-entry by the landlord upon an involuntary sale is valid: Dwarkanath v. Mathuranath, 21 C.W.N. 117, s. c., 24 C.L.J. 40. Where in a permanent lease of agricultural land there was a covenant for re-entry in case of voluntary sale, and the property was sold in execution of a mortgage decree, held that the landlord was entitled to re-enter and that s. 155 B. T. Act had no application and one of two or more co-sharer landlords was competent alone to sue for joint possession and a previous notice was not necessary: Ibid.

Where there was a covenant in a lease that in case the tenant (nimhowladar) find it necessary to transfer he would transfer it to the landlord, held that the purchaser at an involuntary sale acquired a good title: Promode Ranjan v. Aswini Kumar, 18 C.W.N. 1138.

Where a dur-putnidar, to the knowledge of his landlord, transferred a portion of the dur-putni to one person on one date and the remainder to another person on a subsequent date, held that after the second transfer, the liability of the dur-putnidar for rent ceased and the two transferees became jointly and severally liable to the landlord for the same: Kishori Ram v. Ananta Ram, 10 C.W.N. 270. Where the holder of a permanent tenure transferred a portion of it, and the transferee held that portion separately and was allowed to pay proportionate rent for the same to the landlord for a great many years: held that upon sale by the transferee of that portion of the tenure, his liability for rent to the landlord ceased and his act had not the effect of sub-dividing the tenure: 10 C.W.N. 272.

Ss. 17 and 18 of the Bengal Tenancy Act recognise the transfer of a share of a tenure and entitle the transferee to be regarded as one of the tenants in respect of the holding: Mohesh Chandra v. Saroda Prasad, 21 Cal. 433. An alienation of the interest in any portion of the putni taluk, such portion not being an aliquot part or share, but being a portion of the land composing the putni can be made: Madhub Ram v. Doyal Chand, 25 Cal. 445. See notes under s. 17.

The Putni Regulation provides rules for the alienation of the whole or a part of a putni taluk and that cannot be affected by anything in the Bengal Tenancy Act, by force of s. 195. (e) : Shaizuddin v. Mathura Mohan, 18 C.W.N. 338.

4. Transferability :—Evidence of custom of transferability is excluded by an express stipulation in the lease that there is no right of sale, gift or transfer without the landlord's consent: Mahomed Ayeffuddin v. Pradyat Kumar, 25 C.W.N. 13.

Where there was a stipulation in a lease that the lessee would not assign without the landlord's consent and that such consent would not be unreasonably withheld, held that a suit is maintainable for the relief that the consent had been unreasonably withheld: E. H. Ducasse v. E. M. D. Cohen, 24 C.W.N. 1007, (C. C. Ghose J., 4 June, 1920).

Where there was a stipulation in a kabuliyat that in every transfer a certain selami should be paid, held that it did not cover the case of an involuntary sale: Manmathanath v. Chunilal, 26 C.W.N. 173.

A clause in mourasi mokurari lease that in the event of sale of the tenure by the tenant, the purchaser will pay one quarter of the purchase money is not illegal: Probhas Chandra v. Prativabala, 63 I.C. 337.

A covenant not to transfer the land without the permission of the landlord runs with the land; so a stipulation in a lease creating a permanent tenure that the landlord would not recognise a transferee unless 25 per cent. of the purchase money was paid nazar, held that the covenant was good: Saradakripa v. Bepin Chandra, 37 C.L.J. 538.

There is no such thing as between a vendor and purchaser as a covenant to pay money running with the land: Mohini Mohon v. Ram Das, 28 C.W.N. 271.

See notes under s. 10: Venkataramana v. Krishna Bhatta, 81 I.C. 1006; Gopal Ojha v. Ramadhar, 82 I.C. 204.

5. What covenants run with land and what do not :—As to what covenants run with the land, see the case of Doyal Chandra v. Chunilal, 12 C.L.J. 259 and also the cases therein discussed.

In a conveyance there was a stipulation that the vendee, in case of settling the property would be bound to give preference to the vendor, held that the contract was not binding on the vendee's heir after the vendee's death: Nobin Chandra v. Nabab Ali, 5 C.W.N. 343.

Where in a lease of a permanent tenure there was a stipulation that the lessee should first offer to the lessor if the former wants to sell, held that the contract was personal and the lessor's successor cannot enforce the right of pre-emption: Chandra Kant Bhattacharjee v. Abdul Gafur Khan; unreported second appeal No. 2145 of 1910, decided by Holmwood and Chapman J.J., on the 26th Nov. 1912.

Where in a temporary lease there was a stipulation by virtue of which the lessee agreed that the latter would not purchase any jote right of the under-tenants, and if he would do so, the same would be null and void and after the expiry of the term of the lease the ijara mehals would come to the khas possession of the lessor, held that such a stipulation was valid and after the expiry of the ijara, the lessor was entitled to get khas possession of the jotes which had been purchased by the ijaradar: Robert Watson & Co. v. Ramchand Dutt, 1 C.W.N. 174.

A right of pre-emption reserved in a partition deed is valid as between the co-owners themselves: Kalimuddin v. Reazuddin, 14 C.W.N. 295. As to whether a covenant of such a nature offends against the rule of perpetuity, see Nobin Chandra v. Nawab Ali, 5 C.W.N. 343; where the covenant was purely of a personal character it does not bind the representative of the deceased covenantor: Ibid; see also London and South Western Railway Co. v. Gomm, 20 Ch. D. 562 (1882); even if it was intended to bind the representatives of the covenantor and others deriving title under him it is not binding in law: Ibid; see also Tripura Sundari v. Juggernath, 24 W.R., 321. A covenant in a lease which involves a forfeiture must be construed strictly as against the lessor: Arpin Khan v. Chandi Charan, 95 I.C. 252.

Partition deed.

Personal covenant.

The case of an agreement by a mortgagor to give the mortgagee a preference of pre-emption in case of sale has been upheld and has been enforced against the covenantor: See the cases of Haris Paik v. Jaharuddi, 2 C.W.N. 475 and Bimal Jati v. Biranja Kuar, 22 All. 238.

Mortgage.

.6. Surrender and Relinquishment:—There is no provision for surrender of a tenure but there is such a provision with respect to a holding (see s. 86). So it seems that tenure cannot be surrendered except by consent of the landlord.

No provision of surrender or tenure.

There is no law requiring that a surrender should be in writing; it can be inferred from the acts of the parties: Elias Meyer v. Manoranjan, 22 C.W.N. 441; see also Nyabhusan v. Shambhu Chandra, 1864 (W.R.) 270.

Document in writing not necessary to relinquish.

Where a dur-mokurari lease has been granted and then relinquished for a valuable consideration to the grantors, no formal reconveyance is necessary to revert the title to the latter—the receipt of the money and the relinquishment of the possession sufficiently shewing what had become of the dur-mokurari interest: Imambandi v. Kamleswari, 13 I.A. 160, s. c., 14 Cal. 109. It has been decided in the case of Khondakir Abdur Rahaman v. Ali Hafez, 3 C.W.N. 531 that the surrender by a raiyat need not be in writing.

The right of relinquishment is a privilege given to tenants, by means of which they may restrict the lease and establish their tenure upon a new basis or may extinguish the lease altogether: and the tenants cannot avail themselves of that privilege to any extent, unless they strictly observe the conditions which are either expressed or implied in the lease: Ram Chdram v. Ranigunge Coal Association, 26 Cal. 29, s. c., 2 C.W.N. 697 (P.C.).

Relinquishment condition.

It was not open to a putnidar to surrender the putni which he holds at any time, and to plead such surrender in answer to a suit for rent: Heera Lal v. Neelmonee, 20 W.R. 383. The principle of this case is applicable to all intermediate tenures between the zemindar and the cultivator of the soil; Jadoonath v. Schœnne, Kilburn and Co., 9 Cal. 671. A landlord is not bound to accept any relinquishment by the putnidar, and when a zemindar finds that the putnidar or other permanent tenure-holder, after having allowed a trespasser to hold adverse possession of any land included in the Putni.

Other tentures.

Landlord not bound to accept

permanent tenure for more than 12 years, offers to relinquish it, the zemindar can always refuse to accept the relinquishment; but if he accepts such relinquishment, it operates only as a transfer and in a suit by the zemindar for recovery of possession against the trespasser limitation runs when the possession of the latter became adverse to the tenure-holder and not from the date of relinquishment: Gobinda Nath v. Suraj Kanta, 26 Cal. 460. Although where a tenure is a permanent and transferable one, mere abandonment is not a valid relinquishment, yet a voluntary abandonment for a long period without any inevitable force, major or other cause beyond the power of the holder, must be considered to be equal to an express relinquishment, and if a man so abandons his tenure for years, neither he nor any one under him can reclaim it: Chundermonee v. Shambhoo, 1864 W.R. 270.

Abandon-
ment

7. Sale to be in strict conformity to the conditions which the Act prescribes :—The law has effected considerable changes in the law relating to the sale of permanent tenures, dispensing as it does with the recognition of the sale by the landlord, as a condition to its validity: and the more unfettered freedom of transfer conferred by the Act was intended to be exercised, if at all, in strict conformity to the conditions which the Act prescribes, and unless those conditions are substantially complied with, the transfer is invalid, and ineffectual: Babar Ali v. Krishna Kamini, 26 Cal. 603, s. c., 3 C.W.N. 541. See additional notes to ss. 12, 13, 17 & 18.

General
restriction on
ment.

8 Assignment by operation of law :—A general restriction on assignment does not apply to an assignment by operation of law taking effect in invitum, as a sale under execution: Golak Nath v. Mothura Nath, 20 Cal. 273; followed in Keshab Chandra v. Ajahar, 23 C.L.J. 428; see also Diwoli v. Apaji, 13 Bom. 342.

Where a lease contained a clause stipulating that the tenant would not let the lands to be attached and sold in satisfaction of judgment debts, and that if he did, that would give the landlord a right of re-entry, held that if the lessee allowed the land to be attached and sold by not taking measures to satisfy his judgment debt, there would be a breach, both according to the letter and spirit of the proviso in the lease: Vyankatraya v. Shivrambhat, 7 Bom. 256.

tenure.

9. Non-transferable tenure :—The alienation of a sarborakaree tenure in Cuttack, and a fortiori of any portion of it, is invalid without the consent of the landlord and any acts of one or more of several joint tenants which possibly might operate as a forfeiture of tenancy would not entitle the landlord to exact that penalty as against all tenants: Dassuroth Huri v. Ram Krishna, 13 C.L.R. 114, s. c., 9 Cal. 526: Bhuban v. Shamanund, 11 Cal. 699: but see Sudanund v. Nowrutton, 16 W.R. 289, s. c., 8 B.L.R. 280, where it was held that a sarborakaree tenure is a permanent and transferable one.

Transfer of non-transferable
tenure.

Where a tenant, who holds a tenure not transferable without the consent of the landlord, transfers the tenure without such necessary consent, such transfer is incomplete and a nullity and as against the zemindar, the purchaser can have no rights, but the zemindar has no right to take actual possession so long as the rent is paid by the recognised tenant or his heirs and not by a stranger: Joy Krishen v. Raj Krishen, 5 W.R. 147. Non-permanent tenures seem to be non-transferable. Hiramati v. Annada Prasad, 7 C.L.J. 553. See under heading No. 3, TRANSFER. Non-permanent tenure.

10. Escheat:—A hereditary mokurari tenure does not, on the death of the grantee without heirs, revert to the zemindar but the Crown will take the property by escheat: Sonet Kooer v. Himmul, 1 Cal. 391 (P.C.).

II Right of reversion:—When a landlord grants a permanent and heritable tenure in land, he has no estate left in him unless he reserves to himself a right of re-entry or reversion: Nilmadhab Sikdar v. Narattam Sikdar, 17 Cal. 826. See also Sonet Koer v. Himmat Bahadur, 1 Cal. 391 (P.C.).

12. (1) A transfer of a permanent tenure by sale, gift or mortgage (other than a transfer by a sale in execution of a decree or by summary sale under any law relating to patni or other tenures) can be made only by a registered instrument. Voluntary transfer of permanent tenure.

(2) A registering officer shall not register any instrument purporting or operating to transfer by sale, gift or usufructuary mortgage a permanent tenure unless there is paid to him, in addition to any fees payable under the Act for the time being in force for the registration of documents, a process-fee of the prescribed amount and a fee (hereinafter called “the landlord’s fee”) of the following amount, namely:—

(a) when rent is payable in respect of the tenure, a fee of two per centum on the annual rent of the tenure: provided that no such fee shall be less than one rupee or more than one hundred rupees; and

(b) when rent is not payable in respect of the tenure, a fee of two rupees; together with the costs necessary for the transmission of the landlord’s fee to the landlord.

(3) When the registration of any such instrument is complete, the registering officer shall send to the Collector the landlord’s fee, the costs necessary for the transmission of the same and a notice of the transfer and registration in the prescribed form, and the Collector shall cause the fee to be transmitted to, and the notice to be served on, the landlord named in the notice, in the prescribed manner.

Transfer complete on registration. Transferor not liable for rent after transfer.

5. Transfer when complete :—The transfer is complete as soon as the document is registered and the transferee is no longer liable for rent: Surapati v. Ramnarayan, 50 Cal. 680 (P.C.), s. c., 28 C.W.N. 517, s. c., 39 C.L.J. 26, which approved the cases of Kristo Bullav v. Kristo Lal, 16 Cal. 642 ;* Giris Chandra v. Khagendra Nath, 16 C.W.N. 64 s. c. 13 C.L.J. 613. A transferor is not liable for rent after such transfer although the landlord has not obtained notice of such transfer: Chinta Moni v. Rash Behari, 19 Cal. 17 ; Rup Chand v. Narendra, 19 C.W.N. 112 ; Hemendra v. Kumar nath, 12 C.W.N. 478, but transfer is not binding when security is not furnished in accordance with agreement to that effect: Dina-bandhu v. Bonerjee, 19 Cal. 774.

Sec. 12 provides a limit as to the mode in which the transfer is to be made. As soon as the document by which the transfer is made is registered—and the registration is not to take place until a condition precedent mentioned in s. 12 is fulfilled—the transfer is complete. When the tenure is transferred and the vendor ceases to have any estate, then if the vendor's liability is a liability consequent on privity of estate that liability ceases: Kanai Lal v. Basanta Behari, 29 C.W.N. 1020, s. c., 42 C.L.J. 490 (Mukerji, J., Walmsley, J., agreeing). The cases of Kristo Bullav v. Kristo Lal,

* The duration of liability of a lessee to pay rent to the lessor lasts as long as his estate remains in his possession and no longer ; and after an assignment of the lease, the privity of estate between him and the lessor ceases, and the assignee becomes liable for the rent: R. D. Mehta v. Gadadhar Rai, 37 Cal. 683. This case was under the Transfer of Property Act.

16 Cal. 642, and Giris Chandra v. Khagendra, 16 C.W.N. 64 were followed.

The same principle having been applied to the original lessee, the liability of the lessee for the rent ceases upon such transfer. But the fact that by transfer the transferror ceases to be a tenant does not imply that he is absolved from liability under the terms of the contract between him and his lessor; a person may cease to be a tenant and yet continue liable to the landlord for his personal covenant—Ibid. The cases of Hemendra v. Kumarnath, 12 C.W.N. 478, and Rup Chand v. Narendra, 19 C.W.N. 112 were referred to. Personal covenant.

Where the lessee by his kabuliyat hypothecated certain other properties to secure the due payment for all time of the rent reserved and the performance of the other obligations arising thereunder, and there was nothing in the kabuliyat to indicate that the security would be extinguished on the lessee's liability to pay rent ceasing with the transfer of the lease, held that the security created by the kabuliyat was not extinguished in consequence of the transfer and the acceptance of rent by the lessor from the transferee. Kanai Lal v. Basanta Behari, 29 C.W.N. 1020, s. c., 42 C.L.J. 490. Security of this description which is to last for all times to come is not repugnant to the rule of perpetuities and can be validly created. Ibid. The case of Bijoy Chand v. Sarat Chandra, 29 C.L.J. 476 was distinguished.

Where a dur-putnidar to the knowledge of his landlord, transferred a portion of the dur-patni to one person on one date, and the remainder to another person on a subsequent date, held that after the second transfer the liability of the dur-putnidar for rent ceased and the two transferees became jointly and severally liable to the landlord for the same: Kishori Raman v. Ananta Ram, 10 C.W.N. 270. Transfer of portions on different dates.

"A transfer of a permanent tenure" means a transfer of a permanent tenure held by a recorded or unrecorded tenant. So where A a permanent tenure-holder sold the tenure before the passing of the B. T. Act, and the transferee B whose name was not recorded in the landlord's books transferred the tenure to C after the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Act, held that the transfer was complete on the payment of landlord's fee and the landlord was bound to look for rent to C: Giris Chandra v. Khagendra Nath, 16 C.W.N. 64, s. c., 13 C.L.J. 613. A decree for rent in a suit in which the transferee is not a party is not a rent decree: Ibid. In order to give effect to the transfer, the transfer should be a valid one and not colorable and benami: Joygobind v. Monmolha Nath, 33 Cal. 580. But it is doubtful whether a deed of release will exonerate a person from liability to rent. It seems, however, that it should do so, since it is a transfer of interest, but it has been held in the case of Jadu Nath v. Ruplal, 33 Cal. 969, s. c., 4 C.L.J. 22, s. c., 10 C.W.N. 650, that the title to a property cannot pass by release. admission when the statute requires a deed, and that a deed of relinquishment does not operate as a conveyance or even as a contract to convey the interest of the person executing it, nor does it operate by way of estoppel. (See the observations of Mookerjee, J., at p. 36, 4 C.L.J.). See also Mathura Mohan v. Ram Kumar, 43 Cal. 790 s. c., 20 C.W.N. 370; Dharam Chand v. Manji Sahu, 16 C.L.J. 436; Naraklal v. Mangoalal, 22 C.L.J. 380. Transfer by recorded or unrecorded tenant.

Deed of release.

Conflicting views.

Although as a consequence of transfer the transferee becomes by operation of law the tenant of the tenure and the transferor ceases to be the tenant, yet he is not thereby necessarily absolved from liability under the terms of the contract between him and his landlord: Rup Chand v. Narendra Krishna, 19 C.W.N. 112.

Where A for consideration relinquished a property to B who was and continued to be in possession but no conveyance was executed, held that in as much as B could have sued A for specific performance of the contract and B could have successfully resisted a suit to recover possession by C, the equitable doctrine of part performance applied and A was precluded from setting up any title against C: Khagendra v. Sonatan, 20 C.W.N. 149, which distinguished the case of Jadu Nath v. Ruplal, 33 Cal. 967, s. c., 4 C.L.J. 22, s. c., 10 C.W.N. 650. See also the case of Walsh v. Lonsdale, L.R. 21 Ch. Disclaimer.

The case of Hemendra Nath v. Kumar Nath, 12 C.W.N. 438 was thus explained by Mookerjee and N. Chatterjea J.J., in the case of Mathura Mohan v. Ram Kumar, 43 Cal. 790 (at page 807), s. c., 20 C.W.N. 370:—"The decision in Hemendra Nath v. Kumar Nath is distinguishable: there this court held upon a construction of all the terms of the particular instrument that though called a deed of disclaimer it created as a deed of transfer: the court did not formulate any general proposition of universal application that a deed of release has always the same operation as a conveyance."*

Where a landlord brought a suit for rent and the tenant set up the title of another defendant who admitted plaintiff's title, held that plaintiff was entitled to a decree: Sreemati Sukumari Gupta v. Bharat Mondal, 20 C.L.J. 148.

Transfer without any registered instrument.

Although under s. 12 all transfers of permanent tenures are to be made by registered instruments, it was held in a case where a purchaser under an unregistered conveyance paid the agreed price to his vendor and was placed in possession, that in the absence of circumstances shewing that such purchaser was not entitled to sue his vendor for specific performance a subsequent purchaser of the property under a registered conveyance could not succeed in a suit to recover possession of the property from the former purchaser: Puchha Lal v. Kunj Behari, 18 C.W.N. 445.†

As to liability for rent after transfer, see notes under s. 65.

6. Transfer of a share :—See notes under s. 11.

Transfer, when complete.

The transfer of a portion of a tenure is complete upon registration, although the landlord's fee was not paid and no notice of the transfer was given to him: Ali Mahamud v. Aftabuddin, 20 C.W.N. 354†, but where the purchaser allowed his vendor to represent him

* In construing the terms of a deed evidence of the intention of the parties thereon is admissible; for the question is not what the parties may have intended, but what is the meaning of the words which they used: Manindra Chandra v. Durga Prasad, 25 C.L.J. 567.

before the landlord, paying rent in the latter's name, the landlord may sue the old tenant without impleading the purchaser, and the sale in execution of the decree passes the entire tenure: Ibid.

7. Putni Tenure :—Nothing in this Act shall affect any enactment relating to putni tenures, in so far as it relates to those tenures. [s. 195 cl. (e)]. The Patni Regulation (VIII of 1819) provides rules relating to transfer of Patni tenures; therefore ss. 12 and 13 have no application to such tenures. But ss. 15 and 16 which relate to the rules of succession apply to Patni tenures as there are no rules of succession in Reg. VIII of 1819. Putni-tenure ss. 12 and 13 do not apply to Putni tenures but ss. 15 and 16 apply.

"The Regulation (VIII of 1819) provides rules for the alienation of the whole or a part of a paini taluk, and that cannot be affected by anything in the Bengal Tenancy Act by force of s. 195 (e). The appellant's argument therefore, which is that the Bengal Tenancy Act applies to the alienation of part of a putni taluk, because its operation is consistent with the provisions of Reg. VIII of 1819 must fail, in so far as it is sought to show that alienation of a part of a putni is valid without the registration with the zemindar"—Per Stephen and Mullick J.J., Shaizuddin v. Mathura Mohon, 18 C.W.N. 338. The registration of the sale of the whole or a part of a putni taluk under s. 12 does not give the purchaser an interest in the land by force of ss. 12 and 17: Ibid. A partial transferee of a putni tenure is not entitled to be recognised by the zemindar, Rakhal Chandra v. Umapada, 1 C.W.N. 629; it is a form of transfer which under the terms of ss. 5 and 6 of Reg. VIII of 1819 the zemindar is not bound to recognise, and, under s. 195 (e) of the Bengal Tenancy Act the transferee cannot claim recognition by reason of ss. 12 and 17: Ibid. This Act is not applicable to transfer of a putni tenure: Gyanoda v. Brohmomoy, 17 Cal. 162; Surendra Nath v. Tincourie, 20 Cal. 247, but applies to the transfer of dur-putni tenures: Mahamedan v. Brajasundari, 18 Cal. 360.* A durputni is a permanent tenure governed by the provisions of the B. T. Act: Kanai Lal v. Basanta Behari, 29 C.W.N. 1020 at p. 1024, s. c., 42 C.L.J. 490. Reg. VIII of 1819.
Partial transfer.
Dar-putni.

Until the transfer of a Patni tenure has been transferred the original Patnidar remains the tenant and there is no relationship of landlord and tenant between the landlord and the transferee. The obligation imposed by s. 5 of the Patni Regulation on the transferee of a Patni tenure to have his name recorded in the landlord's sherista, applies to a purchaser in execution of a decree, other than a decree for arrears of rent due from the tenure: Shaikh Abdul Guffur v. Downing, 5 Pat. 415.

8. Rules as to transfer in the Transfer of Property Act :—The provisions of s. 59 of the Transfer of Property Act must be held to be subject to this section and therefore a mortgage of a permanent tenure not exceeding Rs. 100 in value can only be effected by a registered instrument: Soshi Bhusan v. Mahadeb, 2 C.W.N. 499. It seems that the provisions of s. 54 of the Transfer of Transfer of Property Act ss. 54, 59.

*According to s. 54 of the Transfer of Property Act, where a property not exceeding Rs. 100 was sold not by a registered instrument, it was held that the sale was invalid as there was no transfer by delivery of property although the vendee had been in possession from before: Shibendrapada v. Secretary of State, 5 C.L.J. 390. s. 54, Tr. P. Act.

Property Act and s. 17 of the Indian Registration Act are also subject to this section.†

9. Collector :—All officers in charge of sub-divisions have been invested with the powers of a Collector for the purpose of discharging the functions referred to in ss. 12, 13, and 15 of this Act: Calcutta Gazette, 1886, (Pt. I., p. 1092). See notes under s. 3 cl. (16).

Mere registration may not pass title where the parties intend otherwise.

10. Registration :—Though no title passes except upon registration of the conveyance, yet mere registration may not be sufficient to pass a good title; if the parties intend that no title shall pass upon registration till the consideration money has been paid and the deed delivered, the law will give effect to such intention. Registration is prima facie proof of intention to transfer the title and the party who alleges the existence of a collateral agreement must strictly prove it: Sheo Nandan Singh v. Darbari Mahton, 2 C.W.N. 207.

Transfer of Property Act, s. 123.

The words “registered instrument” as used in s. 123 of the Transfer of Property Act mean a document registered under the Indian Registration Act and are not limited to a document registered by the donor, so where a deed of gift executed by a person was registered after his death by his widow, held that it was a valid registered instrument: Bhabatosh v. Soleman, 4 C.L.J. 340.

A decree passed before the passing of Bengal Act I of 1903 but pending in appeal at the commencement of that Act is governed by s. 1 of that Act as not being final, so that Plaintiff's claim for rent would not be liable to dismissal on the ground that the transfer to the Plaintiff was invalid by reason of the landlord's fee not having been paid as required by s. 12 of the Bengal Tenancy Act: *Peary Mohun v. † The omission by a transferee from a putnidar to pay a fee and security to the Zamindar does not affect in any way his title. His rights are perfected upon the transfer by the putnidar and are not in any way contingent for their validity upon the payment of the fee and the security. The only effect of the failure of the transferee to secure registration of his name is that the landlord is not bound to recognise his purchase, and may sell up the tenure in execution of a decree for arrears of rent obtained against the registered tenant. The status of a Putnidar or Darputnidar does not depend upon registration by or consent of the zemindars: Ganpat Singh v. Moti Chand, 16 C.L.J. 301.

Confirmation of sale without payment of landlord's fee.

6. Effect of non-payment of landlord's fee :—This section prohibits the confirmation of sale unless prior to the confirmation the purchaser pays into Court the fee prescribed by this section, and where a sale is confirmed although such fee is not paid, the previous holder of the tenure is liable for rent accruing subsequent to the confirmation, the sale being invalid ; the legislature intended by enacting s. 13 to prohibit the confirmation of a sale such as is contemplated by the section unless prior to the confirmation the purchaser pays into Court the fees for which the section provides : Babar Ali v. Krishna Kamini, 26 Cal. 603, s. c., 3 C.W.N. 531. But it has been enacted by s. 1 of Act I (B.C.) of 1903 that no transfer "shall be deemed to be invalid merely on the ground that the landlord's fee prescribed.....has not been paid." It was however decided under the old Act that a transfer is not invalid because a purchaser has not got his name registered in the landlord's sheristha : Bharut Roy v. Gunga Narain, 14 W.R. 211.

A Court has jurisdiction to take landlord's fee after confirmation of sale when it was not paid before : Mohesh Chunder v. Hari Mohon, 7 C.W.N. 388. Maclean C.J., in delivering judgment in this case observed as follows :—It was the duty of the Court to confirm the sale after seeing that the landlord's fee had been paid. The Court failed in that. There is no limit of time within which an application must be made, if an application be necessary for the confirmation of the sale, and no question of limitation arises. The Court has only done now what it ought to have done before, and no question of amending a decree or order, and no question, of review really arises. There is nothing in the practice of the Court to prevent it from doing what it has done, and as has been pointed out by the Privy Council, it is the duty of the Court to be vigilant not to allow the act of the Court itself to do wrong to a suitor.

Where a sale is confirmed without payment of landlord's fee the judgment-debtor cannot object to the auction-purchaser's taking possession : Mohim Chunder v. Ram Lochan, 7 C.W.N. 591 ; such an objection comes within s. 244, C.P.C. ; Ibid. See notes under s. 1 of Act I (B.C.) of 1903 under heading ADDITIONAL NOTES TO ss. 12, 13, 17 and 18 under sec. 18 ; and also Act I (B.C.) of 1903 under sec. 18.

7. Effect of non-service of notice :—The mere failure to serve the notice under the provisions of sec. 13 of the B. T. Act does not invalidate the auction sale. Barada Prasad v. Taraknath, 94 I.C. 147 s. c., 1926 A.I.R. (Cal.) 844. (Greaves and Dival J.J.). The payment of the landlord's fee and the payment of the fee for service of notice are really one and the same transaction. Ibid.

8. Effect of non-registration of name in the landlord's sheristha :—In a case under Act X of 1859 it was held that a purchaser of a transferable tenure who had not registered his name in the landlord's sheritha had no right to maintain a suit to have it declared that a sale of the tenure at the instance of the landlord against the recorded tenant was null and void and that he had no locus standi against the auction-purchaser and had no right to impugn the title of the auction-purchaser under the sale: Patit Shahu v. Harimati, 27 Cal. 79; see also Sham Chand v. Braja Nath, 21 W.R. 94, s. c., 12 B.L.R. 484.

Effect of non-registration of name in landlord's sheristha—Case under Act X of 1859.

9. Purchaser at execution sale purchases the tenure charged with the rent which is due:—A person who purchases a tenure at an execution sale must, in the absence of anything to denote the contrary, be taken to purchase it, charged with the rent which is due in respect of it at the time of its purchase and there being no privity between him and the judgment-debtor, he cannot recover from the latter the money which he is obliged to pay for the rent so due at the time of the purchase; so where a plaintiff in execution of a mortgage decree purchased the tenure mortgaged, and then paid the money due under a decree obtained by the landlord against the tenure-holder for arrears of rent for the period anterior to the confirmation of sale, held that the plaintiff was not entitled to recover the money paid by him for satisfying the rent decree: Maharanee v. Harendra Lall, 1 C.W.N. 408. See notes under s. 65.

Purchaser at execution sale cannot recover from the former holder of the tenure the arrear of rent paid by him.

10. Suit for rent when a putni is sold:—Where a purchaser of a putni at an execution sale did not get his name registered in the zemindar's sheristha, it was held that a suit for rent by the zemindar against the old tenant lay and that the right of the zemindar was not affected by the existence of the remedy under s. 7 of Reg. VIII of 1819: Surendra Nath v. Tincowri, 20 Cal. 247; see also Lukminarain v. Khetter Pal Singh, 13 B.L.R. 146.

S. 14 stood as follows:—

14. When a permanent tenure is transferred by sale in execution of a decree for arrears of rent due in respect thereof, the Court shall send to the Collector a notice of the sale in the prescribed form.

*Note:—*The object of the framers of the Bengal Tenancy Act in inserting the section was to facilitate the registration of tenures by the Collectors. Since all idea of such registration was abandoned, the retention of the section was no longer considered necessary.

15. When a succession to a permanent tenure takes place, the person succeeding shall give notice of the succession to the Collector in the prescribed form, and shall pay to the Collector the prescribed fee for the service of the notice on the landlord and the landlord's fee prescribed by section 12, together with the costs necessary for its transmission to the landlord, and the Collector shall cause the landlord's fee to be transmit-

VIII of 1819, i.e., the Putni Regulation is not affected by this Act but as the Putni regulation does not provide rules for the registration of names of the opening out of succession, ss. 15 and 16 of this Act are applicable to Putni tenures ; (see Durga v. Brindaban, 19 Cal. 504).

4. Notice of succession :—A landlord is not bound to find out who all the heirs of a deceased tenure-holder are, and where the defendant was admittedly one of the heirs and in possession as such he is liable for the rent, and he cannot defeat the plaintiff's suit by shewing that there were other heirs equally liable, unless he also shews that their names were notified to the landlord as successors of the original holder, or that they have been paying rent and getting receipts as successors: Khetter Mohan v. Pran Kristo, 3 C.W.N. 371.

5. Succession: Registration of name :—The Bengal Tenancy Act makes it obligatory upon the tenants to have their names recorded in the landlord's shereshta whenever they became entitled to them by succession ; when therefore one of the tenants gets his name registered, it may be presumed that he represents the other tenants. But this rule applies only to tenures and not to holdings: Jaideb Thakur v. Jamahir, 69 I.C. 565, s. c., [1923 Pat. 57].

tions.

It is submitted that the decision is based upon an erroneous assumption that on the death of a permanent tenure-holder all the heirs are bound to register their names in the landlord's office. There is no such law. The only penalty for non-registration is as provided in s. 16. Non-registration of the name of an heir does not render him liable to the landlord for any decree in which he is not a party. The rule of representation is based on a different principle, and it is a question of fact in each case to be decided as to whether the registered tenant represents others.

The mere failure of the heirs of a recorded permanent tenure holder to cause their names to be registered in the landlord's office, does not entitle the landlord to affect their interest by sale in execution issued in a suit against a person who to the knowledge of the landlord, had no interest in the property to which he did not cause his name to be registered under s. 15 but simply registered his name in the landlord's office: Provas Chandra v. Jaharaddin, 32 C.L.J. 77.

An heir not bound by a decree in which he is not a party.

Where no notice was given under s. 15 by the heirs of a permanent tenure-holder, held that a decree for arrear of rent against one of the heirs would not bind the other heirs, and their interest is not affected by the sale of the tenure: Faijunnessa v. Ramtaran, 26 C.W.N. 138. In order to bind all the tenants, it is to be established that all the tenants have held one of them as their representative in their transactions with the landlord: Ibid. Failure on the part of heirs to comply with the requirements of s. 15 does not necessarily entitle the landlord to treat one of the several heirs of the original tenure-holder as representative of the tenancy: Ibid.

Suit for rent against one of the heirs.

The case in 26 C.W.N. 138 was followed in the case of Ambika Charan v. Hara Kishore, 103 I.C. 707, s. c., 1927 A.I.R. (Cal.) 825.

The omission to notify succession to a permanent tenure has only the result that the person succeeding to the tenure shall not be entitled to recover by a suit or any other proceeding any rent payable to him by the subordinate tenants, but it does not effect his interest in the tenure in any other way. The landlord, however, is entitled to sell the tenure in execution of a rent decree against his recorded tenants: but if, one of the recorded tenants is dead, he cannot by omitting his name in a suit brought for the rent of the tenure affect the interest of the heirs of the deceased tenant. The landlord must do one of two things. He must proceed either against the real tenants who are in actual occupation of the tenure or against the recorded tenants: Susila Sundari v. Tarak, 97 I.C. 489 s. c., A.I.R. (1927) Cal. 81 (B. B. Ghosh and Graham J.J.).

No person shall be bound to pay rent to any person claiming such rent as proprietor or manager of an estate or revenue-free property in respect of which he is required by this Act to cause his name to be registered, or as mortgagee unless the name of such claimant shall have been registered under this Act; and no person being liable to pay rent to two or more such proprietors, managers, or mortgagees holding in common tenancy, shall be bound to pay to any one of such proprietor, manager or mortgagee more than the amount which bears the same proportion to the whole of such rent as the extent of the interest in respect of which such proprietor, manager or mortgagee is registered bears to the entire estate or revenue-free property.

lord was not bound to accept any rent from the donee unless the latter got his name registered after the alleged gift: Sailesh Chandra v. Kumar Bonwari, 13 C.W.N. ccxlix (299 notes); as the judgment has not been fully reported, it does not appear whether there was any argument addressed to the court that the landlord was bound to register the donee's name on the registration of the deed of gift.

6. Construction :—This section is a penal one and ought to be strictly construed: Shariff v. Jogemaya, 27 Cal. 535. Section penal.

7. When the section applies and when it does not :—In a case where the plaintiffs brought a suit as reversionary heirs to their father's estate after their mother's death the suit was maintainable so far as it related to the claim during their mother's lifetime although their mother had not complied with the provisions of s. 15 of the Act: Sheriff v. Jogemaya, 27 Cal. 535. Suit by successor when previous owner did not comply with s. 15. Suit by shebait on the death of another shebait.

The right to provision and management is a dedicated property belongs to the shebait and the right to bring a suit for rent is invested in the shebait and not in the idol; consequently when on the death of one shebait another shebait succeeds to a permanent tenure and does not according to s. 15 of the Bengal Tenancy Act give a notice of succession to the landlord, s. 16 is an effective bar to the recovery of a decree for rent: Mabatulla v. Nalini Sundari, 10 C.W.N. 42 s. c., 2 C.L.J. 377.

S. 16 does not apply to a suit for rent brought by a surviving administrator (Bipro Das v. Pachi Bibi, 5 Ind. Cas. 434) or by a receiver appointed in a partition suit: Harendra v. Abanish, 7 Ind. Cas. 761. Surviving administrator.

See notes under s. 15.

8. Effect of registration of name in the landlord's sheristha without payment of landlord's fee to the Collector :—It seems from the wording of the section that it is compulsory on a person succeeding to a permanent tenure to act in accordance with s. 15 to enable him to recover rent by suit, distraint or other proceeding. Although the landlord may recognise the successor as his tenant without receiving the fees through the Collector, yet the terms of the section seem to be imperative. Non-payment of landlord's fee.

1. Suit by unregistered proprietor maintainable and it is sufficient if the registration is made before decree :—The rule laid down in the case of Dharani Dhar Sen v. Wazidunnissa Khatoon, 16 Cal. 708 note, and Surya Kanta Acharya v. Hemanta Kumari Devi, 16 Cal. 706, that it is a condition precedent under this section that a person must be registered as proprietor or manager before he can bring a suit for arrears of rent, has not been, according to the decision in the case of Abdul Khair v. Meher Ali, 3 C.W.N. 384, expressly overruled by the Full Bench case of Alimuddin v. Hira Lal, 23 Cal. 87, but the effect of the decision of the majority of the Judges was that apart from the provisions of s. 60 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, ss. 78 and 79 of the Land Registration Act, did not prevent an unregistered proprietor from bringing a suit for arrears of rent, and following this principle it was held that a suit for arrears of rent cannot be dismissed merely on the ground of the plaintiff's name not being registered under the Land Registration Act at the time the suit was brought and it is sufficient if the name is registered before the decree is made: Abdul Khair v. Meher Ali, 3 C.W.N. 381; see also Harekrishna v. Brindaban, 1 C.W.N. 72; Alimuddin v. Hira Lal, 23 Cal. 87 (F.B.); Belchambers v. Nawab Syed Hussain, 2 C.W.N. 493. Dharani Dhar v. Wazidunnissa, not expressly overruled by the Full Bench case of Alimuddin v. Hira Lal.

2. Suit by legal representative of deceased proprietor :—The provisions of this Act relating to registration do not apply to the case of a person who is seeking to recover rent as the representative of a deceased proprietor whose name was registered, the rent having become due during the lifetime of that When this section does not apply.

Tenancies created after succession opens out.

9. Rent due for tenancies created after succession opens out :—After succession opens out, if any new tenancies are created by the tenure-holder, it seems that this section should be no bar to a suit for rent of such tenancies in as much as these tenancies were no part of the tenure when succession opened out.

Suit not to be dismissed if one of several plaintiffs does not comply with ss. 15 and 16.

10. Non-compliance of s. s. 15 and 16 by some several co-sharers :—S. 16 of the Bengal Tenancy Act was not intended to defeat in its entirety a suit brought by one of several land-holders, who is not in default, merely by reason of the failure of his cosharer to comply with the requirements of s. 15 ; in a suit to obtain a decree in respect of the entire rent payable to the co-sharers who are not disqualified under s. 16, and if the other co-sharers do not comply with the requirements of s. 15 before the decree is made, the remainder of the claim should not be dismissed : Tarini Charan v. Chandra Kumar, 12 C.L.J. 1, s. c., 14 C.W.N. 788. See footnote para No. 3 under s. 16.

II. Penal section : this section does not apply to a transferee :—This section is a penal section and must be strictly construed, and it does not apply in the case of a transferee from an heir of a permanent tenure-holder when the transferee brings a rent suit for the period which became due to the transferor : Mesbahuddin v. Abdul Barkat, 34 C.L.J. 119 ; the case of Iswar Chandra v. Kali Charan, 27 C.L.J. 434 was dissented from and the decisions in the case in 24 I.C. 866 and unreported S.A. 1624 of 1919 were followed.

A co-sharer landlord, if competent to bring a suit.

If a co-sharer landlord is incompetent to bring a suit for not having served a notice under s. 15 of the B. T. Act the other co-sharer may bring a suit for his share of the rent by making the former a party defendant although such co-sharer ordinarily has no right to bring a suit for his share of the rent : Nibaran Chandra v. Nabin Chandra, A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 297.

proprietor : Belchambers v. Sir Syed Hussain, 3 C.W.N. 494. Where an arrear of rent fell due during the life time of A whose name was registered under the Land Registration Act, a suit for rent by B, his son, for that rent due to his father is maintainable although B's name is not registered, the principle being that B is suing not as a proprietor but as the legal representative of the late registered proprietor, Nagendra Nath v. Satadalbashini, 3 C.W.N. 294, and the same rule applies where a registered proprietor after bringing the suit dies and his legal representative gets himself substituted : Pramada Sundari v. Kanai Lal, 27 Cal. 178.

When some of several joint proprietors are registered.

3. Suit by proprietors of whom some are registered :—If some of several joint landlords get their names registered under the Land Registration Act in respect of fractional shares, all the landlords may jointly sue for the entire rent but will get a decree only for a share of the rent proportionate to the share in respect of which their names are registered : Gobinda Chandra v. Ishan Chandra, 2 C.W.N. 609 ; s. c. 25 Cal. 787.

4. Suit in case of previous amicable payment of rent :—Section 78 of the Land Registration Act does not cease to be applicable merely because the plaintiff establishes that defendant has previously paid rent to him amicably, or because he brought the defendant upon the land there is no question of estoppel : Bangshi Badan v. Kamalakant, 26 C.L.J. 90.

5. Suit for rent by assignee from unregistered proprietor :—S. 78 of the Land Registration Act has no application to the case of a person to whom rent has been assigned by a proprietor whose name has not been registered under the Act : Syed Serapat Hossein v. Tarini Prasad, 11 C.W.N. 141.

6. Transfer of proprietorship :—Under s. 78 of the Land Registration Act it is immaterial how the transfer of proprietorship is effected, whether it is a case of transfer by purchase or a case of transfer by succession : Punuk Lal Mundur v. Thakur Prasad, 25 Cal. 747.

17. Subject to the provisions of Section 88, the foregoing sections shall apply to the transfer of, or succession to, a share in a permanent tenure.

Transfer of and succession to, share in permanent tenure.

Headings of Notes.

1. TRANSFER OF, OR SUCCESSION TO, A SHARE.
2. RIGHT OF A TRANSFEREE.
3. AMOUNT OF LANDLORD'S FEE.
4. LIABILITY FOR RENT ON TRANSFER OF A PORTION.
5. DECREE FOR RENT EXCLUDING THE TRANSFEREE.

1. Transfer of, or succession to, a share :—Ss. 17 and 18 recognise the transfer of a share of a holding and entitle the transferee to claim to be regarded as one of the tenants in respect of the holding and therefore the transferee is entitled to sue for possession by setting aside a sale in execution of a decree to which he was not a party: Mohesh Chandra v. Saroda Prasad, 21 Cal. 433 ; in respect of a permanent tenure, an heir as well as a transferee, even though of a part, is entitled to compel the landlord to recognise him under ss. 15 and 17: Ananda Kumar v. Hari Das, 27 Cal. 545 (at p. 549) ; and if the transfer is of a part only of the tenure the transferee and the original tenant are jointly liable for the rent ; Sreemutty Jogemaya v. Girindra Nath, 4 C.W.N. 590. A landlord is bound to recognise the transfer of a portion although in the absence of his written consent as required by s. 88 he is not bound to recognise any subdivision of the tenancy: Baistab Charan v. Akhil Chandra, 11 C.W.N. 217. A subdivision of the holding or distribution of rent is not binding on the landlord unless the provisions of s. 88 are complied with: Rammoyi v. Rupai Pramanick 13 C.L.J. 267.

Transferee of a share entitled to be recognised by landlord.

2. Right of a transferee :—A person who purchases a share in a permanent transferable tenure is entitled to a declaration of his right to that share and for possession of the same after setting aside the sale held in execution of a decree to which he was not made a party although the landlord may not be obliged to recognise the division of the tenancy he may yet be obliged to recognise the transfer: Kali Kumar v. Bidhu Bhusan 16 C.L.J. 19 ; see also Mohesh v. Saroda, 21 Cal. 439 ; Kali Sundari v. Dharani Kant Lahiri, 33 Cal. 279 ; Ananda Kumar v. Hari Das, 27 Cal. 545.

Transferee of a share

“The landlord is not bound to recognise any subdivision of the holding, unless the provisions of ss. 12 and 17 of the Act have been strictly complied with, or to sue to recover rent of the holding from

7. Manager under the Bengal Tenancy Act :—A manager appointed under the provisions of s. 95 of the Bengal Tenancy Act must have his name registered before he can recover rent: Maqubul Ahmed v. Girish Chandra 22 Cal. 634.

8. Actual Registration necessary :—The Land Registration Act requires actual registration of name in order to enable a person to recover rent, and a mere order of the Civil Court for registration is not sufficient: Ugramohun Bedeshi, 5 C.W.N. 360.

9. Registration in specific mouzahs not necessary :—The Land Registration Act does not require the co-sharers of an estate registration in the several mauzahs comprising the estate but only in the estate: Paresh Mont v. Naba Kishore, 8 C.W.N. 193. See also Deokisingh v. Subhan Roy, 8 C.W.N. 196. See notes under s. 6.

any body except the persons whom the landlord has recognised as the tenants." Rammoyi Dasi v. Rupai Pramanick, 13 C.L.J. 267.

The registration of a sale of the whole or a part of a putni tenure under s. 12 does not give the purchaser an interest in the land by force of ss. 12 and 17: Shaiuddin v. Mathura Mohun, 18 C.W.N. 338. A partial transferee of a putni tenure is not entitled to be recognised by the Zamindar: Rakhal v. Umapada, 18 C.W.N. 629: see notes under s. 12.

Landlord's fee when an undivided share is transferred.

3. Amount of landlord's fee :—When an undivided share or a portion of an entire tenure is transferred, it seems that the landlord's fee should be assessed upon the entire rent of the tenure and not upon the unassessed proportionate amount of rent, for s. 12 provides that the landlord's fee is to be paid upon the rent of the tenure, and therefore it seems that the landlord's fee is not to be assessed upon the proportionate rate which may be assessed upon the portion transferred. The transferee of a portion or of an undivided share is jointly and severally liable for the entire rent to the landlord; therefore it seems that he is not entitled to pay the landlord's fee upon a proportionate share of the rent.

Liability for rent on transfer of
a portion.

4. Liability for rent on transfer of a portion :—When a permanent tenure-holder transferred in succession portions of his tenure, held that his liability for rent ceased after the last transfer: Kishori Raman v. Ananto Ram, 10 C.W.N. 270. The transferee of a portion cease to have any liability after the transfer of that portion: Kali Sundari v. Dharani Kant, 10 C.W.N. 272. But where a tenure-holder sold a portion of his tenure, held that the landlord was not bound in a suit for rent to make the transferee a party: Rammoyi, v. Rupai Pramanick, 9 C.W.N. cxxiii (123 notes), since fully reported 13 C.L.J. 267.

Where a share of a putni is sold, the purchaser is liable for rent if the landlord chooses to recognise him: Aosabali v. Bisseshuri, 8 C.L.J. 554.

See notes under s. 12.

5. Decree for rent excluding the transferee :—Where a share of a permanent tenure is sold the landlord is bound to recognise the transferee as one of the joint tenants, and unless there has been a division of the tenure under s. 88, all the joint tenants including the transferee are jointly and severally liable to pay the rent.

As to whether a suit for rent lies against one or some of several joint tenants, and as to the effect of such a decree: see notes under s. 65.

(a) shall be subject to the same provisions with respect to the transfer of, and succession to, his holding as the holder of a permanent tenure, and

(b) shall not be ejected by his landlord, except on the ground that he has broken a condition consistent with this Act, and on breach of which he is, under the terms of a contract between him and his landlord, liable to be ejected.

8. ADDITIONAL RENT FOR ADDITIONAL AREA : RATE OF RENT.
9. ADDITIONAL NOTES TO SS. 12, 13 17 & 18: ACT I (B.C.) OF 1903.

I. Fixed Rate :—The rule of law laid down in Bansi Das v. Jagadip, 24 Cal. 152, that the presumption, according to s. 50, will not convert an occupancy raiyat into a raiyat at fixed rate has been overruled by the decision in the case of Dulhin Golab v. Dulla Kurmi, 25 Cal. 744, s. c.; 2 C.W.N. 580 (decided by a Special Bench of five Judges). Where a tenant proved that he had been holding at a uniform rental for a period exceeding 20 years, held that apart from s. 50 of the Bengal Tenancy Act it can be presumed he is a raiyat holding at a rent fixed in perpetuity. Gulab Misser v. Kumar Kalanand 12 C.L.J. 107. Also see Nandlal v. Atarmani, 36 Cal. 763, s. c.; 12 C.W.N. 432; see notes under s. 50 under heading "Where the presumption under this section applies and where not."

Where in a kabuliyat the stipulation was "Whatever increase in the production of the soil you may effect and whatever measurement and jamabandi you may make, I shall abide by the same," held that the raiyat was not a raiyat at fixed rate: Raj Kumar v. Naya Chetoo, 6 C.W.N. 960.

The word "Kaimi" does not import fixity of rent: Fazal v. Sheikh Keramaddi, 6 C.W.N. 916. The use of the term 'Kaimi'

CHAPTER V.

OCCUPANCY-RAIYATS.

General.

Note:—Nothing in this chapter shall confer a right of occupancy in proprietor's private lands. See s. 116. But the provisions of this chapter are not inapplicable to all tenancies in proprietor's private lands: they do not apply only when it is proved that the land is held under a lease for a term of years or under a lease from year to year: Denonath v. Meghu Mahton, 5 C.L.J. 181.

Continuance of existing
rights.

19. (1) Every raiyat who immediately before the commencement of this Act or the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Act, 1907, has, by the operation of any enactment, by custom, or otherwise, a right of occupancy in any land, shall, when this Act or the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Act, 1907, comes into force, have a right of occupancy in that land.

(2) The exclusion from the operation of this Act, by a notification under sub-section (3) of section I, of any area constituted a Municipality under the provisions of the Bengal Municipal Act, 1884, or of any part of such area, or the inclusion of any area in the town of Calcutta

19. (1) Every raiyat who, immediately before the commencement of this Act has, by the operation of any enactment, by custom, or otherwise, a right of occupancy in any land, shall, when this Act comes into force, have a right of occupancy in that land.

(2) The exclusion from the operation of this Act, by a notification under sub-section (3) of section 1, of any area constituted a Municipality under the provisions of the Bengal Municipal Act, 1884, or of any part of such area, shall not affect any right, obligation or liability pre-imports not fixity of rent but only permanence of occupation of the land: Meher Ali v. Kalai Khalasi, 10 C.W.N. 1129; see also Gayratulla v. Girish, 12 C.W.N. 175; Nadiram v. Srinath, 24 C.W.N. 93.

As to the meaning of the word mokurari: See notes under s. 179.

Sthayee Karsha স্থায়ী কর্ষা Kabulyat does not necessarily imply that the grantee was intended to have a permanent heritable interest: Meher Ali v. Kalai Khalasi, 19 C.W.N. 1129.

Presump-
tion.

A raiyat who under the presumption under s. 50 (2) is deemed to have held at a rent which has not been changed from the time of the Permanent settlement comes within the definition of a raiyat holding at a fixed rate within the meaning of s. 4 sub-sec. (3): Kshirod Chandra v. Rajendra Narayan, 38 I.C. 94.

Incidents.

2. Incidents of a raiyati holding at fixed rate :—This section does not make all the incidents of a permanent tenure applicable to a *raiya*ti holding at fixed rates, but makes only the provisions with respect to transfer and succession applicable. Nilmony v. Mothura Nath, 4 C.W.N. clxx (159 notes;) s. c., 5 C.L.J. 413.

The word "transfer" includes "lease" also, and therefore s. 85 is controlled by this section, and a fixed raiyat can therefore grant leases in the same way as a permanent tenure holder: Harimohan v. Atul Krishna, 19 C.W.N. 1127; Amar Chand v. Prasanna Dassi, 25 C.W.N. 9. See also notes under sec. 85. A raiyat at fixed rate can make a deposit under s. 170, cl. (3): Harimohan v. Atul Krishna, 19 C.W.N. 1127.

"There is nothing in the law which prevents tenants having permanent heritable rights at a fixed rent from using the land in any manner they think fit so long as there is no risk to the right of the landlord to recover the rent payable, and I think it is now settled that unless there are any reservations, the landlord has no right in the case of such tenures other than the right to receive the stipulated rent": Barada Prasad Banerjee v. Bhupendra Nath Mookerjee, 50 Cal. 694, (Per B. B. Ghose J., Walmsley J., agreeing).

See notes under s. 85.

The restriction imposed by s. 48 on the amount of rent that a raiyat can recover from an under raiyat has no application in the case of a raiyat at a fixed rate of rent, the section being governed by s. 18. In other words, s. 18 controls s. 48 as it does s. 85: Raj Kumar v. Ramani Mohon, 104 I.C. 150, s. c., 1927 A.I.R. (Cal.) 878. A raiyat at fixed rate can cut and appropriate trees. See notes under heading No. 6.

Rent here
rent.

3. Produce rent :—The word "rent" in this section includes "rent in kind." A raiyat paying as rent a fixed quantity of paddy is a raiyat at fixed rent: Dinanath v. Sati Prasad, 27 C.W.N. 115, s. c., 36 C.L.J. 220; Manmatha v. Probodh, 73 I.C. 416. See notes under ss. 4 and 50.

4. Status of a raiyat at fixed rate and that of an occupancy raiyat in the same person :—See notes under sec. 4, heading No. 7 and under sec. 160.

5. Permanent raiyati lease by a widow :—A permanent *raiya*ti lease of land in which the grantor has the qualified interest of a Hindu female heir is invalid: but the lessees would nevertheless acquire occupancy right in the holding after 12 years possession as raiyat: Ichamoyi v. Kailash Chandra, 18 C.W.N. 358.

6. Trees :—A raiyat holding at fixed rent or rate of rent has the right to cut and appropriate trees: Radikanath v. Samir Fakir, 21 C.W.N. 636 (Fletcher and Richardson J.J.). See also Sarada v. Gonee, 10 W. R. 419 and Goluck v. Naba Soondari, 21 W.R. 344. See also Midnapur Zemindary Co. v. Jagat Chandra, 1925 A.I.R. (Cal.) 139 (Walmsley and Suhrawardy, J.J.) and Eshaque Sheikh v. Matilal, 81 I. C. 1043. S. 23 of this Act which provides the rule relating to the right to trees applies only to occupancy raiyats. The Act is therefore silent in this respect in regard to fixed raiyati holdings.

Right of raiyat at fixed rate to cut and appropriate trees.

It was decided in a case in regard to a holding which was neither agricultural nor horticultural and which was created before the Transfer of Property Act, that the property in the trees planted by the lessee after a kaimi lease had been granted does not rest in the landlord: Mofiz Sheikh v. Rasik Lal Ghose, 37 Cal. 815, s. c. 14 C.W.N. 952, s. c. 12 C.L.J. 246.

This case was distinguished and dissented from by Suhrawardy and Graham JJ. in the case of Kedarnath Bose v. Gobinda Chandra Dass, 32 C.W.N. 366, who following the case of Nafar Chandra v. Ramlal, 22 Cal. 742, held, that in the case of non-permanent tenancies which were created before the Transfer of Property Act, the property in the trees standing on the land when the tenancy was created as also in the trees planted and grown by the tenant, is in the landlord and the tenant can have a right to them only if there be any custom or usage to the contrary.

In the case of tenancies created after the Transfer of Property Act and governed by it, the ownership of trees is in the tenant except of those standing on the land at the time the tenancy was created. The prohibition contained in sec. 108 cl. (o) of the Transfer of Property Act against felling timber applies only to timber that stood on the land at the time of the lease; to timber subsequently grown, the lessee will be entitled under cl. (h) of the section.—Ibid.

7. Right of the assignee of a permanent tenant for declaration as such :—An assignee of a lease has the right to bring a suit for a declaration that the lease is permanent, heritable, transferable and that the rent is fixed in perpetuity and that the lessor is bound to recognise the plaintiff as a tenant: Monomohan Ghose v. Equitable Coal Co., 18 C.W.N. 596.

8. Additional rent for additional area : Rate of Rent :—Where rent was originally fixed at the rate of two annas per bigha and subsequently on the discovery of an additional area the excess area was assessed at two annas per bigha and it was agreed that on the discovery of further excess land the same would be assessed at the same rate, held that the rent was fixed in perpetuity at two annas per bigha: Amarnath v. Krishna Das, 35 C.L.J. 138, (Mookerjee and Panton J.J.).

9. Additional notes to ss. 12, 13, 17 and 18 : Act I (B. C.) of 1903.

Mistake in payment of landlord's fee :—An auction sale was confirmed by the Court overlooking through mistake the fact that no landlord's fee was paid under s. 13 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. Subsequently on the discovery of the mistake the purchaser applied for the confirmation of the sale after payment of the landlord's fee, and the Court passed an order to that effect: held that the order was good and the Court has jurisdiction to pass such an order : Mohesh v. Hari Mohon, 7 C.W.N. 388.

Confirmation of sale without previous payment of landlord's fee :—Where the sale of a permanent tenure was confirmed without previous payment of the landlord's fee in the manner required by sec. 13 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, and the judgment-debtor objected to the auction-purchaser's application for being put into possession under sec. 318, C.P.C., on the ground that the sale was invalid : Held—That the question was one under sec. 244, C.P.C., and a second appeal lay : that the payment of the landlord's fee does not affect the position of the judgment-debtor but affects the right of the landlord to object to a transfer of a tenant's right without payment of the fee, and it was not competent to the judgment-debtor to raise an objection to the delivery of possession under sec. 318, C.P.C. : Mohim v. Ram Lochan, 7 C.W.N. 591.

Act (B. C.) of 1903 :—The Preamble to this Act explains why this Act was passed : the Preamble and ss. 1 to 3 of the Act are as follows :—

WHEREAS doubts and difficulties have arisen respecting the meaning and effect of sections 12, 13, 17 and 18 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, as regards the payment of the prescribed landlord's fee, and the effect of the non-payment of such fee ;

And whereas it is expedient to declare that registered transfers and sales and decrees or orders for foreclosure of mortgage, confirmed and made absolute by the Civil Courts, of permanent tenures and holdings at fixed rates and fixed rents and of shares in such tenures and holdings, shall not be deemed to be invalid merely on the ground that the landlord's prescribed fee has not been paid ;

And whereas it is also expedient to amend section 106 of the said Act in manner hereinafter appearing ;

Vict., c. 14.

And whereas the said Act having been passed by the Governor General of India in Council, the sanction of the Governor General has been obtained, under section 5 of the Indian Councils Act, 1892 to the passing of this Act ;

It is hereby enacted as follows :—

the same.

1. No transfer which has heretofore been made or which may hereafter be made under section 12, section 13, section 17 or section 18 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, of a permanent tenure, of a holding at a rent or rate of rent fixed in perpetuity or of a share in such tenure or holding shall be deemed to be invalid merely on the ground that the landlord's fee prescribed by the said section 12 or 13 has not been paid.

Provided always that, subject to the Explanation following, nothing in this section shall be held to affect the decision of a Court of competent jurisdiction which has become final before the commencement of this Act.

Explanation.—A decree in a suit for rent which has become final disallowing a claim for rent on the ground that the relationship of landlord and tenant does not exist between the parties to the suit by reason of the non-payment of the landlord's fee, shall not bar a suit for rent which became payable subsequently to such claim.

2. In any case where the prescribed fee has been or may hereafter be left unpaid, the landlord may, within two years of the commencement of this Act, or within two years of the date of confirmation of the sale by the Civil Court, or within two years of the date upon which a decree or order absolute for the foreclosure of a mortgage has been or may hereafter be made by the Civil Court, apply to the Collector for realization of such fee from the transferee, or from the auction-purchaser or from the person who has obtained an order absolute for foreclosure of mortgage in the Civil Court, and on such application being presented, the Collector shall realize such fee if still unpaid, together with costs of realization, from such person as if it were an arrear of revenue.

3. Nothing in section 1 shall be deemed to affect the provisions of section 88 of the said Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885. Saving of section 88.

Note :—For the remaining portion of this Act (I of 1903, B.C.) See Appendix, IV.

Notes to s. I Explanation.

A decree which has become final :—A decree passed before the passing of Bengal Act I of 1903 but pending in appeal at the commencement of that Act is governed by s. 1 of the Act as not being final: Peary v. Arsad Ali, 8 C.W.N. 239. Final—decree—pendency of appeal.

S. 1 validates all transfers questioned in appeals pending when the Act was passed: Manurattan v. Harinath, 1 C.L.J. 500.

CHAPTER IV A.

PROVISIONS AS TO TRANSFERS OF TENURES AND HOLDINGS AND LANDLORD'S FEES.

Note :—This chapter was inserted by Act I (B.C.) of 1907 and by Act I (E. B. and A. Council) of 1908.

(Bengal and Bihar).

Saving as to statements in instruments of transfer where landlord no party.

18A. Nothing contained in any instrument of transfer to which the landlord is not a party shall be evidence against the landlord of the permanence, amount or fixity of rent, area, transferability or any incident of any tenure or holding referred to in such instrument.

Saving as to acceptance of landlord's fees.

18B. The acceptance by a landlord of any landlord's fee payable under Chapter III or Chapter IV in respect of any tenure or holding shall not operate—

(a) as an admission as to the permanence, amount or fixity of rent, area, transferability or any incident of such tenure or holding, or

(b) as an express consent under section 88 to the division of such tenure or holding, or to the distribution of the rent payable in respect thereof.

(East Bengal).

18A. Notwithstanding anything contained in section 13 of the Indian Evidence Act, nothing contained in any instrument or transfer to which the landlord is not a party shall be evidence against the landlord of the permanence, the amount or fixity of rent, the area, the transferability or any incident of any tenure or holding referred to in such instrument.

18B. The acceptance by a landlord of any landlord's fee payable under Chapter III or Chapter IV in respect of any tenure or holding shall not operate—

(a) as an admission of the permanence, the amount or fixity of rent, the area, the transferability or any incident of such tenure or holding, or

18C. All landlord's fees paid under Chapter III or Chapter IV which are held in deposit on or after the commencement of the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Act, 1907, may, unless accepted or claimed by the landlord within three years from such commencement or from the date of the service of the notice prescribed in section 12, section 13, or section 15 (as the case may be), whichever is later, be forfeited to the Government.

18C. All landlord's fees paid under Chapter III or Chapter IV, which are held in deposit on or after the commencement of the Eastern Bengal and Assam Tenancy (Amendment) Act, 1908, may, unless accepted or claimed by the landlord within three years from such commencement or from the date of service of the notice prescribed in section 12, section 13 or section 15 (as the case may be), whichever is later, be forfeited to the Government.

Forfeiture of unclaimed landlord's fees

Note :—The object of these sections is explained in the Notes on clauses to Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill, 1906, as follows : "The working of sections 12 to 17 of the present Act, relating to the transfer of permanent tenures, is not satisfactory. They induce tenants to register transfers of tenures which are not really permanent, in the hope that the acceptance of the fee by the landlord will operate as an admission of the permanence and transferability of the tenure. The landlords, on the other hand, are reluctant to accept the fees, and the result is that a very large amount of unclaimed fees has accumulated in different districts in the province. This state of things is not only a source of embarrassment to Government, but also creates doubts and difficulties in regard to the position of the transferees of tenures. It is hoped that the amendments now proposed will overcome the reluctance of landlords to accept the fees in the case of tenures which are really permanent, and the tenants will be deterred thereby from registering transfers of tenures which are not of this character.

The same considerations apply to transfer of, and succession to, holdings at fixed rents or rates of rent, and under section 18 (a) of the Act, these are governed by the same conditions. Clauses 5 and 6 have been so framed as to make the proposed amendments applicable to the case of holdings at fixed rents or rates of rent. A clause has been added to sec. 189, empowering the local Government to prescribe the authority by whom the fees deposited under sections 12, 13, 15, 17 and 18 clause (a), may be declared to be forfeited, and the mode in which such fees when so forfeited shall be dealt with."

CHAPTER V.

OCCUPANCY-RAIYATS.

General.

Note:—Nothing in this chapter shall confer a right of occupancy in proprietor's private lands. See s. 116. But the provisions of this chapter are not inapplicable to all tenancies in proprietor's private lands: they do not apply only when it is proved that the land is held under a lease for a term of years or under a lease from year to year: Denonath v. Meghu Mahlon, 5 C.L.J. 181.

Continuance of existing
rights.

19. (1) Every raiyat who immediately before the commencement of this Act or the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Act, 1907, has, by the operation of any enactment, by custom, or otherwise, a right of occupancy in any land, shall, when this Act or the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Act, 1907, comes into force, have a right of occupancy in that land.

(2) The exclusion from the operation of this Act, by a notification under sub-section (3) of section I, of any area constituted a Municipality under the provisions of the Bengal Municipal Act, 1884, or of any part of such area, or the inclusion of any area in the town of Calcutta

19. (1) Every raiyat who, immediately before the commencement of this Act has, by the operation of any enactment, by custom, or otherwise, a right of occupancy in any land, shall, when this Act comes into force, have a right of occupancy in that land.

(2) The exclusion from the operation of this Act, by a notification under sub-section (3) of section 1, of any area constituted a Municipality under the provisions of the Bengal Municipal Act, 1884, or of any part of such area, shall not affect any right, obligation or liability previously acquired, incurred or accrued in reference to such area.

by notification under section 637 of the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1899, shall not affect any right, obligation or liability previously acquired, incurred or accrued in reference to such area.

1. AMENDMENTS.
2. RIGHT OF OCCUPANCY ACQUIRED UNDER THE OLD LAW CONTINUES.
3. NON-OCCUPANCY RIGHT :
4. AGREEMENT BEFORE THE PASSING OF THE ACT.
5. RIGHT EXTINGUISHED UNDER THE OLD LAW.
6. CASES UNDER THE OLD LAW.
7. SUBMERGED LAND.
8. PENDING SUIT.
9. REVENUE SALE LAW : RIGHT OF OCCUPANCY.
10. RAIYAT AT FIXED RENT.
11. EFFECT OF NON-PAYMENT OF RENT.

I. Amendments :—Sub-sec. (2) was added by Act I (B.C.) of 1907, in Bengal and Act I of 1908 of the East Bengal Council in East Bengal. The figure (1) in sub-sec. (1) was added by the same amending Acts.

In sub-sec. (1) in Bengal the words "or the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Act, 1907" were inserted by Act I, B.C. of 1907.

The Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Act (I of 1907) is not an Act of a declaratory nature and is not retrospective in operation and pre-acquired non-occupancy rights in lands added by that Act to the Town of Calcutta have not been extinguished by its amendment of sec. 19 of Act VIII of 1885: Shibakali v. Chuni Lal, 31 C.W.N. 1007 (Cuming and Mallik, J.J.). The case of Jotiram v. Jonaki, 20 C.W.N. 258 followed.

2. Right of occupancy acquired under the old law continues :

S. 19 can refer only to persons who, being raiyats within the meaning of s. 5, had acquired a right of occupancy prior to the passing of the Act: The Secretary of State v. Gobind Prashad, 21 C.W.N. 505.

A raiyat at fixed rate could acquire a right of occupancy under the old law and as such the said right continues after the Bengal Tenancy Act under s. 19: Ichhamoyi v. Kailash Chandra, 18 C.W.N. 358; see also Lakhicharan v. Hamid Ali, 27 C.L.J. 284.

A raiyat who acquired a right of occupancy before the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Act can retain the privileges of an occupancy raiyat although his rent has been fixed in perpetuity by virtue of which he becomes a raiyat holding at fixed rates: Lakhicharan v. Hamid Ali, 27 C.L.J. 284 (N. Chatterjee and Richardson J.J.) ; see also Ichamoyi v. Kailas Chandra, 18 C.W.N. 358.

As to the status of a fixed raiyat and of an occupancy raiyat in the same person : see notes under ss. 4, 18 and 160.

If an occupancy raiyat acquired makurari right in the lands in which he had occupancy right before the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Act his right of occupancy merged : Mullick Muktear v. Kali Charan, [1921 Pat.], p. 357, (Coutts and Macpherson J.J.).

Occupancy right acquired before the passing of the Act is maintained : Bhajan v. Balai, A. I. R. 1923 Cal. 375.

Act VIII
B. C. of 1869.
Undivided share of land.

There is nothing in the Bengal Tenancy Act to take away a right of occupancy acquired under leases granted at a time when Act VIII, B.C. of 1869, was in force ; Baidyanath v. Sudharam, 8 C.W.N. 751; so it seems that a right of occupancy acquired in an undivided share of a holding under that Act continues after the passing of this Act.

Act X of 1859.
Act VIII
1869.

The right of occupancy acquired before 1859 would be maintained under Act X of 1859 as also under Act VIII B.C. of 1869 and would continue to exist under s. 19 of the Bengal Tenancy Act : Ram Kumar v. Ram Newas, 8 C.W.N. 860.

A right of occupancy acquired under the old Act is not forfeited by its repeal : Hurry Ram v. Nursing Lal, 21 Cal. 129.

If occupancy rights were acquired in chakran lands held under a service tenure before 1885, they are protected under sec. 19 of Bengal Tenancy Act. Under sec. 181 they cannot be protected after the passing of the Act : Kshettra Mohon v. Lakhikanta, 44 C.L.J. 271 (Greaves and Panton J.J.).

3. Non-occupancy right :—Act VIII of 1885 read with Act I of 1907 has saved non occupancy rights where there were such rights to be saved. By sec. 19, the Act of 1885 saved only occupancy rights because non occupancy rights began to accrue only after that Act by which they were created. The fact that a later amendment of sec. 19, while putting down occupancy rights as saved from Act I of 1907, has not so saved non-occupancy rights, does not mean that such rights are destroyed by implication. Besides sub-sec. (2), added to sec. 19 by Act I of 1907, expressly saves all rights : Shiba Kali v. Chuni Lal, 31 C.W.N. 1007. The case of Jotiram v. Jonaki, 20 C.W.N. 258 followed.

4. Agreement before the passing of the Act :—An agreement before the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Act that a tenant would not acquire a right of occupancy during his lifetime is valid and does not come within the prohibitory terms of s. 178 sub-sec. 1 (a) or sub-sec. (3) (a) : Babul Chandra v. Nistarini, 33 Cal. 136.

5. Right extinguished under the old law :—The present Act cannot revive rights which had already been extinguished : Saligram v. Puluk Pandey, 6 C.L.J. 149.

6. Cases under the old law :—The occupation intended to be protected by s. 6, Act X of 1859, was occupation of land considered as the subject of agricultural or horticultural cultivation and used for purposes incidental thereto, such as for the site of the homestead, the raiyat or Malli's dwelling-house and so on, but it did not include occupation, the main object of which was the dwelling-house itself, and where the cultivation of the soil, if any, was entirely subordinated to that : Kalee Kishen v. Jankee, 8 W.R. 250 ; Mohur Ali v. Ram, Rutton, 21 W.R. 400; Khellut Chander v. Umirto, 1 Ind. Jur. N. S. 426; but bastoo land in an ordinary cultivator's holding was the subject of the provisions of Act X of 1859 and Act VIII, B. C. of 1869 and a right of occupancy could be acquired therein: Mohesh Chunder v. Bishonath, 24 W.R. 402. See also Syed Hassain v. Gobind Lal, 9 C.W.N. 141. According to the old law there was nothing per-se in the fact of the land being niz-jote which prevented a cultivator from acquiring rights of occupancy: Gour Huree v. Beharee, 12 W.R. 278; Shaikh Ashraff v. Ram Kishore, 23 W.R. 288. The niz-jote referred to in Act X of 1859 and Act VIII of 1869 referred to the niz-jote of the Zemindar, and not of a Surbarakar holding under a Zemindar, so a right of occupancy could be acquired in such land: Obhoy Churn v. Kanaye Rawat, 1 C.L.R. 394. The word "Khamar" referred to any parcel of land, whether cultivated or uncultivated, belonging to the Zemindar, and which Zemindar chose to keep in his own possession and no right of occupancy could be acquired therein: Hurish Chunder v. Gungadhur, 25 W.R. 184; where Khamar land was let by the Zemindar for a term, and then on the expiration of the term from year to year throughout a long period, held that the tenant had not thereby acquired a right of occupancy; Bhugwan Bhagut v. Jug Mohun, 20 W.R. 308; A right of occupancy could be acquired in land used for grazing horses: W. Fitzpatrick v. George Wallace, 11 W.R. 231 followed in Sheikh Latifar v. A. H. Forbes, 14 C.W.N. 372 at p. 376 col., 2; where land was let for cultivation and there was a tank upon it, it was held that the tank would go with the land: and if there was a right of occupancy in the land, there would be a right of occupancy in the tank as appurtenant to the land but where the tank was the principal subject of the lease, and only so much land passed with the tank as was necessary for it, namely for the banks there could not be any right of occupancy in it: Nidhi Krishna v. Ram Das, 20 W.R. 341; Sibo Jelya v. Gopal Chunder, 19 W.R. 200. It was held on a finding that a share in a tank formed an integral portion of an agricultural holding situate on its bank that a right of occupancy could be acquired as such share and when acquired would be protected under s. 37 of the Revenue Sale Law: Uma Charan v. Moniram, 8 C.W.N. 192; also see Jardine Skinner & Co., v. Surat Soondari, 3 C.L.R. 140.

A right of occupancy could not be created in a fishery or a julkur: Juggobundhu v. Promotha Nath, 4 Cal. 767; Bolloye Satee v. Akram, 4 Cal. 961; Sham Narain v. The Court of Wards, 23 W.R. 432; Wooma Kunt v. Gopal Singh, 2 W.R. Act X., p. 19. No right of occupancy could be acquired in lands held under a service tenure: Hurrogobind v. Ramrutno, 4 Cal. 67; Mitter, J., in delivering his judgment in the case of Narain v. Ohnil Misser, 9 Cal. 367, s. c., 11 C.L.R. 417, said as follows:—"It is clear from the language of the section" (s. 6, Act VIII B. C. of 1869) "that for the acquiring of the right of occupancy two conditions only are necessary viz., (1) the cultivation or holding of land for a period of 12 years and (2) that the person holding or cultivating the land should be a raiyat. No doubt in many cases the fact of non-payment of rent would be a valid ground for holding that the land was held not as a raiyat but as a trespasser. But where notwithstanding non-payment of rent the holding or cultivation as raiyat is established for 12 years, the essential conditions of the section are fulfilled." A raiyat who paid rent in kind but who had held a cultivated land for a period of 12 years, had a right of occupancy in the land so held or cultivated by him so long as he paid the rent (though in kind) for the same: Jutloo Moar v. Basmatee, 15 W.R. 479; Hureehur v. Biressur, 6 W.R. Act X, p. 17.

Permanent raiyati lease by a Hindu widow.

A permanent raiyati lease of land was created by a Hindu widow in the year 1873 i.e. long before the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Act, held that a Hindu widow having only a qualified interest, is invalid, held further that apart from the question as to whether the Bengal Tenancy Act operates to prevent the acquisition of right by a person claiming to be a raiyat at fixed rates or not, in this case occupancy right had been acquired before the Bengal Tenancy Act came into force and was saved by s. 19 of the Act; Ichhamoy v. Kailash Chandra, 18 C.W.N. 358.

Submerged land—effect of non-payment of rent.

7. Submerged land :—Under s. 6 of Act VIII B. C. of 1869, a raiyat retained his right of occupancy only so long as he paid rent, but although mere non-payment of rent might not be conclusive evidence of abandonment, non-payment of rent taken with submergence of land is sufficient to indicate an extinguishment of the right of occupancy: Saligram Singh v. Paluk Pandey, 6 C.L.J. 149; see also Hem Nath v. Achgur Siandr, 4 Cal. 894.

Chur-land—Submersion.

Where certain chur lands formed part of a raiyati holding for which the raiyat had paid rent continuously for 12 years and the char lands had occasionally been submerged during that period, held that the mere part of submersion did not destroy the right of the tenant to acquire occupancy right therein: Kesho Prasad v. Jirdhan Ojha, 2 Pat. L.J. 48.

8. Pending suit :—This section and the following section apply to suit pending at the time this Act came into force: Jogesur v. Aisani, 14 Cal. 553; see also Tupsee v. Ramesurum, 15 Cal. 376.

S. 37 of Act XI of 1859.

9. Revenue Sale Law : Right of occupancy :—The expression “right of occupancy,” in s. 37 of the Revenue Sale Law is not limited to the right that could be acquired under the rules laid down in Act XI of 1859 but also covers “right of occupancy” that might be acquired under law promulgated since 1859: Sarat Chandra v. Asiman, 8 C.W.N. 601, s. c., 31 Cal. 725.

10. Raiyat at fixed rent—Occupancy right :—See notes under s. 4, heading no. 7 and 160.

II. Effect of non-payment of rent :—Non-payment of rent by an occupancy raiyat for a period of 12 years before the Bengal Tenancy Act with regard to submerged lands was held sufficient to indicate an extinguishment of the right of occupancy: Saligram v. Puluk Pandey, 6 C.L.J. 149, although mere non-payment of rent might not be conclusive evidence of abandonment: Ibid. The present Act cannot revive rights which had already been extinguished.

Definition of “settled raiyat.”

20. (1) Every person who, for a period of twelve years, whether wholly or partly before or after the commencement of this Act, has continuously held as a raiyat land* situate in any village, whether under a lease or otherwise, shall be deemed to have become, on the expiration of that period, a settled raiyat of that village.

(Bihar.)

(1A) A person shall be deemed, for the purposes of this section, to have continuously held land in a village, notwithstanding that such village was defined, surveyed and recorded as, or declared to constitute a village at a date subsequent to the commencement of the said period of twelve years.

There is no such section in Bihar as sub-sec. (1A). Amendment of section 20 of Act
1885.

(2) A person shall be deemed, for the purposes of this section, to have continuously held land in a village notwithstanding that the particular land held by him has been different at different times.

(3) A person shall be deemed, for the purposes of this section, to have held as a raiyat any land held as a raiyat by a person whose heir he is.

(4) Land held by two or more co-sharers as a raiyati holding* shall be deemed, for the purposes of this section, to have been held as a raiyat by each such co-sharer.

*It ought to be noted here as to whether a person holding an undivided share of land can acquire a right of occupancy. It often happens in this country that agricultural leases are taken from co-sharer landlords by separate documents. It has been held upon an interpretation of the meaning of the word 'holding' as defined in clause (9) of sec. 3 that a holding is not intended to include an undivided share in a parcel or parcels of land; see Jari Charan v. Ranjit Singh, 25 Cal. 917, s. c., 1 C.W.N. 521; Baidya Nath v. Ilum, 2 C.W.N. 44; Haribol v. Tasimuddin, 2 C.W.N. 680; Badulla v. Gogan Mollah, 2 C.L.J. 10; also see notes under sec. 3 clause (9), the word used in sub-sec. (1) of s. 20 is land and not 'holding'; it is therefore submitted that these rulings have no application to the determination of the question as to the status of a settled raiyat, and consequently a right of occupancy may be acquired in respect to an undivided share of land; the word used in this section is not "holding," nor the words used are "parcel of land"; the word used in this section is "land"; and the word "land" includes an undivided share of land; it therefore seems that the status of a settled raiyat, and consequently a right of occupancy, may be acquired in respect to an undivided share of land, although the tenancy in such undivided share may not amount to 'holding' as defined in the Act. The principle underlying the decision in the case of Sartfenussa Khatoon v. Safaraddi, 16 C.W.N. 276. (note 5)

(5) A person shall continue to be a settled raiyat of a village as long as he holds any land as a raiyat in that village and for one year thereafter.

(6) If a raiyat recovers possession of land under section 87, he shall be deemed to have continued to be a settled raiyat notwithstanding his having been out of possession more than a year.

(7) If, in any proceeding under this Act, it is proved or admitted that a person holds any land as a raiyat, it shall, as between him and the landlord under whom he holds the land, be presumed, for the purposes of this section, until the contrary is proved or admitted, that he has for twelve years continuously held that land or some part of it as a raiyat.

portion) decided by (D. Chatterjee J.), 21 C.L.J. 592 at p. 595 (confirmed in Letters Patent appeal) will show the correctness of the view of law stated above. That decision explains the meaning of the word "land" as used in s. 105. See notes under s. 105.

Coxe, J., in the case of Harimohun v. Srimohun, 18 C.W.N. 168 says as follows :—"How is it possible to take a lease of an undivided share of land for the purpose of cultivation?.....How can any body cultivate a undivided share of land?"

It is submitted that it is possible to grant leases of undivided shares of land for cultivation purposes, and it is usual in this country to do so; take the following examples : X and Y are the owners of a certain estate; X grants a raiyati lease of his one-half share of the land to A; Y grants a raiyati lease of his one-half share of the same plot to B; A and B under these circumstances may enjoy the land either by partition or they may jointly cultivate and divide the crops; if they jointly cultivate and hold the land for twelve years continuously, each of them will be a settled raiyat of the village. Sub. (4) of this section also favours the aforesaid view of the law.

(3) of section 81 of the Government of India Act, Act I of 1925, dated Calcutta the 20th March 1925. In pursuance of

2. Extension of Ss. 20, 21 :—The extension of ss. 20 and 21 Extension. to Orissa has the effect of repealing s. 6 and its proviso (Act X of 1859) : Brahmanand v. Arjun, 1 C.L.J. 310.

A tenant of nij jote land, was in occupation continuously for more than 12 years after the introduction of ss. 20 and 21 of the Bengal Tenancy Act to Orissa, held that he acquired the status of a settled raiyat : Rafiuddin v. Iswar, 17 C.L.J. 585. Effect of introduction of s.s. 20 and 21.

Where a lessee holds over after the expiry of the term of a lease for 5 years and remains in occupation for a period of four years more of agricultural land in a district to which sections 20 and 21 of the B. T. Act were, before the grant of the lease, made applicable, he acquired the status of a non-occupancy raiyat ; the status cannot be retrospectively affected by the subsequent extension of s. 116 : Sitanath v. Haranarain, 21 C.L.J. 644, the cases of Brahmananda v. Arjun, 1 C.L.J. 310 and Rafiuddin v. Iswar, 17 C.L.J. 585 were followed. Status cannot be retrospectively affected.

“The result of the extension of s. 20 and 21 to a district (Cuttuck) was to make section 6 of Act X of 1859 inapplicable, as laid down by this Court in the case Brahmananda Mahapatra v. Arjun Raut, 1 C.L.J. 310 which was accepted as good law in Rafiuddin v. Iswar Rowt, 17 C.L.J. 585 ; Sitanath v. Haranarain, 1 C.L.J. 644. Extension of s.s. 20 and 21.

of the Local Legislature of Bengal having been assented to by the Governor General on the 14th March, 1925, was published for general information in the Calcutta Gazette.

Statement of objects and reasons in introducing the Bill was stated to be as follows by the Hon’ble Member in charge :—(See Calcutta Gazette 15th January 1925).

In an area of about 390 square miles in the Sundarbans of Khulna district, notifications constituting villages within the meaning of clause (10) of section 3 of the Bengal Tenancy Act were not published until the years 1914 and 1916. In connection with the settlement operations now being carried on in Khulna district the question arose whether tenants who have held lands in the area for more than 12 years have acquired occupancy rights. In a suit between the Port Canning and Land Improvement Company and some of their tenants, the High Court have held that occupancy rights have not accrued, and that in order that an occupancy right may be acquired the land must be held in a village for a period of 12 years, and that if the land has not been comprised in any village in the statutory sense, the condition of acquisition of the occupancy right has not been complied with. Statement of objects and reasons.

The result of this ruling is that, unless legislation be undertaken, tenants who have held lands in this area for more than 12 years cannot be shown as possessing occupancy rights in the record-of-rights which is now being prepared. The object of the Bill is to confer the status of a settled-raiyat on such tenants and thereby to make it possible for the Settlement Officer to show in the record-of-rights that they have occupancy rights. The declarations constituting villages in this area under clause (10) of section 3 of the Bengal Tenancy Act were made with the object of enabling the tenants to acquire occupancy rights and it is considered just that they should not be deprived of these rights by the interpretation which has been given to the existing law by the High Court.

The matter is urgent, because the Director of Land Records reports that the record-of-rights of part of the area affected is now being printed. It has therefore been decided to introduce this Bill without waiting for the introduction of the Bill amending other sections of the Act.

Gordon*, 23 W.R. 237; see also Narendra Narain v. Ishan Chunder, 22 W.R. 22: s. c., 13 B.L.R. 274. There is no authority for the proposition that a raiyat by taking a zuripeshgi lease of land of which he was previously or then put in possession as a raiyat, loses his raiyati status or divests himself of his right to acquire a right of occupancy in the land: Ramdhari v. M. A. Mackenzie, 10 C.W.N. 351.

Zuripeshgi lease.

Indigo concern.

Firm of capitalists.

A right of occupancy can only be recognised in particular individuals but not in an indigo-concern or firm: F. H. Cannon v. Kylash Chundra, 25 W.R. 117. A firm of capitalists transferring their rights to the changing members of the firm could not by any length of occupation acquire occupancy rights under Act X of 1859 and Act VIII B. C. of 1869: Raikomal v. Laidley, 4 Cal. 957. But it was held in the case of Laidley v. Gour Gobind, 11 Cal. 501, that a firm acquired a right of occupancy and the lease was considered to be one to the individual members of the firm.

All these cases have been discussed in the case of Bajrunji Rout v. H. M. Mackenzie, 7 C.L.J. 475, in which however the facts are different.

4. If a fixed raiyat may be a settled raiyat :—See notes under s. 4, heading no. 7.

Computation of 12 years after date of notice to quit.

Tenancy originating under Act X of 1859.

Non-occupancy raiyati right heritable.

5. 12 years :—In a case under the Chota Nagpur Landlord and Tenant Procedure Act of 1879, it was held that the completion of twelve years after service of a valid notice to quit would not make a non-occupancy raiyat acquire a right of occupancy: Nathwin Ram v. Pareshnath, 14 C.W.N. 297.

A tenant whose tenancy originated at a time when sec. 6 of Act X of 1859 was in force, becomes a settled raiyat by occupation for twelve years ending at a time when the Bengal Tenancy Act is in force: Rafiuddin v. Iswar Rout, 17 C.L.J. 585.

6. Sub-sec. 3. Whose heir he is :—From this clause it appears that the holding of a non-occupancy raiyat is heritable, or else, the "heir" would not have been used. See the observations of Brett and Mitra J.J., in Mohunt Lukhin Narain v. Jainath Panday, 34 Cal. 516, s. c., 11 C.W.N. 626: See also Midnapore Zemindary Co., Ltd. v. Hrishikesh, 18 C.W.N. 829, (F.B.), s. c., 19 C.L.J. 505. See notes under s. 41.

Relinquishment.

7. Sub-sec. (4) :—The relinquishment by one of several joint tenants does not enlarge the rights of others by giving them an interest over the whole holding: Peary Mohun v. Radhika Mohun, 5 C.L.J. 9.

Presumption.

8. Sub-sec. (7) :—"The presumption in s. 20 is stated to be for the purpose of that section and in our opinion it cannot be extended for the purpose of s. 180 and that being so the ordinary rule of law would obtain, namely, that the person, who alleged that he had been for twelve continuous years "in possession," would have to prove that allegation." (Per Harington and Pratt, JJ., in Beni Parsad v. Chuturi, 33 Cal. 444: s. c., 4 C.L.J. 63).

The presumption arises only when the raiyat holds other occupancy holdings under the same landlord. Per Rampini, J., in Kuldip v. Chhatur, 3 C.L.J. 285.

The presumption cannot be applied to Diara lands; Chikhuri v. Beni Prosad, 3 C.L.J. 43, notes.

• A suit for rent is not a proceeding under the Bengal Tenancy Act : Promoda Nath v. Ramani Kanta, 35 Cal. 331; s. c., 7 C.L.J. 139 ; s. c., 12 C.W.N. 249 ; so the presumption under this section does not arise in a suit for rent : Mulluk v. Satis Chundra, 14 C.W.N. 335, s. c., 11 C.L.J. 56. This case was followed in the case of Jahander Baksh v. Ram Lal, 14 C.W.N. 470, s. c., 11 C.L.J. 364.

A suit by a tenant to recover lands from the landlord of which he alleges he has been dispossessed is not a proceeding under the Bengal Tenancy Act within the meaning of clause 7, sec. 20 ; Tara Nath v. Iswar Chandra, 16 C.W.N. 398 ; s. c., 14 C.L.J. 598. Suit by tenant for recovery of possession.

9. Chowkidari Chakran Land:—A right of occupancy may be acquired in chowkidari chakran land ; Ram Kumar v. Ram Newaj, 31 Cal. 1021 ; see notes under s. 181. Chowkidari land.

10. Service Tenure:—See notes under s. 181. Service tenure.

II. Village :—The term “village” is not confined to non-urban areas ; Syed Hussan v. Govind Lal, 9 C.W.N. 141. Village.

The word “village” has been defined in cl. (3) of s. 10; where there has been no survey made the Collector with the sanction of the Board of Revenue may constitute any specified area a “village”; where there has been no survey the status of a settled raiyat cannot be acquired in such area which has not been constituted a village.” See notes under s. 3 cl. (10). A list of the areas which have been constituted as villages will be found in Appendix III.

12. S. 22, Cl. 2:—When by operation of sec. 22, Cl. (2) an occupancy-right is extinguished a new occupancy right cannot be acquired in the same tenancy by the co-sharer proprietor by whose action the occupancy-right has ceased to exist : Ram Lal v. Bhela Gazi, 37 Cal. 709. Co-sharer—right of occupancy.

13. Usage:—A right of occupancy cannot be acquired by local usage : Sheikh Latifar Rahaman v. A. H. Forbesh, 14 C.W.N. 372, at page 375 Col. 2, last line. Local usage.

14. Effect of splitting up :—In the absence of an intention of the parties to that effect the division of one tenancy into two or more has not the effect of creating new tenancies and thus of taking away the pre-existing occupancy right : Nafarchandra v. Rahaman, 23 C.L.J. 580 ; see also Mulluckchand v. Satis, 11 C.L.J. 56 and Grant v. Ram Rekha, 14 C.L.J. 110. Under s. 178 Cl. (1) (b) an occupancy right in existence cannot be taken away by contract : Nafarchandra v. Rahaman, 23 C.L.J. 580. Pre-existing occupancy-right

15. The land need not be identical :—But it must be held in the character of a raiyat, to hold it as a raiyat does not necessarily require that the land should be cultivated ; it may be used as homestead within the meaning of S. 182 : Pradyat Kumar v. Umes Chandra, 72 I.C. 640, s. c., A.I.R. 1924, Cal. 367 ; (Mookerjee and Rankin J.J.). Land must be held in the character of a raiyat but the land need not be identical

See notes under Ss. 20, 21, 116, 160 and 182.

16. Occupancy right:—In Bengal a co-sharer has no more power to confer a right of occupancy on a raiyat than a middleman would have and in Bengal a middleman cannot obtain as a middleman a right of occupancy himself, much less can he create in his tenant a right of occupancy in lands held by him as a middleman : Midnapur Zemindari Co. v. Naresh Narain, 51 Cal. 631 (P.C.), s. c., 29 C.W.N. 34.

21. (1) Every person who is a settled raiyat of a village within the meaning of the last foregoing section shall have a right of occupancy in all land for the time being held by him as a raiyat in that village.

Settled raiyats to have occupancy rights.

(2) Every person who, being a settled raiyat of a village within the meaning of the last foregoing section, held land as a raiyat in that village at any time between the second day of March, 1883, and the commencement of this Act, shall be deemed to have acquired a right of occupancy in that land under the law then in force; but nothing in this sub-section shall affect any decree or order passed by a Court before the commencement of this Act.

1. Land held by a tenure-holder as a raiyat:—If a person is a tenure-holder in respect of certain lands in a village, the fact that he is a settled raiyat of any particular land in the village will not give him a right of occupancy in the other lands which he holds: Bujrangi v. M. H. Mackenzie, 7 C.L.J. 475. If he holds the whole of the lands he holds in a village as a settled raiyat he acquires a right of occupancy in the other lands which he holds as a raiyat: Ibid.

2. Ticcadar:—Possession as a ticcadar and not as a cultivating tenant does not confer occupancy right: Stonewigg v. Sheo Rachhaya, 35 I.C. 622. (Patna case).

An occupancy right cannot be acquired by a person who was in possession as a ticcadar. A right of occupancy under the Bengal Rent Act (X of 1859) was a personal right and could not be transferred: C. H. Edgell v. Biswanath, 62 I.C. 59, (Ross and Dass J.J.).

3. Status of a settled raiyat:—The mere fact that a person has an occupancy holding in a village does not give him a right of occupancy in his other holdings in the same village unless he is also a settled raiyat, and the status of a settled raiyat cannot be transferred and consequently though every settled raiyat has a right of occupancy, every occupancy raiyat is not necessarily a settled raiyat: Kuldip v. Chatur, 2 C.W.N. cccii: s. c., 3 C.L.J. 285.

A settled raiyat of a village is entitled to occupancy right in other lands if he holds these lands as a raiyat: H. Manners v. Harihar, 19 C.W.N. 149.

A was a settled raiyat of a village and in the village of which he is a settled raiyat he has land under the terms of a permanent lease at a fixed rate of rent, held that A acquired a right of occupancy in the land which he holds at fixed rate and therefore protected from being annulled by a purchaser at a sale for arrears of revenue under s. 37 of the Revenue Sale Law: Lakhicharan v. Mokar Ali, 27 C.L.J. 293.

4. Fixed raiyat—Right of occupancy:—The status of a fixed raiyat can be combined with that of an occupancy raiyat: A fixed raiyat may acquire a right of occupancy under ss. 20 and 21, and his interest is a protected interest within the meaning of s. 160: Sarbeswar v. Bijoy Chand, 49 Cal. 280., s. c., 24 C.W.N. 15, s. c., 34 C.L.J. 233. (Sanderson C. J. and Richardson J.). But see Bhutnath v. Surendra, 13 C.W.N. 1025, s. c., 11 C.L.J. 298. See notes under secs. 4, and 160.

5. Grant or contract:—Rights of occupancy cannot be created by grant or contract; Kesho Prasad v. Parameswari, 2 Pat. 414. (Das and Kulwant Sahay, J.J.).

A right of occupancy under the B. T. Act is a statutory right and is not conferred by a gift from a proprietor: Bindeshwari v. Kesho Prasad, 31 C.W.N. 74 (P.C.).

6. Suits pending at the time the Act came into force:—This section applies to suits pending at the time the Act came into force; ;

Tenure holder does not get the benefit of this section if he holds raiyati land.

Ticcadar.

Act X of 1859.

Settled raiyat—Right of occupancy.

Occupancy right in lands of a permanent lease.

7. Transferee of a non-transferable holding :—Where a non-transferable occupancy holding was sold and the transferee paid rent as marfaldar of the former-tenant, he i.e., the transferee may acquire a right of occupancy if he is in possession for twelve years by assertion of a right to possess the land as a raiyat adversely to the landlord. This view seems to have been taken by Chitty and Vincent, J.J., in deciding the case of Deb Narain v. Baidyanath; 14 C.W.N. 68.

Sub-section (2) is retrospective in effect.
Act VIII
1869, B.C.

8. Sub-sec. (2)—“Every person.....” to “.....then in force :”—“It is clear from this part of the sub-section that the Legislature provided that a settled raiyat as defined in the Act should be deemed to have acquired a right of occupancy in the land occupied by him as a raiyat in the village of which he is a settled raiyat between the 2nd of March, 1883, and the commencement of the Act, that is to say, the 1st November 1885, not under the new Act but under the Act then in force, that is to say, Bengal Act VIII of 1869. It is clear, therefore, that this part of the section was intended to modify the provisions of Bengal Act VIII of 1869, as regards the class of suits specified therein during the period mentioned above. Then follow words, which in our opinion indicate that the provisions already referred to were to apply to all suits instituted before the Act came into operation, and which had not resulted in a decree. These words are: ‘but nothing in this sub-section shall affect any decree or order passed by a Court before the commencement of this Act. That is to say that the retrospective operation provided in the first part of the sub-section should have this exception only, viz., that where a decree or order has been passed by a Court before the commencement of this Act relating to the rights of parties, such decree or order should not be affected by the provisions regarding the retrospective operation of the section. It follows, therefore, that if a suit commenced before the Act came into operation has not resulted in a decree, it would be governed by the section. Therefore, although on general principles a change in the law affecting the rights of parties does not ordinarily govern pending suits, yet, in this particular instance, the Legislature having made a provision to the contrary we are bound to carry out the law.” Jogessur Das v. Aisani Koyburto, 14 Cal. 553, followed in Parbutty Churn v. Komoruddin, 14 Cal. 556, note (1); see also Tupsee Singh v. Ram Sarun, 15 Cal. 376 (F.B.).

Retrospective operation.

9. Sub-sec. 2 : Retrospective effect :—“The first part of the section deals with the case of lands held by a settled raiyat at or after the date from which the Act speaks, that is to say, the date at which it came into operation, and it declares that such holding shall give a right of occupancy. Sub-sec. 2 deals with the case of lands held by a settled raiyat at an early period, namely, between the 2nd of March, 1883, and the commencement of the Act, and it says that such holding shall be deemed to have given a right of occupancy. This sub-section is therefore in express terms retrospective.” Per Wilson, J. (Pigot, O’Kinealy and Ghose, J.J., concurring): Tupsee Singh v. Ram Saran, 15 Cal. 376; see also Jogessur Das v. Aisani, 14 Cal. 553; and Second Appeal No. 2240 of 1886, unreported, (Prinsep and Beverley, J.J.).

10. Homestead land:—A settled raiyat acquires a right of occupancy in bastu (homestead) and which he holds in the village of which he is a settled raiyat, although he holds the homestead land otherwise than as a part of his holding as a raiyat: Golam Mowla v. Abdool Sowar, 13 C.L.J. 255 (Rampini J, sitting singly); there was no appeal against this judgment under the Letters Patent; see observation of the Editor of the Calcutta Law Journal, 13 C.L.J. at p. 257. See notes under s. 182.

11. 2nd of March 1883:—The date on which the motion was made in the Legislative Council for leave to introduce the Bill.

12. Zuripeshgi land by a raiyat:—Neither of the cases, Bengal Indigo Company v. Raghubar Das, 24 Cal. 272, and Ram Khelwan Roy v. Sambhoo Ray, 2 C.W.N. 758, is authority for the proposition that a raiyat by taking a zuripeshgi lease of a land of which he was previously or then put in possession as raiyat, loses his raiyati status or divests himself of his right to acquire a right of occupancy in that land: Ramdhari v. M. H. Mackenzie, 10 C.W.N. 351.

13. Village:—Before the passing of Act I. B. C. of 1907, it was held that this Act applied to all urban areas outside Calcutta: Syed Hassan v. Gobind Lal, 9 C.W.N. 141. A right of occupancy could be acquired in urban areas also under Act X of 1859: Ibid.

The word "village" has been defined in cl. (10) of s. 3. Where there has been no survey made, an area may be constituted a village by an order of the Collector with the sanction of the Board of Revenue; where no such order has been passed, a right of occupancy cannot be acquired in land in such area which has not been thus constituted a village. See notes under s. 3 cl. (10).

14. Khas possession by lessee: occupancy right:—Where a lessee of lands in the occupation of raiyats who had jote rights obtained khas possession of the lands with the consent of the raiyats for the purpose of indigo cultivation, held that the lessee being merely a landlord in occupation did not acquire occupancy right in the lands and the lessor became entitled to khas possession on the expiry of the lease: Ram Lachi v. Herbert Cotting Ridge, 11 C.W.N. 397.

15. Relinquishment by one of several joint occupancy tenants:—A relinquishment made in favour of the landlord by one of several joint occupancy tenants does not enlarge the right of others: Peary Mohun v. Radhika Mohun, 8 C.W.N. 315; judgment of Banerjee, J., affirmed in Letters Patent Appeal by Maclean, C. J., Bodilly and Mookerjee, J.J., 5 C.L.J. 9.

16. Right of occupancy by an under-raiyat:—An under-raiyat can obtain a right of occupancy by usage or custom: Gopal Mondal v. Japai Sankhari, 46 Cal. 43, 22 C.W.N. 618, s.c., 28 C.L.J. 84; (Fletcher and Shamsul Huda, J.J.); see also Akhil Chandra v. Husain Ali Sowdagar, 19 C.W.N. 246, s.c., 18 C.L.J. 262.

See notes under ss. 4 and 48.

17. Occupancy right in an undivided share of a holding:—See notes under s. 3 cl. (9). It is submitted that a right of occupancy may be acquired in an undivided share of land, for the word "land" is not equivalent to "holding"; the word used in ss. 20 and 21 is 'land' and not 'holding.' See footnote under s. 20 where the question has been fully discussed; also see notes under s. 105.

S. 37 of the Revenue Sale Law. Right of occupancy.

18. Act XI of 1859 :—The words “right of occupancy” in s. 37 of Act XI of 1859 are not limited to right of occupancy acquired under Act X of 1859 but extended to a right of occupancy under the Bengal Tenancy Act; Sarat Chandra v. Asiman Bibi, 31 Cal. 725, s. c., 8 C.W.N. 601.

Share in a tank.

A share in a tank was held to form an integral portion of an agricultural holding situate on its bank, and it was further held that a right of occupancy could be acquired in such share and when acquired would be protected under s. 37 of the Revenue Sale Law: Umacharan v. Moniram, 8 C.W.N. 192. Under Act VIII, B. C. of 1869, a raiyat could acquire a right of occupancy within the meaning of the proviso to s. 37 of the Revenue Sale Law, in a share of an undivided property: Baidya Nath v. Sudharam, 8 C.W.N. 751; see also Jardine, Skinner & Co. v. Rani Surut Soondari, 3 C.L.J. 140.

Act VIII B.C. of 1869.

See notes under s. 19.

Onus.

Where a purchaser of an estate under the Revenue Sale Law brought a suit to eject for recovery of some lands which were situated within the ambit of the plaintiff's estate, held that the onus was upon the defendant to shew that he held the land within the meaning of s. 21 of the Bengal Tenancy Act: Ambika v. Day Gazi, 10 C.W.N. 497.

Occupancy right may be acquired by purchase.

19. Distinction between an occupancy raiyat and a settled raiyat :—“There is a distinction between an occupancy raiyat and a settled raiyat. An occupancy right may be acquired by purchase but the rights of a settled raiyat can only be acquired by a continuous holding of land in the village for 12 years.” (Per Rampini, J., in Kuldip v. Chhatur, 3 C.L.J. 285 at p. 287: s. c., 2 C.W.N. cccii). All settled raiyats are occupancy raiyats, but all occupancy raiyats are not settled raiyats; a raiyat who acquires the status of a settled raiyat under s. 20 becomes an occupancy raiyat; 12 years' possession within the meaning of s. 20 is essential to the acquisition of the status of a settled raiyat, but a right of occupancy may be acquired by purchase; suppose A is a settled raiyat and consequently an occupancy raiyat, and suppose his holding is transferable by custom or local usage; B purchases it: as soon as B purchases it he becomes an occupancy raiyat, although he is in possession of the holding for one day; so he is an occupancy raiyat without being a settled raiyat.

Act VIII B.C. of 1869.

20. Right of occupancy acquired under the old Act :—There is nothing in the Bengal Tenancy Act to take away a right of occupancy acquired under leases granted at a time when Act VII, B. C. of 1869, was in force: Baidya Nath v. Sudharam, 8 C.W.N. 751: see notes under s. 19.

Original purpose of tenancy.

21. Original purpose of tenancy :—A tenancy originally created for the purpose of cultivation and not collection of rent cannot be converted into a tenure by letting it out to a tenant: Baidya Nath v. Sudharam, 8 C.W.N. 751; see also Mritynjay v. Kenatulla, 5 C.L.J. 53, but so far as regards a third person the character of the tenancy may be changed: Mahesh Jha v. Mubhuram, 6 C.L.J. 522. See notes under s. 5.

Holding over.

22. Holding over :—A right of occupancy can be acquired by holding over after the expiry of a lease: G. L. Hays v. Ghina Barhi, 33 Cal. 459.

Accretion.

23. Accretion :—An occupancy raiyat is entitled to the benefit of s. 4, cl. (1) of Reg. XI of 1825 and when there is an accretion to his holding he is entitled to hold the lands as an accretion to his jote; Gour Hari v. Bhala Kaibarta, 21 Cal. 233; Gobind Manic v. Dina Bandhu, 15 W.R. 87; Ali Moolah v. Sahebulla, 15 W.R. 149; Bhagabat v. Dur Bijai, 8 B.L.R. 73: s. c., 16 W.R. 95; but where there is no pre-existing right to the land as an occupancy raiyat no right is annexed to the accretion to it: Beni Pershad v. Chaturi, 33 Cal. 444: s. c., 4 C.L.J. 63. See notes under s. 23.

24. Service Tenures:—See notes under s. 181.

25. Ghatwali lands:—Occupancy right cannot be acquired in Ghatwali. ghatwali lands: Upendra Nath v. Ram Nath, 33 Cal. 630, but see Majhi v. Pran Krishna, 1 C.L.J. 138. See notes under s. 181.

Effect of acquisition of occupancy right by landlord.

LAW OF MERGER:—"My own impression is that the doctrine of merger does not apply to lands in the Mofussil in this country." Per Peacock, C. J. in Womesh Chander v. Rajnarain, 10 W.R. 15: Jackson, J., said in the same case as follows:—"I must fully concur in all that has fallen from the Chief Justice in respect of the doctrine of merger. I am not aware of any solid foundation for the opinion that that doctrine is any part of our Mofussil law." See also Amatoo v. Sheikh Maksud, 19 C.W.N. 435. Markby, J., is reported to have said in the case of H. Rushton v. W. L. Atkinson, 11 W.R. 485, as follows:—".....but upon the question of merger, what the Judge would have to do, assuming the English law to be applicable that would have been not to apply the dry rule of the English Common Law, but the rule as modified by all the equities which an English Court of Chancery would import into the consideration of the case." The doctrine of merger does not apply in this country: Thomas Savi v. Punchanan, 25 W.R. 503. It is at least doubtful whether the doctrine of merger applies to lands in the mofussil; (Per Jenkins C. J. Mookerjee J., concurring) Lal Mahomed v. Jogin Sheekh, 13 C.W.N. 913. "No authority has been shown to us for holding that the doctrine of merger applies to such a case as this in India, that is, that a putni interest must merge in the zemindari interest if they come into the same hands, and we do not think that we should, for the first time, so far as we are aware, apply the doctrine to such a case." : Jibanti v. Gokool Chander, 19 Cal. 760; followed in the case of Harendra Nath v. Harimohon, 18 C.W.N. 860, but see Prosonno Nath v. Jogut Chander, 3 C.L.R. 159; see also s. 111, cl. (d) of the Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882). A putni interest created after the passing of the Transfer of Property Act is determined on a purchase of the same by the zemindar: Promotha Nath v. Kali Prosonna, 28 Cal. 744. On a shikimi and mokurari interest becoming vested in the same person it was held that the mokurari interest merged in the superior tenure: Surja Narain v. Nanda Lal, 22 Cal. 212. In this case it was doubtful whether the lease was agricultural. In a case governed by the Transfer of Property Act it was held that the mokurari interest merged in the proprietary interest: Ulfat Hussain v. Gagni Das, 36 Cal. 802; see also Surjanarain v. Nandalal, 22 Cal. 212. All these cases were discussed by Fletcher and N. Chatterjee J. J. in the Law of merger does not apply to this country. Where the law of merger applies and where occupancy holding is a proprietor or permanent tenure-holder, and the entire interests of the landlord and the raiyat in the holding become united in the same person by transfer, succession or otherwise, such person shall have no right to hold the land as a tenant, but shall hold it as a proprietor or permanent tenure-holder (as the case may be); but nothing in this sub-section shall prejudicially affect the rights of any third person.

(2) If the occupancy-right in land is transferred to a person jointly interested in the land as proprietor or permanent tenure-holder, he shall be entitled to hold the land subject to the payment to his co-proprietors or joint permanent tenure-holders of the shares of the rent which may be from time to time payable to them; and, if such transferee sublets the land to a third person, such third person shall be deemed to be a tenure-holder or a raiyat, as the case may be, in respect of the land.

occupancy-holding is a proprietor or permanent tenure-holder, and the entire interests of the landlord and the raiyat in the holding become united in the same person by transfer, succession or otherwise, such person shall have no right to hold the land as a raiyat, but shall hold it as a proprietor or permanent tenure-holder (as the case may be); but nothing in this sub-section shall prejudicially affect the rights of any third person.

(2) If the occupancy-right in land is transferred to a person jointly interested in the land as proprietor or permanent tenure-holder, such person shall have no right to hold the land as a raiyat, but shall hold it as a proprietor or permanent tenure-holder, as the case may be, and shall pay to his co-sharers a fair and equitable sum for the use and occupation of the same.

case of Harendra v. Hari Mohan, 18 C.W.N. 860, and it was held that where a mokurari tenure has all along been treated as a distinct sub-tenure, there was no merger, by the acquisition of a putni tenure and mokurari tenure by the same person, apart from the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act.

When a malguzari tenure-holder directly under the 16 annas Zemindar afterwards took a mokurari lease from the putnidar of 8 annas 1 ganda malik, held that there was no merger: Amatoo v. Shelkh Muksud, 10 C.W.N. 435.

Assuming, but not deciding, that the law of merger applied to the maffusil before the Transfer of Property Act a mokurari lease granted in 1846 did not become merged in a putni granted in 1856: Dulhah Lachhandrati v. Hodhnath Thwari, 48 I.C. 485.

Illustration.—A, a co-sharer landlord, purchases the occupancy holding of a raiyat X. A is entitled himself to hold the land on payment to his co-sharers of the shares of the rent payable to them in respect of the holding. A sub-lets the land to Y, who takes it for the purpose of establishing tenants on it; Y becomes a tenure-holder in respect of the land. Or A sub-lets it to Z, who takes it for the purpose of cultivating it himself; Z becomes a raiyat in respect of the land.

(3) A person holding land as an ijaradar or farmer of rents shall not, while so holding, acquire, by purchase or otherwise, a right of occupancy in any land comprised in his ijara or farm.

(3) In determining from time to time what is a fair and equitable sum under sub-section (2), regard shall be had to the rent payable by the occupancy raiyat at the time of the transfer, and to the principles of this Act regulating the enhancement or reduction of the rents of occupancy raiyats.

(4) A person holding land as an ijaradar or farmer of rents shall not, while so holding, acquire, by purchase or otherwise, a right of occupancy in any land comprised in his ijara or farm.

Explanation.—A person having a right of occupancy in land does not lose it by subsequently becoming jointly interested in the land as proprietor or permanent tenure-holder, or by subsequently holding the land in ijara or farm.*

22. (1) When the immediate landlord of an occupancy-holding is a proprietor or permanent tenure-holder, and the entire interests of the landlord and the raiyat in the holding become united in the same person by transfer, succession or otherwise, the occupancy right shall cease to exist; but nothing in this sub-section shall prejudicially affect the rights of any third person.

I. Amendments:—Bengal: The words in sub-sec. (1) in Bengal “such person shall have no right to hold the land as a tenant but shall hold it as a proprietor or permanent tenure-holder (as the case may be)” were substituted for the original words “the occupancy right shall cease to exist.”—In sub-sec. (2) for the words “he shall be entitled” to.....the end of the illustration was substituted for the original words. In sub-sec. (3) after the word “acquire” the words “by purchase or otherwise” were inserted. The former section as it stood before the amending Act I, B. C. of 1907 & Act I of 1908 (E. B. A.), is printed in the foot-note.

East Bengal: For alterations compare the former section printed in the foot-note.

Object of amendment.

The object of the amendment of sec. 22, as explained in the Notes on Clauses of the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill, 1906, was to counteract the ruling in Jawadul Haq v. Ramdas, 24 Cal. 143 and the Full Bench ruling in Rammohon v. Sheikh Kachu, 32 Cal. 286 (F.B.). These decisions, it was said, laid down a rule opposed to the policy of the authors of Act VIII of 1885, which was to discourage the acquisition of occupancy holdings by landlords. The provisions of sub-sec. (2) were greatly modified by the Select Committee and in their Report it was observed that “the amendments made by them in the section will give effect to the intention of the framers of the Act, by providing that, where a sole landlord acquires an occupancy holding of his raiyat, the interests of such landlord and tenant merge into a landlord’s interest; and that where one of several co-sharer landlords or joint tenure-holders acquires an occupancy right of a tenant of all the co-sharers or joint tenure holders, such landlord cannot thereby acquire an occupancy right, or by sub-letting, bar the acquisition of raiyati rights by the sub-lessees. At the same time, under the section as modified by us, the landlord will not be prevented from cultivating the land himself, though the holding will not become proprietor’s private land. We have inserted an illustration to make the meaning of the section quite clear. Our attention has been called to a ruling of the High Court (Ramrup Mahto v. Manners, 4 C.L.J. 209) to the effect that the word ‘acquire,’ in sub-sec. (3) of section 22, does not include ‘purchase.’ In order to prevent the acquisition of a right of occupancy by an ijaradar during the period of his lease through a purchase behind the back of the landlord, we have inserted the words ‘by purchase or otherwise’ after the word ‘acquire.’ ”

2. Old law :—Under Cl. (2) of s. 22 before amendment under Act I (B. C.) of 1907 upon a co-proprietor purchasing an occupancy holding, the holding did not cease to exist but the right of occupancy ceased ;* Jawadul Huq v. Ramdas, 24 Cal. 143, s. c., 1 C.W.N. 166, approved of in Ram Mohan v. Sheikh Kachu, 32 Cal. 386 (F.B.), s. c., 9 C.W.N. 249, s. c., 1 C.L.J. 1.

In a collectorate partition subsequently made the other co-sharer was allotted the holding in question, held that the previous purchaser could not be ejected : Basudeo Narain v. Radha Kishen, [1922 Pat.] p. 55, (Das and Adami, J.J.).

A co-sharer purchaser is not liable to be ejected if on collectorate partition the holding falls to the share of another co-sharer : Chander Dip v. Mathura, A.I.R. 1922 Pat. 193 (Jwala Prasad C. J. and Das J.).

An occupancy right was not held to have been merged by the subsequent acquisition of taluki right by the raiyat : Jogendra v. Shajar Ali, A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 373 (Mookerjee and Chotzner J.J.).

Where an occupancy raiyat in repayment of takkavi loan gave up his holding to the ijaradar, held that the transaction amounted to a sale and not an abandonment or surrender : the word "acquire" under the former s. 22 implied the accrual to a raiyati tenancy rights conferred by the statute rather than the transfer of right by another tenant : Ram Dheyan v. Bhulo Tan, 72 I.C. 705, (Dawson Miller C. J.).

An ijaradar could purchase an occupancy holding during the subsistence of the ijara prior to the amendment of s. 22 sub-sec. (3) by the amending Act I (B. C.) of 1907 : Harrington v. Dwarka Prasad, [1920 Pat.] p. 11 (Atkinson and Adami J.J.).

Where a tenure-holder purchased a raiyati holding before the Amendment Act of 1907, the holding did not cease to exist by the alteration of the law : Abdul v. Jalal, 65 I.C. 584, (Suhrawardy and Cuming J.J.).

3. Sub-sec. (2) (Bengal) :—The alterations made in this subsection have created a great anomaly ; for, it is not laid down anywhere as to what will be the status of a co-sharer (to whom an occupancy holding is transferred) in relation to the other co-sharer ; the illustration shews that when such co-sharer (who is the transferee of the occupancy holding) lets out the land for the purpose of collecting rent the sub-tenant becomes a tenure-holder ; but what is his own position as regards his co-sharer is not clear ; he cannot be a raiyat, for, if he is so, how can his lessee be a tenure-holder ; and if he is a tenure-holder under his co-sharer that would be an anomaly, for the latter never let it out to him as a tenure ; he had let it out to his predecessor as a raiyati holding. But is such co-sharer purchaser a tenant ? It seems to be so, for, "a tenant" means a person who holds land under another person and is.....liable to pay rent for that land to that person [s. 3, clause (3)]. Now such co-sharer transferee according to sub-sec. (2) of s. 22 holds land under his co-sharer and is subject to the payment of rent to the latter. Accordingly he must be a tenant under his co-sharer.

* There will be no merger under the Transfer of Property Act by the purchase by a proprietor of the interest of a tenure-holder unless the proprietary interest and the interest as tenure-holder are co-extensive : Monmotha v. Mohendra, 65 I.C. 469, (N. R. Chatterjee and Newbould J.J.).

*Purchase by a co-proprietor.

Following the case of Ramlal v. Bhela Gazi, 37 Cal. 709 it was held that a co-proprietor purchasing an occupancy holding is not a raiyat and the person to whom the co-proprietor settles the land is a raiyat or a tenure-holder as the case may be: Roshan Ali v. Chandra Mohan, 50 Cal. 749, s. c. 27 C.W.N. 759, (Walmsley and B. B. Ghose J.J.).

Sub-sec. (2) of Sec. 22 of this Act applies only when there has been a transfer of land in which an occupancy right is shown to exist; Dhakeshwar v. Gulab Kuer, 53 I.A. 176; s. c., 31 C.W.N. 341 (P.C.).

S. 22 (2) is not concerned with the raiyat—Kasht of a proprietor or permanent tenure-holder which he held before he became proprietor or permanent tenure-holder, but with land the occupancy right in which was transferred to him after he became jointly interested as proprietor or permanent tenure-holder: Lalji Singh v. Lakshmi Narayan, 97 I.C. 708 (Jwala Prasad & Macpherson J.J.).

A co-proprietor acquiring an occupancy holding by purchase is entitled to retain possession of the holding on payment of rent to his co-sharers even after the estate in which the land is situate has been partitioned among the co-proprietors. Jhapsi Sao v. Bibi Aliman, 5 Pat. 281, s. c., 7 P.L.T. 170. (Das and Ross J.J. Dec. 1925).

Where, after a purchase by a co-sharer, there is a partition between the co-sharers and part of the holding is allotted to the purchaser co-sharer and the remainder to the other co-sharers, the status of the purchaser co-sharer in the part allotted to the other co-sharers is not affected; the interest conferred by section 22 (2) on a transferee co-sharer is not affected merely by his making a settlement with a tenant. Kirtyanand v. Rampal, 6 Pat. 134, s. c., 8 P.L.T. 20 (Das and Ross, J.J.). The cases of Jhapsi v. Bibi Aliman, 7 P.L.T. 170; Nandkishore v. Mathura, 3 P.L.T. 13; Basudev v. Radha Kishun, 3 P.L.T. 22—referred to.

4. Sub-sec. (2): East Bengal:—According to this sub-section the co-sharer transferee of an occupancy holding is not a raiyat; this creates the same kind of anomaly as pointed out above in respect to sub-sec. (2) of Bengal.

Under sec. 22 sub-sec. (2) of the B. T. Act applicable to East Bengal, on the purchase of an occupancy holding by the proprietor the raiyati interest is merged in the taluki interest and the previous under-raiyats by such change are raised to the position of raiyats: Hochanuddi v. Abdul, 90 I.C. 816, s. c., 1926 A.I.R. (Cal.) 158.

S. 22 cl. (2) has no retrospective operation and a co-sharer landlord purchasing a holding before the Amending Act came into operation is entitled to hold the land as a raiyat: Nabin v. Banga, 15 I.C. 705; Sukhoda v. Sasi, 17 C.W.N. 132 (notes portion).

5. Effect of the Amendments of sub-secs (1) and (2):—“Under both clauses (1) and (2) in their original form the effect was that only the occupancy right and not the entire interest of the transferring raiyat came to an end and the transferee landlord (whether a sole landlord or fractional landlord) could not say that the whole tenancy had been extinguished. Some intermediate interest still remained and derived by the landlord from the raiyat which prevented the landlord from insisting upon any right which he might otherwise have had under section 85 (1) to treat the under-raiyat as a mere trespasser": Babu Ram v. Upendra Nath, 44 I.C. 922 ; (Richardson and Walmsley J.J.). The fractional landlord still appears to acquire from the raiyat some sort of tenancy or intermediate interest with the same effect as regards the right to treat the under-raiyat as a trespasser as before: Ibid.

6. Applicability of the section to transferable occupancy holding :—This section applies to transferable occupancy holdings and not to non-transferable holdings: Grish Chandra v. Kedar Chandra, 27 Cal. 473, s. c., 4 C.W.N. 569 ; Lakhi Kant v. Balbhadra, 19 C.L.J. 400 ; (Jenkins C. J., and Mookerjee J.). See also Bipradas v. Surendranath, (Teunon and Newbould J.J.) 43 I.C. 467, s.c., 22 C.W.N. (24 notes portion). Transferable occupancy holdings.

7. Proprietor or a permanent tenure holder :—A jotedar under the Government is not necessarily a "proprietor or a permanent tenure-holder within the meaning of s. 22,"—Badan v. Rajeswari, 2 C.L.J. 570 ; where a temporary lessee of a village purchased an occupancy holding it does not merge in his interest but enures to his benefit even on the expiry of his lease: Ramrup v. H. Manners, 4 C.L.J. 209 which was explained and doubted in Raghubar v. Manners, 13 C.L.J. 568. Jotedar.

8. Ijaradar or Ticcadar :—Where a person came into possession of certain chur lands as a raiyat from the year 1884 and continuously held possession till 1908, but from 1890 to 1898 he also held the same land as well as other lands as an ijaradar, held that he acquired occupancy right in the land under sec. 180: Jasimuddin v. Benimadhab, 17 C.W.N. 881 ; during the currency of the ijara the active operation of the possession or a means of acquiring the right of occupancy was suspended, and remained in abeyance, but there was no interruption of the possession by the possession of any other raiyat: Ibid. See also Mukadilal v. Crowdy, 8 B.L.R., App. 95 ; Savi v. Panchanon, 25 W.R. 503 ; Lal Bahadur v. Solano, 10 Cal. 45. Ijaradar.

An ijaradar cannot acquire a right of occupancy in any land comprised in the ijara by purchase or otherwise: Raghubar v. H. Manners, 13 C.L.J. 568: the case of Ramrup v. H. Manners, 4 C.L.J. 209 was doubted and explained in the case in 13 C.L.J. 568.

An ijaradar who purchases an occupancy holding and settles the same with another, the sub-tenant is an under-raiyat: Sheonandan v. Rambit, 15 C.L.J., 647. An ijaradar who purchases in execution of a decree for rent an occupancy holding is in the position of a raiyat and his under-tenant an under-raiyat: Mehdial v. W. M. Grant, 15 C.L.J. 54 notes.

A ticcadar is liable to eviction after the expiry of the period of his lease, even though it is found that he was a cultivating raiyat with respect to the lands of the ticca prior to the ticca ; his interest as a raiyat became merged into the rights he acquired under the lease: Manners v. Satroghan, 20 C.W.N. 800. Ticcadar —Merger.

Where after the expiry of an ijara the landlord brought a suit to eject a tenant who was inducted on the land by the ijaradar after having purchased a holding under the ijara, held that having regard to cl. (3) the holding continued and that the tenant sought to be ejected was an under-raiyat: and a notice to quit was necessary under s. 49 cl. (b): Nayanjan Bibi v. Durga Das, 33 C.L.J. 575, (Teunon and Newbould J.J.).

9. Purchase by a co-sharer :—Where possession can be referred to a lawful title, it cannot be said that it was illegal and that it was adverse to a co-owner. In order to have the statute of limitation run against a co-owner, there must be actual ouster or some act equivalent to ouster. Where no one of the co-sharers had a right to take actual possession of the land and where he purchased the non-transferable occupancy right ; held such purchase did not confer any title on him, and when he went into possession, such possession was illegal as against his co-sharers and he can acquire limited interest by adverse possession : Bhairabendra v. Rajendra, A.I.R. 1924, Cal. 45. (Walmsley and B. B. Ghosh, J.J.).

10. Right of any third person :—These words mean rights which are valid ; so a landlord purchasing the holding of a raiyat in execution of a decree for arrears of rent is entitled to take khas possession by ejecting an under-raiyat whose lease is not created by a registered instrument as provided in s. 85 ; the rights under such an under-raiyati lease are not protected by sub-sec. 1 : Peary Mohun v. Badul Chandra, 28 Cal. 205, s. c., 5 C.W.N. 310. Where a landlord in execution of a decree for arrears of rent put to sale a raiyati holding, he is entitled to eject an under-raiyat who held under a permanent lease under the raiyat, and the under-raiyat is not protected by s. 22 sub-sec. (1) : Gangadhar v. Rajendra Nath, 17 C.W.N. 860 (Jenkins C. J., and Ray J.) ; see also Ashutosh v. Banomali, 19 C.W.N. 412, s. c., 18 C.L.J. 252 : but if a stranger becomes the purchaser at a sale in execution of a decree for arrears of rent it is necessary for him to annul the incumbrance by a notice under s. 167 : Jankhi v. Prabhasini, 44 Cal. 178 at p. 189. But a landlord who purchases an occupancy holding at a private sale cannot eject an under-raiyat existing on the land without a notice to quit under the provisions of s. 49 of the Act, although the occupancy holding merges in the landlord's interest : Amirulla v. Nazir, 34 Cal. 104 : s. c. 3 C.L.J. 155. But no notice to quit is necessary where a raiyat surrendered his holding and the landlord who was a jotedar under Government wanted to eject the under-raiyat set up on the land by the raiyat without the landlord's consent ; Badan v. Rajeswari, 2 C.L.J. 570. The third person includes every person interested other than the transferer and the transferee : Sitanath v. Pelaram, 21 Cal. 869.

Where a person claimed both the rights of a tenure-holder and of an occupancy raiyat, held that the two interests not having been kept alive and the occupancy right having been treated as no longer existent he could not turn round and set up the latter right to the detriment of the auction-purchaser of the tenure-right : Promotha Nath v. Kishore Lall, 21 C.W.N. 304.

"The landlord who purchases at a sale in execution of a decree for money is in no better position than the landlord who purchases under a private alienation. In both cases the purchaser is the purchaser of the right, title and interest of the raiyat" (Per Richardson J., Walmsley J., agreeing) Babu Ram Dheng v. Upendra Nath Koley, 44 I.C. 922.

A co-sharer landlord by purchasing a non-transferable occupancy holding in execution of a decree for his share of the rent cannot retain exclusive possession as against his co-sharer landlord : Biprodas v. Surendra, 43 I.C. 467 (Teunon and Newbould, J.J.).

Kali Mohan*, 43 I.C. 47; (Fletcher and Newbould J.J.).

It was held in the case of Stonewigg v. Dwarkanath, 45 I.C. (Dawson Miller C. J. and Jwala Prasad J.) that cl. (2) of s. 22 was intended to prevent a co-proprietor from acquiring occupancy rights in the lands transferred to him: (the case of Ramlal v. Meajan, 43 Cal. 164, when in such a case the landlord after his purchase sold the raiyati right to another person and who also took a lease from the landlord, held that the purchaser from such person was entitled to eject upon notice the under-lessee who had been brought upon the land by the mortgagee of the original tenant; such under-lessee continued to be an under-raiyat: Ibid.

II. Sub-sec. (I)—Transfer, succession or otherwise:—The expression “or otherwise” as used in the section means “or in a similar way”; the words “transfer, succession or otherwise” do not mean and include a “surrender”: Badar v. Rajeswari, 2 C.L.J. 570. The words “transfer, succession or otherwise” do not include the case of the vesting of the interest in the landlord on the death of an occupancy raiyat without heirs: Mukta Keshi v. Pulin Behari, 13 C.W.N. 12: s. c., 8 C.L.J., 324: the expression “otherwise” means “in a similar way: Ibid. so where an occupancy raiyat dies without heirs the landlord gets it free from all incumbrances created on it by the raiyat in favour of a third person: Ibid.

12. Proprietors in separate possession of holdings as purchasers:—Where certain co-sharer zemindars were in separate possession of separate portions of the land comprised in the zemindari and purchased raiyati holdings and were in separate possession of them, held that there was no relationship of landlord and tenant: Girindra v. Sreenath, 3 C.L.J. 141.

13. Purchase by a Raiyat:—Where a raiyat acquires temporarily the interest of the tenure under which the raiyati holding is situated, held that he ceases to hold the land as a raiyat: H. Mannars v. Satroghan, 36 I.C. 178.

Where an occupancy raiyat acquires a proprietary right to only a share in the estate, there is no merger: Atulchandra v. Mrityunjoy, 3 Pat. L.J. 427 (Mullick and Atkinson, J.J.).

Share.

Where an occupancy raiyat purchased the superior tenure and brought a suit for ejectment against the purchaser from the under-raiyat of the holding, held that the effect of the purchase was to vest the holding in the plaintiff subject to the limitation that the occupancy right ceased to exist, and not that the holding itself ceased to exist: Akhil v. Hasan Ali, 19 C.W.N. 246. In sub-sec. (1) a distinction is made between “occupancy holding” and “occupancy right” and when the occupancy holding ceases to exist, it does not follow that the holding also vanishes: Ibid. See also Yakub Ali v. Meajan, 43 Cal. 164.

14. Rent-suit—Effect of a purchase of a portion by a co-sharer :—S. 22 (2) : One co-sharer is entitled to bring a suit for the entire rent payable to him and the other co-sharers, when the others do not join in the suit. He cannot, however, maintain the suit for his share only, in the absence of proof of such an arrangement between himself, his co-sharers and the tenants: Ram Ratan v. Jang Bahadur, 62 I.C. 47 (Jwala Prosad J.). The right of a co-sharer to bring a suit for the entire rent is not affected by one co-sharer purchasing a portion of the holding. Ibid.

15. Effect of Exclusive possession by a co-sharer purchaser :—A co-sharer purchasing an occupancy holding, if he keeps exclusive possession, is bound to pay fair and equitable rent to the other co-sharer: Purna Chandra v. Mathura Mohun, 36 C.L.J. 89.

respect of use of land.

23. When a raiyyat has a right of occupancy in respect of any land, he may use the land in any manner which does not materially impair the value of the land or render it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy; but shall not be entitled to cut down trees in contravention of any local custom.

I. Incidents of occupancy-right:—Some of the principal Incidents. incidents are as follows:—An occupancy holding is heritable (see sec. 26) and transferable by custom and usage (see sec. 183 and notes thereunder; also see notes under this section): it may be surrendered (sec. 86); improvements may be made on the holding by erecting a dwelling-house, digging a well, &c., (see secs. 76, 77); an occupancy raiyat can grant sub-leases under certain restrictions; (see section 85); and an occupancy right cannot be annulled by a purchaser of the superior tenure at a sale in execution of a decree for arrears of rent; (sec. 160).

Julkur:—An occupancy raiyat has also the right to fishery in the water over it when there is inundation unless the right has been restricted in the grant or when the landlord has acquired such right by adverse possession or custom: Henry Hill v. Shebaj, A.I.R. 1922 Pat. 9 (Mullick and Ross J.J.); the case of a tenure-holder is even stronger, he possesses all the rights of a landlord: Ibid.

Nothing in a contract made after the passing of this Act shall take away or limit the right of an occupancy raiyat to use land as provided by this section—see sec. 178 (3) (b).

Burden of proof to cut down trees
—custom.

(ii) Custom : Burden of proof : The burden of proof lies on the landlord to establish a custom prohibiting the cutting down of trees by an occupancy tenant and not on the tenant to establish the contrary : Nafar Chandra v. Ram Lal, 22 Cal. 742 ; Nafar Chandra v. Hazari Nath, 22 Cal. 748, note ; Giriza Nath v. Mia Ulla, 22 Cal. 744, note ; Samsar v. Lochin Das, 23 Cal. 853 ; and Meyo Lall v. Gobindo Sunder, 41 I.C. 679 ; Sardar Sing v. Emperor, 44 I.C. 451 ; but it was held in the case of Pyari Lal Pal v. Narayan Mandal, 22 Cal. 746, note, that the onus is upon the tenant to prove a custom to cut down a mango tree.

Cutting down trees is one of the uses of land provided by sec. 23 B. T. Act. If an occupancy raiyat covenants that he will not be entitled to cut down trees, where there is no custom to the contrary, that contract will not take away his right to cut down trees. It is otherwise with regard to the right of appropriating trees. If there is a custom that raiyats can appropriate trees on their holdings, sec. 178 (3) (b) is no bar to the raiyat's entering into a covenant with the landlords that they would not appropriate trees cut down. If kabulyats simply contain a covenant by the tenant not to cut or appropriate trees, that covenant does not amount to any evidence of custom : Lakshinath v. Nabadwip Chandra, 31 C.W.N. 192 (B. B. Ghose and Cammiade J.J.).

Reasonableness or unreasonableness of custom—a question
of law.

(iii) Custom ; Reasonableness : The reasonableness or unreasonableness of a custom is a question of law, and a customary right to cut and appropriate timber trees is not unreasonable : Gurai Kar v. Rani Kuaroni, 19 C.W.N. 1188. In order that a custom may be valid it must be reasonable and certain ; if the validity of a custom is challenged on the ground, that it is against reason, the reason referred to is not to be understood as meaning every unlearned man's reason, but artificial and legal reason, warranted by authority of law. A custom which is prejudicial to a class and is beneficial only to a particular individual is repugnant to the law of reason : Sibnarain v. Bhutnath, 45 Cal. 475 ; s.c., 22 C.W.N. 422 ; s.c., 28 C.L.J. 148, (Mookerjee and Walmsley J.J.).

Property
custom.

(iv) Property in trees : The property in the trees is by the general law vested in the zemindar ; his proprietary rights are subject to modification, or it may be to complete extinction by custom ; but failing the proof of such a custom, his right, as it existed before the passing of this Act, seems to subsist unimpaired, and the onus is upon the tenant to show that he is entitled by local custom to appropriate the trees when felled.—Nafar Chandra v. Ram Lal, 22 Cal. 742 ; Sitab Rai v. Dubal Nagesia, 6 C.L.J. 218 ; Nuffer Chandra v. Nundo Lal, 22 Cal. 751, note ; Kausalia v. Gulab Kuar, 21 All. 297 ; Ganga Dei v. Badam, 30 All. 134 ; Ruttonji Edulji v. The Collector of Tanna, 11 M.I.A. 295 ; Meyo Lall v. Gobinda Sunder, 41 I.C. 679 ; but where a lease was given for the express purpose of clearing and bringing the land under cultivation and the proprietary right was conferred in the entire mouzah by the lessors upon the lessee, it was held that the lessee had the right to cut and appropriate the trees.—Monmohini v. Raghoonath, 23 Cal. 209.

Whatever the tenant (be he a tenure-holder or lessee) grows upon the land, he is entitled to it: Sardar Singh v. Emperor, 4 Pat.L.W. 291; s.c., 44 I.C., 451 (Jwala Prasad J.).

It is well settled that property in trees is by the general law vested in the Zemindar, the tenant is entitled to cut down trees, provided there is no local custom to the contrary, but he can appropriate the trees when felled only if such appropriation is sanctioned by local custom; Prodyote Kumar v. Gopi Krishno, 37 Cal. 322, at p. 327, s.c., 14 C.W.N. 487, s.c., 11 C.L.J. 209; see also Nafar Chandra v. Ramlal, 22 Cal. 742, Sitabrai v. Dubal, 6 C.L.J. 218, Kausalia v. Gulab Kuar, 21 All. 227, Ganga Dei v. Badam, 30 All. 134, Ruttonji Edaljee v. Collector of Tanna, 11 M.I.A. 295, and Honywood v. Honywood, L.R. 18 Eq., 306.

Right to cut down trees.

As a general rule the property in timber growing on a tenant's holding vests in the zemindar, and the tenant has no right to cut and remove such timber; but as a general rule also the Zemindar has no right to interfere with the enjoyment by his tenant of the trees upon his holding so long as the relation of landlord and tenant subsists; Ganga Dei v. Badam, 30 All. 134; see also Sheikh Abadul v. Dalaram, W.R., 1864, p. 367.

Property to timber growing on a tenant's holding.

In the case of non-permanent tenancies not governed by the B. T. Act, the law established by the authorities is that before the T. P. Act was passed, the property in the trees was in the landlord and the tenant had the right to them only if there was any custom or usage to the contrary. In respect of such tenancies the property in the trees would be in the landlord whether the trees were grown by the tenant or were on the land at the time of the lease: Kedar Nath Bose v. Govinda Chandra Das, 32 C.W.N. 366 (Suhrawardy and Graham J.J.); (The case of Nafar Chandra v. Ram Lal, 22 Cal. 742 at 750 followed, and the case of Mofiz Sheikh v. Rasik Lal, 37 Cal. 815 distinguished and dissented from). In the case of tenancies created after the T. P. Act and governed by that Act (the ownership of trees is in the tenant except of those standing on the land at the time of the lease. The prohibition contained in Sec. 108, cl. (o) of the T. P. Act against felling timber applies only to timber that stood on the land at the time of the lease; the lessee is entitled under cl. (h) of that section to timber subsequently grown: Ibid.

Tenancies before the Transfer of Property Act.

In the absence of a custom to the contrary, the right to appropriate any trees on the land after they have been cut down is in the landlord; this is quite a different thing from the right to cut down trees: Mahomed Hamidar v. Ali Fakir, 10 C.L.J. 25; the onus to prove local custom to the contrary is on the tenant: Ibid. See also Meyon Lall v. Gobinda Sunder, 41 I.C. 679.

Custom—
Right to appropriate trees.

The ordinary law is that the tenant has the right to cut but the landlord the right to appropriate trees: Janki Koer v. Saudagar, [1920 Pat.] p. 177, (Mullick and Sultan Ahmed J.J.).

Right to cut and appropriate trees.

The tenant has to prove an exception to the general law in the form of local custom entitling him to the timber of the trees. If he does this by producing the record-of-rights this throws the burden on the landlord; Ramharichan v. Biranji, A.I.R. 1923 Pat. 295 (Ross J.).

Property in trees or in that which is likely to become timber is in the landlord, and the property in bushes in the tenant; if no custom is set up and proved the case must be governed by the general law.

modified by admissions: Rameshwar v. Basudev, 1923 Pat. 95, (Das and Ross J.J.); bamboos are timber in as much as they are used in building and repair of houses: Ibid.

Portion of the tree on stranger's property.

The owner of the property where the tree stands is bound to remove that portion of the tree which has fallen on stranger's property and if he does not do so the stranger can remove it himself: Mahabali v. Manu Mandal, A.I.R. 1924 Pat. 416, (Bucknill and Kulwant Sahay J.J.). The case of Holder v. Coates, [1827] 31 R.R. 724 referred to.

Landlord's right to cut down trees.

(v) Landlord's right to cut down trees:—In the absence of special agreement a tenant has, as against his landlord, a right to insist that so long as his tenancy continues the landlord shall not cut down trees standing on the tenant's holding: Badam v. Ganga Dei, 29 All. 484; see also Deokinandun v. Dhian Singh, 8 All. 467; Kausolia v. Gulab Kunder, 21 All. 297; Ruttonji v. The Collector of Tanna, 11 M.I.A. 295.

Right to appropriate trees,

(vi) Acquiescence: Incumbrance:—When a landlord acquiesces in a certain course of conduct by his tenants, for instance, an appropriation by them of the trees in their holding and such acquiescence as led to the growth of a custom or usage which is binding upon him, the position of the parties is the same as if the landlord has expressly granted to them a right to appropriate the trees; Prodyote Kumar v. Gopi Krishno, 37 Cal. 322 at p. 329; s.c., 14 C.W.N. 487; s.c., 11 C.L.J. 209.

an encumbrance under Reg VIII of 1819.

A customary right of this description in favour of a resident and hereditary cultivator must be regarded as a bona-fide engagement with him which the auction purchaser at a putni sale is not entitled to also abrogate; Ibid at p. 330. A customary right to cut and appropriate trees is however an incumbrance within the meaning of sec. 11 of Reg. of 1819, Ibid, at pp. 328, 329.

Limitation

(vii) Limitation in a suit to recover compensation:—The period of limitation for a suit to recover compensation for removal of trees after they have been cut down is that mentioned by art. 48 or 49 of Sch. II of the Limitation Act (XV of 1877) and not that in art. 36: Mohamed Hamidar v. Ali Fakir, 10 C.L.J. 25; see also Mangan Tha v. Dulhin Gulab Koer, 25 Cal. 692.

S. 188.

(viii) S. 188: Suit for damages for value of trees:—S. 188 of the Bengal Tenancy Act has no application to a suit by a co-sharer landlord against an occupancy raiyat for damages for value of trees alleged to have been improperly cut and appropriated; Fakir Chandra v. Alas Bibi, 15 C.L.J. 225.

(ix) Suit for price of trees cut by tenant if lies in Small Cause Court:—A suit by landlord for price of trees cut by tenant without having any right to do so and without the permission of the landlord, is not excluded from the cognisance of the Court of Small Causes under the provision of Art. 35 cl. (ii) Schedule II of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act.

The fact that such a suit which was valued at less than Rs. 100/- was tried by a Munsiff vested with the powers of a Small Cause Court Judge to try suits up to the value of Rs. 100/-, in his ordinary jurisdiction, did not take away the prohibition of an appeal contained in the Small Cause Court Act, and hence no appeal lay from his decision: Radha Ballabh v. Panchkari, 46 C.L.J. 552. The case of Mohini v. Sankar, 39 C.L.J. 532 was followed.

(x) Agacha or valueless trees:—When a raiyat cut down and appropriated some agacha trees, held that the zemindar did not suffer any damage and had no cause of action—Samsar v. Lochin, 23 Cal. 854. A tamarind tree is not an agacha or a shrub, and a landlord is entitled to its value if it is cut and appropriated by a tenant having no right to do so; Nilmoni v. Mothura, 5 C.L.J., 413.

(xi) Trees of a prescribed size:—A grant under which the grantee becomes entitled to cut and remove during a specified period trees which might during that period attain a prescribed size (whether it creates an interest in land or not) is a grant of forest rights within the meaning of s. 193 of the Bengal Tenancy Act: Bande Ali v. Amud Sarkar, 19 C.W.N. 415.

(xii) Phul Phal (फूलफल) i.e. flowers and fruits: shellac:—A lessor reserved property in the trees growing on the leasehold land and the lessee was prohibited from taking them away; the latter was given enjoyment of the phul phal (flowers and fruits) of the trees only at the lessor's permission, held that this ownership did not carry with it a right to go on the lessee's land to cultivate shellac on the trees reserved: Rai Charan v. Kanai Kumar, 24 C.L.J. 21, (Sanderson C. J., and Woodroffe J.). Fruits and flowers of the trees would in the ordinary meaning of the word include the natural products of the trees: Ibid. (Per Sanderson, C.J.).

(xiii) Injunction:—Where an occupancy raiyat could not prove a special custom entitling him to appropriate the timber growing on the land and a perpetual injunction was granted to the landlord restraining the tenant from cutting down and appropriating the trees growing on the holding, held that the injunction granted was much too wide and that the landlord's right would be amply protected if a simple declaration were made that the tenant was not entitled to appropriate any tree felled by him and growing on the land: Meya Lall v. Gobinda Sundar, 41 I.C. 679 (Fletcher and Smither J.J.).

3. Transferability of occupancy holding: Summary of the law laid down by the Full Bench in the case of Dayamayi*:—In the Full Bench cases of Dayamayi v. Ananda Mohan (appeal from order 455 of 1907), Sheikh Azim v. Golok Singh (Second appeal 2388 of 1908) and Ambika Charan v. Ram Charan, (Second appeal 2379 of 1908), 42 Cal. 172; s.c., 18 C.W.N. 971; s.c., 20 C.L.J. 52; their Lordships (Jenkins C.J., Stephen J., Woodroffe J., Mookerjee J., and Holmwood J., 2 June 1914) laid down a summary of the law on the subject as to the question of transferability of occupancy holdings; their Lordships say as follows:—

"The weight of modern authority establishes the following propositions regarding the transfer for value of occupancy holdings apart from custom or local usage:

"(1) The transfer of the whole or a part is operative as against the raiyat.

"(a) where it is made voluntarily,

* The rule laid down in the Full Bench case of Dayamayi v. Ananda Mohan has to a certain extent been modified by a later Special Bench case by seven Judges: See Chandra Binode v. Sheikh Ala Buksh, 48 Cal. 184, which is discussed in heading No. 4.

Summary of law laid down by the Full Bench
Case of Dayamoyi.

“(b) where it is made involuntarily and the raiyat with knowledge fails or omits to have the sale set aside.

“A sale is made involuntarily where it is in execution of a money-decree, but not of a decree founded on a mortgage or charge voluntarily made.

“(2) The transfer is operative as against the landlord in all cases in which it is operative against the raiyat, provided the landlord has given his previous or subsequent consent. Where the transfer is a sale of the whole holding, the landlord, in the absence of his consent, is ordinarily entitled to enter on the holding ; but where the transfer is of a part only of the holding, or not by way of sale, the landlord, though he has not consented, is not ordinarily entitled to recover possession of the holding, unless there has been (a) an abandonment within the meaning of sec. 87 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, or (b) a relinquishment of the holding, or (c) a repudiation of the tenancy.*

“Whether there has been a relinquishment or repudiation or not, depends on the substantial effect of what has been done in each case.

“(3) The transfer of the whole or a part is operative as against all other persons, where it is operative against the raiyat.

QUESTIONS.

ANSWERS.

“Questions in A. O. 455 of 1907 :—Is a person, who without the landlord's consent purchased from a raiyat, the whole or a portion of an occupancy holding, which is not transferable by local custom or usage, entitled to apply under sec. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code as a representative of the raiyat to have a sale of the holding in execution of a decree for arrears of rent set aside on the ground of fraud?

“(1) The question in the appeal from Order No. 455 of 1907 is answered in the affirmative. We accordingly hold that the Appellant is a person whose immovable property has been sold and is a representative of the judgment-debtor under sec. 244 of the Civil Procedure Code of 1882. This appeal must, therefore, be allowed and an order made as prayed.

“Question in Second appeal 2388 of 1908 :—The question, whether in the case of a transfer of a portion of an occupancy holding, such transfer not binding the landlord, unless made with his consent, the transferee can by suit recover possession from the landlord who has forcibly dispossessed him.

“(2) The question in Appeal from Appellate Decree No. 2388 of 1908 is answered in the affirmative. The decree of the lower Appellate Court is set aside and a decree will be passed in favour of the Plaintiff for possession.

* A lessee from a co-sharér landlord of any occupancy raiyat can question transferability of an occupancy holding : Rasik Mandal v. Kaimi Gazi, unreported Second Appeal No. 1341 of 20 (Newbould and Rankin J.J., 14 June 1923).

"Questions in second appeal 2379 of 1908:—(i) Whether a right of occupancy which is not transferable by custom or local usage is a right which can be transferred at all.

"(ii) If not, whether the holding apart from the right of occupancy can be transferred.

"(iii) In either cases whether the validity of the transfer can be questioned by any person other than the landlord of the holding.

"We would only add that the uncertainty as to the transferability of holdings has been one of the most fruitful sources of litigation, and is urgently necessary that it should be set at rest by the legislature."

It seems that the Full Bench case of Dayamayi does not lay down any new rule of law; at the commencement of their Lordships' judgment they say that "the weight of modern authority establishes the propositions" which they have laid down. It must however be taken that such of the former rulings which laid down rules contrary to the Full Bench have now been over-ruled. It is submitted that in order to apply the Full Bench decision to particular cases the interpretation put upon it in subsequent cases has not been uniform, and in some of them the rules which have been considered to have been impliedly laid down by the Full Bench case cannot be deduced from the latter. In order to have a clear idea how the Full Bench has been understood or interpreted a summary of some of the subsequent decisions given below may be of use:

[Sub-headings of the summary: (i) Validity of transfer against all persons other than the landlord; (ii) What is relinquishment or abandonment; (iii) Transfer of whole or part and abandonment; (iv) Effect of transfer of a part; (v) Involuntary sale without tenant's consent; (vi) Estoppel; (vii) Devise by will (viii) s. 22 (2): (ix) Right of deposit of rent by transferee. Interpretations of the Full Bench case in subsequent decisions.

(i) Validity of transfer against all persons other than the landlord: "The decision of the Full Bench in the case of Dayamayi v. Ananda is an authority for the proposition that in cases of transfers for value, the title passes from the transferer to the transferee, although the validity of the transfer is liable to be questioned by the landlord who is not a party to the transaction": (Per Mookerjee J., Walmsley J., concurring, 4 May, 1917); 45 Cal. 434; s.c., Behari v. Sindhubala, 27 C.L.J. 497, s.c., 22 C.W.N. 210; the principle is also applicable to the case of a transfer by gift; Ibid. Transfer operative against the raiyat and against all persons other than the raiyat.

"From the decision of the Full Bench of this Court in Dayamayi v. Ananda Mohan, it is clear that the voluntary transfer by the original raiyat is operative against the raiyat and also operative against all persons other than the landlord including obviously a subsequent purchaser from the same raiyat": Deo Saran v. Bateswar, 23 C.L.J. 559; (Sharfuddin and Teunon J.J.); the fact that the subsequent purchaser is a co-sharer landlord does not affect the question: ibid.

Summary of law laid down by the Full Bench case of Dayamayi.

Relinquishment or abandonment—effect of what has been done Under-raiyati holding.

(ii) What is relinquishment or abandonment: What is relinquishment or abandonment has been held by the Full Bench to depend on the substantial effect of what has been done in each case: Amirunnessa v. Jinnat Ali, 20 C.L.J. 548, (Holmwood and Chapman J.J.) ; in the same case it was held relying upon the second heading of the Full Bench that a raiyat is entitled to khass possession on the transfer of an under-raiyati holding, (20 C.L.J. at p. 450) ; see notes under s. 49.

See notes under this section under HEADING No. 9, RIGHT TO KHAS POSSESSION BY LANDLORD ON TRANSFER OF OCCUPANCY HOLDING.

Effect of transfer of whole or part and abandonment.

(iii) Transfer of whole or part and abandonment: It is not disputed that according to Dayamayi's case when the raiyat of a non-transferable holding transfers the whole or a portion, and then abandons, relinquishes, or repudiates the tenancy in its entirety, the landlord is entitled to re-enter and eject the transferee ; (1 Richardson J.) : Sheikh Dastur Ali v. Ram Kumar, 22 C.W.N. 972.

Transferee of a share may sue landlord for possession.

(iv) Effect to transfer of a part: Mookerjee J. observes in the Full Bench case of Purna v. Chandra, 23 C.L.J. 304 (at p. 309) ; s. c., 20 C.W.N. 586, that the Full Bench decision in the case of Dayamayi v. Ananda Mohan "shows that the plaintiff, as purchaser of a share of an occupancy holding, is entitled to possession even as against the landlord, in-as-much as the tenancy has not yet terminated and interposes a barrier between him and the landlord."

Transfer of part does not cause forfeiture.

The effect of the purchase of a portion of an occupancy holding does not cause a forfeiture of the tenancy. "This is settled by a long series of decisions in this Court and is now finally confirmed by a Full Bench in the case of Dayamayi v. Ananda Mohan Ray Chowdhury : (Per Mookerjee J., Roe J., concurring) : Kalim Sheikh v. Mocham Mandal, 24 C.L.J. 113.

D. Chatterjee J., has observed as follows: "It has been held by the Full Bench that the mere fact of the transfer of a part of an occupancy holding does not entitle the landlord to evict the purchaser although the sale is not binding upon him and he is not bound to recognise the purchaser as a tenant": Ananda Mohan v. Gurudayal, 22 C.W.N. 965 (at p. 966).

Transferee of a part—rent suit.

The transferee of a part of a non-transferable holding has no right to obtain a declaration from prohibiting the landlord from proceeding with an action (suit for rent) against his recorded tenant: the Full Bench case is no authority for the contention that the transferee has any such right: Gananath v. Harihar, (Patna High Court), 48 I.C. 359 at p. 361 (Miller and Mullick JJ.). But it had been previously held on the authority of the Full Bench case that a transferee of a portion of an occupancy holding has locus standi to bring a suit for stay of sale of the holding at the instance of the landlords on the ground that the tenant against whom the rent-decree had been obtained was not the real tenant: Jang Bahadur v. Ram Sundar, 38 I.C. 817, s.c. 1 Pat. L. W. 194 (Chapman J.).

Where A and B are joint tenants of an occupancy holding, and A transfers his share to C, it was held, following the Full Bench, that the landlord is not entitled to maintain a suit for possession of A's share which has been transferred to C, in-as-much as the holding is one entire holding so far as regards the tenant is concerned: Swarnamoyi Dasi v. Gayratulla Sardar, 21 C.W.N. ciii (103 notes portion) (decided by Fletcher and Newbould J.J.).

The decision in the case of Saferaddi v. Durga Prasad, 16 C.L.J. 135 is founded on a view of the relative rights of a landlord and a transferee of a portion of a non-transferable occupancy holding and this has been subsequently negated by the Full Bench Case of Dayamoyi v. Ananda: see the case of Ashutosh v. Upendra, 24 C.L.J. 467 at p. 474 (Mookerjee and Cuming, J.J.).

See notes under this section under Heading No. 9, RIGHT TO HAS POSSESSION BY LANDLORD ON TRANSFER OF OCCUPANCY HOLDING.

(v) Involuntary sale without tenant's consent: The Full Bench has impliedly laid down that a sale of an occupancy holding cannot be held in execution of a money-decree if the tenant objects to the sale although the decree-holder has obtained the consent of the landlord: the principle laid down in the case of Ananda v. Ruitnagar, 7 C.W.N. 572 and Shakaruddin v. Hemangeni, 16 C.W.N. 420 is no longer good law: see the case of Narayani v. Nabin, 25 C.L.J. 351, s.c., 21 C.W.N. 400, s.c., 44 Cal. 720. (N. R. Chatterjee and Sheepshanks J.J.). The case of Narayani v. Nabin Chandra was followed in the case of J. A. J. Mac Pherson v. Debi Bhuson, 2 Pat. L.J. 530; s.c., 42 I.C. 36; (Sharfuddin and Roe J.J.). Also see Ramsunder v. Sheikh Lochan, 38 I.C. 942.

Following the Full Bench it has been held by the Patna High Court that the holder of a money-decree against an occupancy raiyat whose holding is not transferable by custom, is not entitled to bring to sale a portion of the raiyat's holding: (it was conceded in this case that the entire holding could not be put to sale): Sadavi Kunwar v. Palknath, 1 Pat.L.J. 257 (Chamier C.J. and Jwala Prasad J.).

"And the recent Full Bench in the case of Dayamoyi v. Ananda Mohan Ray Chowdhari has laid down that an involuntary transfer i.e., a sale in execution of a money-decree of the whole or part of an occupancy holding, apart from custom or local usage, is operative against the raiyat, where the raiyat with knowledge fails or omits to have the sale set aside. It is true the question whether a raiyat is entitled to have the sale set aside, or has the right to object to the sale before it takes place, was not in terms decided by the Full Bench—the Full Bench decision by implication holds that the raiyat is entitled to have a sale of the holding in execution of a money decree set aside after it takes place, and that the holding cannot be sold in execution of such a decree where the raiyat objects to the sale before it takes place: Badarennessa v. Alam Gazi, 21 C.L.J. 650 at pp. 651, 652 (N. R. Chatterjee and Greaves J.J.; s.c., 19 C.W.N. 814, followed in Narayani v. Nabin Chandra, 25 C.L.J. 351; s.c., 21 C.W.N. 400 (N. R. Chatterjee and Sheepshanks J.J.).

See notes under this section under Heading No. 13, Involuntary sale with consent of landlord.

(vi) Estoppel: An execution purchaser of a non-transferable occupancy holding cannot raise a question of the validity of a transfer by the debtor in favour of a third person ; the contention that he can do so cannot be supported in view of the principles laid down by the Full Bench in Dayamayi v. Ananda : see Kanchan Mandar v. Kamala Prasad, 21 C.L.J. 441, at p. 444 (Mookerjee and Beachcroft J.J.). See notes under this section under heading No. 17.

Will.

(vii) Devise by will : In holding that a portion of a non-transferable holding cannot be devised by a will (Umesh Chandra v. Joy Nath, 22 C.W.N. 474, Fletcher and N. R. Chatterjea J.J.) Fletcher J., remarked as follows : Reliance in the present case has been placed by the appellant on the decision of a Full Bench of this Court. But as Mookerjee J., points out, the validity as against the raiyat of transfers by him of his holding for value depends on the doctrine of estoppel and in cases of involuntary transfer by sale in execution where the raiyat does not apply to have the sale set aside, on the doctrine of acquiescence or waiver. It is suggested that the decision of the Full Bench above referred to has modified considerably the remarks of the learned Judge, but I am unable to agree to this view.

The Full Bench did not deal with the power of an occupancy raiyat to bequeath his holding : Kunja Lal Ray v. Umesh Chandra Ray, 18 C.W.N. 1294 (Fletcher and Richardson J.J. See notes under this section under heading No. 29, and also notes under s. 26.

S. 22 (2).

(viii) S. 22 (2) : In the case of Beprodas v. Surendra, 43 I.C. 467 Teunon and Newbould J.J., have held that the Full Bench case in no way affects or impairs the authority of the prior decision reported in Girish Chandra v. Kedar Chandra, 27 Cal. 472, s.c., 4 C.W.N. 569 where it was held that s. 22 (2) applies only to the case of a transferable occupancy holding.

deposit.

(ix) Right of deposit by transferee : "It appears to me with reference to the decision of the Full Bench in Dayamoyi v. Ananda that the unregistered transferee of an entire holding who has not been recognised in any way by the landlord acquires no interest against landlord.....he is not entitled to make a deposit under s. 170 sub-sec. (3) of the Bengal Tenancy Act." (Per Chamier C.J., Sharfuddin J., concurring : Rameshwar v. Raghunandan, 38 I.C. 337 followed in Rameshwar v. Mahabir, 38 I.C. 832 Roe and Jawala Prasad, J.J.). It was held by the majority of a Special Bench of the Patna High Court relying upon the Full Bench case of Dayamoyi that the purchaser of a non-transferable holding has no right to make deposit under s. 170 : Mahadeo Lal v. Longat, 2 Pat.L.J. 457. See also Jharu Mandal v. Kshettra Mohan, 54 Cal. 15 (F.B. ; s.c., 30 C.W.N. 729 ; s.c., 43 C.L.J. 554.

Full Bench
case of Dayamoyi modified by a Special Bench.
(*Chandra Binode v.
Shaikh Ala
Bux*).

4. Full Bench Case of Dayamoyee as modified by Special Bench Case of Chandra Binode :—The decision in the Full Bench case of Dayamoyi v. Ananda Mohan, 42 Cal. 172, s. c., 18 C.W.N. 971, s. c., 20 C.L.J. 52 was considered in the case of Chandra Binode v. Sheikh Ala Buksh, 48 Cal. 184, s. c., 24 C.W.N. 818, s. c., 31 C.L.J. 510, by a Special Bench of seven Judges, (Mookerjee C. J., Fletcher, N. R. Chatterjea, Teunon, Richardson, Chaudhuri and Shamsul Huda, J.J., 1st June, 1920). The Special Bench have partially modified the decision of the Full Bench in the case of Dayamoyi as is explained below :

The question which was referred to (by Mookerjee and Panton, J.J., 21 Aug. 1919), for the decision of the Special Bench was as follows:

Is the sole landlord of a raiyat competent to sell in execution of a money-decree against the raiyat his occupancy holding, unless the holding is transferable by usage or custom?

The result of the decision was summed up in the following words by Mookerjee C. J., who delivered the judgment of the Court ;*

(1) The case of Bhiram Ali v. Gopi Kanth, 24 Cal. 355,† was erroneously decided.

(2) The decision of the Full Bench in Dayamayi v. Ananda Mohan, 42 Cal. 172, s.c., 18 C.W.N. 971, s.c., 20 C.L.J. 52 requires partial modification, viz., the following should be substituted for the first proposition‡ enunciated therein regarding the transfer for value of occupancy holdings apart from custom or local usage :—

“1. The transfer of the whole or a part is operative against the raiyat, whether it is made voluntarily or involuntarily.”

The principle enunciated in the Full Bench of Dayamoyi v. Ananda Mohan, 42 Cal. 172 “that a transfer of an occupancy holding is operative against the raiyat where it is made involuntarily and the raiyat fails or omits to have the sale set aside” can no longer be maintained in view of the Special Bench case of Chandra Benode, 48 Cal. 184, see Abdul v. Basiraddin, 66 I.C. 220, (N. R. Chatterjee and Panton, J.J.).

Modification of Dayamoyi's case. Raiyat cannot object to involuntary sale.

The effect of the proposition laid down in the Special Bench case of Chandra Benode, 48 Cal. 184, that a transfer of the whole or part of an occupancy holding apart from the legal estate is operative against the raiyat, whether it is made voluntarily or involuntarily, is, that the tenant is not entitled to question the validity of the purchase by the purchaser. But this case does not go so far as to hold that the tenancy passes to the purchaser against the landlord and vests in the purchaser without the landlord's consent: Suk Chand v. Giridhari, 44 C.L.J. 127.

The purchaser in a money-decree against the tenant, a non-transferable occupancy raiyat, takes only the tenants interest and so far as the landlord is concerned, obtains no interest or title, Ibid.

* The following cases were discussed: Agar Jan Bibi v. Panulla, 37 Cal. 687 at p. 693, s.c., 14 C.W.N. 779, s.c., 12 C.L.J. 169; Dwarka Nath v. Hurish Chander, 4 Cal. 925, s.c., 4 C.L.R. 130; Narayani v. Nabin Chandra, 25 C.L.J. 351, s.c., 21 C.W.N. 400, s.c., 44 Cal. 720; Ananda Das v. Ratnakar, 7 C.W.N. 572; Shukraddin v. Rani Hemangini, 16 C.W.N. 420, and Dwarka Nath v. Tarini Sankar, 34 Cal. 199, s.c., 11 C.W.N. 513.

† The Rule which was laid down in the case of Bhiram Ali v. Gopi Kanth, 24 Cal. 355 was as follows:

In the absence of custom or local usage to the contrary, a raiyati holding in which the raiyat has only a right of occupancy is not saleable at the instance of the occupancy raiyat or any creditor of his, other than his landlord seeking to obtain satisfaction of his decree for arrears of rent.

‡ The first proposition which was laid down in the case of Dayamoyi was as follows:

1. The transfer of the whole or a part is operative as against the raiyat,
(a) where it is made voluntarily.
(b) where it is made involuntarily and the raiyat with knowledge fails or omits to have the sale set aside.

A sale is made involuntarily where it is in execution of a money-decree, but not of a decree founded on a mortgage or charge voluntarily made.

Local usage.

Custom—transferability.

5. Usage or Custom to transfer occupancy holdings :

Sub-headings : (i) General : (ii) What facts are necessary to prove custom or usage of transferability : (iii) Burden of Proof : (iv) Custom as to recognition by landlord on payment of Nazar : (v) Marfatwari Dakhilas : (vi) Effect of purchase by landlord : (vii) Reasonableness or unreasonableness of a custom : (viii) Whether evidence sufficient to prove custom is a question of law : (ix) Transfer by piecemeal : (x) Usage in Comilla :

(i) General : A permanent right of occupancy in land is a heritable right and in some places, transferable by the tenant to a stranger. It can only be obtained by a tenant by custom, or by a grant from an owner of the land who has power to grant such a right, or under an Act of the Legislature : A. S. N. Nainapilliai v. T. A. R. A. Rm. Ramanathan, 28 C.W.N. 809 (P.C.). No tenant of lands can obtain any right to a permanent tenancy by prescription in them against his landlord from whom he holds the lands : Ibid.

(ii) What facts are necessary to prove custom or usage of transferability : Mookerjee, J. (Teunon, J. concurring) has laid down the following rule on discussing all the cases on the point :—

In order to prove a custom or usage of transferability of occupancy holdings, what is necessary to prove is that such transfers have been made to the knowledge and without the consent of the landlord and that they have been recognised by him either without payment of a nazar or upon payment of a nazar, also fixed by custom. It is not necessary to prove that the landlord has actually made an objection to a transfer and has been unsuccessful.

The usage to be effective must not be a growing usage but one which has already grown up.

A usage of transferability, after it has grown up, affects not merely tenancies created there-after but also existing tenancies : Buzal Karim v. Satis Chandra Giri, 15 C.W.N. 752 at p. 756 ; s. c., 13 C.L.J. 418.

To establish that occupancy holdings are transferable in accordance with local usage, it is necessary to adduce evidence of purchases or transfers by persons other than the landlords made with the knowledge but without the consent of the latter and to which no objection was made by the latter. The words 'custom' and 'usage' are not synonymous terms, and the same kind of evidence as would be required to prove a custom is not necessary when the existence of a 'local usage' is in question. A long period of time must elapse before a custom in respect of the transferability of occupancy holdings can grow up ; but this is not the case with regard to the growth of usage in respect of the matter : Edward Dalgleish v. Sheikh Gazaffer, 24 Cal. 442, s. c., 3 C.W.N. 21 ; see also Seriathulla v. Pran Nath, 26 Cal. 184 : Palak Dhari v. Manners, 23 Cal. 179, (see notes under sec. 183). In order to prove a custom or usage of transferability of occupancy holdings what is necessary to prove is that such transfers have been made to the knowledge and without the consent of the landlord and that they have been recognised by him either with or without the payment of nazar also fixed by custom. It is not necessary to prove that the landlord has actually made an objection to a transfer and has been unsuccessful : Buzal Karim v. Satis Chandra, 15 C.W.N. 752. To prove a custom or usage of the transferability of an occupancy holding it is not sufficient to show that such holdings are sold in the village or neighbouring villages ; the essence of transferability is that transfers made to the knowledge of but without the consent of the landlord are valid and must be recognised by them : Ibid. Where the usage of transferability of occupancy holdings was found to have been growing up in other puttis than that of the plaintiff landlord, held that he could retard the usage in his putti which was separate estate by refusing to acknowledge the validity of transfers in that putti : Jagoon Pershad v. Pasun Sahoo, 8 C.W.N. 172 : A growing usage of transferability of occupancy holdings is of no effect against the landlord : Rajendra Kishore v. Chandra Nath, 12 C.W.N. 878. The usage to be effective must not be a growing usage but one which has already grown up : Bazal Karim v. Satis Chandra, 15 C.W.N. 752. A usage of transferability, after it has grown up, affects not merely tenancies created thereafter but also existing tenancies : Ibid. See notes under s. 183.

Custom and usage are not synonymous terms.

(iii) BURDEN OF PROOF OF TRANSFERABILITY :—It is for a tenant who claims his holding of agricultural land to be transferable to prove it ; there is no onus of proving non-transferability on the landlord : Manmotha Nath v. Anath Bandhu, 23 C.W.N. 201 (N. R. Chatterjea and Greaves, J.J.).

(iv) Custom as to recognition by landlord on payment of Nazar : Custom of transferability on payment of nazar. There may be a custom that landlords recognise transferees on payment of nazar : Radha Kishore v. Ananda Pira, 8 C.W.N. 235 ; where there is such custom a raiyat can sell his holding without reference to the landlord and the transferee acquires a title on payment of nazar : Ibid : In order to prove such a custom it is not sufficient to prove that tenants transfer their rights of occupancy without the landlord's consent : Ibid ; when nazar is not paid the landlord is entitled to eject the transferee : Ibid. Where according to custom a transferee of a non-transferable holding was to pay a certain sum as fee to the landlord, held that non-payment of such renders the transfer invalid : Sibo Sundari v. Rajmohun, 8 C.W.N. 214. A raiyat can sell his non-transferable holding without reference to his landlord provided that the purchaser pays to the landlord a customary fee, if the custom allow such transfer on payment of a nazar to the landlord : Radha Kishore v. Ananda, 8 C.W.N. 235. The fact that tenants do transfer their holdings without their landlord's consent does not of itself establish a usage in this respect so as to affect the right of the landlord : Ibid.

The observations made in the case of Radhakishore v. Ananda, 8 C.W.N. 255 were not approved in the case of Kailash Chandra v. Hari Mohon, 13 C.W.N. 541 ; in this case it was held that instances of sales of holdings which the landlord recognises only upon receiving nazarana cannot go to prove the existence of a usage to transferability, and that the usage to be proved is usage of sale without the landlord's consent. Where nazars were as a rule paid to the landlord and on payment of the nazar the purchaser was usually recognised by the landlord, held that it was not evidence of any custom or usage by which an unwilling landlord was bound, or evidence that the landlord was compelled, to recognise the purchaser on payment of nazar whether he wished to do so or not : Bhagirath v. Sital Chandra, 16 C.W.N. 955. Payment of nazarana does not prove usage. Payment of nazar—no evidence of custom or usage.

After considering the cases of customary nazar cited above Richardson and Walmsley, J.J. have laid down the following rule in the case of Mina Kumari v. Ichamoyee, 27 C.L.J. 587 :— Principle of the cases laying down the rule relating to customary nazar.

"The principle of the cases is clearly this that in order to establish a custom of transferability subject to the payment of a customary nazar the evidence must show that the landlord is bound to recognise the transfer when nazar of the amount, or at the rate, determined by custom is tendered to him. There is all the difference between a fixed nazar, which the landlord is obliged to accept whether he likes it or not and a nazar which is bargained for and paid as the price of a consent which he may give or withhold as he pleases. A practice or course of business in a zemindary office according to which a transferee is recognised provided that the amount of the nazar is satisfactory to the landlord is not sufficient."

"Obviously a custom which leaves the amount or rate of nazar indefinite must be void for uncertainty. The position is no whit better than when the nazar is determined by agreement. No one knows what he has to pay and the landlord can demand what he pleases and refuse his consent unless he is satisfied: Ibid.

Marfat-wari dakhilas :

(v) Marfatwari Dakhilas : Where it was proved by evidence that for 15 or 16 years before suit, occupancy holding had been transferred in the pergunna as also in the village, and the landlords had allowed the transferees to hold possession and pay rent as marfatdars and granted them receipts as such, but would not substitute their names in the sherista unless some payment was made by way of selami or nazar, held that the evidence was insufficient to establish a custom of local usage of transferability of occupancy holdings: Kurani Dasi v. Sajani Kant, 12 C.W.N. 539. See also Jugoon Pershad v. Pasun Sahoo, 8 C.W.N. 173. See also Pearymohun v. Jote Kumar, 11 C.W.N. 83. Unless nazar is fixed by custom, the landlord is not bound to recognise a transfer upon payment of nazar: Sheikh Chand Pramanick v. Romoni Mohan, 17 C.W.N. 1105.

As to the effect of marfatwari dakhilas, see notes under this section under headings Nos. 19 and 20.

Purchase by landlord.

(vi) Effect of purchase by landlord : A landlord himself can purchase or take a mortgage of a non-transferable holding of his tenant and therefore the fact that the plaintiff himself took a mortgage of a non-transferable holding is no evidence of transferability: Mahesh Narain v. Maharaja Bahadur, 17 C.W.N. 70 ; where a non-transferable occupancy holding was mortgaged to the landlord and he assigned the mortgage to a purchaser of the holding ; held that the landlord was estopped from denying that the purchaser had acquired a valid title: Ibid.

Non-agricultural tenancies.

The incidents of non-transferability was common to ordinary tenancies of agricultural lands and tenancies from year to year of homestead lands before the passing of the Transfer of Property Act and the party alleging transferability had to prove a custom to that effect: Madhu Sudan v. Kamini Kanta, 32 Cal. 1023, s. c., 9 C.W.N. 895.

Reasonableness or unreasonableness of custom—a question of law.

(vii) Reasonableness or unreasonableness of a custom : The reasonableness or unreasonableness of a custom is a question of law, and a customary right to cut and appropriate timber trees is not unreasonable: Gurai Kar v. Rani Kuarmani, 19 C.W.N. 1188. In order that a custom may be valid it must be reasonable and certain ; if the validity of a custom is challenged on the ground that it is against reason, the reason referred to is not to be understood as meaning every unlearned man's reason, but artificial and legal reason warranted by authority of law. A custom which is prejudicial to a class and is beneficial only to a particular individual is repugnant to the law of reason: Sibnarayan v. Bhutnath, 45 Cal. 475, s. c., 22 C.W.N. 422, s. c., 28 C.L.J. 148.

(viii) Whether evidence sufficient to prove custom is a question of law: Where the question was as to the custom in regard to the transferability of a holding, held that the High Court in second appeal has jurisdiction to consider the evidence given in support of the alleged custom and to determine whether or not that evidence is sufficient in point of law to establish the custom set up: Girraj Singh v. Hargobind Sahai, 32 All. 125; see also Hashin Ali v. Abdul Rahman, 28 All. 698 and Ram Bilas v. Lal Bahadur, 30 All. 311.

Question as to custom—a question of law.

The question whether the facts found in any given instance prove the existence of the essential attributes of a custom or usage is a question of law which may be discussed in second appeal; the question whether such a state of facts has been proved by the evidence is merely a question of fact: Kailash Chandra v. Padmakishore, 45 Cal. 285; s. c., 25 C.L.J. 613; the case of Kakarta v. Raja Venkata, 29 Mad. 24 was dissented from.

Essential attributes of custom or usage.

(ix) Transfer by piece-meal: The existence of a custom by which rights of occupancy are transferable does not entitle a raiyat to transfer his holding piece-meal to different persons: Ramji Prasad v. Mohammad Anwar, 3 Pat. L.W. 299, s. c., 1917 Pat. 360; s. c., 43 I.C. 377.

Transfer by piece-meal.

(x) Usage in Comilla: There is no usage in Comilla, under which tenants are entitled to sell their holdings without the consent of the Maharaja of Tipperah: Kailash v. Harimohon, 10 C.L.J. 113.

Comilla.

6. Right to transfer of sale:—See notes under this section under heading No. 3 sub-heading No. (i).

Occupancy holding not transferable except by local custom or usage. Transfer not void.

The transfer of occupancy holding is valid against all persons except the landlord: Behari v. Sindhubala, 45 Cal. 434, s. c., 27 C.L.J. 497, s. c., 22 C.W.N. 210; Deo Saran v. Bateswar, 23 C.L.J. 559. "What is called a non-transferable occupancy holding or an untransferable right of occupancy" [Transfer of Property Act, sec. 6 (i), sec. 108, cl. (j)] is not in every respect property which cannot be transferred. The transfer of such a holding even without the consent of the landlord is not expressly prohibited. It is not void for all purposes. It may be validated by the subsequent consent of the landlord. The transfer of occupancy holding cannot be said to be contrary to the policy of the law. The Bengal Tenancy Act expressly recognises as legal a custom of transferability where it exists": (Per Richardson, J.). Sheikh Dastur Ali v. Ram Kumar, 22 C.W.N. 972 at p. 976.

A transfer of an occupancy holding in accordance with usage is valid even without the consent of the landlord: Palak Dhari v. Manners, 23 Cal. 180. A holding of an occupancy raiyat is not transferable except by custom or local usage: Bhiram Ali v. Gopi Kant, 25 Cal. 355; see also the cases of Buti Singh v. Murat Singh, 13 B.L.R. 284, note; s. c., 20 W.R. 478; Durga Sundari v. Brindaban Chandra, 2 B.L.R. Ap. 37; s. c., 11 W.R. 162; Ajoodhia Persad v. Emam Bandi Begum, B.L.R. Sup. Vol. 725; s. c., 7 W.R. 528. See also notes under sec. 183.

Homestead and agricultural lands.

The incident of non-transferability was common to tenancies from year to year of homestead land and agricultural lands, created before the passing of the Transfer of Property Act in the absence of a custom to the contrary: Ram Charan v. Hari Charan, 7 C.L.J. 107; see also Madhub Chandra v. Bijoy Chand, 4 C.W.N. 574 and Madhu Sudan v. Kamini Kanta, 32 Cal. 1023: s. c., 9 C.W.N. 895.

Presumption.

The existence of the power to transfer cannot be presumed where there is no special stipulation about it in the lease: Annopurna v. Oomachuron, 18 W.R. 55.

Consent by karta of joint family.

A consent by the karta of a joint Hindu family to a transfer of non-transferable occupancy holding, held by the tenants under the joint family as landlords, is binding on the other members of the family: Golapdi Meah v. Purna Chandra, 27 C.L.J. 129. (The case came from the Faridpur district and it therefore seems that the family is a Dayabhaga Family).

Where a purchaser at a sale in execution of a money decree of non-transferable holding obtained possession and the tenant judgment-debtor subsequently dispossessed the auction purchaser and in a suit for ejectment by the auction purchaser, the tenant judgment-debtor pleaded that the sale was bad on account of fraud and irregularity in the publication of sale proclamation etc., held that such a defence was not allowable as no application was made by him under Or. 21 r. 90 C. P. C.; Jagneswar v. Kailash, 28 C.W.N. 821.

Ejectment of a part of a holding.

7. Ejectment from a part:—When the tenants are in possession of the land leased to them, the landlord cannot put an end to the tenancies as regards part of the land and maintain them as regards the rent—the holdings are not necessarily forfeited because the raiyats have transferred parts of the holding: Durgacharan v. Pandabnath, 33 C.L.J. 518, (Petheram C. J., and Macpherson J. 1 Aug., 1893).

Adding of transferees as parties.

8. Ejectment Suit—Estoppel:—Where in an ejectment suit certain persons who purchased from the successors of the defendant were added as defendants, held that this did not estop the plaintiffs to treat the transferees as tenants: Damodar v. S. A. Miller, 27 C.W.N. 462 (P.C.).

Right to Khas possession.

9. Right to khas possession by landlord on transfer of occupancy holding:—See notes under this section under heading No. 3 sub-heading Nos. (i), (ii), (iii), and (iv).

Abandonment.

The reason why the zemindar is entitled to obtain khas possession of the land of a holding which has been sold, and of which possession has been given to the purchaser is fully explained in the judgment of the Full Bench in the case of Narendra v. Ishan, 13 B.L.R. 274: s. c., 22 W.R. 22, and as the sale and transfer of possession to the purchaser conveys no title to him, and as the raiyat has left the holding and disclaims interest in it, he must be held to have abandoned it and the land remains a piece of land within the zemindari, to which the person in possession has no title and which has been abandoned by the owner: Kabil Sardar v. Chunder Nath Nag, 20 Cal. 590. Where a tenant transfers his non-transferable holding and abandons possession of it, the landlord is entitled to eject the transferee: Robert Wilson v. Radha Dulali, 2 C.W.N. 63. It is evident that it is essential to such a case that the owner of the land i.e., the raiyat must have abandoned it altogether: Kabil Sardar v.

Chunder Nath Nag, 20 Cal. 590 ; Bhupendra Nath v. Busi Tanti, 40 Cal. 870.

When a holding is not transferable by custom the landlord does not sue to eject the transferer ; he sues to eject the transferee, and the transferee having acquired against the landlord no title by the transfer has no defence to offer in a suit in ejectment : Ramji Prasad v. Mohammed Anwar, 3 Pat. L.W. 299 ; s.c., 43 I.C. 377 at p. 378. The principle underlying all suits for ejectment of transferees is based not on the Bengal Tenancy Act but on the common law, whereby the landlord is entitled to enter into possession of all lands secured to the payment of revenue : Ibid.

Suit for ejectment lies against transferee.
Ejectment suit, not a suit under B. T. Act.

Abandonment is the effect of the act of the tenant in vacating the holding without making arrangement for payment of his rent as it falls due and for cultivating the land : Ram Pershad v. Jawahir Roy, 12 C.W.N. 899.

Where upon a transfer of a non-transferable occupancy holding and after the transferee is in possession for 9 years and the original tenant has no concern with the tenancy and has not paid rent thereof, nor has made arrangement for its payment, held, it constitutes an abandonment : Sasi Bhusan v. Ahmadullah, 69 I.C. 1005. See notes under heading No. 6.

What constitutes an abandonment.

What is relinquishment or abandonment has been held by the Full Bench in Dayamoyi's case to depend on the substantial effect of what has been done in each case : Amirunnessa v. Munat Ali, 20 C.L.J. 548.

In a suit to eject a transferee of a non-transferable holding it is not necessary to prove abandonment and disclaimer by the transferer, as it is a direct inference from the fact that possession was given to the transferee ; it is not necessary to prove distinct repudiation or refusal to pay rent : Sheikh Chand Paramanick v. Ramoni Mohon, 17 C.W.N. 1105.

Abandonment and disclaimer.

There may be a sale of the entire holding and yet there may not be abandonment, viz., (1) the sale may not be operative at all ; (2) the tenant may, after transferring his holding take a sub-lease ; (in regard to the second case the rulings are not uniform) ; (3) the tenant may sell a portion of the holding and may remain in possession of the other portion.

Where there is no abandonment.

Where a tenant of a non-transferable holding sold his holding, held in a suit by the landlord for recovery of possession from the transferee that if the transaction of sale was not meant to be an operative one the title to the property still continued with the tenant ; that the true question was whether there was an absolute abandonment of the holding by the tenant such as would entitle the landlord to treat the purchaser as a trespasser ; if the defendant was holding possession on behalf of the tenant he could not be evicted : Mathur v. Ganga Charan, 33 Cal. 1219 ; s.c., 10 C.W.N. 1033.

Whether sale operative.

Where a tenant transfers his non-transferable holding, and gives up possession of all the culturable lands of the holding but remains in possession of the homestead lands only by permission of the purchaser, it was held that this was sufficient indication that the raiyat has abandoned his holding, and in such a case the landlord is entitled to eject the raiyat and the purchaser : Sailabala Debi v. Sritam, 11 C.W.N. 873, s.c., 7 C.L.J. 303.

Abandonment of all lands except a small portion.

Tenant, if still on land after transfer cannot be ejected.

A tenant does not lose his right in his holding by an unauthorised alienation if he is still on the land ; and the landlord will not be entitled in such a case to enter upon the land merely by reason of the unauthorised transfer by the tenant who still continues in possession unless there is a clause for forfeiture and re-entry in the contract by which the tenancy was created : Nedhu Mondal v. Kartick Mondal, 9 C.W.N. 56.

Sale of a portion.

Where the entire holding of an occupancy raiyat has not been transferred it cannot be said that there has been a forfeiture of the tenancy : Gagan Chandra v. Alak Chand, 17 C.W.N. 698 ; see also Kamaleswari Pershad v. Harbullabh, 2 C.L.J. 369. Kalim Sheikh v. Muclum Mandal, 24 C.L.J. 113.

Where an occupancy raiyat after the sale of a portion of the holding paid rent to the landlord for that portion only which remained in his possession, held that the part transferred was at the disposal of the landlord : Kunja Kishore v. Bama Sundari, 43 Cal. 878.

Subsisting tenancy.

As long as the tenancy subsists, the landlord is not entitled to eject the transferee of portion of the holding : Askarali v. Gopimohan, 18 C.L.J. 257.

Transfer of a part of holding, not a ground of forfeiture.

The sale or parting with possession of the whole or part of the holding is not made a ground of forfeiture under the Bengal Tenancy Act, and where a part of a holding was sold and the raiyat paid into the Collectorate the rent and always cultivated a portion of the holding, it was held that the landlord was not entitled to khas possession ; Kabil Sardar v. Chandra Nath Nag, 20 Cal. 590. The transfer by a raiyat with a right of occupancy of a part of his holding does not entitle the landlord to recover possession of the land transferred by ejecting the transferee, in the absence of evidence to show that by custom such transfer is allowed—Durga Prasad v. Doula Gazee, 1 C.W.N. 160 ; although the landlord in such a case is not entitled to khas possession, he is yet entitled to a declaration, that the transfer of a portion of his holding which has not been made with his written consent as is provided by sec. 88, is not binding on him : Sheikh Gazaffer v. E., Dalgleish, 1 C.W.N. 162. An occupancy raiyat who asserts a transferable right in his lands and sells that right to a stranger without giving up his occupation is not liable to ejectment by the superior landlord whom, he may have repudiated in a suit brought against him for arrears of rent, and set himself up as a tenant of the purchaser : Srishtee Dhur v. Madan Sirdar, 9 Cal. 648 ; their Lordships (Wilson and Maclean, J.J.) in deciding this case considered the cases of Narendra Narain Roy Chowdhry v. Isan Chandra Sen, 13 B.L.R. 274 ; s.c., 22 W.R. 22, and the case of Dwarka Nath Misser v. Hurriah Chandra, 22 W.R. 200, and observed as follows :—“In Narendra Narain Roy Chowdhry v. Isan Chandra Sen, it was ruled that the transferee of occupancy rights, illegally sold, could be ejected if he had entered into actual possession of the land. The principle involved in that case was the abandonment by the tenant of his connection with the land, and the landlord’s consequent right to re-enter. This principle is re-asserted in Ram Chandra Roy Chowdhry v. Bhola Nath Lushkur, and is also referred to in a recent judgment delivered on 17th January 1883. (Appeal from Appellate Decree No. 1655 of 1881, Mitter and O’Kinealy J.J.). In Dwarka Nath Misser v. Hurriah Chandra, 4 Cal. 925, there is a remark which seems to indicate that occupancy raiyats who after sale remain upon the land by permission of the transferee, as his tenants, do so under circumstances amounting to an abandonment of their right of occupancy and the result of that case shows that neither they nor the transferee can resist an action to eject them: but it must be remarked that in that case the raiyats did not question the decree of their ejectment by appeal to this Court, and therefore we need not consider the judgment as deciding anything contrary to the other cases quoted above. We accordingly follow those decisions and dismiss the appeal with costs."*

When a tenant having no transferable interest transfers his interest and puts the transferee in possession, the original tenancy may be treated as abandoned, and when the transferee takes possession of the land he is no better than a trespasser as against the landlord: Sreeram v. Nagendra, 82 I.C. 958.

In the event of a sale of non-transferable occupancy holding the purchaser can be evicted by any of the co-sharer landlords to the extent of his own share, and if possession of the entire holding has been acquired by some of the co-sharers, the other co-sharers are entitled to joint possession thereof: Kanchan Mandar v. Kamala Prasad, 21 C.L.J. 441; it is now well settled that a purchaser at an execution sale is bound by the same rule of estoppel as the judgment debtor, on principle that the former has purchased merely the right, title and interest of the land does not consequently occupy a position of greater advantage: Ibid; see also Debendra Nath v. Mirza Abdul, 10 C.L.J. 150; Mahammad v. Kishori Mohun (P.C.) 22 I.A. 129; s.c., 22 Cal. 209.

Right of khas possession by a co-sharer.

Execution purchaser estoppel.

In a suit for khas possession against a trespasser who sets up a transfer from a tenant the onus is upon him to prove both the tenancy and the validity of the transfer: Ambika Prasad v. Baldeo, 1 Pat.L.J. 253.

Suit for khas possession—onus.

Where a village was in the possession of a ticcadar and the raiyats transferred their occupancy holdings held that the landlord is not entitled to immediate (khas) possession (the village being in the possession of the ticcadar) but is entitled to a declaration that the transfer is not binding on him and he will be entitled to khas possession on the expiry of the ticca: Mahadeo v. Bhagala, 1 P.L.W. 405; s.c., 39 I.C. 596.

Where land is in possession of ticcadar.

Where parts of occupancy holdings are transferred, and on a subsequent partition between the maliks one of the holdings transferred was allotted to the patti of one of them, held (relying upon the Full Bench) that the latter was not entitled to treat the transfer as a transfer of the entire holding: Radha Kishan v. Bhagwat, 1 P.L.W. 19; s.c., 38 I.C. 72.

Transfer of parts—Partition between landlords.

A sale by the tenant of an entire separated tenancy constitutes abandonment: Ram Lochan v. Jagernath, 1 Pat. L.J. 270. Where a non-transferable occupancy holding is subdivided and transferred, different portions to different persons—the landlord is entitled to treat the transferee as a trespasser: Shaikh Faijuddin v. Tara Sundari, 19 C.W.N. 156.

Separated tenancy.

When A and B are joint tenants of an occupancy holding, and A transfers his share to C, it was held, following the Full Bench case of Dayamayi that the landlord is not entitled to maintain a suit for possession of A's share : Swarnamayi v. Goyratulla, 21 C.W.N. ciii (103 notes).

Transfer of a part.

Effect of partition.

Where a part of a holding was transferred and subsequently by a partition one of the co-sharer landlords obtained that part as allotted to his puttee, held on the authority of the Full Bench that he was not entitled to claim to eject the transferee : Suraj Deo v. Pachhnarain, 2 Pat. L.J. 225 ; s.c., 1 Pat. L.W. 443 ; s.c., 39 I.C. 98, the case of Radha Kissan v. Bhagawat Prasad, 1 Pat. L.W. p. 19 ; s.c. 38 I.C. 72 was followed ; the case of Suraj Deo v. Pachhnarain, 2 Pat. L.J. 225 was distinguished in the case of Ramji Prasad v. Mohammad Anwar, 3 Pat. L.W. 299 ; s.c., 1917 Pat. 360 ; s.c., 43 I.C. 377.

A raiyat holding a non-transferable holding having sold it to a third person took an under-raiyati lease under him and refused to pay rent to the landlord of the raiyati holding who dispossessed him. In a suit by him to recover possession and for declaration of his title as an under-raiyat under the purchaser, held on a review of the authorities* that plaintiff's suit ought to fail and it was accordingly dismissed : Rajani Kanta v. Ekkari, 34 Cal. 689 ; s.c., 11 C.W.N. 811. See notes under s. 87.

A landlord is not entitled to get khas possession when his tenant sells his non-transferable holding and takes a sub-lease ; the transferee will be ejected but not the original tenant who had transferred : Dinanath v. Krishna Bejoy, 9 C.W.N. 379 ; s.c., 5 C.L.J. 224 : see also Madan Mondal v. Mohima, 33 Cal. 531 : s.c., 3 C.L.J. 343.

Where no

There is no abandonment of the holding, if the original tenant after parting with a portion of the holding remains in actual possession of it as an under-raiyat from the purchaser : Kalim Sheikh v. Macham Mondal, 24 C.L.J. 113.

Contra.

But it has been held in another case that in a transfer of a non-transferable holding the original tenant took a sub-lease, and set up transferability and sub-lease under the transferer, held that the landlord is entitled to eject both the transferer and transferee : *Kali Charan v. Where a tenant transfers his non-transferable holding he must be taken to have abandoned the holding if he ceases to pay rent to his landlord and accepts a new tenancy from the transferee and the landlord is therefore entitled to eject the transferee as a trespasser : *Kali Nath v. Involuntary Sale :—Following the Full Bench Case of Jugeshwar Nath Koeri, 1 Pat. 317 it was held that a decree-holder (not the landlord) is entitled to put to sale a part of a non-transferable occupancy holding : Raghunath v. Chowra Mahakton, A.I.R. 1922 Pat. 62 (Coutts and Das J.J.).

13. Involuntary transfer with consent of landlord :—See Consent of notes under this section under heading No. 3, sub-heading No. (✓). landlord.

Non-transferable occupancy holding cannot be sold unless both landlord and raiyat concur.

The Full Bench decision in Dayamoyi v. Ananda Mohan, 42 Cal. 172; s.c., 18 C.W.N. 971; s.c., 20 C.L.J. 52 has impliedly laid down that in execution of a decree for money a non-transferable occupancy holding cannot be sold if the raiyat objects, even if the landlord gives his consent to the sale; the two must concur in order that the transfer may be valid; Narayani v. Nabin Chandra, 44 Cal. 720; s.c., 21 C.W.N. 400; s.c., 25 C.L.J. 351; this case was followed in the case of Ramsundar v. Shaikh Lochan, 38 I.C. 942; in these cases their Lordships have dissented from the earlier cases of Ananda Das v. Rutnakar, 7 C.W.N. 572 and Shakaruddin v. Hemangini, 16 C.W.N. 420 where the contrary rule was laid down; and according to the learned Judges who dissented from these cases the view taken in these cases, "can no longer be maintained having regard to the decision of the Full Bench."

The case of Narayani v. Nabin Chandra, 44 Cal. 720 decided by N. Chatterjea and Sheepshanks J.J., has been followed at Patna by Sharfuddin and Roe J.J., in the case of MacPherson v. Debi Bhusan, 2 Pat.L.J. 530.

The same view was taken in one of the earlier cases which had been decided before the Full Bench, D. Chatterjea J., having held that in regard to a non-transferable holding the tenant alone cannot confer any title by transfer, nor the landlord by his own act and without the concurrence of the tenant can do so; the two jointly can confer title by transfer: Radhakant v. Ramanand, 39 Cal. 513 at p. 519 (12 Feb., 1912).

The other earlier cases laying a contrary rule must now be considered to have been over-ruled. Those cases are all to be found in the foot-note below where the annotations on this subject are reprinted from the previous edition of this work.*

Sale in execution with consent of landlord. Settlement with landlord after execution-sale.

Decisions noted above are open to doubt.

Effect of landlord's consent.

Sale with consent of landlord.

 Sale with consent of landlord or subsequent recognition:—A sale in execution of a money decree of an occupancy holding not transferable by local custom or usage is valid and effectual, if the creditor sells it with the consent of the landlord: Ananda Das v. Rutnakar, 7 C.W.N. 572.

Where a settlement is made by the landlord with the auction-purchaser of a non-transferable holding as soon as can reasonably be expected after the sale and the landlord recognises the purchaser and receives rent from him, it is sufficient to render the sale valid in law: Dwarkanath v. Tarini Sanker, 35 Cal. 499; 11 C.W.N. 513, s.c., 5 C.L.J. 294; it is not necessary that the consent of the landlord should be obtained prior to the execution proceedings: Ibid.

It is submitted with great respect that these two decisions do not lay a sound proposition of law. In both these decisions it is assumed that it is the landlord who can give consent to the transfer of a holding even when the tenant is unwilling; the rule that occupancy holdings are not transferable is a protective measure so far as regards the raiyats are concerned; it is a benefit to a raiyat which he cannot be deprived of by the act of the landlord; it is quite true that a landlord may grant if he so likes, the right of transferability to a raiyat, but from that it does not follow that a landlord can by his consent create title in a purchaser when the raiyat is unwilling to have his holding sold in execution.

The transfer of an occupancy holding which is not transferable by custom or usage may be validated by the consent of the landlord: Haridas v. Uday Chandra, 8 C.L.J. 261; see also Jagun Prasad v. Posun Sahoo, 8 C.W.N. 172; Sibosundari v. Rajmohan, 8 C.W.N. 214; Radhakishore v. Ananda Priya, 8 C.W.N. 235. When the landlord recognises the transfer as valid, he recognises the transfer of the existing occupancy right as a valid transaction: Haridas v. Uday Chandra, 8 C.L.J. 261.

Where a decreeholder who attached a non-transferable occupancy holding obtained the consent of 15% ans. co-sharer landlords for the sale of the

A non-transferable occupancy holding is saleable in execution of a money decree obtained by some of the co-sharer landlords against the tenants: Surajdeo v. Partap, 2 Pat. 739. Sale by co-sharer landlord.

A landlord without the consent of his raiyat may sell the holding in execution of a money-decree: Ram Lal v. Dendhari, 74 I.C. 781.

The case of Chandra Benode decided by a Special Bench of the Calcutta High Court (48 Cal. 184) was distinguished by the Patna High Court and it was held that an occupancy raiyat can object to the sale of his non-transferable holding in execution of a money decree obtained by a creditor who is not his landlord: Dewan Ram v. Atul Mander, 6 Pat. L.J. 202; where a portion of occupancy holding was sold in execution of a mortgage decree, the remainder represents the remainder of the holding and the sale of the remainder is a sale of an entire holding: Ibid; the tenant is not estopped from denying the custom of transferability when a portion is sold in execution of a money-decree, in view of the fact that a portion was sold in execution of a mortgage decree: Ibid. Chandra Binode's case distinguished by the Patna High Court.

A non-transferable occupancy holding may be sold in execution of a money-decree obtained by a person even if he is not the landlord of the holding: Jugeshar v. Nath Koeri, 65 I.C. 335, (Dawson Miller C. J. and Das J.); the Full Bench Case of Dayamayi v. Ananda Mohan, 42 Cal. 172 was referred to; see also Kenaram v. Kinu Mandal, 50 Cal. 508. Sale in mortgage decree.

Where a non-transferable occupancy holding was sold in execution of a decree for money or in execution of a mortgage decree by a third person (who was not the landlord) and the auction purchaser brought a suit for recovery of possession, held that the plaintiff was entitled to get decree and it was not competent by way of defence to question the validity of sale on the ground of irregularity etc.: Jogneswar v. Nibaran Mandal, 28 C.W.N. 1xiii (63 notes portion); Suit for possession by a purchaser at an execution sale.

A non-transferable occupancy holding in Sylhet where Act VIII of 1869 is in force can be sold in execution of a rent decree by the 16 ans. landlords: Nripendra v. Nadir Khan, 25 C.W.N. 554. Act VIII (B. C.) of 1869.

A sale in execution of a money-decree of a portion of an occupancy holding is valid against the tenant: Jogeswar v. Nath Koeri, 1 Pat. 317, s. c., (1922 Pat.) p. 49, (F.B.); Dawson Miller C. J., Das and Adami J.J.). This Full Bench practically over-rules the decision in the case of Dewan Ram Chowdhry v. Atul Chandra (1921 Pat.) p. 197, s. c., 6 Pat. L.J. 202. Execution sale of a portion binding on raiyat.

A person (who is not the landlord) can put to sale a portion of a non-transferable occupancy holding: 67 I.C. 882.

holding, held that the holding to that extent share may be sold notwithstanding the objection of the raiyats (judgment-debtors): Shuhuruddin v. Rani Hemangini, 16 C.W.N. 420:

It was also held in Ananda Das v. Ratnakar, 1 C.W.N. 572 that a sale in execution of a money decree of a non-transferable occupancy holding is valid, if the creditor takes the consent of the landlord.

It is submitted that these decisions are open to doubt, for, the non-transferability which attaches to an occupancy holding is not only for the benefit of the landlord but of the tenant too, and therefore a landlord should not be allowed to deprive the tenant of a valuable right by giving his consent to the sale.

In regard to a non-transferable holding the tenant alone cannot confer any title by transfer, nor the landlord by his own act and without the concurrence of the tenant can do so; the two jointly can confer title by transfer: Radhakant v. Ramananda, 39 Cal. 513 at p. 519. Landlord and Tenant both may confer title.

Effect of sales of portions piece meal.

Where a portion of the holding has already been transferred, and then the remaining is sold, it represents the entire holding: Dewan Ram Chowdhry v. Atul Chander, [1921 Pat.] p. 197, s. c., 6 P.L.J. 202.

Separate portions held separately.

Where separate portions of one entire holding are in separate possession of each of the several tenants, each of these portions does not constitute a separate holding, and the transfer of one of these portions does not operate as an abandonment so as to entitle the landlord to re-enter that portion: Karim Chakladar v. Sahorannessa, 25 C.W.N. 717.

No ejectment where a portion is sold.

A suit for ejectment of a tenant from a portion of the holding transferred is not maintainable as he holds the remainder: Bhimram v. Maharani Hara Sundary, 33 C.L.J. 516, (Pigot and Beverley J.J., 16 April 1883).

Voluntary sale of a share.

The sale of a share of a non-transferable holding does not entitle the landlord to khas possession unless it is shewn that there has been an abandonment: there can be no abandonment of a holding where there has been all along payment or offer of payment of rent by the tenant: Sarat Chandra v. Manorama, 68 I.C. 295.

Involuntary sale.

A non-transferable occupancy holding is saleable in execution of a money decree: Jagneswar v. Kailash, 28 C.W.N. 821. See also Kenaram v. Kinu, 50 Cal. 508.

Sale in execution of a decree by a co-sharer landlord.

N. R. Chatterjea and Greaves J.J., held in the case of Badrannessa v. Alam Gazi (19 C.W.N. 814) that "an occupancy holding which is not saleable by custom or usage, cannot be sold in execution of a decree obtained by a co-sharer landlord for his share of the rent, and that in this respect a co-sharer landlord for his share of the rent, is in the same position as an ordinary execution creditor.† Their Lordships say: "we are accordingly of opinion that the Full Bench decision (Dayamayi's case) by implication holds that the raiyat is entitled to have a sale of the holding in execution of a money decree set aside after it takes place, and that the holding cannot be sold in execution of such a decree where the raiyat objects to the sale before it takes place."

Conflict of rulings relating to the question whether tenants' interest can pass by involuntary sale when landlord alone consents but tenant objects.

Cases which may be relied on in support of the proposition that the sale in execution of a money decree of a non-transferable occupancy holding cannot pass any title unless both the landlord and the tenant concur; the landlord's consent alone is not sufficient to pass title: Narayani v. Nabin Chandra, 44 Cal. 720; s.c., 21 C.W.N. 400; s.c., 25 C.L.J. 351, (N. R. Chatterjea and Sheepshanks J.J.): Ram Sundar v. Shaikh Lochan, 38 I.C. 942 (N. R. Chatterjea and Newbould J.J.); Mac Pherson v. Debi Bhusan, 2

Cases which may be relied on in support of the proposition that the landlord's consent alone will pass title in case a non-transferable occupancy holding is sold in execution of a money decree even if the tenant objects: Ananda Das v. Ratnakar, 7 C.W.N. 572; Dwarka Nath v. Tarini Sanker, 35 Cal. 499; s.c., 11 C.W.N. 513; s.c., 5 C.L.J. 294; Haridas v. Uday Chandra, 8 C.L.J. 261; Jagur Prasad v. Posun Sahoo, 8 C.W.N. 172; Sibosundari v. Rajmohan, 8 C.W.N. 214; Radha Kisore v. Ananda Priya, 8 C.W.

† The following cases were relied upon: Durga Charan v. Kali Prasanna, 26 Cal. 727, s. c., 3 C.W.N. 586, Sadagar Sirkar v. Krishna Chandra, 3 C.W.N. 742, Sheikh Jarif v. Ramkumar, 3 C.W.N. 747.

Pat. L.J. 530 (Sharfuddin and Roe J.J.); [these cases were all decided after the Full Bench case of Dayamayi, 42 Cal. 172; s.c., 18 C.W.N. 971; s.c., 20 C.L.J. 52]. Before the Full Bench a similar view had been taken in the case of Radhakant v. Ramanand, 39 Cal. 513 at p. 519).

After the Full Bench case of Dayamayi it has been held that both the landlord and the tenant must concur in order that the title to a non-transferable occupancy holding should pass in a sale in execution of a money-decree. The first of those decisions Narayani v. Nabin Chandra referred to above and which has been followed in the subsequent cases cited in the left hand column above says that the Full Bench case of Dayamayi has impliedly laid down this Rule. It is submitted with great respect that the Full Bench case is no authority for this. In the Full Bench the questions which were raised were altogether different. The true reason however why both the landlord and the tenant should concur for passing title to the purchaser is, it is submitted, as follows: an occupancy right is not and cannot be conferred on a raiyat by a grant from the landlord; it is a creature of the statute; when such a right is acquired by the tenant he gets along with it certain privileges; one of them is that it is non-transferable; for commercial purposes it may not be a privilege, but the agricultural people of this country are not commercial people, and it is a great privilege to them that it is not saleable and cannot consequently be sold in execution for their debts; the landlord should not be allowed to thrust upon them the right of transferability which they may be unwilling to take.

14 Mortgage of occupancy holding and sale in execution of mortgage decree:—It seems that the creation of a simple mortgage by an occupancy raiyat (without subsequent sale of his interest and abandonment) does not render him liable to be ejected, for the tenant still remains on the land. If, however, a mortgage is created in contravention of an agreement which makes him liable to ejectment the landlord is entitled to get khas possession under cl. (b) of s. 25 of the Act.

The creation of mortgage by a raiyat in respect of a non-transferable occupancy holding would not entitle a landlord to recover khas possession, because, in such a case there is no transfer of possession: Baroda Charan Dutt v. Hemlata, 13 C.W.N. 242.

The execution by a raiyat of a mortgage of his non-transferable holding does not by itself amount to an abandonment: Chowdhry Mahodeo v. Shaikh Pachuri, 16 C.W.N. 322.

When an occupancy raiyat mortgages his non-transferable holding and the mortgagee enforces the mortgage, has the holding sold and purchases it himself, the possession of the raiyat completely ceases and there is an abandonment of the holding by him: Ram Pershad v. Jawahir Roy, 12 C.W.N. 899.

Where a person purchases an occupancy holding in execution of a decree upon a mortgage the landlord is entitled to eject him if the holding is non-transferable: Ram Pershad v. Jawahir, 7 C.L.J. 72.

Claim of mortgagee against landlord.

A landlord purchasing a non-transferable occupancy holding in execution of a money decree can raise the question of transferability and resist the claim of the mortgagee of the holding : Asmatunnessa v. Harendra Lal, 12 C.W.N. 721.

Where landlord is the mortgagee.

A landlord himself can purchase or take a mortgage of a non-transferable holding of his tenant and therefore the fact that the plaintiff himself took a mortgage of a non-transferable holding is no evidence of transferability : Mohesh Narain v. Muharaja Bahadur, 17 C.W.N. 70, where a non-transferable occupancy holding was mortgaged to the landlord and he assigned the mortgage to a purchaser of the holding, held that the landlord was estopped from denying that the purchaser had acquired a valid title : Ibid.

Transfer by usufructuary mortgage operates as a forfeiture ;

15. Transfer by usufructuary mortgage :—On usufructuary mortgage of a non-transferable occupancy holding it was held on the authority of the Full Bench case of Dayamoyi v. Ananda Mohan, 42 Cal. 172, a landlord is not entitled to khas possession unless there has been

- (a) an abandonment within the meaning of s. 87 Bengal Tenancy Act, or
- (b) a relinquishment of the holding, or
- (c) a repudiation of the tenancy. See Priyanath v. Kusum Kumari, 47 I.C. 332 (Fletcher and Huda J.J.).

By creating a usufructuary mortgage, an occupancy raiyat, not authorised to transfer his holding, makes himself liable to ejectment by the landlord : Krishna Chandra v. Khiran Bajania, 10 C.W.N. 499 : s. c., 3 C.L.J. 222. This case was under Act VIII, B. C. of 1869 ; under the Bengal Tenancy Act also the same rule has been laid down : Rasik Lal v. Bidhu Mukhi, 10 C.W.N. 719, s. c., 4 C.L.J., 306. In the case of Rajendra Kishore v. Chandra Nath, 12 C.W.N. 878, Brett, J., held that the so-called usufructuary mortgage deed was really a deed of sale and the landlord was therefore entitled to get khas possession. It was further held in Letters Patent Appeal in this case by Rampini (Acting C. J.) and Mitra, J., that even if the document was a usufructuary mortgage deed and not a deed of sale, still the landlord is entitled to khas possession in-as-much as the tenant after executing the mortgage-deed relinquished the holding in favour of the landlord.

In a suit brought against a raiyat and his usufructuary mortgage the landlord obtained a decree for khas possession against which the raiyat did not appeal, semble, that it is doubtful whether the mortgagee can successfully resist the suit of the landlord : Barada Charan v. Hemlata, 13 C.W.N. 242.

Death of a raiyat without heirs.

If an occupancy raiyat after having executed a usufructuary mortgage dies without heirs the landlord is entitled to khas possession : Harapalai v. Rajabali, 44 I.C. 721 (Richardson and Beachcroft J.J.).

Where no abandonment.

The mere execution of a usufructuary mortgage may not be sufficient to establish abandonment ; whether there has been abandonment is principally a question of fact : Monohor Pal v. Ananta Moyee, 17 C.W.N. 802 ; where upon a usufructuary mortgage the mortgagee continued in possession even after the expiry of the term of the mortgage deed, and it was found that the raiyat did not live in the village and cut off connection with the holding, held that these findings amounted to holding that the raiyat had abandoned the jama ; Ibid : ^{Abandonment.} see Bhupendra v. Bansī Tanti, 40 Cal. 870.

Mere execution of a usufructuary mortgage and delivery of ^{Ss. 23, 87.} possession to the mortgagee in his holding by a tenant who continues ^{Usufructuary mortgage.} to reside in the village does not entail forfeiture : Ajodhya Prasad v. Jagdeo Singh, 37 I.C. 915, nor does it amount to an abandonment of the holding within the meaning of s. 87 : Ibid.

The current of authorities shows that the unauthorised transfer ^{Unauthorised transfer} of a holding or the parting with the possession of it, in whole or in part, does not per se work as a forfeiture under the Bengal Tenancy Act—There must be something in the nature of an abandonment by the tenant or something of that kind.....There appears to be no reason why the principle above referred to should not be applied to the case of a transfer by way of usufructuary mortgage in the same way as to other partial transfers. In the case before us there ^{Where no} is a clear finding by the lower appellate court that there has been ^{abandonment.} no abandonment by the defendants, and with that finding we are unable to interfere in second appeal : (Per Richardson and Newbould J.J.) ; Bhupendra v. Bansī Tanti, 40 Cal. 870.

Where an occupancy raiyat executed a usufructuary mortgage of his holding but continued to pay rent to the landlord and remained in possession of a portion of the holding as a sub-tenant under the mortgage, held that the landlord was not entitled to treat the raiyat as a trespasser and to sue him for ejectment : Chowdhury Mahadeo v. Shaik Pachuri, 16 C.W.N. 322.*

Transfer by way of usufructuary mortgage stands on the same ^{Usufructuary mortgage.} footing as other partial transfers : Bhupendra Nath v. Bansī Tanti, 40 Cal. 870 (Richardson and Newbould J.J., 25 Aug., 1913).

Mere execution of usufructuary mortgage followed by possession ^{Abandonment.} does not entitle a landlord to re-enter ; where the tenant did not abandon, the mortgagee was held to recover possession from the landlord who had dispossessed him : Ambika Debi v. Swarnamaji, 49 Cal. 989 : the case of Dayamayi v. Ananda Mohan, 42 Cal. 172 (F.B.) was followed.

The mere fact that an occupancy raiyat has created a usufructuary mortgage and given up possession does not shew that he has abandoned the holding : Ram Lal v. Kuldip, 75 I.C. 841, (Dawson Miller C. J., and Mullick J., the cases of Samujan v. Munshi Mahton, 4 C.W.N. 493 and Monohor v. Ananta Moyee, 17 C.W.N. 802 were distinguished.

16. Presumption :—Where in a proceeding under s. 105 for ^{Presump-} enhancement of rent of an occupancy raiyat, the vendee of the latter ^{tion under} was brought on the record and the case was proceeded against him, ^{s. 50 may} held that the vendee was entitled to avail of the presumption under ^{be claimed} s. 50 cl. (2) : Paran Chandra v. Kanta Mohan, 39 C.L.J. 437 : s. c., ^{by a vender} A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 875 (Walmsley and Mukerji J.J., 28 Feb., 1924). It ^{of an occu-} seems that this decision underlies the principle that the recognition ^{pancy} by the landlord of the vendee as a tenant has not the effect of a ^{Raiyat} creation of a new tenancy. This principle seems to be somewhat in ^{against} ^{whom pro-} ^{ceeding} ^{was con-} ^{tinued.}

* But see Kalicharan v. Arman Bibi, 13 C.W.N. 220 where it was held that the landlord is entitled to Khash possession when the raiyat on transfer of his holding remains in possession as an under-raiyat and repudiates the tenancy of the landlord.

conflict with the principle of the case in Sarat Chandra v. Shyam Chand, 39 Cal. 663, s. c., 16 C.L.J. p. 71 where it was decided that where a non-transferable occupancy holding was sold and the transferee was recognised by landlord it became a new tenancy and rent by more than 2 annas in the rupee could be enhanced and s. 29 did not apply.

Tenant
estopped by his own act.

17. Where question of transferability can or cannot be raised by the raiyat or does not arise :—Where a non-transferable holding is sold by a tenant by a kabala he is estopped from setting up the invalidity of the sale by him: Bhagnath v. Sheikh Hafizuddin, 4 C.W.N. 679: when a non-transferable occupancy holding is mortgaged, the mortgage is operative as between the mortgagor and mortgagee although it is inoperative against the landlord: Ram Pershad v. Jawahir Roy, 7 C.L.J. 73.

Where a non-transferable occupancy holding was sold in execution of a money decree and the raiyat did not object to the sale, held that as against the auction purchaser, the vendee of the raiyat was estopped: Ramu Pal v. Prakash, 20 C.W.N. lix (notes portion p. 59).

Who can object to sale.

Objection as to the validity of the gift of a non-transferable occupancy holding can only be taken by the landlord or his representative in interest: Behari Lal v. Sindhubala, 45 Cal. 434; s. c., 22 C.W.N. 210; the Full Bench case of Dayamayi v. Ananda Mohan, 42 Cal. 172 was relied on.

Question between rival tenants where landlord is not a party.

A certain jote was sold in execution of a decree for arrears of rent obtained against the recorded tenant, and the purchaser of a portion of the jote from the latter claimed the surplus sale-proceeds representing the portion purchased by him; the Defendant objected to the same on the ground that he was the purchaser of the jote, the lower Courts held that Defendant could not prove his purchase; the landlord was not a party; held—That the question of the transferability of the jote did not arise: Ambika Nath v. Adityanath, 6 C.W.N. 624. In a suit for recovery of khas possession by the plaintiff who had purchased an occupancy holding in execution of a mortgage decree the defendant claimed under a lease from a co-sharer landlord who also had purchased the holding in execution of a decree for his share of the rent, held that question of transferability did not arise: Ayenuddin Nasya v. Sris Chandra, 11 C.W.N. 76 followed in Haro Chandra v. Umesh Chandra, 14 C.W.N. 71; s. c., 11 C.L.J. 20; in this case a co-sharer landlord purchased an occupancy holding in execution of a decree of his own, it was held that he was not competent to resist a suit brought by a mortgagee of the holding, on the ground that the holding was non-transferable.

Suit between two rival purchasers.

This case (14 C.W.N. 71) was followed by Jenkins, C. J. and Woodroffe, J., in the case of Chandi Prasanna v. Gour Chandra, 19 C.W.N. 1307.

See also Shyama Charan v. Mokhoda, 15 C.W.N. 703. The case of Ayenuddin, 11 C.W.N. 76, was distinguished in the case of Bibi Asmatunnessa v. Harendra Lal, 12 C.W.N. 721, where the landlords purchasers in execution of a money decree were held to be entitled to raise the question of transferability.

Co-sharer
landlord.

The case of Ayenuddin, 11 C.W.N. 76, was referred to in the case of Rajab Ali v. Dinanath, 19 C.W.N., 1305, and it was held that no question of transferability arises between the purchaser of a share of a non-transferable holding (who has been recognised by a co-sharer landlord) and the heir of the former tenant by some of the co-sharer landlords with respect to the entire holding.

A purchaser of a share of an occupancy holding is entitled to possession even as against the landlord: Purna Chandra v. Chandra Mohon, 20 C.W.N. 586 (F.B.), s. c., 23 C.L.J. 304; Mookerjee, J., remarked as follows: ".....The rights of the parties must be governed by the rules formulated by the Full Bench in Dayamoyi v. Ananda Mohon, 42 Cal. 172. That decision shews that the plaintiff, as purchaser of a share of an occupancy holding is entitled to possession even as against the landlord, in-as-much as the tenancy has not yet terminated and interposes a barrier between him and the landlord."

of a share

A co-sharer landlord is in no better position than a stranger and hence the transfer of a non-transferable holding is binding against him: Lala Deosaran v. Batesvar, 20 C.W.N. lxxxiii (notes portion p. 83).

Co-sharer
landlord.

The cases of Ambika Nath v. Aditya Nath, 6 C.W.N. 624, and Ayenuddin v. Srish Chandra, 11 C.W.N. 76, were followed in the case of Samiruddin v. Benga Sheikh, 13 C.W.N. 630, and it was held that in cases between rival claimants of holdings, neither of whom is either the landlord or original tenant, the question of transferability does not arise and the one who would have the best title if the holding were transferable is entitled to succeed.

Case
rival claimants

A co-sharer landlord who has purchased an occupancy holding in execution of a decree of his own cannot resist a mortgagee's suit to enforce his mortgage on the holding on the ground that the holding was non-transferable, he himself being a purchaser without the landlord's consent, taking the word landlord in its proper signification of the whole body of landlords: Haro Chandra Paddar v. Umesh Chandra Bhattacharjee, 14 C.W.N. 71. But see Achanulla Sarkar v. Salemonnessa, 9 C.W.N. xxiv (24 notes); the landlord who purchases a non-transferable holding at a sale in execution of a money decree can resist the claim of a mortgagee: Asmatunnessa v. Harendra Lal, 8 C.L.J. 29.

landlord.

The question of transferability may be raised by the landlord but cannot legitimately be raised by a trespasser: the transferee has right to be protected in the enjoyment of his purchase against all the world except possibly his landlord: Basarat v. Sabutla, 2 C.W.N. cclxxix (279, note).

Trespasser cannot raise question of transferability.

The confirmation of sale is no bar to an application by the judgment-debtor to have it declared that, in execution of the decree the property which has been sold could not be sold, that he had, no disposing power in it, and that therefore the sale passed no interest to the purchaser, and the enquiry which should have to be made upon an application like this would be an enquiry under the provision of s. 244 uncontrolled by ss. 311 and 312, C. P. C.

Confirmation, if a bar to the raising of the question.

When an order for sale is made, and in furtherance of that order the sale held, the judgment-debtor, if he was a party to that order or was aware of it and did not appeal against it, is precluded from questioning the propriety of that order and consequently the sale, but if the judgment-debtor is not aware of the proceedings in attachment of the property nor of the proceedings in connection with the sale thereof, he cannot be said to be a party to the order for sale and therefore can question the propriety of the sale: Durga Charan v. Kali Prosanna, 3 C.W.N. 586.

Tenant cannot raise the question if aware of sale.

After a judgment-debtor with full knowledge of the execution proceedings and full opportunity of raising an objection to the effect that the holding is an occupancy holding and non-transferable fails to raise an objection at the time of the sale, it is not competent to him to resist the purchaser after the confirmation of the sale and as between the purchaser and the judgment-debtor the title to the property vests in the purchaser on the confirmation of the sale: Dwarka Nath v. Tarini Sankar, 35 Cal. 199, s. c., 11 C.W.N. 513: s. c., 5 C.L.J. 294; see also Sheikh Murbulla v. Sheikh Burullah, 9 C.W.N. 972.

See notes under s. 183.

A question as to invalidity of a transfer of a non-transferable holding can be raised by landlord or his representative in interest: Rahim Jan v. Imam Jan, 17 C.L.J. 177.

Landlord can raise question of transfera-bility.

When a non-transferable occupancy holding was mortgaged by the raiyat to A and since the mortgage the raiyat sold a portion of the holding to B with the consent of the landlord who also gave a fresh lease to B, held in a suit by A to enforce the mortgage that B was estopped from raising the plea of non-transferability: Radha Kant v. Ramananda, 39 Cal. 512.

Transferee.

The transferee of a share of an occupancy holding from one of several co-tenants can not claim joint possession as against his transferor's co-sharers, there being no room in such a case for the application of the doctrine of Estoppel: Agar Janu Bibi v. Pana Ulla, 37 Cal. 687, s. c., 14 C.W.N. 779.

Purchaser of occupancy holding bound by
and sale.

A purchaser of an occupancy holding from the raiyat after, a decree for sale has been passed in favour of a mortgagee of the holding, but before the sale thereof, is bound by the sale, both on the ground of estoppel and of the rule of lis pendens: Shyama Charan v. Mokhada, 15 C.W.N. 703; s. c., 13 C.L.J. 481.

Purchase subsequent to mortgage.

Where a mortgagee of an occupancy holding brought a suit to enforce the mortgage, held that a person who had purchased subsequent to the date of mortgage a portion of the holding is estopped from questioning the validity of the mortgage, although he had purchased with the landlord's consent and although he had taken a fresh settlement from the landlord at an enhanced rent: Radha Kant v. Ramendra, 16 C.W.N. 475, s. c., 15 C.L.J. 369 (per Chitty and Chatterjee, JJ., Coxe, J., dissenting).

Landlord
purchaser.

The landlord of a non-transferable occupancy holding, who purchased the holding at a sale held in execution of a money decree, can resist the claim of the mortgagee of the said holding on the ground of its non-transferability without his i.e. the landlord's consent: Asmutunnessa Khatun v. Harendra Lal, 8 C.L.J. 29.

Co-sharer
landlord
purchaser.

Following the case of Ayenuddin v. Sris Chandra, 11 C.W.N. 76 it was held that a co-sharer landlord who purchased the holding in execution of a decree of his own cannot raise the question of the transferability of the holding in a suit by the mortgagee: Harachandra v. Umeshchandra, 11 C.L.J. 20; the case of Achannulla v. Solemonnessa, 9 C.W.N. 24 (notes portion xxiv), s. c., 13 C.L.J. 479 was not followed.

A transferee of a non-transferable holding cannot be heard to say that his transferrer had no right to transfer the holding: Sheikh Jamahar v. Sheikh Nazir, 18 C.L.J. 512. Estoppel—Transferee.

Where a portion of a non-transferable holding was sold, held that it is open to tenants in occupation of a portion to question the validity of transfer: Agarjan Bibi v. Panaulla, 37 Cal. 687; s. c., 14 C.W.N. 779. Tenant in occupation.

Relying upon the Full Bench case of Dayamoyi, 42 Cal. 172 it has been held by the Patna High Court in the case of Sadari v. Palknath, 1 Pat. L.J. 257 that an occupancy raiyat can object when the holder of a money decree seeks to put to sale a portion of his holding. Execution sale of a portion.

Where a mortgagee purchased a non-transferable holding and brought a suit to recover possession, the landlord can raise the question although he was a party to the mortgage suit, the court having declined to decide the question in that suit: Durga Charan v. Karamat, 7 C.W.N. 607. The question of transferability may arise as well between landlord and tenant as between a tenant and a third party: Ramgopal v. Rajan Sadagar, 6 C.L.J. 43; Bhiramali v. Gopikant, 24 Cal. 355. A landlord purchasing in execution of a money decree of a non-transferable occupancy holding can resist the claim of a mortgagee on the ground of non-transferability: Asmatun-nisa v. Harendra Lal, 12 C.W.N. 721. See notes under s. 183. Mortgagee purchaser.

Third party
Landlord
purchaser.

An execution purchaser of a non-transferable occupancy holding in execution of a money decree cannot raise a question of the validity of a transfer by the debtor in favour of a third person; Kanchan Mandar v. Kamala Prosad, 21 C.L.J. 441. Execution
purchaser.

A fractional co-sharer landlord who purchased a non-transferable occupancy holding is not entitled to raise the question of transferability as against a mortgagee of the holding: Radha Kishnuji v. Lalji Saha, 37 I.C. 821 (Patna Case). Fractional co-sharer
landlord.

18. Right of transferee :—See notes under section 170.

When occupancy-rights, transferable by custom, have been transferred, it is open to the transferee to sue under the Specific Relief Act to have it declared that they have acquired certain rights; but it is clear that if it is the object of such a suit to have it declared that the old tenant is no longer responsible for the rent, and that the transferee is so responsible to the landlord, such a declaration cannot be obtained without the service of the notice prescribed by s. 73; Ambika Pershad v. Chowdry Keshri, 24 Cal. 644, but it has been held that the transfer of a portion of an occupancy holding is contrary to the spirit of s. 88, and the existence of a custom in a particular place by which such a holding is transferable is immaterial and gives no right to the transferee as against the landlord: Kuldip v. Gillanders, 26 Cal. 615; s. c., 4 C.W.N. 738. Right of
s. 73.

Transfer
of portion.

Even where occupancy-rights are transferable, an occupancy-raiyat cannot transfer different parts of it to different persons and in case of such transfers the landlord is entitled to treat the transferees as trespassers and eject them: Tirthanund Thakoor v. Mutty Lal, 3 Cal. 774. Transferees of different portions to different persons.

Where a raiyat having a non-transferable holding takes an under-lease under the transferee and then as an under-raiyat brings a suit against the landlord of the holding for recovery of possession and Under-lease establishment of title, held that they cannot obtain any decree whatsoever ; Rajani Kant v. Ekkiari Das, 34 Cal. 689, s. c., 11 C.W.N. 811 : s. c., 7 C.L.J. 78 ; if the plaintiff in the suit had recanted and resiled and sued for possession as a raiyat under the landlord offering to pay rent to him he would be entitled to obtain a decree. Ibid.

Purchaser of a portion.

The purchaser of a portion of a *raiya*ti jote which is not transferable without the landlord's consent, and where there is no finding of such consent is not entitled to have joint possession of the jote : Agarjan Bibi v. Panaulla, 37 Cal. 687 ; s. c., 14 C.W.N. 779.

It has been held by a Full Bench (Purna Chandra v. Chandra Mohon, 20 C.W.N. 586, s. c., 23 C.L.J. 304) that a purchaser of a share of an occupancy holding has a right to recover possession even against the landlord. Following the Full Bench it has been held in the case of Lala Deo Saran v. Bateswar, 23 C.L.J. 559, s. c., 20 C.W.N. 1xxxiii (notes portion p. 83) that a co-sharer landlord is in no better position than a stranger and hence the transfer by a raiyat of his non-transferable holding is binding against him.

Landlord.

When some of several joint landlords have assented to a transfer of a non-transferable holding, the other co-sharers are entitled to recover joint possession of their share ; Hossein Mahomed v. Fakir Mahomed, 10 C.L.J. 618 : (referred to in Radha Kissen v. Bhagdwat, 38 I.C. 72).

Suit for declaration that rent-decree is in —operative.

A suit for a declaration by a mortgagee of a non-transferable holding that a decree obtained by the landlord against the vendor of the plaintiff for arrears of rent was fraudulent and inoperative against the plaintiff is maintainable : Brahamdeo v. Ramdown, 16 C.L.J. 139.

S. 47 C.P.C.

A person to whom a transferable occupancy holding was mortgaged before its sale in execution of a rent-decree is a representative of the judgment-debtor within the meaning of s. 244 of the former Civil Procedure Code, (s. 47 of the New Code) and may apply to set aside a sale under that section : Srimati Nissa Debi v. Radhakishore, 11 C.W.N. 312, following the principle in the cases of Ishan Chandra v. Beni Madhab, 24 Cal. 62 (F.B.), and Azgar Ali v. Asabaddin, 9 C.W.N. 134.

When an application is made to execute a decree for money by attachment and sale of an occupancy holding the judgment-debtor is entitled under s. 244, C. P. C., (s. 47 of the New Code) to raise the question as to whether the holding is saleable according to custom or usage and to have the question determined by the Court executing the decree : Majed Hossein v. Rahubar, 27 Cal. 187 ; also see Peary Mohan v. Jote Kumar, 11 C.W.N. 83 : Gahar Khalipa Bepari v. Kasimaddi Jamadar, 4 C.W.N. 557.

Decree for rent against the recorded tenant.

s. 47 C.P.C.

A purchaser in execution of a decree against an unregistered transferee of an occupancy holding as well as the unregistered transferee himself are bound by a decree for rent subsequently obtained against the recorded tenant. The purchaser is therefore a representative of the judgment-debtor within the provisions of s. 244 C. P. C., and may apply to set aside a sale held in execution of the rent-decree on the ground of fraud ; Haradhan v. Girish Chandra, 13 C.W.N. 98 ; see also Ishan Chander v. Beni Madhab, 24 Cal. 62. But it was held in the case of Prosunno v. Bama Charan, 13 C.W.N., 652 that a transferee from an occupancy raiyat cannot apply as the representative of a judgment-debtor to have a sale in execution of a decree for rent obtained against the recorded tenant set aside under s. 244 and 311 C. P. C. (XIV of 1882) if the holding was not transferable. See also Srimati Nisa Bibi v. Radha Kishore, 11 C.W.N. 312. See notes under s. 170.

As to whether a transferee may apply for setting aside sale under Or. 21 rr. 89 and 90 C. P. C., see notes under s. 174.

A transferee of an occupancy holding who has been allowed under ss. 170 and 171 to deposit the rent is competent to maintain a suit to challenge a decree obtained by the landlord collusively against the recorded tenant enhancing the rent: Lala Barhmdeo Lal v. Sheo Prasad Lal, 2 Pat. L.J. 561.

An application by a purchaser of a non-transferable occupancy holding from whom rent has been received by the landlord, to set aside an execution sale in favour of the landlord decree-holder held in execution of proceedings initiated and carried on against a judgment debtor is governed by s. 47 of the Code of Civil Procedure: Arjun Das v. Ganendra, 20 C.L.J. 341.

A portion of a non-transferable holding apart from custom or Will. local usage cannot be devised by will: Umesh Chandra v. Joynath, 43 I.C. 779. See notes under section 26.

Where in execution of a decree for arrears of rent an occupancy holding was sold and purchased by A, and A was resisted from taking possession, as B a mortgagee from the tenant being in possession opposed, held that a mortgagee is in possession of the holding on his own account within the meaning of Rule 101 of order 21 C.P.C.: Kedar Nath v. Saday Chandra, 19 C.L.J. 13.

When a purchaser of a holding alleging the same to be permanent brought a suit against the landlord for declaration of a permanent tenancy and stating that he was in adverse possession for 12 years held that he is not entitled to get a declaration that he has been a holder of a non-transferable occupancy holding: Nabin Chandra v. Nil Kamal, 36 I.C. 11.

Where A purchased a non-transferable occupancy holding from the heirs of the original tenant and a few days later B purchased the same holding from a person having no title and both A and B obtained settlement of the land from the landlord, B's settlement being prior to that of A, held that A had the preferential title and not B who had got the transfer from the pretended owner: Wahid v. Mahamad Ansar Ali, 47 I.C. 147.

19. Recognition of transferee by landlord:—The karta of a joint Hindu family has authority to consent on behalf of the joint family to the transfer of an occupancy holding: Golapdi v. Purno Chandra, 21 C.W.N. 774.* The landlord if he accepts rent, assents to the transfer of the holding, and it would make no difference in the application of this rule if the sale is a part of the holding: Bharut Roy v. Gunga Narain, 14 W.R. 211. Where the purchaser for a period of 18 years paid rent without the slightest objection on the part of the landlords, held, that this acted as a full and complete acknowledgment by the proprietor of the estate that he accepted the new tenant in the - place of the old one: Allendar v. Dwarkanath, 15 W.R. 320. Where a landlord allowed the sums paid into the Collectorate by a third party to be carried to his credit, held that he had recognised the transfer from the tenant to the third party, although such transfer had not been registered: Ram Gobind v. Dushoobhoajoh, 18 W.R. 195. Where a landlord made a transferee a party to a rent-suit and accepted a decree against him jointly with other persons, held that the landlord had recognised the transferee as a tenant: Ram Kishore v. Krishno Monee, 23 W.R. 106. See notes under s. 73.

- When upon a transfer of a tenure dakhilas which were granted by the landlord did not describe the transferee as tenant but the dakhilas described the rent paid as the rent of the holding and the person paying as occupier of the holding and as paying on her own account, held that it was quite a sufficient recognition of the transferee as tenant: Naba Kumari v. Behari Lal, 6 C.L.J. 122, s.c., 11 C.W.N. 865, s.c., 39 Cal. 902. This case was distinguished in the case of Debnarain v. Bihari Lal, 14 C.W.N. 68.
- Marfatdar.
- The mere fact that in rent-receipts the word marfatdar is used, is not conclusive to shew that there was no recognition and the court should determine in each case whether, on a consideration of all the facts, not merely by giving undue weight to words used, a legal inference is or is not to be drawn that there has been a recognition: Prabhabati v. Taibutunessa, 17 C.W.N. 1088, but see notes under the next heading.

- As to the effect of Marfatwari or Sarbarakari or similar dakhilas see notes at the end of the notes under the next heading.—What does not amount to recognition. As to custom or local usage of transferability and Marfatwari dakhilas, see notes at page 176.
- Where a settlement is made by the landlord with auction-purchaser of a non-transferable holding as soon as can reasonably be expected after the sale and where the landlord afterwards recognises the purchaser and receives rent from him it is sufficient to render the sale valid in law: Dwarka Nath v. Tarini Sanker, 11 C.W.N. 513. See notes under s. 73.
- Receipt of rent "through the mortgagee."
- In the case of Baradacharan Dutt v. Hemlata, 13 C.W.N. 242. Doss, J., sitting singly held that a landlord is entitled to get khas possession when a raiyat having a non-transferable holding creates an usufructuary mortgage, and the fact that the landlord granted a receipt acknowledging the receipt of rent "through the mortgagee," had not the effect of recognition by the landlord; but on Letters Patent appeal the decision was reversed on the ground that there was recognition by the landlord: (13 C.W.N. 833; s.c., 10 C.L.J. 610).
- A rent receipt reciting that rent was received through a mortgagee was held to be recognition by the landlord: Barada Charan Dutt v. Hemlata, 13 C.W.N. 833; s.c., 10 C.L.J. 610.
- This case was followed in the case of Matook Dhari v. Jugdeep, 19 C.W.N. 1319 and it was held that receipt of rent from a mortgagee of a tenant who deposited the rent amounts to recognition, even if the receipt of rent was under protest:
- Whether landlord bound by
- After considering the cases Bhojohuree v. Aka Golam, 6 C.W.N. 823, Jagadiswari v. Jaymani, 25 Cal. 533, and Beni Parsad v. Ramdohim, 10 C.W.N. 266, Mookerjee and Teunon, J.J. have laid down the following rule relating to the effect of a receipt granted by a gomasta :— the acts of gomastha.

It cannot be laid down as an inflexible rule of law that a landlord is not bound by the act of a gomastha in recognising a transferee of an occupancy holding. The question of the gomastha's power to bind his landlord is one which must be decided on the particular facts of each case.

The burden of proof is in the first instance upon the landlord to prove the extent of the authority of the gomastha as a matter peculiarly within his knowledge. Where therefore a gomastha of the landlords accepted rent from a transferee of a jote and the landlords failed to show that the gomastha acted beyond the scope of his authority ; held that the facts constituted sufficient recognition of the transferee by the landlord : Suduman Jamadar v. Bahari Mahton, 15 C.W.N. 953.

This case (15 C.W.N. 953) was not approved of by Chapman and Roe I.J., (Janki Sahu v. Thakur Run Bahadur, 2 Pat. L.J. 231). Their Lordships have held that in order to rely upon a receipt granted by a landlord's gomastha as evidence of recognition by the landlord of a transfer of a holding it is necessary for the transferee to shew that the gomastha's duties ostensibly included at least some of the duties of management. Contra.

The presumption is that the granting of receipts by a gomastha would not be binding upon the landlord as a recognition of a transfer : Ibid.

It is not within the scope of the authority of a patwari or rent-collector to consent on behalf of his master to the transfer of a non-transferable occupancy holding : A. W. N. Wyatt v. Sheogobind, 1 Pat. L.J. 414 (Per Chamier, C.J.).

Independently of the question whether a gomastha had authority to grant an amalnama or settle a holding, the receipt of rent by him on behalf of his employer from the person in occupation of a holding is sufficient to prove the tenancy of the latter : Jahurmāl v. Kera-mutuka, 45 I.C. 196 (Richardson and Beachcroft, J.J.). The case of Suduman v. Behari Mahton, 15 C.W.N. 953 was considered in this case. Receipt of rent by gomastha, when sufficient for recognition.

A plaintiff suing for compensation for use and occupation and not asking for ejectment must be taken to have recognised the defendant as a tenant : Abdul Hakim v. Rajendra, 13 C.W.N. 636 ; such a suit was treated as a suit for rent. Suit for compensation.

A purchaser of a non-transferable occupancy holding who obtained recognition of his purchase by the landlord has no right to eject a tenant who had, prior to the purchaser's recognition, lawfully entered into occupation of the holding as a raiyat under authority from the landlord's ijaradar for a term ; his raiyati interest would continue even after the expiry of the ijara ; he can only be ejected on one or more of the grounds mentioned in s. 44 of the B. T. Act : Atul Chandra v. Lakhi Narain, 10 C.L.J. 55. Tenant settled by an ijaradar.

A landlord who gave receipt of rent in which the person from whom rent has been said to have been received is described as a mortgagee, cannot bring a suit for khas possession on the ground that the holding is non-transferable : Baroda Churn v. Hemlata, 13 C.W.N. 833. Rent-receipt to a mortgagee.

sale was set aside upon a notice to the decree-holder to shew cause why the sale should not be set aside, and the landlord decree-holder withdrew the money deposited, held that the decree-holder could not be permitted to urge that the transfer was inoperative: Gadadhar v. Midnapore Zemindary Co., 27 C.L.J. 385.

Withdrawal of money deposited by the transferee of a non-transferable holding under s. 310A. (Act XIV of 1882) to have the sale set aside amounts to recognition of the transferee: Gadadhar v. Midnapur Zemindary Co., 43 I.C. 742.

Acceptance of rent by a ticcadar from the transferee amounts to recognition by the landlord: Bhagloo v. Mahodeo, 38 I.C. 283.

Effect of receipt by of landlord

Landlord not generally bound.

A landlord is not bound to recognise a transferee of a non-transferable holding if his gomostha or patwari accepted rent from the transferee; in such cases the landlord would not generally be bound unless he accepted the rent knowing the source from which it came: Bhonulal v. W. A. Vincent, 65 I.C. 882, (Dawson Miller C. J. and Das J.).

Demand
of rent.

Where a person purchased a holding on the assumption that it was transferable and professed to be a tenant in occupation, and the landlord demanded for rent, held that it was good evidence of mutual consent to the creation of a tenancy unless the landlord was able to explain that the demand was not unqualified: Monmotha Nath v. Probode Chandra, 37 C.L.J. 52.

Onus.

Where the question is as to whether the landlord's gomostha had the right to recognise a tenant, held that in the first instance the onus is upon the landlord to shew what the precise authority of his agent is: Madan Mohan v. Priyanath, 64 I.C. 362.

Where a tahsildar not authorised to do so grants a receipt, there is no recognition: Gobind v. Dwaraka, A.I.R. 1922 Pat. 279.

Where rent was received by an ijaradar from the transferee of a non-transferable holding, held that the ijaradar after his acquisition of the proprietor's interest is not entitled to eject the transferee if he has not repudiated the receipt of rent of his gomostha: Mahammad Kasiruddin v. Banikant, A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 520 (Walmsley and B. B. Ghose J.J.).

Where a tenant took settlement from a co-sharer, the other co-sharer is entitled to get a decree for joint possession: Bal Gobind v. Dwaraka, A.I.R. 1922 Pat. 279 (Coutts and Ross J.J.).

20. What does not amount to recognition :—Where a non-transferable holding was advertised for sale in execution of a decree for arrears of rent and the judgment-debtor put in the money due under decree stating that he had procured the money by selling his holding to another person and the landlord took out the money out of Court, held that it could not be inferred from the above circumstances that the landlord had given his consent to the transfer, inasmuch as the landlord had a right to draw the money out of Court without regard to the manner in which or the source from which the judgment-debtor had procured it; Robert Wilson v. Radha Dulri, 2 C.W.N. 63. When a party wishes to make known to the zemindar that he has a right to a holding the rent of which the landlord refuses to take from him, he should distinctly state what is the interest he claims, and the notice to the zemindar should comprise this information; it is not sufficient for a man wishing to protect his special interest of which the zemindar may have no knowledge, to make a deposit of the rent in the name of the recorded tenant along with his own, and his without stating what his claim is ; for unless he does so, the landlord own. is not obliged as to his status : Mirtunjoy v. Gopal Chandra, 10 W.R. 466. A receipt given by a gomastha does not bind the landlord : Bhajaharee v. Akogosan, 16 W.R. 67. Receipt by Gomostha.

A demand to give up possession coupled with a demand to pay the produce of the land or the price thereof is not a demand for rent and cannot be regarded as a recognition by the landlord of the person from whom the demand is made as his tenant ; Deonandan v. Meghu Mahton, 5 C.L.J. 181. Demand to pay produce.

A deposit of the amount of a rent decree by the purchaser of a non-transferable holding in the name of the tenant, and the withdrawal of the deposit by the landlord does not amount to the landlord's recognition of the purchaser as the tenant : Maheshnarain v. Maharaja Bahadur : 17 C.W.N. 70. Deposit.

Withdrawal by the landlord of money deposited by the purchaser of a non-transferable occupancy holding in execution of a money decree to prevent a sale in execution of a rent decree does not amount to recognition : Surendra Narain v. Jugal Kishore, 20 C.W.N. 849 ; the case of Thomas Barclay v. Syed Hossein Ali, 6 C.L.J. 601 and Nalini Behary v. Fulmani, 15 C.L.J. 388 were distinguished. Withdrawal of deposit.

Marfatwari or Sarbarkari or similar Dakhilas :—The acceptance of rent from the transferee of a non-transferable holding not as transferee but as the agent or representative of the original tenant does not amount to a recognition of the validity of the transfer : Digbijoy v. Shaikh Ata Rahaman : 17 C.W.N. 156. Acceptance of rent from agent.

The receipt by the landlord of rent from a transferee of a holding, not on his own account but as agent of the transferor is not a recognition of the transfer : Debnarain v. Baidyanath, 14 C.W.N. 68 ; see also Khoodeeram Chatterjee v. Rookhinee Boistobee, 15 W.R. 197 ; Rasamay v. Srinath, 7 C.W.N. 132. The Privy Council case of Nabakumari v. Behari Lal, 11 C.W.N. 865, s.c., 34 Cal. 932, s.c., 6 C.L.J. 122, was distinguished in the case of Debnarain v. Baidyanath Madak, 14 C.W.N. 68. Receipt from agent.

“The effect of the use of the word ‘Marfatdar’ may vary according to the circumstances of each case on a consideration of all the facts of the case, but having regard to the fact that rent receipts were asked for in the name of the purchaser and the landlord expressly refused to grant receipt in his name, and gave receipt in the name of the old tenant (the purchaser being described merely as Marfatdar) negatives any idea of recognition of the purchaser as the tenant” : Manmatha v. Anath Bandhu, 23 C.W.N. 201 (at p. 214, Col. 2) :

When a non-transferable occupancy holding is transferred by sale or usufructuary mortgage, and the tenant abandons, the landlord is entitled to get khas possession and consequently he does not agree to recognise the transferee as a tenant. As long as the tenant cannot satisfy the landlord by payment of Nazar or Selami, the arrangement generally is to the effect that the transferee will continue to pay rent on the express understanding that the payment will not be on his own behalf but on behalf of the transferer (i.e., the original tenant), and consequently there will be no recognition of the transferee as tenant ; where therefore the dakhila (rent receipt, describes the transferer as tenant and the transferee as marfatdar, (i.e., through whom the rent is paid), it is reasonable to think that the landlord by granting such dakhilas does not admit the transfer and does not acknowledge the Whether Marfatwari dakhilas amount to recognition.

marfatdar as a tenant ; in fact the transferee marfatdar is estopped from saying that he has been recognised as a tenant ; the earlier decisions were to the effect that marfatwari dakhilas cannot be evidence of recognition but in a later decision in the case of Prabhabati v. Taitab-ennessa, 17 C.W.N. 1088 it has been laid down that the fact that in rent receipts the word "marfatdar" is used is not conclusive to shew that there was no recognition and the court should determine in each case whether on a consideration of all the facts, not merely by giving undue weight to words used, a legal inference is or is not to be drawn that there has been a recognition.

It is submitted with great respect that in this decision the true intention of the landlord and the tenant in the grant and acceptance of dakhilas was not given effect to.

Marfatdari Rent receipts: Recognition :—Where the landlord has expressly refused to grant receipts in the name of the transferee and granted them in the name of the old tenant describing him as marfatdar, it may at once be said there is not recognition. Where a recognition of tenancy is set up the Court should determine in each case whether on a consideration of all the facts, not merely by giving undue weight to words used, a legal inference is or is not to be drawn that there has been a recognition establishing the relationship of landlord and tenant between one who has paid and another who has received rent for a number of years : Satish Chandra Ghose v. Debendra-nath Dey, 85 I.C. 1925.

Tenant not a necessary party in a suit for khas possession against a transferee.

21. Party—suit for khas possession :—A tenant is not a necessary party in a suit for ejectment when there is an unauthorised alienation and when the tenant is no longer upon the land : Ram Pershad v. Jowahir Ray, 7 C.L.J. 72 at p. 78 ; if the tenant is made defendant in such a suit he is entitled to ask for dismissal of the suit as against him on the ground of want of cause of action : Ibid. In a suit to eject a transferee of a non-transferable holding the transferer is not a necessary party : Sheikh Chand Pramanick v. Romoni Mohan, 17 C.W.N. 1105.

When a necessary party.

Where on a conveyance by an occupancy raiyat of a non-transferable holding, the landlord brought a suit for khas possession, against the transferee, and the raiyat (the transferor) made an application to be made a party on the allegation that the transfer was a mortgage by conditional sale, held by the High Court on revision that the order of the lower court refusing the application was wrongly made and that to prevent multiplicity of suits he ought to be made a party : Dwarkanath v. Kisorialal, 11 C.L.J. 426.

See notes under the following heading i.e., heading No. 22.

Such a suit is not a suit under the Bengal Tenancy Act and therefore s. 188 does not apply.

22. S. 188 does not apply to a suit for ejectment on the ground of unauthorised alienation :—Where an occupancy raiyat holding land under several co-sharers transfers his holding and abandons the land and the transferee is in possession, it is not necessary that all the landlords must join together in bringing a suit for ejectment and s. 188 is no bar to a suit by one of the co-sharer landlords alone ; for, the joint landlords are not required or authorised to bring such a suit under the Bengal Tenancy Act.

A suit for ejectment on the allegation that a tenant of non-transferable holding sold it to the defendant and has abandoned the land is not a suit or proceeding under the Bengal Tenancy Act : Bazlul Karim v. Satis Chandra Giri, 15 C.W.N. 752 ; s. c., 13 C.L.J. 418 ; See also Sarat Chandra v. Syam Chand, 10 C.W.N. 930 ; s. 50 of the Bengal Tenancy Act has therefore no application to such a suit. See notes under s. 50.

A suit for khas possession against a transferee of a non-transferable occupancy holding is not a suit based upon the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act but a simple action in ejectment: Raghubar v. Ramgulam, 1 Pat. L.J. 502.

Sec. 188 does not apply to a suit against a trespasser: Reajaddin v. Syed Abdul [A.I.R. 1924, Cal. 445] (Sanderson, C. J. and Ghose J.).

23. Limitation in regard to a suit for khas possession against the transferee of an occupancy raiyat:—A suit for ejectment brought by a landlord against the transferee of a non-transferable occupancy holding is not barred by limitation although the suit might be brought more than 12 years after the date of sale by the raiyat: Jadu Nath Belel v. Rajnarain Mukherjee, 17 C.W.N. 459; in this case the transferee had been in possession for more than 12 years and had once during that period paid rent to the landlord on behalf of the old tenant and taken a receipt in which he was described as a marfatdar. No limitation even if suit is brought 12 years after.

But it was held by Jenkins C. J. and Mookerjee J., in the case Contra. of Probbabati v. Tarbatunnessa, 17 C.W.N. 1088 (reversing the decision of Coxe J.), that a plaintiff suing for ejectment of a purchaser of a non-transferable occupancy holding cannot succeed where his right to possession accrued long before 12 years of the commencement of the suit, and such a suit is barred unless he makes out a case under s. 18 of the Limitation Act. In this case it was held that the statute of the limitation created a limited interest of tenancy. In this case the transferee was in possession for 30 years and obtained marfatdari rent receipts from the landlord.

The case of Probbabati v. Tarbatunnessa, 17 C.W.N. 1088 was followed in the case of Panchkari v. Maharaj Bahadur, 19 C.W.N. 136.

It was held in the case of Debnarain v. Baidya Nath, 14 C.W.N. 68 that a transferee of a non-transferable occupancy holding who paid rent as marfatdar of the former tenant may acquire a right of occupancy if he is in possession for 12 years by assertion of his raiyati right adversely to the landlord.

24. Right to accretion:—An occupancy raiyat is entitled to the benefit of s. 4, cl. (1) of Reg. XI of 1825, and when there is an accretion to his holding he is entitled to hold the lands as an accretion to the jote: Gour Hari v. Bhola Kaibarto, 21 Cal. 233; Gobind Monee v. Dina Bundhoo, 15 W.R. 87; Ati Mollah v. Sahebullah, 15 W.R. 149; Bhagabat v. Durg Bijai, 8 B.L.R. 73; s. c., 16 W.R. 95. But where there is no right of occupancy in the parent land s. 4 of Reg. XI of 1825 cannot apply to the accretion: Beni Pershad v. Chaturi, 33 Cal. 444; s. c., 4 C.L.J. 63. See notes under s. 52. See also Zukheroddin Paikar v. Campbell, 4 W.R., C. Rulings 57, but it has been held in the cases of Ahmud v. Tohi Mahomed, 13 C.W.N. 267 and Amjad Ali v. Kade Jan, 13 C.W.N. 269 that non-occupancy raiyat can claim the benefit of s. 4 of Act XI of 1825 and is entitled to claim an accretion to his holding, see also Madhu v. Sabar Ali, 14 C.W.N. 680 and Mia Jan v. Akramali, 8 C.L.J. 541; their Lordships Stephen and Doss J.J., in deciding the case reported Non-occupancy raiyat.

in 13 C.W.N. 269 distinguished and explained the cases of Zukheraddin Paikar v. Campbell, 4 W.R. C. Rul. 57 and Beni Pershad v. Chaturi, 33 Cal. 444, s. c., 4 C.L.J. 63 as follows:—

from year to year.

The appellant relies on the decisions in Zuheroddin Paikar v. Campbell, and Beni Pershad Koeari v. Chaturi Tewari to show that it does not. The former case referred to a tenant from year to year and was held that he was not entitled to the benefit of the section. In the latter a fresh agreement from a year's tenancy was actually made every year, so that the tenant never had any interest in the land beyond the end of the current year. Neither of these cases, therefore, touch the case of non-occupancy tenant.

The holder of a rent-free holding is entitled to possession of all lands forming accretions thereto, but he is not entitled to hold the same rent-free: Baidyanath v. Nandalal, 18 C.W.N. 1206*

A party to a contract enjoying the benefit under it cannot, when the right to get either rescission or reformation of the contract is barred, say that he is not bound by one of its terms: Sasikant v. Genda Sheikh, 82 I.C. 970 (Chakravarti J.).

Redemption of
mortgage.

25. Right to redeem a mortgage :—The words "any person having any interest in or charge upon the property" in sub-section (a) of s. 91 of the Transfer of Property Act do not include a raiyat and he is not therefore entitled to redeem mortgage of his superior interest, although the raiyati lease was created after the date of the mortgage: Giris Chunder v. Juramoni, 5 C.W.N. xxi.

A purchaser in execution of a mortgage decree has no right to redeem against the purchaser of a non-transferable occupancy holding at a rent-sale: Lala Muralidhar v. Sarat Lal, A.I.R. 1922 Pat. 555 (Coutts and Ross J.J.); the interest of the mortgagee purchaser is not a lien i.e., not an interest in limitation of the tenant's interest.

26. Excavation of Tank :—See notes under s. 76 and under s. 194.

27. Denial of landlord's title :—See notes under s. 10.

28. Unfit for the purposes of tenancy :—See notes under s. 25.

S. 23 of the Bengal Tenancy Act is applicable not only where the land is made permanently unfit for cultivation but also where it is made temporarily unfit: Raj Kishore v. Rajani Kant, 24 C.L.J. 85.

The withdrawal of one-tenth portion of an occupancy holding from actual cultivation for a non-agricultural purpose (establishment of a market) renders the holding unfit for the purpose of the tenancy: Raj Kishore v. Rajani Kant, 37 I.C. 249; where a co-sharer landlord took a release of a portion of an occupancy holding for enabling to hold a market and after obtaining possession thereof attempted to erect structures and hold a market thereon, the other co-sharer landlord was entitled to restrain from executing the design: Ibid.

29. Which does not materially impair the value of the land &c. :—See notes under s. 25.

* See the case of Mea Jan v. Akram, 2 C.L.J. 508, s. c., 10 C.W.N. 527, Gourhari v. Bholanath, 10 C.L.J. 420, s. c., 13 C.W.N. 1197; Golam Ali v. Kali Krishna, 8 C.L.J. 541; Chooramonee v. Howrah Mill Co., 21 Cal. 233; Ram Money v. Omesh Chunder, 7 Cal. 479; Ram Gutty v. Baroda Churn, 11 Cal. 696.

30. Relinquishment by a co-tenant :—A relinquishment by a co-tenant does not operate by way of enlarging the rights of the other co-tenants: Peary Mohan v. Radhika Mohan, 5 C.L.J. 9.

31. Construction of Building :—An occupancy raiyat may erect a building consisting of masonry walls with a corrugated iron roof: Hari Kishore v. Baroda Kishore, 31 Cal. 1014; he may also build a pucca house, Nyamatoollah v. Gobind Churn, 6 W.R. (Act 76 X) 40: See notes under s. 76.

An occupancy raiyat does not exceed his right in building a pucca dwelling house on an insignificant portion of his holding taken for the purpose of gardening: Narain Chandra v. Manindra, 37 I.C. 999; such building need not be suitable to the holding but it must be suitable under the circumstances of the raiyat: Ibid.

32. Right of suit :—Where a Hindu widow transfers the property which she inherited from her husband and the said transfer is without any legal necessity, the transferee is competent to maintain a suit for ejectment against the transferee of a non-transferable occupancy holding. Kishori Paul v. Shaikh Bhushai, 14 C.W.N. p. 106.

33. Regulation VIII of 1819: Incumbrance :—An occupancy Khudkast or non-occupancy holding if not held by a khudkast raiyat, i.e., a raiyat. resident and hereditary cultivator, is an incumbrance and not protected from ejectment by the terms of cl. 3, s. 11 of Regulation VIII of 1819, and may be annulled by a purchaser at a sale under the said Regulation: Jogeshwar v. Abed Mahomed, 3 C.W.N. 13.

When a landlord acquiesces in a course of conduct by his tenants for instance, an appropriation by them of the trees in their holding and such acquiescence has led to the growth of a custom or usage which is binding upon him, the position of the parties is the same as if the landlord has expressly granted to them a right to appropriate the trees: Prodyote Kumar v. Gopi Krishno, 37 Cal. 322 at page 327, s. c., 14 C.W.N. 487; s. c., 11 C.L.J. 209. A customary right of this description in favour of a resident and hereditary cultivator must be regarded as a bonafide engagement with him which the auction purchaser at the Putni Sale is not entitled also to abrogate; Ibid at p. 350. A customary right to cut and appropriate trees is however an incumbrance within the meaning of sec. 11 of Reg. VIII of 1819. Ibid.

34. Right to bequeath :—A raiyat has no right to transfer or bequeath his holding except by local usage or custom; see s. 178, sub-sec. 3, cl. (d). Where a raiyat makes a bequeath by a will of his non-transferable holding, the legatee has no right to take the bequest but the heir would be entitled to inherit as if the raiyat had died intestate; but if the legatee takes possession of the holding, the heir has right to recover it from him; but if the heir, instead of doing so, abandons the holding, the landlord has the right to re-enter treating the legatee as a trespasser.

The heir of an occupancy raiyat in respect to a non-transferable occupancy holding is bound by a bequest of the holding made by the latter in favour of a stranger: Haridas v. Uday Chandra, (Per Doss J., sitting singly), 8 C.L.J. 261. It is submitted with great respect that this proposition of law is open to doubt. A non-transferable holding is not a proper subject matter of a bequest; therefore when an occupancy raiyat makes a bequest, it is to be considered as a property in respect to which the testator died intestate ; a will takes effect after the testator's death. The heir is not bound by the rule of estoppel to question the title of the legatee. So, when there is a bequest of a non-transferable holding, the heir inherits it as a part of the undisposed of assets ; but if he acquiesces in the legatee taking possession of the same, he abandons it, and the landlord is entitled to get khas possession.

cut tree.

Contra.

The aforesaid case (8 C.L.J. 261 ; s. c., 12 C.W.N. 1086) has been dissented from by Mookerjee and Beachcroft, J.J., in the case of Amulyaratan v. Tarini Nath, 18 C.W.N. 1290, s. c., 21 C.L.J. 187 in which it has been laid down that except under a local usage a raiyat is not competent to make a testamentary disposition of a non-transferable occupancy holding and that the heir-at-law of the raiyat is not estopped from questioning the validity of the devise. This case was followed in the case of Kunjolal v. Umesh Chandra, 18 C.W.N. 1294 where Fletcher and Richardson J.J., have taken the same view. It has also been held that the testamentary disposition of a part of a non-transferable occupancy holding like that of the whole holding is invalid : Umesh Chandra v. Joy Nath, 22 C.W.N. 474 (Fletcher and Chatterjee J.J.).

35. Right to share in the compensation under the Land Acquisition Act :—An occupancy raiyat is a person interested within the meaning of the expression "person interested" in s. 3, cl. (b) of the Land Acquisition Act : Gadadhar v. Dhunput, 7 Cal. 585. Garth, C. J., in delivering judgment in this case observed as follows :—The parties who usually suffer most from lands being taken for Government purposes are either the raiyats with right of occupancy, or the holders, whoever they may be, of the first permanent interest above the occupancy raiyats. The actual occupier is of course turned out by the Government, and if he is a raiyat with a right of occupancy, he loses the benefit of that right, besides being driven possibly to find a holding and a home elsewhere ; and the holder of the tenure immediately superior to the occupancy raiyats, whatever the nature of his holding may be, loses the rent of the land taken during the period of his holding. These two classes, therefore, would, generally speaking, be entitled to the larger portion of the compensation.

When the Government acquires land under the Land Acquisition Act the occupancy tenant is usually allowed a portion of the market value as compensation without reference to the question whether the occupancy right is transferable or not : Per Gupta, J., Ambikanath v. Adityanath, 6 C.W.N. 624.

Agreement that tenant is not to share in Land—Acquisition money.

36. Land Acquisition :—An agreement that an occupancy raiyat will not be entitled to share in the compensation for acquisition of land is valid : Asutosh v. Haripada, 35 C.L.J. 133 ; such a contract is not affected by cl. (a) of s. 178. Ibid.

37. Chap. VIIA :—As to right of transfer by aboriginals, see Chap. VIIA.

A mortgage of a non-transferable holding not invalid.

38. Miscellaneous cases :—A mortgage of a non-transferable holding is not invalid and does not confer any right on the landlord to have such mortgage declared invalid or not binding on the mortgagors ; and where the landlord has acquired the interest of the mortgagors he is bound by the mortgage : Sajedar v. Rakhal Chandra A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 529 (Walmsley and B. B. Ghosh J.J.).

No co-sharer can, as against his co-sharers, obtain any jote right, rights of permanent occupancy, in the lands held in common, nor can he create by letting the lands to cultivators as his tenants any right of occupancy of the lands in them : Midnapur Zemindari Co. v. Naresh Narayan, 51 Cal. 631 ; s. c., 29 C.W.N. 34.

If a co-sharer purchases any jote rights in lands held in common by the co-sharers, such a purchase would in law be held to have been a purchase for the benefit of all the co-sharers, and the jote rights so purchased would by the purchase be extinguished : Ibid.

24. An occupancy-raiyat shall pay rent for his holding at fair and equitable rates.

Headings of Notes.

1. FAIR AND EQUITABLE.
2. SUIT FOR ASSESSMENT OF RENT.
3. WHETHER ONE OF TWO OR MORE JOINT LANDLORDS CAN MAINTAIN A SUIT FOR ASSESSMENT : S. 188 :
4. RENT FREE TITLE.

I. Fair and Equitable :—S. 27 says that the rent for the time being payable by an occupancy-raiyat shall be presumed to be fair and equitable until the contrary is proved.

The expression "fair and equitable rates" is apparently taken from Sec. 5 of Act X of 1859 and of Act VIII of 1869 (B. C.) which laid down as is now provided under sec. 27 of the present Act.

2. Suit for assessment of rent : miscellaneous matters :—

A suit lies in the Civil Court for assessment of rent : Berhamdut v. Ramji Ram, 18 C.W.N. 466. In a proceeding under s. 106 of the Bengal Tenancy Act the Revenue Officer directed that certain lands entered in the record-of-rights as held rent-free be recorded as liable to payment of rent : held that a suit lay in the civil court for assessment of rent : Ibid. the cause of action in the suit arose after the decree under s. 106 : Ibid.

In a suit for assessment of rent a rent-free grant was inferred from long possession without payment of rent : Nawab Ali v. Birendra Kisore, 22 C.L.J. 124 ; see also Bissonath v. Brojo Mohun, 10 W.R. 61 and Radha Gobind v. Prokash, 14 W.R. 108 ; Jafer Ahmed v. Birendra Kishore, 22 C.L.J. 126 ; Birendra Kishore v. Chandi Charan, 22 C.L.J. 134 ; Kali Mohon v. Birendra Kishore, 22 C.L.J. 309 ; Biprodas v. Manorama, 45 Cal. 574. Where a tenant in the course of settlement proceedings set up a rent-free grant and disclaimed all liability to pay rent, held that a suit for assessment of rent brought more than 12 years after the disclaimer by the defendant was barred by limitation : Birendra Kishore v. Gagan Chandra, 22 C.L.J. 132 ; see also Birendra Kishore v. Ram Kumar, 22 C.L.J. 308 ; a suit for assessment brought after 12 years of the date of the defendant's setting up a rent-free grant is barred by limitation : Birendra Kishore v. Ram Charan, 22 C.L.J. 147 ; where the plaintiff who was out of possession for more than 12 years based his claim on the ground that the defendants were trespassers and did not elect to treat them as tenants on receipt of rent from them, held that the claim for assessment of rent in respect of the disputed land was barred by limitation : Birendra Kishore v. Ananda Priya Baishnavi, 22 C.L.J. 151 ; see also Birendra Kishore

A co-sharer cannot acquire a right of occupancy under another co-sharer. If he purchases the jote it becomes the property of all the co-sharers.

Suit for assessment of rent lies in a Civil Court.

Mere non-payment of rent is no bar to the landlord's right to assessment

and recovery

v. Ram Chandra, 22 C.L.J. 153. The mere non-payment of rent for a certain period does not bar a landlord's right to have the rent assessed and to recover rent from his tenant: Art 130 of Sch. I of the Limitation Act, applies after the tenure is found to be rent-free: Kamini Sundari v. Abdul Habin, 28 C.L.J. 254.

Where the landlord's papers shewed that rent was payable but rent was never realised, and opposite the entry of the amount payable was sometimes entered the word "mof" and sometimes the word "majra" held that the remission of rent was resumable: Naik Pandey v. Rajdhari Lal, 42 I.C. 843. (Patna Case).

It seems reasonable that in a suit for assessment of rent back rent may be recovered if not barred by limitation.

A suit in which assessment of fair and equitable rent and then recovery of rent so assessed is prayed for, is not a suit for rent as contemplated by sec. 153 of the B. T. Act: Bijoy Chand v. Beni Madhab, 52 Cal. 689 (Chakravarti, J.). See also Lala Dhanukdhari Lal v. Baburam Ahir, 10 C.L.J. 629.

Suit for assessment
of rent—
not a suit under the
B. T. Act.

3. Whether one of two or more joint landlords can maintain a suit for assessment of rent s. 188:—S. 188 does not seem to be a bar to the maintainability of a suit for assessment of rent at the instance of one of two or more joint landlords. A suit for assessment of rent is not a suit under the Bengal Tenancy Act; it is under the general law of the country and the landlord is not under the Bengal Tenancy Act required or authorised to bring such a suit and therefore s. 188 has no application.

without
of rent.

4. Rent-Free Title:—The mere fact of a person being in possession for a long series of years without payment of rent does not justify the inference that he held under rent-free title, specially where the fact of possession may be attributed to a lawful origin: Giriza Nath v. Chandi Charan, 38 C.L.J. 307, (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, J.J.); in this case the person claiming a rent-free title was a part proprietor.

Onus.

Once a landlord has proved that the land which is sought to be held rent-free lies within his estate, the onus is shifted: Jugdeo v. Baldeo, 39 I.A. 399; s.c., 27 C.W.N. 925; s.c., 36 C.L.J. 499; s.c., 2 Pat. 38.

A person who claims to hold as a tenant land within the ambit of a Zemindary must prove his right to hold it without payment of rent by a grant by the Zemindar, the production of the grant itself is not however the only way of proving the grant: The presumption of a lost grant arises in case of long possession under the claim of a definite right. In the circumstances of this case the presumption of a lost grant arose. Kiran Chandra v. Srinath, 31 C.W.N. 135 (Chakravarti J., Panton J. agreeing). The case of Jagdeo Narain v. Baldeo Singh, 39 I.A. 399; s.c., 27 C.W.N. 925; s.c., 36 C.L.J. 449 referred to.

Long possession without payment of rent may in certain circumstances justify the inference of rent free title. An open and adverse assertion by a tenant that the land which he has held is rent free may, after the lapse of the period of limitation, create a presumption that the tenure has been held without payment of rent as against the landlord. The tenant may by assertion of adverse title acquire a limited interest in the land which he holds: Chattra Nath v. Babar Ali, 29 C.W.N. 333 (Suhrawardy and Chotzner J.J.).

The plaintiffs were in actual physical possession of suit lands as tenants without payment of rent to the landlord for more than 12 years. The contention was that the plaintiffs have acquired a rent-free holding by operation of law, held that as there was no allegation and no evidence that the plaintiffs ever refused to pay rent to the landlord, or asserted in his presence a right to hold the lands rent-free, the mere failure of the landlord to realize rent even for more than 12 years would not confer a rent-free title. A rent-free title can be only acquired by adverse possession: Sheonandan v. Kesho Prasad, 8 P.L.T. 798; s.c., 1928 A.I.R. (Pat.) 63. The case of Taranchandra v. Ganendra, 16 C.W.N. 235 was distinguished.

The decision of the Judicial Committee in Jugdeo v. Baldeo, 39 I.A. 399 does not support the extreme contention that although the record-of-rights is in favour of the tenant it is still necessary for the tenant to establish by clear evidence that the entry in the record-of-rights is correct: Stonewigg v. Ramessur, A.I.R. 1923 Pat. 340.

The starting point for the period of limitation for assessment of rent with regard to lands held by the plaintiff as nishkar must be from the time he or his predecessor came into possession of the lands and the plaintiff is entitled to succeed in his claim that the lands are nishkar on proving that the defendant was debarred from instituting suit for assessment of rent by lapse of time: Sailaja v. Risheecase, 51 Cal. 135; s.c., 39 C.L.J. 380 (Rankin and B. B. Ghose, J.J.). See notes under s. 106.

Where a co-sharer purchased a holding from a tenant which was alleged to be rent-free and who had been holding it for more than 12 years without payment of rent and the co-sharer purchaser also did not pay any rent, held that the possession of the tenant vendor being adverse to other co-sharers, the possession of the purchaser co-sharer was also adverse to the other co-sharers and the starting point for the period of limitation for assessment of rent with regard to these lands was from the time when the co-sharers and their predecessors came into possession of the lands: Ibid.

Rent free title claimed by a co-sharer purchaser.

Limitation for assessment of rent.

If a tenant is in adverse possession of the absolute interest for over 12 years, then the landlord's right is completely extinguished. If a tenant is in adverse possession for such a period in respect only of a limited interest as tenant, then whatever may be the effect of it on the question of landlord's right, to khas possession, a claim for assessment of rent will not be barred unless as provided for in article 130 or 131 Schedule I of the Limitation Act. A suit to establish a right to assessment is governed by article 131. Limitation under this article does not run until there has been a proper demand and a refusal and mere exclusion from enjoyment does not cause time to run unless there has been refusal as a result of a demand properly made: Devendra Narayan v. Jhumur Pramanik, 43 C.L.J. 387 (Suhrawardy and Mukerji, J.J.).

Suits for assessment of rent-free lands are governed by article 130 schedule I to the Limitation Act and have to be instituted within 12 years from the time when the right to assess the land first arises and this right may arise upon a distinct notice of the tenants' claim to hold it rent-free: Ibid. The case of Hem v. Atul, 19 C.W.N. 386; s.c., 19 C.L.J. 113 referred to.

Protection from eviction.

25. An occupancy-raiyat shall not be ejected by his landlord from his holding, except in execution of a decree for ejectment passed on the ground—

- (a) that he has used the land comprised in his holding in a manner which renders it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy, or
- (b) that he has broken a condition consistent with the provisions of this Act, and on breach of which he is, under the terms of a contract between himself and his landlord, liable to be ejected.

Notice
before ejectment
suit.

1. Notice before Ejectment. Suit :—Before an ejectment suit can be brought under this section, the landlord must serve a notice as provided in sec. 155 of this Act. See notes under s. 155.

Nothing in any contract made before or after the passing of the Act shall entitle a landlord to eject a tenant otherwise than in accordance with the provisions of this Act. See s. 178, sub-sec. (1), cl. (c).

2. One consolidated Jama for agricultural and non-agricultural lands :—When a ghat with certain jote lands were let out for a certain term at an annual jama, held that after the expiry of the term the landlord was entitled to eject the tenant from the ghat lands although the tenant had acquired a right of occupancy with respect to the jote lands: G. S. Hayes v. Ghina, 33 Cal. 459.

Ejectment
suit must be for entire holding.
Suit by reversioner.

3. Suit must include entire land :—A suit for ejectment must be for the whole and not for a part of a holding: Bhagloo v. Mahadeo, 36 I.C. 283 (Per Atkinson, J.).

4. Reversioner :—A reversioner is not entitled to bring a suit for ejectment as he has no right to immediate possession: Bhagloo Shah v. Mahadeo Chaudhuri, 36 I.C. 283.

5. Unfit for the purposes of the tenancy :—When the land was admittedly let for agricultural purposes but the tenant turned it into an orchard and the lower Appellate Court found that the land had been rendered unfit for the purposes of tenancy, held in second appeal that the finding could not be interfered with: Soman Gope v. Raghubar, 24 Cal. 160; s.c., 1 C.W.N. 223; and where a tenant planted trees on one of the plots of land constituting an act which rendered him liable to ejectment, held that the tenant was liable to ejectment, not merely from the plot on which he had planted the trees but from his entire holding: Bholai v. The Rajah of Bensi, 4 All. 174. In Madras it has been held that where an occupancy tenant planted cocoanut trees, his acts do not constitute waste or breach of the terms of his tenancy: Venkayya v. Ramasami, 22 Mad. 39. But it has been held that tenants are not entitled to convert land under cultivation into a mango grove: Lakshamana v. Ram Chandra, 10 Mad. 351. The statutory right of occupancy cannot be extended so as to make it include complete dominion over the land subject only to the payment of a rent liable to be enhanced on certain conditions. The landlord is still entitled to insist that the land shall be used for the purposes for which it was granted; and although a liberal construction may be adopted, it cannot extend to a complete change in the mode of enjoyment: Lal Sahoo v. Deo Narain, 3 Cal. 781; s.c., 2 C.L.R. 294.* The cultivation of indigo is an agricultural purpose but the manufacture of indigo cakes out of indigo plants cannot be said to be an agricultural purpose: Surendra Narayan v. Harimohan, 31 Cal. 174; s.c., 9 C.W.N. 87. The question whether the erection of an indigo factory will render land unfit for agriculture is a question of fact: Ibid, (on appeal to P.C.), 34 Cal. 718; s.c., 11 C.W.N. 795 (P.C.): s.c., 6 C.L.J. 17.

A tenant holding under a lease of a permanent character has no power to make excavations of such a character as to cause substantial damage to the property demised, although by the terms of the lease he has power to make excavations: Girish Chandra v. Sirish Chandra, 9 C.W.N. 255.

In a suit for ejectment on the ground that the raiyat has used the land in a manner which has rendered it unfit for the purposes of tenancy, the claim must include the whole of the lands of the tenancy: Kamaleswari v. Hurbullubh, 2 C.L.J. 369.

6. Acquiescence :—Where upon land let out for the purpose of tillage and cultivation of crops, the tenant without the permission of the landlord enclosed the land and planted mango grafts thereon, held that the landlord being aware of the fact, having stood by for 3 years, and allowed the defendant to spend his labour and capital upon the land without taking action in the matter, no injunction should be issued: Noyna Misser v. Ruptikun, 9 Cal. 609. A landlord is not entitled to turn the tenant out of the land when the landlord stands by and sees the tenant erecting pucca building on the land without any objection whatever, although in the kabuliyat there was a stipulation restraining the tenant from erecting a pucca house : Banee Madhub v. Joy Kissen, 7 W.R. 495. If a landlord, instead of objecting to the erection of a brick house on land let out for the purpose of cultivation, were to remain passive and allow a house to be built he cannot afterwards say that the tenant did wrong in erecting the house : Shib Das v. Bamun Dass, 15 W.R. 360. Where there was a continued use of the land in making bricks for 25 years, held that it raised a strong presumption of acquiescence on the part of the landlord : Peter Nicholl v. Tarinee Churn, 23 W.R. 298. There can be no waiver unless the person against whom the waiver is claimed had full knowledge of his rights and of the facts which would enable him to take effectual action for the enforcement of such rights : Dhanukdhari v. Nathima, 11 C.W.N. 848. The burden of proof is on the person who relies on the waiver : Ibid. Where a temporary injunction was granted as the lands were being rendered unfit for cultivation on account of mining operations by the defendant, held that the balance of convenience was in favour of the defendant who was allowed to continue the mining operations and that as the plaintiff stood by for a considerable time while the defendant was spending a large sum of money, this was a circumstance of considerable importance in dealing with an application for injunction : Singaram Coal Syndicate v. Indra Nath, 10 C.W.N. 173.

7. Notice:—A notice to quit which directs the tenant to vacate a certain quantity of land under his landlord is not bad in law merely because it includes some land which the tenant is found not to hold under the landlord ; where a notice to quit stated the area of the defendant's holding to be 1 bigha and 5 Chittaks, but the true area was $1\frac{3}{4}$ cottas less and no boundaries were given—Held, that it was not a defect which would make the notice bad in law : Shama Charan v. Uma Charan, 2 C.W.N. 106.

Mis-statement as to area in notice.

8. Limitation:—The period of limitation for a suit in ejectment under cl. (a) of the section is two years under Art. 32 of Sch. II of the Limitation Act : Soman Gope v. Raghubar, 24 Cal. 160 ; s.c., 1 C.W.N. 223.

Period of Limitation : Suit under cl. (a).

The Bengal Tenancy Act deals specifically with the question of limitation in certain cases, and this supports an inference that the Legislature intended that any other cases should be left to the general law : Sharooop Das v. Jogeswar, 26 Cal. 565 (F.B.) ; s.c., 3 C.W.N. 464.

The period of limitation for a suit in ejectment under cl. (b) of this section is one year : see Sch. III, Art. I of this Act.

Suit under cl. (b).

Where the primary relief sought was in effect a mandatory injunction directing the defendant to fill up a tank and to pay the plaintiff compensation for his alleged wrongful act, and the secondary relief was for ejectment which could not follow save upon failure of the defendant to comply with that order, held that Art. 32 of Sch. II of the Limitation Act applied : Sharooop Dass v. Jogessar, 26 Cal. 565 (F.B.).

Where primary relief is not ejectment.

A suit to compel the defendant to remove trees from certain lands leased to him for agricultural purposes is governed by Art. 120, Sch. II of the Limitation Act : Gunesh v. Gondour, 9 Cal. 147 ; s.c., 12 C.L.R. 418 ; see also Kedar Nath v. Sritirutno, 6 Cal. 34.

Suit to remove trees.

In a suit to eject a lessee on the ground for not fulfilling a condition of the lease, the condition being that the tenant would be liable to be ejected on failure to cause his lands measured and rent settled after a certain period, held that the suit was governed by Art. 143 and not by Art. 139 of Sch. II of the Limitation Act: Goohi Sheikh v. H. Mathewson, 11 C.W.N. 661. Limitation Act, Art. 143.

9. Transfer of non-transferable occupancy holding whether a ground of forfeiture:—See notes under s. 23.

10. Non-payment of rent:—Non-payment of rent is no ground for ejection of an occupancy raiyat, see ss. 65, 66. Non-payment of rent.

Mere non-payment of rent does not extinguish or amount to a relinquishment of, the right of occupancy: Nilmony v. Bishu, 15 Cal. 17. But where land held by tenants with rights of occupancy was completely submerged for a number of years, and during the period of such submersion no rent was paid by the tenants, held, that the tenants had, by non-payment of rent during the period of submersion, forfeited their rights of occupancy: Hem Nath v. Ashgar Sardar, 4 Cal. 894. Where a raiyat for years previous to his dispossession had failed to pay rent, held that he had no subsisting title at the time when he instituted his suit for recovery of possession and consequently his suit must fail: Hem Chunder v. Chand Akund, 12 Cal. 115. When the relationship of landlord and tenant has once been proved to exist, mere non-payment, though for many years, is not sufficient to show that it has ceased. A tenant who alleges this must prove it particularly if he is in possession of the land: Runglal v. Abdul Goofer, 4 Cal. 314; s.c., 3 C.L.R. 119. Submerged land.
Mere non-payment.

II. Breach of condition:—A condition of forfeiture should not be extended beyond its words, unless, it is impossible to give a reasonable construction to the instrument in which it appears without doing so: Ram Nursingh v. Dwarkanath, 23 W.R. 10. There is nothing incompatible in the two remedies of damages and forfeiture for breach of the conditions of a lease: Chander Nath v. Sindar Khan, 18 W.R. 218. Where there is a stipulation that the lessee would not transfer the land leased to him, held that when the land is sold against the will of the lessee by the act of a Court the lessee could not be said to have voluntarily transferred his interest: Nilmadhub v. Narattam, 17 Cal. 826; Tamay v. Tempa, 7 Bom. 262; Rungo Lal Mondol v. Abdul Goofur, 4 Cal. 314; and Subbaraya v. Krishna, 6 Mad. 159. A covenant by a lessee not to assign without the lessor's consent runs with the land, and applies to a re-assignment to the original lessee: McEacharn v. Cotton, L. R. App. Cas. (1902), p. 104; see also Doherty v. Allman, (1878) 3 App. Cas. 709. Construction.

Covenant not to transfer runs with land.

Where a covenant reserved to the lessor a power of re-entry, there being no mention of a similar power being reserved to his "heirs, successors or assigns," held that the lessor's vendees could take advantage of the covenant: Krista Nath v. Brown, 14 Cal. 176. Power of re-entry,

A valid contract of tenancy providing that the tenant, a raiyat, should hold the land for his life-time and that the landlord would have the right to re-enter on his death, could be created before the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Act: such a contract does not come within the terms of the provisions in cl. (a) sub-sec. (1) or cl. (a), sub-sec. (3) of s. 178 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, and is therefore enforceable: Baul Chandra v. Nistarini, 10 C.W.N. 533. S. 178, sub-sec. (3).

Ejectment suit : Onus.

12. Right to compensation for improvement made without authority :—According to the usages and customs of this country, buildings and other such improvements made on land do not, by the mere accident of their attachment to the soil, become the property of the owner of the soil and if he who makes the improvements is not a mere trespasser, but is in possession under any bond fide title or claim of title, he is entitled either to remove the materials, restoring the land to the state in which it was before the improvement was made, or to obtain compensation for the value of the building if it is allowed to remain for the benefit of the owner of the soil—the option of taking to the building, or allowing removal of the material remaining with the owner of the land in these cases in which the building is not taken down by the builder during the continuance of any estate he may possess; Thakoo Ghunde v. Ramdhione, 6 W.R. 228; s.c., B.L.R. Sup. Vol. 595. A tenant who has erected buildings and effected improvements is not entitled to be paid their value on the determination of the tenancy merely because he has acted under the mistaken belief shared by his landlord that he had a larger interest in the property than he really had: Jugmahan Das v. Pailonjee, 22 Bom. I. If a tenant builds on his landlord's land he does not, in the absence of special circumstances, acquire any right to prevent the landlord from taking possession of the land and buildings when the tenancy has determined: Ramsden v. Dyson, L.R. 1 H.L. 129; see also Naunilal v. Rameshwar, 16 All. 328; Shaik Husain v. Goverdhone Das, 20 Bom. 1; Ismali Khan v. Jaigun Bibi, 4 C.W.N. 210; s.c., 27 Cal. 570, but where the land-owner stood by in silence while the tenant spent money on his land, held, that the plaintiff could not recover possession of the land, or require the removal of the buildings, without recouping the tenant the money he had expended: Dattatraya v. Shridhur, 17 Bom. 736: where land was leased out for cultivation and the lessee changed the character of the holding by making improvements inconsistent with the purpose for which the land was leased out; held that the landlord having stood by and thereby caused a belief that the change had his approval, the lessee was entitled to compensation for his improvement: Kundhammed v. Narayanan, 12 Mad. 320; see also Ravi Varma v. Mothisgen, 12 Mad. 323, note.

13. Suit for ejectment : Burden of proof :—When a tenant has been in long and peaceable occupation of land as part of an admitted tenure it lies upon the landlord in a suit for ejectment to prove in the first instance that the land is his khas property and not the tenant's. But where a tenant cut a tree standing upon a piece of land and within a few months of that occurrence the landlord brought a suit for ejectment and it was found that neither party had possession of the tree and its site: held, that the fact of defendant's possession of a tenure of limited extent within the plaintiff's putni, raises no presumption upon the defendant's seizure of a piece of land and claiming it as part of his tenure: Nanda Lal v. Jajneswar, 6 C.W.N. 185; see also Rhidoy Kristo v. Nobin Chunder, 12 C.L.R. 457; Batai Ahir v. Bhuggobutty, 11 C.L.R. 476; Ram Monee v. Aleemooddeen, 20 W.R. 374; Rajkishen Mookerjee v. Peare Mohun Mookerjee, 20 W.R. 421; and Rajendra Kumar v. Mohim Chandra, 3 C.W.N. 763.

See notes under s. 10 and under s. 89.

14. Injunction :—A suit lies to restrain a tenant of permanent character from making excavations of such a character as to cause substantial damage to the property demised, although by the terms of the lease he has power to make excavation: Girish Chandra v. Sirish Chandra, 9 C.W.N. 255.

15. Suit for ejectment by one of several co-sharers Ejectment suit by co-sharer.

Where the tenant was originally put into possession by all the co-sharers, held that in order to justify any individual co-sharer to eject him it must be shown that the tenancy so created was determined by all of them; Gholam v. Khairan, 31 Cal. 786; in their Lordships' judgment the cases of Hulodhar Sen v. Govroo Das Ray, 20 W.R. 126; Radha Pershad v. Essef, 7 Cal. 414 and Kamal Kumari v. Kiran Chandra Ray, 2 C.W.N. 229, were distinguished on the ground that these were cases in which an individual co-sharer let a person into the possession of the land as tenant without the consent of the co-sharer seeking to eject that person from the land.

A suit for ejectment of an occupancy raiyat from lands included in his jote for non-agricultural purposes after the expiry of lease is maintainable although the tenant cannot be ejected from the agricultural land as he acquires a right of occupancy therein; Hayes v. Ghina, 33 Cal. 459. Agricultural and non-agricultural lands.

16. Suit for arrears of rent for a period prior to ejectment decree :—A decree-holder who has obtained a decree for ejectment is entitled to bring a suit for the arrears of the period prior to the ejectment decree and cannot by such conduct be regarded as having waived the rights under his ejectment decree: Mansar Ali v. Abdul Karim, 10 C.L.J. 187. No waiver when rent for a period prior to ejectment decree is sued.

Where a decree for ejectment provided as required by s. 155 that the tenant do fill up the tank within a certain time or in the alternative do pay to the plaintiff a certain sum and if he fails to carry out either of the two alternative directions, he would be ejected, held that the institution of a suit for rent by the landlord for a period antecedent to the date mentioned in the decree for performance of the obligations did not render the decree for ejectment incapable of execution: Syam Mondal v. Satinath, 21 C.W.N. 776; an objection that forfeiture has been waived may be taken in execution of the decree for ejectment: Ibid.

17. Denial of landlord's title: Forfeiture :—See notes under sec. 10.

18. S. 155: Extension of time :—The time allowed in a decree under s. 155 for performance of the obligations as mentioned in the said section may be extended by the court even when such application is made in execution: Syam Mondal v. Satinath, 21 C.W.N. 776 at p. 783. Extension for performance of obligation —s. 155.

26. If a raiyat dies intestate in respect of a right of occupancy, it shall, subject to any custom to the contrary, descend in the same manner as other immoveable property: provided that in any case in which under the law of inheritance to which the raiyat is subject his other property goes to the Crown, his right of occupancy shall be extinguished. Partial acceptance of inheritance.

I. Inheritance :—There cannot be a partial acceptance or renunciation of an inheritance, nor can one of several heirs accept a part only of an inheritance to the prejudice of the other heirs and of the creditors of the deceased. An acceptance in part has the effect of an acceptance of the whole and carries with it the same liability. If a person accepts the inheritance in whole or in part he is bound to discharge the liabilities which attach to the late tenants from whom he inherits unless he can prove that he has since made a formal surrender of the holding to the landlord: Mozam Hassain v. Bhouldin, 5 C.W.N. 190.

A suit brought for khas possession based on the provisions of sec. 26 of the Bengal Tenancy Act fails as soon as it is found that the occupancy raiyat died leaving an heir.

It is not necessary for the court to decide who is preferential heir or whether there has been an abandonment and base its decision upon the same: Harendra v. Khemada Kinkar, 44 C.L.J. 282.

Custom or usage.

2. Right to bequeath :—In the absence of a local usage an occupancy raiyat has no right to bequeath his holding: see s. 178 sub-sec. 3 cl. (d). It is not transferable except by custom and it cannot also be bequeathed in the absence of custom or local usage.

Heir of an occupancy raiyat bound by bequest made by the raiyat.

Doss, J., sitting singly held in the case of Hari Das v. Uday Chandra, 8 C.L.J. 261; s.c., 12 C.W.N. 1086, that the heir of an occupancy raiyat in respect to a non-transferable holding is bound by a bequest of the holding made by the latter in favour of the stranger. The judgment of Doss, J., was appealed against under Letters Patent but their Lordships (Jenkins, C.J. and Mookerjee, J.) who decided the case did not express any opinion on this point: Uday Chandra v. Hari Das, 10 C.L.J. 608.

This view of the law seems to be open to doubt.

It is submitted with great respect that the view of law expressed by Doss, J., is open to doubt; for, an occupancy holding not being transferable except by local custom or usage, cannot also be the subject of a bequest; the legatee does not acquire any title, and therefore the heir inherits it. The question of estoppel does not arise in such a case.

Landlord entitled to khas possession where legatee takes possession with consent of heir.

But where there is a bequest of a non-transferable occupancy holding, and the legatee is allowed by the heir of the raiyat to take possession, the landlord seems to have a right to get khas possession for, as the legatee is a trespasser, and the raiyat's heir who has allowed the legatee to take possession may be considered to have abandoned.

The case of Haridas v. Uday Chandra, 8 C.L.J. 261; s.c., 12 C.W.N. 1086 was dissented from in the case of Amulyaratan v. Tarini Nath, 42 Cal. 254; s.c., 18 C.W.N. 1290; s.c., 21 C.L.J. 187 and it was held (by Mookerjee and Beachcroft, J.J.), that except under local usage a raiyat is not competent to make a testamentary disposition of a non-transferable holding and the heir-at-law of the raiyat is not estopped from questioning the validity of the devise; this case was followed in the case of Kunjilal v. Umesh Chandra, 18 C.W.N. 1294; Amullya v. Tarini, 18 C.W.N. 1290; s.c., 21 C.L.J. 187.

3. Reversion to landlord:—On a failure of heirs occupancy right reverts to the landlord. In similar circumstances tenures escheat to the Crown; Sonnet Koer v. Himmat, 1 Cal. 391 (P.C.); s.c., 15 W.R. 549.

S. 26 of the Bengal Tenancy Act seems to mean that although the other property of an occupancy raiyat dying intestate escheats to the Crown, his occupancy right does not escheat to the Crown but is extinguished. This does not mean that the holding ceases to exist but only that the occupancy right is terminated as in the case of a transfer of an occupancy right to a person jointly interested in the land as proprietor. The holding is then without a tenant and must revert to the landlord. This right of the landlord to the reversion where there are no heirs is clear on principle and is recognised in Courts: Garbu Mahton v. Bibi Khudai Jatunnissa, [1925 Pat.] 206 (Mullick and Ross, J.J.). Where a tenant can legally alienate or encumber the holding and that holding reverts to the landlord on the death of the tenant intestate without heirs, what reverts is the estate that was in the tenant as encumbered by him, diminished of course by virtue of sec. 26 of the Bengal Tenancy Act by the loss of the occupancy right: Ibid.

Where an occupancy raiyat mortgages his non-transferable holding and then dies without any heir, and the holding reverts to the landlord, the mortgage does not subsist: Muktakeshi v. Pulin Behari, 8 C.L.J. 324; s.c., 13 C.W.N. 12.

4. Provisions of this section do not apply to an ordinary holding:—S. 26 deals with the devolution of a right of occupancy, not of a holding pure and simple. This provision as regards right of occupancy, which is a creature of the statute, in section 26 will not apply to the ordinary holding of a raiyat which is not a creature of the Act, though some protective provisions are applied to it which make for fixity of tenure: The Midnapur Zemindary Co., Ltd. v. Hrishikesh, 18 C.W.N. 828 (F.B.); s.c., 19 C.L.J. 505.

5. Suit for rent against one or some of several heirs of an occupancy raiyat:—Ss. 15, 16 and 17 provide rules as to notifications to the landlord of the succession on the death of permanent tenure-holders; the same rules apply to raiyats at fixed rent by virtue of s. 18 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. But there are no such rules relating to occupancy raiyats; it therefore often happens that a landlord being ignorant as to who the heirs of an occupancy raiyat are, brings suits for recovery of rent against some of several heirs, and the question arises as to whether the decrees obtained in such suits are rent decrees. It seems that a decree obtained by a landlord against one of several heirs of an occupancy raiyat should be considered to be a rent decree where the whole body of heirs by their acquiescence allowed one of them to represent all, or where one only got his name registered and the others did not. But where a landlord being aware as to who the heirs are, brings a suit against one or some of the several heirs, Heir-at-law not estopped to deny legatee's title.

Where an occupancy raiyat died leaving several heirs, and the landlord put the holding to sale in execution of a decree for rent obtained against the recorded tenant only, held that the entire holding passed by sale as the recorded tenant represented the holding on behalf of all the co-sharers : Jagattara v. Daylati Bewa, 37 Cal. 75* (Richardson and Chatterjea J.J.). See notes under s. 65.

Rent suit against some of the several heirs of a tenant if maintain-able—

A suit for rent against one of several joint tenants (where by virtue of the contract to pay rent the liability is joint and several) is maintainable, but it seems that the decree will be a money decree and not a rent decree.

Where a suit for rent is brought against some of the several heirs of a tenant, such a suit is not maintainable : Sheikh Sahad v. Krishna, 24 C.L.J. 371 ; their Lordships observed that the landlord "having brought his suit against all the heirs he has recognised them all as his tenants and they must all be taken as one body of registered tenants holding one single holding. There is no case of joint contract which might be enforced against any of the joint contractors, because the defendants have not made any joint contract. Section 43 of the Contract Act speaks of two or more persons making a joint promise and can have no application where parties become jointly interested by operation of law in a contract made by a single person."

Rent-suit

Their Lordships in deciding the aforesaid case placed reliance upon the case of Kasi Kinkar v. Satyendra Nath, 12 C.L.J. 642 ; s.c., 15 C.W.N. 191, where the same view was taken. The case of Rameswar Singh v. Jaideb Jha, 12 C.L.J. 591 was distinguished on the ground that "the observation that 'it was competent to the plaintiff to bring his suit against any number of several joint tenants' must be read as applying to the facts of that case and for all that we know that case may have been one in which the contract of tenancy was entered into jointly by the several tenants." The case of Jogendra Nath v. Nagendra Narain, 11 C.W.N. 1026 was also distinguished on that ground.

Money
decree.

In the case of Krishna Das v. Kalitara, 22 C.W.N. 289, where the plaintiff had brought a suit for rent against six persons three of whom were dead, and obtained a decree, it was held that the decree was not a nullity but could be executed as a money-decree.

[See the cases of Mahammad Askari v. Radha Ram, 22 All. 307 Joy Gobinda v. Manmatha Nath, 33 Cal. 580, Jogendra Nath v. Nagendra Narain, 11 C.W.N. 1026, *Rameswar v. A rent-suit is not properly constituted unless it is brought against all the recorded tenants ; there is no presumption that in every joint tenancy in the province of Bihar and Orissa there is also a several promise by which each tenant agrees to be bound for the whole rent : Jogeswar v. Kesho Prasad, 1 Pat. L.J. 190.

In a case where A and his brothers were entitled to a holding and after A's death the suit for rent was brought against A's brothers and some of the heirs of A, and no portion of the rent had accrued during A's lifetime, held that the suit for rent was maintainable although all the heirs of A were not made parties : Lalit Mohan v. Haran Chand, 36 I.C. 243 (Fletcher and Teunon J. J.) (the case of Kashi Kinkar v. Satyendra, 12 C.L.J. 642 was distinguished on the ground that the rent sued for became due in the lifetime of the father and some of the heirs were sued) ; Fletcher and Teunon J.J. relied on the case of Chamatkarini v. Triguna Nath, 17 C.W.N. 833 decided by Jenkins C.J. and Mullick, J.

The heirs of the last recorded tenant with respect to an occupancy holding are entitled to claim recognition from the landlord, and if the latter, ignoring them, brings a suit for arrears of rent and in execution thereof sell the holding, the right of the former is not affected. So where, upon the death of the last recorded tenant, none of his heirs had his name recorded in the landlord's office, but they held the land and went on paying the rent and obtained separate rent receipts for some years, until recently, when a rent suit was brought against two of them only, and the jumma was sold in execution of the decree, held that after having accepted rent from all the heirs the landlord had no right to ignore some of them and that the sale did not pass the entire jumma but only the right, title and interest of the judgment-debtors : Annada Kumar v. Hari Dass, 4 C.W.N. 608 : s. c., 27 Cal. 545.

Where a landlord brings a suit for rent against some of several heirs of a deceased tenant, the other heirs have a right to be added as parties : Baoli Bibi v. Hamijuddi, 12 C.L.J. 267.

The conflict of decisions on the point as to whether a suit for rent is maintainable against some of the heirs or successors in interest of a deceased tenant without bringing all the heirs or successors in interest on the record has been set at rest so far as the Calcutta High Court is concerned by the Full Bench decision in Jaganmohan Sarkar v. Brojendra Kumar Chakravarti, 53 Cal. 197, s.c. 29 C.W.N. 1000,* where it has been held that such a suit is maintainable but the decree in such a suit has the effect of a money decree.

See notes under s. 65.

6. Liability for rent even when heirs are not in possession : —The heirs of a raiyat who may have died intestate having rights of occupancy succeed to his holding and are bound to pay rent whether they hold the lands or not. The heirs of a deceased tenant, dying intestate, having rights of occupancy, are entitled to hold on until they have expressly, or in any manner from which a surrender may be presumed, as is stated in s. 86, relieved themselves from such liability, and that, unless they have surrendered or done something from which a surrender in the terms of s. 86 can be presumed they are liable for the rent. Non-cultivation of the land would not necessarily amount to a surrender: Peary Mohun v. Kumares Chunder, 19 Cal. 790.

7. Under raiyats with right of occupancy by custom:
Heritability :—The descendant of an under raiyat who acquired right of occupancy by custom, if he fails to prove heritability under a local custom, is a trespasser on the land and is liable to be ejected without any notice: Iswar Sant v. Torendra, 42 C.L.J. 560.

Apart from sec. 26 of the Bengal Tenancy Act which makes the occupancy right of a raiyat heritable, there is no right of heritability in regard to such a right. The occupancy right of an under-raiyat is thus not heritable by law but it is open to the under-raiyat to prove that by custom or usage the occupancy right is heritable: Sudhanya Kumar Das v. Saik Ismail, 29 C.W.N. 733 (Greaves and Cuming J.J.) (reversing the decision of B. B. Ghose J., on Letters Patent appeal). The right of occupancy acquired by an under-raiyat is a right acquired by custom or usage and not by statute, and before such right can be said to be heritable it must be proved by evidence in the usual way that by custom or usage heritability is an incident of such right—Per Greaves, J. Ibid. The right of occupancy is a right peculiar to a particular person and not to a particular parcel of land or holding. An occupancy right is a personal right and heritability of such a right is a creature of the statute created by sec. 26 and outside the statute there is no right of heritability on such a right: Per Cuming J.. Ibid.

Enhancement of rent.

Presumption as to fair and equitable rent.

Restriction on enhancement of money-rents.

Enhancement of rent by contract.

Enhancement of rent.

27. The rent for the time being payable by an occupancy-raiyat shall be presumed to be fair and equitable until the contrary is proved.

Notes :—The same presumption is to be made in settling a fair and equitable rent under s. 105; see cl. (4) of that section.

Assessment of rent :—See notes under s. 24.

28. Where an occupancy-raiyat pays his rent in money, his rent shall not be enhanced except as provided by this Act.

Notes :—As to what is money-rent, see notes under s. 40 and s. 48.

29. The money-rent of an occupancy-raiyat may be enhanced by contract, subject to the following conditions:—

(a) the contract must be in writing and registered;

(b) the rent must not be enhanced so as to exceed by more than two annas in the rupee the rent previously payable by the raiyat;

- (c) the rent fixed by the contract shall not be liable to enhancement during a term of fifteen years from the date of the contract:

Provided as follows :—

- (i) Nothing in clause (a) shall prevent a landlord from recovering rent at the rate at which it has been actually paid for a continuous period of not less than three years immediately preceding the period for which the rent is claimed.
- (ii) Nothing in clause (b) shall apply to a contract by which a raiyat binds himself to pay an enhanced rent in consideration of an improvement which has been or is to be effected in respect of the holding by, or at the expense of, his landlord, and to the benefit of which the raiyat is not otherwise entitled; but an enhanced rent fixed by such a contract shall be payable only when the improvement has been effected, and except when the raiyat is chargeable with default in respect of the improvement, only so long as the improvement exists and substantially produces its estimated effect in respect of the holding.
- (iii) When a raiyat has held his land at a specially low rate of rent in consideration of cultivating a particular crop for the convenience of the landlord, nothing in clause (b) shall prevent the raiyat from agreeing, in consideration of his being released from the obligation of cultivating that crop, to pay such rent as he may deem fair and equitable.

landlord.

1. Co-sharer landlord :—This section is quite as much applicable to contracts for enhancement of rent by co-sharer landlords as to those by sole landlords : Ramcharan v. Ekadasi, 10 C.L.J. 87.

Conversion of cash rent into rent in kind.

2. Conversion of cash rent into rent in kind :—Enhancement means an enhancement of the same kind : conversion of nakdi into bhaoli is not an enhancement within the meaning of this section : Hussan v. Nakchhedi, 33 Cal. 200.

Replying upon this case it was held that the conversion of cash rent into rent in kind cannot be regarded as enhancement within the meaning of s. 29 or s. 43 : Gobind Mandar v. Banarasi Prasad, 18 C.L.J. 74.

But it was held by Jenkins C.J. that this section applies even where a money rent is enhanced by the addition of a rent in kind : Kishori Mohan v. Shiak Uzir, 37 Cal. 610, s. c., 14 C.W.N. 693.

It has however been held in the case of Fazl Imam v. Sukor Mahlon, 19 C.L.J. 333 that s. 29 deals with the enhancement of money rent of an occupancy raiyat and not of rent in kind.

These cases were considered by D. Chatterjea and Beachcroft J.J. in the case of Brojobasi v. Ram Sankar, 23 C.L.J. 635 and it was held that s. 29 applies to a case where an occupancy raiyat held lands at a money rent of Rs. 3-4 ans. per annum, and then executed a kabuliyat by which he agreed to hold the same lands at a fixed produce rent of 12 Batuas of paddy or in lieu thereof, 12 rupees.

As to what is money rent. See notes under s. 48.

Alteration of rent for alteration
of area.

3. To what cases this section applies and to what cases it does not apply :—This section does not apply to alteration of rent for alteration of area. This section applies only to cases of increase in the rate of rent, which is ordinarily designated "enhancement of rent." This section has no application to increase in the rent by reason of increase in area which is not called "enhancement of rent" but is styled "alteration of rent" in this Act : Satish Chandra v. Kabiruddin, 26 Cal. 233.* See also Nilmadhab v. Kadam Mandal, 3 C.L.J. 74 (notes).

When the contract was to pay rental agreed upon by the parties in settlement of a dispute between them as to what had been in fact the rental of the land held by the tenant, held that this agreement is not within the provisions of this section at all : Sheo Sahoy v. Ram Rachia, 18 Cal. 333. This case was followed in the case of Nath Singh v. Damri Singh, 28 Cal. 90, where it was held that where the kabulyat is not a mere agreement to enhance the rent, but is an agreement to settle bona-fide disputes and differences, this section will not apply. But the fact that the tenant has been exonerated from certain liabilities under a previous contract cannot give validity to a stipulation to pay rent at an enhanced rate exceeding 2 ans. in the rupee : Probol Chandra v. Cherag Ali, 33 Cal. 607, s. c., 11 C.W.N. 62, s. c., 4 C.L.J. 320 ; the case of Sheo Sahoy v. Ram Rachia, 18 Cal. 333 and Nath Singh v. Damri Singh, 28 Cal. 90, were distinguished on the ground that those were cases where there was no certainty as to the initial rents and there were disputes as to the same.

The cases of Sheo Sahoy v. Ram Rachia, 18 Cal. 333 and Nath Singh v. Damri Singh, 28 Cal. 90 were considered in the case of Kedar Nath v. Manindra Chandra, 11 C.L.J. 106, and Mookerjee J., held (Teunon J., concurring) that the limitation as to enhancement of rent provided in s. 29 does not apply in the case of a contract by which the rent is adjusted or settled in a case of bona fide dispute whether as to the rate of rent or as to the area of the land comprised in the tenancy.

The case of Nath Singh v. Damri Singh, 28 Cal. 90 was followed in the case of Bata Mandal v. Manindra Chandra, 21 C.L.J. 325, s. c., 19 C.W.N. 321 (Mookerjee and Beachcroft J.J.) and it was held that s. 29 does not prevent an enhancement of rent by more than two annas in the rupee in settlement of a bona fide dispute and to avoid further litigation :

S. 29 has no application where the tenant is given a perpetual status at a fixed rate as the case comes within s. 179 of the Bengal Tenancy Act : Gur Sahai v. Keshwar, 1 Pat. L.J. 76 (Mullick J.).

S. 29 does not apply to a case where the landlord gives a mokurari interest in the land : Gur Sahai v. Keshwar Sahu, 1 Pat. L.J. 76 : 35 I.C. 437.

An agreement to pay future rent in contravention of s. 29 is void and not voidable if there was no existing dispute : Monindra v. Upendra, 36 Cal. 604, s.c., 9 C.L.J. 343 : when it is shown what the tenant defendant's previous rent was, it is for the plaintiff to justify the enhancement on the ground of increase in area : Ibid.

S. 91 of the Evidence Act does not preclude the landlord from proving improvements in consideration of which the enhanced rate was agreed upon, when the Kabulyat did not refer to any improvement : Probol Chandra v. Cherag Ali, 33 Cal. 607, s. c., 11 C.W.N. 62 : s. c., 4 C.L.J. 320.

When the section says that the money rent may be enhanced by contract in writing and registered it evidently means to refer to enhancement after the promulgation of the Bengal Tenancy Act ; a contract by which rent was enhanced before the passing of the Act does not fall within this section and therefore such a contract is no bar to an enhancement during the period of fifteen years from the date thereof, as contemplated by cl. (c) of this section ; Mothura Mohun v. Mati Sarkar, 25 Cal. 78.

lord agreed to pay one rupee in excess of the original rent which was Rs. 5, held, that the agreement was not in contravention of s. 29 of the Bengal Tenancy Act in as much as the holding not being transferable, the transferee was not a tenant and consequently no rent was payable by the transferee which was enhanced: Sarat-chandra v. Shyam Chand, 39 Cal. 663, s. c., 16 C.L.J. 71.

Non-transferable holding can be sold.

A non-transferable occupancy holding can be put to sale by an execution creditor even though he be not the landlord notwithstanding the objection of the tenant: Kenaram v. Kinu Mandal, 50 Cal. 508 (Chatterjea and Cuming J.J.); the cases of Chandra Benode v. Ala Bux, 48 Cal. 184; 24 C.W.N. 818 and Bhairam Ali v. Gopikant, 24 Cal. 355, s. c., 1 C.W.N. 396 and Dayamayi v. Ananda Mohan, 42 Cal. 172 were discussed.

See notes under s. 23.

Pasture land converted into arable land.

A claim for additional rent on the ground that defendant had converted pasture lands into arable lands and that by contract between the parties and by local custom such lands were liable to pay more rent than pasture lands is not one for enhanced rent under s. 29: Rameshwar v. Kanchan, 1 C.L.J. 78-n.

Prospective rent stipulated, is in violation of this section.

Where it was found at the date of the execution of the kabuliyat that the rent payable was Rs. 40-2 as. for a certain period and at the expiry of the same the tenant would pay a higher sum which was mentioned in the kabuliyat and it was found that the rent was Rs. 40-2 as. and the reference to the higher sum was only a devise, held in second appeal that the provision for the payment of the higher sum was in contravention of sec. 29: Mahamaya v. Kishori, 18 C.L.J. 502, s. c., 18 C.W.N. 738 (Jenkins C.J. and Mookerjee J.).

Stipulation for a higher rent after measurement is in violation of this section.

A clause in a lease that after measurement rent is to be paid at a certain rate—that is, nearly 50 per cent. in excess of former rent is clearly a violation of sec. 29: Ajuhannasa v. Hakim Biswas, 13 C. W. N. 202 (notes); consolidation of tenancies (jamās) and fact that a small quantity of land found in excess of the quantity rented originally were held not to be a sufficient ground as to justify to contravene the provision of sec. 29: Ibid.

Excess lands.

S. 29 has no application where the rent is assessed for excess lands as also for new lands, and one consolidated rent is assessed; this is an essence of a new holding: Rajkumar v. Faizuddi, 22 C. L.J. 81; as to whether a new holding is created is a question to be answered with reference to the circumstances of each particular case; where five bighas of new lands were added to the original seven bighas, and a consolidated rent was settled, held that a new holding was created: Ibid. Following the principle of this case it was held that s. 29 applies where the holding remains constant, and consequently it is not applicable where the original holding was split up; Nazir Payada v. Jyatendra Narain, 22 C.L.J. 88. These two cases were considered and distinguished in the case of Sonaulla v. Bhagabati Debya, 28 C.L.J. 144; in this case the area of the holding in the rent receipts was stated to be $7\frac{3}{4}$ bighas and the rent was Rs. 10-15 ans. and the parties were agreed to these facts; upon a fresh survey the area was $9\frac{1}{2}$ bighas, and the rent agreed to be paid by the tenant was Rs. 16-14 ans. held that the agreement contravened the provisions of s. 29; Walmsley J., observed as follows: Now, the landlord cannot point to any particular piece of land and say that the tenant agreed to pay him so much rent for this piece of land ; and for the purpose of considering s. 29 we must take the average rate per bigha throughout the whole area ;

In the case of the consolidation of two holdings s. 29 has no application if the effect of the consolidation is the creation of a new tenancy : Kristadhan Ghose v. Golam Mandal, 37 I.C. 862 ; (D. Chatterjea and Walmsley J.J.).

A mere division of a tenancy has not the effect of creating new tenancies : Nafar Chandra v. Rahaman, 34 I.C. 45.

If the total rent remains unaltered, its distribution, by agreement of parties over the different parcels of land, does not constitute enhancement within the meaning of the Bengal Tenancy Act : Rowshan v. Shyama Charan, 20 C.L.J. 331.

S. 29 applies only where the holding remains constant ; it does not apply where an occupancy raiyat agrees to pay a consolidated rent for the lands of the original holding as also lands which he has encroached upon : Garibulla v. Jnanada Sundari, 32 C.L.J. 134.

S. 29 does not apply where the status of occupancy raiyat is changed to that of a raiyat of fixed rent : Ram Pedarath v. Sohrai Kaer, [1920 Pat.] p. 114.

S. 29 does not apply to the case of a transferee of a non-transferable occupancy holding who takes a settlement at fixed rent : Ferasat Ali v. Priyambada, 69 I.C. 414.

A registered kabuliyat taking effect from a prior period is valid, if it complies with the other terms of S. 29 ; Hossein Jan v. Mirza Mahafedzuddin, 62 I.C. 619.

Where rent was enhanced without a registered document, held that the landlord was not entitled to get the enhanced rent unless rent was recovered, at that rate for three years immediately before the institution of the suit : Janaki Ballav v. Enat Mondal, 73 I.C. 136, (Mookerjee and Cuming J.J.).

A landlord is entitled to receive consideration for recognising the purchase of a non-transferable occupancy holding : Ibid.

A tenancy created by amalgamating additional land with an existing occupancy holding is not controlled by s. 29 of the Bengal Tenancy Act : Sasikant v. Genda Sheikh, 82 I.C. 970 (Chakravarti J.) ; the case of Garibulla v. Jnanada, 32 C.L.J. 134 relied on.

The plaintiff had an old tenancy in his possession and there was another tenancy with regard to which there was a dispute between the plaintiff and the defendant. The plaintiff executed a kabuliyat which was made up of two parts—one relating to the tenancy originally held and the other regarding which there was a dispute. According to the kabuliyat the rental of the portion of the new tenancy was increased. The suit was brought on the ground that the enhancement of rent of even a portion of the new tenancy was in violation of provision of s. 29, held that it is sufficient that it should appear that some further consideration has proceeded from the landlord to justify an addition to the original rent. A new contract was entered into between the parties for the original consideration, and the parties were free to enter into it on any terms they pleased. There was no violation of the provision of s. 29 : Sali Bewa v. Ajijuddin, 104 I.C. 196 ; s. c., 1927 A.I.R. (Cal.) 911. (Cuming and Cammiade J.J.).

A stipulation in a kabuliyat that the tenant should pay an enhanced rate of rent if he continues to remain in possession after the expiry of the term of the kabuliyat, is not in the nature of a penalty and does not, therefore, fall within the purview of s. 74 of the Contract Act.

The fact that the tenant had, during the term of the kabuliyat acquired occupancy rights under the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act, does not disentitle the landlord to enforce such a stipulation on the expiry of the term of the kabuliyat: Kuman Das v. Kachali Mandal, 105 I.C. 20, (Wort J.), Patna case.

Rent a
claim.

The consolidation of two separate holdings at specific and definite rentals does not create a new holding having no reference to the previous rentals, so as not to attract the operation of s. 29 of the Bengal Tenancy Act: Meyrick v. Dipa Pandey, 3 Pat. 825; s. c., 84 I.C. 361 (Dawson Miller C. J. and Mullick J.). A claim for rent is a recurring claim and it is open to the tenant at any time to take an objection on the ground that the claim contravenes the provisions of the law: Ibid.

S. 29 has no application to a case where a non-transferable occupancy holding is purchased by a person and the landlord recognises the purchaser as the purchaser's agreement to pay a rent which exceeds the previous rent by more than 2 annas in the rupee: Ferasat Ali v. Priambada Devi, 69 I.C. 414. The same principle has also been laid down in the case of Sarat Chandra v. Shyam Chand, 29 Cal. 663, s. c., 16 C.L.J. 71; s. c., 10 C.W.N. 930; but the rules laid down in these two cases seem to be against the principle laid down in the case of Abhai Sankar v. Rajani Mandal, 22 C.W.N. 904, s. c., 29 C.L.J. 371 which was a case under s. 50 of the Act. It was held in that case that s. 50 would apply where a non-transferable holding has been sold and the purchaser has been recognised as a tenant by the landlord. It is submitted that the view taken by Ghose J., in the case of Ferasat Ali v. Priambada Devi, 69 I.C. 414 and by Harrington and Mookerjee J.J., in the case of Sarat Chandra v. Shyam Chand, 29 Cal. 663 is the correct view and that the rule enunciated in the case of Abhai Sankar v. Rajani, 29 C.L.J. 371 does not lay a sound proposition of law.

It is submitted that where a non-transferable holding is sold the purchaser is in the position of a trespasser and the landlord is entitled to treat him as a trespasser and to eject him treating the land as his khas land the tenant having abandoned. The holding does not continue. If he recognises the transferee as a matter of favour or on receipt of a selami or on a higher rent it is a new settlement altogether and it is erroneous to suppose that the whole tenancy still continues in the hands of the transferee and it therefore follows that neither s. 29 nor s. 50 should apply to such a case. See in this connection the case of Dhirendra v. Ahmad Mia, 30 C.W.N. 765, (Chakravarti, J.).

acceptance of rent at lower rate.

4. Effect of realisation of rent at a reduced rate: rent kept in suspension:—The mere fact that the rent for some years has been received at a reduced rate does not bind the lessor to accept rent at that rate: Bajinath v. Raghunath, 16 C.W.N. 496; this case was followed in the case of Kailash Chandra v. Darbaria, 20 C.W.N. 347; in this case a certain rent was settled with a non-occupancy rayat out of which a portion was kept in suspension; the lease was for a certain term and it was agreed that after the expiry of the lease if the tenant occupied the land without a fresh settlement he would be liable to pay the full rent ; but after the expiry of the lease rent was realised at the reduced rate, held that the agreement did not contravene the provisions of s. 29 and that the landlord by accepting reduced rate was not deprived of his right to claim rent at the stipulated rate. See also Durga Prasad v. Rajendra Narayan, 41 Cal. 493, s. c., 18 C.W.N. 66 (P.C.) ; Manindra Chandra v. Durga Sundari, 20 C.W.N. 680. Evidence that since the execution of a kabuliyat the tenant paid rent at a lower rate than that stated in the kabuliyat is admissible to shew the intention of the parties that the kabuliyat was not intended to be acted upon or that there had been a waiver of the terms of the lease : Kailash Chandra v. Darbaria, 20 C.W.N. 346 ; see also Benimadhab v. Lalmoti Dasi, 6 C.W.N. 242 ; Manindra Chandra v. Durga Sundari, 20 C.W.N. 680 ; and Makbul Ali v. Jogesh Chandra, 21 C.W.N. 534. But see the case of Haldar Jha v. Syed Sha Mahammad, 22 C.L.J. 95 that a landlord after acceptance of a lower rent waived his right to demand a higher rent although the same was stipulated in the lease.

Sec. 29 does not prevent a landlord to recover the full amount of rent a portion of which was kept in suspension : Ramesh v. Golam Nabi, 19 C.W.N. 867. Where there is a stipulation for future rent it accrues automatically : Makbul Ali v. Jogesh Chandra, 21 C.W.N. 534, s. c., 25 C.L.J. 129. Rent kept in Suspension.

Where two sums were mentioned in a kabuliyat as rent, the larger sum to be payable at the time when the property will be settled again ; held that it should be judicially determined which of the two sums mentioned in the kabuliyat is the true rent ; "if it is found, as in the case of Mahamaya v. Kishore Chang, 18 C.W.N. 738, s. c., 18 C.L.J. 50 that the true rent is the smaller sum, then the larger sum cannot be recovered because it was merely put in the kabuliyat as an attempt to over-ride the provisions of s. 29 of the Bengal Tenancy Act" : Manindra Chandra v. Srinibash, 39 I.C. 1. (Fletcher and Richardson J.J.). Mention of two sums as rent.

Where a kabuliyat stipulated that after the expiry of the lease the tenant would have to pay the full rent reserved a portion of which was kept in suspense, held that it was a device to defeat the provisions of s. 29 : Prodyot Kumar v. Chundra Mohun, 44 I.C. 574. See also Prodyot Kumar v. Maharulla, 39 I.C. 497. A similar view was taken in the case of Satis Chandra v. Amanulla, 40 I.C. 113 ; (Fletcher and Richardson, JJ.). Fletcher, J. observed as follows :—It is a matter for comment that no day practically passes before the court, at any rate before this Bench, without leases of this sort being brought up in review ; there can be little doubt that these leases are put forward by the landlords with intent to evade the stringent provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act. (This case came from the Rangpur District). Where suspension of rent, a device to defeat s. 29.

It was observed by Richardson and Beachcroft, JJ., in the case of Prodyot Kumar v. Chundra Mohun, 44 I.C. 574 that in cases of this nature each case must depend on its own facts, and that it would be therefore better in all such cases for the lower courts to record an express finding one way or the other whether the agreement was a device to evade the statute. Each case must depend upon its own facts.

5. Onus :—The onus of proving that a kabuliyat contravenes the provisions of sec. 29 (b) is upon the tenant : Lachmi Pershad v. Onus.

Ekdeshwar, 13 C.W.N. 181. But when it is shewn what the previous rent was, the onus lies upon the landlord to justify enhancement claimed in contravention of the provisions of Sec. 29: Manindra v. Upendra, 9 C.L.J. 343.

Where the original rent fixed between the landlord and the tenant was enhanced by a registered agreement in the year 1894 by more than two annas in the rupee, held in a suit brought for recovery of rent in the year 1917, that the onus was upon the landlord to shew that the enhancement agreed upon was justified: Rajendra Narain v. Kalim, 49 Cal. 875, s. c., 26 C.W.N. 758 (Mookerjee and Cuming, J.J.); and although the rent had been subsequently settled under s. 105, the defendant was entitled to raise in defence that the rent was less and the provisions of s. 109 were no bar to the entertainment of the defence: Ibid.

The defence under s. 29 is to be pleaded at the earliest opportunity and it cannot be allowed to be pleaded for the first time in appeal: Kunja v. Rajkumar, 11 I.C. 940.

6. Clause (a):—A widow may sign a kabuliyat on behalf of her minor son stipulating to pay enhanced rent, and the son on attaining full age and entering on possession of the tenancy is bound by the kabuliyat: Watson & Co. v. Sham Lall, 15 Cal. 8.

Proviso (i) to this section applies to cl. (a): Bepin v. Krishnadhan, 32 Cal. 395.

7. Clause (b):—Enhancement by more than 2, as in the rupee :—A contract for enhancement of rent of an occupancy raiyat by more than 2 as. in the rupee in contravention of this clause is wholly void. It is not divisible and must be looked upon as a whole, so that a decree for enhanced rent up to the extent allowed by law cannot be given: Krishnadhan v. Brojo Gobinda, 24 Cal. 895, s. c., 1 C.W.N. 442; Mathura v. Mati, 25 Cal. 781; Provat v. Chiragali, 33 Cal. 607; Manindra v. Upendra, 9 C.L.J. 343; Nafar Chandra v. Rahaman, 34 I.C. 45.

Clause (b) has no retrospective effect and does not apply to a kabuliyat executed before the passing of this Act: Tejendra v. Bakai Singh, 22 Cal. 658.

Proviso (1) does not control cl. (b): Bepin Behari v. Krishnadhan, 32 Cal. 395 (F.B.); s. c., 9 C.W.N. 265; s. c., 1 C.L.J. 10. Proviso (1) applies only to cl. (a): Ibid. See notes under heading no. 3.

8. Proviso (i) : Proviso (i) controls merely cl. (a) and not cl. (b) of the section; therefore the fact that rent at the enhanced rate has been realised for three years is no answer to the defence that it has been illegally enhanced in contravention of s. 29: Bepin Behari v. Krishnadhan, 32 Cal. 395 (F.B.); the view taken in Mathura v. Mati Sarkar, 25 Cal. 781 so far as it decided this question was dissented from. See also Mullick Chand v. Satish Chandra, 11 C.L.J. 56; s. c., 14 C.W.N. 335; Asraf v. Sarada, 10 C.W.N. 104 (notes).

Proviso (i) does not control cl. (b) and continuous realisation of rent at an illegal rate is of no avail to the landlord when he seeks the assistance of the court: Nafar Chandra v. Rahaman, 23 C.L.J. 580.

An agreement for enhancement of rent by more than two annas in the rupee for improvement effected by the landlord can continue Enhancement by more than 2 as. in the rupee—whole contract void.

Proviso (i) controls merely cl. (a) and not cl. (b).

Improvement.

only so long as the improvement exists and substantially produces its estimated effect in respect of the holding: Ganes Dutt v. Lachmi Narain, 23 C.L.J. 209.

9. Proviso (ii) and Cl. (b):—Reading cl. (b) with the second proviso, it is evident that a landlord to entitle himself to recover more than the rate indicated in cl. (b) must establish the conditions set forth in the 2nd proviso that is to say, when the enhancement is on the ground of improvement it is incumbent on him to shew that the improvement has been effected, and that it exists and substantially produces its estimated effect in respect of the holding: (Per Jenkins C. J., Mookerjee J., concurring), Romanath v. Jote Kumar, 11 C.L.J. 1. Improvement.

10. Proviso (iii):—The word “specially” in clause (3) has no reference to the quantum of the reduction of rent allowed for the consideration there mentioned but merely requires that owing to special circumstances, viz., the agreement to cultivate a particular crop, the rent is lower than it otherwise would have been. The low rate should be proved to have been settled in consideration of cultivating a crop: W. M. Grant v. Eklal Jha, [1922 Pat.] p. 177, s. c., 67 I. C. 49. Meaning of
“specially.”

Proviso (3) means that one of the purposes of the tenancy is growing of a particular crop and in consideration of that the rent is not merely a low rent but a rent specially low on that account: Eklal Jha v. William Meling Grant, 64 I.C. 332.

An agreement to pay an enhanced rent in case the tenant raises a particular crop, is not protected by proviso (3) to sec. 29: Probat Chandra v. Chirag Ali, 33 Cal. 607; s. c., 9 C.W.N. 62; s. c., 4 C.L.J. 320.

11. S. 20 cl. (7): Presumption:—When a question arises as to whether an agreement for enhancement of rent is or is not void under s. 29, the presumption under s. 20 (7) is of no avail, as the presumption shews the tenant to be a raiyat at the date of the suit, whereas the question to be determined is whether he had a right of occupancy at the time of the agreement: Jahandar Baksh v. Ram Lall, 11 C.L.J. 364; s. c., 14 C.W.N. 470. Presumption under
s. 20 cl. (7).

12. Rent in contravention of s. 29: Enhancement suit:—In a suit for enhancement of rent of an occupancy raiyat, the rents of similar holdings fixed in contravention of sec. 29 ought to be excluded from consideration: Nobin Chandra v. Kulo Chandra, 37 Cal. 742; s. c., 14 C.W.N. 914.

13. Compromise of suits contravening the provisions of S. 29:—See notes under s. 147A.

S. 29 applies to an enhancement made in a compromise: Srikishun v. Sheobalak, (Patna case), 44 I.C. 638.

An enhancement by more than two annas in the rupee made in a compromise is not binding on the tenant in absence of any finding that the compromise was in settlement of a bona fide dispute: Beradar v. Raghunanda, [1920 Pat.] p. 9.

14. Holding Over:—The possession of a tenant holding over on the expiry of the term of his lease is wrongful, and in the absence of evidence from which a fresh tenancy can be inferred, time begins to run against the landlord from the expiry of the lease: Hari Gir v. Kamakhya Narayan, 3 Pat. 534, s. c., [1924 Pat.] p. 158. Holding over.

15. Sec. 105 proceeding : Applicability of sec. 29 :—Sec. 29 of the B. T. Act has no application to proceedings under sec. 105 : Matta Majhi v. Gopinath, 89 I.C. 951 ; s. c., 1926 A.I.R. (Cal.) 353 (Cumming and Chakravarti, J.J.).

Sec. 29, if applies to under-raiyat with right of occupancy by custom.

16. Under-raiyats with right of occupancy by custom: Applicability of sec. 29 :—It has been held in the case of Azizul Huq Chowdhury v. Kazimuddin Sarkar, 32 C.W.N. 68 (notes), per Mitter J., that s. 29 which applies to occupancy raiyats applies also to an under raiyat who has acquired a right of occupancy by custom. It is submitted with great respect that this decision has not laid down the correct view of the law. From the classification of tenants in sec. 4, and the scheme of the Act, it cannot be said that an under raiyat, when he acquires a right of occupancy by custom becomes an "occupancy raiyat," as defined in the Act. "Occupancy raiyats," as defined in sec. 4 are *raiya*ts having a right of occupancy and as such cannot include persons who are not *raiya*ts but are under-raiyats having a right of occupancy. It is therefore submitted that an "under-raiyat" having a right of occupancy by custom cannot acquire the status of an "occupancy raiyat" and he continues to be an under-raiyat, and his status of an "under-raiyat" is not changed to that of a "*raiya*t" merely because he acquires by custom only one of the incidents of occupancy raiyats, namely, a right of occupancy. Illustration (2) of sec. 183 of the Act speaks only of a custom or usage by which an under-raiyat can acquire a right of occupancy but it does not say that an under-raiyat can become an occupancy-raiyat by custom or usage. Such a custom or usage will be inconsistent with, and expressly abolished by, the provisions of the Act. By acquisition of a right of occupancy by custom an under-raiyat does not cease to be an under-raiyat but only gets the right of protection from ejectment and as such sec. 49 which is applicable to an under-raiyat does not apply in his case. In other respects he is to be governed by the provisions relating to under-raiyats, unless he can prove by custom or usage, as contemplated by s. 183 of the Act, that he has acquired any other right applicable to occupancy-raiyats. Sec. 48, therefore, should apply to such an under-raiyat, and not sec. 29, which applies only to occupancy raiyats. It appears therefore that ss. 26, 29, 30 and the other provisions of Chap. V, and secs. 65, 85 and all the other provisions which are applicable to occupancy raiyats should not apply in the case of under-raiyats with rights of occupancy by custom. If it is said, as has been observed in 32 C.W.N. 68 (notes), that the moment the under-raiyat acquires a right of occupancy by custom, he at once acquires all the rights of occupancy raiyats, then the Legislature would have included such under-raiyats within the definition of "occupancy raiyats." The effect of an under-raiyat acquiring a right of occupancy by custom appears to be only this, that he is entitled to remain in occupation during his life time or, in other words, he having acquired a right of occupancy, is protected from ejectment. It has been held that an occupancy right acquired by custom by an under-raiyat is not heritable by law and s. 26 of the Act applicable to occupancy raiyats does not apply to such an under-raiyat : Sudhanya Kumar v. Saik Ismail, 29 C.W.N. 733 (Greaves and Cumming J.J.) ; Iswar Sant v. Torendra, 42 C.L.J. 560 (Newbould and Graham J.J.).

Enhancement of rent by suit.

30. The landlord of a holding held at a money-rent by an occupancy-raiyat may, subject to the provisions of this Act, institute a suit to enhance the rent on one or more of the following grounds (namely):—

- (a) that the rate of rent paid by the raiyat is below the prevailing rate paid by occupancy raiyats for land of a similar description and with similar advantages in the same village or in neighbouring villages, and that there is no sufficient reason for his holding at so low a rate;
- (b) that there has been a rise in the average local prices of staple food-crops during the currency of the present rent;
- (c) that the productive powers of the land held by the raiyat have been increased by an improvement effected by, or at the expense of, the landlord during the currency of the present rent;
- (d) that the productive powers of the land held by the raiyat have been increased by fluvial action.

Explanation.—“Fluvial action” includes a change in the course of a river rendering irrigation from the river practicable when it was not previously practicable.

I. Amendment, Cl. (a) :—This clause was substituted for the original clause (a) by Bengal Act III of 1898, s. 2.

Cl. (a) as it originally stood was as follows:—"That the rate of rent paid by the raiyat is below the prevailing rate paid by occupancy raiyats for land of a similar description and with similar advantages in the same village, and that there is no sufficient reason for his holding at so low a rate."

Entry in the record of rights need not be set aside before bringing an enhancement suit.

2. Entry in the Record of Rights, if to be set aside by suit before bringing an enhancement suit:—It a tenant is entered in the record of rights as a raiyat at fixed rate, it is not necessary to sue for a declaration that the entry is wrong before instituting a suit for enhancement of rent: Brij Behari v. Sheo Sankar, 2 Pat. L.J. 124 (Mullick and Atkinson J.J.); an entry in a record of rights neither creates nor extinguishes rights: it is merely a rebuttable piece of evidence: Ibid.

Where no enhancement suit for long period—no waiver.

The entry in the record of rights, meant that the Appellants were merely occupancy raiyats not holding at fixed rates and that being so the mere fact that the landlords did not think fit to enhance the rent since that record was made cannot be deemed to raise a presumption of fixity of rent in favour of the Appellants: Mofizuddin v. Rajendra, 29 C.W.N. 209; s. c., 40 C.L.J. 248.

3. Money rent:—So 30 applies where rent is payable in money only and does not apply to a case where rent is paid partly in cash and partly in kind: Priyanath v. Tarini Charan, 24 C.L.J. 373. See notes under ss. 40 and 48.

Ordinarily where a holding consists of both nagdi and bhaoli lands the landlord cannot institute the suit under sec. 30 (b) for enhancement of the nagdi rent: Dipnarayan v. Bhim Mandal, 8 P.L.T. 564, s. c., 101 I.C. 511 (Adami and Scroope, J.J.).

If the same lands be held by a tenant on payment of rent, partly in cash and partly in kind, and there be no distinction as to the portions of the lands for which bhaoli or the nagdi rents are paid, the holding must be treated as a single holding, and s. 30 would not apply. From the fact that decrees for bhaoli and nagdi are usually executed as rent decrees, it does not necessarily follow that in each case a presumption will be raised that the nakdi and bhaoli lands formed a single holding. Where parties do not agree that each class of land forms a single holding, no presumption can be raised, and the Court has to decide the question upon the facts and circumstances of each case: Ram Kali v. Madan Mohan, 8 P.L.T. 224, s. c., 98 I.C. 995 (Ross and Kulwant Sahay, J.J.).

S. 78 of the Land Registration Act is no bar to an enhancement suit.

4. S. 78 of the Land Registration Act:—S. 78 of the Land Registration Act is no bar to a suit for enhancement of rent: Maugni-ram v. Sheo Charn, 1 C.W.N. 179 (notes); their Lordships O'Kinealy and Hill, J.J., observed as follows: This suit was for enhancement of rent and under s. 31 of the Act, an inquiry was made by the Revenue authorities. Another objection raised is that s. 78 of the Land Registration Act applies. When the person who has obtained this decree for enhancement attempts to compel the tenants to pay and is not registered, that objection can be taken. We think as at present advised, that s. 78 has no bearing upon this case.

One suit under ss. 30 and 52.

5. One suit under ss. 30 and 52 maintainable:—There is nothing in the law which prevents one suit being brought for enhancement under s. 30 and for increase of rent under s. 52; the two causes of action may be joined in one suit: Sarada v. Iswar

Samli, 11 C.W.N. 1154 ; See also Gudar Tewary v. Brij Nandan, 5 C.W.N. 880.

6. Landlord of a holding :—The term “holding” as used in this section means an entire holding ; an agreement by a tenant with one of several joint-landlords to pay his share of the rent separately does not constitute a separate tenancy under him ; so, where a co-sharer landlord sued for enhancement of rent on the basis of such an agreement, held that such a suit was not maintainable even when it contained a stipulation for such enhancement : Baidya Nath v. Sheikh Jhin, 2 C.W.N. 44 ; see also Hurry Charan v. Rajah Runjit, 25 Cal. 917, s. c., 1 C.W.N. 521 ; see also Haribole v. Tasimuddin, 2 C.W.N. 680, where it is held that this section does not apply to an enhancement of rent of the undivided share of lands comprising a holding, as it does not fall within the definition of a holding given in this Act. See also Haranandan v. Kesha Prasad, 2 Pat. L. J. 553 ; s. c., 40 I.C. 585 ; Abdulla v. Gagan Molla, 2 C.L.J. 10 ; Bahadur Ahmed Moulavi v. Sudharam, 30 C.W.N. 613.

Holding, meaning of —undivided share of land, if a holding.

Where A and B held a tenure jointly, and A let out his undivided share as a raiyati lease to B, held that a suit for enhancement under s. 30 at the instance of A was not maintainable in as much as A was not the landlord of a holding, an undivided share in the land not being a holding : Parbuty v. Mathura, 40 Cal. 29 ; s.c., 16 C.W.N. 877 ; s. c., 16 C.L.J. 9 ; the case of Jardine Skinner & Co. v. Sarat Sundari Debi, 3 C.L.R. 140 where the Privy Council held that an occupancy right could be acquired (under the old law), in an undivided share of land, and the case of Baidyanath v. Sudharam, 8 C.W.N. 751 where a similar view was taken, were distinguished on the ground that plaintiff in a suit for enhancement of rent under s. 30 must be the landlord of a holding within the meaning of the Bengal Tenancy Act.

Where the land held by a raiyat consisted of entire parcels of agricultural land and an undivided share of a parcel of homestead land, held that it was not a holding, and the landlord cannot therefore bring a suit for enhancement of rent : Binayak v. Sominuddi, 24 C.W.N. 1022.

It was observed by Richardson J., that there can be a raiyati interest in an undivided share or part of land : Banku Behari v. Benode Kumar, 13 C.W.N. cclxiv (264) ; see notes under s. 3 cl. (9) at pages 60, 61.

Observations of Richardson J.

Owners of an undivided share of an estate can treat the excess land in the occupation of the tenant of the estate as a separate holding in a rent suit : Pecha Mondal v. Bhairabendra, 91 I.C. 846.

7. Right of a Hindu widow to sue for enhancement :—A Hindu widow may sue for enhancement either in her capacity as guardian of her minor son or in her own capacity as the widow : Surja Kant v. Hemanta Kumari, 20 Cal. 498.

8. Prevailing rate :—Of a similar description and with similar advantages : “At what time? At the time the raiyat was let into possession, or at the time of suing for enhanced rent? The former view was taken in the case at 2 W.R. Act X 40 ; the latter view was taken in the cases at Marsh 379 ; 1 C.L.R. 549 ; and 7 W.R. 97.” —Fields Digest of the Law of Landlord and Tenant, p. 40, note.

some definite meaning attached to it. It means the rate generally prevalent or the rate paid by the majority of the raiyats in the neighbourhood. Now the evidence of 20 raiyats, (for that is the number referred to in the present case), simply shewing that they paid their rents at the rate of 3 rupees per bigha, does not go to prove the prevailing rate or the rate paid by the majority of the raiyats. I do not mean to say that all the raiyats in the neighbourhood are to be examined, and then the rate paid by the majority of them is to be found out. But I do mean to say that the evidence given must purport to shew the rate paid by the majority, otherwise it cannot be said that the prevailing rate has been established." Shadhas Singh v. Ramanoograha, 9 W.R. 83.

In Priag Lall v. G. G. Brockman, 13 W.R. 346 the evidence of the Patwari, corroborated by Jummah-bundees was considered sufficient to shew that the requirements of the law had been fulfilled in such a manner as to entitle the plaintiff to obtain a decree for enhancement at the prevailing rate. "If a distinctly prevailing rate can be found (in this case I understand that it cannot) of course that must be adopted; if such rate cannot be found, and if, as in this case, the Court comes to the conclusion that the currency of the different rates is so nearly equal as to make it impossible to say which is the prevailing rate, the Court is not in error in taking an average, in other words, although as a general rule it is wrong to proceed by striking an average, yet under special circumstances it may be the only and therefore the proper course to adopt." (Per Ainslie, J.), Shaikh Dena Gazee v. Mohinee Mohun, 21 W.R. 157.

To determine what the prevailing rate is, a Court would be wrong if it arrives at its conclusion by the mode of striking an average on the rate of rent proved before it: Audh Biharee v. Dost Mahomed, 22 W.R. 185; see also Sumura Khatoon v. Gopal Lall, 1 W.R. 58. A Court must find specifically whether the rate claimed by plaintiff is actually paid by the neighbouring raiyats of the same class for similar lands, or what rate is so paid and decide accordingly; Pelaram v. Nund Coomar, 6 W.R. Act X, 45. But where it is found that there is no one prevailing rate and that the raiyat holding land in the village of similar description and with similar advantages, pay rent at varying rates, the lowest rate may be taken and the rent of tenant may be enhanced up to that limit: Aleph Khan v. Raghunath, 1 C.W.N. 310. The rate paid by the largest number of tenants was accepted as the prevailing rent, see 1 C.W.N. clxxxix.

Where there is no prevailing rate the landlord is not entitled to get an enhancement under cl. (a); the average rate of rent of neighbouring villages is not the prevailing rate within the meaning of cl. (a): Ram Deo v. Babu Moheswar, 21 C.L.J. 483; the artificial meaning of the expression "prevailing rate" in s. 31A cannot be applied to a case in a district where that section has not been extended; where the great majority of the raiyats in the neighbouring villages paid rent at a certain rate, held that that rate was not the prevailing rate: Ibid.

The rate actually paid and current in the villages has always been taken to mean the "prevailing" and not the "average" rate. "In the new act the words 'prevailing' and 'average' are used in different senses in different sections. In s. 30, for instance, reference is made to the 'prevailing rate'; in section 32, reference is made to "average prices" not "prevailing prices"; in section 40, sub-sec. 4, clause (a) the terms "average money rent," and in clause (b) the "average value of the rent" are mentioned as distinct from "prevailing rate." We think, therefore, that the words "prevailing" in this case are used in the same sense and in which they are used in the earlier cases under Act X of 1859:" (Per O'kinealy and Hill, J.J.), Shital Mandal v. Prossunno Moyi, 21 Cal. 986.

Lowest rate: The adoption of the lowest rate as the prevailing rate, if the landlord does not object, cannot be challenged by the tenant: Lalit Kaer v. Hitnarain, 15 C.W.N. 56 (notes). Lowest rate.

In determining the prevailing rate of rent, rent settled in contravention of sec. 29 cannot be taken into consideration: Nobin Chandra v. Kulo Chandra, 37 Cal. 742, s. c., 14 C.W.N. 914.

See notes under s. 31A.

9. Cl. (b) :—

Price lists:—There are separate prices for upland and low-land in several places, consequently it has been held that in a suit for enhancement of rent for the rise of prices of staple food crops, it is not permissible to assess the enhancement of one kind of land by comparing the average prices of both up-land and low-land staple crops together; if it is up-land the prices of the up-land crops must be considered and if it is low-land the prices of the low-land are to be considered: Sajiwan v. Gulab Chand, 1 Pat. L.J. 409. Separate prices of upland and lowland staple food crops.

Price lists must be referred to even if parties do not produce the same: In a suit for enhancement of rent it is the duty of the Court to refer to the price lists prepared under sec. 39 whether the parties to the suit produce these or not: Nobin Chandra v. Kulo Chandra, 37 Cal. 742, s. c., 14 C.W.N. 914. See also Harihar v. Sarat Chandra, 91 I.C. 734.

In order to enable a landlord to claim an increased rent under the provisions of s. 30 cl. (b) it is not necessary to prove what was the value of the staple food crops at the date of the inception of the tenancy, Bhudhar v. Nandalal, 40 I.C. 682.

Where there is a house on a portion of the land the enhancement should be limited to the land only: Jeonath Jha v. Bishambar Das, 8 P.L.T. 495.

Where the lease recited that the tenant held for over 12 years at a fixed rent and the rent was increased for some excess area discovered and contained a stipulation for similar increase only in cases of further excess land, held upon a construction of the lease that a tenancy in perpetuity at a fixed rate of rent had been created and that the rent could not be enhanced under sec 30 of the B. T. Act: Suryyakumar v. Ratan Choura, 31 C.W.N. 450 (Per Mukerji J.). Stipulation for increase of rent for excess area: construction of lease.

A stipulation in a pattah to the effect that in case of any additional area being discovered in the tenants' possession, rent would have to be paid therefor at the rate fixed in the pattah, is not by itself conclusive proof of the rent being one fixed in perpetuity, although it will be an important factor in the determination of the question: Ibid. The cases of Amarnath v. Raja Krishnadas Laha, 35 C.L.J. 138 and Golam Rahaman v. Gurudas, 38 C.L.J. 350, were distinguished and the cases of Surju Prasad Sukul v. The Midnapore Zemindary Co., Ltd., 38 C.L.J. 369 and Bhairab Chandra Das v. The Midnapore Zamindary Co., Ltd., 38 C.L.J. 372, were referred to.¹⁰

The tenants' description of themselves in the compromise deed as persons "in the position of raiyats" was merely a recital of a part of the allegations on which the ejectment suit had been founded and in no way an admission ; even if it was one, it could not operate as an estoppel under circumstances where it was neither contractual nor essential for the purposes of the instrument: Ibid.

10. Cl. (c) :—In assessing the enhanced rent under cl. (c), the enhancement should include a sum in addition to the interest payable upon the capital spent in as much as the landlord should be allowed a fair interest on the capital invested for the purpose of the improvement, otherwise his capital would be lost to him after the lapse of a few years: Ganes v. Lachmi, 23 C.L.J. 209 at p. 213 ; where a tenant agreed to pay a particular sum as enhanced rent in consideration of the improvement, held that that may be taken, prima facie, as his own estimate of what would be a fair rent under cl. (c) and the Court might well adopt this as the basis of the decree, till, at any rate, the tenants shewed that his estimate was erroneous: Ibid.

Where in a jungleboori lease a progressive rent was provided for and the interest of the tenant was not expressly made heritable or perpetual and the lease did not expressly exclude enhancement on any ground but expressly provided for increase of rent on the ground of the increase in the productiveness of the soil effected at the expense of the land-lord* and the lower Courts found that the interest created by the lease was not a tenure, held by Rampini, J., that the case came within s. 30, cl. (c), but Mitra, J., held that the case was not governed by this section and that the question which the lower Court should decide was as to whether the holding was transferable and in case it was so that suit should be dismissed, otherwise should be decreed: Rajkumar v. Naya Chotoo, 31 Cal. 960.

All the joint landlords must sue together.

Suit by a co-shebait.

II. S. 188 :—A suit for enhancement of rent is not properly framed when all the landlords are not joined as plaintiffs: it is not sufficient for one or some of joint landlords to sue as plaintiff or plaintiffs and make those who refuse to join with him or them defendants in the suit: Jatindranath v. Prasanna Kumar, 38 Cal. 702 (P.C.) ; s. c., 13 C.L.J. 51.

Where one of two joint shebait brought a suit for enhancement of rent and the other shebait who was made a defendant stated in the written statement that he had no longer any interest and had no objection to the enhancement, held that s. 188 was a bar to the suit: Abdul Gafar Mandal v. Umakanta Pandit, 19 C.W.N. 260 ; see notes under s. 188.

S. 188 is a bar to a suit for enhancement under sec. 30 by a co-shebait: Abdul Gafur v. Umakanta, 24 I.C. 260. The right of suit is vested in the shebait and not in the idol: Ibid. See also Mabatulla v. Nalini Sundari, 10 C.W.N. 42, s. c., 2 C.L.J. 577.

Power of arbitrator to settle fair rate.

12. Reference to arbitration :—In a suit for enhancement of rent under s. 30 the case was referred to arbitration on the application of the parties and the arbitrator settled a fair and equitable rate: held that the arbitrator had jurisdiction to do so inasmuch as the parties declared that they would be bound by what the arbitrator would decide ; Ganga Charan Roy v. Sasti Mandal, 6 C.W.N. 614.

13. Suit for ejectment or fair rent :—On the expiry of a lease granted to a non-occupancy raiyat where the landlord brought a suit for khas possession or in the alternative for fair and equitable rent, held that for the period the raiyat was a non-occupancy raiyat the landlord was entitled to the rent provided for in the lease, and thereafter the raiyat having acquired a right of occupancy, the landlord could proceed under Chap. V, and was not entitled to get any enhancement in the suit which had been brought : Dayal Kundu v. Malku Patak, 5 Pat. L.J. 406 (Dawson Miller, C. J. and Mullick, J.).

Frame of the suit.

14. Suit for enhancement not a bar to a suit for khas possession :—Where a person who purchased a tenure free from incumbrances under Act VIII, B. C. of 1865, obtained an ex parte decree for rent against a tenant and on bringing subsequently a suit for enhancement was met by the plea of the tenancy being mokurari, held that a suit for khas possession was not barred : Arsali Sadagar v. Ram Satya Bhakhat, 7 C.L.J. 191.

Suit for enhancement not a bar to ejectment suit.

15. Suit for both enhancement and arrears of rent :—A suit for both enhancement and arrears of rent is maintainable ; the cause of action although separate may be joined under s. 45, C.P.C. : Gudar Tewari v. Brijandan, 5 C.W.N. 880.

Suit for both rent and enhancement of rents.

16. Back-rent :—When the plaintiff did not frame his suit as one for enhancement of rent, but claimed arrears of rent at enhanced rate, held that he was not entitled to a decree till rent was enhanced in a suit appropriately framed for the purpose ; it is well-settled that a landlord can claim back rent for additional area, but not back rent at enhanced rate : Ejel Mullick v. Felai Mullick, 21 C.L.J. 300.

Suit for back rent.

17. Effect of subletting by a raiyat :—The fact that an occupancy raiyat has sublet his land is no ground why his rent should not be enhanced : Basiraddin v. Jogendra Mohan, 64 I.C. 182. (Walmsley, J.).

Enhancement even when raiyat has sublet.

18. Where holding comprises a tank or homestead or Patit lands :—It often happens that there is a homestead or tank in a raiyati holding. As a matter of fact a raiyat is entitled to erect a suitable dwelling house or excavate a tank on a part of the holding (see sec. 76) ; in such a case the entire holding is not used for actual agricultural purposes, but the homestead and the tank are really incidental to purposes of agriculture ; for, Sec. 76 provides that the erection of a suitable dwelling house is intended for the raiyat and his family, and the excavation of a tank is for the use of men and cattle employed in agriculture ; and these, namely, the dwelling house and the tank are according to sub-sec. (1) of Sec. 76 consistent with the purpose for which the land was let and they are improvements within the meaning of Sec. 76 and the raiyat is entitled to compensation for these improvements if he is ejected (See Sec. 82). It therefore stands to reason that under Sec. 30 of the Bengal Tenancy Act the landlord is entitled to recover enhancement of rents upon all the grounds mentioned in Sec. 30 for all the lands comprised in the holding inclusive of such portion which is not used for actual agricultural purposes. The right to enhancement should not be limited only to a particular ground of Sec. 30 but the enhancement may be claimed upon all the grounds. It is true that grounds (c) and (d) of Sec. 30 refer to enhancement of rent on an increase of the productive power of the land ; but that is no reason why land not used for actual agriculture should be exempted from enhancement ; for it is easy to determine whether such land if put to cultivation would yield an increase of produce.

Holding comprising non-agricultural land.

Where letting out originally for agriculture.

Case-law.

It is reasonable to think that the above remarks should apply to the case of a holding originally let out for agricultural purposes although subsequently used entirely for non-agricultural purposes, since subsequent uses does not alter the status of the tenant.

In a case where a raiyati-holding consisted of a tank and homestead and the lower courts refused the landlord to grant enhancement under cl. (b) of Sec. 30 holding on the ground that the land was not being used for agricultural purposes, the High Court held that the landlord was entitled to enhance the rent : Reesheekesh v. Chintamani, 27 C.W.N. 962, s. c., 36 C.L.J. 305. (Cuming and Panton, J.J.).

Remarks of Panton J.

In this case Panton, J. makes a distinction between clause (b) and the clauses which follow namely (c) and (d) on the ground that in the two clauses (c) and (d) reference is made to the productive power of the land.

It is submitted with great respect that there should not be any distinction at all in as much as the actual user by the tenant of land for non-agricultural purposes does not prevent the Court from determining the question of fact whether the productive powers of the land have increased.

The rent of homestead land held by an occupancy raiyat is liable to enhancement under s. 30 (b) : Reshee Case v. Trailokya, A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 399 (Suhrawardy and Chotzner, JJ.).

Homestead or patit. lands yielding no crop—no ground of disallowing enhancement.

Decree for Enhancement under s. 105 binding upon all contesting defendants although one died before decree.

Limitation.

The fact that a certain holding consists of homesteads or patit lands which yield no crop is no ground for disallowing enhancement of the rent of the tenancy : Ibid.

19. Sec. 105 :—Rent may be enhanced under this section in a proceeding under sec. 105 : Sukraj v. Lal Bahadur, 29 C.L.J. 253.

Where rent was enhanced in a proceeding under s. 105 during the pendency of which proceeding one of the tenants died and the other tenants who all contested the suit although aware of the death did not bring it into the notice of the court although they contested upon other grounds, held that the decree was binding upon the other tenants : Kartik Chandra v. Jitendra Nath, 28 C.W.N. 188 (notes) : (Suhrawardy and Chakravarty, J.J.).

See notes under s. 50 (2) and s. 103B. :

20. Limitation :—A claim to enhanced rent is a recurring cause of action and limitation runs from the date of refusal : art. 131 of Sch. I of the Limitation Act is applicable to such a suit : Brij Behari v. Sheo Sankar, 2 Pat. L.J. 124 ; (Mullick and Atkinson, J.J.). See notes under s. 52, under heading : Limitation.

Rules as to enhancement on ground of prevailing rate.

31. Where an enhancement is claimed on the ground that the rate of rent paid is below the prevailing rate—

(a) in determining what is the prevailing rate the Court shall have regard to the rates generally paid during a period of not less than three years before the institution of the suit, and shall not decree an enhancement unless there is a substantial difference between the rate paid by the raiyat and the prevailing rate found by the Court;

- (b) if in the opinion of the Court the prevailing rate of rent cannot be satisfactorily ascertained without a local inquiry, the Court may direct that a local inquiry be held under Chapter XXV of the Code of Civil Procedure by such Revenue-officer as the Local Government may authorize in that behalf by rules made under section 392 of the said Code; ^{XIV of 1882.}
- (c) in determining under this section the rate of rent payable by a raiyat, his caste shall not be taken into consideration, unless it is proved that by local custom caste is taken into account in determining the rate; and, whenever it is found that by local custom any description of raiyats hold land at favourable rates of rent, the rate shall be determined in accordance with that custom;
- (d) in ascertaining the prevailing rate of rent the amount of any enhancement authorised on account of a landlord's improvement shall not be taken into consideration;
- (e) if a favourable rate has been determined under clause (c) for any description of raiyats, such rate may, if the Court thinks fit, be left out of consideration in ascertaining the prevailing rate;
- (f) if the holding is held at a lump rental, the determination of the rent to be paid may be made by ascertaining the different classes of land comprised within the holding, and applying to the area of each class the prevailing rate paid on that class within the village or neighbouring villages.

Instructions of Board of Revenue regarding local enquiries.

As to instructions of the Board of Revenue regarding local enquiries, see Board of Revenue's Circular No. 4 of August 1894, and Circular No. 7 of April 1899 :

Extract from Circular No. 4 of August 1894.

* * No cost should be incurred to meet the charges of the local enquiry beyond that actually allowed by the Court issuing the commission, under rule 30 (b) at page 41 of the High Court's General Rules and Circular Orders as revised in 1891. If the probable costs were calculated with regard to the time likely to be occupied in the execution of the commission, and the Commissioner finds that the time fixed is insufficient he should give timely notice to the party at whose instance the commission was issued and report the fact to the Court. Then, unless the sum necessary to cover the expenses for such further period as may be required to complete the execution of the commission is deposited in Court by the party and the commissioner certified of such deposit, he should suspend the investigation at the close of the period originally fixed, pending the further instructions of the Court.

The expenses of the Commission will generally fall under the following heads :

- (1) Remuneration of the Commissioner.
- (2) His travelling and halting allowances.
- (3) Charges for the temporary subordinate establishment that may be employed.
- (4) Incidental charges that may be unavoidable.

The first will be calculated on the basis of the actual pay which the person to whom the commission is issued has been receiving. The second will be regulated by the scale prescribed for officers of Government of the class to which the Commissioner belongs, unless the Court should, for exceptional reasons, order an allowance in excess of the above. The third and the fourth will be passed on authority of the Revenue officer concerned, but must on no account assume proportions so as to exceed, in conjunction with the charges under heads (1) and (2), the sum actually allowed by the Court.

Extracts from Circular No. 7 of 1899 :

"The words 'from time to time', in notification, above quoted" (i.e. the Government notification) "give the Collector the option of changing his nomination, if in case of sickness, transfer, urgent press of work, or other valid reason, his original nominee cannot make the enquiry."

3. Duty of Civil Court in ordering local investigation : Commissioner's duty should be laid down by the Court.
 A revenue officer can hardly be expected to know the requirements of the Civil Court in respect of enquiries to be made under this section, so it is right and proper that a civil court, in directing a local investigation, should indicate to the officer holding the investigation what it is that the court precisely requires. Nobin Chandra v. Kulo Chandra, 37 Cal. 742, s.c., 14 C.W.N. 914: "If the court is satisfied that all the rent in the village should be excluded from consideration, because it is fixed in a mode which contravenes the provisions of Sec. 29 of B. T. Act, then an enquiry should be directed which will bring to light the prevailing rate of rent paid by occupancy raiyats for land of a similar description and with similar advantages in neighbouring villages." Ibid.

The Commissioner's duty as laid down in the case of Brij Behari v. Sheo Sankar, 2 Pat. L.J. 124; Mullick and Atkinson, JJ., is as follows:—

1. To ascertain what is the prevailing rent namely, the rent paid by the majority of the tenants for lands of similar description with similar advantages in the village, as explained by Mitter, J. in Sadhas Singh v. Ramanoograha, 9 W.R. 83.

2. If by reason of the application of s. 29 Bengal Tenancy Act or the absence of any prevailing rate within the village in which the holdings in suit lie the rates in the village cannot serve as a guide, then to ascertain what is the prevailing rate in the neighbouring village or villages.

3. If no one prevailing rate can be found in any village then to ascertain what is the lowest rate paid by lands of similar description with similar advantages.

4. To ascertain what would be the prevailing rate if s. 31 (A) of the Bengal Tenancy Act had applied to the lands in suit.

4. Lowest rate :—The adoption of the lowest rate as the prevailing rate, if the landlord does not object, cannot be challenged by the tenants: Lalit Koer v. Hitnarain, 15 C.W.N. 1vi (56 notes). Lowest rate.

5. Report of Revenue Officer :—Where in a suit for enhancement of rent under sec. 30 (a) of this Act, the Court is not satisfied with the report of the Revenue officer under sec. 31 (b) it should direct a further enquiry setting out what further materials are wanted to come to a proper decision: Pranesh v. Banawarilal, 86 I.C. 533 (Mukerji, J.).

31A. (1) In any district or part of a district to which this sub-section is extended by the Local Government by notification in the Calcutta Gazette, whenever the prevailing rate for any class of land is to be ascertained under section 30, clause (a), by an examination of the rates at which lands of a similar description and with similar advantages are held within any village or villages, the highest of such rates at which and at rates higher than which the larger portion of those lands is held may be taken to be the prevailing rate. What may be taken in certain districts to be the "prevailing rate."

Illustrations.

(a) The rates at which land of a similar description and with similar advantages is held in a village are as follows :—

Bighas.						Rs.	A.	P.
200	...	...	...	...	@	1	8	0
150	...	...	...	...	@	1	12	0

Then Rs. 2-4 is not the prevailing rate, because only 150 bighas, or less than half, are held at that rate. Rs. 2 is not the prevailing rate, because 250 bighas, or less than half, are held at that or a higher rate. Re. 1-12 is the prevailing rate, because 400 bighas, or more than half, are held either at this or a higher rate, and this is the highest rate at which, and at rates higher than which, more than half the land is held.

(b) The rates at which land of a similar description and with similar advantages is held in a village are as follows :—

Bighas.						Rs.	A.	P.
250	...	...	...	...	@	1	4	0
150	...	...	...	...	@	1	8	0
150	...	...	...	...	@	1	12	0

Then, for the reasons given in Illustration (a), neither Rs. 2 nor Re. 1-12 is the prevailing rate, nor is Re. 1-8 the prevailing rate, because only 350 bighas (exactly half) are held at Re. 1-8 or at rates higher than Re. 1-8. In this case Re. 1-4 is the prevailing rate, because more than half the lands are held at Re. 1-4 or higher rates, and this is the highest rate at which, and at rates higher than which, more than half the land is held.

(2) The Local Government may, by a like notification, withdraw sub-section (1) from any district or part of a district to which it has been extended as aforesaid.

Amendment :—This section was inserted by Bengal Act III of 1898, s. 4.

Extension :—The provisions of sub-sec. (1) have been extended to the District of Tipperah : see Calcutta Gazette, September 5, 1900, Pt. 1, p. 970, Notification No. 1470 T. R., dated the 1st September, 1900. This sub-section has also been extended to the Govt. estate of Taufir Barhiea in the District of Monghyr being Towji No. 1309 in the District of Monghyr; (see Calcutta Gazette, 1904, Part I, p. 317). As to the Districts or areas where this section has been extended. See Appendix, Important Notifications of the Bengal Government.

Non-applicability of this section to a district where the section has not been extended :—The artificial meaning of the expression "prevailing rate" given by this section cannot be applied to a case in a district where this section has not been extended : Ram Deo v. Babu Moheshwar, 21 C.L.J. 483.

31B. When the prevailing rate has once been determined by a Revenue-officer under Chapter X or by a Civil Court in any suit under this Act, it shall not be liable to enhancement save on the ground and to the extent specified in section 30, clause (b), and section 32.

Limit to enhancement of prevailing rate.

Amendment :—This section was inserted by Act III, B. C. of 1898), sec. 4. See notes under s. 31A.

Prevailing Rent :—By using the expression "prevailing rent" "determined by a Revenue Officer under Chap. X in s. 31B, it was intended to refer to the table of rates prepared by the Revenue Officer under Part II. of Chap. X : Ramjiram v. Ramkumar, [1924 Pat.] p. 345, (Dawson Miller C. J. and Kulwant Sahay, J.J.). The prevailing rate of rent in any particular local area is a question of fact and must depend upon the actual rents existing in that area : Ibid. The prevailing rate increases or decreases according to existing circumstances : Ibid.

Table of rates prepared under Chap. X, Part II. Prevailing rate—question of fact. S 30.

The expression "prevailing rate" as used in S. 31B has the same meaning as the expression when used in s. 30 : Ibid.

32. Where an enhancement is claimed on the ground of a rise in prices—

Rules as to enhancement on ground of rise in prices.

(a) the Court shall compare the average prices during the decennial period immediately preceding the institution of the suit with the average prices during such other decennial period as it may appear equitable and practicable to take for comparison;

(b) the enhanced rent shall bear to the previous rent the same proportion as the average prices during the last decennial period bear to the average prices during the previous decennial period taken for purposes of comparison : provided that, in calculating this proportion, the average prices during the later period shall be reduced by one third of their excess over the average prices during the earlier period;

(c) if in the opinion of the Court it is not practicable to take the decennial periods prescribed in clause (a), the Court may, in its discretion, substitute any shorter periods therefor.

Price lists must be referred to.

Price-lists must be referred to :—It is an error of law if a court omits to refer to the price lists ; Nobin Chandra v. Kula Chandra, 37 Cal. 742, s.c., 14 C.W.N. 914. In a suit for enhancement of rent on the ground of rise of prices of staple food crops the lower courts relied on the price-lists appearing in a previous (second) edition of this work. In the High Court it was argued that the lower courts ought to have referred to the price-lists as published in the Gazette and therefore the provisions of section 39 had not been complied with and the price-lists as published in this work ought not to have been referred to ; Holmwood, J. (Chapman, J. concurring) overruled the contention and observed that "implicit reliance can be placed" upon the price-lists compiled in this work as referred to above : Alimuddin v. Rupendra, 19 C.W.N. cxl. (140 notes).

Price lists to be found at the end of this book may be relied on.

The two decennial periods must not even partially coincide.

Decennial periods :—The decennial periods taken as the basis of comparison under clause (a) must be entirely distinct and must not partially coincide : Annada Prashad v. Nibarani Dassi, 11 C.L.J. 380. Mookerjee J. (Teunon, J. concurring) observed as follows :—In the present case, the suit was commenced in 1907 : the decennial period immediately preceding the suit therefore covers the period 1887 to 1896. But the learned District Judge appears to have compared the prices during the decennial period 1897 to 1906 with those during the period 1888 to 1897, on the ground that the tenancy was created in 1897. In the view we take of the true scope of sec. 32, this was not permissible.

Mode of calculation in suit for enhancement of rent for rise of prices on staple food crops :—See Appendix XII (after the Price Lists).

Rules as to enhancement on ground of landlord's improvement.

33. (1) Where an enhancement is claimed on the ground of a landlord's improvement—

- (a) the Court shall not grant an enhancement unless the improvement has been registered in accordance with this Act;
- (b) in determining the amount of enhancement the Court shall have regard to—
 - (i) the increase in the productive power of the land caused or likely to be caused by the improvement,
 - (ii) the cost of the improvement,
 - (iii) the cost of the cultivation required utilizing the improvement, and
 - (iv) the existing rent and the ability of land to bear a higher rent.

(2) A decree under this section shall, on application of the tenant or his successor in interest, be subject to re-consideration in the event of the improvement not producing or ceasing to produce estimated effect.

Note :—In order to make out a case for enhancement on ground of improvement it is necessary to comply strictly with the provisions of s. 33 : Gursahai v. Keshwar Sahu, 1 Pat.L.J. 76.

The landlord must shew that the improvement has been effected and it exists and substantially produces its estimated effect in respect of the holding. Ramanath v. Jotekumar, 11 C.L.J. 1. As to "improvements"—See Secs. 76 to 83, and Sec. 29.

34. Where an enhancement is claimed on the ground of an increase in productive powers due to fluvial action—

(a) the Court shall not take into account any increase which is merely temporary or casual;

(b) the Court may enhance the rent to such an amount as it may deem fair and equitable, but not so as to give the landlord more than one-half of the value of the net increase in the produce of the land.

35. Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing sections, the Court shall not in any case decree any enhancement which is under the circumstances of the case unfair or inequitable.

I. Periodical floods:—The effect of s. 35 is not that a Court is bound to allow enhancement of rent even though it finds that the lands are periodically flooded by water and that the rents are already too high: Ishan Chandra v. Ram Prasad, 65 I.C. 656, (Sanderson, C.J. and Richardson, J.). A Court in a proceeding under s. 105 in enhancing rent should take into consideration all the facts of the particular case.

2. Position of the land near a River:—S. 35 relates to the amount of assessment and does not refer to the grounds upon which a court has to determine whether enhancement should be allowed or not: Gurucharan v. Sarab Ali, 23 C.W.N. 1041, (N. R. Chatterjea and Duval, J.J.). In this case the lower appellate court held that the plaintiff was not entitled equitably to enhancement of rent. The High Court observed as follows: "The only ground upon which the learned Subordinate Judge so held is the position of the land by the side of a river and there being no crops grown on it. We do not think that that is what is contemplated by s. 35 of the Bengal Tenancy Act."

Note:—Where there is an unlawful exercise of discretion under this section, the High Court cannot interfere in revision: Janki Koer v. Kukur Dusadh, 1918 Pat. 347, (Roe and Jwala Prasad, J.J.).

As to whether the landlord's neglect of gilandari works dis-entitles him from claiming enhancement—See Bibi Sayedatunnissa v. Amrit Mahto, 100 I.C. 754.

36. If the Court passing a decree for enhancement considers that the immediate enforcement of the decree in its full extent will be attended with hardship to the raiyat, it may direct that the enhancement shall be gradual; that is to say, that the rent shall increase yearly by degrees for any number of years not exceeding five until the limit of the enhancement decreed has been reached.

Note :—The provisions of s. 36 do not apply to the case of a tenant who was in possession of the land for some years without paying any rent at all : Sujaddin v. Jadunath, 12 C.W.N. 167 (notes).

Limitation of right to bring successive
ment suits.

37. (1) A suit instituted for the enhancement of the rent of a holding on the ground that the rate of rent paid is below the prevailing rate, or on the ground of a rise in prices, shall not be entertained if within the fifteen years next preceding its institution the rent of the holding has been enhanced by a contract made after the second day of March, 1883, or if within the said period of fifteen years the rent has been commuted under section 40, or a decree has been passed under this Act or any enactment repealed by this Act enhancing the rent on either of the grounds aforesaid or on any ground corresponding thereto or dismissing the suit on the merits.

XIV of 1882.

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect the provisions of section 373 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

Headings of Notes.

1. LIMITATION NOT CONFINED TO CASES OF ACTUAL ENHANCEMENT.
2. SUIT FOR ENHANCEMENT UNDER S. 52.
3. WITHDRAWAL OF SUIT, EFFECT OF.
4. PROTRACTED LITIGATION.
5. ENHANCED BY A CONTRACT.
6. FRESH SUIT.

1. Limitation not confined to cases of actual enhancement :—The Limitation put by s. 37 “is not confined merely to cases where enhancement is actually made. It applies to cases where a suit for enhancement is dismissed on the merits. S. 37 should be read with s. 113, as they are based on the same principle.” Per Mitra, J., in Rameswar v. Bhooboneswar, 4 C.L.J. 133.

2. Suit for additional rent under s. 52 :—This section does not apply to a suit for additional rent under s. 52; such a suit may be brought after any interval of time : Radha Kishore v. Umed Ali, 12 C.W.N. 904.

3. Withdrawal of suit, effect of :—S. 373 of the old Civil Procedure Code corresponds to Rule 1 of Order xxiii of the new Code, Act V of 1908.

Although an application under s. 105 was previously withdrawn, without liberty to make a fresh application, a subsequent suit for enhancement of rent under s. 30 (b) of the Act is maintainable, in as much as an application under s. 105 is not a suit; the provisions of s. 37 or s. 109 of the Act are not applicable to such a case : Cheoditti v. Tulsi Singh, 40 Cal. 428; see also Kamini Sundari v. Abdul Habin, 28 C.L.J. 254.

4. Protracted litigation :—In a suit for enhancement of rent under s. 30 (a), the decree should not be passed to have retrospective effect i.e. from the date of suit: Ramjiram v. Ramsre Raut, 83 I.C. 124, (Dawson Miller, C.J., and Foster, J.).

5. Enhanced by a contract :—The words "enhanced by a contract" refer to a valid contract: Bhudan Mahton v. Wazihunnessa, 4 Pat.L.W. 210; s.c., 1918 Pat. 162, s.c., 4 Pat.L.J. 106; s.c., 44 I.C. 292 (Chapman and Atkinson, JJ.). Where a ticcadar got an agreement from the tenants enhancing their rent within 15 years from the date of the last enhancement and subsequently the zemindar instituted a suit for the enhancement of the rent and it was contended that the suit was barred under the provisions of s. 37 in as much as the rent had already been enhanced by the ticcadar within 15 years by the agreement with the ticcadar, held that the provisions of s. 37 did not bar the suit: Ibid.

6. Fresh suit :—The dismissal of a suit for enhancement of rent of a tenure, under Or. 9 r. 8, C. P. C. does not bar a fresh suit for enhancement within fifteen years of the dismissal: Raja Gopal Roy v. Taj Muhammad, 7 Pat. 28 (Kulwant Sahay and James, JJ.).

Reduction of rent.

Reduction of rent.—

38. (1) An occupancy-raiyat holding at a money-rent may institute a suit for the reduction of his rent on the following grounds, and, except as hereinafter provided in the case of a diminution of the area of the holding, not otherwise (namely) :—

Reduction of rent.

(a) on the ground that the soil of the holding has without the fault of the raiyat become permanently deteriorated by a deposit of sand or other specific cause, sudden or gradual, or

(b) on the ground that there has been a fall, not due to a temporary cause, in the average local prices of staple food-crops during the currency of the present rent.

(2) In any suit instituted under this section, the Court may direct such reduction of the rent as it thinks fair and equitable.

5. RENT-SUIT—REDUCTION.

Note :—A contract after the passing of this Act cannot take away the right of a raiyat to apply for reduction of rent, under s. 38: see s. 178, sub-sec. (3) cl. (f).

The provisions of this section apply only to rents payable in money. The Act is silent as to whether raiyats paying rent in kind may sue for reduction for rent.

1. S. 188 :—S. 188 has no application to a suit for reduction of rent by one of several joint tenants: Khethemani v. Jiban Krishna, 21 C.L.J. 315.

Liberal construction.

2. Permanently :—The word “permanently” should be liberally interpreted and ought to be construed with reference to existing conditions; a deterioration may be permanent although the same might be removed by application of capital and skill; Gouri Patra v. Reily, 20 Cal. 579. Following this case it has been held that the word “permanent” in s. 38 must in every case be considered with reference to existing conditions and when a piece of land gets covered with sand the deterioration is permanent with reference to existing conditions: Krishna Sahoy v. Palakdhari, 20 C.W.N. 1157, s.c., 22 C.L.J. 42.

Proceedings for settle-
rent.

3. Principles laid down in this section :—No doubt it is only an occupancy raiyat who is authorised by the Act to bring a suit under this section, but the principles in this section ought clearly to be taken into consideration in all proceedings for the settlement of rent, whatever the status of the raiyats; Gouri Patra v. Reily, 20 Cal. 579.

Contem-
oral agreement.

4. Suit for declaration that rent is less than stipulated :—In a suit for a declaration that the plaintiff’s rent is less than what was stated in the kabuliyat which was a registered deed, and that there had been a contemporaneous oral agreement for the reduction of the rent, held that such a contemporaneous agreement could not be proved: Radharaman v. Bhabani Prasad, 12 C.L.J. 439 (Per Rampini and Gupta, JJ., 9th August 1901); the mere acceptance of a reduced rent though it may amount to a full acquittance of rent for the particular year or years for which the rent was paid, does not operate as a binding contract between the parties without proof of the agreement which formed the basis of the reduction granted. See also Radharaman v. Bhowni Prasad, 6 C.W.N. 61; Benimadhab v. Lalmoti, 6 C.W.N. 242. See notes under sec. 29.

Reduction may be claimed in rent suit.

5. Rent suit :—Abatement of rent can be claimed in a suit for rent by a tenant and a separate suit is not necessary; Gosta Behari v. Hem Chandra, 51 Cal. 1022, s.c., 29 C.W.N. 124; the cases of Deendyal v. Thukroo Koonwar, 6 W.R. Act X, 24; Mahtab Chand v. Chitro Coomaree, 16 W.R. 201; Gour Kisore v. Banamali, 22 W.R. 117 and Shibakumari v. Bibrodas, 12 C.W.N. 167 were referred to. See also Mohesh Chandra v. Gangamoni, 2 Hay 495.

In a suit for rent the tenant may claim reduction of rent; Sukhraj v. Ganga Dayal, 6 Pat.L.J. 665, s.c., [1922 Pat.] 132; (Jwala Prasad and Ross J.J.).

All tenants may claim abatement of rent on the grounds mentioned in s. 38: Ibid. Ordinarily, a tenant is exempted from the payment of the entire rent when the whole of the land is washed away: Ibid.

In a suit by a co-sharer landlord, who under an arrangement between himself, his co-sharers and the tenants, is entitled to collect his share of the rent separately the tenants are entitled to apply for an abatement of rent: Sivadas Dutt v. Birendra Krishna Dutt, 41 C.L.J. 330.

39. (2) The Collector may, if so directed by the Local Government, prepare for any local area like price-lists relating to such past times as the Local Government thinks fit, and shall submit the lists so prepared to the Board of Revenue for approval or revision.

(3) The Collector shall, one month before submitting a price-list to the Board of Revenue under this section, publish it in the prescribed manner within the local area to which it relates, and if any landlord or tenant of land within the local area, within the said period of one month, presents to him in writing any objection to the list, he shall submit the same to the Board of Revenue with the list.

(4) The price-lists shall, when approved or revised by the Board of Revenue, be published in the official Gazette; and any manifest error in any such list discovered after its publication may be corrected by the Collector with the sanction of the Board of Revenue.

(5) The Local Government shall cause to be compiled from the periodical lists prepared under this section lists of the average prices prevailing throughout each year, and shall cause them to be published annually in the official Gazette.

(6) In any proceedings under this Chapter for an enhancement or reduction of rent on the ground of a rise or fall in prices, the Court shall refer to the lists published under this section, and shall presume that the prices shown in the lists prepared for any year subsequent to the passing of this Act are correct and may presume that the prices shewn in the lists prepared for any year prior to the passing of this Act are correct unless and until it is proved that they are incorrect.

(7) The Local Government, shall make rules for determining what are to be deemed staple food-crops in any local area and for the guidance of officers preparing price-lists under this section.

I. Amendments :—After the word “correct” in sub-section (6) the words “and may presume that the prices shown in the lists prepared for any year prior to the passing of this Act are correct,” were inserted by s. 5 of Act III of 1898, B. C.

By the Devolution Act (XXXVIII of 1920)* in Sub-Sec. (7) of this section the words “subject to the control of the Governor-General in Council” after the word “Government” and before the word “shall” have been omitted.

2. Rules regarding Price Lists :—For Price Lists from 1887 up to current times of Bengal, East Bengal, Bihar and Orissa—(with references to the pages of the Gazettees)—See Appendix XII.

For Bengal Government Rules prepared under sub-sec. (7) of sec. 39. See Appendix I, Chap. II.

Price-lists must be referred to.

3. Price-lists must be referred to :—In a suit for enhancement of rent, it is the duty of the court to refer to the price-list prepared under this section whether the parties to the suit produce these or not: Nobin Chandra v. Kulo Chandra, 37 Cal. 742, s.c., 14 C.W.N. 914.

Price lists

ed in a previous edition of this work were referred to.

In a suit for enhancement of rent on the ground of rise of prices of staple food crops the lower courts relied on the price-lists appearing in a previous (second) edition of this work. In the High Court it was argued that the lower court ought to have referred to the price-lists as published in the Gazette and therefore the provisions of s. 39 had not been complied with and that the price-lists as published in this work ought not to have been referred to; Holmwood, J. (Chapman, J., concurring), over-ruled the contention and observed that “implicit reliance can be placed” upon the price-lists compiled in this work as referred to above: Alimuddin v. Rupendra, 19 C.W.N. cxi (140 notes).

and

4. Nature of the land on which rent is to be assessed :—In determining the amount of enhancement under s. 30 (b) regard must be had to the nature of the land on which rent is to be assessed; if it is up-land the prices of the up-land staple crop must be considered; while if it is low-land the prices of the low-land staple crop must be ascertained; it is not permissible to assess the enhancement on one kind of land by comparing the average prices of up-land and low-land staple crops together; Sajiwan v. Gulab Chand, 1 Pat.L.J. 409 (Chamier, C.J. and Sharfuddin, J.).

I. Amendments :—The amendments made in this section by s. 11 of Act I. B. C. of 1907, and s. 11 of the East Bengal Tenancy Amendment Act will appear from s. 11 of those two Acts which are the same and are as follows :—

In section 40 of the said Act—

- (i) in sub-section (1) after the words “partly in another” the words “partly in any of those ways and partly in cash” shall be inserted ;
- (ii) in sub-section (2), for the words “an officer making a settlement of rents” the following shall be substituted, namely :—

“a Revenue-officer appointed by the Local Government under the designation of Settlement Officer or Assistant Settlement Officer for the purpose of making a survey and record-of-rights” ;

(iii) in clause (b) of sub-sec. (4) the word “and” shall be omitted, and

(iv) to the said sub-sec. (4) the following shall be added, namely :—

“and (d) improvements effected by the landlord or by the occupancy-raiyat in respect of the raiyat’s holding, and to the rules laid down in sec. 33 regarding enhancement of rent on the ground of a landlord’s improvement.”

2. Jurisdiction of Revenue Court :—A Civil Court has jurisdiction to determine whether an order under s. 40 by a Revenue Officer is without jurisdiction though the propriety of the order cannot be gone into : Jadu Nath v. Pran Krishna, 45 Cal. 769, s.c., 27 C.L.J. 569. Jurisdiction of Civil Court to determine the correctness of commutation order under s. 40.

A proceeding under s. 40 is founded on the assumption that the tenant whose rent is sought to be commuted is an occupancy raiyat and where the rent of an under-raiyat was commuted under s. 40, the Revenue-officer holding that the tenant was an occupancy raiyat, held that the order was without jurisdiction : Kali Krishna v. Ram Chandra, 19 C.W.N. 823, s.c., 21 C.L.J. 487 ; this case was followed in Durga Mohon v. Sukumal, 19 C.W.N. 825, s.c., 21 C.L.J. 590. These cases were followed in the case of Sheikh Pokhan v. Rajani Kamal, 23 C.W.N. 614 (N. R. Chatterjea and Panton, J.J.), in this case it was held that a Small Cause Court equally as a civil court is not bound by the decision of a Revenue officer in a commutation proceeding. In this case a certain person claimed to be a burgadar, and was recorded as a settled raiyat and after the entry was finally published, his rent was commuted under s. 40 ; in a suit for the price of the paddy in the Small Cause Court, it was held that the plaintiff was not bound by the decision in the commutation proceedings and the suit was cognisable in the Small Cause Court and that the defendant was not a tenant : *Ibid.

An order by a Revenue Court under this section is final and no suit lies in the civil court by which its propriety can be questioned ; Lala Saligram v. Mohunt Ramgir, 3 C.W.N. 311. But a civil court is not bound by a decision of the Revenue Court passed without jurisdiction, and a civil court is competent to decide the question as to the status of the tenant.

3. Transfer :—An application for commutation of rent should be determined by the officer to whom it is presented, so when a Sub-divisional Officer before whom such an application was made transferred it to a Settlement Officer who again transferred to an Assistant Settlement Officer, held that the transfer by the Sub-divisional Officer was without jurisdiction : Jadunath v. Prankrishna, 45 Cal. 769, s.c., 27 C.L.J. 569. Transfer of commutation case.

4. Decision in a previous suit as to nature of rent :—A decision as to the nature of rent (i.e., as to whether rent is payable in money or kind) is not res-judicata in a subsequent suit : Kali Roy v. Pratab Narain, 5 C.L.J. 92. Resjudicata.

* In the head-note (23 C.W.N.) at page 615 Col. I line 14 there is a mistake ; for the word “pay” in that line read “hay” ; there is the same mistake at page 616 col. 2 line 9 ; there also read the word “hay” for “pay.”

System of produce-rent productive of disputes.

5. System of Produce rent :—“The system of produce rent has been described by competent authorities to be vexatious in the extreme and productive of disputes and litigation, constant irritation and oppression. [Field’s Digest of the Land Law of Bengal.] See also the observations of Mr. Justice Trevor in Mahomed Yacob Hossein v. Sheikh Chowdhury Wahed, 4 W.R. Act X, 23 ; reference may also be made to the history of the Law of ‘Titles in England’, Per Mookerjee, J., in Sashi Mahton v. Iswari Prasad, 6 C.L.J. 727, at p. 732.

Commutation made by Court of Wards binding on minor.

6. Commutation at the instance of the Court of Wards :—Commutation of rent made by the Court of Wards is binding on the ward of the Court as to his successor unless it is shown that the power of the Court was restricted : Sashi Mahton v. Iswari Prasad, 6 C.L.J. 727.

7. Does s. 40 apply to a raiyat who pays a fixed quantity of paddy annually ?—A difficult question often arises as to whether s. 40 applies where a raiyat who according to his agreement with his landlord, pays as rent a fixed quantity in kind annually, and is a raiyat at fixed rent and has also acquired the status of an occupancy raiyat. It has been held that a raiyat paying a fixed quantity of produce, is a raiyat at fixed rent ; see the cases of Dinanath v. Sati Prasad, 27 C.W.N. 115, s.c., 36 C.L.J. 220 (Mookerji and Chotzner, J.J.) and Manmatha v. Probodh, 73 I.C. 416 (Mookerjee and Rankin, J.J.). Now, s. 40 speaks of the commutation of rent of an occupancy raiyat and therefore the question arises as to whether the produce rent payable by a raiyat at a fixed quantity can be commuted. In such a case the Board of Revenue decided that his rent cannot be commuted, he being a raiyat at fixed rent. But it has now been decided by Sanderson, C. J. and Richardson, J., in the case of Sarbeswar v. Bijoy Chand, 49 Cal. 280, s.c., 26 C.W.N. 15, s.c., 34 C.L.J. 233, that a raiyat at fixed rent may also acquire a right of occupancy.† Can it therefore be said that the paddy rent of a fixed raiyat who has acquired a right of occupancy may be commuted on the ground that s. 40 applies to all occupancy raiyats and consequently to a fixed raiyat who has acquired a right of occupancy ? It is submitted that* though reasons may be assigned both for and against the proposition, the sounder view is that the produce-rent of such a fixed raiyat cannot be commuted under s. 40, for the following reasons, viz., Chapter IV provides rules relating to the incidents of holdings at fixed rent or rates of rent ; in that Chapter we do not find any provision relating to the commutation of rent ; Chapter V lays down rules relating to occupancy raiyats in contra-distinction to raiyats at fixed rents for whom there are special provisions in Chapter IV. Then, we find that Chapter V lays down rules of enhancement or reduction of money rent payable by occupancy raiyats, and then s. 40 provides the rules of conversion of produce rent payable by occupancy raiyats into cash rent. From the scheme of the Act and the classification of the subjects, it seems that the legislature contemplates commutation of rent by raiyats who have merely occuindication that this money value was placed for some other purpose than that of giving the tenant a choice either to pay money or to deliver the paddy, it must be taken that the tenant has the choice either to pay money or to deliver paddy as stipulated. A landlord cannot generally claim in such a case that the tenant is bound to pay the market value of the paddy at the date of the institution of the suit for rent if he does not deliver the paddy as rent in kind; Saroj Bandhu v. Motilal, 105 I.C. 756 (B. B. Ghose, J., Roy J., agreeing).

In the case of Guru Das v. Govinda Chandra, 24 C.W.N. 85 decided by N. R. Chatterjea and Duval, J.J., N. R. Chatterjea, J. observed as follows at p. 92:—"Contracts for payment of bhag paddy . . . are very common; and it is well known that middle class people, specially of the bhadralogue class who cannot cultivate lands themselves, let out their lands for getting paddy for the consumption of their family, and in some cases the bhag paddy is the only means of subsistence of the family. A certain value has to be fixed for the paddy in the kabuliyat, not only for the ascertainment of the registration fee, but also (and specially) for fixing the stamp duty payable, though it is not expressly stated in the kabuliyat. It is said that the parties may agree as to the value of the paddy in order to avoid disputes and the going into any question as to the value in the event of its non-delivery. But that would be a question of intention, and if it is clear from the kabuliyat (for instance where it is provided that the paddy is to be delivered in a particular month or measured with a certain measure) that it is only paddy which the parties intended should be paid, it would be inconsistent with that intention to hold that a fixed sum (which might be a wholly inadequate value of the paddy at the date of the suit) was agreed upon to be paid in the event of non-delivery of the paddy in order to avoid any question as to its value, in cases where the value is merely mentioned without any express stipulation to pay such value in the event of non-delivery of the paddy."

Observation
of N. R.
Chatterjea
J.

N. R. Chatterjea, J., in his judgment, discussed all the cases on the point and was of opinion that the cases were in conflict. The cases may be noted as follows:—

Cases where it was held that the tenant was bound to pay the actual value of the produce:—

Sobut Ali v. Abbas Ali, 3 C. W.N. 151. (Ameer Ali and Pratt J.J., 29 July, 1898); Akbar Ali v. Durga Kripa, 12 C.L.J. 589, (Stevens and Handley, J.J., 27 March, 1900); Sheikh Esuf v. Gopal Chandra, 12 C.L.J. 593, (Brett and Richardson J.J., 17 May, 1910); Baneswar v. Umesh, 37 Cal. 626, (Jenkins C.J. and Das J., 29 April, 1910); Sarat Chandra v. Abbas Mondal, 21 C. W.N. (140 notes). [See also Kamoraddi v. Monmohini, 29 C. L.J. 234, s.c., 21 C.W.N. 100

Cases where it was held that the landlord was entitled only to the amount stated in the kabuliyat to be the price of the paddy:—

After Moral v. Prasanna, 15 C. W.N. 249, s.c., 12 C.L.J. 649 (Mookerjee and Sharfuddin J.J., 2 Sept., 1910); Asutos v. Haran, 47 Cal. 133, s.c., 23 C.W.N. 1021; (Sanderson C.J., Mookerjee J., and Newbould J., dissenting); Nilmadhub v. Sitanath, 26 C.L.J. 94, (Sanderson C.J. and Mookerjee, J., 4 May, 1916, reversing the decision of N. R. Chatterjea J.); Dwarka v. Dwijendra, 30 C.L.J. 37; s.c., 47 Cal. 139 (footnote), Maclean C.J. and Banerjea J., 17

(notes)]. See in this connection 25 C.W.N. 714 ; 35 C.L.J. 159 ; 29 C.L.J. 234 and unreported special appeal No. 1718 of 1919. March, 1897). [Also see the cases of Basiruddi v. Afsarennessa, 21 C.W.N. 860 ; Bibro Charan v. Suchand, 12 C.L.J. 595, Lakhatulla v. Biswambhar, 12 C.L.J. 646 ; Baneswar v. Umeshchandra, 37 Cal. 626].

In a recent unreported case decided on the 15th April, 1924, by Sanderson C.J. and Chakrabarti J. (unreported second appeals Nos. 481 and 944 of 1922) Gopal Chandra Mandal v. Prosannamayee Debi, it was held that the landlord was entitled to the market price of the paddy and not to the amount fixed in the kabuliyat as the price of the paddy ; and that the lower Appellate Court was right in the construction of the kabuliyat. [In the kabuliyat it was provided that the tenant would pay a certain amount as cash rent plus a certain quantity of paddy at a certain measure and it was further stipulated that if for any unavoidable reason the tenant be unable to pay the paddy, then its market value at a certain rate, total Rs. 36/- plus the cash rent Rs. 20/- odd, total Rs. 56/13 would have to be paid, and the tenant further agreed that except for the reason that the entire land remained patit, he would not be allowed to pay the price but must pay the paddy.]*

The material portion of the judgment of the lower Appellate Court which was upheld by the High Court was as follows :—

“From a construction of the kabuliyat referred to above in the two kabuliyats, the Lower Court is of opinion that the price of paddy agreed to be paid in case of default was the amount fixed in the kabuliyat and not the market price of the paddy. I am unable to accept this finding of the Lower Court to be correct. We find in the first place that the primary intention of the landlord was to take the paddy in kind and the agreement to accept the price of paddy was a concession made on a special contingency only, i.e., when the land remained wholly patit or when the tenant was unable to deliver the paddy on account of any unavoidable cause over which the tenant had no control. In all the cases in which the construction of kabuliyat of the type before me came into question it was laid down that the primary intention of the parties should be looked into. Certainly if it was optional to the tenant to deliver the paddy or its price as stipulated between the parties, the landlord could not get the market value of the paddy. But if the intention was to deliver the paddy in kind and there was no option left to the tenant, then certainly the landlord would be entitled to the market value of the paddy deliverable by the tenant. In the particular kabuliya with which we are concerned the intention has been given in unmistakeable language that unless the lands remained wholly paiti the tenant would not pay anything but the paddy. The fact that the value of the paddy was included in the cash rent payable can not help the defendants' case in any way for it is clear that the consolidation was intended to take effect in those years only when the tenant became entitled to pay the value of the paddy on the ground that the whole of the land remained unculturable.

* The kabuliyats in both the cases were practically similar. The material portion of the kabuliyat is as follows :—

Upon exactly similar terms of the kabuliya, their Lordships (B. B. Ghose and Roy, J.J.) held that the landlord was not entitled to the market price of the paddy at the date of the suit but only to the amount fixed in the kabuliya as the price of the paddy: Bangshiram v. Prasannamoyi, 106 I.C. 25, (July 15, 1927.)

9. Jurisdiction of Civil Court :—The order of a Revenue Officer for commutation of rent where the tenant is not an occupancy raiyat is without jurisdiction: and a Civil Court may set it aside: Mohes v. Sheikh Basir, 25 C.W.N. 714. Where tenant not occupancy raiyat.

10. Commutation—want of notice—order of Revenue Officer without jurisdiction not binding on Civil Court :—An order for communication without notice is ultra vires; and an order by a Revenue Officer without jurisdiction is not binding on a Civil Court: Gorachand v. Rakhal Chandra, 37 C.L.J. 473; the case of Jadu v. Prankrishan, 43 Cal. 769 was followed. Want of notice.

II. Commutation by agreement :—See notes under s. 109C.

12. Clause (5) :—The provisions of cl. 5 are imperative and should be strictly complied with before an order under this section can have any effect. The object of requiring the time from which the order is to take effect to be stated is to enable the parties distinctly to know from what date the new arrangement is to come into operation. In the absence of any date being fixed in the order, the order must be taken to be practically inoperative, or at any rate, to remain in suspense until it is amended by the specification of the time of its operation. The omission to specify the time may be inadvertent but it is the business of the parties in order to avail themselves of the effect of the order, to have the time specified: Chowdhury Raghunath v. Dadha, 18 Cal. 469. Provision of cl. 5 imperative.

Technical Rules and Instruction of the Settlement Department, 1916, Chapter XI page 71. "7: Under subclause (5) of section 40 each order of commutation should be embodied in a clear and self-contained proceeding and should specify the Bengali year from which the commuted rent will come into force. A single proceeding may be drawn up with a Schedule of the tenancies involved for all the applications in one village under the same landlord. As an appeal lies against the Commutation Officer's order, except where the application is refused; the proceeding should furnish full materials for the information of the appellate Court; and the case of each tenancy should be individually examined. Technical Rules.

13. Reversion to rent in kind after Commutation :—Where there has been a formal commutation of bhowali and nukdi, one of the contracting parties cannot, without the consent of the other, insist on reverting to bhowali; Dursun Singh v. Fasihun, 6 C.L.J. 369; Bibee Jun v. Bhagul Singh, 21 W.R. 438. But where the tenant After commutation consent of both landlord and

for reversion to original-status.

occasional deviations to nukdi were not intended to be permanent the landlord can claim bhowali: Dursun Singh v. Fasihun, 6 C.L.J. 369. The question in each case is what was the intention of the parties; if the parties intended that the substituted agreement was to last for a specified period or during the continuance of special circumstances, or that either party could resile from the substituted agreement, with or without notice, either party may claim to revert to the original agreement; if on the other hand no such intention is proved the substituted agreement can be annulled only by consent of both parties: Kashi Mahton v. Iswari Prasad, 6 C.L.J. 727.

Essentials
necessary
under s. 40

14. Essentials necessary under s. 40 :—To bring a case within s. 40 the following essentials are necessary:

(i) The parties must stand in the relation of landlord and tenant:

(ii) The tenant must be an occupancy raiyat holding rent in kind as provided for in cl. (i) of s. 40.

Registration.

15. Dowl evidencing Commutation—if registration necessary :—Where a dowl (a memorandum shewing the rents payable by the tenants bearing their signatures) merely evidences that there has been a commutation of rent that the rent which was previously payable partly in kind and partly in cash would henceforth be paid in cash it is not an instrument relating to an interest in immoveable property and does not require registration: Haraprasad v. Ramnarain, 11 C.L.J. 22.

Ss. 29, 43.

16. Conversion of cash rent into rent in kind :—The conversion of cash rent into rent in kind cannot be regarded as enhancement within the meaning of s. 29 or s. 43 of the Act: Gobinda Mandar v. Banarasi Prasad, 18 C.L.J. 74, but it was held in Kishori Mohon v. Sheikh Uzir, 37 Cal. 610, s. c., 14 C.W.N. 693, that s. 29 applies even where a money-rent is enhanced by the addition of rent in kind.

Acceptance
rent.

17. Effect of acceptance of reduced rent :—The mere acceptance of a reduced rent, though it may amount to a full acquittance of rent for the particular year or years for which the rent was paid, does not operate as a binding contract between the parties without proof of the agreement which formed the basis of the reduction granted: (Per Gupta, J.): Radharaman v. Bhabani Prasad, 12 C.L.J. 439. See notes under s. 29.

Stage at which application is to be made.

18. At what stage the application is to be made :

Technical Rules and Instructions of the Settlement Department, 1916 (issued by the Director of Land Records on principles approved by Government) Chapter XI, page 70.

1. Applications under section 40 (2) of the Tenancy Act will ordinarily be dealt with at the stage of objections under section 103A. When however proceedings under Part II, Chapter X of the Tenancy Act are about to be held applications for commutation should be dealt with at that stage.

2. As there is no time limit under section 40 the commutation officer should not refuse to receive fresh applications which are presented to him in camp, provided that the applications are duly stamped and are otherwise in order.

Court fee.

19. Stamp :—Each application under section 40 (2) should be in writing and should bear a stamp of 8 annas: See Technical Rules

20. Cl. (6) :—Technical Rules and Instructions of the Settlement Department, 1916 (issued by the Director of Land Records on principles approved by Government), Chapter XI, p. 70, para. 4: for commutation ^{Grounds upon which application} ^{tation may be refused.}
 "Under section 40 (b) of the Bengal Tenancy Act the Commutation officer, if he considers that it would be unreasonable to grant an application for commutation, can refuse it. In the exercise of this discretion, he should be guided mainly by the consideration whether the commutation would be a hardship to the landlord or tenant or whether the land is in a fit state to bear a cash-rent. The following are examples of cases where it would be prima facie equitable to refuse commutation.

(1) "Where the landlord is unable to cultivate personally and is dependent for his livelihood on the produce-rent e.g., the landlord is a minor, orphan or widow and on account of this fact does not and cannot cultivate the land personally ;

(2) Where owing to the land being under reclamation and the crop uncertain, it would be more equitable to wait until the land had been developed before fixing a rent ;

(3) Where the raiyat has again sublet the land on a produce-rent, or his landlord pays his rent, or a substantial portion thereof in produce."

21. Appeals :

Appeals.

The Bengal Survey and Settlement Manual, 1917, Part II., Chapter XVII, page 104 :—

429. Appeals against order of Commutation in section 40 cases lie as follows :—

	Original Court.	First Appellate Court.	Second Appellate Court.
When land revenue is not being Settled.	(1) Deputy Collector.	Collector.	Commissioner.
	(2) Collector.	Commissioner.	No Second appeal.
	(3) Assistant Settlement officer.	Settlement officer.	Commissioner
When land revenue is being Settled.	(4) Settlement officer.	Commissioner.	No Second appeal.
	(3) Assistant Settlement officer.	Settlement officer.	Director of Land. Records, Bengal.
	(4) Settlement officer.	Director of Land. Records, Bengal.	No Second appeal.

No appeal lies against an order refusing an application under section 40. When the second appeal is based on a question of fact the Court of Second appeal can make it a rule of practice ordinarily to reject appeals from concurrent findings of fact by the two lower Courts.

An appeal to a Collector or Settlement officer should be presented within 15 days of the date of the original order : but the officer, to whom the appeal lies, may accept an appeal filed after 15 days, if he is satisfied that it has been filed within, what is under the circumstances of the particular case, a reasonable period, and that there are sufficient grounds for interference.

An appeal to Commissioner should be presented within one month from the date of the order appealed against ; but the Commissioner has discretion to depart from this rule and to admit an appeal after time.

22. Nature of proceedings under Sec. 40 :—Proceedings under s. 40 of the B. T. Act are miscellaneous proceedings by a revenue officer in regard to which there are no provisions as to procedure either in the Act itself or in the rules framed under the Act : Haricharan Sil v. Bepin Behari, 100 I.C. 146, (Cammiade, J.).

23. Crop-cutting Report : Public Document :—The crop cutting report of the Deputy Collector made under Sec. 40 of the B. T. Act should be considered a public document under Sec. 74 of the Evidence Act and is evidence of the amount of crops produced by the land : Hara Govind v. Kishun Doyal, 7 P.L.T. 671, s. c., 95 I.C. 966 ; see also Kishun Doyal v. Iswarnath, 8 P.L.T. 74, s. c. 1927, A.I.R. (Pat.) 167 (Dawson Miller, C. J. & Foster J.).

The crop cutting report is a valuable piece of evidence in determining the produce of the land in suit for the years in suit, in the absence of any evidence to shew that the year to which the report belongs was an exceptionally a good year or evidence that the years immediately preceding it were exceptionally bad years or indeed any evidence at all to show that they in any way differed. Ibid.

Period for which commuted rents are to remain unaltered.

40A. (1) Where the rent of a holding has been commuted under section 40, it shall not, except on the ground of a landlord's improvement or of a subsequent alteration of the area of the holding, be enhanced for fifteen years; nor shall it be reduced for fifteen years, save on the ground of alteration in the area of the holding, or on the ground specified in clause (a) of sub-section (1) of section 38.

(2) The said period of fifteen years shall be counted from the date on which the order takes effect under sub-section (5) of section 40.

The section was added by s. 12, Act I, B. C. of 1907, and s. 12 of the East Bengal Tenancy Amendment Act of 1908.

CHAPTER VI.

NON-OCCUPANCY RAIYATS.

41. This Chapter shall apply to raiyats not having a right of occupancy, who are in this Act referred to as non-occupancy-raiyats. ^{Application of Chapter.}

13. LEASE BY A CERTIFICATED GUARDIAN.
14. S. 116.
15. SURRENDER.
16. ZERAIT LAND.

Note :—This Chapter does not apply to Proprietor's private lands and some other classes of lands: See Chap XI; Chapter VI also does not apply to utbandi lands; see s. 180 sub-sec. (2). ^{Proprietor's private lands.}

Chapter VI applies to proprietor's private lands except where such land is held under a lease for a term of years or from year to year, and a right of non-occupancy may be acquired in such land: Janki Sing v. Mahant Lagaunath, 3 Pat. L.J. 1.

A tenant of a chur land for a term of years created by an unregistered lease, the rent being payable at a certain rate per bigha in respect of such of the land as for the time being is capable of being brought into cultivation is a non-occupancy raiyat and not an utbundi tenant: Mitu Skeikh v. Amrita Lal Sen, 42 I.C. 546; (Fletcher and Newbould J.J.). As to what is utbundi land: see notes under s. 180. ^{Chur land.}

I. Heritability :—The holding of a non-occupancy raiyat is (apart from possible exceptions) heritable: Midnapur Zemindary Co., Ld. v. Hrishikesh Ghosh, 41 Cal. 1108, s. c., 18 C.W.N. 828 (F.B.), s. c., 19 C.L.J. 505.* The judgment in the Full Bench does not indicate as to what may be the possible exceptions. ^{Non-occupancy holding heritable.}

* It was held in the case of Karim Chawakdar v. Sunder Bewa, 1. C.W.N. 89, that a non-occupancy raiyati holding is not heritable; in the case of Arip Mandal v. Ram Ratan, 31 Cal. 757 the contrary view was indicated and the question was referred to a Full Bench in the case of Lakhan Narain v. Joy Nath, 34 Cal. 516, s. c., 11 C.W.N. 626, s. c., 5 C.L.J. 457, the referring

The Full Bench was followed by the Patna High Court in the case of Kalru Carki v. Jangli Choudhri, 1 Pat. L.J. 273.

A stipulation in a lease to the effect that a non-occupancy holding will not be heritable may, possibly, be valid. S. 178 does not prevent a landlord from making such a stipulation with a non-occupancy raiyat.

2. Subletting :—A non-occupancy raiyat may sublet his land. See sec. 85 and also Ramlal v. Bhelagazi, 37 Cal. 709. But by contract this right can be taken away ; see sec. 178, sub-sec. (3), cl. (e) which applies to occupancy raiyats.

3. Tenant from year to year :—Under the Bengal Tenancy Act, there is no raiyat who holds from year to year, and if the tenant is a non-occupancy raiyat who does not hold under a lease for a term, he cannot be ejected under the provision of cl. (c) of s. 44 : Jotiram v. Jonaki Nath, 20 C.W.N. 258.

4. Right to transfer :—Non-occupancy raiyati holdings are not transferable except by local custom or usage.

5. Reduction of rent :—A non-occupancy raiyat is not entitled to sue for reduction of rent : Nabadweep v. Lalla Sheel, Marsh 325. But the principles laid down in s. 38 ought to be taken in consideration in all proceedings for settlement of rent, whatever the status of the raiyats : Gouri Patra v. Raily, 20 Cal. 579 at p. 586.

6. Alteration of rent :—He is entitled to bring a suit for alteration of rent for alteration of area : Enayatulla v. Elaheebaksh, W.R. 1864 (Jan. to July) Act X, 42.

7. Improvement :—He is entitled to erect suitable dwelling house, and construct a well. See sec. 79.

8. Accretion : When there is an accretion to the holding of a non-occupancy raiyat, he is entitled to claim the benefit of Sec. 4 of Reg. XI of 1825 : Ahmud v. Tohi, 13 C.W.N. 267 ; s. c., 8 C.L.J. 538. See also Amjad Ali v. Kedor Jan, 13 C.W.N. 269, s. c., 8 C.L.J. 527. See also Madhu v. Salear, 14 C.W.N. 681, Gour Hari v. Bhola, 21 Cal. 233, Beni Pershad v. Chaturi, 33 Cal. 444, s. c., 4 C.L.J. 68, Miajan v. Akramali, 8 C.L.J. 541.

Holding
under a trespasser.

9. Holding under a trespasser :—When a person acquires a right to hold land under a trespasser whom he bona fide believes to have the right to let him into possession of the land he cannot be ejected by the true owner as he is a non-occupancy raiyat : Binod Lal v. Kalu Paramanick, 20 Cal. 708 (F.B.). See notes under sec. 5, heading no. 8.

10. Amending Act I of 1907 (B.C.) :—The status of a non-occupancy raiyat acquired before the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Act (Act I B. C. of 1907) is not affected by the passing of the Amending Act : Jatiram v. Janaki Nath, 20 C.W.N. 258. See also Shibakali v. Chunilal, 31 C.W.N. 1007 (Cuming and Mallik J.J.).

judges were inclined to the view, that a non-occupancy holding was heritable ; when the case came to be heard by the Full Bench there was a divergence of opinion and it was observed in the case of Udatchandra v. Haridas, 10 C.L.J. 608, s. c., 13 C.W.N. 937 that the Full Bench in the case of Lakhan v. Joynath has left the point undecided. In view of this conflict the present reference was made to the Full Bench in the case of Midnapur Zemindary Co. Ld. v. Hritikesh Ghosh, 41 Cal. 1108 (F.B.)

II. Purchase of occupancy right by a co-sharer landlord :

—When an occupancy right is extinguished by the operation of s. 22 cl. (2) (as it stood before amendment by Act I., B. C. of 1907), a new occupancy right cannot be acquired by the co-sharer proprietor : Ram Lal v. Bhela Gazi, 37 Cal. 709. See notes under s. 22.

12. Holding over :—See notes under s. 51.

13. Lease by a certificated guardian :—A lease for 5 years granted by the certificated guardian of a minor without the sanction of the District Judge is voidable at the instance of the minor : Sitanath v. Haranarain, 21 C.L.J. 644. Lease by certificated guardian.

14. S. 116 :—Where a lessee holds over after the expiry of the term of a lease for 5 years and remains in occupation for a period of 4 years more of agricultural land in a district to which ss. 20 and 21, were before the grant of the lease made applicable, he acquires the status of a non-occupancy raiyat ; the status cannot be retrospectively affected by the subsequent extension of s. 116 : Sitanath v. Harinarain, 21 C.L.J. 644. Effect of extension of s. 116.

15. Surrender :—Where by an arrangement with the purchaser of a non-occupancy holding the raiyat remained in possession of a portion and then surrendered the entire holding, held that the arrangement between the purchaser and the raiyat was in substance a sale of a portion of the holding, and that the surrender being obviously illusory, the original tenancy subsisted and protected the purchaser from ejection by the landlord : Nabo Kishore v. Dhananjay, 20 C.W.N. 610. See notes under s. 86. Effect of surrender.

16. Zerait land :—The mere fact that a lessee of a proprietor's private land is neither a fixed raiyat or an occupancy raiyat does not raise a presumption that he is a non-occupancy raiyat : Jagannath v. Janki Singh, 1 Pat. 340, s. c., 26 C.W.N. 822, (P.C.).

42. When a non-occupancy-raiyat is admitted to the occupation of land, he shall become liable to pay such rent as may be agreed on between himself and his landlord at the time of his admission. Initial rent of non-occupancy raiyat

Admitted to occupation :—See s. 47.

Initial Rent :—The agreement by a non-occupancy raiyat to pay Rs. 3 per bigha for the first five years and afterwards Rs. 5/- per bigha is valid : Ganpat v. Jasodhar, 17 C.L.J. 590.

The covenant to the effect that if the defendant continues in possession of the land after the expiration of the first kabuliyat, then he would have to pay rent at a higher rate, is not in the nature of penalty, and it can be enforced even if the tenant has acquired occupancy rights during the period of kabuliat : Kuman Das v. Kachali, 1928 A.I.R. 62. The cases of Tejendra v. Bakai, 22 Cal. 658 and Ganapati v. Jasodhur, 17 C.L.J. 590; were distinguished.

43. The rent of a non-occupancy-raiyat shall not be enhanced except by registered agreement or by agreement under section 46 : Conditions of enhancement of rent.

Provided that nothing in this section shall prevent a landlord from recovering rent at the rate at which it has been actually paid for a continuous period of not less than three years immediately preceding the period for which the rent is claimed.

Enhancement :—A raiyat holding a chur land but who has not acquired a right of occupancy is liable to pay such rent as may be agreed on between him and his landlord, irrespective of the provisions of sec. 43 : Jahandar Baksh v. Ramlal, 37 Cal. 449, s. c., 14 C.W.N. 470, s. c., 11 C.L.J. 364. A lessee of a government khasmahal can claim enhancement as might have been agreed by the tenant although the lessee covenanted not to raise the rents of the raiyat beyond the amount mentioned in the settlement jamaabandi : Ibid.

Meaning of enhancement. Conversion of cash rent into rent in kind. Agreement for payment of rent in kind after expiry of lease.

Enhancement of rent under the Bengal Tenancy Act means the increase of rent in amount without alteration in kind : Haṣṣan Kuli v. Nakchhedi, 23 Cal. 200 ; the conversion of cash rent into rent in kind cannot consequently be regarded as enhancement within the meaning of s. 43 : Gobind Mandar v. Banarasi, 18 C.L.J. 74.

Where it was agreed that if the tenant should continue in occupation after the expiry of the term of the lease, he would pay rent in kind, held that the agreement was not objectionable and could be enforced : Ibid : see also Ganapat Singh v. Jasodhar Singh, 17 C.L.J. 590. But where there was an agreement that if a fresh kabuliyat was not executed by the tenant, rent would become payable by him at an enhanced rate, held that such a provision was in the nature of a penalty, that is, not intended to be enforced but only to be used as a threat to compel the tenant to execute the kabuliyat : Tejendra Narayan v. Bakai Singh, 22 Cal. 658.

Suspension of rent.

Where there was an agreement that a portion of the rent reserved in the lease would remain in suspension and after the expiry of the lease the tenant continued to hold at the lower sum, and the tenant was sued for the full rent reserved, held that the agreement did not contravene the provisions relating to non-occupancy raiyat : Kalish v. Darbaria, 20 C.W.N. 347 ; see notes under s. 29.

Grounds on which non-occupancy-raiyat may be ejected.

44. A non-occupancy-raiyat shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, be liable to ejectment on one or more of the following grounds, and not otherwise (namely) :—

- (a) on the ground that he has failed to pay an arrear of rent;
- (b) on the ground that he has used the land in a manner which renders it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy, or that he has broken a condition consistent with this Act and on breach of which he is, under the terms of a contract between himself and his landlord, liable to be ejected;
- (c) Where he has been admitted to occupation of the land under a registered lease, on the ground that the term of the lease has expired;
- (d) on the ground that he has refused to agree to pay a fair and equitable rent determined under section 46, or that the term for which he is entitled to hold at such a rent has expired.

6. CL. (b).
7. CL. (c) : ADMITTED TO OCCUPATION.

1. CL. (a) : See notes under s. 66.

2. Transfer of non-occupancy holding or denial of landlord's title by tenant :—Parting with the possession of a holding or denying the title of the person under whom a non-occupancy-raiyat holds is not a ground of forfeiture, and a non-occupancy-raiyat cannot be ejected except on the grounds enumerated in this section : landlord's title. Chandra Mohun v. Bissesswar, 1 C.W.N. 158 ; and when a portion of a non-transferable raiyati jote is sold the landlord although not entitled to khas possession, is yet entitled to have a declaration that the transfer is not binding on him : Sheikh Gozuffur v. E. Dalglish, 1 C.W.N. 162. Transfer, no ground of forfeiture.

When a tenant transfers his non-transferable holding he must be taken to have abandoned the holding if he ceases to pay rent to his landlord and accepts a new tenancy from the transferee, and the landlord is therefore entitled to eject the transferee as a trespasser : Kali Nath v. Kumar Upendra, 1 C.W.N. 163 ; Narendra v. Ishan, 22 W.R. 22. See notes under s. 23. Transfer of non-transferable holding.

3. Ejectment : raiyat settled on the land by an ijaradar :—Although an ijaradar holds for a term, a raiyat inducted by him on the land becomes a non-occupancy raiyat and is not liable to ejectment after the expiry of the ijara except upon one or more of the grounds mentioned in sec. 44 : Atal Chandra v. Lakhinarayan, 10 C.L.J. 55 ; such a case is much stronger than the Full Bench case of Benodelal v. Kaloo Pramanick, 20 Cal. 708. Raiyat inducted on land by Ijaradar.

A raiyat of 10 years' standing and holding over is not a trespasser and can not be ejected until his tenancy has been determined over by a notice to quit or some other legal manner : H. B. Dalglish v. Damodar Narayan, 8 C.L.J. 533. See notes under s. 51. Holding over.

In a case under the Chota Nagpur Landlord and Tenant Procedure Act (I. B. C. of 1879), it was held that after the service of a valid notice to quit, a non-occupancy raiyat became a trespasser, and the fact that when the suit for ejectment consequent upon the notice was instituted, the raiyat had been already holding the land for 12 years did not entitle the raiyat to claim occupancy right : Nathuni v. Paresh Nath, 14 C.W.N. 297. It seems that the same principle will apply to cases under the Bengal Tenancy Act. Case under the Choto-Nagpur Act.

See in regard to this question the cases of Agmel Islam v. Jardine, Skinner & Co., 8 W.R. 501, Janardan Acharjee v. Haradhan Acharjee, 9 W.R. 513, Mackintosh v. Gopimohan Mozumdar, 4 W.R. 24, Gale v. Maharanee Sreemutty, 15 W.R. 133.

Dispossession of thicca tenant.

Where a thicca tenant or a tenant at will was dispossessed by the landlord by the end of 1318 B. S., and the tenant brought a suit in 1319 B. S., for recovery of possession under sec. 9 of the Specific Relief Act, the munsif found that the plaintiff was in possession as thicca tenant for 1318 B. S. and his rights ceased after 1318 and therefore the suit was dismissed, held that the plaintiff was entitled to a decree for possession having regard to the clear words of sec. 9 of the Specific Relief Act: Ramdayal v. Upendranath, 17 C.W.N. 501.

Expiry of lease.

4. Cl. (c): A non-occupancy raiyat whose lease has expired is liable to ejectment under the general law as a trespasser: Janki v. Mahant Jagannath, 3 Pat. L.J. 1.

Limitation—Ejectment suit.

5. Limitation:—A suit to eject a tenant on the ground that he has used the land comprised in his holding in a manner which rendered it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy is governed by Art. 32 of Sch. II of the Limitation Act: Soman Gope v. Raghubir, 24 Cal. 160, s. c., 1 C.W.N. 223; Sharooop Das Mandul v. Jogessur Ray, 26 Cal. 565. A suit under the latter part of cl. (b) is governed by one year's limitation; see Sch. III, Art. 1.

6. Cl. (b): See notes under s. 155.

7. Cl. (c): ADMITTED TO OCCUPATION:—Where a lease was executed after the tenant was in occupation with a view to continuance of his occupation, held that the raiyat cannot be ejected under this clause: Kamini Prasad v. Khadada Khan, 9 C.W.N. 287 (notes).

Repeal of s. 45.

45. [Repealed by the Bengal Act, I of 1907, B. C., s. 2 and the East Bengal Tenancy Amendment Act, I of 1908, s. 2.]

S. 45 stood as follows:—

Conditions of ejectment on ground of expiration of lease.

Sch. III art 1 (a).

Undivided share.

45. A suit for ejectment on the ground of the expiration of the term of a lease shall not be instituted against a non-occupancy-raiyat unless notice to quit has been served on the raiyat not less than six months before the expiration of the term, and shall not be instituted after six months from the expiration of the term.

See Sch. III, Art. 1 (a) which practically re-enacts this section with a little variation. See notes under sch. III art. 1 (a).

It was held in view of sec. 45 that a raiyati interest could be created in an undivided parcel of land: Bankibehari v. Benodekumar, 13 C.W.N. 264 (notes portion) also reported in 14 C.W.N. ccxvi (216).

Suit for ejectment more than six months after expiry of lease.

'Ejectment:—Where a raiyati lease was created for a period of seven years and it was stipulated that the tenant would have no right to cultivate the land without a fresh lease and in the event of his cultivating the land he would pay rent at a higher rate, held in a suit for ejectment brought after six months from the date of the expiry of the lease that the tenant was liable to ejectment only in accordance with sec. 45, and the proper course for the plaintiff was to proceed under sec. 44 or 46 and that the stipulation for the payment of a higher rate of rent was a penalty and not recoverable : Kamala Pershad v. Jhouti, 13 C.W.N. 276 (notes portion).

46. (1) A suit for ejectment on the ground of refusal to agree to an enhancement of rent shall not be instituted against a non-occupancy-raiyat unless the landlord has tendered to the raiyat an agreement to pay the enhanced rent, and the raiyat has within three months before the institution of the suit refused to execute the agreement. Conditions of ejectment on ground of refusal to agree to enhancement.

(2) A landlord desiring to tender an agreement to a raiyat under this section may file it in the office of such Court or officer as the Local Government appoints in this behalf for service on the raiyat. The Court or officer shall forthwith cause it to be served on the raiyat in the prescribed manner, and when it has been so served, it shall for the purposes of this section be deemed to have been tendered.

(3) If a raiyat on whom an agreement has been served under sub-section (2) executes it, and within one month from the date of service files it in the office from which it issued, it shall take effect from the commencement of the agricultural year next following.

(4) When an agreement has been executed and filed by a raiyat under sub-section (3), the Court or officer in whose office it is so filed shall forthwith cause a notice of its being so executed and filed to be served on the landlord in the prescribed manner.

(5) If the raiyat does not execute the agreement and file it under sub-section (3), he shall be deemed for the purposes of this section to have refused to execute it.

(6) If a raiyat refuses to execute an agreement tendered to him under this section, and the landlord thereupon institutes a suit to eject him, the Court shall determine what rent is fair and equitable for the holding.

(7) If the raiyat agrees to pay the rent so determined, he shall be entitled to remain in occupation of his holding at that rent for a term of five years from the date of the agreement, but on the expiration of that term shall be liable to ejectment under the conditions mentioned in the last foregoing section, unless he has acquired a right of occupancy.

(8) If the raiyat does not agree to pay the rent so determined, the Court shall pass a decree for ejectment.

(9) In determining what rent is fair and equitable, the Court shall have regard to the rents generally paid by raiyats for land of a similar description and with like advantages in the same village.

(10) A decree for ejectment passed under this section shall take effect from the end of the agricultural year in which it is passed.

2. SUB-SEC. (6).
3. SUB-SEC. (9).
4. RULES UNDER SUB-SEC. S. (2) AND (4).
5. AGREEMENT.
6. SERVICE OF NOTICE.

I. Scope of s. 46. :—The proceedings under section 46 of the B. T. Act are not merely proceedings for ejectment but they are proceedings to have a fair and equitable rent assessed by the Court. If the tenant has refused to accept the agreement filed under the provisions of s. 46 it is then alone that a suit for ejectment under that section can be commenced: The Port Canning and Land Improvement Company Ltd., v. Achhiruddi Mollah, 43 C.L.J. 45.

tion of cl. 6.

2. Sub-sec. (6) : Sub-sec. (6) does not prescribe in what way the Court is to determine what is a fair and equitable rent for the holding, but it only restricts the Court in finding what is a fair and equitable rent in one way, that is to say, by the provisions of sub-section 9 of section 46. Sec. 46 nowhere says that, if there be no lands of a similar description and with similar advantages in the same village, the Court is to stay its hand and refuse to carry out the provisions of sub-section (6). It only prescribes that, if there be such lands, then the Court must regard the rents generally paid by raiyats for them and it was not intended that if there be no such lands, then it should be impossible to enhance the rent of non-occupancy raiyats in any way: Hossain Ali v. Hati Charan Shaw, 27 Cal. 476 ; s. c., 4 C.W.N. 321.

Sub-sec.
(9) is not exhaustive.

3. Sub-sec. (9) : Sub-sec. (9) is not exhaustive, but is merely one of the methods by which a Court acting under sub-sec. (6) of the same section, is intended to arrive at the determination of the question as to what is a fair and equitable rent. The fact that a plaintiff, suing a non-occupancy raiyat for enhancement or rent is unable to comply with the provisions of sub-sec. (9) does not preclude the Court from having other evidence in support of his contention: Hossein Ali v. Hati Charan, 4 C.W.N. 321 : s. c., 27 Cal. 476.

4. Rules under sub-secs. (2) and (4) :—See Appendix I, Chap. V, rr. 30 and 31.

Agreement
meaning of.

5. Agreement :—An "agreement" in s. 46 means an agreement which the landlord proposes that the tenant should execute: The Port Canning and Land Improvement Co. v. Narayan Chandra Pramanik, 45 I.C. 284 (Fletcher and Shamsul Huda J.J.). There is nothing in s. 46 that requires a notice to be served along with the copy of the agreement though it may be convenient to do so: Ibid.

The words "the date of the agreement" in sub-section (7) of sec. 46, B. T. Act 1885, do not refer to the "agreement" tendered to the tenant under sub-section (1) but to the agreement contemplated by sub-section (7), namely, an agreement by the raiyat to pay the rent determined by the Court. The enhanced rent therefore becomes payable under the provisions of sub-section (7) from the date when the raiyat agrees to pay the rent found by the Court under sub-section (6). Wajibunnissa v. Babulal, 5 Pat. 46; s. c., [1925 Pat.] 298, s. c., 7 P.L.T. 355. See also The Port Canning and Land Improvement Trust Co. v. Achhiruddi Molla, 43 C.L.J. 45.

6. Service of notice :—In serving the agreement on the tenant in a suit for ejectment it is essential that the requirements of the statute should be strictly carried out; service upon the son was not considered sufficient under O. 5 r. 15 C. P. C.; it is to be definitely found that the defendant could not be found after reasonable and diligent enquiries: Bharam Chand v. Kanak Sarkar, 26 C.W.N. 359.

47. Where a raiyat has been in occupation of land and a lease is executed with a view to a continuance of his occupation, he is not to be deemed to be admitted to occupation by that lease for the purposes of this Chapter, notwithstanding that the lease may purport to admit him to occupation. Explanation of "admitted to occupation."

Admitted to occupation :—Where a lease was executed after the tenant was in possession with a view to continuance of his occupation, held that the raiyat cannot be ejected under cl. (c) of s. 44; Kamini Prasad v. Khadada Khan, 9 C.W.N. 287 (notes). S. 44 cl. (c).

A non-occupancy raiyat who has been admitted to occupation of the land under a registered lease is liable to be ejected on the expiry of the term of his lease, but where it was found that the defendants were not admitted into occupation by the kabuliyat executed by the tenant, held that it was necessary to determine if the tenant was in occupation as tenant in respect of which he subsequently executed a kabuliyat: Rajani Kantha v. Yusuf Ali, 21 C.W.N. 188. Tenant not admitted into occupation by kabuliyat.

rent recoverable from underraiyats.

48. The landlord of an under-raiyat holding at a money-rent shall not be entitled to recover rent exceeding the rent which he himself pays by more than the following percentage of the same (namely):—

(a) when the rent payable by the under-raiyat is payable under a registered lease or agreement—fifty per cent.; and

(b) in any other case—twenty-five per cent.

“Under-
raiyat”
meaning of.

I. Under-Raiyat: Landlord of an under-raiyat:—The landlord of an under-raiyat is not necessarily a raiyat, for an under-raiyat is a person who holds mediately or immediately under a raiyat (see s. 4); when an under-raiyat lets out the land to another, the latter also becomes an under-raiyat.

Under-leases by an under-raiyat.

The grant of under leases of any degree is recognised by the definition of under-raiyat as tenants holding immediately or mediately under a raiyat: Parushulla v. Sital Chandra, 19 C.W.N. 1110 at p. 1112.

Korfa
raiyat.

A Korfa raiyat is not necessarily an under-raiyat: Emaduddin v. Danesh Mahmud, 39 I.C. 240 (Fletcher and Richardson, J.J.); Richardson J., observed in the case as follows: It is not necessary to define the term “Korfa-raiyat.” The kabuliyat speaks of the defendants as having a Korfa right, when such a right is subordinate to a jote, the question whether the tenant is a raiyat or an under-raiyat must depend on the character of the jote. Where A was an occupancy raiyat and B was an under-raiyat, and A subsequently purchased the superior tenure, held that B continued to be an under-raiyat: Akhil Chandra v. Hasan Ali, 22 C.W.N. 246, s. c.; 18 C.L.J. 262.

Effect of raiyat's acquisition of superior tenure.

A permanent sub-lessee under a raiyat acquires at least the status of an under-raiyat, if he is shewn to have been in possession from before the lease: Janakinath v. Prabhasini, 19 C.W.N. 1077.

Permanent sublease.

Although the restrictions contained in s. 85 apply to leases by a raiyat, they have no application to leases granted by an under-raiyat and although permanent leases granted by under-raiyat may be limited to the existence of the right of the grantor yet there is no provision in law which prohibits such grants; none that such grants shall not be registered and the prohibition under s. 85 cannot be expanded by analogy; such subleases by under-raiyats are valid documents between grantor and the grantee: Parushulla v. Sital, 19 C.W.N. 1110 at p. 1112 col. 2, (D. Chatterjee and Chapman, J.J.). As to subleases by an under-raiyat, see notes under this section under heading no. 15.

Permanent leases by an under-raiyat.

A bargadar may be a day labourer or he may be a tenant. The mere fact that he holds on produce rent will not give the landlord a right to eject him. He will still come within the provisions of s. 49 if he is a tenant: Kshetra Nath v. Nityananda, 96 I.C. 667. (Cuming and Page, J.J.). The denial of the landlord's title does not make an under-raiyat liable to be ejected. He can be ejected only in accordance with the provisions of s. 49: Abbas Sheikh v. Neyamatennessa Bibi, 91 I.C. 662.

2. Money-rent:—Sub-headings: (i) Whether the words "holding at a money rent" apply to the landlord or to the under-raiyat; (ii) Money rent or produce rent.

(i) Holding at a money rent:—It is doubtful whether the expression "holding at a money rent" is one descriptive of the "landlord" or of the word "under raiyat": see in this connection Ananda Chandra v. Makram Ali, 10 C.L.J. 144.

The landlord and the under-raiyat must both hold their respective tenancies at a money rent as otherwise no comparison can possibly be instituted as contemplated by the section: Kanaraddi, v. Monmohini, 29 C.L.J. 235, s. c., 21 C.W.N. 100, (notes) but it held in the case of Kailas Pati v. Muneshwar, 4 Pat. L.W. 109, s. c., 3 Pat. L. J. 576; s. c., 43 I.C. 965 (by Roe and Jwala Prasad, J.J.) that the words money-rent refer to the under-raiyat and not to the raiyat.

Whether the words "holding at a money-rent" apply to both the landlord and the under-raiyat. Money-rent or produce rent.

(ii) Money-rent or produce rent: Where an under-raiyat agreed to pay as rent a certain quantity of produce and in the event of failure to do so, to pay a fixed amount in cash, held that his rent is a money-rent within the meaning of sec. 48; Ananda Chandra v. Makram Ali, 10 C.L.J. 144.

Where the defendant agreed to pay a certain quantity of paddy as the rent of his holding, and Rs. 10 was put down, as the value of the paddy agreed to be delivered, held that the landlord might choose to insist to get produce rent, although he had for many years received rent in money: Sahabul v. Abdul Ali, 3 C.W.N. 151,

the sum of Rs. 10 was put down as the value of the paddy for the sake of convenience or to meet the requirements of the law: Ibid. Upon the construction of a lease where the tenant agreed that on failure to deliver the paddy stipulated the arrears of the rent in paddy or the price thereof would be realisable, held that it was not optional either to deliver the paddy or to pay what might at a particular time be a very inadequate value thereof; Akbar Ali v. Durga Kripa, 12 C.L.J. 589.

Where an under-raiyat undertook to deliver to the landlord a certain quantity of paddy as rent and on default to pay Rs. 20 as the price of the paddy with damages and costs, held that the under-raiyat did not hold at a money-rent but at produce rent and therefore s. 48 did not apply: Kanaraddi v. Monmohini, 29 C.L.J. 234, s. c., 21 C.W.N. 100, (notes portion); the cases of Ananda Chandra v. Makram Ali, 10 C.L.J. 144 and Bipro Charan v. Suchand Roy, 12 C.L.J. 595 were distinguished.

Where a tenant agreed to pay a cash rent of a particular sum Rs. 45-8 and to deliver a certain quantity of paddy the price of which was stated to be Rs. 22, the total rent being fixed at Rs. 67-8, and the contract was that the rent should be paid and paddy delivered annually in the months of Bhadra and Pous, held that the tenant was not entitled to pay the named sum in lieu of the paddy, but damages at the rate of the value of the paddy on the date when the breach occurred: Basiruddin v. Hari Mohon, 39 I.C. 720 (Fletcher and Newbould, J.J.); the case of Baneswar v. Umesh Chandra, 37 Cal. 626 was followed.

In a case where the tenant agreed by the kabuliyat to pay Rs. 8 in cash and 29½ maunds of paddy as rent, but there was a provision in the kabuliyat, that if he could not deliver the paddy he has to pay cash rent at the rate of 1 maund 10 seers per rupee, it was held in Letters Patent appeal that the rent was payable at the price mentioned in the kabuliyat and not at the market rate of paddy at the time the suit was instituted: Nilmadhab v. Sitanath, 26 C.L.J. 94 (Sanderson, C. J., and Mookerjee, J.).

pay paddy or value.

Where an under-raiyat stipulated in the kabuliyat for payment of paddy or its value in case of default as rent, such rent is not money-rent and is outside the scope of s. 48 (a): Krishna Kumar v. Piru Fakir, 35 C.L.J. 159.

An occupancy raiyat executed a usufructuary mortgage in favour of the plaintiff, stipulating that the mortgagee would pay the proprietor's rent and take Dakhilas in the name of the defendant. Subsequently he executed a kabuliyat in favour of the mortgagee stipulating to pay rent at Rs. 20 per year. In a suit brought by the mortgagee for recovery of rent at that rate it was contended that the mortgagee was not entitled to recover rent at that rate by virtue of the provisions of sec. 48 of the B. T. Act: held that the mortgagor holding under the mortgagee by virtue of the kabuliyat did not cease to be a raiyat holding under the proprietor and was not an under-raiyat and sec. 48 is inapplicable to the case: Ismail Pramanik v. Khedir, 43 C.L.J. 242 (Suhrawardy and Cuming JJ.). The case of Tilakdhari v. Chaturgun, 3 Pat. 266 was referred to. That by the mortgage the relationship as between the proprietor and the defendant was left untouched and no relationship of landlord and tenant as between the proprietor and the plaintiff came into existence by the transaction: Ibid.

As to whether a tenant's rent is money-rent when there is a stipulation to pay money in lieu of produce rent, see notes under s. 40.

A person cannot by custom acquire the status of an occupancy raiyat notwithstanding that he is so recorded in the record of rights. If he relies on any custom it is for him to allege and prove that custom; Raghunath v. Ram Behara, 75 I.C. 437 (Das and Adami, J.J.). Das, J., observed as follows: "I can quite understand an under-raiyat acquiring by custom certain privileges which are possessed by occupancy raiyats but it is one thing to say that a person may by custom acquire certain rights which are incident to rights of occupancy in lands but it is quite another thing to say that by custom an under-raiyat may become a raiyat." Ibid. This was a case from Cuttack and governed by the Orissa Tenancy Act.

3. An under-raiyat may acquire a right of occupancy by custom:—An under-raiyat may acquire, having regard to the provision of s. 183, as explained by illustration 2 to that section, a right of occupancy by custom. Gopal Mandal v. Japai Sankhari, 46 Cal. 43, s.c., 22 C.W.N. 618, s.c., 28 C.L.J. 84 (Fletcher and Shamsul Huda). See notes under sec. 4 and 183. Under-raiyat may acquire a right of occupancy by custom.

It has now been decided that heritability of an occupancy under-raiyati holding must be proved by custom: Sudhanya Kumar v. Saik Ismail, 29 C.W.N. 733 (Greaves and Cuming, J.J., 26 March, 1925).

4. Under-raiyati not transferable:—An under-raiyat may under certain circumstances acquire an occupancy right; if he does acquire such a right, that right may be transferable by custom or local usages; but, there is no authority for the proposition that the interest of an under-raiyat is ipso facto transferable: Akhil Chandra v. Hosain Ali, 19 C.W.N. 246, s.c., 18 C.L.J. 262 at page 264. Under-raiyati not transferable.

Though it may be held that the right of an under-raiyat is not transferable without the landlord's consent, it does not necessarily or logically follow that it is transferable with his consent. Even if it be conceded that it is transferable with the landlord's consent, a consent given long after the transfer cannot be said to have been made with the landlord's consent: Jnanendra v. Dukhiram, 28 C.W.N. 865, s.c., 40 C.L.J. 90, s.c., 82 I.C. 386 (Surhawardy and Graham, J.J.).

An under-raiyat cannot acquire an occupancy right under any condition except by local usage or custom: Ibid.

Where a tenure or holding apart from the Transfer of Property Act is not transferable it cannot become so unless it is expressly made so by some other statute: so an under-raiyati holding is not transferable: Amir-ennessa v. Jinnat Ali 42 Cal. 751, s.c., 19 C.W.N. 43, s.c., 20 C.L.J. 548, on a transfer of an under-raiyati holding the landlord was held to be entitled to re-enter without a notice under s. 49. Ibid. Under-raiyati holding not transferable and the landlord is entitled to re-enter on sale.

When the tenure or holding apart from the Transfer of Property Act is not transferable it cannot become so unless it is expressly made so by statute : Hiramati v. Annada Prasad, 7 C.L.J. 553 (555) ; under-raiyati tenancies were not transferable according to the old law and they have not been made transferable by the Bengal Tenancy Act and they are therefore not transferable : Ibid.

Where an under-raiyat after sale of the land remained in possession of the homestead portion which covered about one-tenth of the entire area and made no arrangement for payment of rent to the raiyat landlord, held that there was abandonment : Ishan Chandra v. Nishi Chandra, 19 C.W.N. 1 (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, J.J.) ; (see in this connection Sailabala v. Sriram, 7 C.L.J. 303).

An under-raiyati interest is not transferable ; where such an interest is sold in execution of a money-decree to which the under-raiyat does not object (though binding on the under-raiyat) it is not binding upon the landlord : Pramatha Bhusan v. Ramchandra, 22 C.L.J. 124. A landlord who purchases an under-raiyat's interest at a sale under the provisions of the Civil Procedure Code without objection by the under-raiyat is entitled to eject a person who had previously purchased the under-raiyati interest at a sale in execution of a money-decree : Ibid ; the landlord can bring to sale the land held by an under-raiyat under the provisions of the Civil Procedure Code and although having regard to the Full Bench case of Dayamayi v. Anand Gopal, 42 Cal. 172, the under-raiyat can come forward and raise an objection to the sale ; but if he does not come forward, then the landlord having consented to the sale, the sale becomes binding on the under-raiyat : Ibid (at p. 126, col. 1, 22 C.W.N.).

5. Sec. 22. :—An under-raiyati lease if created by an instrument which is not registered is invalid under s. 85, and the landlord purchasing the holding of the raiyat in execution of a decree for arrears of rent is entitled to take khas possession by ejecting such under-raiyat without annulling the same by a notice under s. 167. The rights under such an under-raiyati lease are not protected by sub-sec. 1 of s. 22 : Peary Mohun v. Badal Chandra, 28 Cal. 205. See notes under s. 49 and s. 85.

Heritability
of underraiyati
holding.

6. Heritability of under-raiyati holding :—The heirs of an under-raiyat under an annual holding do not acquire an interest in his holding by inheritance ; Arip Mondal v. Ram Ratan Mondal, 31 Cal. 759, s.c., 8 C.W.N. 479 (F.B.). The only right which they have, irrespective of custom or local usage, is to remain in possession of the land until the end of the agricultural year for the purpose of either realising the rent which might accrue during that year or for the purpose of tending and gathering the crops : Ibid ; Jamini Sundari v. Rajendra Nath, 11 C.W.N. 519. See also Nadiram v. Srinath, 24 C.W.N. 93 ; Sutu Bibi v. Jamini Sundari, 1922 A.I.R. Cal. 85. See also Meher Ali v. Kalai Khalasi, 19 C.W.N. 1129, s.c., 27 C.L.J. 579 ; (Mookerjee and Richardson, J.J.), the description of a sub-lease granted by an occupancy raiyat as "Sthayee karsha kabuliyat" does not necessarily mean that the grantee was intended to have a permanent heritable interest in interest which the raiyat was not authorised to create by law : Ibid.

But where an under-raiyat holds for the prescribed period as Where provided for in s. 85 and dies before the expiry of the lease, it is submitted that the heir of the under-raiyat is entitled to inherit and is entitled to remain in possession for the unexpired portion of the lease. it is for a prescribed period it seems to be heritable

* It has been held that where a sub-lease is granted by a raiyat for a term of years not exceeding nine years and the under-raiyat dies before the expiry of the term, his heir succeeds him: Abjan Bibi v. Raham Ali, 20 C.W.N. 756, s.c., 22 C.L.J. 232 (Richardson and Mullick, J.J.);* see also Midnapur Zemindari Company v. Hrishikesh Ghose, 41 Cal. 1108 (F.B.).

An ordinary holding of an under-raiyat from year to year is not in itself heritable, but a leasehold interest under the Bengal Tenancy Act or under any other Act, if it is for a term of years, is necessarily heritable; Nirode Mohan v. Jagar Ali, 20 C.L.J. 328; where before the expiry of an under-raiyati lease the under-raiyat died and his heir continued to hold over after expiry of the lease, held that he was liable to be ejected: Ibid.

A leasehold property under the Bengal Tenancy Act or under any other Act, if it is for a term of years is necessarily heritable and where an under-raiyati holding was created for 9 years, his death can make no difference to the contract under s. 37 of the Contract Act: it cannot be therefore said that under no circumstances can an under raiyati be heritable: Ibid.

7. Under-raiyats with right of occupancy by custom Heritability :—See notes under sec. 26, heading no. 7.

8. Enhancement :—The provision as to enhancement of rent is retrospective in its operation; Baharuddin v. Dwarkanath, 28 Cal. 166; Guru Das v. Nandkumar, 26 Cal. 199. Provisions as to enhancement retrospective.

The restriction imposed by s. 48 on the amount of rent that a raiyat can recover from an under-raiyat has no application in the case of a raiyat at a fixed rate of rent, the section being governed by s. 18. In other words, s. 18 controls s. 48 as it does s. 85; Raj Kumar v. Ramani Mohon, 104 I.C. 150.

9. Contract in excess of maximum not void :—A contract for a rate of rent in excess of the maximum prescribed by s. 48 is not wholly void, but nothing in excess of the maximum can be recovered: Sitanath v. Basudev, 2 C.L.J. 540. Nothing in excess of maximum can be recovered.

10. Land held by raiyat to be co-extensive with land let out :—Where a raiyat held 23 kanis of land for which he paid Rs. 71 as rent and brought five suits for enhancement of rent against five sets of defendants who held a portion of the lands comprised in the holding, the first Court held that s. 48 was applicable; he divided Rs. 71 by 23 the number of kanis in the entire holding; applying that result he decreed a sum not more than 50 per cent. or 25 per cent. allowing as the lease was registered or not; held by Geidt, J., that it was doubtful whether s. 48 applied to a case where Sub lease of different portions to different persons.

a raiyat sublet his holding to a large number of different persons ; Akhil Chandra Biswas v. Amjad Ali, unreported Second Appeal No. 415 of 1903, decided on June 3, 1904.*

S. 48
applies is let out co-extensive with the land of the raiyat.

Sec. 48 applies to cases in which the land held by the raiyat is co-extensive with the land held by the under-raiyat ; the mere fact that the raiyat's lease showed what rent was assessed in respect of the particular plot let out to the under-raiyat did not entitle the latter to pay rent up to 25 per cent. in excess of the assessed rate ; Nimchand v. Jaychandra, 39 Cal. 839 ; s.c., 16 C.W.N. 857 ; s.c., 17 C.L.J. 652 ; see also Akram Ali v. Anwar Ali, 24 I.C. 677. The unreported case of Akhil Chandra v. Amjadali (second appeal No. 415 of 1903) was held to support the above view.

The case of Nimchand v. Joychandra, 39 Cal. 839, was distinguished in the case of Natibulla v. Badi Mihan Singh, 42 I.C. 243 (Teunon and Shamsul Huda, J.J.) ; in this case the facts were held to be different from those in the case of Nimchand v. Joychandra.†

and sub-lease of a raiyati
holding.

II. Suit by an under-raiyat :—Where a raiyat sold his non-transferable holding and took an under-raiyati lease under the transferee and was dispossessed by the superior landlord (raiya's landlord) and refused to pay rent to him ; held that the suit should be dismissed ; Rajani Kanta v. Ekkari Das, 8 C.W.N. 811 ; a raiyat having a right of occupancy is not liable to ejectment by the landlord merely because he has asserted a transferable right in the land and sold that right to a stranger, without giving up possession of the land ; Sristidhar v. Madan Sardar, 9 Cal. 941 ; see also Dinanath v. Krishna Bejoy, 9 C.W.N. 379 ; Madan Mondal v. Mahima Chandra, 33 Cal. 531 ; see notes under s. 23.

Ejectment.

12. Effect of sale on assertion by landlord that property sold is raiyati holding :—Where a landlord puts a property to sale on the assertion that it is an occupancy holding, and the purchaser takes it in faith of the assertion, the landlord cannot afterwards be permitted to say that what has been sold is the interest of an under-raiyat ; Abdul Sobhan v. Nekbar Mondal, 17 C.L.J. 652 ; when a landlord makes an application under s. 102 and obtains an

"I would also observe that the method adopted by the Munsif for calculating the rent which the plaintiff himself pays for the lands respectively held by the different defendants does not seem satisfactory. It may I think, be doubted whether sec. 48 of the Bengal Tenancy Act applies to a case where a raiyat sublets his holding to a large number of different persons. It seems impossible to ascertain with any precision what rent the plaintiff is paying for any specific lands which are comprised in any one of the defendants' under-tenure, if it be the fact as is asserted by the plaintiff that the quality of the lands held by the different defendants varies and also if it be a fact that the land which is not let to these defendants is of such an inferior quality that the same rate cannot be assessed on the defendant's land as on the other lands not let to them. If we were to construe sec. 48 strictly it would seem that as long as the plaintiff does not take from the whole body of his under-tenants a rent exceeding by 50 per cent., or 25 per cent as the case may be the rent which he himself pays, then that section does not restrict the plaintiff's claim in respect of any one particular holding."

† In the case of Nimchand v. Jay Chandra, the rent for the whole holding was Rs. 21-4-0 ; the plaintiff claimed in respect of the portion sublet a rent of Rs. 14. In the case of Mehuga v. Mihan Singh the holding measured 15 bighas ; the portion sublet to the tenant-defendant measured 7 bighas ; the rent payable by the raiyat was Rs. 6-14 the plaintiff claimed at the rate of Rs. 27-8-0.

2. Written lease for indefinite period :—The case of an Cl. (b). under-raiyat holding under a patta executed before the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Act and not expressly providing for the period of its duration comes within cl. (b) of section 49 and the notice must be provided thereunder: Raj Kumari Debi v. Barkatulla Mondal, 39 Cal. 278 (F.B.); the case of Madan Chandra v. Jaki Karikar, 6 C.W.N. 377 was over-ruled by this Full Bench case.

It has been held in the case of Mia Raja Patwari v. Ram Kumar De, 41 I.C. 846 (N. Chatterjee and Richardson, J.J.), that a sub-lease by a raiyat created before the Bengal Tenancy Act for a period exceeding nine years remains valid against the raiyat and the latter cannot eject the under-raiyat under s. 49 (b).

Cl. (b) should be read as also covering the case of a written lease without a term of years: Mohendra Nath v. Parbatya, 8 C.W.N. 136 (at p. 138, Col. 2); Komoruddi v. Sreenath, 8 C.W.N. 136; Iduggazi v. Chandra Kali, 8 C.W.N. 139. But a contrary view was taken in the case of Madan Chandra v. Jaki Karikar, 6 C.W.N. 377, where it was held that an under-raiyat holding under a written lease for an indefinite term cannot be ejected by the raiyat under s. 49 (b); the case in 6 C.W.N. 377 has been over-ruled by the Full Bench.

Contra.

Where an under-raiyati lease was not for a specified period and was described as a harsana patta (yearly lease), held that the under-raiyat was liable to be ejected by a notice: Chandi Charan v. Samla Bibi, 28 C.L.J. 91.

3. Sub-lease of homestead land comprised in a raiyati holding :—Where an agricultural raiyat let out a portion of the homestead land comprised in the holding for homestead purposes, held that the sub-lessee was an under-raiyat within the meaning of the Bengal Tenancy Act and that in order to maintain a suit in ejectment a notice under s. 49 (b) was necessary: Babu Ram v. Mohendra Nath, 8 C.W.N. 454. This case was followed in the case of Abdul Kurim v. Abdul Rahaman, 15 C.L.J. 672.

Where a raiyat whose holding consisted partly of agricultural and partly of homestead land let out the homestead portion to a person who held land as a settled raiyat under a different landlord in an adjoining village; held that the incidents of the sub-lease of the homestead portion would be governed not by the Transfer of Property Act, but by the Bengal Tenancy Act and that sec. 182 of the B. T. Act applied and the sub-lessee held the homestead as a raiyat: Krishnakant v. Jadu Kasya, 19 C.W.N. 914, s.c., 21 C.L.J. 475 (N. R. Chatterjee and Greaves, J.J.). The provisions of the B. T. Act applicable to a raiyat regulate the incidents of the tenancy of the homestead though the tenant has only the interest of an under-raiyat with respect to it and the latter cannot be ejected from his homestead under sec. 49, cl. (b) of the Act: Ibid.

This case was distinguished by Chakravarty J. (Cuming J. agreeing) in the case of Rahimaddi v. Amina Bibi, 43 C.L.J. 132, where it was held that an under-raiyat holding under a registered lease of homestead and nal lands, though a settled raiyat of the village of lands held under different landlords, can, on the expiry of his under-raiyati lease, be ejected under sec. 49 of the Act. S. 182 of the B. T. Act is applicable to lands held by a raiyat. It is in-applicable to the case of homestead lands to which the provisions of the B. T. Act did already apply.

When a particular tenancy falls within the provisions of sec. 49 of the B. T. Act, section 182 cannot be invoked in determining the status of the tenant; Chandra Mohon v. Meherjan, 44 C.L.J. 311 (B. B. Ghose and Graham, J.J.).

Where an under-raiyat holds a homestead along with other lands as part of his under-raiyati tenancy and, if the landlord is entitled to eject him from the lands held by him by service of notice, there is nothing under the law which prevents him from the whole of the demised premises and sec. 182 of the B. T. Act does not apply: Ibid. The case of Krishna v. Jadu, 19 C.W.N. 914; s.c., 21 C.L.J. 475 was distinguished and the case of Rahimaddi v. Amina Bibi, 43 C.L.J. 132 referred to.

Held upon a construction of a lease that the sub-lessee under a permanent tenant of homestead land did not come under sec. 49 of the B. T. Act; Bidhumukhi v. Gobinda, 42 C.L.J. 78 (Chakravarty J., Cuming J. agreeing). The lessee of a piece of homestead is ordinarily a tenant and not a raiyat: Ibid.

Period of notice.

4. Notice to quit:—Sec. 49 of the Bengal Tenancy Act does not prescribe any period of notice or that the suit for ejectment shall not be brought until the expiry of a certain term after the expiry of the period of notice. The effect of the section seems to be that the landlord can serve a notice to quit at any time in the course of the year but that he shall not eject the raiyat until the end of the year next following the year in which the notice to quit is served, that is to say, an under-raiyat must under any circumstances get a full year expiring at the end of the agricultural year from the time when the notice is served: Naharulla v. Madan, 1 C.W.N. 133, followed in Dwarka Nath v. Rani Dassi, 28 Cal. 310, where it was held that it is not necessary that a notice under s. 49, cl. (b) should mention any particular period within which the under-raiyat is to quit the land.

Form and period of notice.

It has also been held in the case of Chandi Charan v. Srimati Samla Bibi, 28 C.L.J. 91 that s. 49 of the Bengal Tenancy Act prescribes no form of notice nor has it given any indication as to the length of notice—see also Harifulla v. Binode Behary, 17 C.W.N. 932 and Singheswar v. Parbal, 103 I.C. 471 (Patna case).

There is no necessity to import into the agricultural law of this country the six month's notice required in the case of an annual tenancy in England or as required in India in the Presidency towns. What is needed is a reasonable notice having regard to the nature of the tenancy and the date of expiry of the agricultural year as indicated in s. 49: Brojonath v. Abdur Rahaman, 89 I.C. 113. (Greaves and Mukherji, J.J.).

Ambiguous notice.

Where a notice to quit does not specify the date from which the time named in the notice is to run, such notice is ambiguous and bad in law; the validity of such a notice may be questioned for the first time in the course of a suit in second appeal: Gouri Sankar v. Naja Bratt, 1 C.W.N. 179 (notes).

Notice need not be signed by the landlord, if it

“There is no necessity that the notice should be signed by the landlord at all. It is sufficient if the notice is at the instance of the landlord calling upon the under-raiyat to quit the land”; it is quite immaterial whether the notice is actually given by the landlord himself or at his instance provided that the notice signifies to the under-^{is at his} raiyat that the landlord has called upon him to quit the land: ^{instance.} Mahendra Nath v. Bishwa Nath, 29 Cal. 231, s.c., 6 C.W.N. 183. This case has been followed in the case of Majedul v. Maharaddin, 44 I.C. 49 in which it has been held by Chitty and Smither J.J. that a notice under s. 49 purported to be on behalf of three landlords but signed by one is sufficient.

Where a notice to quit to an under-raiyat was served in Pous ^{Annual} 1303 and he was required to quit in Bysak 1304, and the suit was not ^{Tenancy.} instituted till the 1st of Bysak 1305; held, that the tenant was liable to ejectment; Mohendra v. Biswanath, 29 Cal. 231. But to determine an annual tenancy the notice should require the tenant to quit at the end of the year of the tenancy; so where a notice bearing the 26th of Jaistha 1304, B. S., was given calling upon the defendants to quit at the end of six months, viz., on the last day of the month of Agrahayana of the same year and the suit was brought on the 16th Magh 1304: held, that the tenancy being an annual tenancy expiring at the end of the year the notice was bad and the suit was liable to be dismissed and that the decree given by the lower Appellate Court for khas possession at the end of 1306 was bad: Hemanginee v. Srivovindo, 6 C.W.N. 69; see also Ramlal v. Dinanath, 23 Cal. 200; Hem Chunder v. Radha Pershad, 23 W.R. 440; Rajendra v. Bassider, 2 Cal. 146; Kishore Mohun v. Nundkumar, 24 Cal. 720.

A suit to eject an under-raiyat under sec. 49, cl. (b) of the Bengal ^{Suit itself} Tenancy Act cannot be maintained without a notice to quit and the ^{cannot be} suit itself cannot be regarded as a sufficient notice. Where an under-^{regarded} raiyat was let into occupation under a kabuliyat for a year but held ^{as a notice.} over for a number of years; held, that he was not holding under any written lease, and therefore under clause (b) of sec. 49 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, he was not liable to be ejected without a notice to quit, although the terms under which he was holding were the same as those under which he had been let in under a written lease: Rabiram v. Uma Kanta, 2 C.W.N. 238.

A notice to quit under sec. 49 of the Bengal Tenancy Act was ^{Notice} sent by post in a registered cover and it was found that the notice was ^{by post.} delivered to the defendant; held—that the notice had not been properly served, the mode of service being as described in the Rules made by the Government under the Bengal Tenancy Act: Tara Das v. Ram Doyal, 2 C.W.N. 125.

Where a raiyat surrenders his holding, the landlord is entitled to ^{Surrender.} re-enter by ejecting the under-raiyat if he is not protected by sec. 85 or sec. 86, cl. (6). In such a case no notice to quit is necessary: Nilkanta v. Ghatoo, 4 C.W.N. 667.

• Where a notice (under this section) to quit was served on the ^{Where} under-raiyat on the 10th April 1908 (about the end of Chaitra 1314 ^{notice in-} B. S.) asking the tenant to leave within the 1st of Baisak 1315 B. S. and the suit was instituted on the 3rd August 1909 (Sravan 1316 B. S.) held that the notice was not insufficient: Harifullah v. Benode Behari, 17 C.W.N. 932 (Per Jenkins C. J., Ray J., concurring): Jenkins C. J., observed as follows: s. 49 of the Bengal ^{Form of} Tenancy Act prescribes no form of notice, nor has it given any ^{notice.} indication as to the length of notice and this is a very good reason. It would be deplorable to introduce, into matters of this kind, the - Length of notice. intricacies of English law as prevailing in the Presidency towns. Nothing is said as to the length of notice, because the Act itself protects the under-raiyat for ejectment until the end of the agricultural year in which a notice to quit is served upon him by his landlord. The provision of the law is that which indicates time at which it becomes obligatory upon an under-raiyat to leave.

- Notice under the Transfer of Property Act. In a case under the Transfer of Property Act where a notice to quit took the form of a letter in which the landlord explained that he saw fit to increase the rent to a certain sum mentioned in the notice and asked the tenant to come to an agreement with him and he concluded by saying, "otherwise I shall take steps to eject you at the expiration of this month and hence you consider this as fifteen days' notice expiring with the end of this month," held that this was a valid notice : Gangadas Sil v. Anandachandra Roy, 13 C.W.N. 146.
- Notice signed by one of co-sharer landlords. Where an ejectment suit was dismissed by the lower appellate Court on the ground that the notice to quit was signed by one of the co-sharer landlords, the High Court remanded the case holding "that such a point was not in issue and could not be in issue in a suit of this nature : " Jakher Mahmud v. Khatir Mahmud, 23 C.W.N. 76.
- Where notice not necessary. A person purchasing an occupancy holding at a sale held in execution of a decree for arrears of rent can eject without annulling an under-raiyati interest by a notice under s. 167 or without a registered lease and without the consent of the landlord : Bhuban Mohan v. Sheikh Badan, 46 Cal. 766, s. c., 30 C.L.J. 210.
- Notice upon person who executed lease. Where by virtue of a decree the landlord was to execute a lease in favour of two persons, but the lease was executed in favour of one, and both these persons were in possession from before ; held that a suit for ejectment under s. 49 upon a notice to the person (in whose favour the lease had been executed) was good : Pitambar v. Ram Charan : 28 C.W.N. 157.
- Co-sharer landlord, purchase of occupancy holding by. Where a co-sharer landlord purchased an occupancy holding and let it out to a tenant, held that the latter was not an under-raiyat and could not therefore be ejected by a notice under s. 49 : Roshan Ali v. Chandra Mohan, 75 I.C. 447.
- Notice not specifying date when tenant is to vacate. Where the notice did not specify the date when the under-raiyat was to vacate, but the suit was brought long after the expiry of the agricultural year following that in which the notice was served : held that the requirements of s. 49 (b) were fulfilled : Purna Chandra v. Ali Mahammad, 37 C.L.J. 548 :
- Receipt of rent prior to forfeiture, no waiver :—Receipt of rent prior to the forfeiture but after notice is no waiver of the landlord's right to eject : Ibid.
- Service of notice. Notice required to be served under sec. 49 of the B. T. Act shall be served in the manner provided in the Civil Procedure Code for the service of summons. Where the report of the serving peon showed that the defendant took the notice but refused to grant receipt therefor, held that under Or. V, r. 17 C. P. C., the peon should have affixed a copy of the notice on the outer door or some conspicuous part of the house in which the defendant generally resided. The rule laid down in r. 17 relating to the mode of service of notice having not been complied with the suit for ejectment was not maintainable : Mahadeo Singh v. Basgit Singh, [1925 Pat.] 106. The case in 3 Pat. 236 was distinguished.

No special form has been prescribed for notice under s. 49 of the B. T. Act. All that is required for a valid notice is that the terms should be such as cannot be misunderstood: Singheshwar v. Partab Mandal, 103 I.C. 471, s. c., A.I.R. 1727 (Pat.) 376. (James J.).

5. Under raiyati holding not transferable:—See notes under s. 48, heading no. 4.

6. Delay in the institution of suit:—Where a suit for ejectment was instituted one year and seven months after the termination of the written lease, held that there was no presumption that the tenant was allowed to hold over: Ratan Lal v. Farsha Bibi, 34 Cal. 396; mere delay in the institution of the suit is no reason for the dismissal of the suit on the ground that the defendant was allowed to hold over: Ibid.

7. Under-raiyat having no valid title:—As to where a sublease is in contravention of the provisions of s. 85, the rulings are not uniform; in addition to the rulings noted below see the cases noted under s. 85.

Although a permanent lease by a raiyat is void yet the under-raiyat is not a trespasser but is liable to be ejected only by notice under cl. (b) of this section: Fazel Sheikh v. Keramuddi, 6 C.W.N. 916.

A raiyat who has granted a permanent sublease may eject the under-raiyat by a notice under s. 49 (b): Rashed Kazi v. Pachoo Sardar, 42 I.C. 534 (Fletcher and Newbould J.J.). [All the previous decisions were discussed].*

It has been held in the case of Mia Raja Patwari v. Ram Kumar De, 41 I.C. 846, (N. R. Chatterjea and Richardson J.J.); that a sublease by a raiyat created before the Bengal Tenancy Act for a period exceeding nine years remains valid against the raiyat and the latter cannot eject the under-raiyat under s. 49 (b).

A plaintiff in a suit for eviction is in a very different position from a defendant resisting such an action, he cannot succeed except on proof of title and mere prior possession will not suffice: Ram Gati v. Syama Charan, 6 C.W.N. 919; see notes under s. 85.

Where an under-raiyati lease was described as a harsana patta (yearly lease), held that the lease was terminable by a notice to quit under s. 49 (b): Chandicharan v. Samla Bibi, 28 C.L.J. 91.

An under-raiyati lease if created by an instrument which is not registered is invalid under sec. 85 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, and a landlord purchasing the holding of the raiyat in execution of a decree for arrears of rent is entitled to take khas possession by ejecting such under-raiyat without annulling the same by a notice under sec. 167. The rights under such an under-raiyati lease are not protected by sub-sec. 1 of sec. 22 of the Act: Peary Mohun v. Badal Chandra, 28 Cal. 205; s. c., 5 C.W.N. 310. But where an under-raiyati interest was created without a registered lease and without the consent of the landlord the raiyat in order to be ejected by the superior landlord who purchases the raiyat's holding is entitled to a notice under s. 49: Amirulla v. Nazir Mahomed, 31 Cal. 932. The rule enunciated in the case of Peary Mohun v. Badal Chandra, 28 Cal. 205, does not apply when the landlord of an occupancy raiyat purchases the occupancy holding by a Kobala and wants to eject the under-raiyat: Amirulla v. Nazir Mahomed, 34 Cal. 106; in such a case the under-raiyat cannot be ejected except by a notice under s. 49 as the raiyat cannot claim a right higher than his predecessor in interest: Ibid. Where a raiyat without the consent of his landlord sublet the holding by an unregistered lease, held that after the raiyat surrendered his holding the landlord is entitled to eject the under-raiyat without a notice: Badan Chandra v. Rajeswari, 2 C.L.J. 570.

* Jarip Khan v. Durga Bewa, 17 C.W.N. 59, s. c., 16 C.L.J. 144. Telam Pramanick v. Adu Sheikh, 17 C.W.N. 468. Mohinichandra v. Baidyanath, 21 C.L.J. 478.

Suit by private purchaser of raiyati holding.

Compromise decree against an under-raiyat—if a new tenancy—s. 147A.

A suit to eject an under-raiyat whose tenancy at its inception was for an unlimited time, there being no written lease, ended in a compromise which provided inter alia that the tenant would pay to his landlord "for the past period a sum of Rs. 20 as premium in addition to the annual rent of Rs. 12-8 and shall thereafter pay, at the end of each nine years, Rs. 44 as premium etc." and that in case of default of payment of the premium in accordance with stipulated terms, the tenant would be liable to be ejected. In a subsequent suit for ejectment on the ground of default, held that the aforesaid provision in the consent decree did not transform the tenancy which at its inception was for an unlimited time into a tenancy for a term held under a written lease within the meaning of sec. 49 of the Bengal Tenancy Act: Ganeschandra v. Chandramohan, 28 C.W.N. 984.

It was also held that tenant could be ejected only after a notice as contemplated in sec. 49 cl. (b) and in execution of a decree: Ibid.

Held further that the stipulation in the compromise for ejectment on default of payment of the premium was of no avail, because in view of the provisions of sec. 178 sub-sec. (1) cl. (c), it was not open to the landlord and the tenant to contract themselves out of the provision of s. 49: Ibid.

A compromise, followed by a consent decree, is none the less a contract between the parties and subject to the incidents of a contract because there is super added the command of the Judge: Ibid.

This principle is in essence recognised in sec. 147A Bengal Tenancy Act, providing for a compromise of suits between landlords and tenants: Ibid.

S. 85.

Where an under-raiyati lease is in contravention of s. 85, the raiyat can eject the under-raiyat without a notice: Jadabchandra v. Gobinda Chandra, 34 I.C. 912.

Suit for ejectment where sub-lease void.

In a suit for ejectment brought by a raiyat against an under-raiyat who had taken a sublease from the former's predecessor—the sub-lease being void being for the indefinite term, it was held that the raiyat was not entitled to eject the under-raiyat by a notice under s. 49 (b) and that the raiyat could be ejected for non-payment of rent merely: Shangser Ali v. Shaikh Hadamulla, 17 C.W.N. 48 (notes portion); [the facts of the case do not fully appear from the report.]

Stranger purchaser

A person in whose favour a permanent sublease is given by a raiyat is at least an under-raiyat (under his grantor) if he is in possession on payment of rent: Janaki Nath v. Prabhasini, 44 Cal. 178; s. c., 19 C.W.N. 1077. The rights of a stranger who purchases at a sale in execution of a decree under Chapter XIV of the Bengal Tenancy Act are regulated by s. 150 and not by s. 85: Ibid. When a landlord purchases the occupancy holding at a sale in execution of a decree for arrears of rent it is not necessary for him to annul the interest of an under-raiyat which is in contravention of s. 85: Peary Mohun v. Badal Chandra, 28 Cal. 205, Gangadhar v. Rajendra, 17 C.W.N. 560 and Ashutosh v. Bonamali, 19 C.W.N. 412, s. c., 18 C.L.J. 252; see also Janaki v. Prabhasini, 44 Cal. 178 (at p. 189),* s. c., 19 C.W.N. 1077; but if a stranger becomes the purchaser he must annul the incumbrance by a notice under s. 167 before he can eject the under-raiyat: Janaki v. Prabhasini, 44 Cal. 178 at p. 189, s. c., 19 C.W.N. 1077. As between grantor and grantee, a permanent lease granted by an under-raiyat is a valid document, and the grantee can recover possession of the land from the grantee on the strength of such a lease: Parushulla v. Sital Chandra, 19 C.W.N. 1110. See also Gurudas v. Kailas Changa, 18 C.W.N. 882.

Suit by sub-lease under a mokurari patla against a stranger.

A person holding under a mokurari patla under a raiyat can succeed in a suit for possession against a stranger who has no title; assuming that the under-raiyati lease is void under s. 85 the tenancy may be proved aliunde: Banabehary v. Rajchandra, 14 C.W.N. 141; see also Lala Surabh Narain v. Catherine Sophea, 1 C.W.N. 248; Fazel Sheikh v. Keramuddi, 6 C.W.N. 916.

A person who takes a raiyati lease from a landlord who had obtained khas possession by ejecting a transferee of the raiyati holding is entitled to eject the under-raiyat without a notice: Jadab Sardar v. Gobinda Chandra, 44 Cal. 272, s. c., 21 C.W.N. 363; see Nilkant v. Ghatoo Sheikh, 4 C.W.N. 667 and Badan v. Rajeswari, 2 C.L.J. 570.

Where no notice necessary.

Where a raiyati holding was sold in execution of a decree for arrears of rent and the landlord having purchased it sold the same to another person who also took a lease from the landlord, held in a suit by the latter for ejectment of an under-raiyat who had been settled upon the land by the mortgagee of the raiyat that the occupancy holding did not merge in the landlords' right and the plaintiff was entitled to eject: Yakub Ali v. Meajan, 43 Cal. 164.

Where no merger.

An under-raiyat who is under an occupancy raiyat cannot be ejected by the landlord without notice prescribed by s. 49 (b); the intervention of a tenure-holder between the landlord and the under-raiyat makes no difference: Rasik Lal Sen v. Krishna Mohan Mondal, 17 C.W.N. 781 (following the case of Amirulla v. Nazir, 31 Cal. 932).

Suit without notice.

A landlord purchasing an occupancy raiyati holding in execution of a decree for arrears of rent is entitled to eject an under-raiyat who was upon the land by virtue of a permanent lease from the raiyat, without giving a notice under s. 49 or s. 167: Gangadhar v. Rajendranath, 17 C.W.N. 860; the case of Peary Mohon v. Badal Chandra, 28 Cal. 205 was followed.

Suit by a purchaser of an occupancy holding for arrears of rent.

A landlord purchasing the interest of an occupancy raiyat under him is not entitled to treat as a trespasser an under raiyat holding

Oral lease.

* In Amirullah v. Nazir, 34 Cal. 104, and Lal Mahomed v. Jagtr Sheikh, 17 C.W.N. 860 the doctrine was recognised that the landlord of an occupancy raiyat, who has purchased the interest of the raiyat and is thus brought into direct contact with the under-raiyat inducted on the land by the occupancy raiyat, cannot in view of the provisions of s. 22 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, seek the benefit of sub-sec. (1) of s. 85 which provides that if a raiyat sublets otherwise than by a registered lease, the lease shall not be valid against the landlord, unless made with the landlord's consent.

the land under an oral lease from the raiyat: Lalmahammad v. Jagir Shaik, 13 C.W.N. 913 (Jenkins C.J. and Mookerjee J.), according to their Lordships, this view of the law was in substantial accord with the decision in the cases of Amirulla v. Nazir Mahammad, 31 Cal. 932 and Amirulla v. Nazir Mahammad, 34 Cal. 104 and was distinguishable from Peari Mohan v. Badal Chandra, 28 Cal. 205, s.c., 5 C.W.N. 310 in that there the tenant's interest did not pass to the landlord by the voluntary act of the tenant.

validity of
decree.

An under-raiyat has no locus standi to question the validity of a decree of ejectment passed against the occupancy raiyat: Bishen Narain v. Chandra Kant, 37 I.C. 658; after an occupancy raiyat has been ejected from a holding for non-payment of rent, the under-raiyat is a mere trespasser and is liable to ejectment at the instance of the landlord: Ibid.

Ijaradar.

If an ijaradar purchase an occupancy holding, he acquires it as a non-occupancy holding and when he settles it with an under-tenant, the latter is an under-raiyat and he is liable to be ejected upon a notice under section 49. Sheonandan v. Ramhit Singh, 15 C.L.J. 647.

When a particular tenancy falls within s. 49 of the B. T. Act, s. 182 of that Act cannot be invoked to determine the status of the tenant. So where the under-raiyats held the homestead along with the other lands as part of their under-raiyati tenancy and the landlords sought to eject the tenants under sec. 49, held that the tenant was liable to be ejected and that he was not protected by s. 182 B. T. Act: Chandra Mohan v. Meherjan, 44 C.L.J. 311; s.c., 99 I.C. 216. (B. B. Ghose and Graham, J.J.).

8. Contract for fresh lease:—A contract, by a raiyat with his under-tenant that at the expiry of the under-raiyati lease, a fresh settlement would be made, is valid in law so far as regards the contracting parties are concerned: Abdul Karim v. Abdul Rahaman, 15 C.L.J. 672*; see also Tamajuddi v. Ashgar Howladar, 36 Cal. 256, s.c., 13 C.W.N. 183; Bepinbehari v. Amritlal, 9 C.L.J. 76; Manik Borai v. Bani Charan, 13 C.L.J. 649; but see Basaratulla v. Asirunnissa, 11 C.W.N. 190.

A kabuliyat executed by an under-raiyat provided "on the expiry of the term of the lease, I shall take a second settlement; unless I do so, I shall have no interest in the land:" on a suit for ejectment the under-raiyat stated that he was not bound by the lease and he did not express any willingness to take a settlement, held that he was liable to be ejected: Rahmatulla v. Isabuddin, 40 I.C. 616 (Fletcher and Richardson, J.J.).

Renewal
of lease.

A stipulation in a lease in favour of an under-raiyat to the effect that after the expiry of the term of nine years the raiyat will grant a lease for the same period and upon the same terms is valid: Amiruddi v. Ananda, 21 C.L.J. 507. (See in this connection the cases of Ali Mahammad v. Narayan, 15 C.L.J. 122, Lani Mia v. Muhammad, 20 C.W.N. 948).

Where an under-raiyati lease provided that on the expiry of the term (9 years), the tenant on applying for resettlement, the landlord would be bound to grant the same, held in a suit for ejectment that the covenant was too vague to be given effect to in as much as the covenant did not specify any term or amount of rent to be paid: Surendranath v. Dinavandu, 13 C.W.N. 595.

* The effect of the clause for the grant of a new lease is to prevent the landlord from seeking to eject the tenant upon the expiry of nine years; see also Ali Mahammad Bepari v. Nayan Raja Bhina, 15 C.L.J. 122.

9. Ejectment suit by a co-sharer landlord who purchased the raiyati interest:—Where a co-sharer landlord purchased a raiyati holding which had been held under him and his co-sharers and then settled it with the Defendant for a term of years, held that the defendant was an under-raiyat and was liable to be ejected on the expiry of the lease, (the case being covered by s. 22 as it stood before amendment by E. B. A. Act I of 1908), Alimuddin v. Ainuddin, 38 I.C. 534: (Fletcher and Richardson, J.J.); see also Ram Mohon v. Sheikh Kachu, 32 Cal. 386, s.c., 9 C.W.N. 249; s.c., 1 C.L.J. 1 (F.B.).

A permanent lease by a raiyat is not binding upon the landlord; Where but where a lessee from the landlord who had purchased the raiyat's interest in a rent sale brought a suit for ejecting the under-raiyat, held that the suit must fail as the under-raiyat had acquired a limited interest against the landlord by more than 12 years' possession; Purna Chandra v. Joylal, 25 C.W.N. 55 (notes portion).

10. Surplus sale proceeds:—When an under-raiyati holding is sold in execution of decree for arrears of rent the landlord has no other title to attach the same than any other creditor of the under-raiyat: Haran Chandra v. Pulin Chandra, 5 C.L.J. 35 (notes).

11. Is a lessee entitled to deny the lessor's title when the latter brings a suit for ejectment after the expiry of the lease? In a suit for ejectment on the expiry of a lease it is not open to a lessee, who was inducted on the land by the plaintiff and has been holding under a lease granted to him, to say that the latter is not the sole landlord: Alimuddin v. Ainuddin, 38 I.C. 534; (Fletcher and Richardson, J.J.). See notes at pp. 153, and 42, ante.

12. Compromise decree:—Where a tenancy is created by a compromise decree for a period of nine years, the tenant is liable to be ejected only in accordance with the provisions of the B. T. Act and not in accordance with the provisions of the contract: Gopal Krishna v. Harinath, 34 C.L.J. 159.

13. Onus:—In an action for ejectment where the plaintiff alleged that he was a raiyat and the defendants were under-raiyats: held, (on consideration of secs. 101, 102 and 109 of the Evidence Act), that the onus was upon the plaintiff to prove that the defendants were under-raiyats; Basiruddin Sarkar v. Sahebulla, 32 C.W.N. 160 (Mukerji and Mallick, J.J.).

The decisions of the Judicial Committee in Seturatanam Aiyer v. Venkatachela Goundan, 43 Mad. 567 and Nainapillai Marakayar v. Ramnathan Chettiar, 47 Mad. 337, do not indicate that their Lordships intended to depart from the elementary rules of evidence contained in secs. 101, 102 and 109 of the evidence Act. That apart from authorities and from any other consideration the elementary rule contained in sec. 101 of the Evidence Act is a rule that is inflexible and must apply to all cases: Ibid. The cases of Abhoycharan v. Futtari Dasi, 57 I.C. 838, Paran Chandra v. Khariz Mondal, 42 I.C. 262, Seturatanam Aiyer v. Venkotachela Goundan, acquired a limited interest.

Onus, lies on Plff. to prove that Defdt. is under-raiyat.

43 Mad. 567, Nainapillai Marakayar v. Ramnathan Chettiar, 47 Mad. 337 and Nubo Coomar v. Oozir, 23 W.R. 238, were referred to.

14. Under-raiyat with right of occupancy by custom :—

An under-raiyat with right of occupancy by custom is not liable to ejectment under se. 49 of the B. T. Act: Gopal Mandal v. Japai Sankari, 46 Cal. 43, s.c., 22 C.W.N. 618, s.c., 28 C.L.J. 84. See notes under s. 48 heading no. 3.

Occupancy
right of under-raiyat
by custom,
if heritable.

15. Heritability of under-raiyat with right of occupancy by custom :—The heir of an under-raiyat who acquired right of occupancy by custom, if he fails to prove heritability under a local custom, is a trespasser on the land and is liable to be ejected without any notice. Iswar Sant v. Torendra, 42 C.L.J. 560. See also Sudhanya v. Shaik Ismail, 29 C.W.N. 733.

See notes under sec. 26 heading no. 7.

In a suit for ejectment the heirs of a tenant of a non-heritable holding are not necessary parties unless they are recognised by the landlord as tenants: Jagannath v. Bhajahari, 96 I.C. 360; (Cuming and B. B. Ghosh, J.J.).

16. Partial Ejectment :—Partial ejectment can be allowed only under special circumstances, and can not be decreed as a rule. Strong case must be made out for the purpose of holding that the landlord can eject a tenant from only a part of the tenancy. On termination of an under-raiyati lease the raiyat is entitled to the possession of the share of the holding let out to him: Chandra Mohon v. Meherjan, 44 C.L.J. 311.

CHAPTER VIIA.

Restrictions on alienation of land by aboriginals.

Note :—This Chapter was inserted by B. T. (Amendment) Act (II of 1918 of the Bengal Council. It was published in the Calcutta Gazette on the 13th March, 1918.

(2) The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification published in the Calcutta Gazette, declare that the provisions of this Chapter shall, in any district or local area, apply to such of the following aboriginal castes or tribes as may be specified in the notification, and that such castes or tribes shall be deemed to be aboriginals for the purposes of this Chapter, namely:—

Sonthals of other districts, Bhuiyas, Bhumijes, Garos, Gonds, Hadis, Hajangs, Hos, Kharias, Kharwars, Kochs (Dacca Division), Koras, Maghs (Bakarganj District), Mal and Sauria Paharias, Meches, Mundas, Oraons and Turis.

(3) The publication of a notification under sub-section (2) shall be conclusive evidence that the provisions of this Chapter have been duly applied to such castes or tribes.

(4) The Local Government may, by a like notification, declare that this Chapter shall, in any district or local area, cease to apply to the Sonthals mentioned in sub-section (1) or to any caste or tribe to which it may have been applied under sub-section (2).

Application of this Chapter :—According to sub-sec. (1), this Chapter shall apply in the first instance to the Sonthals of the districts of Birbhum, Bankura and Midnapore: and according to sub-sec. (2) the Local Government may declare that the provisions of this Chapter shall apply to the aboriginal castes or tribes in any district or local area.

Under sub-sec. (2) the Local Government has by notification made the provisions applicable to the following castes or tribes in the district of Midnapur, viz., Kora, Bhumji and Munda; (See Cal : The provisions of this Chapter have been made applicable to certain aboriginal tribes in Midnapur and in a certain area within Mymensingh.

Restriction on transfer of tenant's rights.

Gaz : dated 12th April, 1922, Part I, p. 741, Notification No. 4194 L.R. dated the 10th April 1922).

The provisions of this Chapter have also been made applicable to the following castes and tribes within the police stations Nalita-bari, Halnaghat, Durgapur and Kalmakanda in the district of Mymensingh : Garos, Hadis, Hajangs and Kochs ; (See Cal. Gaz : dated the 20th June, 1923, Part I, p. 823, Notification No. 749 T. R. dated the 9th June, 1923).

Notes :—The word "holding" has not been used in this section in the strict sense of the word as defined in this Act, see s. 3 cl. (9) ; according to the definition of the word 'holding' in s. 3 cl. (9) it does not include land held by an under-raiyat. But in this section the word 'holding' has not been used in the strict sense as defined in the Act, but it has been used to mean also land held by an under-raiyat.

Lease by tenure-holder.

49C. An aboriginal tenure-holder may grant a lease to another aboriginal, to hold the land as a tenure-holder, or to cultivate it as a raiyat, in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

Sub-letting by raiyat.

49D. Subject to the provisions of section 85, an aboriginal raiyat may sub-let his holding to another aboriginal to cultivate it as an under-raiyat.

Usufructuary mortgage by tenure-holder, raiyat or under raiyat.

49E. (1) An aboriginal tenure-holder, raiyat or under-raiyat may enter with another aboriginal into a complete usufructuary mortgage in respect of any land under his own cultivation, for any period which does not and cannot, in any possible event, by any agreement, express or implied, exceed seven years, or the period of his own right, whichever is less :

Provided that every mortgage so entered into shall be registered under the Indian Registration Act, 1908.

(2) An aboriginal tenant's power to mortgage his land shall be restricted to only one form of mortgage, namely, a complete usufructuary mortgage.

Explanation.—A 'complete usufructuary mortgage' means a transfer by a tenant of the right of possession in any land for the purpose of securing the payment of money or the return of grain advanced or to be advanced by way of loan, upon the condition that the loan, with all interest thereon, shall be deemed to be extinguished by the profits arising from the land during the period of the mortgage.

49F. (1) If in any case—

(a) an aboriginal tenure-holder is unable to lease his land as provided in section 49C, or an aboriginal raiyat is unable to sublet his holding as provided in section 49D, or an aboriginal tenure-holder, raiyat or under-raiyat is unable to mortgage his land to another aboriginal as provided in section 49E, sub-section (1), or

Application to Collector for transfer in certain cases.

(b) an aboriginal tenure-holder, raiyat or under-raiyat desires to transfer his land, or any portion thereof, by private sale, gift or will to any person, he may apply to the Collector for permission, in case (a), to transfer the same to a person who is not an aboriginal, or in case (b), to transfer the same by private sale, gift or will to any person; and the Collector may pass such order on the application as he thinks fit.

(2) Every such transfer shall be made by registered deed, and before the deed is registered and the land transferred, the written consent of the Collector shall be obtained to the terms of the deed and to the transfer.

(3) Nothing in this section shall validate a transfer of any land or portion thereof which, by the terms upon which it is held, or by any law or local custom, would not be transferable except for the provisions of this section.

Mortgage :—The power of an aboriginal to effect a mortgage is restricted by S. 49E sub-sec. (2), and the permission of the Collector under s. 49F cannot enlarge the power to effect a mortgage in any other way than by a complete usufructuary mortgage: Gangaram v. Bamaṇḍa, 68 I.C. 301.

Effect of permission of Collector.

49G. No transfer by an aboriginal tenure-holder, raiyat or under-raiyat in contravention of the provisions of this Chapter shall be registered or in any way recognised as valid by any Court, whether in the exercise of civil, criminal or revenue jurisdiction.

Courts not to register, or recognize as valid, transfers in contravention of this Chapter.

Notes :—It seems that if any deed of transfer is registered in contravention of this section it should not be recognised as valid.

49H. (1) If a transfer of a tenure or holding, or any portion thereof, is made by an aboriginal tenure-holder, raiyat or under-raiyat in contravention of the provisions of section 49B, or if the transferee has continued or is in possession in contravention of the provisions of section 49E, sub-section (1), or section 49F, as the case may be, the Collector may, on his own initiative or on application made in that behalf, by an order in writing, eject the transferee from such tenure, holding or portion :

Provided that—

- (a) the transferee whom it is proposed to eject has not been in continuous possession in contravention of this Act for twelve years, and
 - (b) he is given an opportunity of showing cause against the order of ejectment.
- (2) When the Collector has passed any order under sub-section (1), he shall either—
- (a) restore the transferred land to the aboriginal tenure-holder, raiyat or under-raiyat, or his heir or legal representative, or
 - (b) failing the transferor or his heir or legal representative, declare that the right of settlement is vested in the landlord subject to the provisions of section 49J, provided that if the right is not exercised within one year, the Collector may, within six months, settle the land on behalf of the landlord on such terms as he deems fit with an aboriginal; and, if the Collector is unable to make such settlement within the said period, and unrestricted right of settlement will vest in the landlord.

Notes :—The word “holding” in sub-sec. (1) has not been used in the strict sense in which it has been defined. It has been used also to mean land held by an under-raiyat ; see notes under s. 49B.

Sub-sec. (1) is silent as to the person who is competent to make the application, but it is immaterial in as much as the Collector has the right to take action on his own initiative.

49J. (1) Whenever—

- (a) the right of settlement of any tenancy, or any portion thereof, is declared to be vested in the landlord under clause (b) of sub-section (2) of section 49H, or

Resettlement of certain tenancies

(b) an aboriginal tenant surrenders his tenancy, or a portion thereof, or abandons his residence and ceases to hold his tenancy, the landlord may, subject to the provisions of sections 86 and 87,—

- (i) settle the tenancy, or a portion thereof, with an aboriginal, or
- (ii) with the approval of the Collector in writing, settle the same with a person who is not an aboriginal or retain it in his own possession: provided that such approval shall not be withheld if the Collector is satisfied that the surrender or abandonment referred to in this sub-section is not made with the object of evading the provisions of section 49B, 49E, or 49F.

(2) If any landlord resettles or otherwise deals with any tenancy as aforesaid in contravention of the provisions of sub-section (1), the Collector may take action, so far as may be, in accordance with the provisions of section 49H.

49K. Notwithstanding anything in this Act, no decree or order shall be passed by any Court for the sale of the right of an aboriginal tenure-holder, raiyat or under-raiyat in his tenure or holding, or in any portion thereof, nor shall any such right be sold in execution of any decree or order :

Restrictions on sale of tenant's rights under order of Court.

Provided as follows :—

- (a) any tenure or holding belonging to an aboriginal may be sold, in execution of a decree of a competent Court, to recover an arrear of rent which has accrued in respect of the tenure or holding;
- (b) nothing in this section shall affect any right to execute a decree for the sale of any such tenure or holding, or the terms or conditions of any bona fide contract relating thereto, if such decree was passed, or such contract registered,—
 - (i) in the case of the Sonthals of the districts of Birbhum, Bankura and Midnapore, before the 1st November, 1916, and
 - (ii) in the case of other castes and tribes to which this Chapter has been applied, at least one year before the date of the publication of the notification under section 49A, sub-section (2), in respect to such castes or tribes;

- (c) nothing in this section shall affect any right for the sale of any such tenure or holding for the recovery of any dues which are recoverable as public demands.

Notes :—The word ‘holding’ in this section has not been used as defined in this Act, [see s. 3 cl. (9)] ; the word ‘holding’ in this section also means land held by an under-raiyat.

According to s. 65 of the Bengal Tenancy Act a permanent tenure or the holding of a raiyat at fixed rent or an occupancy raiyat may be sold in execution of a decree for arrears of rent, but the holder of a non-permanent tenure or a non-occupancy raiyat or an under-raiyat is liable to be ejected under s. 66. Section 49K so far as it makes non-permanent tenures, non-occupancy holdings and under-raiyati tenancies saleable in execution of decrees for arrears of rent is in contravention of ss. 65 and 66.

The sale of a tenure held by an aboriginal in execution of a money-decree in contravention of s. 49K, is a nullity and not merely an irregular sale: Joggeshwar v. Jhapal Santal, 28 C.W.N. 556 (N. R. Chatterjea and Panton, J.J.).

Stay of execution
of decrees.

49L. If the sale of a tenure or holding, or any portion thereof, is ordered in execution of a decree against an aboriginal tenure-holder, raiyat or under-raiyat in respect of such tenancy or portion thereof, the Court executing the decree shall allow the tenant reasonable time in which to pay the amount due.

Note :—In this section also the word “holding” has not been used in the strict sense in which it has been defined in this Act.

Appeal and revision.

49M. (1) An appeal, if presented within thirty days from the date of the order appealed against, shall lie to the Collector of the district from any order made under sections 49F, 49H or 49J by any officer in the district exercising the powers of a Collector, and the order of the Collector on appeal shall be final:

Provided that every order passed by the Collector on appeal shall be subject to revision and modification by the Commissioner.

(2) Notwithstanding anything in sub-section (1), an appeal from any order made under any of the sections mentioned in that sub-section by an officer acting under Chapter X of this Act shall be to such officer as the Local Government may appoint in this behalf, and the orders of such officer on appeal shall be final.

Provided that, in every such case, every order passed by the said officer on appeal shall be subject to revision and modification by such officer as the Local Government may appoint to deal therewith.

(3) An appeal, as provided in sub-section (1), shall be made to the Commissioner from any original order made by the Collector of the district under any of the sections mentioned in that sub-section.

49N. Notwithstanding anything in this Act, no order shall lie in any Civil Court to vary or set aside any order passed by the Collector in any proceeding under this Chapter except on the ground of fraud or want of jurisdiction.

Bar to suits.

9. Nothing in this Chapter shall affect the validity of any transfer (not otherwise invalid) by a raiyat, raiyat or under-raiyat of his tenure or any portion thereof, made bona fide,— Saving of certain transfers.

in the case of the Sonthals of the districts of Birbhum, Bankura and Midnapore before the 1st November, 1916, and in the case of other castes and tribes to which this Chapter has been applied, at least one year before the date of the publication of the notification under section 49A, sub-section (2), in respect to such castes or tribes.

CHAPTER VIII.

GENERAL PROVISIONS AS TO RENT.

*Rules and
presumptions as to amount of rent.*

*Rules and
presumptions as to fixity of rent*

Rules and presumptions as to amount of rent.

50. (1) Where a tenure-holder or raiyat and predecessors in interest have held at a rent or rate which has not been changed from the time of Permanent Settlement, the rent or rate of rent shall be liable to be increased except on the ground of alteration in the area of the tenure or holding.

(2) If it is proved in any suit or other proceeding under this Act that either a tenure-holder or his predecessors in interest have held at a rent or rate which has not been changed during a certain number of years immediately before the institution of the proceeding, it shall be presumed, until the contrary is shown, that they have held at that rent or rate from the time of the Permanent Settlement.

Provided that if it is required by any local enactment that in any local area tenancy of certain classes of tenancies, at fixed rents or rates, shall be registered as such on, or before, a certain date under the enactment, the foregoing provisions shall not after that date apply to any tenancy of that class unless the tenancy has been so registered.

(3) The operation of this section shall not extend to land held by a raiyat, shall not extend to the fact of the land having been separated from other land which formed with it a single holding or to the fact of the land having been joined with other land into one holding.

(4) Nothing in this section shall apply to land held for a term of years or for a term of years determinable by the tenant.

6. WHERE THE PRESUMPTION IN THIS SECTION APPLIES AND WHERE NOT.
7. WHICH HAS NOT BEEN CHANGED.
8. ONUS.

16. SUB-SECTION (4).

1. Construction of the section :—

According to the case of Abhoy Sankar v. Rajani Mandal, 22 C.W.N. 904 ; s.c., 29 C.L.J., 371 (vide observations of Richardson, J., 22 C.W.N. at page 907 and 29 C.L.J. at page 375) the following words should be added after the word “held” in sub-sections (1) and (2).

“A tenure or holding” or “land constituting a tenure or holding.”

2. Presumption—Rule of evidence—a cherished right :— Presump-
The presumption under sec. 50 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, “although tion, it might be in one sense considered a rule of evidence, is to the tenants whether a of this province a cherished right granted to them so long ago as right or rule 1859* in consideration, it may be, of his general ignorance and in- of evidence.
capacity to cope with the superior intelligence and ways and means of his land-lord” : Pirithi Chand Lal v. Basarat Ali, 37 Cal. 30 at p. 39 (F.B.) ; s.c., 13 C.W.N. 1149 ; s.c., 10 C.L.J. 343.

3. Object of Sec. 50 :—The object of the Legislature in providing for the presumption as to fixity of rent mentioned in this section is to provide, in suits or proceedings under this Act, an easy method of determination of the rights of the parties ; Nityananda v.
Nandakumar, 13 C.L.J. 415 at 417. See also Prankrishna v. Mukta
Sundari, 18 C.L.J. 193.

4 Rent in Kind :—The presumption under this section applies also in cases where the rent is payable in kind or partly payable in money and in kind ; Manmatha v. Probodh, 37 C.L.J. 52 ; Dinanath
v. Sati Prasad, 27 C.W.N. 1151 ; s.c., 36 C.L.J. 220.

5. Ss. 50 & 115 :—When application under sec. 105 of this Act is made for settlement of rent, the presumption under sec. 50 arises : Pirithchand v. Basarat Ali, 37 Cal. 30, (F.B.), s.c., 13 C.W.
N. 1149, s.c., 10 C.L.J. 343.

But once the record of rights is finally prepared after all chances of correction under Chap. X are over, the presumption under sec. 50 does not apply in view of s. 115 ; Prasannakumar v. Durgacharan, 49 Cal. 919, s.c., 26 C.W.N. 947, s.c., 36 C.L.J. 291. See also Bamandas v. Sadhu Majhi, 26 C.W.N. 945.

See Notes under Sec. 115.

6. Where the presumption under this section applies and where not :—Sub-sec. (2) of this section is expressly limited in its Presumpapplication to a suit or proceeding under this Act and has no applica- tion under this section

tion in suits which are not under this Act but are suits under the general law for ejectment of an alleged trespasser: Nilmoni v. Mathura, 4 C.W.N. 159 (notes), s.c., 5 C.L.J. 413; Gouri Kant v. Ramgopal, 2 C.L.J. 380; Rasamoy v. Srinath, 7 C.W.N. 132; Sarat v. Shyam Chand, 10 C.W.N. 930; Nandalal v. Atarmoni, 12 C.W.N. 432; Juggobandhu v. Magnamoyee, 44 Cal. 555, s.c., 22 C.W.N. 89; Santosh Kumar v. Rakhal Chandra, 43 C.L.J. 104.

Apart from
s. 50, if any presumption arises,

It has however been held that even in cases where presumption under sec. 50 is not directly applicable, the court may act on a presumption similar to the one arising under this section, if the facts justify the necessary consequence; Buzlal Karim v. Satischandra, 15 C.W.N. 752, s.c., 13 C.L.J. 418; Prankrishna v. Muktasundari, 18 C.L.J. 193. It has been held that apart from the B. T. Act, a presumption of a contract to hold at fixed rates may arise when there has been a uniform payment of rent for more than 20 years; Santosh Kumar v. Rakhal Chandra, 43 C.L.J. 104. See also Dulhin Golab Koeri v. Balla Kurmi, 25 Cal. 744, s.c., 2 C.W.N. 580, which was distinguished in the case of Rasamoy v. Srinath, 7 C.W.N. 132 on the ground that the question in that case arose in a proceeding under this Act. In cases to which the presumption under sec. 50 is not applicable the court is entitled to consider the facts in view of all the circumstances and determine whether it was not a just inference that the holding bears a fixed rental; Rajmohini v. Nagendra, 94 I.C. 310. (Suhrawardy and Mukerji, J.J.).

It cannot be held in a case brought under the Bengal Tenancy Act that any presumption arises as to the fixity of rent from mere payment of the same rate of rent for a number of years apart from the presumption arising under section 50 of the Act. To hold otherwise would be to require every landlord to enhance the rent of every tenant under him at certain intervals of time which he might not himself desire to do: Brajadas v. Bankim Chandra, 51 Cal. 454.

Although s. 50 does not apply when the question of the permanency or otherwise of a tenure arises in a proceeding for the apportionment between landlord and tenant of money awarded for compulsory purchase of land, the principle involved in this section is a useful guide to the Courts in deciding it: Nanda Lal v. Atarmoni, 12 C.W.N. 432. This case was followed in the case of Gulab Misser v. Kumar Kalanand, 14 C.W.N. 884; s.c., 12 C.L.J. 107; there were three suits for declaration of the status of certain tenants and it was proved that the tenants held at the same rents for 27, 60 and 57 years, held that apart from any presumption under s. 50, a presumption arose that the status of the plaintiffs was that of raiyats holding at rents fixed in perpetuity: Ibid. These cases were followed in the case of Pirithi Chand v. Sheikh Mahomed, 1 P.L.J. 67, where it was held that even when a suit is not one under the B. T. Act, evidence of long payment at an unchanged rate is relevant as showing that the plaintiff has a holding at fixed rates.

Ejectment
suit.

It does not apply to a suit for damages under the Small Cause Court Act; Nilmani v. Mathura Nath, 4 C.W.N. 159 (notes); s.c., 5 C.L.J. 413. This case has been followed in the case of Rasamoy v. Sreenath, 7 C.W.N. 132; in this case it has been held that in a suit to recover possession of land treating the defendant as a trespasser this section does not apply unless the defendant makes out that he is a tenant.

Where a landlord brings a suit for ejectment on the allegation that his tenant who had a non-transferable holding has sold to a third person (one of the defendants) and has abandoned the holding, held that s. 50 has no application to such a case as it is not a suit, or proceeding under this Act: Sarat Chandra v. Syam Chand, 10 C. W.N. 930; see also Mahabir v. Charles Fox, 9 C.L.J. 467, Golab Misser v. Kumar, 14 C.W.N. 884, Bazlal Karim v. Satis Chandra, 15 C.W.N. 752, s.c., 13 C.L.J. 418; Prankrishna v. Muktasundari, 18 C.L.J. 193. In an ejectment suit s. 50 is not directly applicable, but the Court may act on a presumption similar to the one arising under the section, if the facts justify the necessary inference; Manmotha Nath v. Probodh Chandra, 37 C.L.J. 52. The mere fact of payment of rent at an uniform rate for any number of years, apart from the presumption that can be raised under sec. 50 does not raise any presumption of fixity of rent; Yakub Ali v. Raj Kumar, 65 I.C. 527.

The mere fact that a tenancy has been held by the predecessor-in-interest of the tenants for several generations and that the rent paid has been uniform for over 50 years is not sufficient in law in the absence of any other circumstance to shew that the rent was fixed for ever or that the tenancy was a permanent one: Satis Chandra Ghose v. Debendra Nath Dey, 85 I.C. 636 (Per Mukerji, J.).

For the purpose of the presumption arising under sec. 50 (2) of the B. T. Act, in order that a tenant has been holding at a uniform payment of rent for twenty years it is not necessary that he should prove payment of rent for all those years and produce dakhilas for every one of those twenty years. Uniform payment for the wanting years may be proved otherwise, by other proof and from surrounding circumstances: Golam Husain v. K. S. Bonnerjee, 30 C.W.N. 520 (Walmsley and Mukerji, J.J.).

Dakhilas for 20 Years not necessary

Where the Special Judge arrived at a finding against the tenant merely relying on the dakhilas produced and not considering the oral evidence adduced, held that the finding having been arrived at on a misunderstanding of the principle laid down in judicial decisions was liable to be set aside and it was open to the High Court to deal with the case upon the admitted facts and to hold that in view of the circumstances proved in the case the tenants were entitled to the presumption contained in sec. 50 sub-sec. (2) of the B. T. Act: Ibid.

In order to avail of the presumption under s. 50, Cl. (2) it is not necessary for the tenant to prove actual payment of rent for 20 years consecutively; so where dakhilas for three years of uniform rent for the same quantity of land were proved, and there was an interval of 12 years between the first dakhila and the second, held in the absence of evidence of change in the quantity of land and rent payable by the tenant, that the tenant is entitled to the presumption: Pran Chandra v. Kanta Mohon, 39 C.L.J. 437.

When rent at a certain rate was uniform from 1845 to 1897 and there was no actual payment from that time for 17 years before the institution of the suit and the rent was not altered from 1897 to the date of the suit (1915), held that s. 50 applied: Mohini Kant v. Preo Nath, 49 Cal. 661, s.c., 35 C.L.J. 309; proof of actual payment for twenty years at a uniform rate is not necessary to be proved: Ibid.

In order to entitle a tenant to claim a presumption under this section actual payment for 20 years is not necessary to prove; production of receipts for 20 continuous years is not necessary: Satis Chandra Biswas v. Nilmadhab Saha, 37 C.L.J. 598.

It is not necessary to prove payment of rent at the same rate for 20 years under s. 50. It is sufficient if the defendants can show that the rent or rate of rent remained unchanged for 20 years previous to the date of the suit even though a single years' rent is not paid: Jiban Naskar v. Muralidhar, 97 I.C. 513.

"In order to take the benefit of the presumption which the law allows to be raised from proof of the fact that rents have not varied for 20 years previous to the suit, raiyats can give what is the best proof of non-variation, viz., that they have paid uniformly for the 20 years preceding the suit. Then the best evidence of payment being receipts, these are ordinarily filed to support the plea. When receipts are filed not for the entire period of 20 years preceding suit, but some are wanting here, and some there in that interval still uniform payment may be proved otherwise for the wanting years by other proof, and from surrounding circumstances." (Per Bayley and Pundit, J.J.), Elahee Buksh v. Roopun, 7 W.R. 284. "It is not absolutely necessary that dakhilas should be for 20 consecutive years before the date of suit for it might frequently happen that parties, with every right to the presumption, might lose one or two dakhilas here and there during such a long period; and it would be manifestly unjust to deprive them of the benefit allowed by law when no suspicion could arise of misfeasance merely because one or two of these receipts has been mislaid or lost. In the present case the missing dakhilas are for years about the middle of the period, and we do not think that their non-appearance should defeat the special appellant's claim to the presumption." (Per Glover and Campbell, J.J.), Kattiyani v. Soonduree, 2 W.R. Act X, 60.

The twenty years' uniform rent must be proved by full legal evidence and cannot be presumed from any evidence however strong: Rajnarain v. Olivia Atkins, 3 Rev. Jud. & Police Journal, p. 161.

When once a tenant has produced rent-receipts covering a period of 20 years at a uniform rate he is entitled to the presumption under s. 50 (2) and it is for the landlord to shew that the person who was formerly on the land was not the predecessor of the tenant: Gopal Chandra v. Mahomed Soleman, 22 C.W.N. 126.

Where the tenant produced rent-receipts by saying that he had received the receipt on payment of rent, held that this was sufficient proof and that it was not necessary that the person whose signature it bore was not examined: Surj Kant v. Banerwar, 24 Cal. 251, also see Rajmahomed v. Banoo Rasmah, 12 W.R. 34; and Madhub Chunder v. Promotha Nath, 20 W.R. 264. It is perfectly open to a Court which has to deal with the facts of a case to say, whether, taking the receipts which extend over a number of years together and having regard to the fact that the receipts did not specify the years to which the amounts relate, the amounts paid in any particular year are partly for the rents of that year and partly for the arrears due in respect of previous years: Surja Kant v. Banerwar, 24 Cal. 251.

Ordinarily in order to prove that rent has not varied, raiyats can give the best evidence, viz., rent-receipts; if however the zemindar's papers prove that a raiyat has been holding at a rent or rate of rent which has not been changed during the 20 years immediately before the institution of the suit it is not necessary for the raiyat to produce rent-receipts: Madhusudan v. Jamiruddin, 21 C.W.N. 116 (notes); s.c., 41 I.C. 767.

S. 50 cl. (2) does not apply to a case where the lands are hajabad (liable to inundation) and the tenant gets remission of the full rent or a part of the rent: Bijoy Chand v. Akhil Bhuiya, 51 Cal. 314, s.c., 28 C.W.N. 529. The case of Radha Gobind v. Kyamtollah, 21 W.R. 401 was distinguished on the ground that the abatement of rent was allowed in a lump sum upon a lump jama for portion of land having been rendered unculturable by the overflow of a river and the abatement of rent was proportionate to the land made unculturable. Hajabad lands i.e., lands liable to inundation.

Where a tenant is not entitled to the presumption under s. 50, a finding that he proved fixity of rent by 48 years' uniform payment of rent was not considered sufficient to prove this: Kesto Prasad v. Issur Dubey, 71 I.C. 15. 48 years' uniform payment of rent not sufficient

In a proceeding for enhancement of rent it was held that the tenancy should be considered to have originated at the date when the previous tenancy expired and the tenant continued to hold over; and a presumption under s. 50 will not arise in such a case where the tenant held at a fixed rent for 20 years: Uday v. Mahomed Ali, 65 I.C. 589. when tenant not entitled to presumption. Holding over.

Where it is proved that an additional sum (not being an abwab) was paid by a tenant, it would rebut the presumption under s. 50: Rajeswar v. Bahadur Singh, 63 I.C. 317. Payment of additional sum which is not an abwab.

S. 50 of the B. T. Act has no application to a case where the origin of the tenancy is known: Secretary of State v. Sarat Chandra, 40 C.L.J. 235. See also Secretary of State v. Ram Charan, 70 I.C. 207. Origin of tenancy known.

Where the origin of the tenancy was unknown, the rent was paid at a uniform rate for more than 50 years, and the lease was for dwelling purpose, held that it could be inferred that the tenancy was permanent and heritable: Pramathanatha v. Raja Bejoy Singh, 44 C.L.J. 587 (B. B. Ghosh and Cammiade, J.J.). Where origin unknown.

Where there is a temporary kabuliyat for a term of years the presumption of a fixed tenure from the time of the permanent settlement goes: Birendra Kisore Manikya v. Johiruddin, 94 I.C. 26 (Greaves and Panton, J.J.).

Where rent has not been changed for a long time this does not shew that the tenant was a permanent one: Jyati Prasad v. Dasrath, 36 C.L.J. 73.

There is nothing in the nature of a ghatwali tenure to shew that as long as such a tenure existed the presumption under s. 50 could not, by reason of s. 181 of the Act arise: Gouri Kanta v. Ram Gopal, 2 C.L.J. 379. Ghatwali tenure.

The addition of the word "kaimi" to "settled raiyats" has not the effect of making the entry a bad entry, so as to bar the operation of s. 50. Kaimi.

The court is not precluded from drawing the appropriate inference from the facts proved by evidence on the record because s. 50 has no application. Payment of rent at an unvarying rate for more than 20 years is not in itself sufficient to establish that the tenancies are held at a fixed rate: Shyama v. Fakir, 101 I.C. 45. (Mukerji and Graham, J.J.).

New Tenancy.

Where a landlord purchases a holding at a rent sale and re-settles the land with the same tenant, the continuance of the old tenancy is broken and the presumption under s. 50 of the Bengal Tenancy Act does not apply: Ramanath v. Jagannath, 106 I.C. 136 (Cuming and Roy, J.J.).

A new tenancy is created when a tenant sells or transfers a portion of his holding and the landlord recognises the transferee, and the presumption under s. 50 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, similarly, ceases to apply: Ibid. See also Dhirendra Nath v. Ahamed Mia, 30 C.W.N. 765 (Chakravarti, J.).

Where uniform payment of rent was proved for more than 20 years but the grant by the lease was for a particular term at a fixed rent and which gave to the landlord the right at the expiration of the term to settle the land with whomsoever he pleased, held that it cannot be taken as a mere recognition of a previous tenancy and therefore the document negatives the presumption under s. 50, Dharani Kant v. Ismail Sheikh, 45 I.C. 221.

Where four originally separate tenures were in 1853 amalgamated and by a kabuliyat of that year the tenant expressly stipulated to pay enhanced rent, it was held that the presumption under sec. 50 (2) arising from proof of payment of rent at the same rate for 20 years before the suit was rebutted: Upendra v. Gopicharan, 22 C.W.N. 321, s.c., 31 C.L.J. 12 (N.R. Chatterjea and Newbould, J.J.).

Stipulation in the Kabuliyat for enhanced rent in future, if rebutts
presumption

Where there was an express stipulation in a kabuliyat (dated the year 1840) that the tenant would pay enhanced rent according to the Pergunna rate, held that the tenant was not entitled to get the presumption under s. 50 by shewing payment of uniform rent for 20 years; Upendra Nath v. Dwarka Nath, 22 C.W.N. 322, N. R. Chatterjea and Newbould J.J., in deciding the case remarked as follows: "The Kabuliyat may be considered either as a new contract under which the tenants agreed to pay enhanced rent, or as a contract containing recitals of the incidents of the tenancy which was in existence from before. In either view of the matter it shews that the rent was enhancible." This case was considered and distinguished in the case of Abhoy v. Rajani, 22 C.W.N. 904,* s.c., 29 C.L.J. 371, but it seems that the observations of their Lordships (Tennon and Richardson, J.J.), are contrary to the rule laid down in the case of Upendra Nath v. Dwarkanath, 22 C.W.N. 322. The case in 22 C.W.N. 322 seems to have taken a sounder view.

Where a purchaser of a non-transferable occupancy holding was recognised as a tenant of the previous jama upon his executing a kabuliyat in which shares separately purchased were amalgamated and there was a stipulation of enhancement of rent at specified rates for different classes of land upon a measurement in future, held that in the circumstances of the case the kabuliyat created a new tenancy, and the tenant was not entitled to the presumption under sec. 50 of the B. T. Act: Dhirendranath Roy v. Ahamed Mia, 30 C.W.N. 765 (Chakravarti J.). The case of Abhoy Sankar v. Rajani, 22 C.W.N. 904 was referred to. It has been held however in the case of

* In the case of Abhoy Sankar v. Rajani, 22 C.W.N. 904 Tennon J., accepted the translation of the words in the Kabuliyat কামি বেশী হুদে (Kamī Beshi Sūtre) as "less or more." It is submitted with great respect that the proper translation is "liable to enhancement or reduction."

Jitendranath v. Abejannessa, 30 C.W.N. 1038 (Cuming and B. B. Ghosh J.J.) that an agreement to pay rent at an enhanced rate at some future time does not constitute a change in the rate of rent under sec. 50 of the B. T. Act and such an agreement by itself does not rebut the presumption under cl. (2) of the section.

See notes under heading no. 7.

7. Which has not been changed:—In order to rebut the presumption arising under s. 50 cl. (2), it seems that the change of rent which is not substantial should be considered to be sufficient but the contrary rule was laid down in the cases in 1 W.R. 230 ; 4 W.R. 33, 7 W.R. 282 that the change should be a substantial one. All these cases were considered by B. B. Ghosh J. and it was held dissenting from those cases that the change need not be a substantial one and that the change of rent by one pice per kani was sufficient to rebut the presumption: Dwijadas v. Dearish, 28 C.W.N. 207 (notes) 29 July 1924. This decision was affirmed on Letters Patent Appeal by Cuming and Mukerji J.J., 44 C.L.J. 103 (12 Jan. 1926). See also Prasanna v. Mahananda, 40 I.C. 553.

Slight variation, if sufficient to rebut presumption.

But a contrary view was taken in the case of Alimuddin v. K. S. Bonnerjee, 29 C.W.N. 500, s.c., 41 C.L.J. 135 (Suhrawardy and Cuming J.J.), and it was held that where it was a slight change—an increase of 6 pies i.e. from Rs. 4/6 to Rs. 4/6/6, this variation did not debar the tenant from claiming the presumption even though the change is unexplained. The case of Tarakumar v. Arunchandra, 36 C.L.J. 389 was relied on. The decision of B. B. Ghosh J. in the case of Dwijadas v. Dearish, 28 C.W.N. 207 (notes) was not referred to.

It is submitted that the view taken by B. B. Ghosh J., affirmed on Letters Patent Appeal in 44 C.L.J. 103 has taken the correct view.

The variation between the dowl jumma of sicca rupees 614 and 15 annas and the defendant's admitted jumma Rs. 587 equal to Company's rupees 624-2-2 was held not to be such a variation as to preclude the admitted jumma being considered a fixed jumma: Huronath v. Ameer Biswas, 1 W.R. 230. (In the year 1836 the sicca jumma rupees were finally declared not to be legal tender: Charitar Rai v. Kailash Behari, 1918 Pat. 145 at p. 149). A mere variation in the rate of rent will not have a variation unless it be shewn that the tenant submitted to the varied and enhanced rate: W. M. Grant v. Harsahai Singh, 18 C.L.J. 76 ; see also Gopal v. Nubbo Kishen, 5 W.R. Act X 83. The variation arising from the change of sicca rupees into Company's rupees is no proof of any real change of rent: Kalai Churan v. Shashee Dossee, 1 W.R. 248 ; Kattyani v. Soonduree, *2 W.R. Act X p. 60. A nominal reduction in the jumma of one anna and three pies is not a variation that deprives a tenant of the benefit of the presumption: Ramratno v. Chunder Mookhee, 2 W.R. X, p. 74. See also Karoona v. Shib Chunder, 6 W.R. Act X, 50 ; Monsoor Ali v. Bunna Singh, 7 W.R. 282 ; Ellahee Buksh v. Roopun, 7 W.R. 284. Additional rent for additional land and the addition of a small illegal cess are not such variations as to deprive the tenant of the presumption: Sumeroodin v. Huronath, 2 W.R. Act X, 93. Where an abatement is allowed for lands rendered unculturable it is not such a variation as to deprive the tenant of the presumption: Radha Govind v. Kyamatulla, 21 W.R. 401. When a certain area of a holding was given to one tenant and certain area to another, and the rate of the jumma of the aliquot parts was not in proportion to the whole jumma but the whole jumma remained the same and unaffected, held that the tenant was entitled to the presumption: Gopal Chunder v. Muthoor Mohun, 3 W.R. Act X, 132. Where there was a variation in the total jumma from 60 to 61 rupees which seemed to have occurred many years ago and was not explained, held that it was not a material variation such as to deprive the tenant of the benefit of the presumption: Anund Lall v. James Hills, 4 W. R. Act X, 33. Relying on this case it was held that the presumption was not rebutted by shewing that there were slight variations between 1878 and 1884, which was sufficiently explained by very nearly corresponding variation on the area: W. M. Grant v. Har Sahay, 19 C.W.N. 117. Where the variation is as much as six annas on an alleged rental of Rs. 2-8 per bigha, it rebuts the presumption as arising out of s. 50: Rajah Singh v. Kishun Behari, 1917 Pat. 261, s.c., 41 I.C. 499. A change of money rent into rent in kind does not shew a variation in the rate of rent: Miterjeet v. Toondun, 12 W.R. 14.

Addition of a small illegal cess is not a variation: Sumeroodin v. Huronath, 2 W.R. Act X, 93. The mere fact of a tenant having been at some time forced to pay a higher rent is not sufficient to entitle the landlord to claim an enhanced rent: Goluck v. Sandes, 5 W.R. Act X 32.

The difference between Rs. 11-13 and Rs. 13-14 is sufficient to destroy the presumption of a uniform payment of rent: Bissessur v. Wooma Churn, 7 W.R., 44.

Sub-section (1) refers to the fact that whatever the contract might be, where the rent has not as a matter of fact, been changed from the time of the Permanent Settlement, the conditions laid down in it should prevail: Jitendra Nath Roy v. Banku Behari Saha, 96 I.C. 565 (Cuming and B. B. Ghosh J.J.).

uniformity
of rent.

8. Onus :—Where a tenant claims exemption from enhancement of rent under s. 50 the onus lies on him to prove the uniformity of rent as required by this section: Govindo Priya v. Ralan Dhupi, 4 C.L.J. 37. Where it was alleged that the tenant voluntarily abandoned a mokurari tenure and accepted a variable tenure instead, held that the onus lay upon the landlord to prove this allegation: Goluck v. Sandes, 5 W.R. Act X, 32.

9. Predecessor in interest :—This section entitles the holder of the land for the time being, however he may acquire it, to the benefit of the presumption, if he can shew that there has been a continuous and uniform payment of the same rent for 20 years: Tirthanund Thakoor v. Herdu Jha, 9 Cal. 252.

Permanent Settlement.

10. Permanent Settlement :—When a question arises as to whether a tenant is entitled to the presumption under s. 50, cl. (2) of the Bengal Tenancy Act, the fact that the estate within which the tenure in question is situated was not permanently settled in the year 1793 does not make any difference: Tamasha Bibi v. Ashutosh Dhur, 4 C.W.N. 513. The date of the Permanent Settlement in the district of Jessore was the 11th April 1790: Huro Nath v. Ameen Biswas, 1 W.R. 231. Though certain provisions of Reg. 111 of 1828 go to shew that the Sunderbans, up to that date continued the property of the State and had not been permanently settled with any one, that was intended to be said generally with regard to the tract of country known as Sunderbans as a whole, and it could not have been intended to undo the effect of any lease granted by any duly-constituted Revenue authority. (Per Banerjee, J.), Tamasha Bibi v. Ashutosh Dhur, 4 C.W.N. 513.

The "Permanent Settlement" means the Permanent Settlement of 1793; so where an estate was permanently settled in 1905, the tenant to entitle him to claim the presumption under s. 50 must shew that he has been holding from 1793: Osman Mondal v. Radhika Mohan, 27 C.W.N. 647, the cases of Tamasha Bibi v. Ashutosh, 4 C.W.N. 513, and Khettermoni v. Jiban Krishna, 21 C.L.J. 315 were referred to.

The fact that a jama was created after the Permanent Settlement and therefore no presumption arose under s. 50 of the B. T. Act does not deprive the tenant to establish by evidence that there was a contract that the rent of the tenure should not be enhanced: Gopi Mohan Majumdar v. Nawab Bahadur of Murshidabad, 20 C.W.N. 723.

II. Alteration of area:—Additional rent for additional land does not shew that the old rent for the old land has increased: Sumeroodin v. Huronath, 2 W.R., Act X. 93. Where an abatement is allowed for lands rendered unculturable it is not such a variation as to deprive the tenant of the presumption: Radha Govind v. Kyamtulla, 21 W.R., 401.

Whether there is one or a series of tenancies or whether the land is held under the same landlord or different landlords is immaterial. It is sufficient for the purpose of the section that the rent or rate of rent has been the same from the time of the Permanent Settlement. Where it is provided by a kabuliyat that if the lands are measured and on measurement the tenant is found to be in possession of more land than what he is paying rent for he will pay rent for that excess land at the higher rate paid by the neighbouring tenants, the kabuliyat does not alter, nor does it propose to alter the rent or rate of rent within s. 50: Umesh Ch. Das Gupta v. Bepin Behari, 97 I.C. 546, s.c., A.I.R. (1927) Cal. 75 (Cuming and Page J.J.).

The tenants by holding additional lands for additional rent and paying the same along with the old rent and the old area do not lose the presumption as regards the old area and the old rent also, but the tenants are not entitled to the presumption for the added area although they are entitled to the presumption for the area which they held as was presumed before the Permanent Settlement. The onus of proving what the old area was and what the area is subsequently added, is upon the tenants, and if they show what the old rents were then they are entitled to the presumption under s. 50 so far as the old tenancy is concerned: Hem Chandra v. Girish Chandra, 92 I.C. 107, (Cuming and Chakrabarti, J.J.).

The presumption under sec. 50 (2) applies even if there has been an alteration in the area: Modhusudan v. Jamiruddin, 21 C.W.N. 116 (notes), s.c., 41 I.C. 767.

S. 50 (2) applies when an abatement has been allowed of a portion of the holding which has gone out of cultivation, if the abatement bears to the whole rent the same proportion that the land given up does to the whole area: Genu Sheikh v. Taramani, 41 I.C. 259.

Applicability of Cl. (3) Conflict of case law.

12. Cl. (3)—Splitting up or amalgamation of holding or tenure :—The Zemindar, by consenting to a sub-division of, addition to, or subtraction from, the total holding of the raiyat, does not destroy the continuity of the tenure in respect of the rate of rent : James Hill v. Huro Lal, 3 W.R. Act X, 135. A consolidation of several jummas into one tenure does not deprive a tenant of the benefit of the presumption : Kazee Khoda v. Nobo Kishore, 5 W.R. Act X, 53. The principle laid down in this decision applies equally to jummas which have been derived in part or in whole with the consent of the landlord, and which are subsequently consolidated into one jumma : Raj Kishore v. Huree Hur, 10 W.R., 117. The presumption was held to be rebutted where four tenures were amalgamated by one kabuliyat and rent was enhanced : Upendra Nath v. Gopi Charan, 22 C.W.N. 321, and also where the tenant expressly stipulated by a kabuliyat to pay enhanced rent at the purgana rate : Upendra Nath v. Dwarkanath, 22 C.L.J. 322. The presumption is not restricted to holding but refers simply to the fact that land has been held by a tenant which has not been changed for a period of 20 years before the commencement of the suit : Ibid. A tenant in order to be entitled to the presumption is only concerned to shew that the particular land which is the subject of suit has been held at an unchanged rent since the time of the Permanent Settlement and it is not important that that land should throughout that period have remained a separate holding : Kasee Nath v. Bama Sundari, 10 W.R., 429 ; see also Sudhamukta v. Ramgati, 20 W.R. 419.

“The cases of Kasee Nath v. Bamasundari, 10 W.R., 429 and Sudhamukta v. Ramgati, 20 W.R., 419 shew that the principle now embodied in sub-sec. (3) of s. 50 of the Bengal Tenancy Act is in accordance with the decisions of this Court under the Bengal Rent Recovery Act of 1859 : Adit Singh v. Sakhranj Rai, 17 C.L.J. 435 at p. 437.

When lands of a tenancy have been subdivided, if a question arises whether new tenancies have been created, the answer must depend upon the intention of the parties ; no inflexible rule apart from intention can be laid down : Mulluck Chand v. Satis Chandra, 11 C.L.J. 56.

The amalgamation of four tenures into one by one lease and where there was no suggestion that the incidents were the same, held that the kabuliyat created a new tenancy and the presumption arising out of sub-sec. (2) was rebutted : Upendra Nath v. Gopi Charan, 44 I.C. 595 ; but see Bissessur v. Rajendra, 18 C.W.N. 949.

Once it is shewn that any of the constituent parts of the tenure was not held at an uniform rent, no presumption can arise as to the tenure having been held at an uniform rent from the time of the Permanent Settlement : Manmatha Nath v. Anath Bandhu, 23 C. W.N. at p. 216, col. 2.

Where a tenure which was being held at a rent of Rs. 4-8 from before the Permanent Settlement but subsequently it was split up into two tenancies at Rs. 2-4 each, held that there was a splitting up and the tenant was not entitled to get the presumption under s. 50 : Uday v. Nripendra, 36 Cal. 287, s.c., 13 C.W.N. 410 ; this case was commented on in the case of Chandra Kant v. Ram Krishna, 20 C. W.N. 1002, s.c., 24 C.L.J. 275, and the contrary proposition of law was laid down by Mookerjee J., relying upon James Hills v. Huro

Lal, 3 W.R. Act X, Rul. 13 and Kazee Khoda Newaz v. Naba Kishore, 5 W.R. Act X, Rul. 53 that the continuity of a transferable tenure is not affected by sub-division or consolidation. The case of Uday v. Nripendra, 36 Cal. 287 was dissented from by Mookerjee and Rankin J.J. in the case of Krishna Kamini v. Nilmadhab, 36 C.L.J. 382, where it was held that the operation of sub-secs. 1 and 2 of s. 50 is not excluded by reason of sub-division or amalgamation of tenure; sub-sec. (1) contains the substantive rule on the subject of protection from enhancement, while sub-sec. (2) deals merely with the mode of proof; sub-sec. (3) is enacted solely with a view to secure the position of raiyats and not with a view to injure the position of tenure-holder. The case of Krishna Kamini v. Nilmadhab, 36 C.L.J. 382 was followed in the case of Tarakumar v. Arunchandra, 36 C.L.J. 389 (Mookerjee and Chotzner, J.J.).

The operation of s. 50 (3) is affected by the fact of the land having been separated from other land which formed with it a single holding, or amalgamated with other land into one holding. The addition of other parcels to the original holding as well as the increase in the rental, change the incidents of the original holding and admittedly a new holding is created: Kasimali v. K. S. Bonnerjee, 101 I.C. 347. (Duval and Mitter J.J.).

13. It shall be presumed:—"Under the Bengal Tenancy Act, ^{Presump-} if for twenty years or more the landlord abstains from enforcing ^{tion.} enhancement this in itself confers no right upon the tenant, but merely gives rise to a presumption": Birendra Kishore v. Mahomed Daulat Khan, 43 Cal. 59 (Per Teunon, J., Sanderson, C.J., concurring). Where a tenant has paid rent for over 20 years prior to the date of suit at a uniform rate which has not changed, the presumption of law under s. 50, cl. (2) would arise if there is no allegation or proof that a tenancy commenced in a particular year after the Permanent Settlement, the mere fact that the tenant shews by documentary evidence that the rate of rent has not been changed from a particular year would not preclude him from the benefit of the presumption given by cl. (2); Sheikh Mongola v. Maharajah Kumud Chandra, 5 C.W.N. 60.

Where a raiyat holds at a rate of rent which had not been changed during the 20 years immediately before the institution of the suit or proceeding, it ought to be presumed that he has held at that rent or rate of rent from the time of the Permanent Settlement, and the fact, that he held at that rent or rate of rent, raises, in fact, the presumption, apart from the Act, that the original contract was a contract to hold at fixed rates and would be evidence from which any judge of fact could reasonably presume that there had been such a contract; so where in the course of settlement proceedings in connection with an estate, certain raiyats were recorded as raiyats holding at fixed rates, inasmuch as it was proved that they had been in possession of their lands without any alteration in their rent for 20 years, held that the Settlement Officer was right in recording them as raiyats holding at fixed rates: Dulhin Golab Koeri v. Bulla Kurmi, 25 Cal. 744, s.c., 2 C.W.N. 580 (decision of Special Bench of five Judges). It was held in Bansi Das v. Jagdip Narain, 24 Cal. 152, that the presumption created by this section does not operate to convert an occupancy raiyat into a raiyat at fixed rate; this case was dissented from in the case of Dulhin Golab Koeri v. Bulla Kurmi, 25 Cal. 744.

tion under sec. 50 operates to convert occupancy raiayat into fixed raiyat.

It is submitted that the presumption arising under this section does not convert an occupancy raiyat into a fixed raiyat. The presumption entitles the tenant only to this that the rent will not be enhanced and consequently the sections relating to enhancement of rent of an occupancy raiyat will not apply, but the other provisions relating to occupancy raiyats should apply. [It is no doubt true that apart from the Act a court may presume that the tenant is a permanent one as has been explained in the various decisions noted under in the notes under heading No. 6].

Proof under
1859.

Under Act X of 1859, it was held that it was not necessary in order to give rise to the presumption described in s. 16 of the Act that the tenant should prove specifically the amount of rent which had been paid for his tenure each year for the preceding 20 years any evidence that satisfies the Judge that the rent has not during that period been changed, is enough: Anand Mohan v. Kalidas, 3 Rev. Jud. and Police Journal, p. 135.

Pattah.

Presump-
tion.

A tenant is not precluded from the benefit of his having held at a fixed rate of rent which has not been changed from the date of the Permanent Settlement or of any presumptive evidence to that effect merely from the fact of his stating that he holds under a pattah not inconsistent with that presumption, though he may fail to prove the pattah: Greesh Chandra v. Kally Kristo, 6 W.R. Act X, 57 (F.B.). It is not necessary that the tenant should claim to hold from the time of the Permanent Settlement in order to obtain the benefit of the presumption; the presumption arises on proof of payment of a uniform rent for 20 years: Rakhal Das v. Kinooram, 7 W.R. 242; Poolin Behary v. Neemaye Chand, 7 W.R. 472; Dhum Singh v. Chander Kant, 4 W.R. Act X, 162, but if a defendant pleads that he has held at the same rent on a pattah subsequent to the date of the Permanent Settlement, though upwards of 20 years, the defence annuls the presumption: Luchmee Pershad v. Ram Golam, 2 W.R. Act X, 30; Watson & Co. v. Chote Joora, Marsh, 80. The presumption is rebutted if it is shewn that the title commenced after the Permanent Settlement: Ram Lall v. Lalla Pecumlall, Marsh, 48. A tenant is bound to give strict proof of a uniform payment of rent for 20 years; it is not a matter which should be decided on mere inference: Sham Lal v. Boistab, 7 W.R. 407. The Judge ought not to presume a uniform rent for the 20 years preceding suit upon evidence, which only touches a portion of that period. For instance, suppose the evidence to satisfy him that the rent had been uniform for 18 years before suit he would be wrong in presuming from that alone that it must have been uniform for two years more also, or in other words for 20 years in the whole; on the other hand to support a finding of uniformity for any given numbers of years, it is not necessary that there should be evidence bearing directly on every year of that number; it is sufficient if the whole space of that time is included between limits upon which the evidence bears, provided that that evidence is such as to lead to the belief that the rent was uniform throughout the intervening period." (Per Phear, J.). Catherine Fosehola v. Huro Chander, 8 W.R. 284. See also Sham Churn v. Dwarka Nath Kabiraj, 12 W.R. 100; Makmooda v. Huridhun, 5 W.R., Act X, 12. But proof of payment of uniform rent is not necessary where the landlord refuses to take rent for a few years before suit: Gya Ram v. Gooro Churn, 2 W.R., Act X, 59.

In order to be entitled to get the presumption under sub-sec. (2) Transferee. it is not necessary to show that rent has been paid for twenty years immediately before the institution of the suit ; where it was proved that a raiyat paid rent at the same rate for many years and his transferee did not pay rent after his purchase for seven or eight years, held that that did not prevent the transferee from entitling to get the presumption: Khirod Gobinda v. Gour Gopal, 27 C.L.J. 281.

See notes under heading no. 6.

The presumption which arises from an entry in the record-of-rights is a very important piece of evidence and is conclusive until it is definitely rebutted by contrary evidence: Bepin Behari v. Trailakyanath, 31 C.W.N. 448 (Mukherji & Graham J.J.). It may be pointed out that the wording of sec. 103B cl. (3) is that the entry shall be presumed to be correct until it is proved by evidence to be incorrect.

Where the Record of Rights records the tenants as holding at fixed rates held: that it may require very slender evidence to rebut the presumption raised by that record, but so long as the entry remains unrebutted there is no onus on the tenants to produce evidence of a uniform rate of rent. Until that entry is displaced by the landlord the tenant is entitled to rely on it, and he is not bound to produce any evidence in support of the fixity of rent so long as the entry itself remains unrebutted: K. S. Bonnerji v. Mahamed Faiz, 96 I.C. 884 (Greaves and Panton J.J.).

14. Rebutting presumption:—The presumption is rebutted by the tenant relying upon a pattah granted after the Permanent Settlement: Manmohan v. Watson & Co., W.R. (F.B.), 22 ; s.c., 1. How presumption is rebutted. Hay 232 ; Ram Kishen v. Deler, W.R., 1864, Act X, 36 ; Beer Kishore v. Kunbooly, W.R., 1864, Act X, 109.

The fact of a tenant relying on a pattah which is found to be forged does not entitle the landlord to a decree for enhancement of rent: Issur Chander v. Nittanand, B.L.R., sup. vol. 490 ; s. c., 6 W.R., Act X, 3. See notes under the previous heading.

It is open to a landlord to rebut the presumption by a contract of tenancy subsequently entered into between the parties which entitles the landlord to claim rent from the tenant after the expiry of the term of the lease at the rate of rent payable for the cultivable lands of the village: Sarat Chandra v. Taraprasanna, 36 Cal. 333. Presumption may be rebutted by contract.

A confirmatory lease after the Permanent Settlement was held as not to rebut the presumption arising under cl. (2) ; Kumar Prasanna Deb v. Uddhab Chandra, 28 C.W.N. 752 (P.C.).

A presumption under s. 50 was held to have been rebutted by the production of a kabuliyat, dated 1260 B. S. (1853), shewing that the tenant had agreed to pay enhancement of rent, the kabuliyat having amalgamated four pre-existing tenures ; Upendra Nath v. Gopi Charan, 22 C.W.N. 321, s. c., 31 C.L.J. 12. See also Upendra v. Dwarkanath, 22 C.W.N. 322 ; Dhirendranath v. Ahamed Mia, 30 C.W.N. 765 (Chakravarti J.). Rebuttal of presumption by agreement to pay enhancement of rent.

A contrary view was taken in the case of Jitendranath v. Abejan-nessa, 30 C.W.N. 1038 (Cuming and B. B. Ghose J.J.). See also Abhoy v. Rajani, 22 C.W.N. 904, s. c., 29 C.L.J. 371 (Teunon and Richardson, J.J.) in which the case of Upendra v. Dhirendranath, 22 C.W.N. 322 was distinguished. Confirmatory lease, does not rebut presumption.

Record-of-rights
Onus.

If the landlord succeeds in showing that holdings, as recorded in the record of rights, were not in existence in the condition in which they were so recorded, in the previous years, the onus is shifted on the defendants to prove that their present holdings are made up of other holdings which also have borne uniform rental: Nand Lal v. Kesho Prasad, A.I.R. 1924 Pat. 245.

Presumption not rebutted
by return
under Reg.
VIII of 1793
S. 48 and
Reg. VII of
1799, S. 15.

Where in order to rebut the presumption under s. 50, cl. (2) the landlord produced a certified copy of an entry made in the Collectorate on the footing of a return submitted by his predecessor-in-title under Reg. VIII of 1793, sec. 48 and Reg. VII of 1799, sec. 15, held that as against the tenant it was of slight evidentiary value and the presumption was not rebutted: Tarakchandra v. Prasannakumar, 28 C.W.N. 679, s.c., 39 C.L.J. 389; where to rebut such presumption the landlord showed that the tenure was held in the name of the defendant's father and as such the tenure was created after the Permanent Settlement, held that this also did not rebut the presumption in as much as the defendant's father might have introduced his name after he acquired the property: Ibid.

A tenant is not deprived of the presumption merely by reason of the landlord claiming an enhancement and refusing to receive or acknowledge the old rent: Mohini Kant v. Preonath, A.I.R. 1922, Cal. 143; the rent continues to be the same until a change has actually been effected which may be either by consent or suit.

The mere fact that a taluk is not entered in the Quinquennial Register is not sufficient to rebut the presumption arising under this section: Hemchandra v. Binayak, 86 I.C. 538.

Question, whether tenant held at uniform rate, if one of fact.

The question whether a tenant has held at a uniform rate for 20 years is a question of fact and not of law and not even of mixed fact and law, upon which the finding of the Court of first appeal is conclusive: Alimuddin Mollah v. K. S. Bonnerjee, 29 C.W.N. 500; s. c., 41 C.L.J. 135.

In a proceeding under sec. 105 of the B. T. Act for settlement of fair and equitable rent, the tenants relied upon receipts for 20 years to show uniform payment of rent as a basis for the presumption under section 50 of the said Act and the landlord adduced evidence in rebuttal of that presumption, of Jamawasilbaki papers of more than 70 years old shewing realisation at different rates of rent, held, that the genuineness of the Jama wasil Baki papers being more than 70 years old, could be presumed under sec. 90 of the Evidence Act; that these papers had the effect of rebutting the presumption under section 50 of the B. T. Act by showing that previous to 20 years for which uniform payment of rent had been shown there was realisation of different rates of rent: Nirod Krishna v. Prodyot Coomar Tagore, 45 C.L.J. 129. The case of Dukha v. Grant, 16 C.L.J. 24 was followed.

The liability of enhancement was imposed not by Jamawasil Baki papers but by the law which in absence of the presumption under sec. 50 of the B. T. Act or upon rebuttal of that presumption imposed a liability to enhancement upon tenants: Ibid.

Where the tenants have produced dakhilas of a uniform rate of rent for over twenty years which gives them the presumption that their rent is fixed, the presumption is not rebutted by producing jama wasil baki papers of over hundred years old, wherein the tenancies do not find a place: Kasimali v. K. S. Bonnerjee, 101 I.C. 347 (Duval and Mitter J.J.).

Collection Papers:—In order to rebut the presumption arising out of sub-sec. (2) of s. 50, the landlord often produces jama bandi papers or jama wasil baki papers or other collection papers. Jama-wasil baki papers, and collection papers, if independent evidence.

The question therefore arises as to whether under s. 34 of the Evidence Act the entries in these collection papers are admissible in evidence without corroboration or these are independent evidence, if it is proved that they are kept in ordinary course of business. S. 54, Evidence Act.

The next question which arises is as to whether they may be proved under s. 32, cl. (2) of the Evidence Act and not requiring corroboration. S. 32 cl. (2).

The elements of s. 34 of the Evidence Act are as follows:— S. 34.

1. They must be Books of account.
2. and should be shown to be regularly kept in the course of business,
3. and if it is sought by the entries to charge any person with liability then the entries alone shall not be sufficient evidence, (i.e., corroboration is necessary).

Now, if it is sought by the collection papers to charge any person with liability, then corroboration is necessary, otherwise not. In the case of Belayet v. Rash Behari, 22 W.R. 549, it was held that jama baki papers do not charge any person with liability and therefore they are independent evidence. But the contrary rule was laid down in the case of Surnamoyi v. Jahar Mahomed, 10 C.L.R. 545 and it was held that jama wasil baki papers are not independent evidence but require corroboration. It is submitted that the decision in the case of C.L.R. 545 lays down the correct law in as much as the entries in jama wasil baki papers are sought to prove the variability of the rent and if it is shewn the mokurari character of the tenancy will be established; and therefore when the entries have the effect of charging any person with liability they must require corroboration within the meaning of s. 34. This view has also been taken by Mookerjee and Chatterjee, J.J. in the case of Aktawali v. Tarack Nath Bose, 17 W.N. 774, s. c., 16 C.L.J. 328 and the learned judges have held following the case of Surnamoyi v. Jahar Mahomed, 10 C.L.R. 545 that collection papers are not independent evidence but require corroboration within the meaning of s. 34. Charging a person with liability. Conflicting cases discussed.

It seems to be the settled law on the subject. [All the cases discussed in the judgment in the case in 17 C.W.N. 774, s. c., 16 C.L.J. 329.] In the case of Umed Ali v. Nawab Khaje Habibulla, 17 W.N. 68, N. R. Chatterjee and Duval, J.J. held that under s. 34 of the Evidence Act talab-baki papers are not sufficient evidence to charge any person with liability. The learned judges discussed the various opinions on this subject and referred to the cases on the subject.† Law settled.

But it has been held that jama wasil baki papers or talab-baki papers or other collection papers if they can be §. 32 cl. (2). brought within the meaning of s. 32, cl. (2), the entries will be admissible in evidence (without corroboration); i.e., if the facts mentioned in the earlier part of s. 32 and and also cl. (2) are proved as being the statements of persons who are dead, &c., &c., see the case of Dukha v. Grant, 16 C.L.J. 24, Aktowli v. Tarak Nath, 17 C.W.V. 774, s.c., 16 C.L.J. 328 and Ram Pyarabi v. Balaji, 28 Bom. 294. See also the case of Jonab Biswas v. Siva Kumari, 46 C.L.J. 253 (Rankin, C.J. and Mitter J.) where it has been held that Jamawasilbaki papers, in the absence of circumstances mentioned in Sec. 32 of the Evidence Act, such as in the absence of proof that the writers or the makers of the entries therein, at the date of the trial, were dead or could not be procured without unreasonable expense or otherwise, are evidence which in the presence of other substantive evidence may be used as corroborative but cannot be regarded as proving any fact by itself.

Rules laid down

The case-law may be summarised and the following two rules may be laid down—

- (1) Under s. 34 of the Evidence Act collection papers produced to rebut the presumption under s. 50 of the B. T. are not independent evidence (and they require corroboration as they are sought to charge liability to tenant).
- (2) The collection papers are independent evidence without requiring corroboration if the entries are proved to be the meaning of s. 32 cl. (2) of the Evidence Act if they are statements of persons who are dead and if they are kept in ordinary course of business.

Soundness of the second rule doubted.

It is submitted that the soundness of the second rule stated is open to doubt. If this is good law it creates a great anomaly: a party will be in a better position if the writer of the collection papers is dead or cannot be found, &c. If the writer is alive, a party relying upon the collection papers, will be required to produce the papers by examining the writer and also to produce corroborative evidence: whereas no such corroboration is necessary if the writer is dead or cannot be found. It is therefore submitted with great respect to the learned judges who have laid down the second rule stated above that the rule laid down is not good law. Moreover s. 32, cl. (2) cannot be said to override the provisions of s. 34. These two sections are read together it would appear that the accounts which are dealt with in s. 34 are not contemplated by s. 32, cl. (2).

The collection papers which have not been proved by the person who make the collections should not be treated as independent evidence of the amount realised; Faijaddin v. Agnikumar, 1924 Cal. 370.

Holding in the hands of a transferee.

15. Effect of transfer of non-transferable holding.

When a non-transferable holding is sold the landlord becomes entitled to khas possession on the ground that the tenant has abandoned the holding and the purchaser is a trespasser; it often happens that the landlord recognises the transferee as a tenant on payment of nazar or selami; in such cases a question arises as to whether the uniform payment of rent for twenty years, a part or the whole of which during the period of occupation of the former tenant, will raise a presumption tion under s. 50 ; it is submitted that the old tenancy cannot be said to continue in the hands of the transferee and that the recognition by the landlord creates a new tenancy : this view is supported by the principle enunciated in the case of Sarat Chandra v. Syam Chand, 39 Cal. 663, s. c., 16 C.L.J., 71. See also the case of Ramanath v. Jagannath, 106 I.C. 136 (Cuming and Roy J.J.) where it was held that when a landlord purchases a holding at a rent sale and re-settles the land with the same tenant, the continuance of the old tenancy is broken and the presumption under Section 50 of this Act does not apply. A new tenancy is created when a tenant transfers a portion of his holding and a landlord recognises a transferee, Ibid. See also Dhirendranath v. Ahmedmia 30 C. W. N. 765 (Chakrabarti J).

The defendant purchased a non-transferable occupancy holding which bore a rent of Rs. 12-12-0. The plaintiff landlord refused to recognise the defendant as a purchaser and in consequence the landlord would have been entitled to khas possession. In order to retain possession of this holding, the defendant agreed to pay a rent of Rs. 18-11-0 and upon these terms, the landlord allowed him to remain on the land, held, that it was not a question of enhancement of rent of the original tenant but the defendant whose position by virtue of his purchase was only that of a trespasser as against the landlord took a new settlement after his purchase at the rate of rent sued for : Ferasat Ali v. Priamboda Devi, A. I. R. 1924, Cal 544 (Ghose, J). But a contrary view was taken in the case of Abhoy v. Rajani, 22 C.W.N. 904, s.c., 29 C.L.J. 371 where it was held that the purchaser of a non-transferable holding who has obtained recognition from the landlord is admitted, in the absence of special circumstances, into the original tenancy with all its incidents.

See notes under s. 29.

16. Sub-section (4) :—This Sub-section can only refer to the case of a tenure which is held for a term of years at the time of the suit or proceeding. Where the term of a Kabuliyat expired in 1872, held, that the tenant was not precluded from the benefit of the presumption under Section 50 (2) of this Section: Atafal Ali v. Ghulam Mahiuddin 11 C.W.N. 63 (notes).

* 51. If a question arises as to the amount of a tenant's rent or the conditions under which he holds in any agricultural year, he shall be presumed, until the contrary is shown, to hold at the same rent and under the same conditions as in the last preceding agricultural year.

10. EFFECT OF HOLDING OVER IN THE ACQUISITION OF OCCUPANCY RIGHT.
11. MEANING OF "HOLDING OVER."
12. LIMITATION.
13. HOLDING OVER.

1. Holding :—The word "holding" in the marginal note of the section has been used in the broad sense to include all classes of tenancies and is not used in the restricted sense as defined in s. 3 cl. (g).

Tenant holding over, not a trespasser.

Notice to a raiyat holding over.

2. Holding over: Notice to quit :—A raiyat of at least 10 years' standing and holding over is not a trespasser and cannot be ejected until his tenancy has been determined by a notice to quit or some other legal manner: H. B. Dalglish v. Damodar, 8 C.L.J. 533; where a raiyat held over it was held that he was entitled to a notice to quit before ejectment: Kishen Ojha v. Bujrangi, 13 C.W.N. 180 (notes). The serving of notice to quit, on the person who continues in occupation after the expiry of the term, does not make him a tenant whose tenancy is to be terminated by a notice to quit: Paramananda v. Syjon Singh, 24 C.L.J. 30.

3. Holding over under one of several joint landlords :—A tenant can be said to be holding over, if there is acceptance of rent by all the co-owners, or if they otherwise assent to the continuance of the tenant by their words or conduct. Where a tenant holds after the expiry of the lease and pays rent to one of the joint landlords for his share, if there is any holding over it is in respect to the share of that landlord to whom he paid rent and a new tenancy is created in respect of that share and not in respect to the other shares: Monmohon v. Hatem Makhbul, 29 C.L.J. 473. No question of notice arises when a suit is brought for ejectment of the share held over: Ibid.

Conduct of the tenant.

4. Presumption—Conduct of the tenant :—The presumption under sec. 51 of the Bengal Tenancy Act is one that has regard to the conduct of the holding over. It is a presumption, until the contrary is shewn, that a tenant who holds over, holds at the same rent and under the same conditions as in the last preceding agricultural year. That is not the same thing as considering whether a judgment of the court in a rent suit decided the question of rental in the form of a general issue: Ram Asis Upadhyay v. Balu Ramdhani Sinha, 14 C.W.N. 56 (notes).

Agreement to hold over—registered instrument.

5. Agreement to hold over :—An agreement that a tenant should hold over from year to year is in essence an agreement to grant a lease from year to year and should be by a registered instrument: Mati Lal v. Darjeeling Municipality, 17 C.L.J. 167.

6. Decision in a previous suit as to the amount of rent :—Decision in a previous rent-suit as to the amount of rent annually payable gives rise to a presumption under this section as to the rent of a subsequent year, although it may not operate as res judicata: Kali Ray v. Pratab Narain, 5 C.L.J., 92; Beni Prasad v. Rajkumar, 6 C.W.N. 589. The same principle applies to the question whether the tenant held at bhowli or nakdi rent for a particular period: Ibid.

Holding over by one

7. Holding over by one of several tenants :—The holding over by one or more co-tenants without the consent of the others cannot render the persons not so holding over liable to rent: Draper v. Croft, 15 M. M., and W. 166; see also Brojo Lal v. R. Belchamers, 9 C.W.N. 340. co-tenant does not make another liable for rent.

8. Liability of deceased co-tenant's heir for rent for holding over—In order to make the estate of a deceased co-tenant liable for rent due for holding over the onus lies heavily on the plaintiff to prove that after the expiry of the lease a new contract was made making all jointly and severally liable to perform the conditions of the tenancy: Brojo Lal v. Belchambers, 9 C.W.N. 340. Onus.

9. Dispossession of a tenant holding over :—When there is a current lease and the tenant is dispossessed by a third party time does not commence to run against the landlord until the expiration of the lease but where the lease has expired and the tenant is holding over with the landlord's consent and the possession of such third party is adequate in continuity, in publicity and in extent so as to show that it is possession adverse to the landlord, the latter is not precluded from determining the tenancy and suing the trespasser in ejectment and his right to sue will be barred after 12 years of such dispossession: Kishwar Nath v. Kali Sankar, 10 C.W.N. 343.

10. Effect of holding over in the acquisition of occupancy right :—Where after the expiry of a lease comprising agricultural and non-agricultural lands the landlord wanted to eject the tenant, held that the tenant could not be ejected from the agricultural lands, he having acquired a right of occupancy: Hayes v. Ghina Barhi, 33 Cal. 459. A raiyat holding over acquires a right of occupancy.

11. Meaning of "holding over" :—The expression "holding over" "means that the relation of landlord and tenant continued with the assent of both parties, and the overt acts, by which the relation might be continued, are either the receipt of rent, by the landlord or his assenting to the continuance of the tenancy by other acts or words": Ratan Lal v. Farshi Bibi, 34 Cal. 396.

12. Limitation :—Where a tenant holds over after the expiry of the lease, held that the time begins to run against the landlord on the expiry of the term of the lease under article 139 Sch. II of the Limitation Act: Pusamal v. Makadum, 31 All. 514; see also Kantheppa v. Seshappa, 22 Bom. 893 Chandri v. Daji Bhow, 24 Bom. 504; Madan Moham v. Rameshar, 7 C.L.J. 615; Khunni Lal v. Madan Mohan, 6 A.L.J. R. 293 but see Adimulum v. Pir Revuthan, 8 Mad. 424. Time begins to run at the expiry of the lease.

A tenancy by sufferance would not by itself make the passession of the holder rightful, so as to prevent limitation from running: but if the landlord or the person entitled to resume the tenancy, does anything to indicate his assent to the continuance of the tenancy by sufferance into a tenancy from year to year, and in such a case the limitation applicable to that provided by art. 139 of Sch. II of the Limitation Act: Ramchandra v. Bhikambar, 37 Cal. 674. Tenancy by sufferance.

13. Holding over :—If, after the expiration of a lease a land-owner continues to receive rent for a fresh period, he must be considered to have acquiesced in the tenants, continuing to hold upon the terms of the original lease, and cannot turn out the tenant or treat him as a trespasser, without giving him a reasonable notice to quit: Ram Khalwan v. Musst. Soondra, 7 W.R. 152; see also Ooma Tenant holding over holds on the terms of his expired lease.

Lochun v. Nitye Chand, 14 W.R. 467 ; Jumut Ali v. Chowdhury Chulturdharee, 16 W.R. 185 ; Chaturi Sing v. Makund Lal, 7 Cal. 710 ; s. c., 9 C.L.R. 240. Where a tenant holds over after the expiration of his lease, he does so on the terms of the lease, on the same rent and on the same stipulation as are mentioned in the lease until the parties come to a fresh settlement ; Kishore Lal v. The Administrator-General of Bengal, 2 C.W.N. 303 ; see also Sreemutty Altav Bibee v. Joogul Mundul, 25 W.R. 234 ; Sheo Sahoy v. Bechun Sing, 22 W.R. (31) 32 ; Tara Churn v. Ameer Mundal, 22 W.R. (394) 395 ; Shaik Enayatullah v. Sheikh Elaheebaksh, W.R. 1864, Act X, p. 42 see also Baijnath v. Raghunath, 16 C.W.N. 496 ; see also Administrator-General of Bengal v. Asraf Ali, 28 Cal. 227 ; Beniprosad v. Raj Kumar, 6 C.W.N. 42. Where there is no covenant for renewal, if the option does not state the terms of renewal, the new lease would be for that same period and on the same terms as the original lease in respect of all the essential conditions thereof, except as to the covenant for renewal itself : Secretary of State v. Forbes, 27 C.L.J. 443 ; see also Secretary of State v. Forbes, 16 C.L.J. 217 and Lani Mia v. Muhammad Easin, 20 C.W.N. 248 : Secretary of State v. Sibaprasad, 27 C.L.J. 447 : where in a lease there was a stipulation to the following effect : " If I agree to the enhancement of rent to be fixed at the time of the next settlement in future, the Government shall have the power to settle the lands with me or if I do not agree then with others ;" held that the clause in the lease was in essence a covenant for renewal : Ibid. There is no general rule of law to the effect that the lease of an agricultural tenant in this country who holds over, must be taken as renewed from year to year, and if any contract is to be implied, it should be taken to have been entered into as soon as the term of the lease expired rather than at the beginning of each year : Kishore Lal v. The Administrator-General of Bengal, 2 C.W.N. 303. But it has been held that when an agricultural tenant holds over, his tenancy is from year to year : Administrator-General of Bengal v. Asraf Ali, 28 Cal. 227 (at p. 233). Where the term of a kabuliyat expired some years before the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Act and the tenant continued to hold over after the expiry of the lease, held that the tenant was liable to pay interest at the kabuliyat rate even after the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Act : Ibid. But where an agricultural tenant continued to hold over after the expiry of the lease in 1881, held that the landlord could not recover interest at the rate mentioned in the lease but was entitled to interest at the rate provided for in s. 67 of the Act : Administrator-General of Bengal v. Asraf Ali, 28 Cal. 227 ; their Lordships (Ameer Ali and Brett, J.J.), in delivering judgment observed as follows :—" Supposing the contract was expressly renewed after the passing of the Act and the stipulation as to interest was embodied in a new lease, the tenant would not be bound by it and the stipulation would not be enforceable under the law. It would be anomalous to hold that what cannot be done by a lease may be done by allowing the tenant simply to hold over." See also Ali Mamud v. Bhagabati, 2 C.W.N. 525 ; Alim v. Satis, 25 Cal. 37. See notes under s. 67.

Interest.

proof.

The mere fact that a tenant some time ago gave a kabuliyat for a limited period at a particular rate of rent is not sufficient in itself to throw upon the defendant the entire burden of proving what the present rent is, without any evidence on the part of the landlord that the rent specified in the kabuliyat had ever been realised from him : Mahund v. Arpan, 2 C.W.N. 47.

When a raiyat holds over he is bound to pay rent at the rates ^{Rate of} current for similar lands in the village : George Tommy v. Soobba ^{rent.} Kurim, 2 W.R. Act X, 73.

A tenant holding over after an expired lease would generally be considered as lawfully in possession, and as having an interest in the land, and where such a tenant who holds over is dispossessed he has a right to be restored to possession and has the same right if, having been ejected during his lease expires pending a suit to recover possession : Shaikh Arub v. Ashruf, 24 W.R. 335. Right to be restored to possession.

When a tenant holds over he may be ejected on the expiration of lease without the intervention of Court ; Chowdhury Isharool v. Bhoosee Makton, 25 W.R. 201. Ejectment.

After the expiry of the lease the tenant becomes a yearly tenant upon the same conditions so far as applicable to a yearly tenancy and when after the tenant the heir is recognised he becomes a yearly tenant upon the same conditions as far as applicable to a yearly tenancy : Mahomed Ayefjuddin v. Pradyot Kumar, 25 C.W.N. 13.

Where in a ticca lease for a term it was stipulated that the grantor would execute a fresh patta for another term on the expiry of the first lease, held that the lessor was not entitled to eject the lessee after the expiry of the first lease although he had not executed a fresh patta, and the lessee who was in possession was entitled to possess for a fresh term : Mohit Narayan v. Kamal Nath, [1923 Pat.] p. 23. Ticca lease —ejectment suit after expiry of lease.

For the ejectment of a non-occupancy raiyat upon the expiration of the term of his lease, there must be a notice to quit, not only a notice to quit, but a notice served on the raiyat not less than six months before the expiration of the term : Goburdhone v. Karuna, 25 Cal. 77. Res judicata.

A decision in a previous rent suit as to the amount of rent annually payable was held not to operate as res judicata in a suit for the rent of subsequent years, although it was held that it gave rise to a presumption under this section that the rents for subsequent years remained the same : Beni Pershad v. Rajkumar, 6 C.W.N. 589.

The assent of the landlord to the continuance of the occupation of the tenant after expiry of the term may be indicated by acceptance of rent or by conduct which justifies an inference to that effect : Paramananda v. Syjon Singh, 24 C.L.J. 30 ; the fact that the landlord tolerates the continuance in occupation of the tenant after expiry of the term, does not make his former tenant, his tenant in future : Ibid.

A landlord is entitled to claim damages against a tenant who holds over, either for breach of his contract to yield up peaceful possession or for trespass. It is also well-settled that the measure of damages for trespass whether the claim is founded on contract or on tort, is not the value of the land, but the real damages sustained, which may be considerable or merely nominal : Sundermall v. Ladhuram, A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 240 (Page J.).

Alteration of rent on alteration of area.

52. (1) Every tenant shall—

(a) be liable to pay additional rent for all land proved by measurement to be in excess of the area for which rent has been previously paid by him, unless it is proved that the excess is due to the addition to the tenure or holding of land which having previously belonged to the tenure or holding was lost by diluvion or otherwise without any reduction of the rent being made; and

of area.

- (b) be entitled to a reduction of rent in respect of any deficiency proved by measurement to exist in the area of his tenure or holding as compared with the area for which rent has been previously paid by him, unless it is proved that the deficiency is due to the loss of land which was added to the area of the tenure or holding by alluvion or otherwise, and that an addition has not been made to the rent in respect of the addition to the area.

(2) In determining the area for which rent has been previously paid, the Court shall, if so required by any party to the suit, have regard to—

- (a) the origin and conditions of the tenancy, for instance, whether the rent was a consolidated rent for the entire tenure or holding;
- (b) whether the tenant has been allowed to hold additional land in consideration of an addition to his total rent or otherwise with the knowledge and consent of the landlord;
- (c) the length of time during which the tenancy has lasted without dispute as to rent or area; and
- (d) the length of the measure used or in local use at the time of the origin of the tenancy as compared with that used or in local use at the time of the institution of the suit.

(3) In determining the amount to be added to the rent, the Court shall have regard to the rates payable by tenants of the same class for lands of a similar description and with similar advantages in the vicinity and, in the case of a tenure-holder, to the profits to which he is entitled in respect of the rent of his tenure and shall not in any case fix any rent which, under the circumstances of the case, is unfair or inequitable.

(4) The amount abated from the rent shall bear the same proportion to the rent previously payable as the diminution of the total yearly value of the tenure or holding bears to the previous total yearly value thereof, or, in default of satisfactory proof of the yearly value of the land lost, shall bear to the rent previously payable the same proportion as the diminution of area bears to the previous area of the tenure or holding.

(5) When in a suit under this section the landlord or tenant is unable to indicate any particular land as held in excess, the rent to be added on account of the excess area may be calculated at the average rate of rent paid on all the lands of the holding exclusive of such excess area.

(6) When in a suit under this section the landlord or tenant proves that, at the time the measurement on which the claim is based was made, there existed in respect of the estate or permanent tenure or part thereof in which the tenure or holding is situate, a practice of settlement being made after measurement of the land assessed with rent, it may be presumed that the area of the tenure or holding specified in any patta or kabuliyat, or (where there is an entry of area in a counterfoil receipt corresponding to the entry in the rent-roll) in any rent-roll relating to it has been entered in such patta, kabuliyat or rent-roll after measurement.

I. Additions and alterations :—Sub-sec. (5) was added by Bengal Act III of 1898 and sub-sec. (6) was added by the Bengal Tenancy Amendment Act I of 1907 and E. B. and A. C. Act I of 1908.

Back-rent.

2. Back rent :—There is a fundamental distinction between claim for additional rent and a claim for enhancement of rent. It is well settled that a landlord may claim back-rent for additional area under sec. 52 ; on the other hand s. 154 requires that the court should specify the date from which the decree for enhancement should take place. A decree for enhancement therefore can never have retrospective operation and back-rent cannot be claimed at enhanced rate in the suit in which enhancement is sought : Ejel Mullick v. Felai Mullick, 21 C.L.J. 309.

There is nothing in the Bengal Tenancy Act to debar the landlord from claiming back rents for any additional area, if such additional area was in the use and occupation of tenant : Juggernath Manjhi v. Jumman Ali Patwari, 29 Cal. 247. See also Assanulla v. Mohini Mohun, 26 Cal. 139. There is no provision in s. 52 or in any other section as is to be found in sec. 154 which prescribes the time from which a decree for enhancement of rent is to operate : Ibid.

A landlord is entitled to back-rent for additional area under s. 52 ; Manmatha v. Surendra, 40 C.L.J. 538.

A purchaser at a private sale from a mortgagor is bound by law to pay the arrears of rent for which a decree had been obtained by the landlord prior to his purchase, though by the terms of the kabala his purchase is free from liability for the back rents : Sarajubala Kamini Kumar, 43 C.L.J. 142 (Suhrawardy and Mukerji J.J.).

Undivided share of
land.

3. Undivided share of land :—A suit for enhancement of rent or for additional rent of an undivided share (of a raiyati holding) does not lie in as much as an undivided share of land is not a holding : Harnandan v. Kesho Prasad, 40 I.C. 585 (Patna) ; see notes under s. 3 cl. (9) and under s. 30).

It is submitted with great respect that this decision is open to doubt so far as regards the right of a landlord to claim additional rent under s. 52 ; for the word used in s. 52 is "land" and not "holding." The word used in s. 30 is "holding" and so a landlord is not entitled to sue for enhancement under that section in respect to an undivided share of land. The word used in s. 105 is land and not holding, and it has been held in a case under that section that an application for settlement of fair rent of an undivided share of raiya land is maintainable under s. 105 in as much as the word there used is "land" and not "holding," Sarifennessa v. Saferddi, 21 C.L.J. 592 at p. 595. The same principle, it is submitted, should be applied to cases under s. 52.

It should be pointed out here that an undivided share of a parcel of land may form the subject matter of a distinct tenure and therefore a suit for enhancement of rent or for additional rent is maintainable to an undivided share of land which forms a distinct tenure.

4. Every tenant :—The words "every tenant" in this section includes a patnidar: s. 195 does not prevent s. 52 from applying to the case of a putnidar: Ranjit Singh v. Abdur Rahim, 45 I.C. 190.

The term "tenant" in this section does not include the case of a mere co-sharer tenant who has only a fractional share in the tenure, it means the tenant of the tenure, not one of many tenants. In a suit for arrears of rent by some of several joint landlords against one of several joint tenants, who had for many years paid rents to the plaintiffs in respect of the plaintiffs' 3 ans. 3 pies share, held, that the defendant was not entitled to claim abatement under sec. 52 sub-sec. (1), cl. (b), that his proper remedy was by suit making all the co-sharer landlords and tenants parties: Bhoopendra v. Romon, 27 Cal. 417 s. c., 4 C.W.N. 107. When a tenure or holding is sold the auction-purchaser has the right to claim any abatement which may have accrued to the predecessor: Kali Prasanno v. Dhananjai, 11 Cal. 625, but see Prossunna v. Doyamoyee, 22 W.R. 275.

Where a specified portion of a holding was sold by the raiyat, liberty being reserved to the assignee to use his name both in the sudder and in the muffasil, and the assignee entered into a separate settlement in respect of the lands assigned to him, held that the result was that the original holding was made into two separate holdings, and in a suit for additional rent for excess area under this section against the assignee the original tenant was not a necessary party; Juggernath Manjhi v. Jumman Ali Patwari, 29 Cal. 247.

5. Sec. 105 :—In a proceeding under s. 105 the Settlement-officer has jurisdiction to settle fair rent on excess land; Paltoo Pandey v. Newas Prosad, 18 C.W.N. 165.

6. Suit for enhancement under ss. 30 and 52 :—There is nothing in the law which prevents one suit being brought for enhancement under s. 30 and for increase of rent under s. 52; the two causes of action may be joined in one suit: Sarada Charan v. Iswar Samli, 11 C.W.N. 1154.

7. Scope of s. 52 :—Section 52 is not exhaustive: Ramdas v. Asutosh, 15 C.L.J. 310 s. c., 14 C.W.N. 152 (notes).

8. Assessment of rent upon contract: What suits do not come under the purview of this section :—Where the terms of the patta were that the whole of the lands being brought under cultivation, the landlords would be at liberty to measure the lands of the ganti, and if the land be found in greater quantity than 150 bighas, the tenant would pay rent at the rate of 10 annas per bigha, and the land being found greater than the said quantity, plaintiff, one of the co-sharer landlords, brought a suit for rent at that rate for the whole area claiming his own share making the other co-sharer landlords as defendants, held that the suit was maintainable at the instance of the plaintiff alone and that it was not a suit to alter the rent under the provisions of the section: Dintarini

Co-sharer tenant not a tenant within the meaning of this section.

Auction-purchaser of tenant's interest.

Separate settlement by an assignee of a portion of holding.

One suit under ss. 30 and 52 maintainable.

Suit upon contract not a suit under this section.

Suit upon kabuliyat for rent of land a part of which was unassessed at the date of kabuliyat.

Tenure protected from enhancement under s. 4 of Act X of 1859.

Existence of agreement.

Jungly land.

v. L. P. D. Broughton, 3 C.W.N. 225. A suit for arrears of rent under the terms of a kabuliyat at the original rate specified in the kabuliyat in respect of the land demised, part of which was left unassessed at the time by reason of its not being then culturable is not a suit for enhancement in the ordinary sense of the term, nor even it is a suit for additional rent for land found in possession of the tenant in excess of what he was paying rent for and where a co-sharer land-lord is in separate receipt of his share of the rent there can be no bar to his maintaining a suit for recovery of arrears of his share of the rent: Ram Chander v. Giridhur, 19 Cal. 755. It was held in the case of Richard De Gouroy v. Meghnath, 15 W.R. 157, that the rent of a tenure protected from enhancement under the provisions of sec. 4 of Act X of 1859 could not be increased on the ground of excess land.

The case of Baidyanath v. Ilim, 25 Cal. 917, s. c., 2 C.W.N. 44 shews that the existence of an agreement does not necessarily take the suit out of the Bengal Tenancy Act, and it was therefore held that the rule laid down in the case of Govinda v. Hamidutta, C.W.N. 670 to the effect that s. 188 of the Act has no application where there is a kabuliyat in favour of an individual co-sharer land-lord does not apply to a case where the kabuliyat is in favour of the entire body of joint landlords: Dwarka Dhakai v. Mathura Lal, 18 C.W.N. 942. The case of Dintarini v. Broughton, 3 C.W.N. 225 was distinguished on the ground that the liability of the tenant there came into existence before the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Act.

The case of Dwaraka Dhakai v. Mathura Lal, 18 C.W.N. 942 was distinguished in the case of Bhosal v. (Bhasae) Aminuddin, 21 C.W.N. 371, s. c., 25 C.L.J. 469 and it was held that s. 52 had no application in a case where the land was at the time of letting waste and jungly and was not measured but a certain area was stated by guess and it was provided that the tenants would pay rent at a fixed rate per bigha when the lands would be reclaimed or the surrounding lands brought under cultivation; s. 188 is not applicable to such a case.

A suit by a co-sharer landlord for assessment of rent in respect of a holding under separate agreement is not an act that is "authorised" by the B. T. Act, within the meaning of s. 188, and sec. 52 does not apply to it: Partap Mahton v. Musst. Wazirunnissa, 4 Pat. 604.

A suit to assess rent is consistent with and arises out of the general law and the land revenue system of the country, and is irrespective of anything in the B. T. Act; Dhananjoy v. Upendranath, 22 C.W.N. 685.

See also Shibsahai Lal v. Bejoychand Mahatap, 5 Pat. 157; Drupad v. Hari, 22 C.W.N. 827; Manindra v. Kaulat Singh, 50 Cal. 957, s. c., 28 C.W.N. 264 at 270, where Rankin, J. observed:—"A landlord who can prove such a contract is entitled to additional rent by virtue of his contract and without the aid of any statutory provision."

See also Ejel Mullick v. Feali Mullick, 21 C.W.J. 309; Kesho Prasad v. Tribhuan, 2 P.L.J. 276.

A jama of Rs. 6-8 as., was held under the landlord and the object of the kabuliyat was to increase the rent by 14 annas. This Rs. 7-6 was in respect of about 3 pakhis of land "as per boundaries of the different lots given below." In the document after a reference to different kists came the sentence "when you would measure the lands we shall pay rent without any objection, for lands, found out by your measurement, in accordance with the prevailing rate of tenants holding similar class of lands," held, that the kubuliyat was a contract by which the tenant went on for the present at a fixed jama for a fixed land but there was a right in the landlord to alter that position and claim prevailing rate for the actual amount of lands in the tenants possession, that the landlord had to ascertain by measurement whether the tenant had gone beyond certain boundaries, and that, if the landlord insisted upon having a measurement, he might do so and then, when he did so, the whole thing was to be reassessed on the basis of the prevailing rate for lands of the same plots: Sukumari v. Kinu, 46 C.L.J. 250 (Rankin, C.J. and Mallik, J.).

In a case where the tenants took possession of certain lands by gradual encroachment, and some of the landlords brought a suit for recovery of their share of the encroached lands or for assessment of rent and made their co-sharers parties: held—that the plaintiff not having treated the defendants as trespassers from the beginning the defendants must be treated as tenants of those lands apart from their tenancy in respect of the holding; that it is altogether a new holding and the rent that would be assessed upon that would be a new rent in respect of the new holding and a suit for the assessment of rent is not an act that is authorised by sec. 188 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, and sec. 52 does not apply. But where a co-sharer landlord claimed for khas possession with an alternative claim for rent, not merely of the additional land found in possession of the tenants over and above the land of their own holding but in respect of the entire quantity of land found in possession of the tenants including the lands of their own holding; held that sec. 52 of the Bengal Tenancy Act applied: Khondkar Abdul Hamid v. Mohini Kant, 4 C.W.N. 508.

A kabuliyat executed before the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Act by Defendant No. 1, the holder of a Darmourasi pattah, in favour of his immediate landlord, a mokuraridar, provided that the former should have his name entered in the zemindar's sherista in place of the mokuraridars and pay rent direct to the zemindar, and also, in case the area of the tenure should exceed certain bighas, that he should pay rent on each excess bigha at the rates of 12 annas and 2 annas to the zemindar and the mokuraridar respectively; the agreement was ratified by the zemindar; on the zemindar suing Defendant No. 1 for measurement of the tenure and enhancement of rent it was objected that under the kabuliyat only the mokuraridar was entitled to sue for such measurement: held—That though they were both landlords of Defendant No. 1, they were not joint landlords by their subsequent conduct, in collecting rent and suing separately, they had ceased to be so; that, further, as the kabuliyat upon which the suit is based, was executed prior to the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Act, the suit was not under sec. 52, Bengal Tenancy Act, and so would not be barred by the provisions of s. 188 of the Bengal Tenancy Act: Matungini Dassi v. Ram Das Mullick, 7 C.W.N. 93.

Where remission of rent is claimed, not for land not found in the possession of the tenant, but for land which, though included in his tenure, he was obliged to leave uncultivated because he had to erect embankment to protect other land, and the remission for land so left out is provided for in the written contract, the claim does not come within the purview of sub-sec. 2 cl. (b): Sree Kant Pershad v. Irshad Ali, Sarkar, 16 C.L.J. 225.

Where it was stipulated that the waste lands included in the tenancy would be assessed with rent on becoming hasila (culturable), held that the increase in the rent would accrue automatically: Mokbul Ali v. Jogesh Chandra, 21 C.W.N. 534, s. c., 25 C.L.J. 128; the mere realisation of the admitted rent for the years before suit does not preclude the landlord from claiming the additional rent for those years in absence of any proof that the landlord received his dues on the understanding that no further demand would be made: Ibid.

See notes under headings Nos. 10 and 11.

9. Section 188: S. 188 requires that where two or more persons are joint proprietors they must all join in bringing a suit for additional rent for additional area; Gopal Chandra v. Umesh Narain, 17 Cal. 695.

Suit for alteration of rent.

Following the case of Gopal Chandra v. Umesh Narain, 17 Cal. 695 it was held in the case of Sati Prosad v. Radhanath, 16 C.L.J. 427 that the provisions of s. 188 are applicable to suits for alteration of rent on alteration of area under s. 52. It was also held in this case that a suit for assessment of rent for excess land instituted by some of the members of a joint Mitakshara family, cannot be considered as instituted by them as agents for other members, authorised to act on behalf of all the landlords within the meaning of s. 188. [It was pointed out by the Judicial Committee in the case of Jogendra Deb v. Fanindra Deb, 14 M.I.A. 367, s. c., 17 W.R. 104 that under certain circumstances a suit instituted by the head of a Mitakshara family operates in its result in the same way as if the members had been parties thereto.]

Suit for assessment of rent.

Suit by the head of a Mitakshara family.

When s. 188 is no bar to a suit by a co-sharer.

Where a co-sharer landlord brings a suit for additional rent on the basis of a kabuliyat executed by the tenant admitting his liability to pay additional rent for additional area without any reference to the right of any other co-sharer, held that such a suit is maintainable: Gobind Chandra v. Hamedulla, 7 C.W.N. 670. Section 188 of the Bengal Tenancy Act does not affect the co-sharer landlords' right under the kabuliyat unless the right to make such an agreement is otherwise forbidden by the Bengal Tenancy Act, and s. 178 which is the only section which deals with the full action of landlords and tenants in the matter of contract does not refer to such a matter: Ibid.

S. 178.

In this case the agreement was between the tenant and the individual co-sharer landlord who brought the suit and therefore the principle laid down in this case does not apply to a case where the tenant executed a kabuliyat in favour of the entire body of landlords agreeing to pay additional rent for additional area; in such a case s. 188 was held to be applicable: see Dwarka Dhakai v. Mathuralal, 18 C.W.N. 942. But see Bhosal v. Aminuddin, 21 C.W.N. 371, s. c., 25 C.L.J. 469 where the case of Dwarka Dhakai v. Mathuralal, 18 C.W.N. 942 was distinguished.

See notes under heading no. 8.

S. 188 does not apply to joint tenants and a suit by a co-tenant alone for abatement of rent is maintainable: Khettramani v. Jiban Krishna, 19 C.W.N. 546, s. c., 21 C.L.J. 315.

S. 188 is a bar to a suit for additional rent for additional area under s. 52: Monmotha Nath v. Mohendra Nath, 65 I.C. 469.

10. Land within defined boundaries :—In order to ascertain what was actually leased, the boundaries mentioned in the lease are to be looked at and not the estimated area: Kazee Abdool v. Baroda Kant, 15 W.R. 394. Where the lands in question had always been deemed to form part of what was covered by the pattah, held that the pattah should be considered as one of certain lands, the number of bighas being added more by way of description than of limitation: Janokee v. Gobin, 2 W.R. Act. X, 33. Where the pattah purported to convey one bigha of land, more or less, and within certain boundaries, held that the test of what was really conveyed was not the area of the land but the boundaries of that land: Sheeb Chandra v. Broja Nath, 14 W.R. 301. A tenant was held to be entitled to hold the whole of the lands comprised within the dags endorsed on the pattah as included in and appertaining to his mourasi tenure notwithstanding that measurements made subsequently showed that the area was larger than formerly ascertained: Modee Huddin v. Sandes, 12 W.R. 439. Where the land is undoubtedly included in the original tenure but it has been found on a fresh measurement that there was some mistake in the former measurement, the tenant is liable to pay rent for the excess land: Pran Kissen v. Monmohinee, 17 W.R. 33 (34).

Whether boundaries or area to be looked at.

Area by way of description.

See also Puhlwan v. Moheshar, 16 W.R., (P.C.) 5; 9 B.L.R. 150; Farquharson v. The Government of Bengal, 16 W.R., (P.C.) 29; Gopenath v. Ram Huree, 9 W.R. 476; Indro Bhusan v. Goluk Chunder, 12 W.R. 350.

It is only when the boundaries of the land leased out can be ascertained with perfect certainty that an intention to convey all lands comprised within those boundaries can be inferred; if the boundaries are uncertain the intention should be taken to be to convey the specified quantity of land within those boundaries: Rameshwar v. Tam Tarak, 14 C.W.N. 268 (on P.C. 18 C.W.N. 66).

Intention.

Where the two elements—the boundaries and the quantity—are equally certain and exactly defined, or the boundaries are as precise and definite as the quantity is specific and exact, and there is gross divergency between the quantity specified and the quantity found to be included within the defined boundaries, preference should be given to that element of the description of the subject matter, which is more consistent with the intention of the parties to be collected from the other parts of the deed, illuminated, if necessary, by the surrounding circumstances and the subsequent conduct of the parties: Durga Prasad v. Rajendra Narain, 37 Cal. 293, s. c., 14 C.W.N. 268 (Doss and Richardson, J.J.).

Where boundaries and quantity are both certain.

On appeal, the Privy Council held that where the area of demised land, which was described in the lease as lying within certain specified boundaries, was stated therein as four thousand bighas, extrinsic evidence was not admissible to shew that there was not the stated area within the specified boundaries: Durga Prasad v. Rajendra Narain, 41 Cal. 493 (P.C.); s. c., 18 C.W.N. 66, s. c., 19 C.L.J. 95.

In an ordinary kabuliyat by which a certain quantity of land within definite boundaries is let out and the area is fixed not with reference to actual measurement, but by approximate estimate and the rent fixed is a lump sum for the land within the boundaries, the tenant cannot claim reduction of rent due to area being found less than what is mentioned in the kabuliat: Abdul Mannaf v. Sheikh Muslim, A.I.R. 1925, Pat. 426.

Merely because there is excess land within the boundaries specified in the lease a landlord is not entitled to additional rent: Manjanali v. Kailash Nath, 44 I.C. 24.

Actual quantity, if found in excess of what is specified in the pattah.

Where there was a lease of lands comprised within the boundaries specified at the foot thereof and it was not the intention of the landlord to deprive the lessee of any land within the said boundaries, held that the landlord is not entitled to additional rent if on a measurement the actual quantity as comprised therein is found to be in excess of the quantity specified in the pattah itself: Juggannath Manjhi v. Jumman Ali Patwari, 29 Cal. 247. See Akbar Ali v. Hira, Bibi, 16 C.L.J. 182 at p. 185.

Area ascertained by measurement.

Where it is specifically shewn that the area of a land was ascertained by measurement and rent assessed on such measurement, the mere fact that boundaries of the land are mentioned in the kabuliyat, does not exclude the operation of s. 52: Lukhi Narain v. Sri Ramchandra, 15 C.W.N. 921.

Where on the interpretation of the kabuliyat executed on first April, 1885, it was found, firstly that the area of the land demised was assumed to be 15 bighas without actual measurement, secondly that the rent was assessed at the lump-sum of Rs. 15-10 as. on the assumption that the area was 15 bighas, and thirdly that the landlord reserved his right to have the lands measured and the rent assessed at the prevailing rate; held that the landlord was entitled to claim additional rent for excess land as also enhancement of rent: Ejel Mullick v. Feali Mullick, 21 C.L.J. 309.

Where it was stipulated in the kabuliyat that the rent would be payable at certain rates with regard to a certain quality of land which would be found on measurement by a certain unit under a survey at which the tenant bound himself to be present, held that it might be inferred from that stipulation that the lands as described within the boundaries were not let out at the fixed jama mentioned in the kabuliyat but it was the intention of the parties that the rent should be assessed upon a survey of the lands within the boundaries having regard to each class of land and area of each plot: Hemantakumar Roy v. Meser Bibi, 30 C.W.N. 640 (Greaves and B. B. Ghose J.J.).

Where there was a stipulation in a kabuliyat as to the standard of measurement and also the rate of rent to be paid per bigha with regard to each class of land, held that the land within the boundaries was not let out at a fixed rent but it was the intention of the parties that there should be a survey and rent should be assessed upon the measurement of the lands within the boundaries having regard to the class of land to which each plot falls and its area: Hemanta Kumar Roy v. Belatali Munshi, 30 C.W.N. 642 (Cuming and B. B. Ghose, J.J.).

Meaning of "area for which rent has been

II. Area for which rent has been previously paid : Additional Rent for Additional area :—The expression "the area for which rent has been previously paid" in the section, sub-sec. 1, cl.

(a), means the area with reference to which the rent previously paid has been assessed or adjusted: Dhrupad v. Hari, 22 C.W.N. 826, paid." s.c., 27 C.L.J. 562; also see Rajendra v. Chander Bhūsan, 6 C.W.N. 318; a landlord cannot therefore successfully claim additional rent in respect of an excess of area when he fails to shew what the area of the tenure was when first created, and that the rent originally fixed did not cover and was not intended to cover such excess area: Ibid.

The landlord must show that the defendant is holding lands in excess of what he is paying rent for, and in order to do that, he must shew for what quantity of land the tenant is paying rent: Surjakanta v. Baneswar, 24 Cal. 251. What is to be proved in a suit for additional rent.

The burden of proving an increase in "the area for which rent has been previously paid" is on the landlord; speaking generally he may discharge the burden in two ways (a) by proving that the tenant is in possession of excess land outside the boundaries of the land originally settled, (b) by proving that at the original settlement the rent was fixed at a rate per bigha or other unit of measurement or at differential rates according to the quality of the land and that the agreement was that the tenant would pay at that or those rates for all land, and in further proving that the existing rent is less than the rent payable under such agreement: Dhrupad v. Hari Nath Singha Ray, 22 C.W.N. 826, s. c., 27 C.L.J. 562 (Richardson and Walmsley, J.J.). Their Lordships remarked as follows:—"It is in connection with this second method of proving a right to increase of rent that questions may arise under cl. (2) (a) as to the conditions of the tenancy and whether the rent originally fixed was or was not a consolidated rate for the whole area. The rent might be a consolidated rent even if it was calculated at so much per measured or estimated bigha. The question would depend upon the true intention of the parties to be gathered in the absence of a written instrument from all the circumstances. When however it is proved that the tenant is holding land outside, and beyond the original boundaries the question as to the rent being a consolidated rent, cannot well arise, except possibly in connection with land gained by alluvion."

Their Lordships in deciding the aforesaid case considered the following cases: Gouri Patra v. Reily, 20 Cal. 579, Rajendra v. Chander, 6 C.W.N. 318, Akbar Ali v. Hira Bibi, 16 C.L.J. 182, Lakhi Narain v. Sree Ram Chunder, 15 C.W.N. 921 and Uma Singh v. Tarini Prosad, 19 C.L.J. 451.

In delivering their Lordships' judgment in (Gouri Patra v. Reily), 20 Cal. 579, Prinsep and Beverley, J.J., observed as follows.

"The mere fact that on a measurement made by a Zemindar under the authority of Government given under Chapter X of the Bengal Tenancy Act, it is found that the tenants generally are in possession of lands in excess of the area, entered in his Zemindary papers and their rent-receipts would not necessarily prove that he is entitled to additional rent for the excess area. There is no evidence that at any previous time there has been a measurement of any of these lands and it is admitted that all the holdings are of very old date. In our experience, too, in such instances lands were let out by areas ascertained as the Settlement-officer has found by "guess work" that is to say, without any accurate survey, but as contained within certain recognised boundaries either by reference to other holdings and it constantly happens in the case of lands such as those in this case that even this description is wanting. Settlements made in such a manner would seem to show that the object of the zemindars was to settle raiyats on the lands and to have them brought under cultivation rather than to be particular in the description of the lands let. In such a case it would be incumbent upon the zemindar, who seeks an enhancement of rent, or as he would term it,—settlement of rent, on excess lands very many years after the original settlement of the raiyats to show that the lands held by the tenants fall within that description, that is to say, that they are in excess of the lands originally let to them in consequence of some encroachment or some alluvial increment or that the previous settlement was made on the basis of a measurement and the rates of rent as applied to the area then determined, while on a fresh measurement made by the same length of measure, it has been found that he is entitled to receiving additional rent which by carelessness or neglect or some other reason he had hitherto lost.”

Gouri Patrav

In a suit brought by a landlord for increase of rent on account of an increase in the area of the holding it was found that the tenant was holding the same lands without any variation in the boundaries ; that the landlord failed to prove what area was originally leased to the tenant ; and there were no materials before the Court for the determination of the question whether the rent was a consolidated rent or not : held—That the landlord was not entitled to any increase under sec. 52 of the Bengal Tenancy Act : Ratan Lal v. Jadu Halsna, 10 C.W.N. 46. In order to succeed the landlord must prove facts and circumstances showing that there was some reason not within the control of the landlord for additional lands being included in the holding : Ibid.

The case of Gouri Patra v. Reily, 20 Cal. 579 : Rajendra Lal v. Chandra Bhusan, 6 C.W.N. 318 ; and Ratan Lal v. Jadu Halsana, 10 C.W.N. 46 were discussed in the case of Rajkumar v. Ram Lall, 5 C.L.J. 538, where it was held that to establish the existence of excess lands, the landlord has to prove the area of the tenure at its inception ; in a suit for additional rent he must next prove that the rent originally did not cover and was not intended to cover such excess area.

Observation
by Coxe J.

All these cases were considered in Akbar Ali v. Hira Bibi, 16 C.L.J. 182 by Coxe, J. (N. Chatterjea J. agreeing) who laid the following rule.

Intention of parties.

“It appears to me that the whole question is one of intention of the parties applicable to the tenancy before the final measurement. If the landlord originally intended to let and the tenant intended to take such and such a piece of land or such and such a holding, be the number of bighas in it what they may, the fact that the area proves to be large than what was originally stated would not entitle the landlord to additional rent. If however he intended to let and tenant intended to take so many bighas, be the actual piece of land what it may, the landlord would be entitled to additional rent when the tenant was proved to hold more bighas than were originally let to him.” 16 C.L.J. at page 185.

Standard of measurement.

The standard of measurement was presumed to be the same at the date of the lease when the defendant could not prove the standard of measurement set up by him : Ishan Chandra v. Ram Ranjan, 2 C.L.J. 125.

Where lands were measured according to a known standard and Consolidatrent assessed upon that, held that unless it was established that the ed rent.
rent payable was a consolidated rent for lands within defined boundaries the landlord was entitled to claim additional rent: Lukhi Narain v. Sri Ram Chandra, 15 C.W.N. 921.

In order to bring a case within clause (a) of sub-sec. (1) of S. 52 section 52 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, it is necessary for the landlord sub-sec. (1) to prove that there is land held in excess of the area for which rent has been previously paid by the tenant. Consequently the landlord must establish the area for which rent has previously been paid by the tenant; he must next establish the present area held by the tenant; he is then entitled to claim additional rent in regard to the excess area. When it is specially known that the area was ascertained by scientific method, the lands measured and described as lying within certain boundaries were let out to the tenants, the landlord is entitled to additional rent for excess lands ascertained on remeasurement; Srinibas Sarangi v. Ramchandra Bhaya Deo, 14 C.L.J.
146.

In the sale certificate the boundaries of parcels sold were set out Sale-certi-in detail. In the case of each parcel the area also was stated; held ficate.
that the purchaser took the plots as defined by the boundaries, and if within those boundaries there was more or less land than that stated in the sale certificate he obtained a title to whatever was contained within those boundaries: Gossain Das Kundu v. Mritunjoy Agan Sardar, 18 C.L.J. 541.

The decision of the question as to the area in a rent-suit was Res-judicata held to operate as res judicata in a subsequent suit for additional question of.
rent for additional area: Radhika v. Satyanarayan, 74 I.C. 96.

A landlord may be entitled to additional rent even though he is unable to establish that the previous measurement is accurate and reliable; Sukraj Ray v. Lal Bahadur, 29 C.L.J. 253 (Mookerjee Beachcroft, J.J.).

Where it was not proved the diminution of the area at the time of the original settlement, the rent was fixed at a specified rate per unit of measurement or at different rates according to the quality of the land, held that the tenant was not entitled to claim alteration of rent: Ibid.

In a suit for increase of rent a landlord cannot succeed in showing that there has been an increase in area by merely proving that the area under cultivation is in excess of that which is mentioned in a confirmatory kabuliyat; he must show what the area was at the inception of the tenancy. Ramanath v. Jagannath, 106 I.C. 136 (Cuming and Roy J.J., August 10, 1927). The case of Rajkumar
Pratap v. Ram Lal Singh, 5 C.L.J. 538, followed.

The "area for which rent has been previously paid" must be "Area for understood to mean area with reference to which the rent previously which rent paid had been assessed or adjusted: Aziz Khan v. Saraju Bala, 24 has been C.W.N. 76 (notes portion), (Beachcroft J.). In a suit for additional previously rent for additional area it is not necessary to prove the area at the paid"— inception of the tenancy and it is sufficient that since the creation meaning of.
of the tenancy rent has been assessed and the assessment was on the basis of a certain area and the tenant is in possession of lands which were not previously assessed: Durga Priya v. Nazra Gain, 25 C.W.
N. 204, (Mookerjee C. J. and Fletcher J.). This case was relied on be proved.

by Newbould and Panton J.J., in the case of Jogendra v. Sheikh Aktar, 67 I.C. 998. Where rent was fixed at a certain rate per drone of arable land and the tenant agreed to pay that rent as long as the land was not measured, held that the landlord was bound to pay additional rent for additional area: Joy Chandra v. Arun Chandra, 67 I.C. 241 (Suhrawardy and Cuming J.J.). Where a second record-of-rights shewed that the land was in excess of the area found in an earlier record-of-rights, held that the landlord was entitled to additional rent for the additional area: Bishen Pragash v. Achaib Dushad, 1 Pat. 450.

Suit for additional rent where area in excess of what is mentioned in dakhilas. Settled rule.

In a suit for additional rent for additional area the landlord proved that the land was in excess of the area mentioned in the *dakhilas (and the rate per bigha was mentioned), Rankin J., (Buckland J., agreeing) made the following observations after reviewing all the decisions on the subject:† Manindra Chandra v. Kaulat Singh, 50 Cal. 957, s. c., 28 C.W.N. 264.

"I take it to be the settled rule of this Court that when a letting upon the basis of a measurement is proved the tenant has prima facie to shew that the rent was a consolidated rent for all the land within specified boundaries, but that in the absence of such proof the mere production of such dakhilas as those now in evidence does not suffice to throw any onus on the tenant. The position then is simply that the landlord has failed to establish the fact of excess area because he has failed to shew with sufficient certainty what the area in fact was for which the rent was originally reserved. There is no reason whatever forbidding a landlord from proving, if he can, a contract of the nature indicated in Dhruwad Chandra's case, (22 C.W.N. 827), but entries of area and rate in dakhilas or jamabandis do not suffice to prove this by themselves in the absence of further material throwing light upon the original conditions of a holding whose origin is beyond the reach of direct evidence."

The case of Manindra v. Kaulat was followed in the case of Moyenuddin v. Baharuddin, 90 I.C. 557 (Suhrawardy and Duval, J.J.).

Area of original grant, if to be ascertained.

For the purposes of sec. 52 it is not always necessary to ascertain the area of the original grant and the rent thereby reserved. All that the landlord has to show is that the present area is greater than the area for which rent was last paid. The onus is then shifted on the tenant to shew that the excess land used previously to belong to the holding and was lost by diluvion or otherwise: Sib Sahai Lal v. Bijoy Chand Mahatab, 5 Pat. 157; s. c., [1926 Pat.] 19, s. c., 7

* The details in the dakhila are as follows:

Mulberry land.—7½ cottahs, rate per bigha Re. 1-5-9, total Re. 0-8-3.

Crop bearing land.—1 bigha, 1 cottah, rate per bigha Re. 0-6-0, total Re. 0-6-6. Total rent Re. 0-14-9. (See 50 Cal. at p. 960).

† The following cases were discussed:—Goari Patra v. Retly, 20 Cal. 579; Suraja Kant v. Banerwar, 24 Cal. 251; Rajendra Lal v. Chunder Bhusan, 6 C.W.N. 318; Ratan Lal v. Jadu Halsana, 10 C.W.N. 46; Raj Kumar v. Rasu Lal, 5 C.L.J. 538; Akbār Ali v. Hira Bibi, 16 C.L.J. 182; Dhruwad Chandra v. Hari Nath, 22 C.W.N. 827; Kesho Prasad v. Tribhuban, 2 Pat. L. J. 276; Lakshmi Narain v. Sriram Chandra, 15 C.W.N. 921; and Nilmani v. Sati Prasad, 48 Cal. 556, s. c., 25 C.W.N. 230 (F.B.).

Cases discussed.

P.L.T. 375, s. c., 90 I.C. 862 (Mullick, A. C. J. and Kulwant Sahay, J.) Statements of area in the landlord's papers, whether after measurement or not, are evidence for the purpose of ascertaining what the area is for which the rent shewn in the jumabandi is being paid. Ibid. The cases of Kesho Prasad v. Tribhuan, 2 P.L.J. 276, Durga Priya v. Nazra Gain, 25 C.W.N. 204 and Lal Sheo Kumar v. Ramphal, 58 I.C. 959 followed. The case of Manindra Chandra v. Kulat Sheikh, 50 Cal. 957, 28 C.W.N. 264 was dissented from. In discussing this case Mullick, A.C.J. at p. 167 of 5 Pat. 157 observed as follows :

"In their view (i.e., of the learned Judges who decided the case of Manindra Chandra v. Kaulat Sheikh, 28 C.W.N. 264) the settled rule of the Calcutta High Court was that an assumed area could never be the foundation for such a claim. It does not appear however that the case of Durga Priya v. Nazra Gain, 25 C.W.N. 204 was considered by the learned Judges."

Where a tenancy is created, not with reference to any boundaries or a specific block otherwise identifiable, but for a certain area at a certain rental, the area is of the essence of contract and any subsequent excess found upon measurement renders the raiyat liable to pay additional rent. In determining the area demised the parties may either resort to measurement or they may agree to accept an assumed figure. Ibid.

12. Sub-section (3) :—A court is not bound to allow additional rent at the prevailing rate ; in a case where the landlord allowed the defendant to continue in occupation without any claim for additional rent for nearly 25 years it was considered fair to assess rent for the additional area at the same rate as for the remainder of the holding ; it was remarked that the decree would not stand in the way of a suit for enhancement of rent of all the lands on one or more of the grounds mentioned in sec. 30 ; Ejel Mullick v. Felai Mullick, 21 C.L.J. 309, at pp. 311, 312. Rate of assessment of rent.

In respect to excess lands the landlord is entitled to a fair and equitable rate : (Per Phear, J.) Golam Ali v. Gopal Lal, 9 W.R. 68. Excess land should, as a part of the same lease, be liable to the same terms as the other land originally given under it (Per Bayley, J.) : ibid. Fair and equitable rent for excess land.

13. Sub-section (5) :—"There is a passage in the judgment of this Court in the case of Goury Patra v. Reily, 20 Cal. 579, in which it is observed that it is for the zemindar, who seeks for a settlement of excess lands, to show that they are in excess of those for which rents are being paid and that to do this, it is for him to show what those lands are, what were the terms of the original settlement, and whether it was by any, and if so, by what process of measurement. This statement appears to have been misunderstood, and it was held upon an interpretation of this passage that when additional rent was claimed on the ground of excess area, the landlord was bound to indicate the precise parcels of land acquired by the tenant in excess of the original holding. It was for this reason that sub-section 5 was added to section 52 of the Bengal Tenancy Act III of 1898. The section as amended indicates that it is not necessary, in order to prove excess area, to specify the particular parcels that were acquired since Why this sub-section was enacted.

the original letting. But the amendment does not in any way weaken the authority of the decision in Gauri Patra v. Reily, 20 Cal. 579, in so far as it lays down that the landlord must satisfactorily prove that the lands in respect of which additional rent is claimed are lands held in excess of those for which rent is paid, and that in order to prove such excess, the quantity included in the tenancy at its inception must be determined. The same view was affirmed by this Court in the cases of Rajendra Lall Goswami v. Chandra Bhusan Goswami, 6 C.W.N. 318, and Ratan Lal Biswas v. Jadu Halsana, 10 C.W.N. 46, both of which cases are decided after the addition of sub-section 5 to sec. 52." Per Mookerjee, J., in Raj Kumar v. Ram Lall, 5 C.L.J. 538.

14. Encroachment :—When a tenant holds excess land for which no rent was paid before, the landlord may treat him either as a trespasser or a tenant: David v. Ramdhun, 6 W.R. Act X 97, but it was held in the case of Rajmohun v. Gooroo Churn, 6 W.R. Act X, 106, that a tenant who holds lands in excess cannot be used for enhancement; see also Rasum Bibi v. Bissonath, 6 W.R. Act X, 57. Where a tenant encroaches upon any land of his landlord outside his tenure, it is open to the landlord to treat him as a tenant and not as a trespasser: and the tenant has no right to compel the landlord to treat him as a tenant and not as a trespasser: Pralhad v. Kedarnath, 25 Cal. 302. Although where a tenant encroaches upon any land of his landlord outside his tenure it is open to the landlord to treat him as a tenant and not as a trespasser, and the tenant has no right to compel the landlord to treat him as a tenant, yet it does not follow that because the landlord has this option, he can treat the tenant as trespasser at any time after having exercised his option in treating him as a tenant for some time: Khondkar Abdul Hamid v. Mohini Kant; 4 C.W.N. 508. In a case where the tenants took possession of certain lands by gradual encroachment, and some of the landlords brought a suit for recovery of their share of the encroached lands or for assessment of rent and made their co-sharers parties: held—that the plaintiff not having treated the defendants as trespassers from the beginning, the defendants must be treated as tenants of those lands apart from their tenancy in respect of the holding, that it is altogether a new holding and the rent that would be assessed upon that would be a new rent in respect of the new holding, and a suit for the assessment of rent is not an act that is authorised by sec. 188 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, and sec. 52 does not apply. But where a co-sharer landlord claimed for khas possession with an alternative claim for rent, not merely of the additional land found in possession of the tenants over and above the land of their own holding, but in respect of the entire quantity of land found in possession of the tenants including the lands of their old holding, held that s. 52 of the Bengal Tenancy Act applied: Ibid.

An encroachment made by a tenant upon land adjoining to or even in the neighbourhood of his holding, is presumed, in the absence of strong evidence to the contrary, to be made for the benefit of the landlord, and this rule applies to all lands so encroached upon whether the landlord has any interest in it or not: Nuddyar Chand v. Miajan, 10 Cal. 820. If a tenant during his tenancy encroaches upon the land of a third person, and holds it with his own tenure until the expiration of the tenancy, he is considered to have made the encroachment, not for his own benefit, but for that of his landlord ; and even if he has acquired a title against the third person by an adverse possession, he has acquired it for his landlord, and not for himself: Ibid. See also Earl of Lisburne v. Daries, L.R. 1 C.P., 259 ; Whitmore v. Humphries, L.R. 7 C. P. 1 ; Kingsmill v. Milliard, 11 Ex. 313 ; Andrews v. Hailes, 2 E. and B. 349. 'It is true that by the English Law, if it could be distinctly proved that the tenant made the encroachment adversely to his landlord, an adverse possession for 12 years might then give the tenant a title by limitation ; and probably that would be so in this country.' (Per Garth, C. J.). Nuddyar Chand v. Meajan, 10 Cal. 820. "We think the true presumption as to encroachments made by a tenant during his tenancy upon the adjoining land of his landlord is that the lands so encroached upon are added to the tenure and form part thereof for the benefit of the tenant so long as the original holding continues, and afterwards for the benefit of his landlord, unless it clearly appeared by some act done at the time that the tenant made the encroachment for his own benefit. This is the clear rule of English law and it is a rule which is supported by reason and principle. In India where there is a great deal of waste land and where quantities and boundaries are very often ill defined, there are very strong reasons for the application of such a rule:" (Per Markby J.). Gooroo Das v. Iswar Chander, 22 W.R. 246 ; see also Esu Bai v. Damodar, 16 Bom. 552 ; Sham Jha v. Doorga, 7 W.R. 122.

Presumption as to encroach-
ment.

English law
here.

A tenant is entitled to hold Khas land of his landlord upon which he has encroached as part of his original holding, if, more than 12 years before the landlord's suit he denied the landlord's right to any separate rent from him in respect of the land and has forcibly in assertion of his claim appropriated entire crop and continued in possession ; the landlords, apart from s. 52 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, cannot recover additional rents in respect of such land: Taran Chandra v. Ganendra Nath, 16 C.W.N. 335.

Encroach-
ment of Khas land.

When a tenant is found in possession of land which formed no part of the land originally let out to him, the landlord is entitled to treat the excess land as a new holding, and a suit for rent may be brought in respect thereof independently of s. 52: Abdul Hakim v. Rajendra Narayan, 23 C.W.N. 635.

Excess
land.

Held, upon the facts of the case that the tenant who agreed to pay rent to the landlord for the area actually under cultivation was not liable to pay rent to him in respect of contiguous land belonging to a third party which he had encroached upon and brought under cultivation: Jatindranath v. Trailkhya, 105 I.C. 737, (B. B. Ghose and Roy J.J.).

There is a difference from one point of view between a case where the tenant asserts that the land encroached upon by him is a part of an admitted tenancy and cases where the tenant sets up a rent-free title to the encroached land. The difference is that in one case the assertion means that rent is being already paid for the land and so more rent is not payable, and in the other that no rent is payable because the landlord is not entitled to realise any rent for the land. Suits for assessment of rent-free lands are governed by article 130, sch. 1 to the Limitation Act. A suit to establish a right to assessment is governed by article 131: Devendra Narayan v. Jhumur Pramanik, 43 C.L.J. 387 (Suhrawardy and Mukerji J.J.).

If a tenant had encroached upon any land and made it a part of his tenancy, he is bound to give that up to his landlord at the determination of his tenancy: Indubhusan v. Atulchandra, 42 C.L.J. 276 (Greaves and Chakravarti J.J.).

See notes under sec. 3 heading No. 15 at p. 31.

15. Abatement of Rent :—A claim for abatement may be made in a suit for rent by way of set off: Deendoyal v. Thakroo, 6 W.R., Act X, 24; Mohesh v. Gungamoney, 2 Hay. 495; Afsaruddin v. Sarashi, Marsh 558.

In a suit for rent the tenant can claim abatement of rent and no separate suit is necessary: See Gosta Behari v. Hem Chandra, 51 Cal. 1022, s. c., 29 C.W.N. 124; Sukhraj v. Ganga Dayal, 6 P.L.J. 665; Sivadas v. Birendra, 41 C.L.J. 330. See also notes under sec. 38.

In a suit for rent a tenant can claim a deduction for any particular year although he has paid full rent for several previous years: Mahtab Chand v. Chitro Kumari, 16 W.R. 201; Ram Narain v. Pulin Behari, 2 C.L.R. 5.

Where in a suit for rent a tenant, who did not obtain possession of a portion of the lands let out to him, pleaded that he was not bound to pay rent of that portion, held that he was entitled to say so and it was not necessary for him to bring a separate suit for abatement of rent: Sibakumari v. Bipra Das, 12 C.W.N. 767; a suit under s. 38 or s. 52 was not necessary, as those sections do not apply where the tenant has never been put into possession by the landlord: Ibid.

Suit for declaration that tenant not liable for whole rent is not a suit for abatement.

A suit by a tenant for a declaration that he is no longer liable to pay the whole amount of rent on the ground that a third party has established his right to a share of the rent, is not a suit for abatement of the rent payable for the plaintiff's land: Chandmoni v. Lokenath, 6 C.L.R. 494. Where, under such circumstances the tenant is holding more land than is covered by his lease, it is not necessary that the landlord should be referred to a separate suit if he is desirous of enhancing the rent: Ibid.

In a suit for rent by a co-sharer landlord for his share of the rent, a tenant is entitled to apply for reduction of rent: Kesho Prasad v. Ram Deni, 2 Pat. 183, (Coutts and Dass J.J.).* See notes under s. 38.

Effect of non-payment of rent.

Acceptance of remission of rent.

Rules laid down in 4 Cal.

Question of intention.

* Effect of acceptance of reduction of rent: Sub-mergence: Abandonment: Nonpayment of rent :—Where the land of a certain tenant became sub-merged by the action of a river and the tenant though he ceased to pay rent during the period of sub-mersion made no overt indication of his intention to relinquish the said land but, on the contrary, on the river again shifting its course laid claim to the land which had emerged, it was held that there had been no relinquishment: Mazhar Rai v. Ramgat, 18 All. 290, (P. C.); the case of Hemnath v. Ashgar, 4 Cal. 894 was not followed. The Privy Council case of Mazhar v. Ramgat, 18 All. 290, was followed in a later Privy Council case: Arun Chandra v. Kamini Kumar, 41 Cal. 683, s. c., 18 C.W.N. 369, s. c., 19 C.L.J. 272, where it was held that by claiming or accepting remission of rent in respect of lands washed away from time to time by action of the river the tenant cannot be said to abandon or to agree to abandon his right to such land as his reformation in situ. Their Lordships expressed their opinion that their view was not in accord with the rule of law expressed in the case of Hemnath v. Ashgar, 4 Cal. 894; the rule laid down in the 4 Cal. case was as follows: Where land held by tenants with rights of occupancy was completely sub-merged for a number of years, and during the period of such sub-mersion no rent was paid by the tenants, they by non-payment of rent during the period of sub-mersion forfeited their rights of occupancy.

A tenant is entitled to abatement of rent in respect of leased out land of which he did not obtain possession: Rajkumar v. Surendra Nath, 27 C.W.N. 166; the question of limitation does not arise in connection with the plea of abatement, but the question of acquiescence may arise: Ibid; see also Ramnarain v. Poolin Behari, 2 C.L.R. 5.

A tenant's right to claim abatement of rent on account of the landlords failure to put him in possession of the whole of the land demised will be lost by acquiescence and laches if, notwithstanding the failure of the tenant to get possession of the entire land, he continues to pay the full rent for a long number of years: Midnapore Zemindary Co. Ltd. v. Shib Narayan, 105 I.C. 741.

Where a portion of the land comprised in a tenure was wrongly resumed by Government, and the landlord did not object to the same and without taking accepted malikana from the Government who realised rent of that portion of the resumed land from the tenant, held in a suit for rent by the landlord that the tenant's plea to get abatement of rent should be accepted: Jitendra Nath Ray v. Asutosh Goswami, 27 C.W.N. 381, (B. B. Ghose J., Walmsley J., agreeing).

It is open to a court to make an enquiry whether the tenant was not put in possession of a portion of the property for the purpose of determining that the tenant is entitled to a reduction: Benimadhab v. Krishna Kamini, 36 C.L.J. 121.

The purchaser of a tenure at a sale for arrears of rent acquires title to the lands on the terms of the original lease unaffected by any incumbrances created by previous tenants. Such a purchaser, under sec. 159 of the B. T. Act is not entitled to an abatement of rent in respect of part of the land which at the date of the purchase was in possession of a trespasser who afterwards was allowed by him to remain in possession and this required an absolute title against the purchaser. It is the duty of a tenant under a perpetual tenure to protect himself against illegal encroachments by others on the lands of which he has the exclusive possession: Katyayani Debi v. Uday Kumar, 52 I.A. 160, s.c., 52 Cal. 417 (P.C.), s.c., 30 C.W.N. 1 (P.C.): Womesh Chandra v. Rajnarain, 10 W.R. 15 approved—Judgment of the High Court (49 Cal. 948) affirmed.

Where a proprietor has parted with his land in favour of a permanent tenure-holder, he is no longer under any obligation unless there is a special contract to that effect, to protect the property of the tenure-holder from the encroachment of salt water: Mahammad Ismail Mia v. Sures Chandra Saha, 53 Cal. 442 (Walmsley and Chakravarti, J.J.).

A claim for abatement may be made for land taken by Government for public purpose, Deendyal v. Thukroo, 6 W.R. Act X, 24. A putnidar may also claim abatement upon such ground as the land is absolutely lost to the putnidar and he is also entitled to some share of the compensation money; Buowani Nath Chukerbutty v. Land Acquisition Deputy Collector of Bogra and another, 7 C.W.N. 130;

A tenant's title to a holding is not necessarily lost by non-payment of rent during the time the land is sub-merged; whether from the non-payment of rent or from the conduct of the tenant, abandonment or surrender should be inferred is a question of fact: Dinanath v. Umes Chandra, 49 I.C. 984, (Teunon and Cumming, J.J.).

Wrong resumption of a portion of tenure.

Where tenant not put in possession of a portion of demised premises. Purchaser of a tenure at a rent sale.

Land acquired for public purposes. Putni.

also see Prosunnomoyee v. Soondur, 7 W.R. Act X, 30. A putnidar may also claim abatement upon the ground that portions of land included in his putni have been resumed as chakran by Government: Huro Kissen v. Joy Kissen, 1 W.R. 299.

A putni kabuliyat contained an agreement to the following effect ; that if the land be taken up by Government for a railway, a ferry fund or other purposes, the zemindar and the putnidar shall divide the compensation paid by Government in respect of such land, each receiving one moiety ; and also that the putnidar will make no objection on the score of diluvion, or any other causes to pay the rent reserved by the kabuliyat ; held that the putnidar was entitled to an abatement of the rent on the ground that part of the land had been acquired by the Government for public purposes: Uma Sunkur v. Tarini Chandra, 9 Cal. 571. But where a putnidar was allowed by the zemindar to appropriate the whole of the compensation the zemindar declaring that he would not grant an abatement, held that where the putni was sold under Regulation VIII of 1819 with notice of the amount of the original rent, the purchaser was not entitled to an abatement: Peari Mohun v. Audhiraj, 10 C.L.R. 526.

In a putni kabuliyat where there was a stipulation for remission to the tenant if the landlord obtains remission from the Government in respect of lands taken up for culverts, embankments or roads, held that the putnidar was entitled to get the same amount of remission in the jumma of the putni: Hirendra Nath v. Harimohan, 18 C.W.N. 860 ; the words "Culverts, embankments or roads" were illustrative and not exhaustive: Ibid.

A kabuliyat contained the following clause:—"In regard to the aforesaid rent we take upon ourselves the risk of flood and drought, of death and flight, of alluvion and diluvion, of profit and loss. In any case shall we be able to claim a reduction in the rent, nor will it be open to you to demand more on account of alluvion, &c." Lands were taken up by Government for the purpose of a railway and compensation was paid to the lessor ; held that the tenant was entitled to a deduction from the rent ; Watson v. Nistarini, 10 Cal. 544.

In order to bring a case within the first alternative mentioned in cl. (4) of s. 52 it is to be shown in the first place what the yearly value of the tenure is, it is next to be shown what is the diminution of the total yearly value of the tenure, and in order to calculate the diminution, the Court must find out the yearly value of the land lost: Kanai Lal v. Midnapur Zemindari Co., Ltd., 5 C.L.J. 48n. If there is no abatement of rent, and the putnidar continues liable to pay to the zemindar the same rent as he had to pay before, there would be nothing for which the zemindar is to receive compensation: Satis-chandra v. Jatindra, 7 C.L.J. 248 ; the same rule applied to a perpetual lease with fixity of rent: Ibid. A suit brought by a putnidar for a declaration that he is entitled to an annual abatement of the putni rent in consequence of some lands acquired for the purpose of a railway and also for rent paid for some years, held that this was substantially a claim for abatement of rent and the prayer for refund is ancillary and therefore, in a locality where Act X of 1859 is in force, the claim is not maintainable in a Civil Court: (Per Mookerjee, J.) Asutosh v. Harinarayana, 3 C.L.J. 143.

Where there was no abatement of rent under the terms of the putni lease by the zemindar to the putnidar in respect of the land acquired, held that the zemindar was not entitled to any portion of the compensation money: Bipradas Pal v. Sarat Chandra, 16 C.L.J. 209; see also Ram Ranjan v. Sunwari Lal, 16 C.L.J. 211.

Where by an agreement in the lease the tenant was entitled to an abatement, held that the latter was not entitled to claim an abatement if by his own default and not of his landlord he is in possession of a less quantity: Sita Nath v. Sham Chand, 17 W.R. 418.

Where tenant is in possession of a less quantity by his own default.

Where a tenant is evicted from possession of a portion of a holding or tenure by a person claiming under a title paramount, the tenant is entitled to a reduction of rent: Brojonath v. Heera Lal, 10 W.R. 120; Mohanund v. Lalla Gobind, 12 W.R. 109; Imambadi v. Kameleswari, 21 Cal. 1005; Surendra Narain v. Dinanath, 43 Cal. 554, s. c., 36 I.C. 33; the onus is on the lessor to show what is the fair rent of the lands out of which the tenant was not evicted: Ibid.

Dispossession by person claiming under title paramount.

In creating a permanent tenure an agreement that the tenant will be deprived of the provisions of s. 52 is valid, but it should be stated with clearness; so where it was stated merely in such a lease that there shall never be any decrease or increase of the rent it was held that the tenant was entitled to abatement as the expression was not clear: Umesh Chandra v. Matilal, 39 C.L.J. 431.

Where stipulation in a permanent tenure no increase, or decrease, meaning of.

When a tenant was obliged to bring a suit to obtain possession and succeeded in obtaining only a part of what was granted in mokurari, held, that there was the same equity for an apportionment as in a case of eviction: Imambandi v. Kamaleswari, 21 Cal. 1005 (P.C.).

Apportionment.

A raiyat who holds diara land cannot claim reduction of rent under cl. (b) of sub-sec. (1) unless he acquires a right of occupancy: Srinibash v. Ram Raj Tewary, 18 C.W.N. 598.

Diara land.

As to abatement of rent on the ground of diluvion—see notes under the next heading (No. 16).

As to reduction of rent—see also notes under sec. 38.

See also notes under heading No. 24 "Limitation."

16. Abatement of Rent for Diluvion:—If a portion of the land demised is washed away the tenant is entitled to abatement of rent on the principle formulated in s. 52: Salimulla v. Kaliprosunno, 22 C.L.J. 569; s. c., 21 C.W.N. 371; in order to defeat the claim of a tenant to abatement of a rent it must be proved affirmatively by the landlord that the tenant had contracted himself out of his right to claim abatement by some express stipulation: Ibid. It may be pointed out here that a contract made after the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Act shall not take away the right of a raiya to apply for a reduction of rent under s. 38 or s. 52": See s. 178 sub-sec. (3) cl. (f); see in this connection the case of The Secretary of State v. Kamal Krishna, 44 I.C. 222 (Richardson and Beachcroft J.J.). In the case of a temporary tenure the contract was that diluvion or no diluvion, the liability of the tenant to the full rent payable should remain, held that ss. 52 and 38 should be read together and that the tenant was not entitled to reduction of rent: The Secretary of State v. Kamal Krishna, 22 C.W.N. 56 (notes).

Abatement for diluvion.

Where in a permanent mokurari lease it was stipulated in the lease that the tenant would not be able to claim abatement of rent for diminution of area for diluvion, held that on account of diluvion the tenant was not entitled to claim an abatement of rent under s. 52 : Nando Lal v. Kymuddin, 9 C.W.N. 886.

Permanent mokurari lease.

In the case of Enayatulla v. Elahibuksh, [1884] W.R. Act X Rulings 42, Peacock C. J. stated that it was settled doctrine that the tenant was entitled to abatement for the lands washed away, if the terms of the kabuliyat were not such as to preclude him from claiming that abatement. He pointed out that the rule was founded on principles of natural justice and equity and that if a landlord let his land at a certain rent to be paid during the period of occupation and the land was by the action of God put in such a state that the tenant could not enjoy it, the tenant was entitled to abatement. He held accordingly that when land was proved to have been washed away and yet the claim for abatement was resisted by the landlord it must be proved affirmatively by him, that the tenant had contracted himself out of his right to claim abatement by some express stipulation mentioned in the lease.

See in this connection also the cases of Watson & Co. v. Nistarini, 10 Cal. 544 ; Ishan Chunder v. Chunder Kant, 13 C.L.R. 55, and the case of Secretary of State v. Kamal Krishna, 44 I.C. 222, (Richardson and Beachcroft J.J.).

The cases of Enayatulla v. Elahibuksh, [1884] W.R., Act X Rulings 42, and Salimulla v. Kali Prasanna, 22 C.L.J. 569, s. c., 21 C.W.N. 371, were referred to and followed in the case of Dwijendra v. Jitendra, 32 C.W.N. 295 (B. B. Ghose & Mallik, J.J.) where upon an interpretation of the terms of the lease in respect of a mourashi mokurari tenure it was held that the contract was that there should be neither increase nor decrease of the rent on any ground whatsoever and the tenant was not entitled to abatement of rent on the ground of diluvion.

Rent is paid by a tenant for the use of land, and if for no fault of his own the lands are washed away, he cannot, on general principles be held liable to pay rent : Rajendra v. Manindra, 24 C.L.J. 162.

A permanent tenure-holder by claiming or accepting remission of rent in respect of lands washed away from time to time by the action of the river, did not abandon or agree to abandon their rights to such land on their reformation in situ : Arun Chandra v. Kamini Kumar, 41 Cal. 685 (P.C.), s. c., 18 C.W.N. 369.

Hajabad.

When in a suit for rent the tenants claimed remission of rent payable on account of what are called hajabad land (i.e., land liable to inundation) under an alleged custom under which in the year of inundation no portion of such rent, irrespective of the extent of the land inundated or of the crops destroyed, was recoverable from them : held that the custom was both unreasonable and uncertain and was in consequence invalid in law : Sibnarain v. Bhutnath, 22 C.W.N. 422, s. c., 28 C.L.J. 148.

Last assessment—Area.

Where it has not been shewn that there has been any diminution in the area for which rent was last assessed, no suit for abatement of rent under s. 52 can lie : Kesho Prasad v. Bhagawat, [1924 Pat.], p. 18, (Dawson Miller C. J. and Mullick J.).

Diluvion—
“on any other ground,”

When diluvion is established by the tenant, if there is no express agreement to the contrary, in a case arising before the Bengal Tenancy Act came into force, the tenant is entitled to abatement of rent ; the landlord is to prove the reduced amount of rent which can be done by proof of the extent of diluvion : Ram Kristo v. Abdul Karim, 34 C.L.J. 35, (Mookerjee C. J. and Fletcher J.).

Where a kabuliyat stipulated that the tenant would not get abatement on the ground of diluvion "or on any other ground," held that the words "or on any other ground" referred to cases of like nature as diluvion : Meshabuddin v. Abdul, 34 C.L.J. 119, (N. R. Chatterjea and Panton J.J.). See in this connection the case of Dwijendra v. Jitendra, 32 C.W.N. 295.

Ordinarily a tenant is exempt from payment of the whole rent if the whole of the land be washed away ; and a plea for abatement of rent may be taken in a rent-suit : Sekhraj v. Grugadayal, 6 Pat. L.J. 665, s. c., [1922 Pat.] 132 ; (Jwala Prasad and Ross J.J.). For lands washed away a tenant holding under a mokurari lease in an area not permanently settled is entitled to a reduction of rent even if the lease stipulated that the tenant would not be entitled to reduction of rent : Khetramoni Dasi v. Jibon Krishna, 48 I.A. 39, s. c., 48 Cal. 473, s. c., 25 C.W.N. 361, s. c., 33 C.L.J. 214, (P.C.).

17. Apportionment of Rent :—Where a comparatively small portion of the demised lands was found to have originally belonged to the lessee and to have been included in the lease by mutual mistake, it was held that the whole lease should not be set aside but that there should be an apportionment of rent for the remaining land : Raimoni Dassi v. Mathuramohon, 16 C.W.N. 606 ; there is no suspension of rent when the tenant did not get possession of a portion of the land demised, in the beginning of the tenancy ; the tenant in such a case is bound to pay proportionate rent ; Annada v. Malthura Lal Nag, 13 C.W.N. 702, s. c., 9 C.L.J. 585. Where land forming part of a tenant's holding was lost by diluvion, but subsequently reappeared and was settled by the landlord with third parties : held that there was no eviction of the tenant by the landlord, and the tenant could not claim suspension of the whole rent but may claim a proportionate abatement of the rent : Raicharan v. The Administrator General of Bengal, 13 C.W.N. 853.

Where land leased out had been let out before.

No suspension of rent where tenant did not get possession.

Diluvion.

S. 52 of the Bengal Tenancy Act is not exhaustive : a claim for abatement of rent may be established otherwise than by measurement ; a tenant is entitled to reduction of the rent if he is dispossessed of a portion of the land comprised in the tenancy by a person claiming under a title paramount : Rani Dassi v. Ashutosh Ray, 14 C.W.N. 152 (notes portion), s. c., 15 C.L.J. 310.

S. 52 not exhaustive. Disposition by title paramount.

The doctrine of suspension of rent has no application to a case where the stipulated rent is so much per acre or bigha : Kalyani v. Uday Kumar, 52 I.A. 160, s. c., 52 Cal. 470, s. c., 30 C.W.N. 1 (P.C.) B. B. Ghose and Roy J.J., explaining the Privy Council case of Kalyani observed in the case of Susil Kumar v. Rajani Kanta, 31 C.W.N. 990 that even where the rent reserved is a lump sum for the whole land there may be apportionment of rent.

Apportionment of rent.

18. Accretion :—Cl. 1, sec. 4, Reg. XI of 1825 refers to of tenants who possess some permanent interest in their lands and not to tenants from year to year : Zuheeroodeen v. Campbell, 4 W.R. 57, A raiyat who has right of occupancy is entitled to the benefit of s. 4, cl. 1 of Reg. XI of 1825 ; Gourhari v. Bhola Koiburto, 21 Cal. 233

Woopendra*, 8 Cal. 706. S. 4 of cl. 1 of Reg. XI of 1825 applies only where the tenant has pre-existing rights in the parent land : Beni Pershad v. Chaturi, 4 C.L.J. 63 ; and where there is fresh arrangement each year this section does not apply : Ibid. The accretion should be assessed at the same rate as the parent tenure : Golam Ali v. Kali Krishna, 7 Cal. 479 ; s. c., 8 C.L.R. 517, but in this case it was not laid down that there should be an inflexible rule applicable to all cases, but having regard to the particular circumstances of that case (i.e., Golam Ali v. Kali Krishna), it was thought that the accreted land should bear the same rent as was payable in respect of the land include in the original tenure : Chooramonee v. Howrah Mills Company, 11 Cal. 696. Where a mokurari is granted at the full letting value of the land comprised in it, it would be unjust to assess the newly-added land at the rate of the original mokurari, if the accreted lands be of inferior quality : on the other hand, if the accreted lands be of superior quality, or if in fixing the mokurari rent a lower standard than the full letting value was adopted in consideration of any bonus paid, it would be unjust to the landlord to fix the rent of the accretion at the rate of rent fixed in respect of the original tenure : Ibid.

Rate of assessment. But in the absence of any special circumstance the rate of rent to be assessed upon the accretion should be in proportion to that paid for the parent tenure : Ibid. See also Gopal Lal v. Kumar Ali, 6 W.R. Act X, 85, for accreted lands which are liable to enhancement, a tenant is entitled to a deduction of 10 per cent. for collection charges and 10 per cent. for talukdari profits : Jaggut Chunder v. Panioty, 6 W.R. Act X, 48.

Rent free holding. The holder of a rent-free holding is entitled to possession of all lands forming accretions thereto but he is not entitled to hold the same rent free : Baidya Nath v. Nundalal, 18 C.W.N. 1206.

Persons who have a status of tenure-holders with regard to parent tenure, have the same status with regard to accretions : Karuna v. Secretary of State, 100 I.C. 466, s. c., A.I.R. (1927) Cal. 413. (Duval & Mitter J.J.).

Conditions laid down in Reg. X. The landlord is entitled to an increased rent on account of accretion on the condition laid down in Regulation XI of 1825 : Shorussoti v. Parbutti, 6 C.L.R. 362. See also Hurro Sundaree v. Gopee Sundari, 10 C.L.R. 559 ; Ramnidhi v. Parbutty, 5 Cal. 283.

Re-assessment of Revenue. Chapter X, B. T. Act. Reg. VII of 1822. S. 52, B. T. Act.

19. Re-assessment of revenue :—It is open to the Revenue-authorities in the case of a temporarily settled estate, to re-assess the revenue and re-settle the estate with effect from the expiry of a previous term of settlement ; to enhance the rents of tenants, proceedings should be taken either by the Revenue-authorities under Part II of Chapter X of the Bengal Tenancy Act (and not under Reg. VII of 1822) or by the landlord under s. 52 or some other appropriate section : Ashutosh v. Dwarika Nath, 27 C.W.N. 121, s. c., 36 C.L.J. 192.

Increment, a part of the parent tenure.

20. Increment :—An increment is to be recorded as a part of the parent tenure and the landlord cannot treat the increment as a separate tenure altogether, and treating it as a part and parcel of the parent tenure he can claim such relief as under the law he is entitled to obtain as against the tenure-holder : Assanulla v. Mohini Mohan, 26 Cal. 739 (744).

21. Standard of measurement:—The landlord is to prove the area at the inception by the same standard as that by which the excess is found : Indu Bhusan v. Jatu Mullick, 35 C.L.J. 161, (N. R. Chatterjea and Panton, J.J.).

Standard of measurement—inception of the tenancy.

Where in a lease there is a stipulation that the tenant would pay additional rent for additional area according to the Khod Khasta Nal, held that evidence was admissible to show what the expression meant, there being nothing in the kabuliyat for guidance as to the proper meaning of the expression Khod Khastanal : Prasanna Kumar v. Arun Chandra, 29 C.W.N. 353.

Meaning of Khod Khasta Nal Evidence admissible : kabuliat does not explain it.

As to standard of measurement : See notes under sec. 92.

22. Proceeding under sec. 158 :—In a proceeding under s. 158 the Court has no jurisdiction to assess additional rent for excess lands found to be in occupation of the tenants, its function being limited to record the existing rent payable by the tenant at the time of the application : Srinarain v. Maharaja Rameswar, 6 C.W.N. 592.

S. 158—excludes lands.

23. Res judicata :—Each year's rent is in itself a separate and entire cause of action and the mere failure of a tenant to prove in a previous suit for rent that he was entitled to an abatement does not prevent him from proving the same in a subsequent suit brought for recovery of rent for a different period ; Nilmadhub v. Brojonath, 21 Cal. 240 ; Raghoonath v. Juggut Bundhoo, 7 Cal. 214. But where in a suit for rent the issue was as to whether the rent claimed was payable in respect to the quantity as alleged by the landlord of a much larger quantity as alleged by the tenant, and it was decided in favour of the landlord, held that a subsequent suit by the tenant for a declaration that the rent was payable for the larger area as claimed by him was barred by the rule of res judicata ; Bussun Lall v. Chundee, 4 Cal. 686 ; see also Nobodurga v. Foyzbox, 1 Cal. 202 : s. c., 24 W.R. 403. A tenant whose defence, that the landlord was entitled to rent in respect of a lesser area of land than was stated in his claim, was dismissed on the merits in a previous rent suit, is precluded from raising the same defence in a subsequent rent suit by the rule of res judicata ; Upendra Kumar v. Sham Lal, 11 C.W.N. 1100. A suit for assessment of additional rent on the same additional area which formed the subject-matter of a previous suit is barred as the decision in the previous suit operates as res judicata : Kisori Manikya v. Umedali, 12 C.W.N. 904.

Rule of res judicata does not apply when objection not taken in previous suit. But it applies where in a previous suit the question as to area was decided.

24. Limitation :—The right to recover additional rent for increased area is a recurring one and a landlord is entitled to exercise it whenever he finds it necessary to do so : Jotindra Mohon v. Chandra Nath, 6 C.W.N. 360. A tenant is also entitled to claim an abatement of rent although he has paid full rent for several years : Mahtab Chand v. Chitro Coomaree, 16 W.R. 201. A landlord brought a suit in an alternative form asking either for khas possession of the excess land or for a declaratory decree assessing the rent thereon in the terms of the kabuliyat ; he ultimately failed in his prayer for direct possession but succeeded in getting a declaratory decree ; he brought a suit for rent alleging that his cause of action accrued by virtue of the decree ; held that this was not so and that the cause of action accrued on the last day of the year on which the rent fell tenant from raising such a plea, the tenant was disentitled to any relief for the great delay and other circumstances peculiar to the case : Ram Narain v. Poolin Behary, 2 C.L.R. 5 ; where lands were occupied and enjoyed as lands included in the pattah since before the Decennial settlement, held that there could not be any enhancement : Sutto Churn v. Obhoy Nund, 2 W.R. Act X, 33.

A claim to enhanced rent is a recurring cause of action and is governed by Art. 131 of the Limitation Act, 1908 and not by Art. 102 ; limitation runs from the date of refusal to pay rent at the enhanced rent : Brij Behari v. Sheo Sankar, 2 Pat. L.J. 124.

See also Hem v. Atul, 19 C.W.N. 386, s. c., 19 C.L.J. 118 ; Devendra Narayan v. Jhumur, 43 C.L.J. 387 (Suhrawardy & Mukerji, J.J.). Suit for assessment of rent free lands is governed by Art 130 of the Limitation Act and is to be instituted within 12 years from the time when the right to assess the land first arises and this right may arise upon a notice of the tenant's claim to hold it rent free : Ibid.

25. Framing of suit under s. 52 :—In a suit for khas possession or for assessment of rent it was found that the land was not a part of the original holding but subsequently acquired and treated as a part of the original holding the prayer for khas possession was refused but the liability of the defendant to rent was decreed ; no decree could be passed for additional rent as the suit was not framed as one under s. 52 : Harachandra v. Radhakison, 20 C.L.J. 296.

26. Sub-sec. (6) :—This sub-sec. was added by Act I B. C. of 1907 in Bengal and E. B. and A. C. Act I of 1908.

Practice of measurement refers to the measurement at the time of original settlement.

There is some ambiguity as to the meaning of the words "at the time the measurement on which the claim is based was made" ; the language is not very clear as to whether "the time" referred to means the time when the original settlement was made or the time when the measurement upon which the excess area is found out before the institution of the suit. It is submitted that on reading this sub-section as a whole it seems that the measurement refers to the time when the original settlement is made and not to the time when the excess area is found before the institution of the suit. [If it meant the measurement subsequently made then every landlord can introduce a practice of measurement before the institution of suit and bring a suit for additional rent of ancient holdings.]

This question came up for decision in the case of Uma Singh v. Tarini Prasad, 19 C.L.J. 451 ; (N. Chatterjea, J.), has taken the view that the measurement refers to the time when the original settlement was made. But the language of the judgment is not very clear ; however in a later case Umed Ali v. Nawab Khaja Habibulla, 47 Cal. 266, s. c., 31 C.L.J. 68 decided by N. R. Chatterjea and Duval J.J. the case of Uma Singh v. Tarini Prasad, 19 C.L.J. 451 has been explained and it has been clearly stated in their Lordships' judgment that the measurement refers to the time when the original settlement had been made.

But in the Full Bench Case of Nilmani Kar v. Sati Prasad Garga, 48 Cal. 556 (F.B.), s. c., 25 C.W.N. 230, s. c., 32 C.L.J. 302, (Mookerjee C. J., Fletcher, N. R. Chatterjea, Richardson and Ghose J.J.). The expression "at the time of the measurement upon which the claim is based was made" in s. 52 (6) refers to the measurement upon which the area in excess or defect, as the case may be, is found out before the institution of the suit. It does not as ruled in Khojeh Habibulla v. Umed Ali, 47 Cal. 266, s. c., 31 C.L.J. 68 refer to the measurement made at the time of the original settlement or the last preceding adjustment of rent.

It is submitted with great respect to the learned Judges of the Full Bench that the view taken by them will have anomalous consequences and the interpretation made by them of the words "at the time of the measurement upon which the claim is based was made" is open to doubt. It is submitted that the decisions over-ruled by the Full Bench laid down a correct view of the law.

"In my opinion it is not incumbent upon the landlord to prove that there was an actual measurement or that there has been a practice of measurement. If the landlord can shew that by contract between him and the tenants it was agreed that a certain rental at a certain rate per bigha was to be paid for a certain area then he is entitled to apply under s. 52 B. T. Act even if that area was agreed upon without any actual measurement or a practice of measurement with the perganna" (Per Mullick, J., Jwala Prasad J., agreeing): Kesho Prasad v. Tribhuan, 2 Pat. L.J. 276. See also Shib Sahai Lal v. Bijoy Chand Mahatab, 5 Pat. 157, s. c., 90 I.C. 862 ; Durga Priya v. Nazra Gain, 25 C.W.N. 204.

27. Right to Additional Rent : Recurring Right :—The right of a landlord to recover additional rent for additional area is a recurring one. He is entitled to exercise it whenever he finds it necessary : Jotindra v. Chandranath, 6 C.W.N. 360 ; Radhakishore v. Umedali, 12 C.W.N. 904.

28. 10 pc. deduction from Area ascertained by measurement :—There is no principle of law on which a deduction of 10 p.c. can be made by Survey officers from the area found by measurement. There is no reason to allow any deduction from a scientific measurement made by Settlement Officers or any other measurement made by the landlord unless it is shewn that either of these measurements was inaccurate. Ordinarily the measurements made by the Settlement Officers are accepted as scientifically made and correct but measurements made by the landlord are not scientifically made and it may be that such measurements may be challenged but unless such measurement are challenged as inaccurate prima facie they ought to be accepted as correct. When any such plea is taken and the court finds from the circumstances, that there are reasons to believe that previous measurements were inaccurate, in such a case the court ought, upon the circumstances and evidence of each case, to find whether the previous measurement was or was not accurate. If it is found to be inaccurate then the court would make certain deductions as would, in the circumstances of that case, give an approximate and accurate result: Chundy v. Balaram, 91 I.C. 763; s. c., 1926 A.I.R. (Cal.) 616 (Cuming and Chakravarti, J.J.).

Khettra Nath Sabui*, 17 C.W.N. 820, s. c., 18 C.L.J. 175 (Jenkins C. J. and Ray J.). In a lease executed in the year 1865 there was a stipulation that the rents should be paid by monthly instalments, held that the purchaser of the tenure at a sale for arrears of rent was bound to pay rent by monthly instalments and interest on arrears would be calculated monthly: Nadio Sundari Debi v. Girindra Narayan Singha, 7 C.L.J. 24 (notes).

Usage as used in
s. 183.

3. Usage :—With regard to the word "usage" as used in sec. 183 their lordships (Trevelyan and Beverley, J.J.) in delivering their judgment in the case of Dalgleish v. Guzuffer Hossain, 23 Cal. 429, observed as follows:—"The word 'usage' at any rate, would include what the people are now or recently in the habit of doing in a particular place. It may be that this particular habit is only of a very recent origin, or it may be one which has existed for a long time. If it be one regularly and ordinarily practised by the inhabitants of the place where the tenure exists, there would be 'usage' within the meaning of this section." The words "custom" and "usage" are not synonymous terms and the same kind of evidence as would be required to prove a custom is not necessary when the existence of a local usage is in question; a long period of time must elapse, before a custom in respect of the transferability of occupancy holdings can grow up, but this is not the case with regard to the growth of a usage: Dalgleish v. Guzuffer Hossain, 3 C.W.N. 22. The "usage" to which secs. 178 and 183 refer is not restricted to a usage existing at the time of the passing of the Act but it includes usage which may have subsequently grown up: Ibid.

The payment of rent by the lessee from the mortgagor in advance after the institution of suit by the mortgagee is not binding upon the mortgagee or on the receiver appointed in the suit: Kiran Chandra v. Dutt & Co., 40 C.L.J. 500.

Payment of rent in advance not binding upon mortgagee

It is submitted that the correctness of this decision is open to doubt; for where a landlord before the creation of mortgage accepts rent in advance from his tenant he is the only person entitled absolutely to deal with the property in any manner he likes; he is fully entitled to give a discharge to a tenant of his future dues. He can create a rent-free grant—and if he can do so and if such grants are binding upon the mortgagee, it is reasonable to think that any arrangement which he makes with a tenant before the date of the creation of the mortgage must be considered to be binding upon the mortgagee. If a person makes a transfer of a portion or whole of his property the mortgagee cannot say that he is not bound by it. Likewise all interests created in favour of tenants or other third persons are binding upon the mortgagees.

[Payments made by tenants to a mortgagor after a mortgage, but before notice of it, must, in order to be valid against the mortgagee, have been made in respect of rent which was due at the time of payment or became due before notice of the mortgage; but when a lessee has prepaid to his lessor all the rent to become due under the lease and the lessor then mortgages the premises to a mortgagee who neglects to make a proper enquiry of the lessee, who is in possession, the mortgagee cannot recover any part of the rent reserved by the lease: Ibid.

4. Established usage :—This expression refers not to a practice previously prevailing between the parties, but to the established usage of the pergunnah in which the property is situated: Hira Lal v. Mothura Mohun, 15 Cal. 714; Chytunno v. Kedar Nath, 14 W.R. 99. The case of Hira Lal v. Mothura Mohan, 15 Cal. 714, was followed in the case of Watson v. Sreekristo, 21 Cal. 132, where it was held that the established usage referred to in this section was not the usage between the parties but the established usage of the locality.

Usage of the locality.

The use of the words (সন বসন) san basan in a pattah does not show that the rent was to be paid according to instalments, if such instalments are payable by established usage, they merely mean that the amount of rent should be paid every year: Chytunno v. Kedar Nath, 14 W.R. 99. Where by an agreement the defendant was to pay Government revenue through the plaintiff: held that he was liable to pay Government revenue as it fell due and the rule which prevailed in the locality for the payments of instalments of rent by ordinary tenants was not at all applicable to the defendant: Giridhari v. The Court of Wards, 10 W.R. 368. Where in a kabuliyat it was provided that rent was to be paid in monthly instalments the mere fact that the payment of the rent had not been enforced (by not taking the rents in monthly instalments) did not take away from the landlord

5. Due:—When a putni was sold under Reg. VIII of 1819, the putnidar was ousted and the purchaser was put into possession and the sale being subsequently set aside, the zemindar brought a suit for recovery of rent on the putnidar being restored to possession: held, that upon the setting aside of the sale and the restoration of the party to possession, he took back the estate subject to the obligation to pay the rent and the arrears claimed must be taken to have become due in the year in which the restoration to possession took place: Rani Surnomoyee v. Shoshee Mukhee, 12 Moo. 244: s. c., 2 B.L.R. P.C. 11: s. c., 11 W.R.P.C. 5. The principle of this case was held not to apply to a suit for rent brought by a landlord after a suit for khas possession brought by him failed: Harro Prosad v. Gopal Dass, 3 Cal. 817; but see Eshan Chandra v. Khajah Essanoolah, 16 W.R. 79, where it was held that the principle of the case of Surnomoyee v. Shoshee Mukhee, applied to a case where plaintiff brought a suit for rent after being unsuccessful in a suit for khas possession.

Assignment
of rent;
suit for rent
if rent assigned is not paid.

The principle was also held to apply where the landlord assigned his tenant's rent in favour of his creditor, and subsequently a suit for rent was brought three years after the rent became due on the discovery of the fact that the rent assigned had not been paid by the tenant: Mohesh v. Gungamonee, 18 W.R. 59. The correctness of this decision was doubted by their Lordships Garth, C. J., and MacDonell, J., in the case of Hurro Prosad v. Gopal Dass, 3 Cal. 817.

Pendency of a suit for rent and for ejectment.

Surnomoyee
v. Shoshee Mukhee where not applicable.

Plaintiff instituted proceedings in the year 1272 for arrears of rent due and for ejectment of the defendant for non-payment of rent and obtained a decree: defendant paid rent within the time allowed by the decree and secured the right of continuing as a tenant; in 1270 plaintiff brought a suit for recovery of rent for 1272 and subsequent years; held, that the case of Rani Surnomoyee v. Shoshee Mukhee, 12 Moo. 244, applied: Dindoyal v. Radha Kishori, 8 B.L.R. 526; plaintiff's suit for rent for 1270 and subsequent years being dismissed, he brought a suit for declaration of his right to recover rent which was decreed, and plaintiff subsequently brought a suit for rent for 1271 to 1279, held that the Privy Council case of Rani Surnomoyee did not apply: Baroda Kant v. Chunder Coomar, 23 W.R. 280.

Demand for rent cannot be considered to be in suspense during the pendency of a suit by landlord to eject the tenant.

A landlord objected to the registration of the names of the successors of his tenant and brought a suit to eject them and during the pendency of the litigation the landlord sued to recover rent not upon the basis of lease but for use and occupation treating the tenants as trespassers: both the suits were dismissed; the landlord subsequently sued on the basis of the lease, held that the claim for rent beyond three years was barred and it could not be said that the right to demand the rents which fell due during the pendency of the suit for ejectment was in suspense during the pendency of the litigation: Watson & Co. v. Dhonendra, 3 Cal. 6; where a suit for enhancement of rent was dismissed and subsequently the landlord brought a suit for rent at the admitted rent for the period when the former suit was pending, held that the old admitted rent did not become due on the dismissal of the enhancement suit: Brojendra v. Rakhal, 2 Cal. 791.

A landlord may under certain circumstances be allowed a deduction when limitation is pleaded in a suit for rent but the landlord's action must in that case be bona fide and he must have brought his suit for ejection in the full belief that the defendants were trespassers ; Hura Nath v. Goluck Nath, 19 W.R. 18. Contra.

6. Money rent:—Rent includes also money recoverable under any enactment for the time being in force as if it was rent. See s. 3, sub-sec. (5) and notes thereunder. Money rent.

The landlord decree-holder is debarred from claiming an amount not mentioned in the sale proclamation ; Rajnarin v. Panna Chand, 30 Cal. 213.

7. Produce rent:—This section does not apply to produce rents. It seems that such rents, subject to agreement, would be payable at the end of the year ; see Sch. III, Part I, Art. 2, cl. (b).

54. (1) Every tenant shall pay each instalment of rent before sunset of the day on which it falls due. Time and place for payment of rent.

(2) The payment shall, except in cases where a tenant is allowed under this Act to deposit his rent, be made at the landlord's village-office, or at such other convenient place as may be appointed in that behalf by the landlord :

Provided that the Local Government may, from time to time, make rules, either generally or for any specified local area, authorizing a tenant to pay his rent by postal money-order.

(3) Any instalment or part of an instalment of rent not duly paid at or before the time when it falls due shall be deemed an arrear.

I. Every tenant:—Where a tenure is sold in execution of a decree, the auction-purchaser is liable for the whole instalment of rent accruing due after his purchase, but before confirmation of the sale ; rent is to be regarded not as accruing from day to day, but as falling due only at stated times according to the contract of tenancy or, in the absence of any contract, according to the general law laid down in sec. 53 of the Bengal Tenancy Act: Satyendra Nath v. Liability of auction purchaser for rent due after sale ; but not before sale.

Purchaser becomes the tenant from the date of the confirmation of sale.

Nilkantha, 21 Cal. 383 ; but where a tenure is sold in execution of a decree for arrears of rent, the auction-purchaser is not liable for the arrears of rent which became due prior to his purchase : Fazl Rahan v. Ramsukh, 21 Cal. 169 : and when a landlord brings a tenure to sale in execution of a decree for arrears of rent, the purchaser becomes his tenant only from the date of the confirmation of the sale, and the arrears accruing due between the date of sale and the date of confirmation of sale, must be treated as arrears of rent payable by the outgoing tenant whose interest does not cease till the sale is confirmed : Karoonamoy v. Surendra Nath, 2 C.W.N. 327 (notes).

Purchaser bound by terms of previous lease.

In a case where the original kabuliyat was executed in 1865 and contained the stipulation that the rents should be paid by monthly instalments ; the tenure was sold in execution of a decree, held that the purchaser was bound to pay rent by monthly instalments : Nadia Sundari Debi v. Girindra Narain Singha, 7 C.L.J. 24 (notes).

If a landlord is bound to accept a part of arrears of rent.

2. Each instalment of rent :—It seems that the landlord is not bound to accept any sum which falls short of one instalment of rent. This question has not as yet been decided, but it was observed in the case of Sati Prasad v. Monmotha, 18 C.W.N. 84 that a landlord can not be asked to accept a small proportion of the rent due as the whole rent.

S. 61—Deposit of a smaller amount

A deposit in a Court by a tenant of an amount less than the amount of arrears due is not a valid deposit under s. 61 ; Sati Prasad v. Monmotha, 18 C.W.N. 84.

Instalments.

Cl. (3) of s. 54 deals with only cases of rent payable in instalments : Brahmamoyi v. Somarali, 68 I.C. 109, (Newbould and Panton J.J.).

“I am unable to accept the contention that because it” (rent) “is not paid in instalments it cannot fall into arrears” : Maubharat v. Nowbut, [1920 Pat.] p. 257 ; s. c., 5 Pat. L.J. 641 ; (per Coutts J., Sultan Ahmed J., agreeing).

Village office.

3. Village office :—A tenant's liability to pay rent remains notwithstanding that the landlord has no village office and that he has not appointed a convenient place for payment ; where there is no controlling agreement the tenant must go to his landlord and pay the rent as it falls due ; Fakir Lall v. W. C. Bonnerjee, 4 C.W.N. 324.

Place of payment.

Any officer of the zemindari authorised to receive rent who happens to be in the village office can receive it and give a valid acquittance ; but because a man happens to be manager of the zeminder, he cannot be compelled to take rent tendered wherever he may happen to be and at whatever time or place it may be offered : Sati Prasad v. Monmotha Nath, 18 C.W.N. 84.

Payment to one co-sharer is not good against other.

4. Payment to co-sharer :—A payment to one of three persons jointly entitled to receive money is not good against the other two : Peary Lal v. Madhaji, 17 C.L.J. 372 ; see also Harihar v. Bholi, 6 C.L.J. 383 ; and Husainnara v. Rahamanessa, 13 C.L.J. 3, but see Barber Moran v. Ramana Goundan, 20 Mad. 461.

5. Rent :—Rent includes in this section money recoverable under any enactment for the time being in force as if it was rent. See notes under s. 3, cl. (5) and s. 65.

6. Arrear :—"If rent has been duly tendered before or at the time when it falls due, and the tender has been improperly refused, the rent cannot legitimately be said to be in arrear :'' (Per Mookerjee, J.) Kripasindhu v. Nanda, 35 Cal. 34, s. c., 11 C.W.N. 983 at p. 989 ; s. c., 6 C.L.J. 273 (F.B.), but see the observation of Rampini, C. J. and Mitra J., who dissented from the majority of the Judges composing the Full Bench. See also notes under s. 67.

As arrear of rent due in respect of a property, sought to be sold in execution of a decree is to be regarded as one of the matters to be notified as being material for the purchaser to know in order to judge of the nature and value of the property, and the omission of the decree-holder to notify such arrear due to him at the date of the issue of the proclamation for the sale of the property has the effect of destroying the lien he has upon the property : Giribala v. Rani Mina, 4 C.W.N. 497 ; see also Rajnarain v. Panchanand, 7 C.W.N. 40 (notes).

7. Old law :—Under the old Act it was decided that rent became due at the last moment of the time which was allowed to the tenant for payment, and if it was not paid within that time it became an arrear and continued as such until it was paid : Kasheekant v. Rohini Kant, 6 Cal. 325, (F.B.) which over-ruled the case of Woomesh Chunder v. Surju Kant, 5 Cal. 713 where it was held that rent did not become due until the day after that on which by the terms of the holding the rent was payable.

8. Due :—Rent should ordinarily be regarded not as accruing from day to day but as following due only at stated times according to the contract of tenancy, or the general law, in the absence of such contract, as laid down in this section : Satyendra Nath v. Nilkantha, 21 Cal. 383. An arrear of rent was held not to be due within the meaning of s. 32, Act X of 1859, until the rent itself had been determined : Khmul Lochun v. Messrs. Moran & Co., 2 W.R., Act X, 82. See notes under s. 53.

9. Payment of rent made in advance :—Where rent had been paid in advance and subsequently the right, title and interest of the former proprietors were sold and purchased by a person with notice of payment made by the tenant, held that the auction purchaser was not entitled to the rent which had been paid in advance to the former proprietors, although such rent accrued due after the date of his purchase : Ram Lall v. Rao Jogendra, 18 W.R. 329 ; see also Madan Mohun v. Holloway, 12 Cal. 555. But where A realised from tenants the entire rents of the whole year and by operation of law B became the owner in the midst of the year but after the date on which the rents had fallen due and after the same had been realised by A, held in a suit by B against A for refund (from the date when A ceased to have any interest and B's title accrued) that B's action was not sustainable : Mathwson v. Shyam Sunder, 33 Cal. 786. S. 36* of the Transfer of Property Act.

* S. 36 of the Transfer of Property Act is as follows :—

In the absence of a contract or local usage to the contrary, all rents, annuities, dividends and other periodical payments in the nature of income shall, upon the transfer of the interest of the person entitled to receive such payments, be deemed as between the transferor and the transferee, to accrue due from day to day, and to be apportionable accordingly but to be payable on the days appointed for the payment thereof.

of the Transfer of Property Act relating to apportionment of rent does not apply to the case having regard to s. 2, cl. (d) of the Act inasmuch as the property devolved on B by operation of customary law: Ibid. In this case no opinion was given by their Lordships as to whether a suit lay at the instance of the transferee (B) against the tenants.

It is submitted that in such a case, i.e., where on a date fixed by an agreement or established usage rent falls due on a particular day of the year and the tenant makes payment of rent to the person who is then the landlord, he cannot be made liable again for the same rent to the transferee of the landlord; for, if the tenant does not pay the rent on the day on which it falls due he becomes liable to interest and moreover the person who is then the landlord at that time is entitled to recover by suit the whole of the rent then falling due.

Rent paid in advance —Right of suit by purchaser from landlord.

Where rent was paid in advance in accordance with the terms of a registered lease, held that the purchaser from the lessor was not entitled to recover from the lessee the rent which had been paid in advance to the original lessor: Nand Kishore v. Anwar Hussain, 30 All. 82.

Onus on tenant.

Tender need not be followed by deposit to stop interest.

How is tender kept good.

10. Tender of payment of rent: Onus :—Where a tenant pleaded tender of payment as a ground for not being saddled with interest, held that the onus was on him to prove that he had made such a tender: Ranee Shurat Soondaree v. The Collector of Mymensingh, 5 W.R., Act X, p. 69. To stop interest on rent running in a case governed by the Bengal Tenancy Act a tender of rent which is improperly refused, need not be followed up by a deposit of rent in Court under s. 61 and such a tender, if kept good, is sufficient to stop interest running from the date of tender: Kripasindhu Mukerjee v. Annada Sundari Devi, 35 Cal. 34, s. c., 11 C. W.N. 983, s. c., 6 C.L.J. 273 (F.B.); tender which has been improperly refused is kept good if the person who has made the tender has from that time always kept the money ready to be paid on demand: Ibid. See also Gyles v. Hall, 2 P. Wms. 378 [The following were some of the cases that were discussed in the Full Bench case: Ranjit Singha v. Bhagabutti Charan, 7 C.W.N. 720; Jay Durga Dassi v. Srikanta Roy, 11 C.W.N. 984 foot-note; Jagat Tarini v. Nabagopal Chaki, 34 Cal. 305; s. c., 5 C.L.J. 270; Sarat Soondaree v. The Collector of Mymensingh, 5 W.R. (Act X Rulings) 69; Eshan Chandra v. Assanoolla, 16 W.R. 79; Wooma Charan v. Huree Prasad, 10 C.W.N. 101.] A tender is not vitiated if a receipt is asked: Jagat Tarini v. Nabagopal, 34 Cal. 305; s. c., 5 C.L.J. 273; when a tender is actually made but in a currency different from that required by law, for instance by a cheque, the tender may be expressly or impliedly waived by the creditor and if he rejects the tender on the ground of the insufficiency in amount without making any objection to the legality of the tender in point of quality he may be deemed to have waived the objection: Ibid.

Tender not vitiated if receipt is asked.

A tender is not vitiated because a receipt is asked: Rupchand v. Narendra Krishna, 19 C.W.N. 112.

A tender of payment accompanied by a condition which prevented it from being a perfect and complete tender does not relieve the payee of the obligation to pay interest : Narain Das v. Abinash Chander, 27 C.W.N. 299 (P.C.). Conditional tender—interest. •

See notes under s. 55.

A tender to be valid must include the entire amount due as principal and interest ; Behari Lal Biswas v. Nasimannessa Bibi, 37 C.L.J. 222 (Mookerjee and Rankin J.J.). But a landlord in accepting a part payment does not loose his right to recover the balance due : Ibid. A tender must be unconditional. Tender must include interest.

Sec. 36 of the Transfer of Property Act, does not apply to agricultural lands.

Unless therefore, there is a contract between the parties for apportionment of rent, the Patnidar is bound to pay the whole rent of the year, even though the proprietary interest in the Patni passed to him before the end of the year : Satya Bhupal v. Rajnandini, 83 I.C. 144. (Greaves and Chakravarty, J.J.).

II. Payment to a co-sharer landlord :—Payment to one of several joint proprietors is a payment to all : Oodit Narain v. Hudson, 2 W.R., Act X, p. 15 ; see also the case of Mookta Keshee v. Koylash Chunder, 7 W.R., Act X, p. 493. Payment to co-sharer landlord.

12. Pendency of a suit for enhancement :—The mere pendency of an enhancement suit cannot of itself excuse the tenant from paying what is admittedly due viz., the old rate of rent : Nava Kant Dev. Rajah Baroda Kanta Ray, Rev. Jud. & P. Journal, Vol. III, p. 188.

13. Postal money order :—See Appendix II.

55. (1) When a tenant makes a payment on account of rent, he may declare the year or the year and instalment to which he wishes the payment to be credited, and the payment shall be credited accordingly. Appropriation of payment.

(2) If he does not make any such declaration, the payment may be credited to the account of such year and the instalment as the landlord thinks fit.

amounts relate, it is open to a Court dealing with the facts of the case to say whether the amounts paid in any particular year were partly for the rents of that year and partly for the arrear due in respect of previous years: Surja Kanta v. Banerwar, 24 Cal. 251.

Payment on

3. Payment on Punyaha day :*—Where a payment of rent was made on the Punyaha day and the entry was in these words—“garher khajana o coss, barabar Raj Sarkar darun kistir takar madhya punyaha deyo...Rs. 15,” the translation of which is as follows:—“Rs. 15, forest rent and cesses, paid to the Raj on the punyaha day out of the money (payable) on account of the kist,” held that “that indicated a payment made not on account of a general arrear balance but on account of a special kist or instalment, that is, the kist of the newly opened year:” Sarajubala v. Saradanath, 23 C.W.N. 336; (Teunon and Richardson, J.J.).

Conditional acceptance.

4. Acceptance of rent under protest:—Where money is paid and received as rent under a lease, a mere protest that it is accepted conditionally and without prejudice to a right to a prior forfeiture cannot counteravail the fact of such receipt: Davenport v. The Queen, L.R. 3 App. Cas. 115; see also Kali Krishna v. Fuzle Ali, 9 Cal. 843.

5. Appropriation of payment of rent to interest:—Rent does not necessarily include interest where a sum of money was paid by a tenant to a landlord as rent and the latter received it as such, held that the landlord was not entitled to apply that money towards any interest which might then be due; Bhagabati Debya v. Basanta Kumari, 5 C.J.J. 69, s. c., 11 C.W.N. 110.

Appropriation.

Where payments are made towards a debt, but there is nothing to shew whether they had been made in respect of principal or interest, the court is entitled to find out on the evidence for what purpose the payments were made: Hemchandra v. Purnachandra, 44 Cal. 667.

Ss. 59 & 60 of the Contract Act.

6. Secs. 59 and 60 of the Contract Act :—The provisions of s. 55 of the Bengal Tenancy Act are very different from those of s. 59 of the Contract Act; under s. 59 of the Contract Act the court may have regard not only to the debtor's express intimation, but also to circumstances “implying that the payment is to be applied to the discharge of some particular debt”; under 55 of the Tenancy Act, the debtor must declare the year or the year and the instalment of to which he wishes the payment to be credited. If he does not do so, the payment may be credited to the amount of such year and instalments as the landlord thinks fit: (Per Rampini and Woodroffe, J.J.) Mohim Chandra v. Kalitara, 11 C.W.N. 939. Ss. 59 and 60 of the Contract Act which contain somewhat similar provisions are as follows:—

Appropriation of payments.

Application of payment where debt

59. Where a debtor, owing several distinct debts to one person, makes a payment to him, either with express intimation, or under

* Punyaha day: The ceremonial opening day of the zemindari official year. This day is appointed each year by each zemindar according to his own convenience and it is not necessarily the same day in every year.

circumstances implying that the payment is to be applied to the discharge of some particular debt, the payment, if accepted, must be applied accordingly.

to be discharged is indicated.

Illustrations.

(a) A owes B, among other debts 1,000 rupees upon a promissory note, which falls due on the first June. He owes B no other debt of that amount. On the first June A pays to B 1,000 rupees. The payment is to be applied to the discharge of the promissory note.

(b) A owes to B, among other debts, the sum of 567 rupees. B writes to A and demands payment of this sum. A sends to B 567 rupees. This payment is to be applied to the discharge of the debt of which B had demanded payment.

Appropriation of payments. Where debt to be discharged is not indicated.

60. Where the debtor has omitted to intimate and there are no other circumstances indicating to which debt the payment is to be applied, the creditor may apply it at his discretion to any lawful debt actually due and payable to him from the debtor, whether its recovery is or is not barred by the law in force for the time being as to the limitation of suits.

7. Omission of tenant to declare year and instalment :—

Where by an arrangement with the landlord the tenant paid on behalf of the landlord a portion of the rent every year to the Government, held that the landlord was entitled to credit to his account as he thought fit inasmuch as the tenant omitted to declare to the landlord the years and instalments to which he wished the payments he had made to Government for plaintiff to be credited : Mohim Chandra v. Kalitara, 11 C.W.N. 939.

8. Money-rent payable by a tenant :—A landlord, decree-holder, is debarred from claiming an amount not mentioned in the sale proclamation : Rajnarin Mitter v. Pannachand Singh, 30 Cal. 213 : in this case the tenant agreed to pay to the landlord in addition to the rent Rs. 1,009 a certain sum (Rs. 10), on failure to deliver a certain quantity of molasses ; in the notification of sale Rs. 1,009 was mentioned as rent and not Rs. 1,019 ; held that the landlord was not entitled to claim rent from the purchaser in excess of the sum mentioned in the sale notification.

9. Tender : Construction of the Section :—S. 55 speaks of appropriation and not to the right of a tenant to make part payment : Behari Lal Biswas v. Nasimannessa Bibi, 37 C.L.J. 222.

Receipts and Accounts.

56. (1) Every tenant who makes a payment on account of rent to his landlord shall be entitled to obtain forthwith from the landlord a written receipt for the amount paid by him, signed by the landlord.

(2) The landlord shall prepare and retain a counterfoil of the receipt.

(3) The receipt and counterfoil shall specify such of the several particulars shown in the form of receipt given in Schedule II to this Act as can be specified by the landlord at the time of payment :

Provided that the Local Government may, from time to time, prescribe or sanction a modified form, either generally or for any particular local area or class of cases.

(4) If a receipt does not contain substantially the particulars required by this section, it shall be presumed, until the contrary is shown, to be an acquittance in full of all demands for rent up to the date on which the receipt was given.

Presump-
tion.

I. Presumption under sub-sec. (4) :—The receipt, before it can form the basis of any presumption under this sub-section, must be shewn to be a receipt granted by or on behalf of all the landlords, i.e., in a case where there are several joint landlords, it must be shewn that the person by whom the receipt was signed was authorised by them all, either verbally or in writing : Gopinath v. Umakanta, 24 Cal. 169. The presumption is rebuttable and if it is shewn that it was not the intention of the parties that the last receipt should operate as a final discharge of the tenant of his liabilities, the Court cannot give effect to the provisions of this sub-section : Bindeswari v. I. S. Smith, 5 C.L.J. 27 (notes).

receipts.

2. How a rent receipt is to be proved :—Where a question arose whether certain rent-receipts had been proved and the lower Appellate Court observed as follows :—It has been contended on behalf of the appellant that some rent-receipts have not been proved and some have been disproved by the witnesses. The defendant, however, has proved them all by saying that he received the receipts on payment of rent. This I consider sufficient proof. The nature and appearance of the receipts convince me of their genuineness," held, that the finding arrived at must be taken to be unassailable at law : Surja Kant v. Baneswar, 24 Cal. 251. Where the genuineness of a rent-receipt is sworn to by the tenant by whom the rent has been paid, that is legally sufficient to prove the receipt, notwithstanding that the person whose signature it bears has not been examined : Raj Mahomed v. Banoo Rasma, 12 W.R. 34 : Madhob Chunder v. Promotho Nath, 20 W.R. 264. A party producing a dakhila is bound to give some evidence of its having been signed by the person by whom it purports to have been granted : Bharat Roy v. Gunga Narain, 14 W.R. 211 ; see also Ramjadoo v. Lukhee Narain, 8 W.R. 488. As to the mode of proving the authenticity of dakhilas,

If a tenant says "for 20 years I have paid rent at a certain rate, and here are the receipts which from year to year I have obtained," that may be sufficient prima facie evidence as to the genuineness of the receipts without specific evidence as to the handwriting and particulars of the circumstances under which each was obtained; Woomesh Chunder v. Bama Dassee, 7 W.R. 15. A payment on account of rent cannot be credited to arrears beyond the term of limitation: Tara Monee v. Kali Churn, W.R. 1864, Act X, p. 14. The payments in each year must be presumed to the current year, and surplus payments to be for past and not subsequent years: Ibid.

It does not follow, because certain sums were paid to the landlord in a particular year, that they were therefore paid for the rent of the year: Bibee Syefun v. Rudder Sohay, 7 Cal. 628.*

3. Receipts are not conclusive evidence:—Receipts are prima facie evidence of payment of rent but not conclusive evidence: Shaikh Ameer v. Yusoof Ali, 22 W.R. 439.

Receipts—prima facie evidence.

4. Receipt for rent: confirmation of lease:—A landlord is not bound to refrain from receiving rents until he has had leisure to look into all the under-tenures in his estate; and the receipt of rent is no confirmation of an alleged lease in perpetuity: Radhakant v. Hurrokant, W.R., 1864, p. 14.

5. Modified forms of rent-receipts in particular areas:—The form of receipts which has been prescribed for Estates Nos. 162, 165, 167, 169, 1829 in Pergunna Barahakpur in the Raj-sahye District will be found in Sch. II.

The Governor of Bengal in Council has been pleased to prescribe a modified form of receipt of rent for general use in the Presidency of Bengal. See Calcutta Gazette, Jan. 13, 1915, Part I, pp. 20, 21 and 22. See Schedule II.

6. Putni lease by Hindu widow: Effect of receipt of rent by reversioner:—A Putni lease by a Hindu widow is not void but voidable. Receipt of rent by the reversioner from the putnidar amounts to an election to treat the lease as valid. In order to prove that the receipt ought not to have that effect, the reversioner must adduce evidence on that point: Madhusudan v. Rooke, 24 I.A. 164, s. c., 25 Cal. 1, s. c., 1 C.W.N. 433 (P.C.).

has been paid, the tenant shall be entitled to receive from the landlord, free of charge, within three months after the end of the year, a receipt in full discharge of all rent falling due to the end of the year, signed by the landlord.

(2) Where the landlord does not so admit, the tenant shall be entitled, on paying a fee of four annas, to receive within three months after the end of the year, a statement of account specifying the several particulars shown in the form of account given in Schedule II to this Act, or in such other form as may from time to time be prescribed by the Local Government either generally or for any particular local area or class of cases.

(3) The landlord shall prepare and retain a copy of the statement containing similar particulars.

58. (1) If a landlord without reasonable cause refuses or neglects to deliver to a tenant a receipt containing the particulars prescribed by section 56 for any rent paid by the tenant, the tenant may, within three months from the date of payment, institute a suit to recover from him such penalty, not exceeding double the amount of value of that rent, as the Court thinks fit.

(2) If a landlord without reasonable cause refuses or neglects to deliver to a tenant demanding the same either the receipt in full discharge or, if the tenant is not entitled to such a receipt, the statement of account for any year prescribed in section 57, the tenant may, within the next ensuing agricultural year, institute a suit to recover from him such penalty as the Court thinks fit, not exceeding double the aggregate amount or value of all rent paid by the tenant to the landlord during the year for which the receipt or account should have been delivered.

*(3) If a landlord or his agent, without reasonable cause, fails to deliver to the tenant a receipt or statement, or to prepare and retain a counterfoil or copy of a receipt or statement, as required by either of the said sections, such landlord or agent, as the case may be, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees, to be imposed, after summary inquiry, by the Collector.

(4) The Collector may hold a summary inquiry under sub-section (3), either on information received from a Revenue-officer within one year, or upon complaint of the party aggrieved made within three months, from the date of failure, or upon the report of a Civil Court.

(5) Where, in any case instituted under sub-section (3), the Collector discharges any landlord or agent, and is satisfied that the complaint of the tenant on which the proceedings were instituted is false or vexatious, the Collector may, in his discretion, by his order of discharge, direct the tenant to pay to such landlord or agent such compensation, not exceeding fifty rupees, as the Collector thinks fit.

(6) An appeal shall lie to the Commissioner of the Division against any order of the Collector imposing a fine under sub-section (3) or awarding compensation under sub-section (5); and the order† passed by the Commissioner on such appeal shall, subject to any order which may be passed on revision by the Board of Revenue,‡ be final.

(7) Any fine imposed or compensation awarded under this section may be recovered in the manner provided by any law§ for the time being in force for the recovery of a public demand.

(8) For the purpose of an inquiry under this section, the Collector shall have power to summon, and enforce the attendance of, witnesses, and compel the production of documents in the same manner as is

* Sub-sections (3, to 8) were substituted for the original sub-section (3) for Western Bengal by the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Act 1907 (Ben. Act. I of 1907), and E. A. Act I of 1908, s. 14. The original sub-section ran as follows :—

“(3) If a landlord, without reasonable cause, fails to prepare and retain a counterfoil or copy of a receipt or statement as required by either of the said sections, he shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees.”

provided in the case of a Court under the Code of Civil Procedure.

The object of the new sub-sections (3 to 8) is explained in the Notes on Clauses of the Bill as follows:—

“The provisions of the Tenancy Act regarding the issue of proper rent-receipts by landlord are very generally disregarded in certain parts of the province. It is considered necessary to take more active measure to enforce them. At present, the provisions of sec. 58 can only be set in motion on the complaint of the tenant and are practically inoperative. It is proposed, therefore, to give the Collector power to take action on reports received from Revenue or Judicial officers, who will be required to bring the Collector’s notice any breaches of the law which come to their knowledge. The power to require payment of compensation to the landlord will, it is hoped, to a large extent debar the bringing of false and vexatious complaints. In cases where the complaint is substantiated, the Collector should be empowered to award compensation to the tenant on the same scale as is provided in sec. 58 (1) and (2), and where compensation is so awarded by the Collector, the tenant should not be allowed to sue the landlord in the Civil Court for any penalty. It is inadvisable that tenants should be able to obtain damages in two different courts; the amendments proposed will be sufficient to safeguard their rights and to secure obedience to the law.”

In the report of the Select Committee on the Bill it is stated:—

“We have modified considerably the changes which it was proposed in the Bill to introduce into section 58 of the Act. The terms used in sub-sections as drafted would practically render the failure to give a receipt a criminal offence, and this is generally objected to by the associations of landlords consulted. We have, therefore, removed the cause of objection by substituting a form of procedure closely akin to that prescribed by section 52 of the Bengal Survey Act, 1875, for the imposition of penalties, and by the Public Demands Recovery Act, 1895, for their recovery. The tenant must first prove that he received no receipt, and we do not consider it necessary to make any specified provision as to the burden of proof. We have struck out of the clause the provisions as to compensation to tenants. We fear that the prospect of this compensations would be a temptation to bring false cases. Further, we think that the provision requiring judicial officers to report cases of failure to grant receipts would be generally disregarded, while the report by Revenue officers can best be prescribed by executive order. We have, therefore, omitted the last portion of the proposed sub-section (4), and in the same sub-section have proposed a time-limit within which information may be laid or complaint made. We consider that the Board of Revenue should have power to revise any order under the section, and have made provision for this.”

1. OMISSION TO GRANT RECEIPT AN OFFENCE.
2. OPERATION OF THIS SECTION NOT LIMITED TO REGISTERED TENANT.
3. SUB-DIVISIONAL OFFICERS AUTHORISED TO DISCHARGE FUNCTIONS OF COLLECTORS.

4. TRANSFER BY COLLECTOR OF CASE TO A DEPUTY COLLECTOR. grant a receipt as required by the provisions of s. 58 of the Bengal

1. Omission to grant receipt an offence :—An omission to grant a receipt as required by the provisions of s. 58 of the Bengal Tenancy Act is an offence, and a proceeding under this section upon the complaint of a tenant is a criminal prosecution ; Naik Pandey v. Bidya Pandey, 1 Pat. L.J. 149 ; see also Emperor v. Mohant Ram Das, 9 C.W.N. 816. Omission to grant receipt, an offence.

2. Operation of this section not limited to registered tenant :—The operation of this section is not limited to the case where the payment has been made by the registered tenant ; when a landlord receives rent from a person, whose name has not been registered and thus recognises him as his tenant, he renders himself liable to the penalty provided by s. 58 if he refuses to deliver a receipt without reasonable cause : Narendra v. Asmatulla, 1 C.W.N. 19 (notes).

3. Subdivisional officers authorised to discharge functions of Collectors.

All Sub-divisional officers are authorised to discharge in their respective sub-divisions the functions of a Collector under this section : see Cal. Gaz. (1910, 19th Sept. Part I, p. 1323, see Appendix II.)

4. Transfer by Collector of case to a Deputy Collector :—Collector has authority to transfer cases under this section to Sub-divisional officers as the latter are authorised to discharge the functions of Collectors : Phanindra v. The King Emperor, 40 Cal. 465, s. c., 17 C.W.N. 671. Where, therefore, a complaint under s. 58 (3) was made to the Collector of a district and transferred by him for disposal to the Sub-divisional officer who found that certain rent receipt books, filed before him in the course of the enquiry, had been fabricated, held that the Sub-divisional officer had jurisdiction, under s. 476 C. Cr. P., to direct a prosecution for offences under ss. 193 and 196 I. P. C. Ibid. Collector's authority to transfer cases.

59. (1) The Local Government shall cause to be prepared and kept for sale to landlords at all sub-divisional offices forms of receipts with counterfoils and of statements of account suitable for use under the foregoing sections. Local Government to prepare form of receipt and account.

(2) The forms may be sold in books with the leaves consecutively numbered or otherwise as the Local Government thinks fit.

*Note :—*It is not compulsory to use forms sold by Government. (Cal. Gaz., 6th September 1885, p. 1648, Supplement, Government letter No. 1542, T. R. dated 7th Sept. 1885).

60. Old law.

1. Law before the passing of the Act :—Before the passing of this Act a person who was registered could not obtain rent unless the relation of landlord and tenant existed between him and the person whom he sued for rent: Hem Chandra v. Sourendra Mohon, 5 C.W.N. 482 ; see also Ram Kristo v. Cheikh Harain, 9 Cal. 517 ; Saraswati v. Dhanpat, 9 Cal. 431.

2. Plea of Benami :—In a suit for rent brought by a person registered as proprietor, a tenant is precluded by this section from raising a defence that the plaintiff is a benamdar of another person and as such not entitled to rent: Sadhu Charan v. Radhika Mohon, 8 C.W.N. 695.

3. When tenant may plead that rent is due to a third person :—Plaintiffs as registered proprietors brought a suit for recovery of rent. It was found that Defendant in good faith and under the reasonable belief that the land held by him was included in the estate of a third person attorned to him some four years prior to the suit, and it was held by the lower Appellate Court that under the circumstances the defendants ceased to be plaintiffs' tenant and they could not recover rent: held, that upon the above facts s. 60 of the Bengal Tenancy Act did not estop the defendant from pleading that rent was due to a third person notwithstanding that the plaintiffs were registered proprietors: Durga Das v. Guru Das, 4 C.W.N. 606.

Suit by registered proprietor —plea of rent being due to a third person.

The only person who is entitled to the benefit of this section is the proprietor who is registered under the Land Registration Act; the lessee from such proprietor is not entitled to the benefit of this section: similarly the benefit of s. 78 of the Land Registration Act cannot be claimed by a person who is not a proprietor: Kazimahamed v. Sheikh Kadir, 11 C.W.N. 128 (notes).

Lessee and registered proprietor, suit by.

In a suit by a lessee of a registered proprietor the tenant may plead payment of rent to a third person: Mahomed Muzahar v. Ali Bewa, 3 C.L.J. 93 (notes). S. 60 does not preclude a tenant defendant from proving that the title upon which the plaintiff claims to hold land in respect of which he has been registered under the Land Registration Act has been held by a Court properly constituted to be void and of no effect: Girish Chandra v. Satish Chandra, 12 C.W.N. 622; where this was proved, held, that this was a good defence to the suit: Ibid.

Where a tenant defendant denies the usufructuary mortgage on this basis of which plaintiff brought a suit for rent, s. 60 of the Bengal Tenancy Act has no application although the mortgagee has got his name registered under the Land Registration Act: Sheo Charan Dhobi v. Bansi Singh, 44 I.C. 129.

S. 60 does not apply where tenant denies Plaintiff mortgagee's title

4. Right of registered proprietor to distrain :—A tenant cannot deny the right of a registered proprietor to distrain, and plead payment of rent to a third person whose name is not registered: Hanuman Ahir v. Gobind Koer, 1 C.W.N. 318.

Distrain.

5. When receipt by mortgagor proprietor does not operate as a valid discharge :—When a mortgagee in possession has registered his name as such under s. 44 of the Land Registration Act, he is entitled to receive the rents till the fact of the redemption of the mortgage is noted in the general register under s. 26 of the Act: so long as the mortgagee's name continues on the Register a receipt granted by the mortgagor proprietor does not operate as a valid discharge under s. 78 of the Act or under s. 60 of the Bengal Tenancy Act: Sundar Das v. Charitter, 1 C.W.N. 163 (notes).

6. Rent-suit where assignment by landlord of portion of interest to a mortgagee :—In a suit for rent by a proprietor registered under the Land Registration Act (VIII of 1876 B. C.), the defendants are precluded by reason of this section from pleading as a defence to the claim that the rent is due to a mortgagee to whom the landlord has assigned a part of his interest but whose name has not been registered under the Land Registration Act: Hem Chandra v. Rajah Sir Sourindra, 5 C.W.N. 482.

Rent suit where assignment by landlord of portion of interest.

Interpretation of s. 60.

7. Interpretation of s. 60 of the Land Registration Act :—“In our opinion s. 60 must be strictly interpreted for if it is not so interpreted, the object for which it was enacted will not be attained; that object being to coerce proprietors to register their names under the Land Registration Act” (Per Chapman J., Atkinson J., agreeing); Hardayal v. Wazir Mahton, 41 I.C. 97; see also the remarks of Geidt J., in Sadhu Charan v. Radhika Mohon, 18 C.W.N. 695 at page 698 column I. It was intended by the Legislature in the Bengal Tenancy Act, that, in a rent suit where the only point can be as to the tenants acquittance for the rent, registration should be taken as conclusive and that the tenant should not in a rent suit be entitled to set up that the rent is one to a third party. Section 60 of the Bengal Tenancy Act says this in clear and unmistakable terms: Bhupendra Narain v. Monmatha Nath, 41 I.C. 859.

Registration Act not necessary when
contract.

8. Rent-suit by a proprietor whose name is not registered :—S. 78 of the Land Registration Act and s. 66 of the Bengal Tenancy Act offer no bar to a person, whose name is not registered under the Land Registration Act, bringing a suit for arrears of rent under the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act; it is sufficient if, during the pendency of the suit and prior to the decree his name is registered: Abdul v. Mehar Ali, 26 Cal. 712, s. c., 3 C.W.N. 381.

Contract by
predecessor.

S. 78 of the Land Registration Act is controlled by s. 81 of that Act: so, a landlord who has not had his name registered under the Land Registration Act is not precluded from recovering rent from his tenant who has taken a lease of the land in writing, which document contains a contract to pay rent; Bhugwan Das v. Raghunath Sahai, 11 C.L.J. 477 but see Abdul Aziz v. Kanthu Mallik, 38 Cal. 512, s. c., 13 C.L.J. 693.

previous payment of
rent.

S. 81 of the Land Registration Act has no application to a case where the written contract was between the defendant and the proprietor from whom the plaintiff claims to have derived title as usufructuary mortgagee: Isvar Chandra v. Kalicharan, 27 C.L.J. 474.

The bar prescribed by s. 78 of the Land Registration Act does not cease to be applicable, merely because the plaintiff establishes that the defendant has previously paid rent to him amicably, or because he brought the defendant upon the land; there is no question of estoppel: Bangshi Badan v. Kamalakant, 26 C.L.J. 90.

Where the question arises between two sets of thekadars one of whom is registered and the other is not registered, it is not open to the tenant to plead payment to the unregistered thekadar in defence to a claim by the registered thekadar: Jung Singh v. Dularchand, 96 I.C. 495, s. c., A.I.R. (1926) Pat. 532. (Kulwant Sahay J.).

When an estate is situated both in Assam and Bengal.

9. When Registration under Land Registration Act not necessary :—When an estate partly situated in Goalpara in Assam and partly in Rangpur was entered in the Touzi of Goalpara Collectorate in Assam and the landlord brought a suit for rent in Rangpur for lands lying in that district, held that plaintiff was entitled to maintain the suit although his name was not registered in the Rungpur Collectorate under Act VII of 1876, (B.C.), inasmuch as his name was registered in Goalpara under the Assam Regulations: Surendra Narain v. Joynath, 1 C.W.N. 104 (notes). A putnidar or an ijaradar is not a proprietor of an interest in an estate within the meaning of the Land Registration Act: it is not therefore necessary for a putnidar or ijaradar to register his name under the Land Registration Act to entitle him to sue for rent: Sukurulla v. Bama Sundari, 1 C.W.N. 92 (notes). A suit for the declaration of enhanced rates payable in future is not affected by the provisions of s. 60 of the Bengal Tenancy Act or s. 78 of the Land Registration Act: Mangni Ram v. Seo Charn, 1 C.W.N. 179 (notes). S. 78 of the Land Registration Act has no application to the case of a person to whom rent has been assigned by a proprietor whose name has not been registered under the Act: Syed Serapat v. Tarini Prasad, 11 C.W.N. 141.

10. Where there is registered agreement in favour of an unregistered proprietor:—S. 78 of the Land Registration Act provides that no person shall be bound to pay rent to any person claiming such rent as proprietor of an estate in respect of which he is required by the Act to cause his name to be registered, unless the name of such claimant shall have been registered under the Act; s. 81 of the Land Registration Act provides that nothing in ss. 78, 79 and 80 shall be held to interfere with the conditions of any written contract, so it seems that an unregistered proprietor may sue for rent upon a registered contract; but s. 60 of the Bengal Tenancy Act provides where rent is due to the proprietor of an estate, the receipt of the person registered under the Land Registration Act as proprietor shall be a sufficient discharge for the rent. Where A an unregistered proprietor brought a suit for rent upon a registered agreement, and the defence proved that rent had been paid to B who was the registered proprietor, held that A's suit ought to be dismissed; Abdul Aziz v. Kanthu Mallik, 38 Cal. 512, s. c., 13 C.L.J. 693. There can be no estoppel against an Act of the Legislature; hence the principle of estoppel does not override the provisions of either s. 78 of the Land Registration Act or s. 60 of the Bengal Tenancy Act: Ibid; the restriction by s. 81 of the Land Registration Act upon s. 78 of the same Act is not incorporated by implication into s. 60, of the Bengal Tenancy Act: Ibid. S. 78 of the Land Registration Act is controlled by s. 81 of that Act: so, a landlord who has not had his name registered under the Land Registration Act is not precluded from recovering rent from his tenant who has taken a lease of the land in writing, which document contains a contract to pay rent: Bhugwan Das v. Raghunath Saha, 11 C.L.J. 477.

Where a person acquires a title by adverse possession against the proprietor of an estate whose name is registered in the Collector's Register under the Land Registration Act, and the person acquiring title by adverse possession sublets the land to a tenant by virtue of a written contract and after putting a tenant into possession brings a suit for rent against his tenant, the latter cannot by virtue of the provisions of s. 81 of the Land Registration Act defeat the suit of his landlord; but if the tenant pleads and proves payment to the registered proprietor, it seems that the rent suit against him should be dismissed for the reason as given in the case of Abdul Aziz v. Kanthu Mallik, 38 Cal. 512, s. c., 13 C.L.J. 693. It seems that a person acquiring title to an estate by adverse possession is competent to get his name registered under the Land Registration Act, for the definition of "proprietor" given in the Act seems to include such a person as owner of the estate.

Abdul Borkat*, 30 C.L.J. 119.

11. Un-expunged entry in the Register :—When a mortgagee's name was registered and although the mortgage was redeemed, the entry in the name of the mortgagee was not expunged as is provided for in s. 26 of the Land Registration Act, held in a suit for rent by the registered proprietor that a decree for rent should be made: Hassan Mastaba v. Motbar Mahto, 11 C.L.J. 147.

12. Effect of registration of name under the Land Registration Act :—In a suit for rent by the plaintiff whose name is registered under the Land Registration Act as 16 ans. proprietor, the defendant is not entitled to plead that part of the rent is due to a third person: Shyama Charan v. Mustafizar Rahaman, 41 I.C. 769.

Where a person has been registered as owner of certain land under the Bengal Land Registration Act, the tenant holding the land is precluded, under the provisions of s. 60 of the Bengal Tenancy Act from pleading in a suit for recovery of rent by the registered owner that the latter is not the true owner. Sec. 60 of the Bengal Tenancy Act and s. 78 of the Land Registration Act are complementary to each other: Debendra Lal Panja v. Nilmoney Prodhan, 86 I.C. 865 (Greaves and Chakravarti J.J.).

13. Registered Mortgage :—When a person who is a registered mortgagee from the proprietor by way of an ijara sued for rent, held that the tenant was not entitled to plead that rent was due to the auction purchaser of the proprietor's interest: Mukhaduman v. Khairat Ahmed, 3 Pat. L.W. 245, s.c., 43 I.C. 182.

14. Elements necessary to be proved for registration of name under the Land Registration Act :—The only question which the Collector is entitled to enquire into under the Land Registration Act is that of possession, he has no jurisdiction to deal with the question of title which is specially reserved for the decision of the ordinary Civil Courts; the mere fact of registration is only evidence of possession: Saraswati v. Dhanpat, 9 Cal. 431; see also Ram Kristo v. Sheikh Harain, 6 Cal. 517: s. c., 12 C.L.R. 141. If the Collector finds possession and title with the applicant, his name is to be entered in the register, he may summarily try the question of possession and deliver possession accordingly or may make a reference to the Civil Court which may determine summarily the right to possession and deliver possession accordingly: Umatul v. Kulsoom; 35 Cal. 120: s. c., 12 C.W.N. 16. Possession in s. 5 of the Land Registration Act does not mean lawful possession, but actual possession, which includes possession by receipt of rent, the possession of the tenant being in a sense possession of the landlord: Ibid. The mere registration of name under the Land Registration Act does not constitute possession in fact or in law: Mirwaziruddin v. Lala Deoki and Syed Golam v. Lala Deoki, 6 C.L.J. 472.

15. Registration in specific Mouzahs :—The Land Registration Act while providing for the registration by proprietors of their shares in an estate does not make it incumbent upon them to register their shares in specific mouzahs or other portions of land within the estate and their position is not affected by the fact that under an amicable arrangement their shares have been differently allocated so as to give them larger shares in certain Mouzahs than their registered interest and no share in other mouzahs. Deoki Singh v. Lakhan Roy, 30 Cal. 880 s.c., 8 C.W.N. 196; see also Poresch Moni v. Nobakishore, 30 Cal. 773 s.c., 8 C.W.N. 193 and Abdul Aziz v. Kanthu Mallik, 38 Cal. 512, s.c. 13 C.L.J. 693.

16. *Suit by unregistered proprietor maintainable and it is sufficient if the registration is made before decree:—The rule laid down in the case of Dharani Dhar Sen v. Wazidunnissa Khatoon, 16 Cal. 708 note, and Surya Kanta Acharya v. Hemanta Kumari Debi, 16 Cal. 706, that it is a condition precedent under (s. 78 of the Land Registration Act) that a person must be registered as proprietor or manager before he can bring a suit for arrears of rent, has not been, according to the decision in the case of Abdul Khair v. Meher Ali, 26 Cal. 712, s. c. 3 C.W.N. 381 expressly overruled by the Full Bench case of Alimuddin v. Hira Lall, 23 Cal. 87, but the effect of the decision of the majority of the Judges was that apart from the provisions of s. 60 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, ss. 78 and 79 of the Land Registration Act did not prevent an unregistered proprietor from bringing a suit for arrears of rent, and following this principle it was held that a suit for arrears of rent cannot be dismissed merely on the ground of the plaintiff's name not being registered under the Land Registration Act at the time the suit was brought and it is sufficient if the name is registered before the decree is made: Abdul Khair v. Meher Ali, 26 Cal. 712; see also Harekrishna v. Brindaban, 1 C.W.N. 712; Alimuddin v. Hiralal, 23 Cal. 87 (F.B.); Belchambers v. Nawab Sir Syad Hussain, 2 C.W.N. 493. If the name of the proprietor is registered under the Land Registration Act during the pendency of a suit for rent by him and the registration decree is produced in the course of the trial it must be held that there is sufficient compliance with the requirements of the Act: Rabiya Khatun v. Kilashmoni, 8 C.L.J. 299.

Dharani, Dhar v. Wazidunnissa not expressly overruled by the Full Bench case of Alimuddin v. Hira Lall.

17. Suit by legal representative of deceased proprietor:—The provisions of this Act relating to registration do not apply to the case of a person who is seeking to recover rent as the representative of a deceased proprietor whose name was registered, the rent having become due during the life-time of that proprietor: Belchambers v. Sir Syed Hussain, 2 C.W.N. 493. Where an arrear of rent fell due during the life-time of A whose name was registered under the Land Registration Act, a suit for rent by B, his son, for the rent due to his father is maintainable although B's name is not registered, the

When this section does not apply.

* S. 78 of the Land Registration Act which is in some respects analogous to s. 16 of the Bengal Tenancy Act is as follows:—

No person shall be bound to pay rent to any person claiming such rent as proprietor or manager of an estate or revenue free property in respect of which he is required by this Act to cause his name to be registered, or as mortgagee, unless the name of such claimant shall have been registered under this Act; and no person being liable to pay rent to two or more such proprietors, managers, or mortgagees holding in common tenancy, shall be bound to pay to any one such proprietor, manager or mortgagee more than the amount which bears the same proportion to the whole of such rent as the extent of the interest in respect of which proprietor, manager, or mortgagee is registered bears to the entire estate or revenue free property.

principle being B is suing not as a proprietor but as the legal representative of the late registered proprietor: Nagendra Nath v. Satadalbashini, 3 C.W.N. 204, and the same rule applies where a registered proprietor after bringing the suit dies and his legal representative gets himself substituted: Pramada Sundari v. Kanai Lal, 27 Cal. 178.

S. 60 does not apply to a case where rent is payable to an ijaradar under a proprietor: Probodh Chandra v. Harish, A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 124.

When some of several joint-proprietors are registered.

18. Suit by proprietors of whom some are registered :—If some of several joint landlords get their names registered under the Land Registration Act in respect of fractional shares, all the landlords may jointly sue for the entire rent but will get a decree only for a share of the rent proportionate to the share in respect of which their names are registered: Gobinda Chandra v. Ishan Chandra, 25 Cal. 787, s. c. 2 C.W.N. 600.

A co-sharer landlord who has been duly registered under the Land Registration Act may maintain a separate suit for rent: Bhupendra Narain v. Manmatha Nath, 41 I.C. 859.

Payment of rent to transferee of former proprietor.

S. 60 applies even in a case where in a suit by a registered proprietor, the tenant shewed that the former proprietor had transferred his estate and the tenant was paying rent to the transferee by execution of a kabuliyat: Adayapati v. Janardan, 68 I.C. 288.

Title of a third person cannot be set up.
Deposit under s. 149.

In a suit for rent by a registered proprietor the tenant cannot set up the title of a third person: Nand Kuer v. Jodhan Mahton, 6 Pat. L.J. 658, s. c., [1919 Pat.] p. 201.

In a suit for rent by a registered proprietor it is open to the tenant to make a deposit of rent under s. 149 and ask the Court that there may be an adjudication as to the claim of the person whose title is set up: Ibid.

Where registered proprietor adjudged in Civil Court as having no title.

Where the registered proprietor has already been adjudged by a competent court to have no title, and he notwithstanding brings a rent-suit the Court may decline to follow the provisions of s. 60: Ibid.

19. Suit for rent by assignee from unregistered proprietor :—S. 78 of the Land Registration Act has no application to the case of a person to whom rent has been assigned by a proprietor whose name has not been registered under the Act: Syed Serapat Hossain v. Tarini Prasad, 11 C.W.N. 141.

Transferee from an unregistered proprietor.

S. 78 of the Land Registration Act is no bar to a suit for rent by a transferee from an unregistered proprietor: Rameswar v. Ramjanak, 6 Pat. L.J. 109.

20. Transfer of proprietorship :—Under s. 78 of the Land Registration Act it is immaterial how the transfer of proprietorship is effected, whether it is a case of transfer by purchase or a case of transfer by succession: Punuk Lal Mundur v. Thakur Prasad, 25 Cal. 747.

21. Manager under the Bengal Tenancy Act :—A manager appointed under the provisions of s. 95 of the Bengal Tenancy Act must have his name registered before he can recover rent: Maqbal Ahmed v. Girish Chandra, 22 Cal. 634.

22. Actual Registration necessary:—The Land Registration Act requires actual registration of name in order to enable a person to recover rent, and a mere order of the Civil Court for registration is not sufficient: Ugramohun v. Bedeshi, 5 C.W.N. 360.

23. Malikana:—S. 78 of the Land Registration Act is no bar to a claim for malikana which is not a claim for rent: Syed Shah Nazamuddin v. Zahid Hossein, 8 C.L.J. 300; see also Bhuli Singh v. Nimu, 4 B.L.R. 29.

24. Resumed Chakran land:—The effect of transfer of resumed chakran lands to the Zemindar is not to impart to such land the character of an "estate" for all purposes, and s. 78 of the Land Registration Act has no application to a suit for rent by the Zemindar; Tinkari v. Satya Niranjan, 18 C.W.N. 158.

(b) when a tenant bound to pay money on account of rent has reason to believe, owing to a tender having been refused or a receipt withheld on a previous occasion, that the person to whom his rent is payable will not be willing to receive it and to grant him a receipt for it;

(c) when the rent is payable to co-sharers jointly, and the tenant is unable to obtain the joint receipt of the co-sharers for the money and no person has been empowered to receive the rent on their behalf; or

(d) when the tenant entertains a bonafide doubt as to who is entitled to receive the rent, the tenant may present to the Court having jurisdiction to entertain a suit for the rent of his tenure or holding an application in writing for permission to deposit in the Court the full amount of the money then due.

(2) The application shall contain a statement of the grounds on which it is made; shall state—in cases (a) and (b), the name of the person to whose credit the deposit is to be entered, in case (c), the names of the sharers to whom the rent is due, or of so many of them as the tenant may be able to specify, and in case (d), the names of the person to whom the rent was last paid and of the person or persons now claiming it;

XIV of 1882. shall be signed and verified, in the manner prescribed in section 52 of the Code of Civil Procedure, by the tenant, or, where he is not personally cognizant of the facts of the case, by some person so cognizant; and shall be accompanied by a fee of such amount as the Local Government, from time to time, by rule, directs.

his landlord his remedy is to deposit the rent to prevent the running of interest ; if he does not avail of the provisions of this section his S. 149.
remedy is as provided for in s. 149 of the Act.

valid deposit ; Behari Lal v. Basarat, 25 Cal. 289. Banerjee, J., in delivering judgment in this case observed as follows:—"The application here was made on behalf of the tenant though it was presented on his behalf by the transferee of the holding from him. The Bengal Tenancy Act does not make any provision as to how applications, other than those in suits, are to be made by or on behalf of the parties in a case like this. Neither s. 145 nor s. 188 applies to cases of this description. That being so, we think the view taken by the lower Appellate Court that an application, such as the one that was made in this case for the deposit of rent, was in substantial compliance with s. 61 is a reasonable view." But see Dulli v. Meher, 8 W.R. 131, where it was held that a transferee not in possession, instead of depositing the rent, should apply to register his transfer in the zemindar's sheristha.

12. When deposit of rent is proved in a suit for rent:—

A rent-suit should be dismissed with costs if it is proved that the tenant deposited rent under s. 61 as he had a bonafide doubt as to who was entitled to receive the rent : Stalkart v. Guru Das, 21 Cal. 680. A valid deposit under s. 61 operates as an acquittance : Ibid. When a tenant deposits the rent under s. 61 and obtains a receipt from the court, his liability is discharged ; Sukumari Gupta v. Bharat Mondal, 20 C.L.J. 148 at p. 152.

Validity of deposit cannot be disputed.

13. Landlord has no right to dispute the validity of the deposit :—When after a deposit was made under s. 61 and the Court granted the tenant a receipt, the zemindar applied to the Court stating that the tenant had deposited rent upon false and unfounded grounds whereupon the Court being of opinion that the dispute between the parties was as to the form of receipt which the tenant was entitled to receive decided that such a dispute could not be taken cognisance of by him and cancelled his previous order and directed the tenant to take back the money deposited, held that the landlord had no right to come in and be heard in the matter there being no machinery whatsoever provided by the Act for the Court to enter into a judicial enquiry in connection with the matter of the deposit ; Sridhar v. Rameshwar, 15 Cal. 166. As far as the tenant is concerned, after such deposit is made and a receipt granted, the Court is functus officio and is not authorised to return the money to the tenant upon an application, made by the zemindar : Ibid.

14. The full amount of the money then due :—These words do not mean anything more than the words " what the tenant shall consider the full amount of rent due from him at the date of the tender to the zemindar " as they occur in s. 46 of Act VIII of 1869 (B.C.) ; Sridhar Roy v. Rameshwar, 15 Cal. 166. This case has been explained in the case of Sasi Bhusan v. Umakant, 19 C.W.N. 1143, s. c. 20 C.L.J. 153.

Deposit of less than the amount if valid.

A deposit in Court by a tenant of less than the amount of arrears of rent due is not a valid deposit under s. 61 : Sati Prasad v. Monmotha Nath, 18 C.W.N. 84. An agent of the landlord authorised to receive rent cannot be compelled to take rent tendered wherever he may happen to be and at whatever time and place it may be offered : Ibid ; nor can he be asked to take a small portion of the rent due as the whole amount : Ibid. The decision in the case of Sati Prasad v. Manmotha Nath, 18 C.W.N. 84, so far as it decides the validity of the deposit, has been dissented from in the case of Sasi Contra. Bhusan v. Umakant, 19 C.W.N. 1143, s. c. 20 C.L.J. 153 at p. 156.

Where under section 61 of the Bengal Tenancy Act a tenant deposits what he bonafide believes to be the whole amount due at the date of the deposit and not merely a portion thereof the deposit is validly made under the section, even though it should turn out that the whole amount due had not been deposited: Wajihunnissa v. Babulal, 5 Pat. 46, s.c. [1925 Pat.] 298, s.c. 7 P.L.T. 355. The case of Sashibhusan v. Umakanta, 19 C.W.N. 1143, s.c. 20 C.L.J. 153 relied on.

Where the amount claimed was Rs. 223 and odd and the tenant deposited Rs. 216 and odd under s. 61 of the B. T. Act, the deposit is a valid deposit and operates as an acquittance not for the whole amount due but for the amount of the rent payable by the tenant and deposited in the same manner and to the same extent as if the amount of rent had been received by the landlord: Gnanadayini v. Gunamoni, 105 I.C. 52 (Mukerji and Mitter J.J.).

Deposit of rent without the interest then due is not a sufficient Interest. deposit within s. 61: Shyam Chandra v. Bhanga Dei, 23 I.C. 777.

15. When is a tender valid:—When a tender is not made at the proper place or to a person authorised either under the law or by the landlord to receive the money, such tender is not sufficient: Shaikh Murdad v. Sheikh Tufuzzal, 16 W.R. 78.

16. Deposit, Validity of:—Where a tenant has only one holding but makes three deposits alleging that there are three holdings, held that the deposits are not valid, and the landlord can question the validity although the Court might have accepted it under s. 62: Satis Chandra v. Umes Narain, 34 C.L.J. 501.

17. Omission to sue for the rent of the period between deposit and suit:—A deposit under this section is equivalent to part payment and so far as regards the application of s. 43, C. P. C., (Act XIV of 1882) goes, the landlord is in no better position than if there had been a part payment; the notice under s. 63, does not give a fresh and independent cause of action to the landlord so as to entitle him to sue separately for the balance without also suing for any arrears then due: Atul Krishna v. Nripendra, 1 C.L.J. 114.

18. Limitation:—When a deposit is made under this section a suit for recovery of rent of a holding which fell into arrear before the date of the deposit is to be brought within six months from the date of the service of the notice; see Art. 2 (b) of Sch. III of the Bengal Tenancy Act.

But where a deposit was made under s. 61 and the Court was asked to serve notice of this deposit on the landlords and it was found that notice was served on only one of them, held, in a suit brought by all the landlords, that the plea of six months' limitation did not apply to the landlords on whom notice was not served, and also as the co-sharer landlords were jointly and severally entitled to the rent the period of limitation could not be reduced: Rup Chand v. Gudar Singh, 29 Cal. 283: s.c. 6 C.W.N. 15. If a tenant relies upon clause (a) of Art 2 of Sch. III of the Bengal Tenancy Act, he must prove that there was an application which fulfilled the requirements of s. 61, sub-sec. (2) of the Bengal Tenancy Act, and that a deposit was made under s. 61 after the arrear had fallen due, he must also show that notice under s. 63 was served on the landlord and prove the date when the service was effected: Mir Tapurah Hossein v. Gopi Narayan, 7 C.L.J. 251. It was held that a deposit did not interfere with the limitation for suits for enhanced rent as prescribed in s. 32 of Act X of 1859 in the case of Jeebun Mundal v. Taramonee, 6 W.R., Act X, 98.

The period of limitation prescribed in Art 2 Clause (a) of Sch. III is applicable to a suit for rent whenever rent has been deposited under s. 61 even though the allegation of the tenant that what he had deposited was the full amount due at the time, may ultimately prove to be incorrect: Sasi Bhushan v. Umakant, 20 C.L.J. 153. Their Lordships (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, J.J.), in deciding this case dissented from the case of Sati Prasad v. Monmotha Nath, 18 C.W.N. 84.

19. In whose name money is to be deposited:—When a tenant has been in the habit of depositing rent due to a landlord in his sole name, he is not justified, without receiving notice or order to that effect in making the deposit in the joint names of that landlord and another: John Rudd Rainey v. Nubo Coomar, 24 W.R. 128.

Mistake in name of taluk does not invalidate deposit.

20. Mistake in the name of the taluk:—A mistake in the name of the taluk was held not to be material specially when the landlord was aware of the tender being made and the deposit was held to be valid; Wooma Charan v. Haree Pershad, 10 W.R. 101.

21. Court-fees for application under this section:—See Appendix VI High Court Rules.

22. Money:—It seems that under this section a tenant can deposit money-rent only and not the equivalent money representing the price of the produce rent unless in the Kabuliyat the money equivalent is fixed. "It may be conceded that no deposit can be made of rent in kind under s. 61 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. But where as here the parties have agreed that upon failure to deliver the rent payable in kind a fixed sum is to be paid in lieu of this description the provisions of s. 61 are clearly applicable." (per Mookerjee J., Beachcroft, J., agreeing) Sasi Bhushan v. Umakant, 19 C.W.N. 1143, s. c. 20 C.L.J. 153.

22. Refusal of tender:—To stop interest on rent running in a case governed by the Bengal Tenancy Act a tender of a rent which is improperly refused, need not be followed by a deposit of rent in Court, under s. 61, and such a tender, if kept good, is sufficient to stop interest running from the date of tender; Kripasindhu v. Ananda Sundari, 35 Cal. 34, s. c. 11 C.W.N. 983; s. c. 6 C.L.J. 273, approving the case of Jagattarini v. Nabagopal, 34 Cal. 305; s. c., 5 C.L.J. 270, and over-ruling the case of Ranjit v. Bhagabati, 7 C.W.N. 720.

Chalan.

A chalan is a valid receipt within the meaning of sec. 62 in-as-much as no special form of receipt is prescribed by the B. T. Act. Where the chalan bore the signatures of the Subordinate Judge and of the Treasury Officer but there was no seal of the Court as contemplated by s. 62, held that it is the duty of the Court to affix its seal to the chalan and if it is not done it is the fault of the Court and this defect should not be held to deprive the defendant of his just rights.

Rent can be deposited in Court under sec. 62 only when it appears to the Court that the applicant is entitled under sec. 61 to make the deposit ; hence, if a valid receipt was given under sec. 62 it must be presumed that the Court was satisfied at the time the receipt was given that the applicant was entitled under sec. 61 to deposit the rent : Tofa Lal Das v. T. W. Partridge, 4 Pat. 285.

62. (1) If it appears to the Court to which an application is made under the last foregoing section that the applicant is entitled under that section to deposit the rent, it shall receive the rent and give a receipt for it under the seal of the Court.

Receipt granted by court for rent deposited to be a valid acquittance.

(2) A receipt given under this section shall operate as an acquittance for the amount of the rent payable by the tenant and deposited as aforesaid, in the same manner and to the same extent as if that amount of rent had been received—in cases (a) and (b) of the last foregoing section, by the person specified in the application as the person to whose credit the deposit was to be entered ; in case (c) of that section, by the co-sharers to whom the rent is due ; and in case (d) of that section, by the person entitled to the rent.

*Note :—*The provisions of s. 61 must be taken along with s. 62 : Sasi Bhusan v. Umakant, 19 C.W.N. 1143, s. c. 20 C.L.J. 153.

63. (1) The Court receiving the deposit shall forthwith cause to be affixed in a conspicuous place at the Court-house a notification of the receipt thereof, containing a statement of all material particulars.

Notification of receipt of deposit.

(2) If the amount of the deposit is not paid away under the next following section, within the period of fifteen days next following the date on which the notification is so affixed, the Court shall forthwith—in cases (a) and (b) of section 61, cause a notice of the receipt of the deposit to be served, free of charge, on the person specified in the application as the person to whose credit the deposit was to be entered ; in case (c) of that section, cause a notice of the receipt of the deposit to be posted at the landlord's village-office or in some conspicuous place in the village in which the holding is situate ; and in case (d) of that section, cause a like notice to be served, free of charge, on every person who it has reason to believe claims or is entitled to the deposit.

Service of Notice :—See Appendix—High Court Rules.

See notes under s. 61.

Transfer of a permanent tenure :—The transfer of a permanent tenure being complete as soon as the document is registered such a transferee when he tenders rent as tenant is entitled under s. 63 to claim a receipt with his name thereon as that of the tenant. Rupchand v. Narendra Krishna, 19 C.W.N. 112.

Suit for arrears before Deposit :—A suit for arrears of rent which fell due before a deposit was made under sec. 61 must be brought within 6 months of the date of service of the notice of the deposit. See Sch. III, Art 2 (a).

Payment or refund of deposit.

64. (1) The Court may pay the amount of the deposit to any person appearing to it to be entitled to the same, or may, if it thinks fit, retain the amount pending the decision of a Civil Court as to the person so entitled.

(2) The payment may, if the Local Government so directs, be made by postal money-order.

(3) If no payment is made under this section before the expiration of three years from the date on which a deposit is made, the amount deposited may, in the absence of any order of a Civil Court to the contrary, be repaid to the depositor upon his application and on his returning the receipt given by the Court with which the rent was deposited.

(4) No suit or other proceeding shall be instituted against the Secretary of State for India in Council, or against any officer of the Government, in respect of anything done by a Court receiving a deposit under the foregoing sections; but nothing in this section shall prevent any person entitled to receive the amount of any such deposit from recovering the same from a person to whom it has been paid under this section.

Effect of withdrawal of deposit by landlord :—Where rent deposited by a putnidar was withdrawn by the landlord by a petition stating that "my tenant had deposited rent due to me", held that the landlord by his action elected to recognise the putni tenure. Madhu Sudan v. Rooke, 24 I.A. 164 s. c. 25 Cal 1, s. c., 1 C.W.N. 433.

Courtfees on applications for payment and return of deposit of rent :—See Appendix VI—High Court Rules. See also cl. (a) para 4, Act I, Sch. II, of the Court Fees Act VII of 1870.

65. Where a tenant is a permanent tenure-holder, a raiyat holding at fixed rates or an occupancy-raiyat, he shall not be liable to ejectment for arrears of rent, but his tenure or holding shall be liable to sale in execution of a decree for the rent thereof, and the rent shall be a first charge thereon.

Liability to sale for arrears in case of permanent tenure, holding at fixed rates or occupancy holding.

Decree for sale of defaulting tenure bad.

1. Form of decree :—In a suit for rent the court in passing a decree cannot limit it by saying that the defaulting tenure should be first sold : Jatindra Nath v. Muzafer Ali, 16 C.W.N. 31 (notes).

"All the authorities in our courts have laid down that it is not competent to a court to direct in what manner the landlord shall execute his decree for rent and that he cannot be compelled to proceed first against the holding and then against the person": Per Mullick J., in the case of Kesho Prasad v. Lalji Ray, 1 Pat. L.J. 138.

It seems that if a court erroneously gives a direction in the decree first to proceed against the defaulting tenure and then against the person or other properties, such direction does not seem to be binding as being without jurisdiction unless the decree is by consent.

It is not necessary for the Court to state in the decree passed in a suit for arrears of rent as to whether the decree will have the effect of a rent-decree or not, because by operation of law it is a rent-decree.

Purchaser at a sale in execution of fictitious decree.

2. Fictitious suit for arrears of rent :—Where a default was deliberately made by a tenure-holder in the payment of rent with the intention that the decree might be obtained against him and that on the sale of the tenure, the under-tenure might be extinguished and the purchaser was settled before-hand, held that at such a sale the purchaser was in the position of a purchaser by private transfer : Umacharan v. Midnapore Zemindary Co., 20 C.L.J. 1. See in this connection Sreenath v. Hurnath, 18 W.R. 240 ; Kishore Chander v. Kali Kinkur, 20 W.R. 338 ; Harendra Lal v. Salimulla, 12 C.L.J. 336 ; Harendra Lal v. Purna Chandra, 15 C.L.J. 132 ; Chowdhury Ram v. Chowdhury Pawn, 18 C.L.J. 97 ; Janki v. Debinandan, 15 C.W.N. 776, Faizar Rahman v. Mimansa Khatun, 17 C.W.N. 1233, s.c., 18 C.L.J. 111 ; an intermediate landlord is bound to protect his own tenant from all paramount claims : Graham v. Allsop, 3 Exch. 186. If a lessor enters into an agreement with another to get rid of his lessee by means of a fictitious sale for arrears of rent and to share the profits of the transaction, that is a fraud against the lessee ; the person with whom such agreement is made must not be considered as having the rights of an auction purchaser but only those of a private purchaser : Sreenath v. Hurnath, 18 W.R. 240 ; see also Nuzzur Ally v. Ojoodya Ram, 5 W.R. (P.C.) 83.

3. Contract in contravention of this section :—Contract in contravention of this section is bad in law : Samanta Rajnarain v. Ananta Prasad Das, 4 C.L.J. 521.

S. 65 does not apply to an under-raiyati holding.

4. Under-raiyat :—Land held by an under-raiyat is not a holding within the meaning of s. 3 cl. (9) of the Act : s. 65 does not provide for a sale of land held by an under-raiyat in execution of a decree for arrears of rent thereof : Arsadalla v. Mansubali, 16 C.L.J. 359.

It is submitted that sec. 65 does not apply also to an under-raiyat with a right of occupancy by custom. See notes under sec. 29, heading No. 16, p. 228.

S. 100 of the Transfer of Property Act.

5. Charge : Personal liability of tenant :—The "charge" referred to in this section is not such a "charge" as is defined by s. 100 to the Transfer of Property Act ; and a landlord is not restricted by the provisions of this Act to executing a decree obtained by him for arrears of rent in the first instance by sale of the tenure or holding, but is at liberty to execute it in the ordinary manner against the person or other property, whether moveable or immoveable, of the tenant: Fatick Chunder v. E. G. Foley, 15 Cal. 492. See also Rayzuddi v. Kritartha Nath, 33 Cal. 895, s.c. 4 C.L.J. 219. The view in these two cases was accepted in the case of Panagipalli v. Suryanarayana, 48 I.C. 794.

In the case of Tarini Pershad v. Narayan Kumari, 17 Cal. 301, Petheram, C.J., said as follows:—"This section, so far as I can see, creates a first charge upon the tenure for the rent of it, and puts the landlord in the position of a first mortgagee, so far as the rent is concerned, but the tenant remains personally liable for the rent. So that the landlord's position is this: he has a mortgage or charge upon the tenure for the rent, and he has a remedy against the tenant personally for the debt due to him. That being the case, he has a right to avail himself of either of his remedies. He may, if he chooses, bring an action in which he claims to establish his lien upon the tenure to bring that tenure to sale, notwithstanding any other charge which may have been made upon it, and that whether the tenant had any other property and whether some one else had a charge by way of contractual mortgage upon the tenure."

Landlord in the position of first mortgagee. Tenant liable personally.

A decree-holder who has obtained a decree for rent is free to proceed against any property of the judgment debtor; he is under no obligation to proceed in the first instance against the defaulting tenure: Sailaja Prasad v. Gyon Das, 18 C.L.J. 29.

Decree holder may proceed against any property.

Rent is a first charge: S. M. Meherunnusa v. Sham Sundar, 6 C.W.N. 834. Gopinath v. Kashi Nath, 13 C.W.N. 412 at p. 414.

The landlord's charge on the land for rent is prior to the charge created by the tenant in favour of the mortgagee: Gopinath v. Kasi Nath, 13 C.W.N. 412: s. c., 9 C.L.J. 234; so the purchaser at a rent sale has priority over the purchaser in execution of a mortgage decree; Ibid; See notes under ss. 161 and 167.

Purchaser at a rent sale has priority over purchaser in execution of mortgage decree.

A rent decree under the Bengal Tenancy Act is binding on the holding and a charge upon it, but the execution of decree must be levied on the holding and the holding is represented by the entire body of tenants. Execution against some of the tenants is limited to their right, title and interest and does not affect the holding: Rampada v. Kanai Rai, 44 C.L.J. 167 (Suhrawardy and Page, J. J.)

When a landlord makes the purchase of a holding in execution of his rent decree he may be taken to have become absolutely entitled to the property and it follows from s. 101 of the Transfer of Property Act that the landlord's charge for rent which is for his benefit continues to subsist after his purchase, so where an occupancy holding was mortgaged and the mortgage was not annulled by the landlord after his purchase, held that in a suit by the mortgagee the decree in favour of the mortgagee should be subject to the first charge for rent in favour of the landlord: S. M. Meherunnusa v. Sham Sundar, 6 C.W.N. 834; See notes under ss. 161 and 167.

Transfer of Property Act's 101.

Rent falling due during the time that a tenure belongs to any particular tenure-holder is a first charge on the tenure so long as it is his and has not been sold for arrears of rent, and the charge in respect of any rent falling due between the date of suit and the date of sale in satisfaction of the decree passed therein, is transferred from the tenure to its sale-proceeds and the tenure passes to the purchaser at a sale for arrears of rent free of all liability created upon it by default of the previous holder: Faez Rahaman v. Ram Suk Bajpai, 21 Cal. 169.

Rent a first charge.

Rent for period anterior to sale.

But where a tenure or holding was sold in execution of a decree for rent with a notice that it was saddled with liability for arrears of rent for a period anterior to the date of sale, held that the purchaser was liable for the rent of such period : Haradhan v. Kartick Chandra, 6 C.W.N. 877. The notification must have some effect in controlling the bids of intending purchasers : Ibid.

Two decrees for rent.

Where a landlord obtained two decrees for arrears of rent and in execution of the later decree put to sale the defaulting tenure, and subsequently in execution of the antecedent decree put to sale a portion of the tenure again, held that this could not be done, i.e., after a tenure has been sold out and for the satisfaction of certain arrears, a portion of the same tenure cannot afterwards be sold for a second time for recovery of rent which had previously accrued : Opal Saran v. Sheikh Mahomed Ahson, 14 C.W.N. 1096 at p. 1099 ; in this case it did not appear that the first sale was held with a notice that the sale was to be held subject to any charge.

Sale in execution of one rent decree without notifying that there is another rent-decree.

Where a landlord obtained two rent decrees and sells the holding in execution of one of the decrees without notifying that there is another rent-decree, and purchases it himself, he is not debarred from executing the other decree against the other properties of the judgment debtor : Kesho Prasad v. Paranjote, 6 Pat. L.J. 354, a rent-decree is in no sense a mortgage decree : Ibid.

By the express terms of the Bengal Tenancy Act in the event of rent being unpaid, the owners of the zemindari interest are entitled by suit under that Act to bring a putni to sale with the consequences prescribed by that Act : Pramada Nath v. Ramani Kant, 35 Cal. 331.

Putni tenure.

There is no difference between putni taluks and other tenures in respect of the applicability of s. 65 to them : Peary Mohon v. Sreeram Chandra, 6 C.W.N. 794 ; there is no conflict between s. 65 of the Bengal Tenancy Act and s. 17 (3) of the Putni Regulation ; antecedent balances may be mere personal debts, which cannot be summarily recovered under the procedure prescribed by the Putni Regulation but they may also be a charge on the taluk : Ibid.

Personal liability or not.

The purchaser of the interest of a putnidar in execution of a money-decree obtained against the latter is not personally liable to satisfy the rent-decree obtained by the landlord against the putnidar prior to the sale in execution of the money-decree : Indrachand v. Surendra Narain, 1 Pat. 449.

How charge is enforced.

S. 65, which provides that the "tenure or holding shall be liable to sale in execution of a decree for the rent thereof, and the rent shall be a first charge thereon," only intends what is explicitly laid down in subsequent sections of the Act, that is, those in Ch. XIV, namely, that the charge should be enforced by the sale of the tenure or holding free of encumbrances, and if in any case the decree for rent either has not been, or cannot be, enforced by the sale of the tenure, we do not think that the charge created by s. 65 can be enforced in any other way" ; (Per Norris and Banerjee, J.J.) Shoshi Bhusan v. Gagan Chunder, 22 Cal. 364.

Surplus sale proceeds.

Not only can a putni tenure be sold under the Bengal Tenancy Act but decrees for rent for earlier periods can be enforced against the surplus sale proceeds of a putni tenure when sold in execution of a decree for rent under the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act ; Satyasankar v. Monmohon, 22 C.W.N. 131 (Per N. Chatterjee J., Smither J., contra).

Notwithstanding a stipulation in a lease that on default of payment of rent the landlord shall be entitled to realise the same by auction-sale of the tenure; the tenant is also personally liable for the rent; Sourindra Mohan v. Sournomoyee, 26 Cal. 103: s. c., 3 C.W.N. 38. A decree-holder has in execution of a rent-decree the right to ask for personal execution against the judgment-debtor notwithstanding that he has also the power to sell the tenure in arrears: Bhabani Charan v. Pratap Chandra, 8 C.W.N. 575; Mahomed Jamad Hussein v. Gopal Narain Singh, 5 C.L.J. 48 (notes); the decree-holder may proceed against the tenure or other properties or part of the tenure and nothing depends on the order in which the decree-holder should proceed: Ibid.

A landlord, who purchases the defaulting tenure in execution of his money decree subject to rent charge, cannot execute his decree for rent as the judgment in his favour for rent is extinguished: Sailaja Prosad v. Gyani Das, 18 C.L.J. 29.

There cannot be two first charges standing simultaneously against a tenure: Srimanta v. Mahadeo, 8 C.W.N. 531.

It was held under s. 12 of Act VIII of 1865, B. C., that a plaintiff who obtains a decree for rent has no charge over the surplus sale-proceeds for the rent of the subsequent period: Sultan Khan v. Radha Krishna, 4 C.L.J. 500.

The union of a cause of action which is separable from a charge on land, with a claim which constitutes a charge disentitles the plaintiff from pursuing the procedure laid down in Ch. XII of the Bengal Tenancy Act: Shib Prasad v. Vakai, 33 Cal. 605; s. 65 does not bar the uniting of a claim for rent of a fishery with a claim for other rent: Ibid.; but such a decree does not seem to be decree for rent.

The liability to pay cess (of a rent-free tenure) is a liability to the Government and it is not a charge on the tenure: Pilambar v. Sheikh Rahamat Ali, 1 Pat. 218.

The amount of cesses payable to a Collector under the Cess Act (IX of 1880) B. C. is not a charge on the estate in respect of which they are due: Ahsanulla v. Manjura Banoo, 30 Cal. 778. Cess is not a charge on an estate but it is a charge on a tenure. "Rent" includes cess, and it has therefore been held that a decree for road-cess is a first charge upon the tenure: Cheodilli v. Quadress, 1 Pat. L.J., 161; therefore an auction purchaser in execution of a decree for cess has a title paramount to that of a mortgagee though the decree for cess was obtained subsequent to the execution of the mortgage: Ibid.

Where a certain property was hypothecated as security for rent of a tenure, and the tenant subsequently transferred the tenure, held that the charge on the hypothecated property ceased on the transfer of the tenure: Bejoy Chand v. Sarat Chandra, 19 C.L.J. 476.

6. What is a decree for rent:—S. 3 of the Bengal Tenancy Act defines the word 'rent' in the sense in which it would be understood without any statutory definition: Jatindra Mohan v. Jarao Kumari, 33 Cal. 140 (P.C.), s. c. 10 C.W.N. 201. The "decree" referred to in this section is a decree obtained by all the landlords or at all events a decree obtained by some of the landlords for the entire rent in the presence of all: Sheikh Jarip v. Ram Kumar, 3 C.W.N. 747. Where the entire body of landlords do not obtain a decree the effect of the sale is only that of right, title and interest of Tenant also personally liable for rents.

Where landlord purchaser in execution of a decree for money. Two charges.

Act VIII of 1865, B. C.

Claim for rent and money.

Act IX of B. C. 1880.

Security for rent.

Decree by all the landlords, or in presence of all.

- Fractional co-sharer competent to sue. the judgment debtor ; Narain v. Srimanta, 29 Cal. 218. And one of several joint landlords is competent to sue for the entire rent due making his co-sharers parties to the suit : Premchand v. Mokshada, 14 Cal. 201. See notes under s. 188. "Rent" includes road-cess payable by a tenant : Nobin v. Bansi Nath, 21 Cal. 722. See, also
- Road cess, decree for. - Cheoditti v. Quadress, 1 Pat. L.J. 161. A suit for rent brought by the plaintiff against a person who was settled upon the land by plaintiff's co-sharers claiming the land exclusively is a suit for rent : Azim Sirdar v. Ram Lall, 25 Cal. 324.
- Decree for dak-tax &c. Where a decree was obtained against a putnidar for rent, Dak-tax and other items not strictly coming within the definition of rent and the sale was held under Chap. XIV of the Bengal Tenancy Act, held that s. 171 of the Act applied : Jnanada Sundari v. Atul Chandra, 32 Cal. 972 ; certain sums agreed to be paid by the tenant on behalf of the landlord are rent : Ibid.
- Drainage charges. A decree for rent which includes drainage charges is a rent-decree : Manmatha v. Anath Bandhu, 23 C.W.N. 201 ; see also Monmohini v. Priyanath, 8 C.W.N. 649.
- Co-sharer landlord. A co-sharer landlord can maintain a suit for recovery of his share of rent in arrears and enforce his claim under the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act, against the original tenant and the other co-sharer landlord who had before suit purchased the tenant's tenure : the consideration of the purchase being the amount of arrears to him : Kamal Krishna v. Kedar Nath, 10 C.L.J. 517.
- Sub-division of tenure. When a person, a 16 anna proprietor, obtained a decree for rent of a tenure against his tenants—against one for an 11 anns. odd share and against the other for a 4 anns. odd share, held that he was entitled to execute the decree as a decree for rent although he recognised the fact that the tenants had sub-divided the tenure and chose to accept a decree for the rent of the shares : Surbo Lal v. J. M. Wilson, 33 Cal. 682 ; under the provisions of s. 65 the rent, for which he has got a decree, is a first charge upon the tenure and in execution of such decree he is entitled to sell the tenure : * Ibid.
- Rent payable to a third person. A suit by a landlord against a tenant for a certain sum of money payable by him out of the rent to a third person under assignment is one for rent and not for damages : Kalikumar v. Bidhu Bhusan, 16 C.L.J. 89 following Basanta Kumari v. Asutosh, 27 Cal. 67 (F. B.). See also Nagendra Bala v. Amrita Lall, 47 I.C. 753.
- Sikka rupees. A contract to pay rent in sikka rupees should be maintained whether its date is prior or subsequent to 1836 : Dhakeshwar v. Ram Pershad, 43 I.C. 753.
- Landlord at date of suit and decree. Where the plaintiff in a suit for rent is shown to have been the landlord at the date of the suit and also at the date of the decree, both suit and decree would clearly be a suit and a decree under the Bengal Tenancy Act : Khetra Pal Singh v. Kritartha Moyi, 33 Cal. 566 (F.B.), s. c. 10 C.W.N. 547, s. c. 3 C.L.J. 470 (overruling the case of Hem Chandra v. Monmohini, 3 C.W.N. 604). The fact that the plaintiff sold his interest in the tenure subsequently to obtaining the decree, would not prevent him from obtaining the benefit of s. 65 of the Act : Ibid. See also Srimanta v. Mahadeo, 8 C.W.N. 531 : s. c., 31 Cal. 550.

The case of Khetra Pal v. Kritartha Moyi, 33 Cal. 566, s. c., 10

* See 17 Cal. 301.

C.W.N. 547, s. c., 3 C.L.J. 470 was distinguished in the Privy-Council case of Arthur Henry Forbes v. Maharaj Bahadur Singh, 41 I.A. 91, s. c., 41 Cal. 926*, s. c., 18 C.W.N. 747, and it was held that the right to bring a tenure or holding to sale under s. 65 being exclusively in the landlord, a person to whom certain rents are due and who obtains a decree therefor after he has parted with the property in which the tenancy is situate has no such right. See notes under heading No. 8.

Landlord parting with his interest.

The rent payable by a putnidar to his zemindar, which has been transformed into a judgment debt, is a first charge on the tenure: Basanla Kumar v. Khulna Loan Company, 19 C.W.N. 1001 s. c., 20 C.L.J. 1; the putni sale has not the effect of destroying the character of the decree previously obtained as a rent decree: Ibid. If a sale of a putni tenure takes place under the Putni Regulation, the landlord is entitled in the first place to appropriate sufficient portion of sale proceeds in deposit with the Collector in satisfaction of his decree for rent for previous balances, before a mortgagee can proceed to realise his dues: Ibid.

judgment debt.

A decree obtained by a zemindar against his putnidar is a decree for rent within the meaning of this section, although he had previously to the institution of the suit sold his interest in the zemindari: Maharaj Bahadur v. Forbes, 35 Cal. 737; s. c., 7 C.L.J. 652.

Decree against a Putnidar.

This case was followed in the case of Diwan Balmukund v. Tarini Singh, 16 C.L.J. 360 and it was held that the provisions of Art. 2 of Sch. III of the Bengal Tenancy Act apply to a suit for recovery of rent of a holding by one whose interest as landlord has ceased to exist before the institution of the suit, provided that the arrears claimed accrued due to him when he was the landlord of the defendant.

A suit brought by a landlord against his tenants claiming damages for wilfully omitting to raise crops whereby the landlord was deprived of his share thereof is in substance a suit for recovery of rent inasmuch as the shares of the produce to be received by the landlord was ascertained before the commencement of the suit: Lalji Panday v. Barhamdeo, 16 C.W.N. 89.

Claim for damages.

An agreement expressly proved or implied by the conduct of the parties, for the payment of rent to co-sharer landlords separately, may establish the right to sue separately, for the shares of the rent receivable by the separate share-holders, but such an agreement merely affects the right to sue separately for rent and in no other respect modifies the terms of the holding; the right therefore to bring the tenure to sale for arrears of rent remains in tact, and also the right of one co-sharer to sue making his co-sharer defendants where they refuse to join as plaintiffs: Pramada Nath v. Ramani Kanta, 35 Cal. 331; s. c., 12 C.W.N. 249.

Separate collection,
effect of.

Where under s. 19 of the Limitation Act a tenant acknowledges in writing his liability for the arrears of rent due from him, and the period of limitation is thus extended, the claim for the debt acknowledged is a claim for rent and for money and the decree may be executed as a rent decree: Kamal Krishna v. Kedar Nath, 10 C.L.J. 517.

Limitation
Act s. 19.

* This Privy Council case sets aside the decision of the High Court reported in, 35 Cal. 737, s. c., 7 C.L.J. 552.

Revenue payable by nishkar grant.

Where a nishkar grant was made and the grantee was to pay to the grantor a proportionate share of the government revenue payable by the grantor, held that the amount payable by the grantee to the grantor was rent and the grantee was a tenant and not a co-proprietor: Dwarkanath v. Dambarudhar, 38 Cal. 278.

Damages for use and occupation.

A suit by a landlord for damages for use and occupation was held to be indistinguishable from a rent-suit where the defendant claimed to be a tenant and the plaintiff said that the defendant was a permissive occupant, and it was held the suit was not cognisable by a Small Cause Court: Mahadeo v. Kesho Pershad, 2 Pat. L.J. 97.

Sale price. of garh.

A suit for recovery of the sale price of a garh or forest is a suit for rent: Joy Churn v. Sarajubala, 23 C.W.N. 876; see notes under s. 193.

Rent falling due after transfer by tenant.

When A purchased a putni tenure from B and the landlord without any justification refused to treat A as his tenant and brought a suit for rent against B, deliberately omitting to implead A as a party to the suit for rent, the whole of which had accrued due after the transfer by B to A, and in execution of the decree the putni was sold, held in a suit against A and B brought by the landlord for rent which had fallen due between the date of the institution of the previous suit and the sale in execution of the decree made thereunder, that the landlord was not entitled to resile from the position which he had taken up in the previous suit, and that A was not liable: Girindra Sunder v. Srikishna, 10 C.L.J. 538.

In the absence of anything to denote the contrary, a sale of a tenure held in execution of a decree for its own arrears of rent passes it free from liability for previous arrears: Mathura Mohan v. Nobin Chandra, 20 C.W.N. 749, s. c., 24 C.L.J. 34 (the cases of Maharani v. Harendra, 1 C.W.N. 458, Peari Mohan v. Sriram, 6 C.W.N. 794 and Manindra v. Jamaher, 32 Cal. 643 were distinguished).

Decree by a co-sharer landlord.

7. What is not a decree for rent.—"The correct rule of law as to what passes at a sale held in execution of a rent-decree obtained by a co-sharer landlord would seem to be laid down by their Lordships of the Privy Council in Jiban Krishna v. Broja Lal, 30 Cal. 550. The case of Pramada Nath v. Ramani Kant, 9 C.W.N. 34, is to the same effect. There are also many other rulings which favour the conclusion that at such a sale only the right, title and interest of the judgment-debtor passes. See the cases of Beni Madhab v. Joad Ali, 17 Cal. 399; Durga Charan v. Kali Prasanna, 26 Cal. 727; Sita Nath v. Atmaram, 4 C.W.N. 571; Sadagar v. Krishna, 26 Cal. 937." Per Rampini, J., in Afraz v. Kulsumunessa, 4 C.L.J. 68.

Splitting up.

Where a tenure is split up into two or more, a sale in execution of a decree obtained in a single suit for rent is not a sale under the B. T. Act: Prafulla Nath v. Shital Khan, 22 C.W.N. 788.

Assignment of Government revenue.

Government revenue agreed to be paid by a putnidar on behalf of the zemindar though a part of the consideration to be rendered by the putnidar for the enjoyment of the tenure was not considered to be a part of the putni rent: Jotindra Mohan v. Jorao Kumari, 33 Cal. 140, s. c., 10 C.W.N. 201; s. c., 3 C.L.J. 7. It was not money payable to the landlord: Ibid. A decree obtained by a co-sharer landlord for his share of the rent is not a decree for rent. Where one of several co-sharers in a zemindari thinks fit to pursue his remedies to recover his share of the rent, he must pursue that under the ordinary law of the country and independently of the Bengal Tenancy Act: Beni Madhab v. Joad Ali, 17 Cal. 390 (F.B.). A decree obtained by some of several co-sharers for rent cannot be regarded as a decree under the Bengal Tenancy Act and the proceedings in execution thereof can only be in accordance with the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure and therefore in execution of such a decree, an occupancy holding which is not saleable by custom or usage cannot be sold: Durga Charan v. Kali Prasanno 26 Cal. 727 s. c., 3 C.W.N. 585. See also the cases of Premchand v. Mokshada 14 Cal. 201; Jagobandhu v. Jadu, 15 Cal. 47; Sita Nath v. Atmaram, 4 C.W.N. 571. Where a ticcadar brought a suit for rent after the expiry of his lease and brought the tenure to sale after he ceased to be in possession and where in the meantime the landlord had entered into possession of the property and had obtained a decree for rent falling due after the termination of the lease, held that there could not be two first charges and the landlord and not the ticcadar was entitled to the first charge: Srimanta v. Mahadeo, 8 C.W.N. 531. A suit by an assignee of an arrear of rent stands in the shoes of a landlord and such a suit is a rent-suit for the purpose of jurisdiction of the Court in which such suit is to be bought: Sris Chandra v. Nasim Quazi, 27 Cal. 827 s. c., 4 C.W.N. 357 (F.B.); but it is doubtful whether a decree in such a suit is a decree for rent within the meaning of this section, (s. 65) for it has been held in the case of Mahendra v. Kailash, 4 C.W.N. 605, that the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act are not applicable to a suit for rent by an assignee of the arrears from the landlord as the assignee is not the landlord of the defendant.

A sale held at the instance of an assignee of a rent-decree who is not an assignee of the landlord's interest has at most the effect of a sale held in execution of a decree for money under the Civil Procedure Code: Manurattan v. Hari Nath, 1 C.L.J. 500; such a sale accordingly does not affect the interest of unrecorded co-sharers in the tenure who are not parties to the decree or to the execution proceedings: Ibid.

The right to bring a tenure or holding to sale under s. 65 being privy exclusively in the landlord, a person to whom certain rents are due and who obtains a decree therefor after he has parted with the property in which the tenancy is situate has no such right: Arthur Henry Forbes v. Maharaj Bahadur, 41 Cal. 926 (P.C.).

case.

Where upon the death of the last recorded tenant, none of his heirs had his name recorded in the landlord's office, but they held the land and went on paying the rent and obtained separate rent-receipts for some years until recently when a rent-suit was brought against two of them only and the jamma was sold in execution of the decree; held, that after having accepted rent from all the heirs the landlord had no right to ignore some of them; that the sale did not pass the entire jamma but only the right, title and interest of the judgment-debtors: Durga Hazra v. Samosh Akon, 4 C.W.N. 608. The heirs of the last recorded tenant with respect to an occupancy holding are entitled to claim recognition from the landlord and if the latter, ignoring them, bring a suit for arrears of rent and in execution thereof sell the holding, the right of the former is not affected: Ibid.

A decree for rent falling due between the date of a previous suit and the date of the sale in satisfaction of the decree passed therein is not a decree within the meaning of this section; Egeez Rahaman v. Mr. Salim Ullah Fahmi.

Where a rent decree was passed under the old rent law but the assignment and the application by the assignee for execution was made after the Bengal Tenancy Act came into force, held that cl. (h) of sec. 148 of the Act applied to the execution proceedings and the sale on such an application, which is prohibited by that clause is no sale under the Rent Law: Shoshi Bhusan v. Gagan Chunder, 22 Cal. 364. See notes under s. 148.

A suit upon a bond given for rent is not a suit for rent: Royzaddi v. Kritartha Nath, 4 C.L.J. 219. Nor is a suit against the defendants who had executed a bond in favour of plaintiff undertaking to pay a debt due from their landlord is not a suit for rent: Hriday Nath v. Joyram, 4 C.L.J. 402.

As to whether a burgadar is a tenant and a decree against him a rent decree; see notes under the Preamble at p. 5.

A decree for the consolidated rent of several tenures held by the same tenant does not bind any one of the tenures: Baikuntha Nath v. Thakur Debendra, 11 C.W.N. 676; one tenure cannot be made liable for the rent of another tenure: Ibid. Where there are several tenures held by the tenant, the landlord may institute one suit for the rent of all the tenures; but he cannot put the tenures to sale under the procedure laid down in Chap. XIV: Hriday Nath v. Krishna Prasad, 34 Cal. 298, s. c., 11 C.W.N. 407; s. c., 6 C.L.J. 153; Nanda Lal v. Sadhu Churan, 7 C.L.J. 96. See also Bipra Das v. Rajaram, 36 Cal. 795, s. c., 13 C.W.N. 560.

These cases have all been followed in the case of Mulluk Chand v. Satis Chandra, 14 C.W.N. 335; s. c., 11 C.L.J. 56; Rashmohini v. Debendra Nath, 16 C.W.N. 395. See also *Baikantha Nath v. Under the provisions of s. 117 cl. (e) of the Putni Regulation, arrears of rent for a period antecedent to the period to recover the rent of which the tenure had been sold must be regarded as personal debts recoverable under the ordinary procedure for the recovery of debts and not by re-sale of the tenure: Khitish Chandra v. Khulna Loan Co., 13 C.W.N. 804. See also Jagannath v. Mohiuddin, 37 Cal. 747; Pearymohon v. Sreeram Chandra, 6 C.W.N. 794.

Cessation of landlord's
interest.

8. Effect of cessation of landlord's interest:—There may be the following cases where the landlord ceases to have interest in the land which the tenant holds under him.

1. Cessation of interest before suit;
2. After suit and before decree;
3. After decree and before execution;
4. After execution and before sale;

(1) before
suit.

1st case: In the first case i.e., cessation of landlord's interest before suit, the decree obtained by the landlord is not a decree for rent: Forbes v. Maharaj Bahadur, 41 Cal. 926 (P.C.), s. c., 18 C.W.N. 747, s. c., 25 C.L.J. 434; see also Sremant v. Mahadeo, 31 Cal. 550.

a decree for rent: Maharaj Bahadur v. Forbes (Rampini and Sharfuddin J.J., over-ruled by the Privy Council, (see left hand column)).

2nd case i.e. where the landlord ceases to have any interest after the date of the suit and before the decree is obtained :

It cannot be executed as a rent-decree: the principle upon which the Privy Council decision of Forbes v. Maharaj Bahadur was decided will apply: 41 Cal. 926: See also Ramkali Kuer v. Madan Mohan Lal, 8 P.L.T. 224, s. c., 98 I.C. 995.

It has all the characteristics of a rent-decree and may be executed as such: Chatraput v. Gopi Chand, 26 Cal. 750; s. c., 4 C.W.N. 446.

(2) after suit but before decree.

3rd case i.e., where there is cessation of landlord's interest after the decree is obtained but before the application is made for execution of the decree ;

The decree cannot be executed as a rent-decree; Hem Chandra v. Monmohini, 3 C.W.N. 604, (O'kinnealy and Ameer Ali J.J.); also see the observations of their Lordships of the Privy Council in the case of Forbes v. Maharaj Bahadur, 41 Cal. 926; the observations of the Privy Council, according to N. Chatterjea and Richardson J.J., are contrary to the principle upon which the judgment of the Full Bench in Khetra Pal v. Kritarthamayi, 33 Cal. 566 is based; N. Chatterjea and Richardson J.J., therefore referred the following question for a decision of a Special Bench under Part II, Ch. V., Rule VI of the Rules of the High Court:

Question: Whether the decision of the Full Bench in the case of Khetra Pal Singh v. Kritarthamoyi, 33 Cal. 566 is still good law.

The Special Bench could not decide the question as it was discovered that no second appeal lay by virtue of s. 153 of the Bengal Tenancy Act.

[For the Order of Reference to the Special Bench and the judgment of the Special Bench, see Kumar Prafulla Krishna Deb v. Nosibannessa Bibi, 24 C.L.J. 331.]

The decree may be executed as a rent-decree: Khetra Pal v. Kritarthamoye, 33 Cal. 566, s. c., 10 C.W.N. 547, s. c., 3 C.L.J. 740 (Maclean C. J., Ghose, Rampini, Sale and Pratt J.J.). This Full Bench, it is submitted over-rules the case of Hem Chandra v. Monmohini, 3 C.W.N. 604. The principle upon which the decision of the Full Bench is based is inconsistent with the observations of the Privy Council in Maharaj Bahadur v. Forbes, 41 Cal. 926. (See the notes in the left hand column).

(3) after decree but before execution.

(4) Cessation of landlord's interest after execution but before sale.

4th case: Where the landlord ceases to have interest after the application for execution is made and before the sale.

According to the observations made in the case of Forbes v. Maharaj Bahadur, 41 Cal. 926, the decree cannot be executed as a rent-decree. But it has been pointed out in the case of Syedunnissa Khatoon v. Amiruddin, 45 Cal. 204 that those observations were obiter dicta.

The decree may be executed as a rent-decree: Syedunnissa Khatun v. Amiruddin, 45 Cal. 294; [In this case the landlord lost a part of his interest; the principle upon which the decision is based will also apply to loss of entire interest]. In such a case Woodroffe and Cuming J.J., held that the sale was a sale under the Bengal Tenancy Act: Manindra Nath v. Ashutosh, 25 C. L. J. 626; (their Lordships further held that the Full Bench case of Khetter Pal v. Kritarthamoyi, 33 Cal. 566, was not over-ruled by the Privy Council case of Forbes v. Maharaj Bahadur, 41 Cal. 926.

Registered
tenant.

9. Tenant:—A decree for rent of a tenure obtained against the registered tenant binds an unregistered transferee of the same who can shew no sufficient cause for not registering his name and may be enforced by sale of the tenure: Shoshi Bhusan v. Gagan Chunder, 22 Cal. 364 (at p. 372). See also Mati Lal v. Nripendra, 2 C.W.N. 172; Sham Chand v. Brojo Nath, 21 W.R. 94: s.c., 12 B.L.R. 484. Where the landlord of an occupancy holding obtains a decree for rent against his recorded tenant an unregistered transferee of the tenant into whose hands a portion of the holding had previously passed is bound by the decree: Gopi Nath v. Sajani Kanta, 10 C.W.N. 240; Azgur Ali v. Assabuddin, 9 C.W.N. 134 (the principle of the Full Bench case of Ishan Chandra v. Beni Mandal, 24 Cal. 62, was applied). See also Bhubendra v. Upendra, 13 C.W.N. 162 (notes); Nasha Bibi v. Radhakishore, 11 C.W.N. 312.

Decree against unregistered
transferee.

Following these cases it has been held that a purchaser in execution of a decree against an unregistered transferee of an occupancy holding, as well as the unregistered transferee himself, are bound by a decree for rent subsequently obtained against the registered tenant: Haradhan v. Girish Chandra, 13 C.W.N. 98.

When a landlord has obtained a decree for rent against his registered tenant, a transferee of the holding, who acquires an interest in it after the decree, cannot maintain a suit to set aside the decree, except on the ground of fraud, nor is he entitled to a refund of the money paid in satisfaction of the decree: Jadunandan v. Tirbhuban, 1 C.W.N. 164 (notes). A decree passed against the registered tenant binds the real tenant: Moti Lall v. Nripendra, 2 C.W.N. 172.

Dispossession.—
Mesne-profits.

A tenant is not liable for rent for the period he was dispossessed by a person at the instance of a person who was set up by the landlord although he has got a decree for mesne profits against him: Ram Chandra v. Dwarkanath, (1918) Pat. 26.

Decree
recorded
tenant.

Where a landlord obtained a decree for arrears of rent of a tenure against all the tenants who were the recorded tenants except one who after acquiring title by purchase never got his name registered in the landlord's sheristha, held that the entire tenure passed by the sale : Profulla Kumar Sen v. Salimulla, 23 C.W.N. 590.

Where two co-sharer landlords obtained separate decrees for rent for the same period (each making in his own suit his co-sharer a party) and the tenure was sold in satisfaction of the decree obtained by one of them ; held that the other co-sharer landlord could not execute his decree by sale of the same tenure after it passed into the hands of the auction purchaser and all that he was entitled to was to recover the sum due to him which from being a first charge on the tenure itself had, on the sale of the tenure, passed as a first charge on the surplus sale proceeds : ... Nilambar v. Satyapriya, 16 C.W.N. 701 ; when two persons have charges on a property of equal priority, the first who takes out execution is entitled to satisfy his decree by sale of the property and the other person loses his right to proceed against that property : Ibid.

Separate decrees for rent by different co-sharers.

A decree obtained in a suit for rent against a person in possession who is also the legal representative of the last registered tenant is a decree for rent within the meaning of the Bengal Tenancy Act : Ban Bihari Kapur v. Khetterpal Singh, 16 C.W.N. 259.

Decree against a person in possession.

Where at a sale in execution of a decree for money against the holder of a permanent tenure whose name is not registered in the landlord's sheristha the tenure is sold, and the landlord brings a suit against the registered tenant for arrears accruing up to the date of sale, held that the decree is a money-decree and the tenure cannot be sold : Girish Chandra v. Khagendra Nath, 16 C.W.N. 64. But in the case of Surendra Narain v. Gopi Sundari, 9 C.W.N. 924, it was held that a person who acquired a putni tenure at a sale in execution of a decree for money against the putnidar, but who did not get his name registered in the landlord's office is bound by the decree for rent against the recorded tenant.

Sale in execution of money decree against un-registered tenant.

A sale in execution of a money-decree obtained against the registered tenant passes only his right, title and interest in the tenure and not those of his unregistered co-sharers : Doorgadhar v. Haramohini, 13 C.W.N. 270 followed in Bejoy Sankar v. Rajendra Kuwar, 13 C.W.N. 746 ; s.c., 9 C.L.J. 470 ; in the first of these two cases i.e., Durgadhar v. Haramohini, 13 C.W.N. 270 the correctness of the decision in the case of Jeolal Singh v. Ganga Prasad, 10 Cal. 996 was doubted ; in that case the tenants were members of an undivided Mitakshara family and it was held that the person who was registered as the tenant being the karta of that family might be taken to be the representative of the rest of the family and that a decree obtained against him in a suit for rent would bind the rest of the family on the ground that he represented them.

Money decree against the registered tenant.

Mitakshara family.

It was held under the Choto Nagpur Tenancy Act (VI of 1908 B. C.) that a decree obtained against some only of the registered tenants can not be executed as a decree for rent ; Chandra Nath v. Pratap Udai Nath, 18 C.W.N. 170.

Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act.

There is no law rendering it obligatory on tenants who are not tenure-holders to get their names recorded in the landlord's sheristha for the purpose of perfecting their titles. Therefore the sale of a jote in execution of a decree for rent obtained against the recorded tenant does not pass the interest of the tenants whose names are not registered in the landlord's sheristha ; Ashok Bhuiyan v. Karim Bepari, 9 C.W.N. 843. The passage at p. 699 of 26 Cal., in the case of Nitayi v. Harigovindo was distinguished from this case because that case (i.e., the case in 26 Cal.) was the case of a tenure and the tenants in that case were bound to register their names in the landlord's sheristha.

Execution of decree against registered tenant.

It was decided in the case of Jagat Tara v. Daulati Bewa, 37 Cal. 75, s.c. 13 C.W.N. 1110, that the decision in Ashok Bhuiyan v. Karim Bepari, (9 C.W.N. 843) lays down no more than this that a landlord is not justified in treating the registered tenant of a raiyati holding as the sole tenant merely because his co-sharers in the holding are not registered; and it was also decided that there is nothing in that case to prevent the whole body of tenants of a raiyati holding electing to treat one of their numbers as their representative in their dealings with the landlord; the fact that only one tenant is registered is merely an item in the evidence on the question whether he is or is not the representative tenant of the landlord: Jagat Tara v. Daulati Bewa, 13 C.W.N. 1110. See also Nitai Behari Shaha v. Hari Govinda Shaha, 26 Cal. 677; Mati Lall Poddar v. Nripendra Nath, 2 C.W.N. 172; Ananda Kumar v. Hari Haldar, 27 Cal. 546; Rupram Namasudra v. Iswar Nama Sudra, 6 C.W.N. 302; Rajani Kanto Guha v. Uzir Bibi, 7 C.W.N. 170; Afraz Molla v. Kulsumannasa, 10 C.W.N. 176; Ambica Pershad v. Choudhry Keshri Shahi, 24 Cal. 642; Motilal v. Omarali, 3 C.W.N. 19.

It was observed in the case of Gagan Sheik v. Abejan Khatun, 14 C.L.J. 180 that the decision in Ashoka Bhunia v. Kairm Bapari, 9 C.W.N. 843 does not lay down any rule of universal application, that one person cannot represent a tenancy in the books of the landlord on behalf of himself and his fellow-tenants. Indeed, the contrary view has been maintained in a long series of decisions amongst which reference may be made to those of Rupram Namasudra v. Iswar Namasudra, 6 C.W.N. 302 and Afraz Mondal v. Kulsuminnessa, 10 C.W.N. 176."

Acquiescence.

Where one of several joint tenants executed a kabuliyat in favour of the landlord and the other tenants acquiesced in the representation of the holding by the tenant who executed the kabuliyat, and the landlord sued him only for the rent and in execution of that rent decree attached the entire holding, and the other tenants made no attempt to get them recognised or to pay the arrears; held, that the attachment covered the entire holding unless there was fraud on the part of the landlord; Rajani Kanta v. Srimati Uzir Bibi, 7 C.W.N. 170.

Unregistered transferee.

By suing the unregistered transferee of a part of the putni jointly with the transferer the zemindar only recognises him as one of the joint holders of the putni, but because he does so, he can not be said to have waived the right secured to him to preserve the unity of tenure held under him without splitting it and apportioning its rent; Surindra Mohan v. Surnomyee, 26 Cal. 103, s.c., 3 C.W.N. 38. One of the several proprietors can hold the status of a tenant under the other-co-proprietors of land which appertains to the common estate: Jawadu Huq v. Ram Das, 24 Cal. 143.

Mutawallis.

A suit for rent against one of two or several mutawallis is not maintainable and must be dismissed; Abdul Rub v. Eggarr, 35 Cal. 182.

Decree for rent against

Where a decree for rent was obtained against some of several heirs of a deceased tenant: held, that the heirs who were not parties were entitled to contest a sale fraudulently obtained, although as heirs of a deceased registered tenant they had not got themselves registered in the landlord's sheristha and as such not competent to question the decree: Jagannath v. Watson and Company, 19 Cal. 341. some of several heirs of a deceased tenant.

The question whether one or several of original tenants represents the tenancy on behalf of all the persons interested is essentially a question of fact; Gagan Shiek v. Abejan Khatun, 14 C.L.J. 180. It cannot be laid down as an inflexible rule of law that one person cannot under any circumstances, represent the tenancy so as to entitle the landlord to obtain in a suit brought against that person a decree binding upon all the persons interested in the tenancy: Ibid.

When a putni sale under Reg. VIII of 1819 is set aside the zemindar is entitled to rent from the putnidar for the period intervening between the sale and its reversal: Amrita Sekhar v. Bijoy Chand 4 C.L.J. 547. If the putnidar was dispossessed by the auction-purchaser he will be entitled to mesne profits from the latter; Ibid. Where zemindar after giving a putni lease granted another putni lease above it, it was decided by Rampini and Pargiter, JJ., that an intermediate tenure may be created between the interest of a putnidar and a zemindar: Rajkumar v. Prabal Chandra, 9 C.W.N. 656: consequently the putnidar becomes a tenant of a new putnidar. See also Modhusudan v. Devendra Nath, 7 C.L.J. notes portion p. 23; a contrary view has been taken in the case of Bibi Jarao Kumari v. Hanifuddin, 14 C.W.N. 389. The question came up for decision before Carnduff and Richardson, J.J., who held, following the case in 9 C.W.N. 656 and disagreeing with the view taken in 14 C.W.N. 389, that an intermediate interest may be created between a zemindari and a putni; unreported second appeal No. 2704 of 1913; Nilambar Ghose v. Mir Machanuddin (2 Jan. 1914). It is submitted with great respect that this decision is not in accordance with law, for, the real nature of a putni lease is one which precludes the idea of the zemindar creating an intermediate lease; the Putni Sale Law does not recognise any such intermediate interest and the Bengal Tenancy Act does not affect the rules contained in the Putni Regulation; after creating a putni a zemindar can only assign his right to recover rent, but he cannot grant any lease of the lands covered by the putni lease. See notes under the Preamble. Setting aside of a putni sale, effect of. Rent suit by intermediate holder between zemindar and putnidar

The transferee of a portion of a holding is representative of the judgment-debtor within the meaning of s. 244, C.P.C. (s. 47 of the new Civil Procedure Code): Gopinath v. Sajani Kant, 10 C.W.N. 249; Bacha Lal v. Bishnnath, 11 C.W.N. 112 (notes). Transferee of a portion of the holding.

A landlord is not at liberty to ignore a purchaser of a portion of a tenure and prejudice his position by a decree made in a suit to which he had not been joined as a party: Butayar Rahaman v. Karim Ali, 18 C.L.J. 271. Purchaser of a portion of tenure.

A purchaser in execution of a decree against an unregistered transferee of an occupancy holding as well as the unregistered transferee himself are representatives of the registered tenant against whom a decree for rent has been obtained and may apply under s. 244 C.P.C. (s. 47 of the new Code): Haradhan v. Girish Chandra, 13 C.W.N. 98. Sale in execution of decree against unregistered transferee.

Where A bequeathed a permanent tenure to B, whose name was not registered in the landlord's office, and the landlord although aware of the bequest obtained a collusive decree for rent against A's heirs; held that the sale in execution of the decree did not affect B's interest : Jagadish v. Sridam, 44 I.C. 26 (Calcutta case).

from the

of sale.

Where a tenure is sold in execution of a decree, the auction-purchaser is liable for the whole instalment of rent accruing due after his purchase, but before the confirmation of the sale ; rent is to be regarded not as accruing from day to day, but as falling due only at stated times according to the contract of tenancy or, in the absence of any contract according to the general law laid down in sec. 53 of the Bengal Tenancy Act : Satyendra Nath v. Nilkantha, 21 Cal. 383, but where a tenure is sold in execution of a decree for arrears of rent, the auction purchaser is not liable for the arrears of rent which became due prior to his purchase : Fazl Rahaman v. Ramsukh, 21 Cal. 169 ; and when a landlord has brought a tenure to sale in execution of a decree for arrears of rent, the purchaser becomes his tenant only from the date of the confirmation of the sale, and the arrears accruing due between the date of sale and the date of confirmation of sale, must be treated as arrears of rent payable by the outgoing tenant whose interest does not cease till the sale is confirmed : Karoonamoy v. Surendra Nath, 2 C.W.N. 327 (notes). Where an occupancy holding which had been mortgaged by the raiyat of the holding was purchased by a person in execution of a decree for money obtained by him, and the purchaser re-purchased it in execution of a rent-decree against the old tenant for arrears which had accrued previous to his first purchase annulled by a notice under s. 167 the mortgage of which he was aware at the time of his re-purchase, held that the purchaser was not bound as representative of the old tenant to pay off the decree for rent obtained by the landlord : Surendra Mohan v. Bansidhar, 12 C.W.N. 114.

The tenure in the hands of the purchaser is liable for rent which accrued due before his purchase : Kamal Krishna v. Kedar Nath 10 C.L.J. 517.

A sale in execution of a decree for the whole rent obtained by a landlord who at the time of the suit is the sole registered proprietor and who has been placed and maintained in possession by a competent court, operates as a sale under chapter XIV of the Bengal Tenancy Act, even if it transpires ultimately as the result of litigation in a title suit that he is not the sole landlord and has co-share in the property. Mafizuddin v. Ashutosh Chakravarty, 14 C.W.N. 352, s.c., 11 C.L.J. 140.

Right of suit for contribution from unrecorded
tenant.

10. Contribution and Suit for damages :—All the co-owners of a taluk are jointly liable for the rent during the period over which their ownership extends, and although the landlord sues only the recorded tenants for the rent, this would not relieve the unrecorded tenants from the equitable liability of paying their share of the rent to those of the recorded tenants who are obliged to pay the whole. The fact that one of the co-owners (whose name is not recorded and who is not a party to the suit for rent) sold away his interest before the date of the suit, he having been co-owner at the time the liability arose would not relieve him of the liability although he may not have derived any advantage from the payment made : Gobindo Chunder v. Basanta Kumar, 4 C.W.N. 384. Where in a suit for contribution by a co-sharer to a certain sum of money paid on behalf of his other co-sharers to discharge a decree for rent obtained against them jointly the latter (i.e., the defendants) claimed a set off on account of previous payments of similar decrees for the decrees for the benefit of the plaintiff amongst others, held that no question of limitation arose as regards the claim for set off; the remedy might have been barred but the right to the debt was not extinguished: Gazadhar v. Raghubar, 12 C.W.N. 60; see also Mohesh Lal v. Basanta Kumari, 6 Cal. 340. Limitation.

Where the lessee agreed with his lessor to pay the rent due by the latter to the superior landlord but failed, and the superior landlord then recovered a decree for rent against the lessor and sold his interest in the lease-hold property in execution of the decree, held that the sale was not the natural consequence of the lessee's default, as the lessor ought to have paid the rent due to the superior landlord when he came to know of the lessee's default and the lessee should not be made liable for the value of the property sold: Giris Chunder v. Kunja Behari, 12 C.W.N. 628. Agreement by lessee to pay rent due to superior landlord

Where a lessee who took upon himself the liability to pay the Government revenue on behalf of the lessor, and the estate was sold for the lessee's failure to pay the revenue, and it appeared that the lessor was not only not aware of the lessee's default but the lessee deliberately allowed the estate to be sold and never intimated the danger to the lessor, held that plaintiff was entitled to damages for breach of contract when by use of reasonable precaution he had avoided loss: Rohim Buksh v. Shajad Ahmad, 19 C. Liability of tenant when his superior interest is sold for the former's fault.

As to cases on the right to contribution as between co-tenants, see the cases of Batuk Nath v. Bipin Bihari, 17 C.L.J. 1; Kumar v. Jalaluddin, 18 C.W.N. 327, Mathura Nath v. I. Kumar, 4 Cal. 369, but see the dictum in Fateh Ali v. Ganganath, 11 Cal. 113. See also the cases of Swarnamoyee v. Hari Das, 6 C.W.N. 903, Matangini v. Brojeswar, 20 C.L.J. 205, Nirdosh v. Jakaria, 20 C.L.J. 492. Gobind Chandra v. Basanta Kumar, 4 C.W.N. 384. A co-judgment debtor who purchases a rent decree is entitled to bring a suit for contribution: Ram Lal v. Khiroda Mohini, 18 C.W.N. 113. Right to contribution.

Plaintiff a purchaser of a putni at a sale in execution of a mortgage decree, saved the property from being sold in execution of a decree for arrears of rent by paying in the amount; these arrears included rents which had fallen due prior to the confirmation of sale at which plaintiff purchased, held that plaintiff was not entitled to recover the amount of these rents from the original putnidar: Manindra Chunder v. Jamaher, 9 C.W.N. 670; the plaintiff under this case was under a legal liability to pay the rents and so could not come under s. 69 of the Contract Act.

Where a benamidar of one of the defendants (viz. defendant no. 7), deposited money to have a tenure belonging to its defendants 1 to 7 from being sold and defendants No. 7 did not raise any objection from getting a decree, held that the plaintiff was entitled to a decree against the defendants 1 to 6 in proportion to their liability: Satya Charan v. Dinanath, 21 C.W.N. 1130.

Where in execution of a decree for rent by an assignee a co-tenant was compelled to pay off the debt, he is entitled to sue for contribution against the other co-tenants: Rajani Kant v. Ramanath, 19 C.W.N. 458; such a suit is not cognizable in the Small Cause Court: Ibid.

II. Non-transferable occupancy holding:—A non-transferable occupancy holding cannot be sold in execution of a decree ob-transferable occupancy holding cannot be sold in execution of a decree for rent obtained by a fractional co-sharer, but may be sold in execution of a decree for rent.

Sale at the instance of a co-sharer landlord.

tained by one of several joint landlords against the tenant for the share of the rent separately payable to him in respect of the holding: Sadagar v. Krishna, 3 C.W.N. 742; see also Bhiram Ali v. Gopi Kanta, 24 Cal. 355; s.c., 1 C.W.N. 396; Hurry Churan v. Raja Ranjit, 1 C.W.N. 521; Beni Madhab v. Joad Ali, 17 C.W.N. 360; Aloke Chandra v. Jaluram, 22 C.W.N. 563. A factional shareholder selling a non-transferable occupancy holding in execution of a decree which he obtained for his share of the rent is in no better position than an outsider selling the holding in execution of a money-decree: Sheikh Jariph v. Ram Kumar, 3 C.W.N. 747. But it was decided in the case of Bhiram Ali v. Gopi Kanta, 24 Cal. 355; s.c., 1 C.W.N. 396 that in the absence of custom or local usage to the contrary a raiya holding in which the raiya has only a right of occupancy is not saleable at the instance of any creditor of his other than his landlord in execution of a decree for arrears of rent. Following the cases of Durga v. Kali Prasanna, 26 Cal. 727 and Sadagar v. Krishna, 26 Cal. 937, s.c., 3 C.W.N. 472 and Jariph v. Ramkumar, 3 C.W.N. 747, it was held that a non-transferable occupancy holding cannot be sold in execution of a decree obtained by a co-sharer landlord for his share of the rent, and in this respect a co-sharer landlord is in the same position as an ordinary execution creditor: Badarnnessa v. Alam Gazi, 19 C.W.N. 814, s.c., 21 C.L.J. 650.

See the Special Bench case of Chandra Benode v. Shaikh Ala Bux, 48 Cal. 184. See notes under sec. 23, headings nos. 4, 12 and 13.

The transfer for value of the whole or part of an occupancy holding, apart from custom or usage is operative as against the raiya whether it is voluntary or involuntary. The principle is a general one which applies to the case of creditors other than landlords also: Nabin Chandra v. Abdul Aziz, A.I.R. 1926 (Cal) 337 (Suhrawardy and Duval, JJ.).

It was held in the case of Susila v. Nitharmani, 20 C.W.N. 108 (notes portion) that a non-transferable occupancy holding cannot be sold in execution of a decree for arrears of rent where the decree was obtained by the landlord after his interest as landlord had ceased, in as much as the decree was a money-decree.

A tenant is entitled to assert in execution proceedings when a co-sharer landlord executes his rent-decree that the holding is not transferable: Abdul Aziz v. Tauhidunnissa, 52 I.C. 380.

In execution of a decree for pahi land, the holding being attached, the judgment debtor objected, that it was not saleable in execution, held that he cannot raise such an objection in as much as he had compromised the suit agreeing that the holding would be sold for default in the payment of the decretal debt: Nidhi Panda v. Karunakar, 1 Pat. 153.

Undivided share cannot be a holding.

12. Undivided share in a holding:—The term “parcel” or “parcels” in s. 3, cl. 9 of this Act means “entire parcel” or “entire parcels” and is not intended to an undivided fractional share in a “parcel” or “parcels” of land; undivided shares in parcels of land cannot constitute distinct “holdings” within the meaning of this Act; Hurry Churn v. Raja Ranjit, 1 C.W.N. 521. So where a decree is obtained for rent of an undivided share of a holding, the sale in execution of the decree is not free from encumbrances: Ahadulla v. Gagan Molla, 2 C.L.J. 10. See also Baidya Nath v. Jhein, 2 C.W.N.

Tenant can plead non-transferability of his holding.

Pahi land, contract.

44 ; Haribole v. Tasimuddin, 2 C.W.N. 680 ; Parbutty v. Mathura Nath, 40 Cal. 29. See notes under s. 3, cl. (9).

13. Suit for registration of name in landlord's sheristha : Suit for registration of name : s. 73.
—When occupancy right, transferable by custom, has been transferred, it is no doubt open to the transferee to sue under the Specific Relief Act to have it declared that he has acquired certain rights, but if it is the object of such a suit to have it declared that the old tenant is no longer responsible for the rent, and that the transferee is so responsible to the landlord, such a declaration cannot be obtained without the service of the notice prescribed by s. 73 : Ambica Pershad v. Chowdry Keshri, 24 Cal. 642.

14 Suit for Produce Rent :—A holding which is held on produce rent or partly on produce rent and partly on money rent is liable to be sold in execution of a decree for arrears as it is a rent-decree and not a money-decree : Manharan v. Nowbat : [1920 Pot.] p. 257, s.c., 5 Pat.L.J. 641.

15. Civil Procedure Code, s. 210 :—(Order XX, r. II of the New Civil Procedure Code). A decree for rent under the Bengal Tenancy Act cannot be made payable by instalments, s. 210 C.P.C. not applying to such a decree : Sibnarain v. Baikuntha Nath, 11 C.W.N. 857 ; but where a Court passed such an order the High Court refused to set it aside, as it was an error of law only but not an error in the exercise of jurisdiction and as such the case did not come under the purview of s. 622 C. P. C. : Ibid. It seems however that an instalment decree by consent may be passed.

16. Civil Procedure Code s. 546 :—(Order XL., r. 6 of the New Civil Procedure Code). A decree for arrears of rent is a "decree for money" within the meaning of s. 546, C. P. C. ; Banku Behary v. Syama Charan, 25 Cal. 322.

17. When landlord is a mortgagee of the holding : Sale for arrears of rent :—When a landlord has taken a mortgage of the holding of a tenant he is debarred under s. 99 of the Transfer of Property Act from bringing the tenure to sale, in execution of his rent decree otherwise than by instituting a suit under s. 67 of the Act : Rai Ramani v. Surendra Nath Dutt, 1 C.W.N. 80. See also Chandra Nath v. Barada Sundari, 22 Cal. 813 ; Aubhayeswari v. Gouri Sankar, 22 Cal. 859, Tokhon Singh v. Girwar Singh, 32 Cal. 494 ; Hem Ban v. Bihari Gir, 28 All. 58 ; Madho Pershad v. Baida Nath, All. W.N. (1915) 152 ; Kareri v. Anantpayaya, 10 Mad. 129 ; Kazi Inus v. Kazi Inus, 8 Bom. L.R. 576, but it has been decided by the Full Bench that a sale held in contravention of the provisions of s. 89 of the Transfer of Property Act is not a nullity but an irregular and voidable sale ; Asutosh v. Behari Lall, 35 Cal. 61, s.c., 11 C.W.N. 1011* ; such a sale can be avoided by an application under s. 244, C.P.C., before or after confirmation of the sale, on the ground that the provisions of s. 99 of the Transfer of Property Act have been contravened ; but if the application is made after confirmation the applicant has to prove further that owing to fraud or other reasons

* Where the suit was against the father alone of a Mitakshara family for a joint family debt, held, that a claim by minor sons for exemption of their shares failed on the merits, the entire family estate having passed by the sale : Nanomi v. Madan, 13 Cal. 21. The entire family estate was held to have been bound by the act of the managing members : Doulattram v. Mehr Chand, 170, s. c., 14 I.A. 187 ; see also Pursid v. Honooman, 5 Cal. 845.

he was kept in ignorance of the sale proceedings and the proceedings preliminary to sale: Ibid. See also Khairarajmal v. Diam, 32 I.A. 23; s.c., 32 Cal. 23 s.c., 9 C.W.N. 201.

Purchaser of tenure with rent charged.

18. Rent due on a tenure at the time of sale by an execution purchaser :—Rent is by operation of law the first charge on a tenure, and a person who purchases the same at an execution sale must, in the absence of anything to denote the contrary, be taken to purchase it, charged with the rent which is due in respect of it at the time of its purchase: Srimati Moharanee v. Harendra Lal, 1 C.W.N. 458. But a purchaser of a tenure is not personally liable for its rent which fell due before the date of purchase, although the tenure may be liable for such rent: Sreemutty Jogemaya v. Girindra Nath, 4 C.W.N. 590; see also Rash Behary v. Peary Mohan, 4 Cal. 346.

Purchaser not personally liable.

Rent decree against a Hindu widow.

19. Decree for rent against a Hindu widow :—A decree for arrears of rent obtained against a Hindu widow was put into execution after her death against properties forming her father's estate in which she had only a life interest, held that it was a decree merely against her personally and was to be satisfied out of whatever she left at her death and that the estate which had passed to the next heirs was not liable: Kristo Gobind v. Hem Chander, 16 Cal. 511.* Where a suit was brought by some only of several co-sharer landlords against a Hindu lady who had succeeded her father to the tenure, for the recovery of rent which accrued due after her father's death, held that the lady's liability for rent was personal and did not attach to the reversion; and a sale held in execution of a decree obtained by the landlords in this suit passed only her limited interest in the tenure to the purchaser; Jiban Krishna v. Brojo Lal, 7 C.W.N. 425. It was held in the case of Ashutosh v. Akhoy Kumari, 44 I.C. 581 by Teunon and Sheepshanks, J.J., that where a decree for rent was obtained against a Hindu widow as heiress of her husband, the decree after her death may be executed against the defaulting tenure by proceeding against the reversionary heirs. Where a share in a revenue-paying estate in respect of which a separate account has been opened was inherited by a Hindu lady from her father and was then sold for default in paying Government revenue, held that the complete owner's interest and not merely a life estate in the share passed to the purchaser: Banalata v. Monmath Nath, 11 C.W.N. 821; the interest of a reversionary heir is not an incumbrance within the meaning of s. 54 of Act XI of 1859: Ibid.

Revenue Sale where a Hindu widow is a fractional sharer.

Sale reversed on the ground of irregularity.

S. 310A. C. P. C. (Act. XIV of 1882).

20. Effect of reversal of sale :—On a sale being reversed on the ground of irregularity the purchaser of a putni tenure was held to be entitled to get a refund of the rent paid by him to the landlord: Nagendra Nath v. Chandra Sekhar, 5 C.L.J. 59.

Where a tenant who was not made a party to a rent suit deposited money under sec. 310A. C. P. C. (Act XIV of 1882) and got the sale set aside, held that he was entitled to sue the several defendants in the rent suit for contribution, each according to his share in the decretal amount only, but not in respect of the deposit of 5 per cent. of the purchase money which he was bound to make under section 310 A. C. P. C.: Suchand Ghoshal v. Baloram, 38 Cal. 1; the terms of section 20 of the Contract Act apply to such a case (Per Jenkins,

* See also the cases referred to therein.

C.J.): Ibid. But according to Doss, J., such a case, does not come within the provision of section 20 of the Contract Act.

When a decree in execution of which a tenure was sold and purchased by the decree-holder was reversed on appeal, held that the tenant judgment-debtor was entitled to recover back possession together with mesne profits under s. 144 C. P. C.: Sagore Mandal v. Mofizuddin, 29 C.L.J. 486; see also Satis v. Rameswari, 20 C.W.N. 665, s. c., 22 C.L.J. 409.

21. Right of mortgagee:—Where in a rent suit a mortgaged property is sold, the mortgagee has under the provisions of s. 90 of the Transfer of Property Act a charge on the surplus sale-proceeds: Gobind Sahai v. Sibdut Ram, 33 Cal. 878; ss. 159 and 161 to 167 of Bengal Tenancy Act cannot prejudice the right of a mortgagee in that respect: Ibid.

Where a mortgagee of a tenure gets a decree and purchases the mortgaged tenure at a sale in execution of his mortgage decree, and the tenure is subsequently sold again in execution of a rent decree against the original tenant it is open to the mortgagor to fall back on his mortgage as a shield against the purchaser under the rent sale, when that sale is not free from encumbrances: Ban Behari v. Khetterpal, 16 C.W.N. 259.

A mortgagee of a tenure who has purchased it in execution of his own decree cannot sue his mortgagor, (the original tenant), for recovery of the amount, which subsequently to his purchase, he had to pay to save the tenure from sale in execution of a decree for rent which fell due prior to his purchase: Ranga Lal v. Kali Sankar, [1923 Pat.] p. 353. (Jwala Prasad and Ross, J.J.). Rent paid to save tenure.

22. Cessation of tenant's interest:—Where A and B, granted a lease to C who after obtaining a decree for rent which accrued due after the date of the lease purchased the tenant's holding in execution, and subsequently A obtained a decree for rent due to him and B, for the arrears which had accrued prior to the lease, held that the interest of the tenant having been extinguished and eliminated in the course of the execution obtained by C, there was no subject-matter in existence on which A's decree could operate to effectually vest in A any interest: Nagnarain v. Jung Bahadur, 34 I.C. 905 (Atkinson J. sitting singly). Effect of cessation of tenant's interest.

A decree obtained by a landlord against a tenant who ceased to be a tenant is not a decree for rent: Dwarkanath Chakravarti v. Atul Chandra Chakravarti, 46 Cal. 870. Decree against an outgoing tenant.

In the absence of anything to denote the contrary a sale of a tenure held in execution of a decree for its own arrears of rent passes it free from liability for previous arrears and the purchaser is not liable for arrears for the period prior to the date of confirmation* of sale: Mathura Mohan v. Nabin Chandra, 20 C.L.J. 749. Previous arrears.

A sale in execution of a decree for arrears of rent of a non-transferable occupancy holding does not affect the interest of a purchaser of the holding who subsequent to the date of the decree but before the date of sale had been recognised by the landlord: Giris Chandra v. Narendra Nath, 23 C.W.N. 654. Cessation of tenant's interest.

* It is submitted that the purchaser becomes liable for all arrears accruing from the "date of sale."

23. Parties in a rent-suit :—A suit for rent is maintainable against some of the heirs or successors in interest of a deceased tenant but a decree in such a suit will not have the effect of a rent decree: Jaganmohan v. Brojendra, 53 Cal. 197 (F.B.) s. c. 29 C.W.N. 1000.

Mutwallis. Mutwallis are in the position of trustees and when a suit for rent is to be brought all the Mutwallis must be joined as defendants otherwise if the suit for rent is not against all the Mutwallis, the suit should be dismissed: Abdul Rub v. Eggar, 35 Cal. 182.

Rent suit against some of several joint tenants. Where a landlord obtained a decree for rent against some only of the representatives of the original tenant, and subsequently brought a second suit against the same persons, held on an application by the remaining representatives of the original tenant, that the Court after summarily determining the question ought to add them as party defendants: Baoli Bibi v. Hamijeddi, 12 C.L.J. 267; the High Court can interfere in the exercise of its revisional jurisdiction in the order of refusal of the original Court to add the petitioners as defendants: Ibid; See also Promotha Nath v. Rakhal Das, 11 C.L.J. 420 and Dwarka Nath v. Kishorilal, 11 C.L.J. 426. See notes under the next heading.

Addition of third party. A third party should not be made a party to a suit for rent so as to convert a simple suit for arrears of rent into one for the determination of the title to the property in respect of which the rent is claimed: Pravat Chandra v. Amulya Chandra, 45 C.L.J. 146. The case of Lodai v. Kally Dass, 8 Cal. 238 was referred to.

See also Abdul Gafur v. Ali Miah, 28 C.W.N. 805. There must be an enquiry into the plaintiff's title when it is derivative: Indra Narain v. Sarbaseva Dassi, 41 C.L.J. 341.

Tenant in possession. The rent due in respect of a property is a first charge on the property, and the person who purchases the property from the tenant must be taken to have purchased the property charged with the rent due at the time of his purchase. It is, therefore, not necessary that the tenant who was in possession during the period for which rent is claimed should be made a party to the suit: Amiya Pal Chowdhury v. Sarba Mangala Debi, 91 I.C. 657 (Greaves and Cuming J.J.).

In a suit for rent against several persons an appeal was filed by the landlord, and during the pendency of the tenant defendants died and his heirs were not substituted, held that the appeal could against the other tenants, the liability being joint and several: Joygobind v. Manmatha, 33 Cal. 580.

Where minor defendants were sued as majors. In a suit for rent where some of the defendants were minors but the plaintiff sued them as being of age but subsequently when it was discovered that they were minors, the plaintiff took steps to get them properly represented by appointment of guardian ad litem, but then a portion of the claim had already been barred, held, that the claim for that period should be dismissed as barred not only against the minor defendants but also against the others who were not minors: Unreported second appeal No. 166 of 1917: Chunder Kant Roy v. Nritya Gopal Biswas; (N. R. Chatterjea and Panton J.J.).

Suit against a representative tenant.

24. Rent-suit—where some of the joint tenants are not made parties :—Where one of two or more joint tenants is put forward by the other or others as their representative, a decree for rent against the representative is a decree for rent and it may be executed as such under Chap. XIV, e.g. "where one of a number of tenants is put forward by the rest as their representatives he can be regarded as the sole tenant for the purpose of a suit for arrears of rent within Chap. XIV." : Chamatkarini v. Triguna, 17 C.W.N. 833 (Jenkins C. J. and Mullick J.). But where there is no representative tenant, a decree for rent, in order that it may be executed as a rent-decree, must be obtained in a suit in which the entire body of the joint tenants are made party-defendants.

Where there is no representative tenant.

A question often arises as to whether a suit for rent in which all the tenants are not made parties should be dismissed in its entirety or only a money-decree should be passed.

Question.

In this connection the following cases arise :—

Cases :

- (1) Where the joint tenants are persons who jointly took a lease (or their transferees) ;
- (2) Where in the aforesaid case one or some amongst the joint tenants dies or die leaving heirs ;
- (3) Where a sole tenant or two or more joint tenants dies or die leaving heirs ;

In case (1) the following rule was laid down by N. R. Chatterjea and Cuming J.J. Case (1).

So far as the original contracting parties are concerned any one of them may be sued for rent, (in as much as their liability for rent is, in the absence of a contract to the contrary, joint and several having regard to the provisions of s. 43 of the Contract Act: Manmatha Nath v. Abinash Chandra, 27 C.W.N. 521 at p. 524.*

The cases of Jogendra v. Nagendra, 11 C.W.N. 1026, Rameswar v. Jaidar, 12 C.L.J. 591, Krishna Das v. Kali Tara, 22 C.W.N. 289 and Beradar Singh v. Bacha Mahto, 5 Pat. L.J. were followed. As to the rule laid down somewhat to the contrary in Kasi Kinkar v. Satyendra Nath, 15 C.W.N. 191, s.c. 12 C.L.J. 642 it was observed by N. R. Chatterjea and Cuming J.J., (27 C.W.N. 521 referred to above) that the observations were obiter.

As regards case (2) where one or more of the joint tenants dies or die leaving heirs, the law may be explained by the following illustration which is taken from the judgment of N. R. Chatterjea and Cuming J.J., (Manmatha Nath v. Abinash Chandra, 27 C.W.N. 521, at p. 527. Case (2).

If A, B and C jointly take a lease, the liability of each of them is a joint and several liability, and assuming that on the death of A, the liability of all his heirs is a joint one, a suit can be maintained against his heirs provided all the heirs are joined. In the same manner if A alone could be sued for the entire rent in his life-time, similarly on the death of B and C the liability should devolve upon all the heirs. The right of A in the tenure devolved upon his heirs together with the liability for rent, and as A alone could be sued for the entire rent, his heirs who succeed to his right may be sued for the entire rent.

As regards (2) and (3) taken jointly i.e., where some of the Case (3).

* S. 43 of the Contract Act : When two or more persons make a joint promise, the promise may, in the absence of express agreement to the contrary, compel any or more of such joint promisors to perform the whole of the promise.

Divergence of opinion.

heirs are left out, their Lordships in the same case (27 C.W.N. 521 at p. 525) said that there is divergence of opinion upon the question whether upon the death of the original contracting party, a suit can be maintained against some only of the heirs.

After a review of the conflicting decisions their Lordships said as follows:—

“The authorities on the point appear to be in an unsettled state and if it were necessary to decide the question we would have referred the matter to the Full Bench.

Conflicting

Cases where it was held that a suit for rent should be dismissed when some of the heirs were not made parties:

Kasi Kinkar v. Satyendra, 15 C.W.N. 191, s.c., 12 C.L.J. 642, following the principle in the case of Ahinsa Bibi v. Abdul Kader, 25 Mad. 26 (at p. 35); Sheikh Sahad v. Osi Pramanik, 48 I.C. 536; and the subsequent case of Abinash Chandra v. Fulchand, 50 Cal. 737 (C. C. Ghose & Panton JJ.), where their Lordships observed “assuming that one of the joint tenants is liable for the whole rent, on the death of one of such joint tenants leaving a number of heirs, no question can possibly arise as to whether the liability was joint or several, because the bundle of rights and liabilities was in one such joint tenant is by operation of law transferred to a number of parceners who, as has been observed, in Ahinsa v. Abdul, 25 Mad. 26 (at p. 35) constitute in law one heir.”

Conflict of case-law settled by Full Bench.
Suit for rent against some of the heirs of a deceased tenant is maintain-
able.

The conflict of case-law has now been settled by the Full Bench decision in the case of Jaganmohon v. Brojendra Kumar, 53 Cal. 197, s. c. 29 C.W.N. 1000,* s. c. 42 C.L.J. 252 where it has been held by the majority of the Full Bench, (Walmsley, Greaves and B. B. Ghose J.J.; C. C. Ghose J. and Mukerji J., not agreeing) that a suit for rent is maintainable against some of the heirs or successors in interest of a deceased tenant without bringing all the heirs or successors in interest on the record, but the decree in such a suit will not have the effect of a rent-decree.

* The names of the parties in 29 C.W.N. 1000 are Kailash Ch. Mitra & Brojendra Kumar Chakravarti.

B. B. Ghose J., in delivering the judgment of the majority of the Full Bench, observed as follows:— Full Bench Case.

"The question should be decided on well-recognised general principles. It is argued that the tenancy as well as the liability for payment of rent has been inherited by the representatives of the deceased tenant as one body and this body as a whole is liable for the rent on the contract of this predecessor. If the landlord omits to implead anyone of them in his suit for rent, the suit is defective and must be dismissed for not having been brought against the body of representatives as a whole. This argument seems to me to be grounded on a misconception. The heirs did not take the tenancy as an entire body forming as it were a partnership or a corporation, the individual members of which have no definite interest. They took as tenants in common, each having a definite share in the whole which he might deal with in any way he pleased. The liability of a tenant to pay rent arises from the fact of possession of the land as a tenant where there is no express contract, and all persons in possession of land as tenants are under an implied obligation to pay the rent for the land to the landlord, whether they got into possession by right of succession or assignment. A tenant in common is entitled to possession of every part of the estate and there is privity of estate between him and the landlord in the whole of the lease hold. The law imposes a liability on a tenant in common based on privity of estate for all covenants running with the land, and as his estate is an estate in the whole of the leasehold, there is no reason why he should not be liable for the entire rent. Thus whether a contract is implied for payment of rent by all tenants in common in possession of a leasehold, or whether it is held that the law imposes the liability for payment of rent by reason of privity of estate, anyone of such tenants may be sued for the entire rent due to the landlord. This may be either in accordance with the provisions of sec. 43 of the Indian Contract Act which applies to express as well as implied promises, or under the general law based on privity of estate."

C. C. Ghosh J., observed as follows:—

"I adhere to the view which I expressed in the case of Abinash Chandra v. Fulchand, 50 Cal. 737."

Mukerji J., observed as follows:—

"Except in the case of original lessees or persons who are parties to the contract, the provisions of sec. 43 of the Indian Contract Act have no application and need not be resorted to. As far as the liability under a contract is concerned it appears to make all joint contracts joint and several. The liability of the persons upon whom the rights of the original tenant or tenants devolve on the death of the latter is a joint liability to the extent of the interest which devolves and not a joint and several liability in respect of that interest, as the whole body of persons who succeed in this way constitute in law but one heir. Persons who are under a joint liability to pay the rent are necessary parties in a suit for rent. I do not suggest that a decree obtained in the absence of some of the co-tenants is necessarily a nullity, it is a valid decree and is effective only as a decree for money. But, if objection is taken at the right moment as to the maintainability of the suit, I am clearly of opinion that it should be held that the suit is not properly constituted."

A decree for the whole amount of rent can be passed against one of several co-tenants. Under s. 43 of the Contract Act, before a defendant can resist a suit on the ground that one of his co-promisors has not been impleaded, he must show that there was a definite contract that each promisor should not be separately liable and it is not necessary, before a joint promisor can be separately sued, to find that he had made the promise separately to the promisee: Raghunath Das v. Baleshwar Prasad, 105 I.C. 484 (Das and James J.J.), (Patna case).

The tenancy must be represented in its entirety before a decree can be made binding on the tenure: Birendra Nath v. Aghore Nath, 25 C.W.N. 525, where one of the tenants was not made a party defendant in a rent-suit but a summons was served and he appeared.

Forbes v.

Representa-

and in the appellate court he was made a respondent after notice after judgment, held that it was irregular : Ibid. Where the proposed guardian of an infant appeared and declined to defend the suit unless the name was corrected, held that the proper course to follow was to appoint a guardian: Ibid. Failure on the part of heirs on the death of a permanent tenure-holder to comply with the requirements under s. 15 does not necessarily entitle the landlord to treat one of the heirs as the representative of the tenancy: Faijunnessa v. Ramtaran, 26 C.W.N. 138., so where a tenure was sold at a sale in execution of a decree for arrears of rent obtained against one of the tenants, held that the others were not bound by the sale and were entitled to recover possession.

The decision in Forbes v. Maharaj Bahadur Singh, 41 Cal. 926 did not decide any thing more than that by virtue of the provisions of s. 65 a person who had ceased to be the zemindar at the time he sued for rent could not enforce his decree in accordance with the provisions of s. 65: Dwarka Nath Chakravarti v. Atul Chandra Chakravarti, 46 Cal. 870.

A person can under certain circumstances represent the tenancy so as to entitle the landlord to obtain in a suit brought against that person, a decree binding upon all the persons interested in the tenancy: Sarat Chandra v. Bibhabati, 34 C.L.J. 302.

The landlord is entitled to sue his recorded tenants. The death of some of the defendants previous to the decree does not in any way affect the liability of the tenure, where the landlord had no notice: Jadeo Nath v. Pratap Udainath, A.I.R. 1924 Pat. 339.

S. 148A.

25. Sale in execution of a decree obtained by a co-sharer landlord—subsequent sale in a suit under S. 148A :—Where a co-sharer landlord in execution of a decree for his share of the rent puts to sale his share in a holding, held that the other co-sharer in a decree for rent in a suit under s. 148A may put the entire holding to sale, even though the purchaser at the earlier sale is not made a party, and such purchaser cannot claim any right against the second purchaser: Sasti Charan v. Akubjan Bibi, 26 C.W.N. 639, s.c., 35 C.L.J. 30. In the subsequent suit the earlier purchaser was not a necessary party because he had purchased only the right, title and interest of the judgment-debtor.

Use and occupation.

26. Decree by a Co-sharer Landlord for use and occupation :—A decree by a co-sharer landlord for use and occupation is not a rent-decree and cannot be executed as a rent-decree: Kesko Prasad v. Ram Deni, 2 Pat. 183.

Sale of money.

27. Suit for recovery of purchase money from a Decree-holder purchaser :—Where a person at a sale in execution of a mortgage decree purchased an occupancy holding which had been previously purchased by a co-sharer landlord at a sale in execution of a rent-decree, held that the purchaser in execution of the mortgage decree was entitled in a suit to recover from the mortgagee decree-holder the purchase money as the holding was not saleable: Prasanna Kumar v. Ibrahim.

28. Setting aside of fraudulent decree :—In a suit for declaration that a decree in a certain rent suit was fraudulent, the plaintiff is to prove that the rent-decree was fraudulent and collusive; if that fact is not proved the plaintiff fails, and if in the absence of direct proof the circumstances which are established are equally consistent with the allegation of the plaintiff as with the denial of the defendant, the plaintiff fails for the very simple reason that the plaintiff is bound to establish the affirmative of the proposition : Amjad Ali v. Ismail 27 C.L.J. 137. Setting aside of fraudulent decree.

When an ex-parte rent-decree was set aside on the ground of fraud, held that the original suit was revived ; Nistarini v. Mohendra Nath, 28 C.L.J. 158.

29. Apportionment of rent :—A sale of a share in a tenure, which has been let to a tenant in its entirety, does not of itself necessarily effect a severance of the tenure or an apportionment of the rent ; but that if the purchaser of the share desires to have such a severance or apportionment, he is entitled to enforce it by taking proper steps for that purpose. If he takes no such steps, then the tenant is justified in paying the entire rent, as before to all the parties jointly entitled to it. But if the purchaser desires to effect a severance of the tenure and an apportionment of the rent, he must give the tenant due notice to that effect, and, then if an amicable apportionment of the rent cannot be made by arrangement between all the parties concerned, the purchaser may bring a suit against the tenant for the purpose of having the rent apportioned, making all the other co-sharers parties to the suit : Satyesh v. Jillar Rahaman, 27 C.L.J. 438 ; see also Isvar Chander v. Ram Krishna, 5 Cal. 902 (F.B.) s. c., 6 C.L.R. 421. Before rent is actually apportioned a landlord cannot as a matter of right, claim from the tenants what he estimated to be his proportionate share of the rent : Satyesh v. Haji Jillar Rahaman, 27 C.L.J. 438. See notes under s. 72. Apportionment of rent.

30. Suit by head of Mitakshara family for rent :—"I am of opinion that the decision of the Judicial Committee in the case of Kishen Prasad v. Harnarain, 33 All. 272 is ample authority for the proposition that the head of a Mitakshara family is competent in respect of all contracts which it is open to him to make on behalf of the family, to sue as managing member of the family. Suits under the Bengal Tenancy Act, may perhaps be excluded from the general rule. On that I prefer not to express a definite opinion " [Per Roe J., (Sharfuddin J., agreeing)], Muhammed Sadik v. Khedan Lall, 1 Pat. L.J. 154. [See the case of Jeolal v. Ganga Prasad, 10 Cal. 996, a decree for rent against the head of a Mitakshara family was held to be binding against all the members.] Suit by head of Mitakshara family for rent.

• There is an expression of opinion in the case of Bhola Roy v. Jung Bahadur, 19 C.L.J. 5, (Jenkins C. J. and Mookerjee, J.) that the head of a Mitakshara family who always collected rent as the head of the joint Mitakshara family is competent to maintain a suit for rent.

But it has been held in the case of Mir Tapurah v. Gopi Narayan, 7 C.L.J. 251 that a rent-suit is not maintainable at the instance of the karta alone (in a Mitakshara family except when the tenant has dealt with such karta as sole landlord) : (Mookerjee and Caspersz J.J.). See also Kanna Pisharaday v. Narayanan, 3 Mad. 234.

In a case from Barh (where probably the family was governed by the Mitakshara family) the Patna High Court held that a rent-decree may be passed if the defendant is the karta of the family and is entitled to act on behalf of the other recorded tenants : Betadas v.

Raghunanda, [1920 Pat.] p. 9 (Coutts and Adami J.J.). See also Subodhini v. Cumar Ganada, 14 Cal. 400. See notes under ss. 144 and 148A.

An application under s. 105 B. T. Act is not maintainable at the instance only of the managing member of a joint Hindu Mitakshara family: Sati Prasad v. Sonatan, 25 C.W.N. 39. See notes under s. 105.

Sale certificate.

31. Sale Certificate :—In determining the question as to what passed by a sale it is to be considered as to what is the paramount description in the sale certificate and what the subordinate description: Rajendra Prasad v. Gaugan Koer, 2 Pat. L.J. 623; see Thakur Barmha v. Jeebanram, 41 Cal. 590; Karuppa Goandan v. Periatambi 30 Mad. 397; Barhamdeo v. Ram Narain, 19 C.L.J. 182.

As to whether sale certificate can override sale proclamation and writ of attachment as to property sold: see Christan v. Prasad Raut, [1925 Pat.] 220.

Where a tenure consisted of several villages and in the plaint in suit for rent of the entire tenure the name of village Bijuli alone was mentioned and in the sale-proclamation and sale certificate the description was as two annas eight pies "Bijulia asti mai dakhili, held that the entire tenure consisting of all the villages passed by the sale: Durgaprasad v. Dineshwar, (1918) Pat. p. 5 (Chamier C.J. and Sharfuddin J.).

The statement of area in a kabuliyat must give way to the description of boundaries: Baha Kalim v. Rajendra, 64 I.C. 751.

What passes by sale—construction of sale notification.

Government by a notification put up to sale its zemindari right to a certain khas mehal which was purchased by the plaintiff. The notification stated the name of the mehal, its area and the jama payable in respect thereof. Subsequently a considerable quantity of land appeared as reformation of the lands of the aforesaid permanently settled estate and was formed into a Diara estate with a revenue assessed on it which the plaintiff took settlement of under protest, held upon a construction of the notification and having regard to the evidence of conduct afforded by various diara proceedings that it was the entire estate which was sold and not merely the quantity of land mentioned in the notification and the lands which reformed could not be again assessed with revenue: Kumar Sankar v. The Secretary of State, 29 C.W.N. 166.

See notes under Ss. 30 and 105.

Decree by Co-sharer landlord as to rate of rent, if admissible in evidence in a suit by another co-sharer landlord.

Contra.

32. Rate of Rent :—A decree by co-sharer landlord for rent is not evidence as to the rate of rent in a suit by another co-sharer under sec. 13 of the Evidence Act: Abdul v. Rajchandra, 10 C.W.N. 1084, Premchand v. Official Trustee, 27 C.W.N. 56 (notes). These cases were followed in the case of Kanta Mohon Mullick v. Jadav Chandra Khara, (unreported Second Appeal No. 38 of 1926) decided by Mitter J. on the 14th February 1928. A contrary view was taken in the case of Byomkesh v. Jagadiswar, 22 C.W.N. 304 where it has been held that a decree for rent by one co-sharer landlord is admissible in evidence in a suit by another co-sharer landlord. This case was followed by Mallik J. in the case of Kanta Mohon Mullick v. Gopinath Santra, (unreported Second Appeal No. 2452 of 1925, decided on the 15th February, 1928).

Mitter J., in deciding the case of Kanta Mohon Mullick v. Jadav Chandra Khara, (unreported Second Appeal No. 38 of 1926) followed the case of Tepu Khan v. Rajani Mohon, 25 Cal. 522 (F.B.) and the Privy Council Case of Narash Narayan v. Secretary of State, 50 I.A. 121 and observed that the reason for holding that a decree by a co-sharer landlord is not admissible in evidence depends on one circumstance, namely, that the subject matter of the two suits is not identical. Mitter J., distinguished the Privy Council case of Ram Ranjan v. Ram Narayan, 22 Cal. 533 and observed "it does not follow that because one co-sharer was suing for the particular amount as representing his share of the rent necessarily the other co-sharers would be getting the same amount of the shares or a proportionate amount unless there was one contract by which the tenancy was created."

On the otherhand Mallik J., in deciding the case of Kanta Mohon Mullick v. Gopinath Santra (unreported S. A. No. 2452 of 1925) referred to the cases of Ram Ranjan v. Ram Narain, 22 Cal. 533 (P.C.), Gujulal v. Fatehlal, 6 Cal. 171 (F.B.), Tepu Khan v. Rajani, 25 Cal. 522 (F.B.), and observed "it is difficult to understand how it can be said that the subject matters in the two suits were different, the amounts claimed were no doubt different and the claimants were not the same but the real dispute in the two suits was as to what the amount of the rental was."

Oral evidence is not admissible for the purpose of contradicting a statement made in a registered Kabuliyat as to the amount of rent but evidence is admissible to show that the Kabuliyat was never intended to be acted upon or enforced or that there was a waiver of some of its terms: Benimadhav v. Lal moti, 6 C.W.N. 242, Manindra v. Durgasundari, 20 C.W.N. 680. Durgaprasad v. Rajendra Narain, 37 Cal. 293 (on P.C. 41 Cal. 493), Kailas (Kalish) Chandra v. Darbaria, 20 C.W.N. 347, see notes in Appendix XI (Miscellaneous matters), and under s. 67, heading no. 18.

33. Resjudicata:—An ex-parte decree in a suit for rent operates as resjudicata on the question of relationship of landlord and tenant: Hiranmoy v. Ramjan Ali, 43 Cal. 170, s. c. 20 C.W.N. 48; Mahamed Gahur v. Samiraddin, 18 C.W.N. 33, Umedali Munshi v. Goyjaddi, 87 I.C. 672. Resjudicata.

But an ex-parte decree for rent cannot operate as resjudicata as to the rate of rent: Nafar Chandra v. Bhusi Molla, 65 I.C. 581. As to cases where the question of title decided in rent suit operates as resjudicata or not, see Appendix XI (Miscellaneous matters).

34. Road-Cess Return:—Road Cess Return though not conclusive is admissible in evidence against the person by or on whose behalf it is filed: Hem Chandra v. Kali Prasanna, 30 Cal. 1033 (P.C.), s. c. 8 C.W.N. 1. Road Cess Return.

The effect of sec. 95 of the Cess Act is to prohibit the admissibility of road-cess returns when tendered in favour of the person filing it. Provided this prohibition is not offended against, such a return may be adduced in evidence, if otherwise it is admissible under the Indian Evidence Act, e.g., by or against a third party who was no party to the preparation of the return: Sheikh Intaz v. Dinanath, 53 Cal. 615, s. c. 30 C.W.N. 803, s. c. 43 C.L.J. 425 (Cuming and Page J.J.): Promode Chandra v. Binayak Das, 27 Cal. 547 explained.

Road Cess Return is admissible only against the maker : Swarnamoyi v. Sourindra Nath, 42 C.L.J. 14. See also Chalo v. Jhare, 39 Cal. 995.

Suit by benamidar.

35. Benamidar :—An action may be maintained by a benamidar. A proceeding by or against the benamidar is fully binding on the beneficial owner : Chowdhri Gur Narayan v. Sheolal Singh, 46 Cal. 566, s. c. 23 C.W.N. 521 (P.C.).

See notes in Appendix XI (Miscellaneous matters.).

66. (1) When an arrear of rent remains due from a tenant not being a permanent tenure holder, a raiyat holding at fixed rates or an occupancy-raiyat, at the end of the Bengali year where that year prevails, or at the end of the month of Jeth where the Fasli or Amli year prevails the landlord may, whether he has obtained a decree for the recovery of the arrear or not and whether he is entitled by the terms of any contract to eject the tenant for arrears or not, institute a suit to eject the tenant.

(2) In a suit for ejectment for an arrear of rent a decree passed in favour of the plaintiff shall specify the amount of the arrear and of the interest (if any) due thereon, and the decree shall not be executed if that amount and the costs of the suit are paid into Court within fifteen days from the date of the decree, or when the Court is closed on the fifteenth day, on the day upon which the Court re-opens.

(3) The Court may for special reasons extend the period of fifteen days mentioned in this section.

Headings of Notes.

1. INTERPRETATION OF THE SECTION.
2. WHETHER S. 65 APPLIES TO CASES PROVIDED FOR BY S. 66.
3. EFFECT OF CESSATION OF LANDLORD'S INTEREST.
4. EFFECT OF EJECTMENT: RIGHT TO CROPS.
5. PRODUCE RENT.
6. WAIVER.
7. DUE AT THE END OF THE YEAR.
8. DEPOSIT BY WHOM TO BE MADE.
9. EXTENSION OF TIME.
10. WHERE THE LAST DAY OF DEPOSIT IS A HOLIDAY.
11. ERROR IN THE COPY OF THE DECREE.
12. APPELLATE DECREE.
13. PAYMENT OF INTEREST.
14. AFTER EJECTMENT OF RAIYAT, UNDER-RAIYAT LIABLE TO BE EJECTED.
15. APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER.

1. Interpretation of the section :—This section is not very happily worded. It provides that a tenant coming within the meaning of this section (i.e., whose case is not covered by sec. 65) is liable to be ejected in execution of a decree for arrears of rent which fall due at the end of the Bengali year. This section is silent as to the procedure for recovery of rent which fell due in the previous year.

It is submitted that where rent falls due for more than a year it is doubtful whether a suit for ejectment can be brought at all, for example, if rent is due for the year 1330 and 1331, the section is not quite clear whether an ejectment suit can be brought on account of the arrear for the years 1330 and 1331; moreover if it is supposed that the section covers such a case the law is quite silent as to what should be the remedy for recovery of rent for the year 1330.

2. Whether s. 65 applies to cases provided for by s. 66 The provisions of s. 65 have no application to cases covered by s. 66. So, if a decree is obtained for recovery of rent of a non-permanent tenure or a non-occupancy holding or for rent due from an under-raiyat the decree cannot be executed as a rent decree. See the case of Munsar Ali v. Arsadulla, 16 C.W.N. 831. It should be executed as a money decree and as such a non-transferable non-permanent tenure or a non-transferable non-occupancy holding or the interest of an under-raiyat in the land held by him cannot be attached and sold in execution of such a decree. It may however be contended on the authority of the case of Anund v. Ratnakar, 7 C.W.N. 752 that as a landlord is competent to give his consent for the sale of a non-transferable holding, an attachment and sale at the instance of a landlord is valid. It is submitted that the sounder view is that the restriction as to transfer is also for the benefit of the tenant and therefore cannot be a valid transfer unless both the landlord and the tenant agree.

It has been held in the case of Radhakant v. Ramanand, 39 Cal. 513 that in regard to non-transferable holding the tenant alone cannot confer any title by transfer, nor the landlord by his own act and without the concurrence of the tenant can do so; the two jointly can confer title by transfer.

S. 65 does not provide for a sale of land held by an under-raiyat in execution of a decree for arrears of rent thereof: Arsadulla v. Mansubali, 16 C.L.J. 539.

3. Effect of Cessation of landlord's interest :—"The two sections" (ss. 65 and 66) "taken together cover practically the remedies provided by law for the landlord to recover arrears of rent. One section is the exact corollary of the other. The right to proceed to sale in one case, in the other to eject, is dependent on the existence of the relationship of landlord and tenant at the time when the remedy provided by law sought to be enforced" Forbes v. Maharaj Bahadur Singh, 41 Cal. 926 at p. 939 (P.C.), s. c., 18 C.W.N. 747, s. c. 22 C.L.J. 434.

It is submitted with very great respect that the observations of the Privy Council quoted above, do not seem to be in accordance with the real spirit of s. 66, so far as regards cases in which landlords after obtaining decrees for ejectment under s. 66 (2) lose the landlord's interest, for, there is some difference between a decree under s. 65 and a decree for ejectment under s. 66. A decree for rent does not declare that the rent decreed is a charge upon the tenure or holding; such a decree states only this that the decree is passed for such a sum, and when the decree is executed the question arises as to whether by operation of law, having regard to the position of the parties, the rent decreed will be a charge on the tenure or holding. But a decree under s. 66 states that the decree is for ejectment [See sub-sec. (2).] So the cessation of the landlord's interest after the date of the decree does not alter the decree which has already been passed; in the execution of such a decree for ejectment, the court cannot go behind the decree.

Tenant not entitled to crops when ejected.

4. Effect of ejectment: Right to crops:—When a raiyat is ejected for non-payment of rent the connection between the parties as landlord and tenant completely terminates, and the effect of the ejectment is to dispossess the raiyat not only of the land but also of the crop standing thereon: In the matter of Durjon Mahto v. Wazib Hossein, 5 Cal. 135.

5. Produce rent:—Rent includes produce rent: see s. 3, cl. 5, and also Kishen v. Barnes, 2 Cal. 374.

Right of re-entry: Waiver.

6. Waiver:—A landlord cannot re-enter for non-payment of rent for one year if he receives rent for a subsequent year; Sheikh Peer Bux v. Mowzah Ally, 1 Hay 89. Receipt of rent subsequent to a decree for ejectment renders execution of the decree for ejectment impossible; Nubo Kishen v. Hurish, 7 W.R. 142 (143). See also Umesh Chandra v. Kamaruddin, 7 W.R. 20.

Suit for rent after ejectment decree for periods prior to ejectment. Suit for compensation for use.

A decree-holder who has obtained a decree for ejectment is entitled to bring a suit for the arrears of the period prior to the ejectment decree and cannot by such conduct be regarded having waived the rights he had obtained under ejectment decree; Mansar Ali v. Abdul Karim, 10 C.L.J. 187; but a plaintiff who sues for compensation for use and occupation of land but does not ask for ejectment therefrom of the defendant waives his right to eject and must be taken to have recognised the defendant as a tenant: Abdul Hakim v. Rajendra, 13 C.W.N. 635.

Claim for four years—waiver.

Where a landlord sued for arrears of rent for four successive years, held that the landlord's claim for ejectment for non-payment of arrears for the first three years must be held to have waived, and a decree for ejectment could be made for non-payment of the arrears due only for the year immediately preceding that in which the suit was brought: Sita Nath v. Basudeb, 2 C.L.J. 540; see also Jogeshuri v. Mahommed Ebrahim, 14 Cal. 33, which although a case under the old Act is applicable as s. 22 of Act VIII (B. C. of 1869), is almost the same as sub-section (1) of s. 66 of the Bengal Tenancy Act.

The cases of Sita Nath v. Basudeb, 2 C.L.J. 540, Sheikh Peer Bux v. Mowzah Ally, Marsh 25 and Jogeshuri v. Ebrahim, 14 Cal. 33 were followed in the case of Kalanand v. Gunpat, 16 C.W.N. 104 where it was held that the landlord may institute a suit for ejectment under s. 66 at the time of the year mentioned in the section but if he does not exercise his option at once but claims rent for any portion of the year subsequent thereto he treats the tenancy as existing after the specified date and cannot ask for ejectment in respect of arrears due for the year preceding that date.

67. An arrear of rent shall bear simple interest ^{Interest on arrears.} at the rate of twelve and-a-half per centum per annum from the expiration of that quarter of the agricultural year in which the instalment falls due to the date of payment or of the institution of the suit, whichever date is earlier.*

An exorbitant rate of interest (75 per cent. per annum) stipulated in a lease is not an ordinary incident of a tenancy, and therefore where such interest was stipulated in a lease before the Bengal Tenancy Act, and the tenure was subsequently sold in execution of a decree for arrears of rent, (the sale proclamation not notifying the said incident), held that the purchaser purchased only with the ordinary incident of the tenancy : *Anandamoyee v. 3. Execution of Bond for arrears of rent :—Where a tenant executed a deed of mortgage on account of arrears of rent due to his landlord providing the payment of interest by more than 12½ per cent., held that it was not in contravention of s. 67, and that ss. 67 and 178 (3) (h) do not apply to such contracts but they apply to contract, between landlord and tenant and that the parties to the contract ceased to be in the relationship of landlord and tenant when this contract was made : Hari Prasad v. Damri Singh, 2 Pat. L.J. 367 ; it was a case merely of an arrangement for the payment of debt due by the tenant to the landlord ; Ibid ; it established a new relationship between the parties, a new contract under which the parties became mortgagor and mortgagee and ceased to be landlord and tenant : Ibid.

The same principle will apply to the case of an ordinary bond or promissory note executed on account of arrears of rent, and s. 67 will not apply.

This section applies only to rents which are payable quarterly ; it does not apply to produce rents which are not so payable : Bishesar v. Husani Sao, [1919 Pat.] p. 242. S. 68 is not however restrictive (unlike s. 67), but where the lower Courts in their discretion did not allow damages the High Court would not interfere in second appeal. Ibid.

Dinubera*, 14 C.L.J. 170.

6. Where lease is silent as to whether interest is per mensem or per annum :—Where there was a stipulation of interest on an arrear of rent but the document was silent as to whether the interest was per mensem or per annum, held that evidence was not admissible to shew whether the interest was per mensem or per annum: Protap Chanda v. Mahomed Ali, 41 Cal. 342, s.c., 18 C.W.N. 502, s.c., 19 C.L.J. 66. In a case before the passing of the Evidence Act it was held that in case of such ambiguity evidence was admissible to explain the ambiguity by showing previous transactions between the parties and the custom of the country: Mahomed Shunsoodeen v. Abdul Huq, W.R. 1864 p. 397 followed in Monmotha Nath v. Nobin Chandra, 14 C.W.N. 1100.

Ambiguity of the terms as to interest.

7. Tender of rent :—To stop interest on rent running in a case governed by the Bengal Tenancy Act a tender of rent which is improperly refused, need not be followed up by a deposit of rent in Court under s. 61 and such a tender, if kept good, is sufficient to stop interest running from the date of tender; Kripasindhu v. Ananda, 35 Cal. 34, s.c., 11 C.W.N. 983, s.c., 6 C.L.J. 273. A tender which has been validly made and improperly refused is kept good if the person who has made the tender has from that time always kept the money ready to be paid on demand: Ibid; see also Gyles v. Hall, 2 P. Wms. 378; see also Jagat Tarini v. Naba Gopal, 34 Cal. 305.

8. Interest payable by tenant holding over :—When a tenant holds over, after the expiration of his lease, he does so on the terms of the lease, on the same rent and on the same stipulation as are mentioned in the lease until the parties come to a fresh settlement. There is no general rule of law to the effect that the lease of an agricultural tenant in this country who holds over, must be taken as renewed from year to year, and if any contract is to be implied, it should be taken to have been entered into so soon as the term of the lease expired rather than at the beginning of each year: so where the term of the kabuliyat expired some years before the Bengal Tenancy Act came into operation, held in a suit for rent subsequent to the passing of the Act that the tenant who was holding over was liable to pay interest at the kabuliyat rate although the same was in excess of the rate as is allowed by s. 67: Kishore Lal v. The Administrator-General of Bengal, 2 C.W.N. 303. But where a lease which provided the payment of interest at a rate higher than 12 per cent. per annum expired after the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Act and the tenant held over, it was held that the tenant was not liable to pay interest at the rate stipulated in the kabuliyat, but was only liable to pay interest at 12 per cent. per annum as provided for in s. 67: Ali Mahmud v. Bagabati, 2 C.W.N. 525. His Lordship (Rampini, J.) distinguished the case of Kishore Lal v. The Administrator-General of Bengal:—

Tenant holding over, liable to pay interest at the old rate.

But where lease expires after the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Act, a tenant holding over liable only to pay 12 per cent.

rate of rent stipulated for in his old kabuliyat, which was also 75 per cent. as in this case. The learned Judges who decided that case have held that there is no general rule of law to the effect that the "lease of an agricultural tenant who holds over must be taken as renewed from year to year ; but that a tenant who holds over with the consent of his landlord does so upon the same conditions as those set out in his time-expired lease ;" and that "if any contract is to be implied, it should be taken to have been entered into as soon as the term of the lease expired, rather than at the beginning of each year." It is not necessary for me to consider here when the present Defendant's lease must be regarded as having been renewed. In the case of Kishore Lal Dey v. The Administrator-General of Bengal, 2 C. W.N. 303, the Defendant's lease expired some years before the Tenancy Act came into force. In the present case, the lease expired after the Tenancy Act came into force, and, therefore, whether the Defendant's implied lease be regarded as having been entered into on the expiry of his old lease, or as renewed from year to year at the beginning of each year, in either case it must be taken as one made subject to the provisions of the Tenancy Act, and that being so, the Defendant cannot be held liable to pay more than 12 per cent. interest per annum, as provided in sec. 67."

Where a

the Bengal Tenancy
Act.

Where the term of a lease expired before the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Act and the tenant continued to hold over, held in a suit for arrears of rent for a period subsequent to the passing of the Act that the landlord could not recover interest at a rate higher than 12 per cent. per annum as is provided for in the Act ; Administrator-General of Bengal v. Asraf Ali, 28 Cal. 227. Their Lordships (Ameer Ali and Brett, J.J.) in delivering judgment said as follows :—It is unnecessary, however, to decide in this case whether the contract implied from the holding over is from year to year or not ; for assuming it "should be taken to have been entered into so soon as the term of the lease expired rather than at the beginning of each year," and that this contract is for the same term as in the lease, even then, in our opinion the present claim for interest beyond that allowed by s. 67 would not be maintainable for the term of six years under the implied contract "would end in 1886 whilst the Tenancy Act came into force in March 1885." The fresh contract implied by the fresh holding over, according to the learned Judges in Kishore Lal Dey v. The Administrator-General of Bengal would begin from 1886 when the Tenancy Act was in operation and must necessarily be subject to and governed by the provisions and restriction of the Tenancy Act. In the present case the interest claimed is for the years 1893, 1894, 1895 and part of 1896. In Kishore Lal Dey v. The Administrator-General of Bengal the claim was for the years 1298—1301, and we do not know when the successive implied contracts there began or came to an end.

Where a tenant in a kabuliyat for one year stipulated to pay interest at the rate of 75 per cent. and the tenant proved that the landlord had assured him that the covenant for interest would not be enforced, held that the tenant who was holding over was not bound by the stipulation of interest made in the kabuliyat: Nadia Chand v. Birendra Chandra, 20 C.W.N. 1067.

over.

Where a tenancy was created in the year 1880 for three years at a rent partly in money and partly in kind with a stipulation to pay interest at 6 pies per rupee per mensem on the cash rent and one

Kotta per rupee per month on the paddy rent, held that the tenant's Successors. successors who were holding over were not liable to pay any higher rate of interest than is provided in s. 67 : Brahma Moyi v. Somarali, 68 I.C. 109, (Newbould and Panton J.J.).

Where on the expiry of an agricultural lease the tenant held Holding over, held that he is not liable to pay interest exceeding the sum as over. provided for by s. 67 : Chandra Nath v. Sheikh Inamdi, 34 C.L.J. 369.

9. Sale: conditions of lease :—The purchaser of a raiyat holding at fixed rates in execution of his own mortgage decree buys it subject to the terms and conditions of the lease of which he had notice and is liable to pay interest at the rate in the kabuliyat : Bhut-nath v. Ramanath, 48 Cal. 93 ; in the absence of any evidence that any undue advantage was taken, the tenant is bound to pay interest at the rate stipulated : Ibid.

10. Whether a purchaser is liable to pay interest at the rate provided for in the kabuliyat of his predecessor :—A tenant executed a kabuliyat agreeing to pay interest at a higher rate than 12 per cent. the term of the kabuliyat expired in 1884, before the passing of the Tenancy Act, and the tenant continued to occupy the land ; in a decree for arrears of rent his holding was put to sale ; the purchaser at this sale was subsequently sued for arrears of rent and it was held that he was liable only for interest at the rate specified in s. 67 : Alim v. Satis Chundra, 24 Cal. 37, followed in Ali Mahmud v. Bhagabati, 2 C.W.N. 525. A stipulation for the payment of interest upon arrears of rent is an ordinary incident of a tenancy in this country unless there is something unusual in the stipulation and as a rule it would attach to the tenancy, not only so long as it remains in the possession of the tenant who enters into the stipulation, but would continue to attach to it notwithstanding a sale for arrears of rent, but though this be so, a stipulation for the payment of interest on an unusual and an exorbitant rate would not be an ordinary incident of a tenancy and would not continue to be attached to the tenancy after a sale for arrears of rent ; Kalinath v. Troilucko, 26 Cal. 215, s.c., 3 C.W.N. 194 ; see also Rajnarain v. Panna Chand, 30 Cal. 213 ; s.c., 7 C.W.N. 203. Where a kabuliyat for a time uncertain stipulates for the payment of interest from year to year and that in case there be any default in the payment of any instalment, the tenant will pay interest for the overdue instalment at a certain rate, it was held that it was a contract entered into once for all, and would continue in force so long as the tenancy was not determined. But where the stipulation was for the payment of interest at the exorbitant rate of Rs. 225 per cent. per annum and the contract was entered into between the landlord and a cultivating raiyat, held that the stipulation was not such an incident of tenancy as would continue to be attached to it notwithstanding the sale of the holding for arrears of rent : Kalinath v. Troilucko, 26 Cal. 215. Where a holding is not put up to sale with notice that it is being sold subject to the terms of the kabuliyat of the old tenant, the purchaser is not bound to pay the higher rate of interest provided for in the kabuliyat, and even when the holding is put up to sale on the express terms of the kabuliyat the purchaser is not liable to pay the higher rate because a fresh contract must be regarded as having been entered into between him and the landlord when the latter put the holding up to sale and the former purchased it : Ibid. (Per Rampini J.). A purchaser is bound to pay rent by monthly instalments and interest on arrears will be calculated monthly when the original kabuliyat was executed in 1865 and contained that rent should be paid by monthly instalments: Nadia Sundari v. Girindra, 7 C.L.J. 24 notes. Where the lease is a subsisting one the purchaser is bound to pay interest in accordance with the lease: Lalgopal v. Monmotha Lal, 32 Cal. 258, s. c., 9 C.W.N. 175 (F.B.). This case was followed in Tiluk Chandra v. Jasoda Kumar, 11 C. W. N. 215, in which case interest was claimed at a rate of more than 12 per cent. on the basis of a kabuliyat executed before the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Act, the tenant being proved to have acquired the holding by private purchase: held, that the stipulation as to interest must be given effect to. Where a tenancy was created before the passing of this Act and that it was stipulated that interest would run at the rate of one anna per rupee, held that the purchaser of the jama in auction-sale after the passing of the Act was bound by the terms relating to interest: Ibid. Rampini, J., discussed and distinguished the case of Kalinath v. Troilucko, 26 Cal. 215, s. c., 3 C.W.N. 194.

Effect of apportionment of rents after transfer of
a portion.

Where there was a stipulation in a lease before the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Act providing interest at 75 per cent. per annum, and subsequent to the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Act a person acquired a portion of the holding from the tenant and obtained recognition as such from the landlord who also apportioned the rents, held that the transaction could not be described as a new contract of tenancy and sec. 67 of the Bengal Tenancy Act did not apply. Madhumalu v. Alfazuddin, 13 C.W.N. 962; s. c., 10 C.L.J. 45.

12. Contract in contravention of the provisions of this section :—In granting a permanent lease, within the meaning of s. 179 of this Act, a condition that interest shall be payable at a higher rate than 12 per cent. per annum as allowed by s. 67 of that Act, is permissible: Matungini v. Makrura, 29 Cal. 674, s. c., 5 C.W.N. 433 (F.B.). The case of Basanta Koomar v. Promatha Nath, 29 Cal. 130, s. c., 3 C.W.N. 36, was overruled by the Full Bench and the case of Atulya Charan v. Tulsi Das, 2 C.W.N. 543, was approved of; see notes under s. 179.

Interest at an exorbitant rate.

13. Exorbitant interest :—Where the rate of interest was Rs. 225 per cent. per annum and the agreement was entered into by a landlord with a cultivating tenant, held that the case was one in which the rule of law relating to hard and unconscionable bargains enunciated by their Lordships of the Privy Council in Kamini Sundari v. Kali Prosunno, 12 Cal. 225, should be applied: Kali Nath v. Troilucko, 26 Cal. 215, s. c., 3 C.W.N. 194. A contract to pay interest at the rate of 75 per cent. for arrears of rent payable for land, for which arrears the landlord has got good security in the holding on which those arrears are a first charge and which he can recover in other ways, is an unconscionable one which should not be allowed to be enforced: Norendra Kumar v. Gora Chand, 33 Cal. 683 at p. 688, s. c., 3 C.L.J. 391.

Uncon-
contract.

In the case of Ganendra v. Badulla, 22 C.W.N. 124 (notes) it was held, that the contractual rate of interest may be recovered.

High rate of interest

In awarding interest in a rent-suit at the contract rate which was 75 per cent. per annum the court observed as follows: "the rate no doubt is very high, 75 per cent. per annum but the tenants have allowed the remedy in their own hands. They have only to pay their rent regularly and no interest will be chargeable": Ashutosh Dhur v. Joy Lal Sardar, 17 C.L.J. 50, at p. 53.

Cases in which interest at the rate stipulated in the bonds has not been allowed as being exorbitant: Bonwang Raja Chellaphroo v. Banga Behari, 20 C.W.N. 408; Abdul Majid v. Kherode Chandra, 42 Cal. 690, s. c., 19 C.W.N. 809; Khagaram v. Ramsankar, 42 Cal. 652, s. c., 19 C.W.N. 775, s. c., 21 C.L.J. 79; Gopeswar v. Jadub Chandra, 22 C.L.J. 352; Ram Barman v. Sanat Kumar, 25 C.L.J. 24.

A high rate of interest is not per se a penalty: Nathuni Sahu v. Baij Nath, 2 Pat. L. J. 212.

A change from simple interest to compound interest after due date is not a penalty: Lakh Chand v. Pear Chand, 2 Pat. L.J. 283.

14. Liability to pay interest when the landlord has no village office:—A tenant's liability to pay interest remains notwithstanding that the landlord has no village office and that he has not appointed a convenient place for payment of rent under s. 54: where there is no controlling agreement, the tenant must go to his landlord and pay the rent as it falls due; rent falling into arrears under such circumstances will carry interest under s. 67: Fakir Lal v. W. C. Bonnerjee, 4 C.W.N. 324.

15. Application of money to interest when paid as rent:—The word "rent" does not necessarily include interest, so if any sum of money be paid by a tenant to a landlord as rent and the latter receives it as such he cannot be permitted to apply that money towards any interest which might then be due: Bhagobati v. Basanto Kumari, 11 C.W.N. 110: s. c., 5 C.L.J. 69.

16. Where there is no agreement to pay interest:—S. 178, sub-sec. (3) cl. (h) says that "nothing in any contract made between a landlord and a tenant after the passing of this Act shall affect the provisions of s. 67 relating to interest payable on arrears of rent." It would seem therefore that the provisions of this section are not retrospective in its effect. So where a tenancy was created before the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Act without any written lease and there was no provision for the payment of interest the landlord is not entitled to recover any interest under this section, for it has no application, but a landlord may be entitled to, interest if he gives a notice demanding interest (as provided for in Act XXXII of 1839). In cases of written leases but without any provision to pay interest, interest may be allowed as provided for in the Interest Act. It is enacted by that Act "that upon all debts or sums certain payable at a certain time or otherwise, the Court before which such debts or sums may be recovered, may, if it shall think fit, allow interest to the creditor at a rate not exceeding the current rate of interest from the time when such debts or sums certain were payable, if such debts or sums be payable by virtue of some written instrument at a certain time, or if payable otherwise, then from the time when demand of payment shall have been made in writing, so as such demand shall give notice to the debtor that interest will be claimed from the date of such demand until the term of payment: Provided that interest shall be payable in all cases in which it is now payable by law."

But where a lease did not contain any stipulation with regard to payment of interest one way or the other, held, that there was Where no interest is stipulated for in a mortgage bond no interest is recoverable: Makbulali v. Ali Ahmed, 40 Cal. 514, see also Kutliumna v. Madhavamenon, 11 Mad. L.J. 186.

17. Stipulation to pay interest according to custom and law :—Where it was stipulated that interest on arrears of rent should be realised according to custom and law, it was held under the old law (Act VIII, B. C. of 1869) that interest would run at the rate of 12 per cent. per annum as provided for in that Act: Anungo Mohun v. Madan Mohun, 1 C.L.R. 147.

Erroneous decision in a previous suit does not operate as res-judicata.

18. Decision as to rate of interest whether operates as res judicata in a subsequent suit :—Where in a previous suit for rent the Court erroneously held that interest exceeding 12 per cent. per annum was not recoverable for a permanent tenure-holder in a permanently settled area, although the kabuliyat stipulated for the payment of such interest; held, that in a subsequent suit for rent the erroneous decision in the former suit would not operate as res judicata: Alimunnessa v. Shyamacharan, 9 C.W.N. 467; 1 C.L.J. 176; 32 Cal. 749. (The previous decision was in accordance with a ruling which was subsequently overruled by a Full Bench decision). Cases must be decided upon the law as it stands when judgment is pronounced and not upon what was at the date of a previous suit, the said law having been altered in the meantime, the effect of a law being differently interpreted afterwards by a judicial decision is similar to that of an alteration by statute: Ibid. An erroneous decision has been held to operate as res judicata in the case of Woman Hari v. Hari Vithal, 31 Bom. 128. A decision upon a pure question of law, even though erroneous may under certain circumstances operate as res judicata: Ram Behari v. Surendranath, 19 C.L.J. 34; see also Aghorenath v. Kamini, 11 C.L.J. 461; Rai Charan v. Kumud Mohon, 1 C.W.N. 687.

Decision upon a pure question of law.

Application of s. 67: Effect of Privy Council decision in 22 Cal. 214.

19. Application of this section :—The provision in s. 67 applies only to cases where the rent is payable quarterly: Hemanta v. Jagadindra, 22 Cal. 214 (P.C.). It has been explained in the case of Narendra Kumar v. Gora Chand, 33 Cal. 683, s. c., 3 C.L.J. 391, that their Lordships of the Judicial Committee in the case of Hemanta v. Jagadindra did not rule that the whole of s. 67 is limited in its application to cases where the rent is payable quarterly but it was only laid down that the section so far as it defines the time from which the interest is to run applies only to cases where the rent is payable quarterly, and that their Lordships did not decide by implication any question as to the effect of the other provision of the section, viz., which fixes the rate of interest, so by making interest payable otherwise than quarterly will not have the effect of making an agreement to pay more than the rate provided for in this section valid.

When there was a contract between the landlord and the tenant

*The lease in this case was dated the year 1159; the first Court had observed as follows:—The Patta of 1159 appears to be silent as to interest and damages. If the plaintiff be not entitled to interest he cannot necessarily be entitled to damages.

executed after the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Act whereby provision was made for payment of the rent in monthly kists and also for payment of interest on each kist from the time when it fell due, and the interest so calculated exceeded $12\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. per annum : Contract held :—that the landlord was entitled to impose on the tenant an obligation to pay the monthly kists, having regard to sec. 178, sub-sec. (3) cl. (h) of the Bengal Tenancy Act, the landlord was entitled only to the interest secured to him by sec. 67 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, the Interest Act not being applicable : Monohar Mookerjee v. Kshetranath Sabui, 17 C.W.N. 820 ; s. c., 18 C.L.J. 175 : the Privy Council case of Hemanta Kumari v. Jagadindra, 22 Cal. 214 was explained and discussed in this case. A contract between a landlord and a tenant for payment of rent in monthly kists or instalment is valid and is in accord with the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act ; but a stipulation for payment of interest on each instalment from the time when it falls due, being in excess of that which can be permitted under the law is illegal and cannot be enforced, in as much as the landlord is only entitled to the interest secured to him by S. 67 : Manohar v. Paresh Chandra, 18 C.L.J. 176.*

Contract after passing of the Act.

Where monthly kist and interest agreed to be paid in excess of what is allowed by law.

Interest runs under s. 67 not from the date of the kist fixed for payment of rent but from the expiration of the quarter of the agricultural year in which the instalment falls due : Sris Chandra v. Jadunath, 45 I.C. 532 ; (Fletcher and Shamsul Huda, J.J.) ; when therefore rent is tendered by money-order after a kist falls due before the accrual of interest under s. 67 i.e., before the expiration of the quarter when the kist fell due the tender is a good tender and the landlord is not entitled to interest or damages : Ibid.

20. Waiver :—The mere omission to claim interest for past years from a tenant, who did not pay his rent on due date should not be considered a waiver of the right to claim interest for all time : Johoory v. Bullub, 5 Cal. 102 ; see also the cases referred to therein.

21. Interest on enhanced rent :—A tenant is not liable for interest on enhanced rent unless it is determined : Raj Mohun v. Anund Chunder, 10 W.R. 166 ; see also Golam Ali v. Babu Gopal Lall, 1 W.R. 56 ; Sumeera v. Babu Gopal Lall, 1 W.R. 58 : but see Khajah Ahsanullah v. Aftabuddin, 3 C.L.R. 382, and Dayamoyi v. Bhola Nath, 6 W.R. Act X, p. 77.

Interest on enhanced rent.

22. Where interest and not damages should be awarded :—Where during the years for which rent was claimed the defendant had paid several sums to the landlord, held that interest and not damages ought to have been allowed : Bharath Prasad v. Rameshwar, 30 Cal. 1066, s. c., 8 C.W.N. 118.

23. Section 169 :—Rent as used in cl. (c), s. 169, does not exclude interest : Bejoy Chand Mohatab v. S. C. Mookerji, 11 C. W. N. 1106 ; where a landlord applies under s. 169, cl. (c) for getting the rent and interest due to him between the date of the institution of the suit and the date of the sale from the surplus sale proceeds and the judgment-debtor raised an objection to it but admitted the justice of the decree-holder's demand, held that the decree-holder was entitled to get interest on rent : Ibid.

Rent does not exclude interest.

stipulation which the landlord has told him will not be enforced the tenant cannot be held to have assented to it, and the kabuliyat is not the real agreement between the parties : Nadia Chand v. Birendra Chandra, 20 C.W.N. 1067 at p. 1068, col. 2 ; (in this case the kabuliyat stipulated interest at the rate of 75 per cent. per annum). The test is, whether the tenant can maintain a suit for rescission, cancellation or variation of the contract ; if he can he may successfully resist the claim on the basis of the contract : Ibid ; see also Kasinath v. Brindaban, 10 Cal. 649, and Benimadhab v. Lalmoti, 6 C.W.N. 242. But it was held in the case of Ganendra v. Babulla, 22 C.W.N. 124 (notes) that a landlord is entitled to recover interest at the contractual rate and that under s. 92 of the Evidence Act an agreement not evidenced by a written contract cannot be given in evidence to vary the terms of a registered contract.

25. S. 67 controlled by s. 179 :—This section is not applicable to permanent mokurari leases governed by s. 179 : Matangini Debi v. Makrura Bibi, 29 Cal. 674, s. c., 5 C.W.N. 438 (F.B.).

Provided that interest shall not be decreed when damages are awarded under this section.

(2) If, in any suit brought for the recovery of arrears of rent, it appears to the Court that the plaintiff has instituted the suit without reasonable or probable cause, the Court may award to the defendant, by way of damages, such sum, not exceeding twenty-five per centum on the whole amount claimed by the plaintiff, as it thinks fit.

I. Where a lease did not stipulate payment of interest :
—In a case where the lease dated before the passing of the Act did not stipulate for payment of interest and the lower Appellate Court awarded damages, (Rampini and Mitra, J.J.) observed as follows :—

The learned District Judge was perfectly justified under s. 68, in awarding damages. Moreover, so far as we can see, the contract in this case did not contain any clause with regard to the payment of interest one way or the other. Therefore it would appear that there is nothing in the lease which prevents interest being paid under s. 67. But, however this may be, as we said interest has not been awarded, but damages: unreported second Appeal, Kannai Lal v. Rajendra Lal, No. 370 of 1902, decided on July 20, 1904.

2. Non payment of cesses :—Rent includes cess: see s. 3 cl. (5). Tenants are therefore liable to pay damages on failure to pay road and public works cesses.

3. Damages:—It was decided under the old law (Act VI of 1862, B.C.) that damages could not be recorded unless specially alleged and claimed in the plaint: Hurro Mohun v. Womesh Chunder, 1 R.J.P. 116.

4. Reasonable and probable cause :—The absence of reasonable and probable cause is a matter which is incumbent on the plaintiff to prove: Horro Mohun v. Womesh Chunder, 1 R.J.P. 116. A man is not to be made liable to damages merely because he may from poverty, illness, or some unavoidable cause have failed to pay his rent: Ibid.

5. Dispute between [landlord] and tenant:—Where on account of dispute between the landlord and the tenant the former would not himself realise rent from the tenant in the midst of the dispute, held that the landlord is not entitled to damages: Bisheshar v. Husain, 4 Pat. L.J. 282 at p. 287.

6. Damages in excess of 25 per cent cannot be recovered :—Even if there is custom of paying damages of the rate at more than 25 per cent. the same cannot be recovered; interest cannot be recovered at a higher rate than 2 per cent.: Apurba Krishna v. Ashutosh, 9 C.W.N. 122.

7. Where interest and not damages should be awarded and where not :—Where during the years for which rent was claimed the defendant had paid several sums to the landlord; held, that interest and not damages ought to have been allowed: Bharath Prasad v. Rameswar, 30 Cal. 1066 s.c. 8 C.W.N. 118. S. 68 unlike s. 67 is not restrictive: where the lower Courts in their discretion did not allow damages the High Court in second appeal did not interfere: Bisheshar v. Husain Sao, [1919, Pat.] p. 242, s.c., 4 Pat. L.J. 282.

8. Proviso :—The award of damages does not in any way interfere with the interest which might be allowed subsequent to the date of the suit: Watson v. Sreekrishna, 21 Cal. 132.

Produce-rents.

69. (1) Where rent is taken by appraisement or division of the produce,—

(a) if either the landlord or the tenant neglects to attend, either personally or by agent, at the proper time for making the appraisement or division, or

Order for appraising or dividing produce.

(b) if there is a dispute about the quantity, value or division of the produce, the Collector may, on the application of either party, and on his depositing such sum on account of expenses as the Collector may require, make an order appointing such officer as he thinks fit to appraise or divide the produce.

(2) The Collector may, without such an application, make the like order in any case where in the opinion of the District or Subdivisional Magistrate the making of the order would be likely to prevent a breach of the peace.

(3) Where a Collector makes an order under this section, he may, by order, prohibit the removal of the produce until the appraisal or division has been effected; but an order made by the Collector under this sub-section shall not prevent the execution of any order passed by the Court* for the distraint of the tenant's crops.

(4) Every officer appointed by the Collector under sub-section (1) to appraise or divide the produce shall, for the purposes of the Indian Penal Code, be deemed to be a public servant.

1. Amendments :—The amendments by Act I (B.C.) of 1907 Amendment of section 69. and by Act I (E. B. and A Council) will appear from the following section : (s. 16 which is the same in both the amending Acts).

16. (1) To sub-section (3) of section 69 of the said Act the following shall be added, namely :—

“but an order made by the Collector under this sub-section shall not prevent the execution of any order passed by the Court for the distraint of the tenant's crops.”

(2) To the said section the following shall be added, namely :—

“(4) Every officer appointed by the Collector under sub-section (1) to appraise or divide the produce shall, for the purposes of the Indian Penal Code, be deemed to be a servant.” XLV of 1860,

2. S.S. 69 and 70 :—“S. 69 applies equally to cases of division of produce and of appraisement as also does s. 70. There is no distinction of produce and appraisement. between those two classes of cases, and a final order enforceable as a decree is as necessary in the one case as in the other.” Suraj Prasad v. Kara Singh, 4 Pat. L.J. 325 at p. 329.

3. Cl. I (b) :—A Revenue Court is competent, under s. 60 (1) (b) to decide a dispute between a landlord and tenant as to the proper shares of the produce to which each is entitled: Bhajan v. Gangeshwar, 53 I.C. 37.

4. Interest :—As soon as a Court adjudicates upon a claim for bhowali, it becomes an ascertained amount, but no interest can be claimed thereon under s. 67, because bhowali rent is not payable quarterly: Bisheshar v. Husani Sao, 4 Pat. L.J. 282; s.c., [1919 Pat.] p. 242.

5. Attendance of landlord :—Under section 69 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, if the landlord does not attend to take the share of the crops the remedy of the tenants is by way of an application to the Collector, but if it is found that the tenants have actually appropriated all the crops they are plainly liable to indemnify the landlord; Kamaleshwar Pershed Singh v. Kanhari Singh, 17 C.W.N. 1159. Remedy of the tenant when landlord does not attend.

6. Danabandi System :—Where the question was whether a tenant held under the danabandi system, held that the mere circumstance that the contract of tenancy in respect of some land was of one description does not necessarily indicate that the contract was one of the same description in respect of different lands in the same village held by other tenants: Kamalshwar Pershad v. Kanhari Singh, 17 C.W.N. 1159.

Produce rents are collected on two systems, the agorebatai and the danabandi systems. According to the agorebatai system, the produce is divided between the landlord and the tenant. According to the danabandi system, the outturn of the crop, and its value are appraised, and the tenant pays the landlord his share either in grain or in money as may be agreed on.

7. Suit for rent after a proceeding under ss. 69 and 70 is quashed :—Where a suit for rent did not include the claim for rent which had been realised previous to the institution of the suit in a proceeding under ss. 69 and 70, held that after the proceeding was quashed a suit for rent for the period which was the subject of the proceeding under ss. 69 and 70 was barred under s. 43, C.P.C.; Syed Abdulla v. Hurkishan, 2 C.L.J. 490.

8. Suit for value of crops :—In a suit to recover bhowlee rent or a sum equivalent to the value of the proportion of the crop which the defendant ought to have delivered to his landlord, held that the damage to the plaintiff was the value of the crops at the time they were due and not subsequently : Luchman v. Hoolas Mahtoon, 11 W.R. 151.

Suit against depository maintain-
able.

9. Deposit of crops by order of Collector—Suit against depository :—Sections 69 and 70 refer to and contemplate proceedings between the landlord and the tenant, and they have no reference to a third party, who, in the course of proceedings under these sections becomes depository or bailee ; when therefore a landlord seeks relief in the Civil Court, not against his tenant, but against a third party, a depository or bailee, it is not barred by anything contained in ss. 69 and 70 : Jaga Singh v. Chooa Singh, 22 Cal. 480. A suit is maintainable by a tenant against a third party for recovery of crops awarded to the latter by the Collector ; Chhedi v. Chhedan, 32 Cal. 422.

Ameen appointed under this section is not a public servant.

10. Ameen appointed under this section :—A person nominated by a Collector under this section for the purpose of making a division of crops between the landlord and the tenant is not a public servant within the meaning of the Penal Code. His mere office is to go down on the nomination of the Collector and appraise and make a division of the crops as between two private persons who are to pay him for his services : Chatter Lall v. Thacoor Pershad, 18 Cal. 518.

Collector,
a Court.

11. Collector : s. 195 Cr. P. C. :—The Collector is authorised to take evidence on the matters with which he is empowered to deal ; and this brings him within the definition of a Court ; where therefore in certain proceedings under this section some forged rent receipts were filed, held that the previous sanction of the Collector was necessary under s. 195, Cr. P. C., for the prosecution of the persons who filed the forged rent receipts : Raghoo Buns v. Kokit Sing, 17 Cal. 872. This case was followed in the case of Chandi Charan v. Gadadhar, 45 Cal. 336, s.c., 22 C.W.N., 165 ; s.c., 27 C.L.J. 316 ; proceedings under ss. 69 are civil in nature and the Court of the Deputy Collector acting thereunder is subordinate to the Court of the District Judge under s. 195 (7) of the Criminal Procedure Code : Ibid.

12. Disobedience of order made under s. 69 :—The primary purpose of orders made under s. 69 is to prevent breaches of the peace ; s. 188 of the Penal Code applies when the order is disobeyed : the Subdivisional Magistrate as Collector is competent to act in such cases under s. 195 or s. 476 C. Cr. P. : Lakshan Bar v. Nara Narain, 43 Cal. 1086.

produce.

13. Dispute as to share :—A dispute as to the division of the produce under s. 69 (1) includes a dispute as to the shares into which it is to be divided. A Revenue Court is competent to decide the issue as to the proper shares under s. 69 (1) (b). If the Revenue Court is not prepared to decide the issue as to the proper shares he should refer the dispute to the Civil Court under s. 70 (5) : Bhajan Ahir v. Gang Keshwar, [1919 Pat.] p. 461, s.c., 5 Pat. L.J. 76.

Functions of Collector.

14. Powers of a Collector :—All officers in charge of sub-divisions have been invested with the powers of a Collector for the purpose of discharging the functions referred to in ss. 12, 13, 15 and 69 to 71 of this Act; (Calcutta Gazette, 1886 Part. I, pp. 466, 1092). The Deputy Collector of Howrah and the Senior Deputy Collector of Gaya have also been invested to exercise the functions, referred to in ss. 69 to 71; (Calcutta Gazette, 1886, Pt. I. p. 652; and 1893, Pt. I., p. 274). See Appendix II.

Sub divisional officers.

15. Bonafide dispute as to the nature of rent :—Where there is a bonafide dispute as to the nature of the rent i.e., whether it is bhaoli or nakdi, Deputy Collector has no jurisdiction to proceed under the provisions of ss. 69 and 70: Nukheda Singh v. Ripu Mardan, 4 C.W.N. 239; Mir Tipura Hossein v. Gopi Narain: 7 C.L.J. 251; in a suit by a tenant to set aside an appraisement by the Collector as invalid he would be entitled to succeed upon proof that there was a bonafide dispute between the parties as to the character of the holding. Ibid.

Bona-fide dispute as to the nature of rent.

16. Application by a co-sharer landlord :—An application under this section cannot be made by some only of a body of landlords, such an application being authorised by the provision of this Act and not by those of the Civil Procedure Code: Nukheda Singh v. Ripu Mardan, 4 C.W.N. 239.

17. Suit for produce rent :—A suit for produce rent or its money value is a suit for rent under this Act and not a suit for damages for breach of contract, and therefore is not cognizable by a Provincial Small Cause Court. Shoma Mehta v. Rajani Biswas, 1 C.W.N. 55; see also Tajuddin v. Ram Parasad, 1 All. 217; Luchman v. Kailas, 11 W.R. 151; 2 B.L.R. App. 27; Malik v. Aklu, 25 W.R. 140; Jamna v. Guni, 21 W.R. 124. The fact that a landlord sues, not to recover the crop itself but its money value with interest, does not withdraw the suit from the category of rent suits: Krishto Bunahoo v. Rotish, 25 W.R. 307.

Suit for Burga if cognizable by Small Cause Court.

It has been held in the case of Jadav Chandra v. Gopal Chandra, 28 C.W.N. 848, that a suit for half share of the produce is cognizable by Small Cause Court if there is nothing in the plaint to suggest that the Defendant is a tenant.

See notes under the Preamble, at pp. 5 & 6.

18. Appraisement :—In a case of appraisement the Collector does not take possession of the crops nor does it make it over to the landlord. He simply prepares an estimate of the crops under sec. 69 of the B. T. Act and then reduces it into a money value and declares how much is due to the landlord and how much to the tenant. In such a case the Collector's order must clearly specify the amount due from one party to the other so that the former may in execution of the order in the Civil Court, receive his dues from the latter: Bhuneshwari Kuer v. Sukhdeo Singh, 85 I.C. 566 (Jawala Prasad and Kulwant Sahay, JJ.).

Appraisement.

The Collector's jurisdiction arises only when the rent is payable under the bhaoli system; and if this is disputed and a system of cash or nakdi rent is set up, the Collector will have no jurisdiction under sec. 69 of the B. T. Act and he must leave the question to be determined by a competent Civil Court. Where it is admitted that bhaoli rent is payable the Collector has jurisdiction under sec. 69 to appraise or divide the crops and has a right to determine as to whether the system of payment of landlords' share is by appraisement or division: Ibid.

Dominion over crop cut.

19. Right to sue to set aside wrongful distraint:—Where the landlord, under exceptional circumstances, supplied the seed and the agreement was that the tenants would cut and store the crop on his chuck and after the threshing, division was to be made between the landlord and the cultivators; held, that the dominion over the crop was with the landlord, and if that crop has been cut by some one else under cover of the law of distraint, the landlord was entitled to sue to contest the demand of the distrainer; Harro Narain v. Shoodha Krishna, 4 Cal. 893; s.c., 4 C.L.R. 32.

Dismissal of suit for money value,
effect of.

20. Refusal of landlord to accept rent in kind:—A landlord refused to accept rent in kind as he was suing for a money rent, held that on the dismissal of his suit the landlord could not sue for the money value; Mohun Narain v. Gour Taran, 23 W.R. 368.

21. Res judicata:—Where in a suit by a tenant to set aside the Collector's appraisement neither he nor the landlord could prove as to the character of the holding viz., as to whether the rent was payable in cash or kind; held that in a subsequent suit for rent the Court was not precluded from determining the question as to the true character of the holding; Mir Tapura Hossein v. Gopi Narain, 7 C.L.J. 251.

Procedure where officer
appointed.

70. (1) When a Collector appoints an officer under the last foregoing section, the Collector may, in his discretion, direct the officer to associate with himself any other persons as assessors, and may give him instructions regarding the number, qualifications and mode of selection of those assessors (if any), and the procedure to be followed in making the appraisement or division; and the officer shall conform to the instructions so given.

(2) The officer shall, before making an appraisement or division, give notice to the landlord and tenant of the time and place at which the appraisement or division will be made; but if either the landlord or the tenant fails to attend either personally or by agent, he may proceed ex parte.

(3) When the officer has made the appraisement or division, he shall submit a report of his proceedings to the Collector.

(4) The Collector shall consider the report, and, after giving the parties an opportunity of being heard and making such enquiry (if any) as he may think necessary, shall pass such order thereon as he thinks just.

(5) The Collector may, if he thinks fit, refer any question in dispute between the parties for the decision of a Civil Court, but, subject as aforesaid, his order shall be final and shall, on application to a Civil Court by the landlord or the tenant, be enforceable as a decree.

(6) Where the officer makes an appraisement, the appraisement papers shall be filed in the Collector's office.

6. EFFECT OF THE SETTING ASIDE OF AN ORDER UNDER CL. (5).
7. CL. (5): ENFORCEABLE AS A DECREE.
8. CL. (5): EXECUTION IN CIVIL COURT—INJUNCTION.

I. Any other persons as Assessors:—According to the General Clauses Act, words used in the singular include the plural and vice versa, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context; but it seems to be doubtful whether the expression “any other persons as assessors” also means “any other person as assessor.”

2. But subject as aforesaid, his order shall be final:—It seems that in case the Collector refers any question in dispute between the parties for the decision of a Civil Court, he will pass a conditional order which will be subject to the such decision.

The Civil Court has no jurisdiction to pass an award on a claim for rent for certain years in a case where the matter had been decided by the Revenue Court, under s. 70 of the B. T. Act: Binode Behari v. Tokhi Singh, [1924 Pat.] p. 211.

In order to see whether an order purporting to have been passed under s. 70 is a final order enforceable as a decree, the order must be read as a whole: Ibid.

Where the takhmina papers were considered by the Settlement Officer and the division was approved, that is the crop was divided between the two parties, landlord and tenant, and further direction was given with respect to the landlord's share that if he did not accept it then it should be sold and the money deposited in the Treasury; held that the money that was deposited was the sale proceeds of the landlord's share and consequently it was his money and no further direction was necessary and the landlord would be entitled to withdraw the money on that order. This was clearly a final order enforceable as a decree within the meaning of s. 70 of the Bengal Tenancy Act: Ibid.

3. Cl. (2):—If the amin comes to the village and gives notice to all and sundry either by informing them personally or by leaving notices at their houses, then that is prima facie compliance with the section. If that is done, then it lies upon those who are complaining that the section is not complied with to come forward and give evidence that they in fact had no notice: Dinadayal v. Raj Keshwar, 98 I.C. 991.

4. Cl. (4):—“A Collector cannot pass any separate order as to cost. The Provision of Cl. (4) of s. 70 is, however, very wide. It directs the Collector to pass such orders as he thinks just and contemplates that the Collector should consider what order is most equitable, taking all things into consideration. The Collector has power, therefore, without passing any separate order as to cost to take into consideration the amount deposited by the applicant and to so arrange his order of appraisalment that the share awarded to the parties include or be dismissed by, the proper and equitable proportion of the costs." OBSERVATIONS OF THE BOARDS OF REVENUE, BIHAR AND ORISSA BASED ON THE OPINION OF SUPERINTENDENT AND REMEMBRANCE OF LEGAL AFFAIRS. In re Shew Gulam and others, 1 Pat. L.W. 694 ; s.c., 42 I.C. 482.

If sufficient time is given after service of notice and before the collector passes his final orders, to enable tenants to come forward and make their objections, that is a proper compliance with the provisions of sub-s. (4) and no further notice is required upon the tenants to enable them to come and make their objections: Dindayal v. Raj Keshwar, 98 I.C. 991.

5. Sub-sec. (5):—Sub-sec. (5) does not bar a suit by a tenant against a third party for recovery of crops awarded to the latter by the Collector: Chhedi v. Chhedan, 32 Cal. 422.

See notes under s. 69.

6. Effect of the setting aside of an order under cl. (5)—The setting aside of an order made under sub-sec. (5) does not give a fresh cause of action, so when a suit for rent did not include claim for rent of a previous period which was the subject of an order under cl. (5), held that a suit for rent for that period after the setting aside of the order under cl. (5) was barred by s. 43, C.P.C.: Syed Abdulla v. Hurkrishna, 2 C.L.J. 490.

When Civil Court can adjudicate.

7. Cl. (5): Enforceable as a decree:—To make an order of the Collector under section 70 of the Bengal Tenancy Act final, it must be an order in conformity with that section and enforceable as a decree under clause 5. In the absence of such an order, it is competent to the Civil Court to adjudicate upon the question whether the rent is to be taken by appraisalment or division of the produce: Kailaspati Narayaan Sing v. Ganga Sing, 10 C.L.J. 599.

In order to bring proceedings under Ss. 69 and 70 it must be shewn that, as required by s. 70 (5), the Collector has passed an order having complete finality and enforceable as a decree: Suraj Prasad v. Karu Singh, [1919 Pat.] p. 400 ; where the proceedings are not in accordance with the provisions of ss. 69 and 70, the order of the Deputy Collector is not a final order as contemplated under S. 70 (3) and it cannot therefore oust the jurisdiction of the Civil Court: Ibid.

Clause 5 of s. 70 of the B. T. Act does not require that a separate decree, apart from the order itself, should be prepared by the competent Revenue authority. It simply requires that the order shall be final and shall, on application by the landlord or the tenants to the civil court, be enforceable as a decree: Bhuneshwari Kuer v. Sukhdeo Singh, 85 I.C. 566 (Jawla Prasad and Kulwant Sahaay, J.J.).

Injunction.

8. Cl. (5): Execution in Civil Court: injunction:—A landlord obtained an order under sub-section (5) of section 70 and proceeded to execute it by an application to the Civil Court, the tenant brought a suit in the Civil Court for a declaration that the order of the revenue authorities was without jurisdiction and inoperative, held on an application made under rule (2) of Order XXXIX of the Civil Procedure Code for a temporary injunction to restrain the landlord from executing the order in question that the Civil Court has jurisdiction to grant the injunction: Jit Lal Singh v. Kamaleshwari Pershad, 18 C.W.N. 92.

The proper way to receive the decree for execution is by transmission from one Court to another in an authorised and defined mode: Baluk v. Nathuni, 2 Pat. L.J. 24.

An order made under Cl. (5) if made by an officer having jurisdiction, it is final and no appeal lies against it: when such an order is sought to be executed the merits thereof cannot be questioned: Baluk v. Nathuni, 2 Pat. L.J. 24. It is open to the Civil Courts to enquire whether the Collector had jurisdiction to take action under ss. 69 & 70: Thakur Singh v. Pardip Singh, 2 Pat. L.J. 183. A Subdivisional officer is competent to decide whether the crops should be appraised or divided: Ibid, Limitation: where the tenant obtained an injunction preventing the landlord from enforcing the order, limitation does not run for the period the injunction was in force: Baluk v. Nathuni, 2 Pat. L.J. 24.

Although a decree may have been passed by a Revenue Court when it is under execution in a Civil Court, proceedings may be stayed by the Civil Court if a suit has been brought for declaration that the decree was obtained by fraud or was made without jurisdiction and for a perpetual injunction to restrain the decree-holder from executing the decree: Ibid. See also Ramlochan Singh v. Beniprasad Kumari, 36 Cal. 252 s.c., 13 C.W.N. 791.

Stay of proceedings.

71. (1) Where rent is taken by appraisement of the produce, the tenant shall be entitled to the exclusive possession of the produce.

Rights and liabilities as to possession of crop.

(2) Where rent is taken by division of the produce, the tenant shall be entitled to the exclusive possession of the whole produce until it is divided, but shall not be entitled to remove any portion of the produce from the threshing-floor at such a time or in such a manner as to prevent the due division thereof at the proper time.

(3) In either case the tenant shall be entitled to cut and harvest the produce in due course of husbandry without any interference on the part of the landlord.

(4) If the tenant removes any portion of the produce at such a time or in such a manner as to prevent the due appraisement or division thereof at the proper time, the produce shall be deemed to have been as full as the fullest crop of the same description appraised in the neighbourhood on similar land for that harvest.

Sub. Sec. (4):—"The object of s. 71 sub-sec. (4) is to provide the courts with a definite rule as to the value of crops which have been wrongly removed by the tenant. If the tenant in removing the crops acts dishonestly he is liable to be convicted under s. 424 I.P.C.: Kuldip Panday v. King Emperor, 1 Pat. L.J. 353, (Chamier Object of s. 71, sub-sec (4)).

C. J. and Sharfuddin J.). It is submitted with great respect that this decision is probably open to doubt for the following reasons: (1) the object of s. 71 is that the actual produce is to be divided between the landlord and the tenant; if on account of the removal of the crops by the tenant the actual produce cannot be ascertained, then under cl. (4) the produce shall be deemed to have been as full as the fullest crop of the same description appraised in the neighbourhood on similar land for that harvest; therefore by the removal of the crops there ensues no wrongful loss to the landlord; (2) moreover the penalty for the removal is provided for in cl. (4).

"Section 71, sub-sec. 4, of the Bengal Tenancy Act seems to me to contemplate that where tenants do remove a crop without having the same properly appraised that the presumption arises against them and the landlord is entitled to the full measure of the crop as of the best crop in the neighbourhood of a similar character for that harvest:" Balak Mahton v. Mathura Ram, 52 I.C. 267.

If tenants cut and take away crop before it can be appraised or do not attend at the appraisal under Sec. 71 (4) of the B. T. Act, presumption arises against them and the landlord is entitled to the full measure of the crop in the neighbourhood of a similar character to that harvest: Hargobind v. Kishundoyal, 95 I.C. 966.

Under s. 71 (4) of the B. T. Act the crop cutting report of the Revenue Officer relating to a period subsequent to the period for which the rent suit is filed may be taken into consideration by the court in assessing the rent for the disputed antecedent period. Its evidentiary value is greater than that of oral evidence: Kishun Dayal v. Ishwarnath, 8 P.L.T. 74, s.c., 102 I.C. 391 (Dawson Miller C.J. and Foster J.) (Patna Case).

Notes :—On the complaint of a tenant that the landlord had cut and taken away crops belonging to the tenant worth Rs. 88, although the landlord who was to get rent in kind was entitled to take one-half portion of the crops, the landlord was convicted of the crops being in excess of Rs. 50 the conviction under summary trial was bad, the tenant being entitled under s. 71 to possession of the entire crops until it was divided: Sheikh Haboo v. Sheikh Kariman, 1 Pat. L.J. 230, (Chamier, C. J., Sharfuddin J.).

Liability for rent on change of landlord or after transfer of tenure or holding.

Liability for rent on change of landlord or after transfer of tenure or holding. Tenant not liable to transferee of landlord's interest for rent paid to former landlord, without notice of the transfer.

72. (1) A tenant shall not, when his landlord's interest is transferred, be liable to the transferee for rent which became due after the transfer and was paid to the landlord whose interest was so transferred, unless the transferee has before the payment given notice of the transfer to the tenant.

(2) Where there is more than one tenant paying rent to the landlord whose interest is transferred, a general notice from the transferee to the tenants published in the prescribed manner shall be a sufficient notice for the purposes of this section.

Headings of Notes.

1. TRANSFER OF LANDLORD'S INTEREST.
2. REGISTRATION OF TRANSFER.
3. NOTICE.
4. SUB-SEC. (2).
5. APPORTIONMENT OF RENT.

1. Transfer of landlord's interest:—Where a landlord transferred his interest to another person and the tenant got notice of the transfer from the transferor but the transferee did not give any notice, held that payments of rent made by the tenant to the transferor after such notice were not valid payments and the transferee was entitled to claim the same from the tenant: Nabin Chander v. Surendra Nath, 7 C.W.N. 454.

Payment of rent after notice by transferee.

A tenant is not bound to pay rent to the transferee of the landlord unless he got notice of the transfer from the transferee, and a payment made to the previous landlord not in good faith within the meaning of S. 50 of the Transfer of Property Act is valid, if no notice has been given by the transferee: Jharucharan v. Sridam, 40 I.C. 655, s.c., 23 C.W.N. 88 (notes).

Where no notice by transferee.

Before the tenant can be excused from payment to the transferee under S. 72 two conditions are necessary. The first is that he must pay rent to the landlord whose interest has been transferred; and secondly, he must have done so without notice of the transfer: Brojo Dhabal v. Prem Chand, 91 I.C. 726 (Newbould & Graham, J.J.)

Where the plaintiff was the registered mortgagee from the landlord, and in a suit for rent the tenant pleaded payment to the auction purchaser of the landlord's estate at a sale for arrears of revenue, held that s. 72 had no application and that plaintiff was entitled to get rent: Mikhduman v. Khairat Ahmed, 43 I.C. 182; s.c., 3 Pat. L.W. 245.

Suit by registered mortgagee where landlord's interest is sold for arrears of revenue.

Where the transferee from a landlord did not give the requisite notice, the tenant was held not liable for the rent paid to the transferor landlord: Jharu Charan v. Sridam Chandra, 29 C.L.J. 204.

2. Registration of transfer:—"It is no longer compulsory for the zemindar to register the names of any tenants in his sherista. The Act provides for the official registration of transfers of the rights of permanent tenure holders and raiyats holding at fixed rates. But the transfers of occupancy rights are not so registered, and there is no provision of law by which they can be registered in the landlord's sherista. When occupancy rights, transferable by custom, have been transferred, it is no doubt open to the transferees to sue under the Specific Relief Act to have it declared that they have acquired certain rights: but it is clear that if it is the object of such a suit, as it apparently was of this suit, to have it declared that the old tenant is no longer responsible for the rent and that the transferee is so responsible to the landlord, such a declaration cannot be obtained without the service of the notice prescribed by s. 73." (Per Rampini and Stevens, JJ.) Ambika v. Chowdhury Keshri, 24 Cal. 642.

Right of suit by transferee.

3. Notice:—Sub-section 1 of this section does not require that the notice therein contemplated should be given in any particular manner. Rule 3, Ch. I of the Rules made by the Local Government under cl. (2) of s. 189 is intended to apply only to those cases where the Act speaks of the service of a notice and not merely the giving of a notice ; it may apply to cases where the Act speaks of the giving of notice, if such notice is required to be given in the prescribed manner: Madhub Ram v. Dayal Chunder, 25 Cal. 445, s.c., 2 C.W.N. 109. As to the mode of service of notice: see Appendix I.

4. Sub-sec. (2):—The object of sub-sec. (2) of s. 72 is to relieve the transferee landlord from the necessity of giving notice to such tenant individually: it does not say that such a notice shall be a necessary notice: Nabin Chunder v. Surendra Nath, 7 C.W.N. 454.

5. Apportionment of Rent:—Where the Plaintiffs who were joint landlords in suits separately instituted by them against the tenant, asked for apportionment of rent and for recovery of rent on such apportionment, and all the parties interested were made parties to the suits, held that the Plaintiffs were entitled to have the rent apportioned: Rajnarain v. Ekadasi, 27 Cal. 479, s.c., 4 C.W.N. 494; Shyama Charan v. Jogeschandra, 16 C.W.N. 774. Apportionment may take place in respect both the arrears and the future rent.—Ibid.

All co-sharers must be made parties.

In a suit for apportionment of rent, the Plaintiff must make all the co-sharers parties to the suit, otherwise the suit is badly framed and is liable to dismissal: Iswar Chandra v. Ram Krishna, 5 Cal. 902; Abhoygovind v. Haricharan, 8 Cal. 277; Bindubashini v. Peary Mohan, 20 Cal. 107.

Separate payment.

Separate payment of rent is not conclusive evidence of apportionment: Anu Mandal v. Kamaluddin, 1 C.L.R. 248.

As to apportionment of cesses: see Harimohan v. Ashutosh, 4 C.W.N. 776.

Liability for rent after transfer of occupancy-holding.

73. When an occupancy raiyat transfers his holding without the consent of the landlord, the transferor and transferee shall be jointly and severally liable to the landlord for arrears of rent accruing due after the transfer, unless and until notice of the transfer is given to the landlord in the prescribed manner.

Headings of Notes.

2. TRANSFERABILITY OF OCCUPANCY HOLDING.
3. RECOGNITION NOT COMPULSORY FOR PERFECTING TITLE.
4. TRANSFER OF PORTION OF HOLDING.
5. RECOGNITION BY LANDLORD.

7. RIGHT OF TRANSFeree AGAINST TRANSFEROR.
8. SUIT FOR REGISTRATION OF NAME.

10. MODE OF SERVICE OF NOTICE.
11. WHERE TRANSFeree ACQUIRES THE RIGHT OF A TENANT BY ADVERSE POSSESSION.
12. EXTINCTION ON TRANSFER OF CHARGE OF HYPOTHECATED PROPERTY.

1. Application of this section :—This section applies only to occupancy holding which are transferable by custom or usage: Jatindra v. Binode, 52 I.C. 289.

2. Transferability of occupancy holding :—See notes under s. 23.

3. Recognition not compulsory for perfecting title :—There is no law rendering it obligatory on tenants who are not tenure-holders to get their names recorded in the landholder's sherista for the purpose of perfecting their title: Ashok Bhuiyan v. Karim Bepari, 9 C.W.N. 843.

4. Transfer of a portion of holding :—There is no authority for the proposition that the purchaser of only a portion of a holding gets no title: Asokh Bhuiyan v. Karim Bepari, 9 C.W.N. 843; the case of Kuldip v. Gillenders, 26 Cal. 615, is no authority for such a proposition that the purchaser of a portion acquires no title. Ibid.

In the case of a transfer of a portion of an occupancy holding such transfer not binding the landlord unless made with his consent, the transferee can by suit recover possession from the landlord who has forcibly dispossessed him: Ambikacharan v. Ramcharan, 18 C.W.N. 971, s.c., 19 C.L.J. 52 (F.B.). Suit by a transferee of a portion.

In the case of a transfer of a part of a holding from one of two joints tenants, the landlord has no right to recognise such transferee of the entire holding to the detriment of the interest of the transferee from the other joint tenant: Sheikh Elahi v. Sheikh Hukum, 19 C.L.J. 462. Landlord has no right to recognise transferee of a part as transferee of whole.

A landlord cannot interfere with the possession of the transferee of a part of a non-transferable occupancy holding and if he does so the transferee is entitled to recover possession from the landlord by suit; the right to recover possession arises, not by reason of any title in the holding as against the landlord, but from the tenant's undisputed right to transfer a part of his holding: Gananath v. Harihar, 48 I.C. 359; but the transferee of a part, until he is dispossessed is not entitled to a declaration that a tenant alleged by the landlord to be his tenant is not in fact his tenant and that a decree obtained by the landlord against his alleged tenant is fraudulent; Ibid. No transfer of a part of a non-transferable occupancy holding is valid against the landlord: Ibid. Transfer of part.

5. Recognition by landlord :—A landlord, if he accepts rent, assents to the transfer of the holding and it would make no difference in the application of this rule if the sale is a part of the holding: Bharut Roy v. Gunga Narain, 14 W.R. 211. Where the purchaser paid rent for a period of 18 years without the slightest objection on the part of the landlords, held, that this acted as a full and complete acknowledgment by the proprietor of the estate that he accepted the new tenant in the place of the old one: Allendar v. Dwarkanath, 15 W.R. 320. Where a landlord allowed the sums paid into the Collectorate by a third party to be carried to his credit, held that he had recognised the transfer from the tenant to the third party, although such transfer had not been registered: Ram Gobind v. Dushoobhoojan, 18 W.R. 195. A landlord by taking the plaintiff's purchased lands after the rent was deposited by him in the Collectorate was held to have virtually admitted the plaintiff's status as a purchaser from the former tenant and that he had attorned to him Acceptance of rent.
Rent deposited by landlord to be carried to his credit.

Withdrawal of deposit,
effect of.

as his landlord: Gudha Dhur v. Khetter Mohan, 7 W.R. 460. As to the effect of withdrawal of a deposit by virtue of which a sale of a holding is set aside, see notes under s. 171; see in this connection Gadadhar v. Midnapur Zemindary Co., 27 C.L.J. 385; Matihari Concern v. Luchmi Prasad, 42 I.C. 826; (same case also reported in 41 I.C. 885). A landlord who withdraws the amount deposited by the transferor of a nontransferable holding to set aside the sale under s. 310 of the Civil Procedure Code of 1882 (O. 21, r. 89 of the New Code) is not competent to urge that the transferee did not, by his purchase, acquire a title: Gadadhar v. Midnapur Zemindar Co., 43 I.C. 742; (Mookerjee and Beachcroft J.J.). Where a landlord made a transferee a party to a rent suit and accepted a decree against him jointly with other persons, held that the landlord had recognised the transferee as a tenant: Ram Kishore v. Krishno Monee, 23 W.R. 106. Where in a rent receipt the name of the Sabek praja or old tenant was given and the name of the transferee was entered after the word "dakhilkar" held by their Lordships of the Judicial Committee (reversing the decision of the High Court) that it was quite a sufficient recognition of the transferee as tenant in as much as the dakhila described the rent paid as the rent of the holding and the person paying as occupier of the holding and as paying on her own account: Nobo Kumari v. Bihari Lal, 34 Cal. 902, s.c., 11 C.W.N. 865, s.c., 6 C.L.J. 122. See also Thomas Barclay v. Syed Hossein, 6 C.L.J. 201. But see Digbijoy v. Sheikh Rahaman, 17 C.W.N. 156.

Rent suit :

Dakhila.

"Marfat-dar" in rent
receipts.

The mere fact that in rent-receipts the word Marfatdar is used is not conclusive to shew that there was no recognition: each case must be decided on its own circumstances; Prabhabati v. Taibabennessa, 17 C.W.N. 1088.

Rent
"through the mortgagee."

Receipt of rent stating that the said rent was received "through A, the mortgagee" of a raiyat of a non-transferable occupancy holding, held that this amount to a recognition of the transfer: Baroda Charan v. Hemalata, 10 C.L.J. 610.

Recognition by some of joint landlords.

When some of several joint landlords have assented to a transfer of non-transferable holding or subsequently recognised the transferee they are not entitled to dispute the title of the purchaser or to eject him; the other co-sharers are entitled to eject the purchaser from their shares only and to recover joint possession but if they sue to eject him from the entire holding on the footing that he is a trespasser a decree for joint possession ought not to be made in their favour: Hossein Mahomed v. Fakir Mahomed, 10 C.L.J. 618.

A consent given by the karta of a joint Hindu family to a transfer of a non-transferable holding is binding on the other members: Golapdi v. Purnachandra, 27 C.L.J. 129; this case was from the Faridpur district and it seems therefore that the family was a Dayabhaga family.

sited by tenant stating

6. What does not amount to recognition :—Where a non-transferable holding was advertised for sale in execution of a decree for arrears of rent and the judgment-debtor put in the money due under the decree stating that he had procured the money due by selling his holding to another person and the landlord took out the money out of Court, held that it could not be inferred from the above circumstances that the landlord had given his consent to the transfer, inasmuch as the landlord had a right to draw the money out of Court without regard to the manner in which or the source from which the judgment-debtor had procured it: Robert Wilson v. Radha Dulari, 2 C.W.N. 63. When a party wishes to make known to the zemindar that he has a right to a holding the rent of which the landlord refuses to take from him, he should distinctly state what is the interest he claims, and the notice to the zemindar should comprise this information; it is not sufficient for a man wishing to protect his special interest of which zemindar may have no knowledge to make a deposit of the rent in the name of the recorded tenant along with his own, without stating what his claim is: for unless he does so, the landlord is not obliged to enquire as to his status: Mirtunjoy v. Gopal Chunder, 10 W.R. 466. A receipt given by a gomastha does not bind the landlord: Bhojoharee v. Aka Gôlam, 16 W.R. 97; see also Wyatt v. Sheogobind, 1 Pat. L.J. 414.

Deposit of rent by transferee in the name of the recorded tenant and his own.

Receipt by Gomastha.

In the absence of evidence to the contrary, the ordinary presumption is that the gomastha performs his duty and duly delivers the rent (he collects) to his employer, and it was held under the circumstances of the case that there was recognition of the transferee as a tenant: Jahurmul v. Keramutulla, 45 I.C. 196, (Richardson and Beachcroft J.J.).

Gomasta—ordinary presumption.

"In my opinion it is not within the scope of the authority of a Rent-Collector to consent on behalf of his master to the transfer of an occupancy holding. That is an important act to be performed only by a person having some at least of the powers of a Manager. I cannot accept the suggestion which has been made that it lay on the landlord in this case to prove that the patwari had not authority to consent to the transfer. Landlords would be in a very difficult position if it were held that patwaris and other underlings should be presumed till the contrary is shewn to have the power to sign away their masters' rights." A. W. N. Wyatt v. Seogobind, 1 Pat. L.J. 414 at pp. 418, 419 (Per Chamier C. J.).

Rent-receipt by Patwari or rent-collector when not binding on landlord.

Where a person set up a tenancy by virtue of an amalnama from a gomostha and proved rent receipt received from the latter on payment of rent, held that independently of the question whether, a gomostha had authority to grant an amalnama or settle a holding, the receipt of rent by him on behalf of his employer from the person in occupation of a holding is sufficient to prove the tenancy of the latter. Jahurmal v. Keramutullah, 45 I.C. 196, (Richardson and Beachcroft, J.J.). In the absence of evidence to the contrary, the ordinary presumption would be that the gomastha of a landlord performed his duty and duly delivered the rent collected by him to the landlord: Ibid; the case of Sudaman v. Behari Mahton, 15 C.W.N. 953 was referred to.

Amalnama from a Gomostha.

Presumption: rent receipt by Gomostha.

In the absence of any evidence that a gomostha was actually or ostensibly vested with wider authority, the presumption would be that the granting of receipts by him would not be binding upon the landlord as a recognition of a transfer: Janki Sahu v. Ram Bahadur, 1 Pat. L.W. 658, s.c., 2 Pat. L.J. 231 (Chapman and Roe J.J.).

* "The position and duties of a patwari are well-known. He is a poorly paid underling employed only to collect rents due to his master and to grant receipts for the same. His implied authority would extend to all subordinate acts which are necessary or incidental to his express authority." (Per Chamier, C. J., in Wyatt v. Seogobind, 1 Pat. L.J. 414 at p. 418.)

Recognition. The mere fact of rent having been received from a certain person does not amount to a recognition of that person as a tenant ; when the old tenant's name occurred in the rent-receipts under the heading "tenant's name" and the name of purchaser from the tenant occurred under a different heading "Sarbarakar," held that the landlords by these receipts did not mean to recognise the purchaser as a tenant : Rosomoy v. Srinath, 7 C.W.N. 132. But see Nabokumari v. Behari Lal, 34 Cal. 902, s.c., 11 C.W.N. 865 : s.c., 6 C.L.J. 122, cited in the previous paragraph. Where the dakhilas shewed that N was the raiyat mentioned and R's name was merely mentioned murful-waree, held that the payments of rent by R would not confer upon her any title to the property : Khoduram v. Rookhinee, 15 W.R. 197. By mere receipt of rent on the part of the zemindar it cannot be said that the landlord sanctions the transfer so as to give him a right of occupancy for it might have been a temporary arrangement between the purchaser and the old tenant : Gour Lal v. Rameswar, 6 B.L.R. App. 92. See also Digbejoy v. Shaikh Ata Rahaman, 17 C.W.N. 156.

Receipt from an agent The receipt by the landlord of rent from the transferee of a holding, not in his own account but as an agent of the transferor is not a recognition of the transfer. Debnarayan v. Baidyanath, 14 C.W.N. 68 : Their Lordships (Chitty and Vincent J.J.) in deciding this case distinguished the Privy Council case of Naboo Kumari v. Behari Lal, 34 Cal. 902, s.c., 11 C.W.N. 865 on the ground that in the case of Naboo Kumari rent had been received from the transferee on his own account and with a statement that he was in possession.

Rent from an agent. Relying upon the cases of Khoduram Chatterjee v. Rukhinee Boistobee, 15 W.R. 197, Gour Lal v. Rameswar, 6 B.L.R. App. 92, Wilson v. Radhadulari, 2 C.W.N. 63 and Rasomay Purkait v. Sreenath Moyra, it was held in the case of Digbijoy v. Shaikh Ata Rahman, 17 C.W.N. 156, that the acceptance of rent from the transferee of a non-transferable occupancy holding not as a transferee but as the agent or representative of the original tenant does not amount to a recognition of the validity of the transfer : Their Lordships (Mookerjee and Curnduff J.J.) in deciding the case were of opinion that the view they took was not opposed to the decision of Baroda Charan Dutta v. Hemlata Dasi, 13 C.W.N. 833 ; Thomas Barclay v. Hossein Ali Khan, 6 C.L.J. 601 ; Nabakumari v. Behari Lal, 34 Cal. 902.

Marfatdar and gujrat-dar in rent-receipts do not of themselves prove recognition. The words 'marfatdar' and 'gujratdar' in rent receipts do not of themselves prove recognition of tenancy. Each case depends upon its own circumstances, and the Court should determine in each case whether or not, on a consideration of all the facts,—not merely by giving undue weight towards words used—a legal inference is or is not to be drawn that there has been a recognition establishing a relationship of landlord and tenant between one who had paid and another who has received rent for a number of years ; Provabati v. Taibatunnisa, 19 C.L.J. 62.

Rent receipt : marfat : the name of purchaser as baidar. Where rent receipts are granted in the name of the old tenant marfat the name of the purchaser describing the latter as baidar, or in the name of the old tenant benam the name of the purchaser describing the latter as baidar, held that the rent-receipts do not show that there was recognition of the purchaser as the tenant. Wyatt v. Seogobind ; 1 Pat. L.J. 414.

It can not be laid down as an inflexible rule of law that a landlord is not bound by the act of a gomastha in recognising a transferee of an occupancy holding; the question of the gomostha's power to bind his landlord is one which must be decided on the particular facts of each case; Suduman Jamadar v. Behari Mahton, 15 C.W.N. 953, the burden of proof in the first instance is upon the landlord to prove the extent of the authority of the gomostha for a matter peculiarly within his knowledge; where therefore a gomostha accepted rent from the transferee of a holding and the landlord failed to show that the gomostha acted beyond the scope of his authority, held that there was sufficient recognition of the transferee by the landlord: Ibid.

Plaintiffs as assignees of a lease brought a suit to have it declared that the lease was a permanent, heritable and transferable one and also that the rent was fixed in perpetuity and that the landlord defendant was bound to recognise the plaintiff as tenant, held that the court has power to pass a declaratory decree: Monmohan Ghose v. Equitable Coal Co., 18 C.W.N. 596; sec. 42 of the Specific Relief Act has introduced a considerable change in the law on this point; Ibid. See notes under s. 23.

7. Right of transfer against transferor:—Where a tenant transferred his jote and agreed to pay the rent up to the date of sale, held that the transferee was entitled to get from the transferor the amount when as a matter of fact the landlord had obtained against the transferor for rent for a period before and after the transfer and in execution a portion of the property had been sold: Syed Kutub Ali v. Azibulla Mondol, 7 C.W.N. 905.

8. Suit for registration of name:—When occupancy rights, transferable by custom, have been transferred it is open to the transferees to sue under the Specific Relief Act to have it declared that they have acquired certain rights; but if it is the object of such to have it declared that the old tenant is no longer responsible for the rent, such a declaration cannot be obtained without the service of the notice prescribed by this section: Ambika v. Chowdhury Keshri, 24 Cal. 642.

Right of suit by
transferee.

9. Transfer by involuntary sale, when complete:—S. 65 of the present Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908) provides that when a property is sold in execution "the property shall be deemed to have vested in the purchaser from the time when the property is sold and not from the time when the sale becomes absolute." It was held under the old Code that when a property is sold in execution of a decree, the purchaser's title becomes complete upon his payment of the purchase money and confirmation of such by the Court: Naigor v. Bhaskar, 10 Bom. 144. The title of an auction purchaser at a sale for arrears of revenue accrues from the date on which the sale is confirmed: Babu Dheput Sing v. Mothuranath, W.R. 1864, p. 278. The sale of a jote in execution of a decree for rent obtained against the recorded tenants does not pass the interests of the tenants whose names are not registered in the landlord's sherista: Ashok Bhuiyan v. Karim Bepari, 9 C.W.N. 843.

occupancy holding acquires by adverse possession the right of a tenant against the landlord, the latter cannot hold his former tenant liable for rent: Jatindra Nath v. Binode Behari, 52 I.C. 289, (Beachcroft and Walmsley J.J.)

12. Extinction on transfer of charge of hypothecated property :—Where a certain property hypothecated as security for rent of a tenure, held that on a transfer of the tenure, the mortgage or charge of the property hypothecated is extinguished: *Bejoy Chand Mohatab v. I. Alterations and Additions :—By the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Act, (III of 1919) the following additions and alterations have been made :

(a) The original section as it stood has been renumbered as sub-section (1) of s. 74.

(b) clauses (2) and (3) have been added.

2. Stipulations and reservations relate to both past and future stipulations :—“All impositions upon tenants under the denomination of abwab,” etc., and “all stipulations and reservations for the payment of such” referred to in this section relate to both past and future stipulations ; each stipulations made before the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Act are therefore void : Jotindra Mohon v. Chandra Nath, 6 C.W.N. 360.

Stipulation to pay embankment cess, costs of acquittance, dasahra and chaitnawami farmaish, tika, bheti, guru bheti, batchhapi jangla-isim-navisi, katiari, dewani dastur and mahal uprohati in a lease along with rent (malguzari) and road cess is void under s. 74 of the B. T. Act although all these were totalled up into an annual jama : W. W. Broucke v. Chhatar Kumari, 4 Pat. 404, s.c., [1925 Pat.] p. 89 (Dawson Miller C. J. and Foster J.).

On appeal to P.C., this decision was reversed and their Lordships of the Judicial Committee held that the said items were not abwabs : Chattrā Kumari v. W. W. Broucke, 54 I.A. 432, s.c., 32 C.W.N. 260, s.c., 47 C.L.J. 90 (P.C.) (Per Lord Sinha). The description “malguzari” is not to be regarded as equivalent to the “actual rent” which by sec. 74 of the B. T. Act, 1885 alone was recoverable, and that section does not preclude the recovery of any part of the sum specified as the consolidated jama—Ibid.

Sec. 74 of the B. T. Act has a long history behind it from 1791 to 1885, and the object of the whole series of enactments from the Regulations of 1791 to Act VIII of 1885 was to prevent exactions from tenants beyond the rent specified in their patta, when there was one, and if there was no written engagement, beyond what was the rent actually payable whether by verbal agreement or by virtue of custom.

It has to be ascertained in each particular case whether the sum claimed is really part of the rent agreed upon to be paid as consideration for the lease.—Ibid.

The words “actual rent” in sec. 74 cannot be taken to mean either a fair and equitable rent or rent at customary or pergana rates. Long use or custom cannot validate abwabs as an addition to the rent—Ibid.

3. What is an abwab :—No imposition under any name whatever shall be recovered from the tenant for or in respect of the occupation of tenure of the land beyond the sum which has been fixed for rent, whether that sum has been fixed by agreement or by judicial determination between the landlord and the tenant...Radha Prosad v. Bal Kowar, 17 Cal. 726 (F.B.) According to the decision in the case of Upendra Lal v. Meheraj Bibi, 21 C.W.N. 108 the question whether in a case where there is a written engagement, a specified sum which is neither indefinite nor arbitrary and which is agreed upon to be paid as part of the rent in the lease creating the tenancy can be recovered, was not referred to the Full Bench in the case of Radha Prosad v. Balkowar, 17 Cal. 726. The question whether any particular item is or is not an abwab must depend upon the construction of the contract of lease in each case, and the question in each case is whether the sum claimed is really part of the rent agreed upon to be paid as consideration for the lease: Upendra Lal v. Meheraj Bibi, 21 C.W.N. 108. See also Bejoy Singh v. Krishna Behari, 45 Cal. 259, s.c., 21 C.W.N. 959, see also Rudreshwari Prosad v. Dhana Mahto, 52 I.C. 119 (Patna case): Where, in a kabuliyat executed by a dar-putnidar in favour of a putnidar a sum of four rupees was agreed to be paid in lieu of certain quantities of jack fruit, bamboos and fish, which the defendant was to present annually to the plaintiff, and it was stipulated for in a perfectly distinct claim from that in which the payment of the rent was contracted for and further, while the rent was payable quarterly, the produce or its money value equivalent was to be given or paid in due instalment, held, that the sum of Rs. 4 was an abwab: Krishna Chunder v. Susila, 3 C.W.N. 608. All cesses are illegal when they are not specifically included in the contract under which a tenant pays rent: Dhalle v. Anund, 5 W.R., Act X, P. 86. Where a landlord claimed to recover a cess of so much goor on every maund manufactured, held, that as no agreement was entered into between the parties for this extra payment, the claim was an illegal cess. Sonnum Sookool, 7 W.R. 453. A purobi (festival cess) is an arbitrary and indefinite cess and is not recoverable: Kamola Kant v. Kanoo Mohomed, 11 W.R. 395, but see Jugodish v. Turikoolah, 24 W.R. 90. Puja Kharchi, i.e., expenses for Puja agreed to be paid in excess of rents is an abwab: Narendra Kumar v. Gora Chand, 3 C.L.J. 391: s.c., 33 Cal. 683. A contract to provide for the collection and payments of an illegal cess is illegal: Kamola Kant v. Kano Mohomed, 11 W.R. 395. A put-waree's wages and allowance are in the nature of illegal cesses: Mengur v. Huree Mohun, 23 W.R. 477: see also Burmah Chowdry v. Sreenund, 12 W.R. 29. A sum of money realised from a tenant as bhiksha is an abwab: Nabin v. Gooroo, 25 W.R. 8. A sum collected by a teshildar as purvibhiksha or present for an annoprasan ceremony was held to be an abwab: Nobin v. Gooroo, 14 W.R. 447. A landlord is not entitled to sue for a declaration of his right to levy a cess upon a tenant who grazes his cattle upon the land comprised in his own tenure, within the precincts of his landlord's mehal, there being no contract between them whereby the tenant was bound to pay such a cess: Bhugeeruth v. Ram Narain, 9 W.R. 299 (at p. 300). An agreement to give a certain number of cocoanuts as bhet and to perform beggar services without remuneration is an abwab: Aparna Charan v. Karamali, 10 C.W.N. 527: s.c., 4 C.L.J. 527. Batta usual is an abwab; Radha Mohun v. Ganga Prasad, 7 Mac. Sel. R. 166; Chakan Saha v. Rupchand, S.D.A. 680; Chuttan Mahto v. Tilakdhari, 11 Cal. 175; Radha Prasad v. Balkowar, 17 Cal. 726; Mir Tapura v. Gopinarayan, 7 C.L.J. 251.

Dastur, Hazzatenama and Sonari are abwabs: Chuttan Mahto v. Tilakdhari, 11 Cal. 175; Mir Tapurah v. Gopinarayan, 7 C.L.J. 251; Chanda is an abwab: Millis v. Megnath Thakur, S.D.A. 4; Mir Tapura v. Gopi Narayan, 7 C.L.J. 251. Selami and percentage being arbitrary and indefinite demands are abwabs; Mir Tapuar v. Gopinarayan, 7 C.L.J. 251.

Mokarari lease before the Bengal Tenancy Act, — selami, holi &c., charges.

In a mokurari lease, executed before the Bengal Tenancy Act came into operation, there was an agreement to pay a certain sum as rent and a certain additional sum as zemindari selami, holi &c., expenses which latter was found to be arbitrary and extra charges imposed on the tenants on account of work done in the zemindari sherestha and for other purpose ; held following the case of Radha Prasad v. Bal Kowar, 17 Cal. 726 that the additional sum was an illegal cess : Bepin Behary v. Prokash Chandra, 13 C.L.J. 148.

True test.— Interpretation of contract.

Whether an amount claimed by the landlord is or is not an illegal cess depends upon the construction of the contract of the parties. If upon a fair interpretation of the terms of the contract, the sum claimed can be deemed part of the actual rent, the tenant is bound by it ; if, on the other hand, the sum claimed can only be regarded as an imposition in addition to the actual rent, the stipulation for its payment is void : Mathura Prasad v. Tata Singh, 16 C.L.J. 296 ; s.c., 40 Cal. 806 ; where throughout the lease, the yearly rent was described as Rs. 252-6 ans, assessed at the rate of Rs. 3-4 ans., a bigha, upon the area demised, and at the end of the lease, in a clause entirely distinct, provision was made for delivery of four cart-loads of huck, valued at Rs. 5 per cart load and this additional sum of Rs. 20 was not expressly or by implication, made part of the rent, held, that the claim for the value of the huck was in the nature of an abwab : Ibid. This case was followed in the case of Kalar Singh v. Mathura Prasad, 19 C.L.J. 402.

Price of presents and unpaid labour.

Where the jama in a lease was mentioned as Rs. 360 and then there was an additional item under the heading of "price of presents and unpaid labour" amounting to Rs. 17-4 ans., and these two sums as amounting to Rs. 377-4 ans. was put under the heading of "Total rent," and in regard to the sum of Rs. 17-4 ans. the kabuliyat provided : "Besides I shall, every year at the time of the Saradiya (Durga) Puja, give four castrated goats as presents and shall supply you labour without wages for five days, which if I fail to do I shall have no objection to your realising the sum of Rs. 17-4 ans. as price of the said presents and labour in addition to the amount of rent," held, that the sum of Rs. 17-4 ans. was an abwab : Sreekanta v. Irshad, 16 C.L.J. 225, approved of in Mathura Prasad v. Totasingh, 40 Cal. 806, s.c., 16 C.L.J. 296.

Price of goats.

A stipulation in a kabuliyat to deliver two goats or to pay Rs. 4 as price thereof in addition to the rent stipulated to be paid in a previous paragraph of the lease was considered to be an abwab : Gayratulla v. Girish Chandra, 12 C.W.N. 175. See notes under heading No. 4.

Collection charge.

4. What is not an abwab :—As to whether collection charges are abwabs, each depends upon its own particular circumstances and the contract is to be looked at to see whether the payment which the tenant agreed to make is in reality part of the rent as opposed to what is known as an abwab : Radha Charan v. Golok Chandra, 31 Cal. 834, s.c., 8 C.W.N. 529 : Collection charges agreed to be paid by a tenant are not abwabs and may be recovered if they are certain and definite in their nature and form part of the consideration for the lease : Mohomed Fayez v. Jamoo, 8 Cal. 730. See also Radha Charan v. Golak Chandra, 31 Cal. 834. Where in a putni kabuliyat there was the following clause :—"According to the practice prevailing in the pargana, we shall annually pay the collection charges at the rate of 2 annas per rupee along with the instalments of the annual rent," Garth, C. J., in delivering judgment said as follows:—We believe that agreements of this kind are by no means unusual, and if they are certain and definite in their nature, and form part of the consideration for the lease, there is no reason why they should not be enforced: Ibid. Purabee. A purabee which is part of the consideration for which the agreement was entered into is legally enforceable: Juggodish v. Turikoolah, 24 W.R. 90, but see Kumala Kant v. Kanoo Mohomed, 11 W.R. 395. "Abwabs," as I understand them, "are cesses which a raiyat is compelled to pay to the Zemindar in excess of his rent. If the Zemindar demands a cess over and above the original rent, and the raiyat consents and contracts to pay it, then this demand and the old rent form a new rent lawfully claimable under the contract:" (Per Ainslie J.) Jeatoolah v. Jugodindra, 22 W.R. 12; See also Dhallee v. Anund, 5 W.R., Act X, 86. If a tenant for the purpose of preventing disputes with his landlord and for securing his own interest thinks fit, agree to make a definite payment to his landlord in addition to his asal jumma, the law rather favours such arrangement and the same is enforceable at law: Serajgunge Jute Company v. Torabdee Akoond, 25 W.R. 252; certain payments which were fixed and uniform and had been paid ever since the occupation of the land, held that the sums were not illegal cesses: Budhna Oraiban v. Jemadar Baboo, 24 W.R. 4. Money agreed to be paid by tenant. Cess incorporated with rent.

What is or is not an abwab must depend upon the circumstances of each particular case in which the question arises: Pudmanund v. Baijnath, 15 Cal. 828: where certain sums were claimed as tewhari and salami held that the same was recoverable and not abwabs inasmuch as they were specific sums which the tenants had agreed to pay to the landlord and the payment of these items, no less than the payment of the jumma itself, formed part of the consideration upon which the tenancy was created: Ibid. But this case has been overruled by the case of Radha Prasad v. Bal Kowar, 17 Cal. 726 (at p. 740). See also Tiluckdari Singh v. Chulan Mahton, 16 I.A. 152, s. c. 17 Cal. 131. Where the payment of the chowkidari tax was one of the terms of a putni settlement and was made for valuable consideration, held that the same was recoverable and not an abwab: Assanullah Khan v. Tirthabashini, 22 Cal. 683. Uniform payments since the occupation of land by the tenant.

A claim for company's batta is not necessarily a claim for an abwab: if the rent was fixed in sicca rupees and batta is claimed so as to make the demand equivalent in current coin the demand is not illegal: Ram Saran v. Gyan Sing, 6 C.L.J. 637. As to where batta is an abwab and where not, see also Rameshwar v. Gobardhan, 7 C.L.J. 202; Ram Khelwan v. Kumar Rai, 6 C.L.J. 667; Chucken Sahoo v. Rup Chand, S., D.A., 680; batta is not an Abwab if it is merely an allowance for the exchange of sicca rupees into company's rupees, the latter of which was introduced by Act XVII of 1835 and the former ceased to be legal tender by Act XIII of 1836: if the rent claimed in a suit was fixed before 1836, batta is prima facie not an abwab, if not, it is prima facie an abwab: Ibid. Company's batta.

Where a non-transferable occupancy holding was sold and the landlord recognised the transferee as a tenant without any payment of selami on consideration of the transferee agreeing to pay an increase of the rent, held that the increase of rent stipulated was not an Additional sum agreed to be held over and

abwab: Sarat Chandra v. Shyam Chand Sinha Ray, 39 Cal. 663; s. c., 16 C.L.J. 71.

In a record of rights the rent payable by a tenant was stated to be one half the produce; in a suit for rent the landlord claimed more than that and both parties agreed to a decree at the rate claimed which was being paid for a long time, held that the decree did not contravene the provisions of s. 70 and that the excess claimed was not an abwab: Fazl Imam v. Sukor Mahtun, 19 C.L.J. 333.

Selami and tehwari.

If a particular sum specified in the lease or a suit to be paid is the lawful consideration for the use and occupation of the land that is to say, if it is really part of the rent, although not described as such, the landlord would be entitled to recover the same and the whole question in the case is whether the items claimed are really part of the rent, which was the consideration for the letting out of the land: Kalanund Singh v. Eastern Mortgage Agency Co. Ltd., 18 C.L.J. 83. Where it was stipulated in a lease in the year 1874 that the tenant would pay a fixed jamma of Rs. 4,310 of which the sum of Rs. 4,300 was described as jama, Rs. 5 as selami towji and Rs. 5 as tehwari dasahra, held, that the stipulation for the payment of selami and tehwari was not a stipulation or reservation for the payment of arbitrary or indefinite cesses but in the language of s. 3 of Reg. V. of 1812 was "a definite clause in the engagement contracted between the parties" which should be maintained and given effect to: Ibid.

Peshkosh

Peshkosh, a fixed annual sum, paid as a contribution towards the expense incurred in repairing embankment was held to be not an abwab: Lakhmi Narain v. Secretary of State: 28 C.L.J. 285, s. c. 45 Cal. 866 (Richardson and Beachcroft, J.J.); the unreported case of Sumbhoo Lall v. Collector of Surat (second appeal no. 44 of 1912 decided on the 30th July 1915 by Jenkins C. J. and Holmwood J.) was referred to and relied on.

Costs for improvement and Bhet expenses, included in rent, when not an abwab.

Where in a kabuliyat rent was fixed at a certain rate per Kani of land and a further sum was mentioned as payable on account of improvement of Dak and Bhet expenses and the whole sum was put down as rent total, held that the sum mentioned for Dak and Bhet expenses formed part of the rent payable for the land, and did not constitute an abwab within the meaning of s. 74 of the Bengal Tenancy Act: Nalini Bhusan v. Ali Mia, 51 Cal. 643. (Suhrawardy and Page J.J.).

Bhet.

Where the sum of Rs. 14 was mentioned as rent, Rs. 2 and odd as cess, and a stipulation for delivery of bhet (present) on Saradiya Puja day of a goat and forty pieces of sugarcane, (the value of these two items being Rs. 3 and odd, and in the Kistibandi of the patta the whole sum of Rs. 19 and odd made up of the various items detailed above were treated as the total rent and was payable in different instalments, held that the whole sum of Rs. 19 odd was rent, no part of it was an abwab: Barada Charan v. Alljan, 25 C.W.N. 72 (notes).

Goats.

Where the intention of the parties as stated in the kabuliyat, was that the total rental of a jote would be Rs. 106-1-6 made up of Rs. 97-8 annas in cash, two he-goats (deliverable at the time of the Dussera Puja) or their price Rs. 2-8 annas and Rs. 6-1-6 as cesses; held that the annual rental was Rs. 100 and cesses Rs. 6-1-6 as mentioned in the kabuliyat. There is nothing in the law prohibiting a stipulation that two he-goats are to be delivered as part of the consideration for the use and occupation of the land: Jogesh Chandra v. Sharfuddin, 54 Cal. 799, s.c., 32 C.W.N. 81, s.c., 46 C.L.J. 298. (Mukerji and Cammiade, JJ.).

Real abwabs are payments or deliveries, sometimes fixed and customary and sometimes arbitrary and uncertain, which were not agreed upon between the parties as consideration for the use and occupation of the land. Ibid.

In each case it has to be determined whether or not the item called in question as an abwab is covered by the definition of the term rent as given in section 3 sub-section (5), Bengal Tenancy Act. To put it in other words, it must be found that that item is part of the consideration agreed to be paid or delivered by the tenant for the use and occupation of the land, provided that such consideration is lawful. The consideration may be wholly monetary or wholly one in kind or it may be partly in money and partly in kind. The Statute does not restrict consideration in kind to grain or other produce of the soil. He-goats may form part of the consideration. The payments in money or the deliveries in kind at which the law strikes are such as are not payable or deliverable under the terms of the contract between the landlord and the tenant. Ibid.

see notes under heading No. 3.

A kattihari charge in respect of looms worked by tenant in his Kattihari house is not an abwab: Bhagwati v. Mahabub, 37 I.C. 813, (Per charge. Jwala Prasad J.).

5. Personal covenant:—Where a durpulni lease stipulated the Personal payment of Rs. 1,009 as rent and Rs. 10 annually in the event of covenant. default in supplying the landlord with a certain quantity of molasses, held that the sum of Rs. 10 was not a part of the rent but it was a mere personal covenant by the lease: Rajnarain v. Panna Chand, 7 C.W.N. 203.

6. Abwab not legally recoverable by reason of its being paid previously:—An abwab is not legally recoverable even when it is proved that by the custom of the estate of which the lands form part, it has been paid by the tenant and his ancestors for a good many years: Chutton Mahton v. Tilukdhari Singh, 11 Cal. 175 (F.B.); see also Radha Mohun v. Gunga Pershad, 7 Sel. Rep. 142 (o. e.), 166. A mere payment of rent including an illegal cess for three years does not justify a landlord to recover it: Dhalle v. Anund, 5 W.R., Act X, p. 86. "It does not follow that, because the defendant had been adjudged to pay particular cess or other demand in a particular year, he should therefore be compelled to pay it for ever." Per Jackson, J., Orjoon Sahoo v. Anund Singh, 10 W.R. 257. If any portion of the sum claimed from the tenant is an illegal cess which has never been consolidated with the rent, it is not recoverable even if it has been decreed at any previous stage by a judicial decision: Radha Prosad v. Balkowar, 17 Cal. 726. The mere fact that in a previous rent-suit the tenant did not raise the plea that an item claimed was an abwab would not, in the absence of a judicial determination of the point in the previous suit, preclude him from raising the plea in the subsequent suit: Woomesh v. Baroda, 28 Cal. 17. Abwab not recoverable even if recovered before;

7. Resjudicata:—Where in a suit for rent the defendant did not raise any plea to an illegal cess which was allowed to the plaintiff, held in a subsequent suit that the tenant was not precluded from raising the plea: Woomesh Chandra v. Baroda Das, 28 Cal. 17, the Erroneous decision of law.

principle in the case of Koilas Mondal v. Boroda Das, 24 Cal. 711, and Radha Prosad v. Balkeri, 17 Cal. 726, was followed in this case. But where in a previous suit certain cesses claimed by the plaintiff were disallowed as not recoverable under law, held in a second suit that the former decision operated as resudicata: Padmananda Singh v. Radha Singh, 9 C.W.N. 469. The view of law taken in this case seems to be opposed to the principle in the case of Alimunnisa v. Shyama Charan, 32 Cal. 749, s. c., 9 C.W.N. 466 s. c., 1 C.L.J. 176, where although it was a case of interest the same principle was involved. An erroneous decision upon a question of law is resjudicata in a subsequent suit: Waman v. Hari, 31 Bom. 28, see notes under heading Resjudicata, in. s. 67.

Suit by
landlord
gomastha.

8. Suit against a teshildar for abwabs collected by him :— If the tenants make any payments to the teshildar in excess of the rents due from them and those payments are made voluntarily, then the teshildar, having received them for the landlord, is clearly bound to account, for them ; but if the teshildar collects illegal cesses from the tenant, the landlord is not entitled to recover them from him ; Nobin v. Gooroo, 25 W.R. 8. This case was decided under Act X of 1859 and it has been dissented from in the case of Nagendra Bala v. Gurudoyal, 30 Cal. 101 s. c., 7 C.W.N. 535, where it has been laid down that a landlord's agent is liable to pay to the landlord any sums collected by the agent from the tenants as khurcha or illegal cesses and a suit by a landlord for recovery of such sums against his agent is maintainable.

Does s. 179
control s.

9. When abwabs recoverable :—S. 179 provides that "Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to prevent a proprietor or a holder of a permanent tenure in a permanently settled area from granting a permanent makurari lease on any terms agreed on between him and his tenant." It has been held therefore that s. 179 is not controlled by this section, consequently the provisions of this section do not prevent the holder of a permanent tenure from granting a permanent mokurari lease "on any terms" he pleases, that is, even stipulating for the payment of an abwab: Khrishna Chunder v. Susila, 3 C.W.N. 608 ; see also Gayratulla v. Girish Chandra, 12 C.W.N. 175. It is submitted with great respect that these decisions do not lay down a sound proposition of law, for s. 179, when it says that a mokurari lease can be granted on any terms, it does not mean any illegal terms but only such terms which otherwise legal but not sanctioned by any provision of the Bengal Tenancy Act. The imposition of an abwab, that is, an illegal cess is not lawful apart from s. 74. A landlord is entitled to get rent merely from a tenant ; when there is relationship of landlord and tenant, the liability of the tenant is to pay "rent" on account of his occupation of land, and therefore any sum which is agreed to be paid over and above rent is not recoverable ; "rent" is a charge on the tenure (s. 65) ; if any sum is levied over and above "rent" even if such stipulation is lawful, it cannot be recovered as rent under the Bengal Tenancy Act. But abwabs are not recoverable from a permanent tenure-holder under a lease created before the Bengal Tenancy Act and the provision in s. 179 will not apply: Apurna Charan v. Kasamali, 10 C.W.N. 527 : s. c., 4 C.L.J. 527. The landlord cannot now recover an abwab which he could not recover before the passing of the Act. Ibid. See notes under s. 179.

10. Abwab payable at the time of the Permanent Settlement :—An abwab payable at the time of the Permanent Settlement unless consolidated with the rent under s. 54 of Reg. VIII of 1793, cannot be recovered under s. 61 of that Regulation: Tiluckdhari v. Chulhan, 16 I.A. 152: s. c., 17 Cal. 131.

II. Enhancement of rent—Illegal cess:—In a suit for enhancement of rent against a tenant on the ground of the prevailing rate being higher than what is paid by the tenant, a Court cannot legally include patewareen and other abwabs paid by raiyats in the neighbouring lands: Burmah Chowdry v. Sreenund Singh, 12 W.R. 29. Prevailing rate.

12. Contract to pay whole of cess payable by landlord:—There is nothing in s. 41 of the Cess Act of 1880 (Act IX, B. C. of 1880) to prevent a landlord from realising the whole amount of the cess from a tenant under a contract: Eastern Mortgage and Agency Co. v. Rai Gunput Singh, 9 C.W.N. 23 (notes): Narendra Kumar v. Gorachand, 33 Cal. 683 s. c. 3 C.L.J. 391; Asutosh v. Amir Molla, 3 C.L.J. 327. Road cess is not abwab: Ibid. But the law in this respect as far as regards contracts after the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Amendment Act, 1919, is to be found in sub-sections (2) and (3) of this section. Road cess, not an abwab.

75. Every tenant from whom, except under any special enactment for the time being in force, any sum of money or any portion of the produce of his land is exacted by his landlord in excess of the rent or road cess or public works cess or interest lawfully payable, may, subject to the second proviso to sub-section (2) of section 74, within six months from the date of the exaction, institute a suit to recover from the landlord, in addition to the amount or value of what is so exacted, such sum by way of penalty as the Court thinks fit, not exceeding two hundred rupees; or when double the amount or value of what is so exacted exceeds two hundred rupees, not exceeding double that amount or value.

75. Every tenant from whom, except under any special enactment for the time being in force, any sum of money or any portion of the produce of his land is exacted by his landlord in excess of the rent or interest lawfully payable, may, within six months from the date of the exaction, institute a suit to recover from the landlord, in addition to the amount or value of what is so exacted, such sum by way of penalty as the Court thinks fit, not exceeding two hundred rupees; or, when double the amount or value of what is so exacted exceeds two hundred rupees, not exceeding double that amount or value. Penalty for exaction by landlord from tenant of sum in excess of the rent payable.

1. Amendments :—The words “or interest” after the word “rent” were inserted by Act I (B.C.) of 1907 and Act I (E. B. A. Council) of 1908. By Bengal Act No. III of 1919 the following amendments were made: (1) after the words “in excess of the rent” the words “or road cess or public works cess” were inserted; and (2) after the words “lawfully payable, may” the following was inserted, namely :—“subject to the second proviso to sub-sec. (2) of section 74.”

Exaction
other than by process
of law.

2. Scope of the section :—S. 75 evidently contemplates exaction by means other than process of law, and section does not take away the right of a person from whom rent has been realised in excess to recover such excess amount from the landlord apart from the provisions of the section within the ordinary period of limitation : Nagendra v. Raju Bibee, 17 C.W.N. 374.

3. Exacted :—This section evidently contemplates exaction by means other than process of law : Nagendra v. Raju Bibee, 17 C.W.N. 374, see also Chandramoni v. Debendranath, Marsh 420.

4. Limitation :—S. 75 merely enables a tenant to recover from his landlord certain penalty in addition to the amount or value of what is exacted, if the suit is brought within 6 months from the date of the exaction, and the limitation provided by the section does not bar a suit to recover the excess amount where no penalty is claimed : Nagendra Lal v. Raju Bibee, 17 C.W.N. 374; where the putnidar sued for a declaration that the talook held by him bore money rents and not paddy rents and for refund of the amount deposited by him in excess of the proper rent under s. 14 of Reg viii of 1819, held that the suit was not governed by the special limitation provided by s. 75 of the Bengal Tenancy Act and by Art. 14 of Sch. 1 of the Limitation Act (IX of 1908). Ibid; to bring a suit for refund of the excess amount realised by the zemindar in proceedings under the Putni Regulation, it is not necessary to set aside the Collector's award under s. 14 of the Regulation; there is no provision of law for setting aside such an award. Ibid.

A suit to recover a sum of money alleged to have been paid by the plaintiffs to the defendants in excess of the sum demandable by the latter from former on account of road-cess and public works cess is governed by Art. 96 of the second schedule of the Limitation Act; Mathura Nath v. Steel, 12 Cal. 555.

Suit under this section lies in a Small Cause
Court.

5. Jurisdiction of Court :—A suit under this section for the recovery of a sum which the plaintiff, the tenant of the defendant, claims in respect of excess payments made by him in respect of the rent of his holding is cognizable by the Small Cause Court : Rungo Roy v. Frederick Holloway, 4 C.W.N. 95. S. 144 has no bearing upon the question of the nature of the suit; it determines the jurisdiction within which suits are to be instituted; Ibid. Under the old Act (X of 1859) it was held that a suit for an illegal exaction of rent did not lie in a Small Cause Court but in a Revenue Court ; Subbo Chunder v. Woomanund, 11 W.R. 412 ; but a suit to recover money deposited with the defendant to be applied in payment of rent was held to lie in a Civil Court and not before a Collector ; Dabee Golam v. Chunder Kant, 3 W.R. 109, but see Rampershad v. Ramtohl, Marsh, 655.

Where notwithstanding a certain portion of the rent was paid, the landlord realised the entire rent by taking proceedings under Reg. VIII of 1819, held that a suit was not maintainable under Act X of 1859 for the portion of the rent which had been previously paid : Chunder Monnee v. Debender Nath, Marsh. 520 ; sum is recoverable by a suit in the ordinary civil suit : Debender Nath v. Chunder Monnee, 2 Hay 519. Suit for recovery of money illegally recovered under Reg. VIII of 1819.

Where plaintiff sued to recover the value of his share of the crop which defendant had appropriated, held that the claim was not for a sum exacted in excess of rent within the meaning of s. 10, Act X, 1859, and that the suit lay in the Small Cause Court : Gurreeboolla v. Fakeer Mohomed, 10 W.R. 203. S. 10, Act X of 1859.

6. Except under any enactment :—Act IX of 1880, B. C. Act II of 1882, B. C., Act V of 1875, B. C., Act III of 1876, B. C., Act VI of 1882, B. C., ss. 47, 74, 38, 83, 44, respectively.

7. Suit against a teshildar :—If the tenants make any payments to the teshildar in excess of the rents due from them, and those payments are made voluntarily, then the teshildar having received them for the plaintiff is clearly bound to account for them ; but if these sums are received by the teshildar as bhiksha and are exacted by him they would come under the head of illegal cesses ; and in that case no action lies at the instance of the landlord to recover them : Nabin Chunder v. Gooroo Gobind, 29 W.R. 8. But the case has been doubted in the case of Nagendrabala v. Gurudoyal, 30 Cal. 1011, s. c. 7 C.W.N. 535, where it has been held that an agent is liable to account to the landlord for any illegal cesses he might have recovered from the tenants. Suit by landlord against a teshildar.

CHAPTER IX.

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS AS TO LAND- LORDS AND TENANTS.

Improvements.

Improvements.

Definition of "improvement."

76. (1) For the purposes of this Act, the term "improvement," used with reference to a raiyat's holding, shall mean any work which adds to the value of the holding which is suitable to the holding and consistent with the purpose for which it was let, and which, if not executed on the holding, is either executed directly for its benefit, or is, after execution, made directly beneficial to it.

(2) Until the contrary is shown, the following shall be presumed to be improvements within the meaning of this section :—

- (a) the construction of wells, tanks, water-channels and other works for the storage, supply or distribution of water for the purposes of agriculture, or for the use of men and cattle employed in agriculture ;
- (b) the preparation of land for irrigation ;
- (c) the drainage, reclamation from rivers or other waters, or protection from floods, or from erosion or other damage by water, of land used for agricultural purposes, or waste land which is culturable ;
- (d) the reclamation, clearance, enclosure or permanent improvement of land for agricultural purposes ;
- (e) the renewal or reconstruction of any of the foregoing works, or alterations therein or additions thereto ; and
- (f) the erection of a suitable dwelling-house for the raiyat and his family, together with all necessary out-offices.

(3) But no work executed by the raiyat of a holding shall be deemed to be an improvement for the purposes of this Act if it substantially diminishes the value of his landlord's property.

3. TANK.
4. DAMAGES.
5. S. 188: SUIT BY A CO-SHARER FOR COMPELLING THE TENANT TO FILL UP A TANK. .

I. Embankment Act:—The general provisions contained in s. 23 and Chap. IX of the Bengal Tenancy Act, do not repeal the Embankment Act, Lakshmi Kant v. Emperor, 29 C.L.J. 328.

Land Improvement Loans Act:—The terms of this section follow closely those of sec. 4 of the Land Improvement Loans Act. (XIX of 1883).

2. Dwelling-house:—"It may well be that in particular places raiyats having rights of occupancy in land for agricultural purposes may by custom have the right to transfer it to any person to hold for the same purpose, but that will not carry with it the proposition that a person who may be desirous of erecting a large house in the midst of an agricultural mehal, can buy up the tenures and rights of several cultivators, and convert the land which they formerly occupied into a dwelling-house and appurtenances" (Per Jackson, J.); Jugat Chunder v. Eshan Chunder, 25 W.R. 220. Where an occupancy raiyat erected a pucca building, held that the landlord did in no way suffer by the building of a pucca house and on the contrary the land was rendered more valuable and the tenant was not bound to remove the building: Nayamatoollah v. Gobind Churn, 6 W.R., Act X, 40. "We think it clear that every man possessed of a right to hold the land permanently,—that is of a right of occupancy,—can do what he likes with the land so long as he does not injure it to the zemindar's detriment." (Per Campbell and Jackson, JJ.): Ibid. A suitable dwelling-house of a raiyat within the meaning of this section need not necessarily be of a temporary description: Hari Kishore v. Barada Kishore, 31 Cal. 1014, s. c. 8 C.W.N. 754; the question raised in the case was whether an occupancy raiyat had a right to erect as a dwelling-house a building consisting of masonry walls and a corrugated iron roof 18 cubits by 14 cubits on a jote in the holding on which the dwelling-house had all along stood, held that the raiyat had a right to do so: Ibid. In this case the building which it was proposed to erect was not one which on account of its size was unsuitable to the character of the holding. [See in this connection Prosunno v. Jagannath, 10 C.L.R. 25; Anand Coomar v. Bissonath, 17 W.R. 416; Beni Madhub v. Jaikishna, 7 B.L.R. 152: s. c., 12 W.R. 495.]

Conversion of agricultural land into a dwelling house.

Pucca building.

Occupancy raiyat entitled to use holding in any manner he likes but not to injure to the zemindar's detriment.

A tenant who erects building on land in which he has no permanent interest is not entitled to compensation on being evicted on the termination of his tenancy: Ismail Khan v. Kali Krishna, 6 C.W.N. 134.

Compensation.

"A tenant is entitled to effect on his holding any improvement which would add to the value of the holding. The clauses which specify what constitutes improvements within the meaning of s. 76 of the Bengal Tenancy Act are not exhaustive." Mahadeo v. Sheogulam, 2 Pat. L.J. 634.

Section not exhaustive.

Dwelling house need not be of temporary description.

The fact that an occupancy raiyat has a house in an adjacent mouja does not deprive him of his right to erect upon the holding another house for the purpose of making a residence for himself and his family : Mahadeo v. Sheogulam ; 2 Pat. L.J. 634.

There is nothing in s. 76 to indicate that suitable dwelling of an occupancy raiyat must be of a temporary description only : Surendra Nath v. Nakoor Chandra, 64 I.C. 716, (Mookerjee, C.J. and Fletcher, J.).

Excavation of tank in contravention of agreement.

3. Tank :—If a tenant in contravention of an agreement excavates a tank the damages which should be awarded to the landlord should be merely nominal in case the tank is an improvement and is beneficial ; the amount of damages was fixed for Rs. 5 plus the amount of nazar which the tenant would have to pay to the landlord for such permission : Krishna Das v. Mahendra Chandra Sil, 62 I.C. 779. See notes under s. 155.

Nominal damages.

Where s 76 applicable.

Where a tank was excavated by a raiyat on a part of his holding when there was already another tank, held that in order to make s. 76 applicable, it must in the first instance be shewn that the tank in question was excavated for the purpose of agriculture, or for the use of men and cattle employed in agriculture ; digging of tank for the purpose of providing good drinking water did not come within the provisions of s. 76 : Gobinda Chandra v. Kamijuddi, 16 C.L.J. 127 ; it was for the tenant to shew that the tank was required for the purpose of providing drinking water and not for the purpose of agriculture : Ibid.

Digging of tanks for drinking water.

Contract by permanent tenure-holder not to excavate tank.

Where a tenure-holder undertook in his lease not to excavate any tank in the property and when a raiyat who had taken a sublease from the tenure-holder excavated a tank and the raiyat was unaware of any restrictive covenant in his landlord's lease, held that the tenure-holder was liable to damages to his landlord and that the raiyat was not ; Akshoy Kumar v. Akman Molla, 19 C.W.N. 1197. s. c. 20 C.L.J. 551. See notes under s. 194.

S. 194.

S. 194 of the Act provides as follows :—Where a proprietor or permanent tenure-holder holds his estate or tenure subject to the observance of any specified rule or condition, nothing in this Act shall entitle any person occupying land within the estate or tenure to do any act which involves a violation of that rule or condition.

This section seems to control the previous sections of the Act including s. 178, consequently it seems that a permanent tenure-holder who holds his lease under a restrictive covenant not to excavate a tank may impose a similar restriction on a raiyat, and the latter will not therefore be entitled to excavate a tank although the same may be an improvement ; see in this connection the case of Akshoy Kumar v. Akman Molla, 19 C.W.N. 1197.

Damages for-excavation of tank where no actual damages.

4. Damages :—Where there was breach of a covenant not to excavate any tank the landlord, though he may not suffer any actual damage, is entitled to nominal damages which is not necessarily small damages : Akshoy Kumar v. Akman Molla, 19 C.W.N. 1197.

Measure of damages for waste committed by a tenant.

A covenant by a tenant not to commit waste on the demised property is not with regard to the measure of damages for the breach of it the same thing as a covenant to deliver up the property at the end of the term in the same state as that in which he received it ; therefore, in an action for damages by the reversioner against the tenant for waste, the measure of damages is not necessarily the sum which it would cost to restore the property to its condition before the waste ; the true measure of damages is the diminution of the value of the reversion less a discount for immediate payment : Whitham v. Kershaw, 16 Q.B.D. 613.

5. S. 188 : Suit by a co-sharer for compelling the tenant to fill up a tank :—A suit by a co-sharer landlord for the purpose of compelling the tenant to fill up a tank which he had wrongfully excavated in one part of his holding, in the alternative, for damages, does not fall within the scope of s. 188 of the Bengal Tenancy Act : Gobinda Chandra v. Kamijuddi, 16 C.L.J. 127.

77. (1) Where a raiyat holds at fixed rates or has an occupancy-right in his holding, neither the raiyat nor his landlord shall, as such, be entitled to prevent the other from making an improvement in respect of the holding, except on the ground that he is willing to make it himself.

S. 188 does not apply to a suit to compel tenant to fill up tank.
Right to make improvements in case of holding at fixed rates and occupancy holding.

(2) If both the raiyat and his landlord wish to make the same improvement, the raiyat shall have the prior right to make it, unless it affects another holding or other holdings under the same landlord.

Fixed rate :—The words “fixed rate ” seem to mean fixed rate or rent fixed in perpetuity. See s. 18.

78. If a question arises between the raiyat and his landlord—

- (a) as to the right to make an improvement, or
- (b) as to whether a particular work is an improvement, the Collector may, on the application of either party, decide the question, and his decision shall be final.

Collector to decide question as to right to make improvement, &c.

79. (1) A non-occupancy raiyat shall be entitled to construct, maintain and repair a well for the irrigation of his holding, with all works incidental thereto, and to erect a suitable dwelling-house for himself and his family, with all necessary out-offices but shall not, except as aforesaid and as next hereinafter provided, be entitled to make any other improvement in respect of his holding without his landlord's permission.

Right to make improvements in case of non-occupancy holding.

(2) A non-occupancy raiyat who would, but for the want of his landlord's permission, be entitled to make an improvement in respect of his holding, may, if he desires that the improvement be made, deliver, or cause to be delivered, to his landlord a request in writing calling upon him to make the improvement within a reasonable time ; and, if the landlord is unable or neglects to comply with that request, may make the improvement himself.

See notes under s. 76.

Registration of landlord's improvements.

80. (1) A landlord may, by application to such Revenue-officer as the Local Government may appoint, register any improvement which he has lawfully made or which has been lawfully made at his expense or which he has assisted a tenant in making.

(2) The application shall be in such form, shall contain such information, and shall be verified in such manner, by local inquiry or otherwise, as the Local Government, from time to time, by rule directs.

(3) The officer receiving the application may reject it if it has not been made within twelve months—

(a) in the case of improvements made before the commencement of this Act—from the commencement of this Act;

(b) in the case of improvements made after the commencement of this Act—from the date of the completion of the work.

1. Rules :—See Appendix.

2. Such Revenue Officer :—Cal. Gaz., Feb. 6th, 1889, at I, p. 87. See Appendix.

Application to record evidence as to improvement.

81. (1) If any landlord or tenant of a holding desires that evidence relating to any improvement made in respect thereof be recorded, he may apply to a Revenue-officer, who shall thereupon, at a time and place of which notice shall be given to the parties, record the evidence, unless he considers that there are no reasonable grounds for making the application, or it is made to appear that the subject-matter thereof is under inquiry in a Civil Court.

(2) When any matter has been recorded under this section, the record thereof shall be admissible in evidence in every subsequent proceeding between the landlord and tenant or any persons claiming under them.

Compensation for raiyyats' improvements.

82. (1) Every raiyat who is ejected from his holding shall be entitled to compensation for improvements which have been made in respect thereof in accordance with this Act by him, or by his predecessor in interest, and for which compensation has not already been paid.

(2) Whenever a Court makes a decree or order for the ejection of a raiyat, it shall determine the amount of compensation (if any) due under this section to the raiyat for improvements, and shall make the decree or order of ejectment conditional on the payment of that amount to the raiyat.

(3) ~~No compensation under this section for an improvement shall be claimable where the raiyat has made the improvement in pursuance of a contract or under a lease binding him, in consideration of some substantial advantage to be obtained by him, to make the improvement without compensation, and he has obtained that advantage.~~

(4) Improvements made by a raiyat between the second day of March, 1883, and the commencement of this Act shall be deemed to have been made in accordance with this Act.

(5) The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, make rules requiring the Court to associate with itself, for the purpose of estimating the compensation to be awarded under this section for an improvement, such number of assessors as the Local Government thinks fit, and determining the qualifications of those assessors and the mode of selecting them.

Notes :—S. 82 has been drawn from similar provisions in the Agricultural Holding Act of 1883 (46 and 47 Vict., c. 68).

“There is no law of emblements in this country ; neither does the Bengal Tenancy Act make any provision for the heir, executor or administrator taking away crops or the benefit of improvements made by a non-occupancy raiyat in case of his death before the crops are taken away or before he gets compensation for improvements made by him.” Per Brett., J., in Mohunt Lukhan Narain v. Jainath Panday, 34 Cal. 516, s. c. 11 C.W.N. 626 (640), s. c., 5 C.L.J. 457. It has now been held that a non-occupancy raiyat's holding is heritable: Midnapur Zemindary Co. Ltd. v. Hrishikesh Ghosh, 18 C.W.N. 828, s. c., 19 C.L.J., 505 (F.B.).

83. (1) In estimating the compensation to be awarded under the last foregoing section for an improvement, regard shall be had—

Principle on which compensation is to be estimated.

- (a) to the amount by which the value, or the produce, of the holding, or the value of that produce, is increased by the improvement;
- (b) to the condition of the improvement, and the probable duration of its effects;
- (c) to the labour and capital required for the making of such an improvement;

(d) to any reduction or remission of rent or any other advantage given by the landlord to the raiyat in consideration of the improvement; and

(e) in the case of a reclamation or of the conversion of unirrigated into irrigated land, to the length of time during which the raiyat has had the benefit of the improvement at an unenhanced rent.

(2) When the amount of the compensation has been assessed, the Court may, if the landlord and raiyat agree, direct that, instead of being paid wholly in money, it shall be made wholly or partly in some other way.

Acquisition of land for building and other purposes.

Acquisition of land for building and other purposes.

Acquisition of land for building and other purposes.

84. A Civil Court may, on the application of the landlord of a holding, and on being satisfied that he is desirous of acquiring the holding or part thereof for some reasonable and sufficient purpose having relation to the good of the holding or of the estate in which it is comprised, including the use of the ground as building ground, or for any religious, educational or charitable purpose, and on being satisfied on the certificate of the Collector that the purpose is reasonable and sufficient, authorize the acquisition thereof by the landlord upon such conditions as the Court may think fit, and require the tenant to sell his interest in the whole or such part of the holding to the landlord upon such terms as may be approved by the Court, including full compensation to the tenant.

I. Application of the landlord :—A person who is not the immediate landlord of a holding cannot make an application under this section : Narain Matho v. Tekait Brojo Behari, 9 C.W.N. 472.

2. Appeal :—No appeal lies against an order passed by a Civil Court under this section: Goghun v. Rameshur, 18 Cal. 271 (F.B.); see also Pearimohan v. Barada, 19 Cal. 485.

3. Certificate of the Collector :—The Collector's certificate is not conclusive and a Civil Court is to hold a judicial enquiry to ~~determine the reasonableness and sufficiency of the matter~~: Goghun v. Rameshur, 18 Cal. 271 (F.B.). See also Narain Matho v. Tekait Brojo Behari, 9 C.W.N. 472. Collector's certificate not conclusive.

4. Reasonable and sufficient purpose :—Where the application was made to acquire land under this section to introduce the cultivation and manufacture of indigo through a gentleman of the profession known as an indigo planter, held that the application ought to be rejected: Goghun v. Rameswar, 18 Cal. 271 (F.B.). The purpose for which the land is sought to be acquired must have a direct relation to the good of the holding, and the appointment of a European manager and the necessity for erecting buildings for his comfort and convenience are not sufficient grounds: Ibid. Where by the acquisition there would be increase of revenue and consequently it would be for the improvement of the estate, held that the purpose was not reasonable and sufficient: Narain Matho v. Tekait Brojo Behari, 9 C.W.N. 472. Cultivation and manufacture of indigo.
Appointment of a European manager.

5. Compensation :—There is no provision in this Act as to what matters should be considered in determining the amount of compensation. The matters to be considered for determining the amount of compensation under the Land Acquisition Act are to be found in s. 23 of that Act. Land Acquisition Act, s. 23.

6. Holding :—It seems that the word "holding" has been used in its strict sense as defined in this Act.

7. Co-sharer landlord :—One of several joint landlord cannot make an application under this section; see s. 188.

Sub-letting.

Sub-letting.

85. (1) If a raiyat sub-lets otherwise than by a registered instrument, the sub-lease shall not be valid against his landlord unless made with the landlord's consent. Restrictions on sub-letting.

(2) A sub-lease by a raiyat shall not be admitted to registration if it purports to create a term exceeding nine years.

(3) Where a raiyat has, without the consent of his landlord, granted a sub-lease by an instrument registered before the commencement of this Act, the sub-lease shall not be valid more than nine years from the commencement of this Act.

1. This section does not apply to a raiyat at fixed rent or fixed rate of rent :—

S. 85 is controlled by s. 18 and therefore the restrictions as to sub-letting in s. 85 have no application to a raiyat at a fixed rent or rate of rent.

The provisions of s. 85 are controlled by s. 18 and therefore a raiyat at fixed rate can grant a permanent lease; the word "transfer" in s. 18 includes a lease: See Hari Mohan v. Atul Krishna, 19 C.W.N. 1127; this case has been followed in Rammohan v. Udai Bairagi, 49 I.C., 515, and in Hochen Sardar v. Poresnath, 54 I.C., 647, also see the observation of Beachcroft, J., in the case of Chandi Charan v. Samla Bibi, 22 C.W.N. 179 at p. 184, col. 2, lines 30 to 37. The observations of D. Chatterjee, J., in the case of Parushulla v. Sital Chandra, 19 C.W.N. 1110 at page 1112 that "the transfers contemplated in ss. 11 and 18 (of the Bengal Tenancy Act) are transfers out and out and not partial transfers by way of sub-lease" were considered by Newbould, J., as obiter in Prasanna Dassi v. Amar Chand Roy, (unreported S.A. No. 818 of 1919), and his Lordship held, following the case of Hari Mohan v. Atul Krishna, 19 C.W.N. 1127, that the word "transfer" in s. 18 includes also a lease; the judgment of Newbould, J., was confirmed by Mookerjee, (Acting) C.J., and Fletcher J. in Amar Chand Ray v. Prasanna Dassi, 25 C.W.N. 9. S. 85 does not bar a raiyat at fixed rates from making a permanent settlement with the under-raiyats or giving them a transferable and heritable interest in the land: Probodh v. Birsinha, 71 I.C. 319. A raiyat may by custom have a right to create permanent under-lease: Rashed Kazi v. Pachoo Sardar, 42 I.C. 534. Apparently it seems that the learned Judges have used the word "raiyyat" as including an occupancy raiyat. It is submitted with great respect that this proposition of law does not seem to be sound in as much as a right of an occupancy raiyat to sublet permanently by custom is inconsistent with the provisions of s. 85, and therefore under s. 183 such a custom not being consistent with the provisions of the Act is invalid. See notes under s. 18, heading No. 2, at p. 132.

2. Sub-lease by a non-occupancy raiyat :—A non-occupancy raiyat is not prohibited from sub-letting and may have an under-raiyat under him and may create a protected interest under s. 160 cl. (g), if his landlord allows him to do so: Ram Lal v. Bhela Gazi, 37 Cal. 709.

Permanent sub-lease by an under-raiyat.

3. Sub-lease by an under-raiyat :—It has been held in the case of Gurudas v. Kalidas, 18 C.W.N. 882 that section 85 of the Bengal Tenancy Act has no application to a permanent lease created by an under-raiyat in favour of a sub-lease, and that the provisions of this section cannot be applied to such a case by analogy.

In this case plaintiff who was an under-raiyat brought a suit in ejectment against the defendant being the successor in interest of the lessee under the plaintiff and it was held that s. 85 of the Bengal Tenancy Act had no application to a permanent lease by an under-raiyat in favour of a sub-lessee and consequently the plaintiff's suit must be dismissed.

It is submitted with great respect that the reason given for the decision is not sound ; s. 85 of the B. T. Act provides restrictions to sub-letting by a raiyat ; therefore an under-raiyat who acquires his right from the raiyat cannot have greater rights than the latter ; if a raiyat cannot grant a lease for more than 9 years, it does not stand to reason that the under-raiyat should have the right to create a permanent lease. The right of an under-raiyat to grant a sub-lease has however been recognised in the Bengal Tenancy Act in as much as in cl. (3) of s. 4 of the B. T. Act an under-raiyat is a person who holds mediately or immediately under a raiyat ; but it seems that an under-raiyat cannot claim a higher right than a raiyat in the grant of sub-leases.

S. 85 does not apply to a sub-lease by an under-raiyat : Osman Sheikh v. Fakir Mahmud, 26 C.W.N. 31 (notes portion).

4 Surrender by a raiyat :—Where a raiyat surrenders his holding, the landlord is entitled to re-enter by ejecting the under-raiyat if he is not protected by s. 85 or s. 86, cl. (b) : Nilkanta v. Ghatoo, 4 C.W.N. 667. In such a case no notice to quit is necessary : Ibid. When a sub-lease by a raiyat is not binding on the landlord and the holding does not subsist after abandonment, an under-raiyat does not become a raiyat : Pran Krishna v. Mukta Sundari, 18 C.L.J. 193. See notes under s. 87.

Right of re-entry by landlord by ejecting under-raiyat. Effect of abandonment by raiyat.

5. Sale of raiyati holding :—An under-raiyati lease, if created by an instrument which is not registered, is invalid under s. 85 and a landlord purchasing the holding of the raiyat in execution of a decree for arrears of rent is entitled to take khas possession by ejecting such under-raiyat without annulling the same by a notice under s. 167. The rights under such an under-raiyati lease are not protected by sub-sec. (1) of s. 22 : Peary Mohun v. Badal Chunder, 28 Cal. 205 s.c. 5 C.W.N. 310 ; see also Ashutosh v. Banomali, 19 C.W.N. 421.

Purchaser at a sale in execution of decree for arrears of rent entitled to khas possession by ejecting under-raiyat. holding on oral lease.

But a landlord who purchases by a kobala an occupancy raiyati holding from his raiyat cannot eject an under-raiyat without a notice under s. 49 although the raiyat had created the under-lease without the landlord's consent and otherwise than by a registered instrument : Amirulla v. Nazir, 34 Cal. 104 : s.c., 3 C.L.J. 155 : see also, Amirulla v. Nazir, 31 Cal. 932. These two cases were approved by Jenkins, C.J. and Mookerjee, J., in the case of Lal Mahomed v. Jagir Sheikh, 13 C.W.N. 913, and it was held that a landlord purchasing by kabala the interest of an occupancy raiyat under him is not entitled to treat as a trespasser an under-raiyat holding the land under an oral lease from the raiyat.

Purchase by Kabala stands on a different footing.

The case of Peary Mohan v. Badal Chandra, 28 Cal. 205 ; s.c., C.W.N. 310 was followed in the case of Gangadhar v. Rajendra, 17 C.W.N. 860 and it was held by Jenkins, C. J.; and Ray, J. where a lease was invalid under the provisions of cl. (2) of s. 85, no Landlord who purchases raiyati holding at a sale in execution of a decree for arrears of rent can avoid an invalid under-raiyati lease without notices under ss. 49 and 167.

the landlord who was a purchaser of the raiyati holding in execution of a decree for arrears of rent was entitled to take khas possession by ejecting such under-raiyat without annulling the same under s. 167 and without giving a notice in the terms of s. 49 ; it was also held that the rights of the under-raiyat were not protected by sub-sec. (1) of s. 22.

See notes under sec. 167.

In a suit for rent against a raiyat the landlord also impleaded as pro forma defendant another person alleging to be an under raiyat : held that the mere fact that the person was made a defendant to the suit does not imply a consent by the landlord to the under-raiyati lease in his favour : Maniraddi v. Ambica, 91 I.C. 668 s. c., A.I.R. (1926) Cal. 734. (Greaves and B. B. Ghosh J. J.).

Putra poutradi.

6. Leases in contravention of s. 85 :—Terms of heritability and transferability are terms which generally occur in permanent leases and they are intended to create a permanent tenancy and as such are in contravention of the provisions of s. 85, and consequently cannot be registered in view of cl. (2) of s. 85 : Muhammad Mir. v. Faizal Hassan, 47 I.C. 416, (Per Walmsley and Panton, J. J.) ; the words san ba san সন বসন do not alter the nature of the agreement, Ibid. The expression putra poutradi implies an absolute and heritable estate and as passing an estate of inheritance : Ram Saran Lal v. Ramnarayan Singh, 42 Cal. 305 ; Ram Lal v. The Secretary of State, 7 Cal. 304 at p. 315 ; Bhujanga v. Ramayamma, 7 Mad. 387 ; Lalit Mohan v. Chukkan Lal, 24 Cal. 834 at p. 849.

Harsana patta.

Where in a sub-lease granted by a raiyat the words used were "putra poutradi krame" the lease was considered to be a perpetual lease : Kartik Mandal v. Bamacharan, 20 C.W.N. 182, see also Jnanendra v. Royman Sheikh, 31 C.W.N. 580 at p. 581 (Mukerji and Graham J. J.). Where a harsana patta (lease from year to year) was given by a raiyat, it was held that the under-raiyat was liable to be ejected upon notice under s. 49 : Chandi Charam v. Samla Bebi, 22 C.W.N. 179, s.c., 22 C.L.J. 91. Where there is no evidence that lessor and lessee conspired by false or equivocal recitals to evade the provisions of section 85 (2) the lease that was admitted to registration contrary to the provisions of section 85 (2) through a misconception of the registering officer does not affect the property demised, at any rate beyond the period of nine years : Tarni Singh v. Sat Narain, 6 P.L.T. 787.

Unregistered Solenama.

A suit between two raiyats, the purchaser and seller of a raiyati holding, was settled by a solenama by which the seller took a permanent tenancy under the purchaser at a certain rent and continued in possession. In a fresh suit by the purchaser to recover khas possession, it was contended on his behalf that the solenama was invalid as it had not been registered and it was contended on behalf of the under-tenant that at any rate he had acquired a right of permanent under-tenancy in the holding by prescription, held, that the solenama purported to create a lease of immoveable property and as such, was inadmissible without registration. It was not in fact registered ; could not, in law, have been registered, because of sec. 85 of the B. T. Act ; and since registration itself was forbidden for reasons of public policy, the plea of specific performance as a substitute equivalent of registration was not available to the defendant.

Rajani Kanta v. Raj Kumari, 31 C.W.N. 1099, (Rankin, C. J. and Mitter J.).

• 7. Right to recover possession : Estoppel :—As to the rights of a lessee under an occupancy or non-occupancy raiyat the decisions are not uniform. These cases may be classified under the following headings :—

Rights of a lessee under a raiyat.

- (1) Suit between a raiyat and an under-raiyat ; (i.e. grantor and grantee, or their representatives in interest).
- (2) Suit between an under-raiyat and a stranger.
- (3) Suit between an under-raiyat and raiyat's landlord.
- (4) Suit as between under-raiyats claiming under the same landlord.

(1) Suit between a raiyat and an under-raiyat :—(i.e. Suit grantor and grantee or their representatives). The following are the cases on the point: Gopal Mondal v. Eshan Chandra, 29 Cal. 148, Madan Chandra v. Jaki Karikar, 6 C.W.N. 377 ; Fazel Sheikh v. Karamaddi, 6 C.W.N. 916 ; Mahendra v. Parbutty, 8 C.W.N. 136 (case under s. 49 and also observation under s. 85) ; Kamaruddi v. Sree Nath, 8 C.W.N. 136 ; Bipin Behari v. Amrita Lal, 9 C.L.J. 76 ; Abdul Karim v. Abdul Rahaman, 16 C.W.N. 618, s.c., 15 C.L.J. 672 ; Jarip Khan v. Dorfa Bewa, 17 C.W.N. 59, s.c., 16 C.L.J. 144 ; Janaki Nath v. Prabhasini, 19 C.W.N. 1077 ; Mahim Chandra v. Baidya Nath, 21 C.L.J. 478 ; Abjan Bibi v. Raham Ali, 20 C.W.N. 756 ; Lani Mea v. Muhammad Easin, 20 C.W.N. 948 ; Baman Das v. Nilmadhab, 44 Cal. 471, s.c., 20 C.W.N. 1340, s.c., 24 C.L.J. 541 ; Nazirali v. Banshi Badan, 23 C.W.N. 435, s.c., 29 C.L.J. 388, Chandi Charan v. Samla Bibi, 22 C.W.N. 179 (at p. 188) ; s.c., 28 C.L.J. 91 ; [followed in Madan Mundal v. Tarini Chandra, 54 I.C. 625 where Newbould J., has held that the consent of the raiyat's landlord would not make the sub-lease by a raiyat valid, if it is in contravention of cl. (2)]. Nazir Ali v. Banshi Badan, 23 C.W.N. 435, s.c., 29 C.L.J. 388, followed in Karim Buksha v. Abdul Jabbar, 47 I.C. 416 ; also followed in Alimuddi v. Chinta Haran, 23 C.W.N. 437.

On account of a conflict of decisions, the question which was referred by Walmsley and Greaves, J. J., to a Full Bench was as follows :—

“Is a lease purporting to be of a permanent character, granted by a raiyat (not being a raiyat holding at a fixed rate) to an under-raiyat operative as against the grantor?”

Plaintiff was a raiyat who brought this suit for ejectment of an under raiyat.

The question was considered by a Full Bench (consisting of Mookerjee, C. J., Fletcher, N. R. Chatterjea, Teunon and Richardson, J. J.,) in the case of Chandra Kanta v. Amjad Ali, 48 Cal. 783, s.c., 25 C.W.N. 4, s.c., 32 C.L.J. 296 (F.B.).

Full Bench Case : Chandra v. Amjad Ali.

Mookerjee, C. J., in delivering the judgment of the Court, said that the question referred to the Full Bench may arise in three classes of cases :—

- I. Where the lease purporting to be of a permanent character is granted, on the face of the document, by a raiyat (not being a raiyat holding at a fixed rate) to an under-raiyat, the lease is not operative as a permanent lease between the raiyat and the under-raiyat. But as the tenancy of an under-raiyat may be created without a written lease, the grantee in such a case is an under-raiyat who holds otherwise than under a written lease, and his tenancy is liable to be terminated in the manner provided by section 49 (b) ; till the tenancy has been thus terminated, the grantor cannot treat him as a trespasser.

Case.

II. When the lease, purporting to be of a permanent character, is granted by a person who, on the face of the document, confesses to have a higher status than that of a raiyat (for example, that of a tenure-holder or a raiyat holding at a fixed rate), the grantee when his title as permanent lessee is challenged by his grantor, may invoke the doctrine of estoppel and plead that the grantor cannot be permitted to prove the falsity of the recitals in the document (on the faith of which he took the lease) so as to enable him to derogate from his grant.

III. Where the lease purporting, to be of a permanent character is granted by a person who, on the face of the document, professes to have a higher status than that of a raiyat (for example, that of a tenure-holder or a raiyat holding at a fixed rate) and the grantee invokes the aid of the doctrine of estoppel in answer to a challenge of his title as permanent lessee by his grantor, it may be a matter for argument whether such plea may be defeated by the grantor on proof that they had conspired by false recitals to evade the provisions of the statute."

The case before the Full Bench fell within the first class. Mookerjee, C. J., said as follows:—

"The case before us clearly falls within the first class. The lease, on the face of the document, is by a raiyat and is for an unlimited term. At this distance of time, no explanation is available as to how, notwithstanding these recitals, it came to be registered in contravention of s. 85 (2). The registration was clearly null and void and the document must be excluded from consideration, as if it has never been registered. The defendant, however, was not a trespasser ; he was an under-raiyat who held otherwise than under a written lease. His tenancy was accordingly terminable in the manner provided by sec. 49 (b) and it has legally been terminated. Consequently he had no right to remain on the land at the date of the institution of the suit."

Homestead
land.

S. 85 of the Bengal Tenancy Act is not applicable to leases of homestead lands. Where a lease of a permanent character is granted by a person who, on the face of the document confesses to have a higher status than that of a raiyat, the grantee may invoke the doctrine of estoppel, against the grantor and persons claiming through him. The plea that a lease is contrary to the provisions of S. 85 of the Bengal Tenancy Act and is consequently invalid can be raised by the landlord or a person claiming through him or by any one having a permanent title but not by the grantor or any one claiming through him or by a stranger: Jogendra v. Monmohin 105 I. C. 290 (Cuming and Roy J. J.).

Although a person who has granted a permanent lease descri ing himself as the holder of a ganti interest will be estopped from asserting that he was a mere ryot and that the lease was consequently invalid, a purchaser of his interest at an execution sale who has obtained a new title from the landlord at an enhanced rent will not be bound by this estoppel: Jaladhar Mondal v. Amrita Lal Raha, 105 I.C. 641 (B. B. Ghose and Roy J. J.).

Purchaser at execution sale and acquiring new title from landlord.

Where the lease expressly provided that the grantee would have the status of a raiyat, though the grantor's status was not stated, held that the doctrine of estoppel applied: Iswar Chandra v. Gour Sundar, 39 C.L.J. 337. See also Bamandas v. Nilmadhab, 44 Cal. 771, s.c., 24 C.L.J. 541.

(2) Suit between an under-raiyat and a stranger:—The following are the cases on the point: Banka Behary v. Raj Chandra, 14 C.W.N. 141, Manik v. Bani Charan, 13 C.L.J. 649; Jarip Khan v. Dorfa Bewa, 17 C.W.N. 59, s.c., 16 C.L.J. 144; Gour Mondal v. Balaram, 22 C.W.N. 61.

Suit between an under-raiyat and a stranger.

Where an under-raiyat claiming under a lease which was to last “putra poutradi krame” brought a suit against a stranger, held, that the suit should fail; Kartik Mondal v. Bama Charan, 20 C.W.N. 182.

In a suit by an under-raiyat claiming under a permanent mukurari under-raiyati lease against a stranger, held, that assuming that the permanent mukurari under-raiyati lease was void under s. 85 of the B. T. Act, it was open to the plaintiff to prove his tenancy aliunde,* and a suit to recover possession of the holding against the defendant who was a trespasser should succeed upon proof of the plaintiff's bare possession when dispossessed: Banka Behary v. Raj Chandra, 14 C.W.N. 141.

[It is submitted with great respect that the second portion of the judgment that a plaintiff can succeed to obtain possession is open to doubt in as much as it is opposed to the decisions of Purmeshur Chowdhury v. Brijo Larl Chowdhry, 17 Cal. 256, Shama Churn v. Abdul Kabir, 3 C.W.N. 158; Nisa Chand v. Kanchiram, 26 Cal. 579, in which it was held that possession short of statutory period of 12 years does not entitle a plaintiff to a decree for recovery of possession except in a suit under sec. 9 of the Specific Relief Act. This was also pointed out in the case of Manik Borai v. Bani Charan, 13 C.L.J. 649 at p. 652 where Mookerjee, J., (Coxe, J., concurring) says that “the question is by no means free from difficulty and we reserve our opinion on it, involving as it does an examination of the true effect of the decision of the Judicial Committee in Sunder v. Parbutty, 16 I.A. 186, s.c., 12 All. 51.]

In the case of Manik Borai v. Bani Charan, (Ibid) it was held that in a suit by an under-raiyat against a stranger that the question of the invalidity of a sub-lease granted in contravention of the sub-sec. (1) and (2) of s. 85 can be raised only by the landlord of the raiyat. (It was also held that the under-raiyat could successfully maintain a suit for possession or defend his suit for possession against the raiyat).

But in the case of Jarip Khan v. Dorfa Bewa, 17 C.W.N. 59; s.c., 16 C.L.J. 144 it was held that where an under-raiyat held under an invalid lease and could not fall back upon any prior possession,

* Lala Surabh Narain v. Catherine Sophia, 1 C.W.N. 248; Fazel Sheikh v. Keramuddi Sheikh, 6 C.W.N. 916 followed.

† Premraj v. Narayan, 1 L.R. 6 Bom. 215.

oral evidence to prove the tenancy in such a case is inadmissible under s. 91 of the Evidence Act.

It was however subsequently held by D. Chatterjee J., in the case, of Gour Mondal v. Balaram Manjhi, 22 C.W.N. 61 (at p. 62) that if the sub-lessee (under raiyat) had possession when he was dispossessed he could prove his title by possession; in deciding this case D. Chatterjee, J. differed from the case of Jariß Khan v. Dorfa Bewa, 17 C.W.N. 59 and Telam Pramanik v. Adu Sheikh, 17 C.W.N. 468, and followed the case of Manik Borai v. Bani Charan, 13 C.L.J. 649 and Ganes Mondal v. Thanda Namasudrani, 24 C.L.J. 539.

The case of Gour Mandal v. Balaram, referred to above and decided by D. Chatterjee, J., was remanded for a finding as to whether the plaintiff under-raiyat was in possession, and after the finding which was in favour of the plaintiff the case came back to the High Court before Fletcher and Newbould, J. J., (22 C.W.N. 61), who decreed the plaintiff's (under-raiyat's), suit remarking "that although the plaintiff's lease had been in excess of what a raiyat is entitled to grant to an under-raiyat under the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act, yet if the plaintiff had been in possession of the property on the basis of the kabuliati, he had sufficient interest in the property to recover the land."

Suit between an under-raiyat and raiyat's
landlord.

(3) Suit between an under-raiyat and raiyat's landlord :—The following are the cases on the point: Mahomed Taqui v. Chao Lal, 13 C.L.J. 499; Ashutosh v. Banomali, 19 C.W.N. 412.

In the case of Mahomed Taqui v. Chao Lal, 13 C.L.J. 499, where a tenant granted a lease of a portion of his holding to a person without the consent of the landlord and placed him in possession, not of the whole holding, but only of the portion leased and not do anything to justify the Court in arriving at the conclusion that the lessor intended to abandon the holding, the lease must be held to be a lease which the lessor was within his rights in granting, and the lessee is, on dispossession by the malik or landlord, entitled to a decree for possession in a suit brought for the purpose before the expiry of the lease.

In the case of Ashutosh v. Banomali, 19 C.W.N. 412, it was held that an under-raiyat lease in contravention of sub-sec. (2) is not operative against the superior landlord of the occupancy raiyat.

Suit as be-under-rai-yats claiming under the same landlord.

(4) Suit as between two under-raiyats claiming under the same landlord :—The following are the cases on the point: Telam Pramanik v. Adu Sheikh, 17 C.W.N. 468. Baisnab Charan v. Ramkumar, 18 C.W.N. 140 (notes portion)—Ganes Mandal v. Thanda Namasudrani, 24 C.L.J. 539.

Where the plaintiff and the defendant each claimed under a registered permanent sub-lease granted by the same raiyat, held, that the plaintiff could not succeed in ejectment against a person in the advantageous position of a defendant in possession: Telam Pramanik v. Adu Sheikh, 17 C.W.N. 468; the case of Jariß Khan v. Dorfa Bewa, 17 C.W.N. 59 was followed and the following cases were discussed: Abdul Karim v. Abdul Rahaman, 16 C.W.N. 618; Fazel Sheikh v. Kermuddi, 6 C.W.N. 916; Ramgati v. Shyama Charan, 6 C.W.N. 919, Basaratullah v. Kasirunnissa, 11 C.W.N. 190; Gopal v. Ishan, 29 Cal. 148; Madan Chandra v. Jaki Karikar, 6 C.W.N. 377; Tamijuddi v. Ajjar, 36 Cal. 258, s.c., 13 C.W.N. 183;

Bepin v. Amrita, 29 Cal. 148; Manik Borai v. Bani Charan, 13 C.L.J. 649.

In a suit by an under-raiyat claiming under a permanent lease and registered in contravention of s. 85 cl. (2) against a person who was an under-raiyat and whose interest has been sold in execution of a decree obtained by the raiyat, held, that the plaintiff could not succeed and the case was covered by the decision in the case of Jarip Khan v. Dorfa Bewa, 17 C.W.N. 59: See Baisnab Charan v. Ramkumar, 18 C.W.N. 140 (notes portion).

In the case of Ganes Mandal v. Thanda Namasudrani, 24 C.L.J. 593, (Fletcher J., Richardson J., agreeing), it was held that the plaintiff claiming under a lease from the raiyat against the defendant claiming under a subsequent lease from the same raiyat, was entitled to succeed although the plaintiff's lease was invalid under s. 85; the reason of the decision was that the plaintiff had possession.

In the footnote will be found a reprint with slight alterations of the notes on this subject from the previous edition of this work. Cases decided since the last edition will be found amongst other cases collected under this heading: Ante.

5. Leases in contravention of this section: An underraiyati lease for Under- a term exceeding nine years and erroneously registered in contravention of raiyati lease s. 85 cl. (2) is inadmissible in evidence, and oral evidence to prove the tenancy registered is not admissible under s. 91 of the Evidence Act; a suit for possession upon in con- the basis of such a lease is not maintainable: Jarip Khan v. Dorfa Bewa, travention 17 C.W.N. 59, s. c., 16 C.L.J. 144, followed in Baisnab v. Ramkumar, 18 of s. 85 C.W.N. 140 (notes): In the case of Jarip Khan v. Dorfa Bewa:—"The wholly void Plaintiff in this case did not rest his claim on any prior possession that has and not ad- been established, but solely upon a document." Per Jenkins C.J., 17 C.W.N. missible in at p. 61. There is a number of cases in which the provisions of s. 85 have evidence. come under consideration but in none has the particular point noted above been the actual basis of a decision. Jenkins C.J. observed as follows:—

".....it appears to me that this document though purporting to be registra- Observa- tion of tioned in breach of s. 85 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, in fact, must be treated as Jenkin- C. J. though it was not registered, for it was a registration in contravention of law. The result then is that we have no proof of this document, and as a conse- quence, no proof of the title on which the Plaintiff rests. More than that, as I have already pointed out, the Plaintiff cannot fall back on any prior possession as tenant or otherwise, so as to attract in his favour that class of decisions of which the one reported in Lala Surabh Narain Lal v. Catherine Sopia, 1 C.W.N. 248. Nor do I think that we can accept other evidence—oral evidence of this grant—without contravening the provision of s. 91 of the Evidence Act; and, in fact, I do not understand that there has been in this case any evidence of the grant tendered other than the document which was improperly registered.

The case of Jarip Khan v. Dorfa Bewa, 17 C.W.N. 59 was followed by Carnduff and Beachcroft J.J. in the case of Telam Paramanik v. Adu Sheikh, 17 C.W.N. 468 and also by D. Chatterjea and Chapman J.J. in the case of Baisnab Charan v. Ramkumar, 18 C.W.N. 140 (notes). The case of Manik Borai v. Bani Charan Mandal, 13 C.L.J. 649 was distinguished and explained. The case of Manik v. Bani was also distinguished in the case of Fakir v. Banamali, 18 C.L.J. 255 and it was held that a sublease registered in contravention of s. 85 sub-sec. (2) is not operative against the superior landlord of an occupancy raiyat. See also Ashutosh v. Banomali, 19 C.W.N. 412.

In an unreported second appeal No. 2237 of 1911 (Sumitra Bewa v. Gopal Chandra Biswas, decided on the 20th Feb. 1914). Teunon, J., observed as follows: "On the authority of the case of Tamijuddi v. Afgar Howladar, 12 C.W.N. 183, the Courts below have found that as between the raiyat and sub-raiyat the lease is good. But in that case no question of registration arose, and in view of the clear provisions of section 85 (2) of the Bengal Tenancy Act, and of the decision of the Court in Jarip v. Dorfa Bewa, 16 C.L.J. 144 and Telam Pramanik v. Adu Sheik, 17 C.W.N. 468 it is clear that the decision of the lower courts on this point cannot be upheld. But it appears that the unregistered lease recites that the lessee was in prior possession on an oral lease; and though the document be inadmissible it is open to the defendant to prove a subsisting tenancy otherwise, vide the case of Lala Surabh Narain v. Catherine Sopia, 1 C.W.N. 248, and Fazal Sheikh v. Keramaddin, 6 C.W.N. 916. I therefore remand the case to the Subordinate Judge for the trial of the following issue, namely, whether the defendant to be regarded as an under-riyat holding otherwise than under a written lease."

8. Sub-lease for nine years with a stipulation for a re-settlement :—An under-riyati lease was created for nine years with a stipulation that the under-riyat might apply for a re-settlement and thereupon the riyat would be bound to grant a re-settlement :

All these cases were discussed and explained in the case of Ganes Mondal v. Thanda Namasudrani, by Fletcher J., (Richardson J., agreeing), 24 C.L.J. 539. Their Lordships held that where plaintiff a sublessee is in possession the case falls within the case in 13 C.L.J. 649.

Following the case of Ganesh Mandal and Thanda Namasudrani, 24 C.L.J. 539, it was held by Teunon and Greaves J.J., that although a lease for more than nine years granted by a riyat may not be given in evidence, a tenancy can be proved altunde by possession and payment of rent: Nibaran v. Ram Charan, 29 C.L.J. 479.

Who may raise the question as to the invalidity of the lease.

It was decided in the case of Manik Borai v. Bani Charan, 13 C.L.J. 649 that the question of invalidity of a sublease granted in contravention of s. 85 sub-sections (1) & (2) can be raised only by the landlord of the riyat, but this case was distinguished in the case of Fakir Chandra v. Banamali, 18 C.L.J. 252 where it was held that a sublease registered in contravention of s. 85 sub-sec. (2) is not operative against the superior landlord of an occupancy riyat.

Sub-lease not valid against the landlord. Permanent lease, binding between the parties.

The words "the sub-lease shall not be valid" mean that the sub-lease shall not be valid against the landlord: Madan Chandra v. Jaki Karikar, 6 C.W.N. 377. Where a riyat without the consent of his landlord, granted a sub-lease by an instrument registered before the commencement of the Bengal Tenancy Act the sub-lease shall not be valid for more than 9 years from the commencement of the Act, as against the landlord but not as against the riyat; Gopal v. Eshan, 29 Cal. 148. A sub-lease by a riyat for a term exceeding nine years is invalid even against the riyat: Basarabulla v. Kasirunnessa, 11 C.W.N. 190.

But this case has been doubted by Mookerjee and Carnduff J.J., in the case of Abdul Karim v. Abdul Rahaman, 16 C.W.N. 618, s. c., 15 C.L.J. 672 and it has held that permanent lease by a riyat is binding between the parties to the contract.

Sub sec. (2).

If the document is registered in contravention of sub-sec. (2) it must be dealt with as non-existing: Mahendra v. Parbatty, 8 C.W.N. 136; Srikanta v. Sarada, 29 Cal. 49; Fasil v. Karamuddi, 6 C.W.N. 919; the object of the section was not only to protect landlords but to protect the riyats against the effect of their improvident acts: Mahendra v. Parbatty, 8 C.W.N. 136. The words in sub-sec. (3) "a sub-lease shall not be valid for more than nine years from the commencement of the Act" apply duly as between the sub-tenant and the landlord: Bepin v. Amrita, 9 C.L.J. 76; Madan v. Jaki, 6 C.W.N. 377; Gopal v. Eshan, 29 Cal. 148.

Dispossession by superior landlord or under-riyati land.

Sub-sec. (2) was not put in between sub-sec. (1) and sub-sec. (3) evidently for the benefit of the landlord only to prevent the registration of the document if it creates a tenancy of more than nine years or in perpetuity: Tamijuddin v. Ajar, 13 C.W.N. 183, s. c., 36 Cal. 256; as long as the interest of the tenant from year to year is not put an end to, the superior landlord has no right to eject the sublessee, who is not his riyat, and the lessee can maintain a suit for possession of the land, from which he is dispossessed by the superior landlord and a tenant of his who is not the lessor of the plaintiff: Ibid, see also Mahomed Taqui v. Choa Lal, 13 C.L.J. 499. In this case an under-riyat who had taken a sub-lease of a portion of a riyati holding was dispossessed by the riyat's landlord, held that the under-riyat is entitled to a decree for possession, in as much as a riyat is entitled to grant a sub-lease, though that power is restricted by s. 85. Where a sub-lease by a riyat was not admissible in evidence as being registered in contravention of s. 85, it was held that the sub-lease could be proved by oral evidence in a suit brought by the under-riyat against a person who was neither his own landlord nor superior landlord: Banku Behari v. Rajchandra, 14 C.W.N. 141.

Sublease registered in contravention of s. 85, when may be proved.

by the Bengal Tenancy Act: Abdul Karim v. Abdul Rahaman, 16 C.W.N. 68; s. c., 15 C.L.J. 672; the question whether cases of this description are governed by the Bengal Tenancy Act or by the Transfer of Property Act depends on the nature of the original tenancy and not on the nature of the sub-tenancy with reference to particular piece of land within the holding: Ibid. See also Baburam v. Mohendra Nath, 8 C.W.N. 454.

12. Under-raiyati lease, transferability of:—An under-raiyati holding is not transferable: Amirennessa v. Jinnat Ali, 42 Cal. 751, s. c., 19 C.W.N. 43, s. c., 20 C.L.J. 548. See notes under s. 48, heading no. 4. Transferability of under-raiyati holding.

13. Under-raiyati interest—incumbrance :—See notes under s. 161.

14. Registration Rule under Sub. Sec. (2):—When a sub-lease by a raiyat purporting to create a term exceeding nine years is presented for registration, it shall be returned at once with a note to the following effect recorded on its back: “Not admissible under sub-sec. (2), Sec. 85 of the B. T. Act.” The note shall be signed, sealed and dated by the registering officer. The order of refusal will be entered in Book II: see Appendix V, Registration Rules, rule 4.

Surrender and abandonment.

86. (1) A raiyat not bound by a lease or other agreement for a fixed period may, at the end of any agricultural year, surrender his holding. Surrender and abandonment. Surrender.

(2) But, notwithstanding the surrender, the raiyat shall be liable to indemnify the landlord against any loss of the rent of the holding for the agricultural year next following the date of the surrender, unless he gives to his landlord, at least three months before he surrenders, notice of his intention to surrender.

(3) When a raiyat has surrendered his holding, the Court shall, in the following cases for the purposes of sub-section (2), presume, until the contrary is shown, that such notice was so given, namely:—

(a) if the raiyat takes a new holding in the same village from the same landlord during the agricultural year next following the surrender;

(b) if the raiyat ceases, at least three months before the end of the agricultural year at the end of which the surrender is made, to reside in the village in which the surrendered holding is situate.

(4) The raiyat may, if he thinks fit, cause the notice to be served through the Civil Court within the jurisdiction of which the holding or any portion of it is situate.

(5) When a raiyat has surrendered his holding, the landlord may enter on the holding and either let it to another tenant or take it into cultivation himself.

(6) When a holding is subject to incumbrance secured by a registered instrument, the surrender of the holding shall not be valid unless it is made with the consent of the landlord and the incumbrancer.

(7) Save as provided in the last foregoing subsection, nothing in this section shall affect any arrangement by which a raiyat and his landlord may arrange for a surrender of the whole or a part of the holding.

Surrender and abandonment.

1. Distinction between surrender and abandonment:—The position of a landlord in the case of abandonment is stronger than in the case of a surrender by a raiyat; in the case of abandonment, the landlord does not acquire any title through the raiyat as in the case of a purchase: Prankrishna v. Mukta Sundari, 18 C.L.J. 193.

Surrender
and release.

2. Distinction between surrender and release:—"A surrender is of a nature directly opposite to release; for, as the latter operates by the greater estate descending upon the less, the former is the falling of a less estate into a greater by a deed—A surrender immediately divests the estate of the surrenderer and vests it in the surrenderee, even without the assent of the latter." Bouvier's Law Dictionary, Vol. III.

Right of relinquish-
ment—conditions
of lease.

3. Relinquishment:—The right of relinquishment is a privilege given to tenants, by means of which they may restrict the lease and establish their tenancy upon a new basis or may extinguish the lease altogether; and the tenants cannot avail themselves of that privilege to any extent, unless they strictly observe the conditions which are either expressed or implied in the lease: Ram Churn v. Ranigunge Coal Association, 26 Cal. 29, s. c., 3 C.W.N. 697 (P.C.).

A relinquishment is not inoperative because it was to take effect at a subsequent date: Sheikh Kubir v. Baikunta, 15 C.W.N. 680. Relinquishment to take effect at a subsequent date.

A relinquishment made in favour of the landlord by some of several of a joint occupancy holding does not operate by way of enlarging the right of the other co-sharers who did not relinquish, and depriving the landlord of what ordinarily would belong to him: Peary Mohun v. Radhica Mohan, 8 C.W.N. 315: s. c., (on Letters Patent appeal) 5 C.L.J. 9. Relinquishment by some of several joint tenants.

A relinquishment made in favour of the landlord by one of two co-tenants so as to affect his share is valid: Sheikh Kadir v. Baikunta Chandra, 15 C.W.N. 680; Jenkins C. J. in delivering the judgment of the court said in respect to the case in 8 C.W.N. 315 as follows:—
“I feel no doubt, as Mr. Justice Banerjee held, of the validity of a relinquishment made in favour of the landlord by one of two or more tenants for the purpose of affecting the share of that tenant.”

A mere notice of relinquishment does not relieve a tenant from liability to pay rent; it is the actual relinquishment of property that relieves him: Nobeen v. Luckhee, 1 W.R. 20: (s. c.) Rev. Judicial and Police Journal, Vol. III, p. 142. See also Cazee Syed Mahomed v. Chundee Lall, 7 W.R. 250. Notice of relinquishment.

The tenant being called upon by his landlord to pay rent declined to do so using the words অজকে বিলি কর (i.e. settle the land with some other person); there was no verbal notice to quit given to the tenant; held in a suit by the landlord for khas possession that there being no acceptance of the relinquishment, the facts did not constitute a valid relinquishment: Bonomali v. Delu Sirdar, 24 W.R. 118. What facts do not constitute relinquishment.

4. Surrender—Implied surrender:—See notes under s. 87.

5. Relinquishment by permanent tenure-holder:—See notes under s. 11, at p. 113.

6. Utbandi tenant:—An utbandi tenant, when he ceases to hold the land, is not bound to give any notice of abandonment to his landlord, in order to avoid liability for rent for future years: Amrita v. Giridhur, 11 C.W.N. 581, s. c., 5 C.L.J. 398. Under the utbandi system the settlement is for one year only and the cultivator is not obliged to hold or cultivate for a second year: Ibid. Oral Surrender.

7. Surrender need not be in writing:—There may be a valid surrender of an occupancy holding without a written document: Khondkar Abdur Rohaman v. Ali Hafez, 28 Cal. 256, s. c.; 5 C.W.N. 351: see also Imambandi v. Kumlaswari, 13 I.A. 160; s. c., 14 Cal. 109; see also Mahomed v. Shunker, 11 W.R. 53. According to s. 86 sub-sec. (2) a raiyat in order to be relieved of his liability to indemnify the landlord against any loss of the rent of the holding for the agricultural year next following the date of the surrender is to give to his landlord at least 3 months before he surrenders, notice of his intention of surrender. But the section nowhere says that the surrender should be in writing. It has also been held that a surrender or relinquishment of lease is not required to be in writing: Elias Meyer v. Manoranjan Bagchi, 22 C.W.N. 441; a surrender can be inferred from acts of the parties; Ibid, see also Jagadamba Prasad

v. A. V. Sham, (1919) Patna 88. See also Chunder Mani v. Shumboo Chandra, [1864] W.R. 270. See also Khondkar Abdur Rahman v. Ali Hafiz, 28 Cal. 256 and Brajonath Sarma v. Maheswar Gohani, 28 C.L.J. 220 : although the original lease might be a registered one, that does not prevent the surrender being made orally and s. 92 proviso of the Evidence Act has no application ; Poran Matia v. Indra Seni, 47 Cal. 128 ; the case of Sarat Chandra v. Nritya Gopal, 13 C.L.J. 284 was distinguished on the ground that in that case possession had not been given up and also that it did not appear what the nature of the tenancy was in that case. In the case of Sarat Chandra v. Nritya Gopal, 13 C.L.J. 284, the landlord had sued to recover possession on the allegation that there was an oral surrender of a portion of the tenancy and a reduction of rent, and it was held that the original lease having been a registered one, oral evidence was not admissible to prove the surrender and the subsequent reduction of rent. In the case of Brojonath v. Monessur, 22 C.W.N. 100, (notes portion) s. c., 28 C.L.J. 220 it was held by Fletcher and Shamsul Huda J.J., that no written document is necessary for effecting a surrender in this country.

See notes under s. 11, heading no. 6, at p. 113.

Heirs of

8. Heirs of occupancy raiyyat—Liability to pay rent—The heirs of an occupancy raiyyat, dying intestate, are liable to pay rent whether they occupy the land or not unless they surrender the holding : Peary Mohan v. Kumaris Chander, 19 Cal. 790.

9. Portion of a holding cannot be surrendered :—“We know of no law or custom by which a raiyyat is justified in throwing up a portion of his jote and in keeping just that portion which happens to suit his convenience, and which may be.....the very portion which confers value on the remainder of the jote, and one without which no fresh tenant will be found to enter on an engagement. In this instance the raiyyat may either retain the whole or he may throw up the whole, in conformity with the provisions of Act X of 1859. But as long as he retains any portion of the land, he is liable for the rent of the whole.” Per SETON-KARR and A. G. MACPHERSON, J.J., in Sarada Sundari v. Hazee Mohamed, 5 W.R., Act X, 783 : (s. c.) Rev. Civil and Criminal Reporter, Vol. I, p. 66 (Rulings in rent-suits). “It is not enough for a raiyyat who holds a considerable quantity of land to give notice that he relinquishes a part of the land, without specifying what portion, in order to relieve himself from liability to pay rent. He must shew and prove that he did relinquish the land, and “what it was, and how it was that he relinquished.” Per NORMAN and JACKSON, J.J., in Habela Sircar v. Doorgakant, 11 W.R. 456. Where the lease is an entire contract, the lessee has no right to repudiate one portion of it on the ground of fraud and adhere to the other portion ; if the tenancy is to be avoided on the ground of fraud, it must be avoided in toto : Anarullah v. Koylash, 8 Cal. 118. It was however, observed by Ghose, J. (Holmwood, J., concurring) that under cl. (7) of s. 86 a portion or the whole of a holding may be surrendered : Badan Chandra v. Rajeswari, 2 C.L.J. 570. Under cl. (7) a part of a holding can be surrendered by an arrangement with the landlord.

If a tenancy is to be avoided it must be avoided in toto.

Surrender
after transfer of
a portion.

10. Surrender after transfer of a portion : Right of landlord to eject the transferee :—Where after transferring a portion of a holding a raiyyat surrenders the whole of his holding to the landlord: held that, if the surrender be collusive, the tenancy subsists; and so long as the tenancy subsists, the landlord is not entitled to eject the transferee of a portion of the holding: Askar Ali v. Goupee Mohun, 18 C.W.N. 601, s. c., 18 C.L.J. 257. Right of landlord to eject transferee.

Where a raiyat surrenders a portion of his holding to the landlord, the landlord is entitled to re-enter that portion notwithstanding any subordinate rights which the raiyat may have created upon that portion, and the mere fact that the landlord was aware of the encumbrance created by the raiyat cannot take away his right of re-entry: Gagan Chandra v. Rajeswari, 2 C.L.J. 570, Rajendra Kishore v. Chandra Nath, 12 C.W.N. 878. Conflict of rulings.

A surrender of a raiyati holding by the raiyat, without the consent of the usufructuary mortgagee of a portion of the holding does not entitle the landlord to eject the mortgagee: Raghunath Singh v. William Cox, 19 C.W.N. 268; * their Lordships in deciding the case relied upon the observations of Channel J., in the case of Walter v. Yalden, L.R. 7 K.B. 804:—"The law is that a lessee can only give title to his lessor by a surrender to the same extent that he could give it to another person by his assignment. If the lessee has created under-leases, the under-leases remain notwithstanding the surrender; the lessee cannot assign his term to any one else so as to put an end to those under-leases. But that, I think, is only an example of what he can and cannot do; the point is that he has no power to effect by surrender anything that he could not do by assignment to a third person: the reason being that he cannot convey to his landlord anymore than to any one else anything that he has not got himself."

Where a purchaser (in execution of a money decree) of a non-transferable raiyati holding being resisted by the raiyat, by arrangement with the latter, was given a portion of the holding, the raiyat retaining the rest; and subsequently the raiyat expressly surrendered the whole holding to his landlord, though it appeared that even after such surrender he went on occupying the portion retained by him under the arrangement, held, that the arrangement between the purchaser and the raiyat was in substance a sale of a portion of the holding and that the surrender being obviously illusory, the original tenancy subsisted and protected the purchaser from ejection by the landlord. Nobokishore v. Dhananjoy, 20 C.W.N. 670.

Where a tenant surrendered his holding a landlord was held to be bound by the previous transaction of the tenant by way of mortgage. Mahammad Nasaruddin v. Sheikh Isal, 21 C.L.J. 185.

In the case of Zamir Munshi v. Bisseswari, 25 C.L.J. 480, D. Chatterji, J. and Newbould, J. took different views, the former holding that a raiyat having sold a part of his occupancy holding cannot surrender the self same part to his landlord so as to entitle the landlord to take khas possession of the said part by ejecting the purchaser.

Where a raiyat expressly surrendered a part of his non-transferable holding which, prior to such surrender, he had sold, and took

* The following cases were discussed:—Rajendra Kisore v. Chandra Nath 12 C.W.N. 878; Gagan Chandra v. Alak Chand, 17 C.W.N. 698; Krishna Chandra v. Miran Bajanta, 3 C.L.J. 222; Hasani Bibi v. Sadir Mahmud Sarkar, 2nd Appeal No. 2955 of 1917 (unreported).

Conflict of rulings. a new settlement of the remainder: held that this operated as a surrender of the whole holding (express as to a portion and implied as to the rest) and as no fraud on the part of the landlord was established, he was entitled to evict the purchaser from the portion sold. Shaikh Tamij Munshi v. Brojendra Kishore, 22 C.W.N. 967. See also Kunja Kisore v. Bamasundari, 43 Cal. 878. In the case Shaikh Dastur Ali v. Ram Kumar Gope, 22 C.W.N. 972, Teunon, J. took a view different from Richardson J., the latter holding that the landlord (apart from fraud) has the right to re-enter if the whole or a part of a non-transferable holding be relinquished or surrendered by the raiyat after the same has been sold by him. In Letters Patent Appeal in this case, Fletcher, Beachcroft and Greaves, J.J. adopted the view taken by Teunon, J. and it was held by them that where an occupancy raiyat sold a portion of his holding and subsequently surrendered that part to his landlord, the latter could not sue the transferee for khas possession: 24 C.W.N. 571. The same view was taken by N. R. Chatterjea and Panton, J.J., in the case of Sailesh Chandra v. Umesh Chandra, 24 C.W.N. 573.

In the case of Anandamohan v. Gurudyal, 22 C.W.N. 965 it was held by Woodroffe and Mookerjee, J.J., affirming the decision of D. Chatterji, J. on Letters Patent Appeal that a landlord is not entitled to khas possession where a raiyat sells a part of his holding and then makes a surrender.

Where one of two joint tenants holding his portion of the land separately and paying his rent separately to the landlord executed a registered document in favour of the landlord transferring his interest in the holding, it was held that even if there could be no valid surrender, the deed operated to pass his interest in the holding in favour of the landlord, Abdul Karim v. Meajan Meajanji, 20 C.W.N. 28 (notes portion).

The cases in which it has been held that a landlord is not entitled to khas possession when a part of the holding is transferred by the raiyat and then surrendered will be found below in the left-hand column, and those against will be found in the right-hand column below.

----------------------	---	--

Analysis of the reasons. If these cases are analysed it will appear that the reasons why a landlord is not entitled to khas possession on the surrender of a part when it had been transferred previously are as follows:—

- (1) A person who has parted with his interest and has given up possession in favour of the transferee has nothing left in him to deal with that interest.
- (2) By surrender a raiyat cannot confer upon the landlord a higher right than he could have passed to any other person by assignment.

It is submitted with great respect that where a raiyat transfers a part of his non-transferable holding he is in the eye of law the landlord's tenant in respect of the entire holding and therefore under cl. (7) of s. 86 he can surrender a part subject only to the limitations mentioned in cl. (6). The transferee takes the transfer subject only to the limitations as stated above; there cannot be an estoppel against the clear provision of the statute. Observations.

The Full Bench Case of Syed Mohsenuddin v. Baikuntachandra, 48 Cal. 605, s.c., 25 C.W.N. 29, s.c., 32 C.L.J. 286 has now settled the law which is stated below. Having regard to a conflict of rulings on the subject, Mookerjee, C.J. and Fletcher J., referred the following question for a decision of the Full Bench. Calcutta Full Bench Case. Landlord not entitled to eject transferee of a part.

"When an occupancy raiyat has transferred part of his non-transferable holding, is he competent to surrender to his landlord the portion so transferred either by surrender of that portion alone or by surrender of the whole inclusive of such portion?"

Mookerjee, C.J., delivered the judgment of the Full Bench.

The question referred to the Full Bench was answered in the negative and it was held that an occupancy raiyat, who transferred a part of his non-transferable holding, is not competent to surrender to his landlord the portion so transferred, either by surrender of that portion alone or by surrender of the whole inclusive of such portion.

A surrender of a non-transferable holding by an occupancy raiyat to his landlord, where the raiyat has previously sold a portion of the holding to another person entitles the landlord to enter upon the whole holding and eject the vendee or to settle it with another tenant; the English doctrine that a person cannot derogate from his own grant does not apply to prevent such surrender: Sheoraji v. Dhami Mian, [1923 Pat.], p. 305, (F.B.). The result of the provisions of ss. 178 (3) and 86 is that the raiyat has an absolute right of surrender subject to cl. (6) of s. 86: Ibid. Patna Full Bench. dissents from the Calcutta Full Bench.

This Patna Full Bench Case dissents from the Calcutta Full Bench Case of Syed Mohsenuddin v. Baikantha Chandra, 48 Cal. 605.

It is submitted that the Patna Full Bench case has taken the correct view of the law.

Where there is a surrender to the landlord, the rights of the tenant's mortgagee or encumbrance is preserved: Bisheswar v. Ali Karim, 63 I.C. 500. Mortgage is preserved after surrender.

A person after parting with his interest in property cannot deal with the interest by surrendering it in favour of the landlord: Amiruddin v. Sankar, 67 I.C., 91.

II. Sub-section (6): Incumbrance :—"The term 'incumbrance' used with reference to a tenancy, means any lien, sub-tenancy, easement or other right or interest created by the tenant on his tenure, or holding or in limitation of his own interest therein, and not being a protected interest in s. 160;" see s. 161. In s. 161 of the Bengal Tenancy Act the word "incumbrance" seems to be used as covering a lease: Jogeshar v. Abed, 3 C.W.N. 13. See Relinquish-ment.

Incum-

also Thakoor Das v. Nobin Kishen, 15 W.R. 552 ; Mahamed Askur v. Mahamed Wasuck, 22 W.R. 413 ; Gopendra Chandra v. Mokaddam, 21 Cal. 702. In order to satisfy the definition of "incumbrance" as given in s. 161 it must be the creation of the tenant, and therefore when a mortgage is created not by an act of the tenant but by operation of law under s. 171 of the Act, it is not an incumbrance : Pasupati v. Narayan, 1 C.W.N. 519 ; see notes under s. 161.

Sale of a portion.

A sale of a portion of a non-transferable occupancy holding is not an incumbrance within the meaning of s. 86 sub-secs. (6) and (7) : Tamizuddin Khan v. Khoda Nawaz, 14 C.W.N. 229 ; s.c., 11 C.L.J. 16 ; an incumbrance must imply a limitation of the rights of the tenant and not a total extinction of them ; Ibid. This case was followed in the case of Fazar Ali v. Pooroo Mian, 28 C.L.J. 266. The case of Tamizuddin Khan v. Khoda Nawaz, was discussed in the case of Askar Ali v. Goupee Mohan, 18 C.W.N. 601, s.c., 18 C.L.J. 257 and although their Lordships deciding the latter case did not express any opinion as to whether the former case was correctly decided, it appears however that the correctness of the decision in the case of Tamizuddin was doubted. In the case of Askar Ali v. Gopi Mohan, it was held that as long as the tenancy subsists the landlord is not entitled to eject the transferee of a portion of the holding.

Incumbrance, meaning of

Effect of
surrender.

The provision of sec. 86 (6) of the Bengal Tenancy Act embodies within certain bounds the principle that the lessee has no power to effect by surrender anything he could not do by assignment to a third person. A surrender of a raiyati holding by the raiyat without the consent of a usufructuary mortgagee of a portion of the holding, does not entitle the landlord to eject the mortgagee and where the landlord after such surrender himself settled the rest of the land with another, the subdivision of the holding was effected by the landlord and so did not offend against sec. 88. Raghunath Sing v. William Cox, 19 C.W.N. 268.

Section 86, clause (6) of the Bengal Tenancy Act, was introduced for the purpose of invalidating surrenders made so as to defeat the claims of incumbrancers. Per Richardson, J., in the case of Ramkumar v. Rameshwar, 38 I.C. 523.

Notice of
ment.

12. Surrender after an order under s. 171 :—Where a raiyat surrendered his holding at a time when the holding was in possession of the under-lessee of the raiyat under s. 171 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, held that the superior landlord's claim to khas possession by virtue of the surrender should be postponed till the amount due to the under-lessee by virtue of the mortgage under the operation of the law under s. 171 is satisfied : Nabadip v. Bhairab Chandra, 13 C.W.N. 97.

What is not a valid
ment.

13. Lands submerged under water :—By claiming or accepting remission of rent in respect of lands washed away from time to time by an action of the river, a tenant may be held to abandon or agree to abandon his rights to such lands on their reformation in situ : Arun Chandra v. Kamini Kumar, 18 C.W.N. 369 (P.C.).

Ejectment
of under-raiyyat.

14. Ejectment of under-raiyat :—Where a raiyat surrenders his holding, the landlord is entitled to re-enter by ejecting the under-raiyat if he is not protected by s. 85 or cl. (6) of this section : Nilkanta v. Ghatoo Sheikh, 4 C.W.N. 667. When the surrender is of a portion of a holding, a landlord need not serve a notice a quit upon the under-raiyat before he can be ejected: Badan Chandra v. Rajeswari, 2 C.L.J. 570.

15. Surrender by a Hindu widow :—Where a Hindu widow surrenders her raiyati holding (which she inherited from the last owner) such surrender is subject to the disability and limitation which attaches to her interest in the holding as a Hindu widow: Jumna Prasad v. Basdeo, 4 Pat. L.J. 548 ; s.c., [1919 Pat.] p. 245.

16. Effect of partition as between landlords :—"On principle it seems to me that a partition of the landlord's interests ought not to be held to confer upon the holders of one of the new mahals or pattis rights against tenants or their transferees which the landlords did not possess before the partition and which do not necessarily result from the partition:" Suraj Deo Narayan v. Pachi Narayan, 2 Pat. L.J. 225 at p. 230.

17. Court-fee and Stamp :—An application for service of notice of relinquishment of land is not chargeable with Court-fee according to cl. xii of s. 19 of the Court-fees Act. Although a surrender need not be in writing (see notes under heading No. 6) yet where a tenant actually executes a document in favour of his landlord which requires a non-judicial stamp it should bear stamp as provided for in Art. 61 of Sch. I of the Stamp Act which is as follows:—

Description of instrument.

Proper stamp duty.

"61. Surrender of lease—(a)
When the duty with which the lease is chargeable does not exceed five rupees.

The duty with which such lease is chargeable.

(b) In any other case.

Five rupees.

Exemption.

Surrender of lease when such lease is exempted from duty."

A lease of the following description is exempted from stamp duty under Art. 35 of Sch. I of the Stamp Act:—

"Lease, executed in the case of a cultivator and for the purpose of cultivation, including a lease of trees for the production of food or drink, without the payment or delivery of any fine or premium, when a definite term is expressed and such term does not exceed one year, or when the average annual rent reserved does not exceed one hundred rupees."

18. Notice of Surrender :—As to rule framed by the Local Government regarding the service of notice of the surrender: see Appendix I, Chap. V ; rule 36. Personal service is not required: Ksheroode v. Hashan Ali, 6 C.W.N. 28 (notes).

87. (1) If a raiyat voluntarily abandons his residence without notice to his landlord and without arranging for payment of his rent as it falls due, and ceases to cultivate his holding either by himself or by some other person, the landlord may, at any time after the expiration of the agricultural year in which the raiyat so abandons and ceases to cultivate, enter on the

holding and let it to another tenant or take it into cultivation himself.

(2) Before a landlord enters under this section, he shall file a notice in the prescribed form in the Collector's office, stating that he has treated the holding as abandoned and is about to enter on it accordingly; and the Collector shall cause a notice to be published in such manner as the Local Government, by rule, directs.

(3) When a landlord enters under this section, the raiyat shall be entitled to institute a suit for recovery of possession of the land at any time not later than the expiration of two years, or, in the case of a non-occupancy raiyat, six months, from the date of the publication of the notice; and thereupon the Court may, on being satisfied that the raiyat did not voluntarily abandon his holding, order recovery of possession on such terms, if any, with respect to compensation to persons injured and payment of arrears of rent as to the Court may seem just.

(4) Where the whole or part of a holding has been sub-let by a registered instrument, the landlord shall, before entering, under this section, on the holding, offer the whole holding to the sub-leasee for the remainder of the term of the sub-lease at the rent paid by the raiyat who has ceased to cultivate the holding, and on condition of the sub-lessee paying up all arrears due from that raiyat. If the sub-section refuses or neglects within a reasonable time to accept the offer, the landlord may avoid the sub-lease and may enter on the holding and let it to another tenant or cultivate it himself as provided in sub-sections (1) and (2).

S. 87 not exhaustive.

I. Provisions of this section are not exhaustive :—The provisions of this section are not exhaustive ; they apply only to cases in which a landlord take possession of an abandoned holding without bringing a suit ; but they do not prescribe the only mode in which a holding can be abandoned: Samujan v. Munshi Mahton, 4 C.W.N. 493; Ram Pershad v. Jawahir, 12 C.W.N. 899 s.c., 7 C.L.J. 72; see also Prankrishna v. Mukta Sundari, 18 C.L.J. 193; see also Adiluddi v. Fajal Sheikh, 19 C.W.N. 76 (notes portion); see notes under s. 23.

The provisions of this section are not exhaustive and the landlord may proceed by suit if he can prove that the facts and circumstances of the case lead to an inference of abandonment: Matookdhari v. Jugdip Narain, 19 C.W.N. 1319 s.c., 21 C.L.J. 261. Inference of abandonment.

2. Sub-sec. (I): Ceases to cultivate:—S. 87 contemplates of cases in which there is cultivation of the holding by the tenant; in cases where the land is partly homestead and partly horticultural the question of ceasing to cultivate the holding does not properly arise: Shashi Mohan v. Bipin Behari, 15 C.W.N. 79 (notes portion). Land partly homestead and partly agricultural.

When a raiyat without giving notice, goes away from the land he has occupied, and neither cultivates nor pays rent, the landlord is justified in assuming that he has relinquished it and the raiyat has no right to ask to be re-instated on the ground that he never formally relinquished the land: Goher Sheikh v. Alif-uddin Sheikh, 30 C.L.J. 13: Mere non-payment of rent is not evidence of abandonment but non-payment of rent coupled with non-occupation of land is evidence of an intention to abandon it: Ibid. Evidence of abandonment. Non-payment of rent and non-occupation of land.

Where a raiyat executed a usufructuary mortgage and delivered possession to the mortgagee, and the lower appellate court held that the landlord was not entitled to get khas possession in as much as the tenant had not abandoned within the meaning of s. 87 the High Court on the principle of the Full Bench case of Daya Mayi v. Ananda, 42 Cal. 172, held, that the finding of the lower appellate court was not sufficient to dispose of the suit and the case was therefore remanded for determination of the questions as to whether there was relinquishment of the holding or a repudiation of the tenancy; Prio Nath v. Kusum Kumari, 47 I.C. 332. Usufructuary mortgage.

Mere execution of a usufructuary mortgage is not sufficient to establish abandonment: it is principally a question of fact: where an occupancy raiyat after executing a usufructuary mortgage left the village and cut off all connection with the holding, held that there was abandonment: Monohor Pal v. Ananta Moyee, 17 C.W.N. 802; see notes under s. 23.

Where a raiyat sublets to an under-raiyat and then abandons the holding, it cannot be said that the raiyat has not ceased to cultivate. For, the cultivation by an under raiyat is not his own cultivation. Sub-sec. (4) contemplates cases of abandonment by raiyats and at the same time there have been subleases to under-raiyats. Sub-letting to under-raiyat. Non-cultivation by raiyat.

3. Abandonment: Sub-merged land:—By claiming or accepting remission of rent in respect of lands washed away from time to time by an action of the river, a tenant may be held to have abandoned or agreed to abandon his rights to such lands on their reformation in situ: Arun Chandra v. Kamini Kumar, 18 C.W.N. 369 (P.C.).

4. Abandonment: Abandonment, what amounts to:—In order to succeed under s. 87 the plaintiff must prove:— Elements necessary for abandonment under s. 87.

- (i) that the raiyat without notice to the landlord voluntarily abandoned his residence,

(ii) that he did so abandon without arranging for payment of his rent, and

(iii) that he ceased to cultivate his holding: Ramjanum v. Khublal, [1919 Pat.] p. 151.

Question of fact in each case.

The question as to whether there has been an abandonment or not within the meaning of s. 87 is in each case a question of fact: Monohor Pal v. Ananta Moyee, 17 C.W.N. 802; A court of appeal cannot make a new case and decree the appeal on the ground of abandonment which was not pleaded nor any evidence gone into the question: Harendra v. Khemada Kinkar, 44 C.L.J. 282.

Transfer of non-transferable holding.

The first sub-section shows that abandonment is the effect of the act of the tenant in vacating the holding without making arrangement for payment of his rent and for cultivating the land: Ram Pershad v. Jowahir, 7 C.L.J. 72; whether there is abandonment is a question of intention to be determined upon the facts of the particular case: Ibid. Where a tenant transfers his non-transferable holding he must be taken to have abandoned the holding if he ceases to pay rent to his landlord, and accepts a new tenancy from the transferee; Kalinath v. Kumar Upendra Chandra, 24 Cal. 212, s.c., 1 C.W.N. 163; where a tenant transfers his non-transferable holding and abandons possession of the same, he must be taken to have abandoned the holding: Lal Mamud v. Arbulla Sheikh, 1 C.W.N. 198; see also Robert Wilson v. Radha Dulari, 2 C.W.N. 63; Shamujan v. Munshi Mathon, 4 C.W.N. 493. Where a non-transferable occupancy holding was sold, and the purchaser, after obtaining possession through Court, pulled down the huts of the tenants and threw every obstruction in the way of any body else obtaining possession of the land, held that these findings were sufficient to hold that the tenant had abandoned: Bhagaban v. Bissesswari, 3 C.W.N. 46. But mere non-payment of rent, taken by itself, does not extinguish or amount to a relinquishment of the right of occupancy: Nilmony v. Sonaton, 15 Cal. 17; but it may be that the fact that the tenant has ceased to cultivate the lands coupled with the non-payment of rent would be evidence upon which a Court may come to the conclusion that there has been a relinquishment: Ibid. Where a raiyat neither cultivates nor pays rent for it he should be considered to have wholly relinquished the land: Muneeroodeen v. Mohamed Ali, 6 W.R. 67. In order to entitle the landlord to re-enter on abandonment by the tenant, it must be an abandonment in the words of s. 87, namely, that the raiyat voluntarily abandons his residence without notice to the landlord and without arranging for the payment of his rent as it falls due, and ceases to cultivate: Madan Mondal v. Mohima Chandra, 33 Cal. 531: s.c., 3 C.L.J. 343. Where a raiyat therefore, transferred his non-transferable holding but still remained on the land and cultivated the same, held that the landlord could not re-enter: Ibid.

Mere non-payment of rent does not extinguish right of occupancy.

Non-payment of rent coupled with the fact of raiyat not cultivating, effect of.

Where a tenant transfers his non-transferable holding and ceases to pay rent, the landlord is justified in regarding the conduct of the tenant as amounting to an implied surrender.

Usufructuary mortgage.

The mere execution of a usufructuary mortgage may not be sufficient to establish abandonment, but where the raiyat did not live in the village and cut off all connection with the holding, held that there was abandonment: Monohor Pal v. Ananta Moyee, 17 C.W.N. 802: Sashi Mohan v. Bepin Behari, 15 C.W.N. 79 (notes portion).

where the raiyat after execution of a usufructuary mortgage still held in the village, held that there was no abandonment: Sadhu Sai v. Awadh Bihar Saran Singh, 89 I.C. 702 s.c. 7 P.L.T. 552.

See notes under s. 23, headings nos. 14, and 15 at pp. 187, 188.

In order that there might be an abandonment under s. 87, there must be a finding that the tenant left the village without making any arrangement for the payment of rent; Adiluddi v. Fajal Sheikh, 19 C.W.N. 76 (notes portion).

In order to effect legal abandonment and to allow a valid re-entry by a landlord, service of notice under cl. (2) of s. 87 is not indispensable; the only effect of the service of notice, is to make it obligatory upon the tenant to have a speedy determination of the question whether there has been an abandonment or not: Ram Pershad v. Jowahir, 7 C.L.J. 72: s.c., 12 C.W.N. 899. Where a raiyat sells his non-transferable holding and is no longer in possession of the same and pays no rent for it, the landlord is entitled to eject both the transferor and transferee, and no notice is necessary under this section to enable the landlord to obtain khas possession of the holding: Samujan v. Munshi Mahlon, 4 C.W.N. 493; see also Robert Wilson v. Radha Dulari, 2 C.W.N. 63: the landlord is also entitled to khas possession when the tenant, after transfer, accepts a new tenancy from the transferee: Kali Nath v. Kumar Upendra Chandra, 1 C.W.N. 163; s.c., 24 Cal. 212; Norendra Narain v. Ishan Chandra, 22 W.R. 22. But the landlord has no right to take khas possession where a share of the holding is sold by the original tenants to certain members of their family, and after the sale, the entire holding remains jointly in the possession of the original tenants and the transferees and the rent of the holding continues to be paid in its entirety in the names of the original tenants and the transferor: Kabil Sardar v. Chunder Nath, 20 Cal. 590. In a case in which a raiyat transfers his holding and makes over possession to some one else, it is not the notice under s. 87 which terminates the tenancy, but the voluntary abandonment coupled with acts on the part of the landlord (not necessarily limited to the giving of notice) indicating that he considered the tenancy at an end, and it would be for the Court in each case to determine whether the tenancy had terminated: Lal Mahmud v. Arbullah, 1 C.W.N. 198. Where a non-transferable occupancy holding is sold in execution of a decree for money, and the purchaser obtains possession of the land through the Court, and pulls the huts of the tenant standing thereon, and it is found that the tenant has abandoned the possession of the holding, held that in a suit for khas possession the landlord is entitled to succeed, and a notice under s. 87 to the old tenant is not necessary: Bhagaban v. Bisseswari, 3 C.W.N. 46. Where a holding is actually abandoned the landlord is entitled to re-enter without a notice under s. 8: Wahid Ali v. Mohamad Ansar, 47 I.C. 147.

Transfer of non-transferable holding.—Right of landlord to obtain khas possession.

No right to khas possession where a share is sold.

Notice does not terminate the tenancy but the voluntary abandonment coupled with other acts.

Landlord not entitled to possession where sale not operative or transferee remains in possession as sub-lessee.

If the sale is not meant to be operative, the title to the property still continues with the tenant: Mathur Mandal v. Ganga Charan, 13 Cal. 1219 s.c., 10 C.W.N. 1033; where a transferee holds possession on behalf of the tenant, he cannot be evicted: Ibid. The landlord is not entitled to re-enter where the transferee remains in possession as a sub-lessee: Madar Mondal v. Mahima Chandra, 33 Cal. 531 s.c., 3 C.L.J. 343; Dina Nath v. Krishna, 9 C.W.N. 379; Chreestidhar v. Mandan, 9 Cal. 648.

See notes under the next heading.

Sale of non-transferable holding in execution of money decree.

When a non-transferable occupancy holding is sold in execution of a money decree, the landlord cannot re-enter if the tenant is still upon a portion of the holding and unless he has abandoned the whole holding: Jogendranath v. Tincowri, 10 C.L.J. 147.

Surrender after transfer of a portion.

A raiyat, after transferring a portion of the holding may surrender that portion or the whole and Cl. (7) is no bar to the landlord accepting the surrender, as the interest, if any, of the transferee is not an incumbrance; upon such surrender, the landlord may sue to eject the transferee as a trespasser: Ramoni Mohan v. Sheikh Kalimuddi, 17 C.W.N. 1102.

Test of abandonment of homestead land. Repudiation.

The only test of abandonment of homestead land within the meaning of the Bengal Tenancy Act, s. 87, would be discontinuance of residence in the village: Raghubar v. Ramghulam, 36 I.C. 653.

Even though there has been no abandonment, repudiation by the original tenant is sufficient to justify the landlord in evicting him. Where a tenant or occupancy tenant transfers his holding and in a suit for ejectment by the landlord pleads that the tenancy was transferable and he had a right, he must be deemed to have repudiated the tenancy and the landlord has a right of re-entry: Kinu Sheikh v. Raj Kumar, 96 I.C. 588 (Cuming and B. B. Ghosh J. J.).

Sale of entire holding.

For a landlord seeking to re-enter it is not necessary to prove as a fact that the holding has been abandoned but it is a direct inference from the fact that the entire holding was sold and possession given to the purchaser: Prosonna Kumar v. Ananda Chandra, 30 C.W.N. 231 (Cuming and Chakravarti J. J.).

Transfer of part.

Where the transfer is of a part only of a (non-transferable) holding or not, by way of sale, the landlord, though he has not consented, is not ordinarily entitled to recover possession of the holding unless there has been an abandonment within the meaning of s. 87 or a relinquishment of the holding: Dayamayi v. Ananda, 42 Cal. 172 (F.B.).

A suit brought for khas possession based on the provisions of sec. 26 of the B. T. Act fails as soon as it is found that the occupancy raiyat died leaving an heir: Harendra Kumar v. Khemada Kinkar, 44 C.L.J. 282 (Cuming and B. B. Ghosh J.J.). It is not necessary for the court to decide who is preferential heir or whether there has been abandonment and base its decision upon the same: Ibid. A court of appeal cannot make a new case and decree the appeal on the ground of abandonment which was not pleaded nor any evidence gone into the question: Ibid.

Covenant in kabuliyat.

A tenant holding under a Kabuliyat which precluded him from transferring the property in any way, either by sale or gift or otherwise, and which gave the landlord a right of re-entry in case of alienation, transferred his rights to another but remained in possession of a portion of the same as a lessee under his transferee. A person claiming under the landlord sued to eject him without giving him any notice under sec. 155 (1) of the B. T. Act; held that the defendant was liable to be ejected as there was an express covenant for re-entry on alienation, Gohur Sheikh v. Ahmed Mia, 105 I.C. 786 (B. B. Ghose and Roy J. J.). Ramesh Chandra v. Mathuranath, 28 C.W.N. 497; s.c. 39 C.L.J. 356, was distinguished; Dwarika Nath v. Mathura, 21 C.W.N. 833; s.c. 24 C.L.J. 40, was followed.

5. Abandonment by Hindu widow :—A Hindu widow can abandon a raiyati holding: Deo Narayan v. Ramanand, 63 I.C. 211. Hindu widow.

6. Sale by raiyat and Subsequent sublease from transferee: Abandonment :—Where a raiyat sells his non-transferable occupancy holding and takes a sub-lease from the transferee and remains in possession, two questions arise; 1st, as to whether the landlord is entitled to get a declaration of his title against the transferee to the effect that the transferee did not acquire any title against him, and secondly, as to whether the landlord is entitled to get khas possession by ejecting the original tenant who takes the sub-lease. In regard to the first question, the case-law seems to be settled that the landlord is entitled to get a declaration that the transferee has acquired no title as the holding is non-transferable and no title passed by his purchase. In regard to the second question, the landlord has been allowed khas possession in certain reported decisions, (see Kalicharan v. Arman, 13 C.W.N. 220; Kalinath v. Kumar Upendra, 24 Cal. 212, s.c. 1 C.W.N. 163; Rajani Kanla v. Ekkari, 24 Cal. 689, s.c. 11 C.W.N. 811), whereas in others the landlord has been disallowed his prayer for khas possession, (Madan Mandal v. Mahima Chandra, 33 Cal. 531, s.c., 3 C.L.J. 343; Superunnessa v. Ramdeb, 24 C.W.N. 117). See also notes under sec. 23, heading no. 9. But the true rule which underlies all these decisions seems to be this—that the landlord is entitled to get a decree for ejectment if the original tenant has abandoned the holding or repudiated the tenancy.

Whether a landlord is entitled to any relief where a raiyat sells his holding and takes a sub-lease.

What seems to be the true rule.

It is submitted that from the fact that the tenant is in possession of the holding it cannot be inferred that the tenant has not abandoned; abandonment is a mixed question of fact and law. If he continues to possess the land as a tenant of a third person, in the eye of law he ceases to possess the land as before and therefore he should be considered to have abandoned. It is submitted that the elements necessary for abandonment under sec. 87 cannot be invoked for the determination of the question as to whether there has been abandonment in a suit for ejectment on the ground of transfer of non transferrable holding and the tenant taking a sub-lease. Mere non-payment of rent is not sufficient for proving abandonment but non-payment of rent coupled with the fact that the tenant is in possession by asserting a hostile title should be considered to be abandonment in law. "Repudiation" of the landlord's title should also be inferred from the fact that the tenant when he transferred the land asserted transferability and allowed a stranger to come in and he himself admitting the title of a trespasser attorned to him. It is, therefore, submitted that on the transfer of a non-transferable holding the landlord is entitled to re-enter, although the original tenant is in actual occupation of the holding as a sub-lessee.

Abandonment, a mixed question of law and fact.

S. 87.

Repudiation.

Landlord entitled to re-enter.

It has, however, been held by Newbould and Rankin, J.J., in the case of Monmotho Kumar v. Jasodalal, 28 C.W.N. 300, that where a tenant of a non-transferable occupancy holding sells it to a third person and after obtaining a sub-lease from him remains in possession of the holding the landlord is not entitled to obtain khas possession of it in the absence of repudiation by the raiyat of his relation to the landlord as such raiyat, because mere transfer apart from any other consideration does not give the landlord any right to get a decree for khas possession although the raiyat does not appear and contest the suit. [The case of Sipernnessa Bibi v. Ramdeb Rai, 24 C.W.N. 117 was referred to.] Mere omission to pay rent is not a denial of the landlord's title in the absence of any evidence that the tenant ever refused to pay, —even if a case is heard ex parte, it is the duty of the Court to consider the interest of the absent party and not to pass a decree except on proof by the Plaintiff that he is entitled to that decree Ibid.

Sub-lease after transfer

Where a non-transferable occupancy holding was sold in execution of a decree (not a rent-decree), and the original tenant was in possession by taking a sub-lease and there was no evidence of refusal by the original tenant to pay rent to the landlord, held in a suit by the latter for khas possession against the transferee (in which the original tenants were not made parties) that there was no abandonment of the tenancy nor there was repudiation of the landlord's title and as such the landlord was not entitled to get khas possession: Ramesh Chandra v. Daiba Charan, 28 C.W.N. 602; s. c., 39 C.L.J. 356. (Rankin and Mookerjee, J.J.). Unless the landlord has a right to present possession he cannot maintain an ejectment suit against the transferee and the only remedy which the landlord can get against the transferee would be a declaration that the transferee has got no title to the land as against him: Ibid.

Where a non-transferable occupancy holding is sold by the riyat who after transfer takes sub-lease from the vendee and continues in possession, there is no abandonment of the land and there is nothing in the mere act of transfer to show any intention either to abandon the holding or to repudiate the relationship of landlord and tenant: Ataharuddin v. Murari Mohan, 47 C.L.J. 21, (Suhrawardy and Cammiade, J.J.). [The cases of Manmatha v. Jasoda, 28 C.W.N. 300; Superunnessa v. Ramdeb, 24 C.W.N. 117 and Madan Mandal v. Mahima Chandra, 33 Cal. 531, s. c., 3 C.L.J. 343 followed.] Suhrawardy, J. doubted the correctness of the decision of Manmatha v. Jasoda, 28 C.W.N. 300 and observed as follows:—"I am not prepared to accept the view without further consideration as it would seem that the very fact of the tenant transferring the whole of the holding to a stranger and attorning to him is sufficient evidence of repudiation of tenancy under the original landlord. But I am not at present disposed to differ from the view taken in that case and the other cases which it has followed": Ataharuddin v. Murari Mohan, 47 C.L.J. : 21 at p. 25

7. Relinquishment :—See notes under s. 86.

8. Sub-sec. (2): Form of Notice :—See Appendix I, rule 37, s. 87 does not require that personal service is to be effected upon the tenant: Kherode v. Hashan Ali, 6 C.W.N. 28 (notes).

9. S. 9. of the Specific Relief Act :—A landlord who proceeds to take possession of a holding after service of notice under s. 87 does so at his own risk; he cannot be said to take possession in due course of law so as to bar a suit by the tenant for recovery of possession under s. 9 of the Specific Relief Act on the ground that there was no abandonment: Suresh Chandra v. Srimati Nesa Bibi, 11 C.L.J. 433.

6. Intention of parties : No inflexible rule :—When lands of a tenancy have been subdivided, if a question arises as to whether new tenancies have been created, the answer must depend upon the intention of the parties; no inflexible rule apart from intention can be laid down: *Mulluck Chand v. Rent receipt by landlord or agent.

7. Sub-division of tenancy : Receipt by landlord or agent :

—A receipt for rent given by the landlord or his duly authorised agent in the form prescribed in this Act containing a recital that a tenant's name is registered in the landlord's sheristha, as the tenant of a portion of original holding at a rent which is a portion of the original rent amounts to a consent in writing by the landlord to a division of the holding and a distribution of the rent payable in respect thereof within the meaning of the section: Peary Mohun Gopal Paik, 25 Cal. 531, (F.B.), s. c., 2 C.W.N. 375: Jogodiswar Joymani, 25 Cal. 533, s. c., 2 C.W.N. 378 note: but see Aubhoy Churn v. Shoshi Bhusan, 16 Cal. 155. But where a receipt did not contain any specification of the total jumma of the taluk nor the statement of the area of the taluk or of the taluk at a rent which was a portion of the original holding, held that this receipt did not amount to a sub-division of the tenancy: Jnanendra Mohan v. Gopal Das, 31 Cal. 1020, s. c., 8 C.W.N. 923; receipt granted by Sumarnavis who was not the collector of rents and who had authority to grant a receipt does not amount to consent in writing by the landlord: Ibid.

Any subdivision of the tenancy requires the consent of all the landlords: Sasti Charan v. Akubjan Bibee, 26 C.W.N. 639.

Consent of all the landlords necessary.

It is open to the landlord to say that he is not bound to any sub-division made by the tenants of the holding. It is also quite open to him to give effect to the subdivision made by the tenants themselves: Sadakali v. Janakinath, A. I. R. 1924, Cal. 463.

Where the shares of the tenants in the putni as well as those of rent payable by each in his own share are separately shewn in the rent receipts granted to several tenants: held that the rent payable by different tenants is distributed amongst them and there is a sub-division of the tenure consented to by landlord: Abinash Chandra v. Purnananda, 18 C.L.J. 174.

Rent receipt shewing the shares of the tenants and rent payable by each, effect of.

Where the authority of a gomostha is in question to give a receipt recognising the sub-division of a tenure or holding the onus of proof is upon the landlord, the relations between the landlord and his servant being a matter peculiarly within the knowledge of the landlord under s. 106 of the Evidence Act: Srikrishna v. Jeohasi, 45 I.C. 294.

Gomostha's authority, to recognise sub-division: Onus of proof lies on landlord to rebut.

It is not within the scope of the authority of a Patwari or rent collector to consent on behalf of his master to the transfer of an occupancy holding, i.e. an important act to be performed only by a person having at least some of the powers of a manager: (Per Chamier C.J.): Wyatt v. Seo Gobind, 1 Pat. L. J. 414.

Patwari or rent collector, if has power to consent to transfer of occupancy holding.

8. Consent in writing:—The “express consent in writing” may be given by a receipt, and in each case the adequacy of the consent must be gathered from all the circumstances: Srikrishan v. Jeohasi, 45 I.C. 294, s.c., 1918, Pat. L. W. 316; see notes under s. 23 and s. 73. The consent in writing by the landlord to the division of a tenure or holding has the effect of substituting a new contract for the old: and it should therefore be complete in itself and embody distinctly the terms of the new contract; should it fail to do so, no extraneous evidence to prove the terms of the contract would be admissible having regard to the terms of s. 91 of the Evidence Act: Jnanendra Mohun v. Gopal Das, 8 C.W.N. 923.

‘Express consent in writing’ may be by a receipt. Consent in writing amounts to new contract.

Receipts for rent granted separately by the landlord’s teshildar to the tenants of a holding, whose names were also entered in the landlord’s sheristha in the place of that of the tenant who held the tenancy before them, does not amount to a consent in writing on the part of the landlord to a sub-division of the tenancy within the meaning of this section: Moharani Beni Pershad v. Romdohin, 10 C.W.N. 216. It cannot be laid down as an inflexible rule of law that a landlord is not bound by the act of a gomosta in recognising a transferee of occupancy holding, the question of the gomostha’s power to bind his landlord is one which must be decided on the particular facts of each case; the burden of proof is in the first instance upon the landlord to prove the extent of the authority of the gomostha as a matter peculiarly within his knowledge: Saduman Yamadar v. Behari Mahton, 15 C.W.N. 953. See notes under heading b. 6 under this section and notes under ss. 23 and 73. A landlord bound to recognise a transfer of a portion of a holding though in the absence of his written consent as required by this section he is not bound to recognise the sub-division effected by the transfer: Baistab Charan v. Akhil Chandra, 11 C.W.N. 217; Rammoyee v. Rupai, 9 C.W.N. 123 (notes).

Suit for rent when sub-division or separate collection.

A 16 anna proprietor obtaining a decree for the whole rent due in respect of a mokurari tenure in a suit brought against all the tenants is entitled under s. 75 to sell the tenure in execution of the decree although he recognised the fact that the tenants had sub-divided the tenure and chose to accept a decree making each of them separately liable for his own share of the rent: Surbo Lal v. J. M. Wilson, 32 Cal. 680. Mere separate collection of rent does not make it binding upon them to collect rent separately unless they give their consent in writing: Girish v. Chairadhar, 3 C.L.J. 379; one suit for rent may be brought by the landlords notwithstanding separate collection; Ibid. See also Shyama Charan v. Akhoy, 3 C.L.J. 627.

Ss. 17 and 88

A subdivision of the holding or distribution of the rent, cannot, having regard to the terms of s. 17 and 88 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, be binding on the landlord, unless his consent in writing has been obtained to the subdivision, and the landlord cannot be held to be bound by reason of the provisions of the Act to make the purchaser of a portion of the holding or tenure, a joint defendant with the defendants who are the only persons recorded as tenants in the landlord's sherestha: Ram Moyi v. Rupai Pramanick, 13 C.L.J. 267; a consent given by a landlord, by a solenama decree, to a transfer of the whole of a holding or tenure, cannot be taken as his written consent to the division or distribution of the rent of that holding, even though possibly, under the law, the tenants may be entitled as holders of a permanent tenure to make a transfer of a portion of their interest in the same to a third party: Ibid.

Solenama decree.

Separate suit for rent after partition between landlords: apportionment.

9. Partition between landlords, or effect of opening of separate accounts under Act XI of 1859:—Where the principal defendant was the tenant of two joint landlords and, there being a partition between them, each of the joint landlords brought a separate suit for his share of the rent against the principal defendant by making the co-sharer landlord a party, held that the suits were maintainable, all parties interested having been made parties; and that apportionment may take place of the sum due for arrears as well with regard to the future: Rajnarain Mitter v. Ekadasi Bag, 4 C.W.N. 494, Plaintiff held land in joint tenancy with the defendants under herself as the landlord; the shares of the plaintiff and defendants having been separated by partition, the defendants contended that the plaintiff could not sue them for rent jointly but must bring a separate suit against each tenant, held that there was a division of the land and not a division of the holding and the tenants remained jointly liable to the landlord for the entire rent: Dukh Haran v. Bibee Sghra, 12 C.W.N. 568.

Where a putnidar took upon himself the liability to pay the revenue to the Government on behalf of the Zemindars, and the latter subsequently opens separate accounts under s. 10 of Act XI of 1859, and the owner of a share of the Zemindari sued the Putnidar making the Zemindar's owner's parties, for an appointment and for an order directing the putnidar to make separate payment in the collectorate to the credit of the plaintiff of the amount due in his share, held, that the suit was maintainable and should be decreed.

Gour Gopal v. Gostabehari, 21 C.W.N. 214, see also s. 37 of the Transfer of Property Act and the cases Sreenath Chunder v. Mohesh Chunder, 1 C.L.J. 453. Issur Chander v. Ramkrishna, 5 Cal. 902, Raj Narain v. Ekadasi Bag, 27 Cal. 479 ; s. c., 4 C.W.N. 494.

10. Joint liability of purchaser of a fraction of tenure :—

Purchaser of a portion of tenure, whether jointly liable for entire rent.

The transferee of a part of a tenure is jointly liable with his co-sharer for the whole rent, for although the privity between the parties may be one of estate only, it is in respect of the whole of the tenure though the transfer was a part, by reason of the indivisibility of the tenure without the landlord's consent, the fact of the lease being for a limited time does not make any difference: Jogmaya v. Girendra Nath, 4 C.W.N. 500.

11. Payment of proportionate parts of rent :—

"We should not affirm the proposition that where a holding is in the occupation of several tenants as one entire rental, the fact that the landlord's teshildar has accepted from the various tenants proportionate parts of the rent binds the landlord to recognise a separation of the tenancy. On the other hand, if it were proved that the landlord granted receipts showing that a separate jumma had been fixed for the holding alleged to have been served, it might be well argued on behalf of the tenant that the landlord was estopped from denying that a separate tenancy had been created": (Per Harington and Mitra, JJ.), Moharani Beni Pershad v. Gobordhon, 6 C.W.N. 823. The fact of some of the joint occupiers of a joint tenure paying portions of the rent due from all, corresponding with the shares for which the joint occupiers are liable, cannot prevent the landlord from suing them all or making all answerable for the joint debts: Jnanendra Mohun v. Gopal Das, 8 C.W.N. 923 ; see also Buloram v. Saroop, 21 W.R. 256 ; Gour Mohan v. Anund, 22 W.R. 295 ; Ram Lalon v. Sonamonee, 22 W.R. 334.

12. Effect of consolidation :—

Effect of consolidation.

The mere fact of consolidation of a number of separate raiyati holdings cannot alter the nature of the tenancies and convert them into a tenure unless the landlord and the tenant agreed at the time that the holdings should thenceforth be a tenure: Manmoth Nath v. Anath Bandhu, 23 C.W.N. 201 ; see also Moula Baksh v. Jadunath, 21 W.R. 267, and Promoda Nath v. Asiruddi, 15 C.W.N. 896.

13. Recognition of division of holding :—

Effect of landlord accepting rent.

There are various ways in which a Zemindar may recognise the division of holding ; he may do so formally by dividing the holding into separate parts, or by implication by receiving rent from parties holding separately: Wooma Churan v. Raj Luchkee, 25 Cal. 19 ; where a tenure was put to sale in separate lots at the instance of the landlord, and he took rent from two of the purchasers separately, held that no written consent was necessary in order to his being bound to recognise the partition: Nubo Kishen v. Sreeram, 15 W.R. 255. Glover, J. in delivering judgment said as follows :—No doubt there is no consent in writing on the part of the Zemindar, but the inference that he did not consent to the partition is of the strongest kind. It was by his own deliberate act that the tenure was put up for sale in separate and it is not denied that he has, since the sale, taken rent from each of the purchasers of these lots separately. The object of the regulation was the protection of the Zemindar from the division of part of his property without his knowledge, but in this case it is clear that he knew of the division all along, and was in fact himself the cause of the property having been so divided.

Although tenants pay separately against all one rent suit is maintainable.

There is nothing in ordinary circumstances to prevent some of the joint occupiers from paying portions of the rent due from all, and the portions so paid may correspond with the shares for which the joint occupiers are liable, but there is nothing to prevent the landlord from suing them all, or making them all answerable for the joint debt: Gour Mohun v. Anand Mandul, 22 W.R. 295.

Where a raiyat transferred 5 bighas out of 8 bighas, held that it amounted to a division of a holding and a distribution of the rent, which, under s. 88 was not binding upon the landlord because not made with his express consent in writing: (Per Kingsford, J.); Wyatt v. Seogobind, 1 Pat. L.J. 415. Where a raiyat transferred a portion of his non-transferable holding to another, held that the division of the lands of the holding was not binding on the landlord: Abdul Karim v. Miajan, 20 C.W.N. 28 (notes portion). When a sale is only of a part of a holding at fixed rate the landlord is not bound to recognise the purchaser, as such a sale constitutes a division of the holding: Fazarali v. Amir Buksh, 47 I.C. 334.

Partition of an estate has the effect of dividing the holding.

14. Estates Partition Act: Effect of partition:—An estate having been partitioned between the plaintiff and his co-sharers under Act VIII, B. C. of 1876, a portion of a holding which formerly appertained to the joint estate fell within the plaintiff's share; held that the partition had the effect of dividing the holding so that the plaintiff became the sole landlord with regard to the portion of the holding that fell within his share of the estate: Protap Chandra v. Kamala Kant, 10 C.W.N. 818: Act VIII, whilst it did not provide for the division of holdings, did not also contain any prohibition against such division. Ibid.

Severance of tenure by sale of share.

15. Apportionment:—A sale of a share in a tenure, which has been let to a tenant in its entirety, does not of itself necessarily effect a severance of the tenure or an apportionment of the rent; but if the purchaser of the share desires to have such a severance or apportionment, he is entitled to enforce it by taking, proper steps for that purpose, if he takes no such steps, then the tenant is justified in paying the entire rent, as before, to all the parties jointly entitled to it. But if the purchaser desires to effect a severance of the tenure and an apportionment of the rent, he must give the tenant due notice to that effect and then, if an amicable apportionment of the rent cannot be made by arrangement between all the parties concerned, the purchaser may bring a suit against the tenant for the purpose of having the rent apportioned, making all the other co-sharers parties to the suit: Iswar Chandra v. Ram Krishna, (F.B.), 5 Cal. 902, Garth, C.J., in delivering judgment of this case said as follows:—No real injustice will be done to the tenant under such circumstances because the possibility of the severance of the tenure, by butwara, sale or otherwise, is only one of those necessary incidents of the property which every tenant is or must be presumed to have been aware of when he took the lease, and as regards the costs of any suit which may be brought for the purpose of having the rent apportioned, they would of course be a matter for the discretion of the Court, and would probably depend upon how far in each case the tenant has had a fair opportunity of amicably adjusting apportionment.

A landlord has no right to break up existing holdings and re-distribute lands so as to alter the extent and nature of the holdings without the consent of the tenant: William Nicholas Love v. William John Hume Ainsworth, 22 W.R. 336. Landlord not entitled to distribute lands.

Where seven mouzahs had been let in putni to certain tenants by the zemindar, and then, under a decree against the zemindar, three of those mouzahs were sold to A, and the other four to B, and subsequently A brought a suit against the putnidars to have his share of the putni rent apportioned, making B, purchaser of the other mouzahs, a party to the suit, held that the suit was properly brought: Sree Nath v. Mohesh Chunder, 1 C.L.R. 453. But see Kalee Chunder v. Ramguttty, 25 W.R. 95, where in a suit for rent brought by an assignee of a portion of the interest of a certain landlord it was held that where a landlord lets out land at a certain rent, the rent being payable in one sum for the whole, and the land not being let to the tenant in separate parcels in respect of each of which there is a separate assessment of the rent, he cannot, without the consent of the tenant, alter the position of the latter and say that in future so much of the rent shall be payable in respect of one parcel only of the land and so much in respect of another parcel only. Apportionment.
Suit by an assignee of a portion of interest.

See notes under heading No. 9.

A landlord, if he accepts rent, assents to the transfer of the tenure whether the whole is sold or a part only: Bharut v. Gunga Narain, 14 W.R. 211. Acceptance of rent.

See notes under s. 23.

16. Transfer :—Ss. 12 and 17: A landlord is not bound to recognise any sub-division of the holding unless the provisions of ss. 12 and 17 are complied with: Ram Moyi v. Rupai, 9 C.W.N. 123 (notes); where a durputnidar to the knowledge of his holding, transferred a portion of this durputni to one person on one date and the remainder to another person on a subsequent date, held that after the second transfer the liability of the durputnidar for rent ceased and the two transferees became jointly and severally liable to the landlord for the same: Kishori Raman v. Ananta Ram, 10 C.W.N. 270; see also Kristo Bulluv v. Kristo Lall, 16 Cal. 642, Chinta Moni v. Rash Behari, 19 Cal. 17; Jogmaya v. Girindra Nath, 4 C.W.N. 590. The act of a permanent tenure-holder in transferring the tenure piece-meal has the effect of dividing the tenure contrary to the provision of s. 98: Kishori Raman v. Ananta Ram, 10 C.W.N. 270; where the holder of a permanent tenure transferred a portion of it and the transferee held that portion separately and was allowed to pay proportionate rent for the same to the landlord for a great number of years, held that upon sale by the transferee of that portion of the tenure his liability for rent to the landlord ceased: Kali Sundari v. Dharani Kant, 10 C.W.N. 272; s. c., 33 Cal. 279; his act did not have the effect of subdividing the tenure; Ibid. Landlord when not bound to recognise transfer.
Transfer in portion.
Transfer piece-meal.

17. Suit for contribution of rent: Apportionment of rent: Apportionment on the basis of assets, —In a suit for contribution an apportionment of rent should not be on the basis of assets of the different villages at the time of the creation of the original tenure but on the basis of the present assets of the different portion of the tenure which by division have passed to different hands; Harī Kishun Bhagat v. Tilak Dhari Lal, 7 W.N. 453.

Right of ijaradar to accept
surrender.

18. Ijaradar or Ticcadar, action by :—An Ijaradar has full power to accept a surrender of the tenant's holding and having accepted a surrender he can let out the lands surrendered either as an entire holding to a stranger or part to the old tenants and part to a new tenant: Huree Mohun v. Gora Chand, 2 W.R., Act X, 25. The consent by a thikadar given in good faith for the benefit of the estate to an alteration of the area of the holdings under him and the apportionment of rent upon the new holdings is binding upon the landlord. Mohamad Nazirul Hussain v. Chuni Kamti, 2 Pat. L. J. 151, s.c., 1 Pat. I. W. 229.

Undivided share in a holding.

19. Holding :—An undivided share in the lands comprised in a holding is not a holding even if the landlord and the tenant agree to such a division: see Hurry Churun v. Rajah Runjit, 25 Cal. 817, s. c., 1 C.W.N. 521; Baidya Nath v. Sheikh Jhin, 2 C.W.N. 44; Haribole v. Tussimuddin, 2 C.W.N. 680. See notes under s. 3, sub-sec. (9).

Transferable
holding, subdivision
of.

If landlord

sue for khas possession if holding is transferred.

20. Transfer of a portion of a holding :—Even if an occupancy holding is a transferable one, the raiyat is not entitled to subdivide his holding and transfer different parts of it to different persons, and in case of such transfer the landlord is entitled to treat the transferees as trespassers and eject them: Tirthanund v. Mutty Lal, 3 Cal. 774, but it has been held that the transfer by a raiyat with a right of occupancy of a part of his holding does not entitle the landlord to recover possession of the land transferred by ejecting the transferee, in the absence of evidence to shew that by custom such transfer is allowed: Durga Prasad v. Doula Gazee, 1 C.W.N. 160; although the landlord in such a case is not entitled to khas possession, he is yet entitled to a declaration that the transfer of a portion of his holding which has not been made with his written consent as is provided by this section is not binding on him: Sheikh Guzafar v. Dalglish, 1 C.W.N. 126. See notes under ss. 23 and 183.

See the Full Bench case of Dayamayi v. Ananda, 42 Cal. 172, s. c., 18 C.W.N. 971, s. c., 20 C.L.J. 52. Where a part of a non-transferable holding is sold and on partition by the landlords, that part falls in the exclusive share of one of the landlords, held that he cannot bring a suit for khas possession of that part: Suraj Deo v. Pach Narain, 2 Pat. L.J. 225; a partition of the landlord's interest does not confer upon a co-owner a higher right than he had against a raiyat or his assignee than what he possessed before partition: Ibid. A landlord has a right to sue for a declaration that transfer of a portion of a holding is not binding upon him: Ram Ram v. Bibi Wazirunnessa, 49 I.C. 439.

21. Alienation of portion of a surborakari tenure :—The alienation of a portion of a surborakari tenure in Cuttack without the landlord's consent is invalid but it does not work as a forfeiture of the whole tenure: Dassorathy v. Ram Krishna, 9 Cal. 596.

22. Suit for rent by co-sharer landlords :—See notes under s. 188.

Separate Kabuliyat
necessary.

23. What constitutes a separate tenancy :—The mere fact that a tenant agrees to pay rent separately to one of the co-sharers would not constitute a separate tenancy; where however there is a separate kabuliyat in favour of one of the co-sharers lan lords it may be held that there is separate tenancy: Monmotha v. Mohendra, 65 I.C. 469.

24. Division of tenancy at the instance of one of joint landlords :—There is no provision in the Act as to the division of a tenancy when one of several joint landlords and the tenant agree, but the other co-sharer landlords do not agree. So far as regards the division of a tenure the unwilling co-sharer landlords are not at all affected if there is no dispute as to their respective shares, for an undivided share of land may form a separate tenancy, but in case of the division of a (raiya) holding the other co-sharer landlords will be affected as an undivided share of land is not a holding: see notes under s. 3, Cl. (9) and s. 30. Tenure and Holding.

25. Splitting up :—Where a tenure which was being held at a rent of Rs. 4-8 from before the Permanent Settlement, but subsequently it was split up into two tenancies at the rate of Rs. 2-4 each, held that there was a splitting up and the tenant was not entitled to get the presumption under s. 50: Uday Chandra v. Nripendra Narain, 36 C. 287: s. c., 13 C.W.N. 410. Split up.

An order under s. 81* of the Estates Partition Act though unfounded in fact is not a nullity and such an order cannot be challenged by way of defence to a suit for rent in the absence of other parties to the partition: Satis Chandra v. Kali Charan, 29 C.W.N. 221. Ss. 81 & 119 of the Estates Partition Act.

S. 119 of the Partition Act gives the tenant a right to have the order set aside: Ibid; so long as the order has not been set aside the tenant cannot say that the tenure has been split up.

26. Continuity of a transferable tenure after division :—Where a permanent tenure existed from before the time of the Permanent Settlement, and a portion thereof was transferred after the Permanent Settlement and the transferee was granted a sanad confirming the transfer and allowing the transferee to hold his purchased share on payment of proportionate share of the original rent, it was held, that a new tenure was not created and that it should be considered as existing from before the time of the Permanent Settlement and consequently it was not liable to enhancement except as provided by clauses (a) and (b) to sec. 6: Chandra Kant v. Ramkrishna, 20 C.W.N. 1002; s. c., 24 C.L.J. 275; "It is well settled that the continuity of a transferable tenure is not affected by subdivision or consolidation. Per Mookerjee, J., Ibid.*

* S. 81 of the Estate Partition Act runs thus :—" (1) No tenure or holding shall be split up for the purposes of a partition unless it is reasonably necessary to do so in order to effect an equitable partition.

(2) If a tenure or holding be split up as aforesaid, the total existing rent thereof, as ascertained under chap. VI, shall not be altered, but shall be apportioned among the several parts into which the tenure or holding is divided.

(3) When it is proposed to split up a tenure or holding and apportion the rent thereof as aforesaid, the Deputy Collector shall cause a notice to be served on the tenants concerned and, after hearing their objections, if any, may order that the tenure or holding be split up, and that the rent thereof be apportioned as aforesaid.

(4) The Deputy Collector shall notify such apportionment to the tenants concerned.

Mookerjee J. further observed in this case as follows :—The decision in Chandra v. Nripendra Narayan Bhup, 36 Cal. 287: s.c. 13 C.W.N. 410, is apparently an authority in support of the contrary view, overlooks, as

1. Covenant that landlord would be entitled to take possession without recourse to law :—When there was a stipulation that on the breach of a certain covenant the landlord would be entitled to take possession without recourse to law, held that in spite of the condition of the lease the landlord is bound by the provisions of s. 89 ; Budhimanta v. Sarat Chandra, 13 C.L.J. 672.

2. Ejectment of tenant's [sub-lessee] :—A superior landlord has no right to eject the sub-lessee (i.e. sub-tenant under the superior landlord's tenant) even if the sub-lease is not binding on the superior landlord : Tamijaddi v. Asgar Howladar, 36 Cal. 256 ; such sub-lessee may bring a suit for possession against the superior landlord : Ibid.

3. Holding :—The term "holding" has not been used here in the strict sense in which it has been defined (s. 3, cl. 9) ; it seems to include the tenancy of an under-raiyat, whereas according to the definition it means a parcel or parcels of land held by a raiyat.

S. 9 of Act I
of 1877.

4. Remedies against illegal ejectment :—Where a tenant sues a landlord for recovery of possession of his holding which he alleges to have been illegally dispossessed of, he has his remedy under s. 9 of the Specific Relief Act, but in a suit not under that I had occasion to point out in Addi Singh v. Sukhraj Rai, 17 C.L.J. 435, pre-existing law on the subject in this Court. Besides, as it turned up construction of cl. (3) of Sec. 50 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, it has no bearing upon the case before us.

section, he is bound to shew that he has a title to re-enter : see Nund Kishore v. Sheo Dyal, 11 W.R. 168 ; where a landlord dispossesses a tenant otherwise than by due course of law, a tenant may bring a suit under s. 9 of the Specific Relief Act to recover possession ; when the suit was not under s. 9 but under s. 23, cl. 6 of Act. X of 1859, it was held that the question was open as to whether the tenancy was at an end or not, and if at an end, he must fail in his suit ; see Janardan v. Haradhan, 9 W.R. 513 (at p. 514) (F. B.) ; see also Rughoonundan v. Gopal Singh, 1 W.R. 131 ; Sheo Pursun v. Baboo Ram, 1 W.R. 361 ; cl. 6 of s. 23 of Act X of 1859 referred only to possessory actions on the ground of illegal ejectment ; it did not apply to suit in which the plaintiff set out his title and sought to have his right declared and possession given him in pursuance of that title and did not bar the jurisdiction of the Civil Court : Gooroo Das v. Ram-narain, 7 W.R. 186 ; when a tenant comes into Court suing on his title, and fails to establish that title, he cannot fall back upon mere possession and get a decree independently of any right to hold the land : Urjoon Dutt v. Ram Nath, 21 W.R. 123. Ainslie, J., in delivering judgment said as follows :—".....both the lower Courts have found against the plaintiff on the title set up by him. If this is so, I think there can be no doubt that the suit ought to have been dismissed, because when a tenant comes into Court suing on his title, and fails to establish that title, if he can fall back upon mere possession and get a decree independently of any right to hold the land, the consequence would be that the landlord, who has just succeeded in defeating the title set up, would have to meet the decree by a fresh suit, notwithstanding that the judgment already arrived at would be conclusive between the parties, so that the second suit must end in a decree reversing the first decree, that is, a state of thing which clearly ought not to be brought about by the action of the Courts,—"

Tenant bound to prove title in a title suit.

Tenant's suit liable to be dismissed if tenancy is at an end.

A mortgagee of a non-transferable occupancy holding cannot recover possession of the holding in a suit against the landlord on the ground of illegal ejectment without reference to his title ; Madan Mohan v. Sheikh Habi, 2 C.W.N. 182 (notes).

Where a tenant held under a ticca and before the expiry of the ticca lease the landlord dispossessed the tenant, and the latter within six months from the date of dispossession (but after the expiry of the ticca) brought a suit for recovery of possession under s. 9 of the Specific Relief Act, held that the plaintiff's suit should be decreed : Ramdayal v. Upendra Nath, 17 C.W.N. 501.

Expiry of ticca lease.

5. Dispossession by a landlord—Limitation :—A suit to recover possession of land claimed by the plaintiff as an occupancy raiyat is governed by Art. 3 of Schedule III of the Act. See notes under that article.

Sch. III, Art 3.

The limitation applicable to a suit to recover possession by a non-occupancy raiyat who has been dispossessed of his holding by his landlord, is either six years or twelve years : Tomizaddin v. Ashrub Ali, 31 Cal. 647 (F.B.), s.c., 8 C.W.N. 446, over-ruling Bhugabat Charan v. Luton Mondal, 7 C.W.N. 218 ; see notes under Art. 3 of Schedule III.

6. Dispossession by the superior landlord :—Where a raiyat granted a sub-lease and the landlord of the raiyat dispossessed the sub-lessee without the sanction of law, held that he was a trespasser: Dumree v. Bissessur, 13 W.R. 291. A lessee can eject a tenant brought by his lessor on the land during the continuance of his lease: Kadir v. Sheo Prasad, 2 Pat. L.J. 713.

Accuracy of a plea.

Upon general principles a suit for ejectment of a tenant cannot be maintained, unless the tenancy has been determined i.e., unless there has been a previous notice to quit or a demand for possession: Per Mookerjee, J., in Deo Nundan v. Meghu Mahton, 34 Cal. 57 s. c., 11 C.W.N. 225: s. c. 5 C.L.J. 181. A mere demand for possession is sufficient for a tenant at will. Ibid.; the rule laid down in the case of Sulatu Dass v. Jadunath Dass,* 8 C.W.N. 774, applies in the case of a tenant from year to year: Ibid. A notice to quit which directs the tenant to vacate a certain quantity of land under his landlord is not bad in law merely because it includes some land which the tenant is found not to hold under the landlord: where a notice to quit stated the area of the defendant's holding to be 1 bigha and 5 chittaks, but the true area was $1\frac{3}{4}$ cottas less and no boundaries were given, held that it was not a defect which would make the notice bad in law, specially when the defendant was not misled by reason of this: Shama Charan v. Uma Charan, 25 Cal. 36, s. c., 2 C.W.N. 106. It is not required that a notice should be worded with accuracy of a plea; Deo dem. William v. Smith, 5 A. and E. 350: Deo on the demise of Cox and others, 6 Revised Reports 850; Deo Lessee of Rodd v. Archer, 12 Revised Reports 509.

On the determination of a lease for a term, the lessee is bound to surrender possession to the lessor; on default, he may be ejected without notice: Paramananda v. Syjon Singh, 24 C.L.J. 30.

Act I (B.C.)
of 1879.

It has been decided in a case decided under Act I of 1879 (B.C.) the Chota Nagpur Landlord and Tenant Procedure Act, that in a district in which that Act is in force, no notice to quit is necessary to eject a tenant who holds over after the expiry of his agricultural lease, there being no provision in the Act for such a notice: Ram Narain v. Mongru Urao, 4 C.W.N. 792.†

Observations of Rampini J.

Rampini, J., in delivering judgment said as follows:—Now, the land which is the subject of dispute is situate in the District of Lohardaga, where the provisions of Act I of 1879 (B.C.) prevail. It is admitted before us that there is no provision whatever in Act I of 1879 which prescribes that the landlord must give a tenant notice to quit before he sues to eject him. A fortiori there is no provision of the law which compels persons in the position of the present Plaintiffs who are not landlords, but who allege themselves to be tenants under the landlords, to give such notice to quit to the defendants, who they say, are not tenants but trespassers. There is no other law that we know which applies. The Transfer of Property Act will not apply to this case inasmuch as the lease under which the defendants originally held was a lease for agricultural purposes. From sec. 117 of the Transfer of Property Act it is clear that the provisions of Ch. V do not apply to such leases. Under these circumstances we cannot see that there is any law under which the lower Appellate Court was justified in holding that the Defendants were entitled to a reasonable notice to quit before they could be ejected. The pleader for the respondents has called our attention to various rulings of ancient date given under the rent-law formerly prevailing in Bengal, under which, he says, it is the common law in this country that before a tenant can be ejected, he must get notice to quit. We think, however, that there is no such common law and no such general rule. The Acts under which the cases cited were decided have all been repealed, and therefore they now prevail neither in Bengal nor in Chota Nagpur. And, so far as we can see, there is no other Act to guide us in this case but Act I of 1879 B.C., or the Transfer of Property Act.

Common law of the country.

This case (Ram Narain v. Mangru Urao, 4 C.W.N. 792, was not intended to lay down that where the Defendant is a tenant the tenancy has not to be determined before the institution of a suit for ejectment; Deo Nundan v. Moghu Mohton, 11 C.W.N. 225.

Ram Narain v. Mangru, explained.

In a suit for ejectment where no party sets up a tenancy the suit cannot be dismissed on the ground of want of notice when the Court finds that the defendant is a tenant; Sujjad Ahmed v. Gangā Charan, 9 C.W.N. 460. Notice to quit is necessary in the case of a service tenure when the tenant refuses to perform his services: Anser Ali v. C. E. Grey, 2 C.L.J. 403; see also Hurgovinda v. Ramrutna, 4 Cal. 67; Radha Pershad v. Badhu Dashad, 22 Cal. 938; Sreesh Chandra v. Madhab Mochee, (1857) S.D.A. 1772.

Where no party sets up a tenancy.

Service tenure.

Where a notice to quit directed that in default of compliance the tenant would be charged with damages at a certain rate, held that it was good notice to quit: Adolphe Shrager v. Emma Price, 12 C.W.N. 1059.

Notice to quit with notice of demand of damages for non-compliance.

In regard to non-agricultural tenancies the presumption is that the tenancy is a monthly tenancy expiring with the last day of each Bengali month: Rakhal Chandra v. The Secretary of State, 10 C.W.N. 841; a notice to quit such a tenancy was held to be good when the notice was dated the 25th of July and served on the 8th of August and the tenant was desired to quit on the last day of Chait: Ibid.

Agricultural tenancies.

The Collector is competent to sign a notice to quit on behalf of the Government: Rakhal Chandra v. The Secretary of State, 10 C.W.N. 841.

Signing of notice on behalf of Government.

In a suit for ejectment under the Bengal Tenancy Act a landlord is not relieved of the obligation to give notice to quit to the tenant, where the tenant for the first time denies the title of the landlord in his written statement: Pratap Narain v. Harihar, 36 Cal. 927; the notice must be a reasonable one, and it need not necessarily determine the tenancy at the end of the year; it will be the final court of fact in each case to determine what is reasonable notice having regard to all the circumstances, and whether it would not be reasonable in the circumstances of the particular case for it to determine with the year: Ibid.

Notice to quit.

Notice to quit when not sufficient.

A notice was served on the following terms: ".....some persons offer Rs. 27 a month, you are therefore informed by this notice that if from the 1st Aswin, 1318, you want to keep the shops and almiraahs in lease, you shall have to pay Rs. 27 a month": held that this notice was not sufficient either to terminate the tenancy or to enhance the rent: Sakhi Chand v. Ram Chandra, 16 C.L.J. 561; see also Bradley v. Atkinson, 7 All. 899.

Good notice.

Where a landlord wrote to the tenant asking him to come to an agreement with him to pay increased rent, and concluded by saying "otherwise I shall take steps to eject you and hence you consider this as 15 days' notice expiring with the end of this month," held that this was a good notice: Ganga Das v. Ananda Chandra, 13 C.W.N. 146.

Reasonable notice question of fact.

In regard to a tenancy-at-will the notice to quit need not be anything more than a reasonable one; as to what is a reasonable notice is largely a question of fact: Dukhiram v. Malabi, 39 I.C. 795.

Question of notice not raised in lower appellate Court if can be raised in second appeal.

The question as to whether the notice to quit was legal and sufficient cannot be raised in Second Appeal in the High Court when it was not raised in the Court of the First Appeal: Shahwali v. Hossaini Begum, 42 I.C. 655.

Determination of tenancy: Right of landlord to crops.

Contra.,

8. Right to crops :—The interest of non-occupancy raiyat in his holding is not heritable and as death determines the tenancy, the crop is lost to the heirs and his heirs cannot enter on the land and reap the crop after the tenancy has been determined: Karim v. Sudder, 24 Cal. 707, s.c., 1 C.W.N. 89. The effect of an order of ejectment is to dispossess the raiyat not only of the land but also of the crop standing thereon: In the matter of Durjan Mathon v. Wazid Hossein, 5 Cal. 135, but see Durga Pershad v. Doochur Pershad, 3 Agra 188, where it was held that a landlord cannot claim the crops on this ground at the raiyat's death even if the raiyat's right lapsed in his favour as it forms a part of the property belonging to the deceased, and passes to his legal representatives.

Suit against a trespasser.

9. Decree for rent in a suit for ejectment :—In a suit to eject the defendants as trespassers, although it was found that the latter were not so, a decree was given declaring the plaintiff's title to receive rent from the defendants, held in second appeal that the entire suit ought to have been dismissed, inasmuch as the defendants were not found to be trespassers on the allegations made, in the plaint and on the suit as framed, the plaintiffs were not entitled to get any other relief than the particular relief which they asked for: Kali Kishore v. Gopi Mohun, 10 C.W.N. 166.

Onus on plaintiff to prove title and possession within 12 years.

10. Onus in ejectment suits :—In a suit to recover possession it is essential for the plaintiff to prove two things—first, possession within 12 years before his suit; and, secondly title to possession: Beer Chunder v. The Deputy Collector of Bhullooah, 13 W.R., P.C., 23; s. c., 13 M.I.A. 323. See also Mirza Shamsher v. Munshi Kunj Behari, 12 C.W.N. 273.

Where onus on defendant. Plaintiff shewing prima facie title.

In a suit to recover possession where the plaintiff can shew a prima facie title to possession, he can claim a decree, unless the party in possession has a tenure entitling him to retain possession: Ram-monee v. Aleemodeen, 20 W.R. 374. Where plaintiff's title is admitted or proved the onus is upon the defendant to prove the allegation of his tenancy: Narshing v. Dharani, 9 C.W.N. 144.

When the plaintiff shews that he has a title, unless the defendant proves he has a right to continue in possession he is a trespasser: Ibid. In a suit for recovery of possession plaintiff stated that he was in khas possession and the defendants dispossessed him; the plaintiff purchased the land under a kobala and it was admitted that the persons from whom he purchased were proprietors of it; defendant claimed to hold under some title from the former proprietors; it was held that the onus was upon the defendant to prove his alleged title and defendant failing to discharge the onus plaintiff was entitled to a decree even if he failed to prove the allegation of khas possession and also the allegation of dispossession: Raj Kissen v. Pearee Mohun, 20 W.R. 421. The case of Rammonee v. Alleemoodeen, 20 W.R. 374, was followed in the case of Raj Kissen v. Pearee Mohun, 20 W.R. 421 which was followed in Sheodeni v. Chatoorbhooj, 12 C.L.J. 376. Where a person has the general title to a property and the defendant sets up an interest as mokuridar it is for the defendant to prove that and not for the plaintiff to disprove it; Koonj Beharee v. Bukshee Luchman, 19 W.R. 188. The cases in 20 W.R. 374 and 19 W.R. 188 were relied upon and followed in Haree Mohun v. Gurubulloh, 24 W.R. 417, where it was held that where in a suit for recovery of possession the defendant had admitted the ownership to be with the plaintiff and prayed to be allowed to be in possession as tenant, the burden of proof lay with the defendant.

Where plaintiff's title is admitted.

Where plaintiff has general title to the property.

Where plaintiffs are admittedly proprietors of the lands, they are, as such, entitled to exercise all the ordinary rights of ownership, and therefore when the defendants dispute the landlord's title to collect rents from the tenants directly on the ground that they hold immediately, they are bound to establish their title: see Batai Ahir v. Bhuggobutty, 11 C.L.R. 476; followed in Sheodeni v. Chatoorbhuj, 12 C.L.J. 376; (this case was followed in Azmat v. Bishun Bakar, 29 C.L.J. 607), Rammanee v. Aleemoodeen, 20 W.R. 374; Raj Kissen v. Pearee Mohun, 20 W.R. 421. When the plaintiff's title was admitted in a suit for ejectment and defendant claimed to be a raiyat, held that the onus is upon the defendant to prove the tenancy set up by him: Dina Nath v. Ganesh Chandra, 18 C.L.J. 544.

Where plaintiffs are admittedly proprietors.

A landlord is entitled to eject his tenant unless debarred by certain rights of the tenant. He is not required to prove the absence of the circumstances which entitled that tenant to retain possession: Nubo Coomar v. Oozir Shikdar, 23 W.R. 238; Jackson, J., in delivering judgment said as follows:—"The Judge said in his judgment in this case, 'I shall always hold that a landlord who seeks to eject a tenant is bound to shew his title to do so.' That may be either a very harmless proposition or a very dangerous one. If he means to say that the landlord is bound to shew his title to the land, he may be correct, but if he means to say that a landlord seeking to eject his tenant must prove the absence of the circumstances which entitle that tenant to retain possession of the land, we differ from him, and presume that he will not hold that view after receiving this expression of opinion of this Court that he is mistaken. We have no doubt that a landlord is entitled to eject his tenant after notice unless debarred of the power to do so by certain rights of the tenant of which the right of occupancy is one.....".

Landlord entitled to eject unless debarred by tenant's rights.

plaintiff had been dispossessed or had discontinued to be in possession of the land within 12 years immediately preceding the commencement of the suit : Dharani Kant v. Gabar Ali, 17 C.L.J. 277 (P.C.).

In a suit to eject a tenant for non-payment of rent it is incumbent upon the plaintiff to shew that he is sole proprietor of the property and that there are no other co-sharers to be joined with him as plaintiff : Shaikh Ashruff v. Ram Kishore, 23 W.R. 289.

Plaintiffs were admittedly zemindars and the defendant did not deny that he was the plaintiffs' lessee, the plaintiffs alleged that a certain mouzah including all lands appertaining thereto, had been leased to the defendant and that amongst those lands were certain zerai land. But, on the expiry of the lease the defendant had given up possession of all the land with the exception of the zerai land ; the plaintiffs, therefore, sued for khas possession of these lands ; the defendant set up a special allegation that he was holding these lands by purchase from third parties, who had derived their rights from the former maliks, and that the title under which the defendant held was a khas karee title, held that the onus was upon the defendant inasmuch as he set up a title to defeat the plaintiff's admitted right as zemindars and it was for him to prove the tenure which he set up as defeating the plaintiff's right as malik to khas possession : Baharee Sahoo v. Puryaj Mahtoon, 13 W.R. 291. Where plaintiff claims certain land as zerai and his title is proved or admitted, the onus is upon the defendant to prove the allegation of his tenancy. Narsing v. Dharam, 9 C.W.N. 144.

It is upon the defendant to prove the allegation of a mokurari grant purporting to have been made by the zemindar for the past services : Rajah Sahib Perlhah Sein v. Doorga Pershad, 2 B.I.R., (P.C.), 128 ; 12 M.I.A. 286.

The claim of an occupancy right as overriding the proprietor's right to cultivate his own land is of a special character and as such, it is one which the party seeking to derogate from the ordinary incidents of property is bound to establish : Rangasami v. Grana Samantha, 22 Mad. 264 ; where an occupier of land resists a suit for ejectment by setting up a claim of a right of permanent occupancy, the onus of establishing such a right is upon the defendant : Ibid.

A zemindar has a prima facie title to the gross collections from all the mouzahs within his zemindari ; it lies upon the defendant to defeat that right proving the grant of an intermediate tenure : Ibid at p. 331.

In a suit by a landlord for khas possession of land the defendant set up and proved an intermediate tenure ; held that it was on the plaintiff to shew that the parcel of land sought to be resumed was outside such tenure : Rajendra Kumar v. Mohim Chandra, 3 C.W.N. 763. In this respect it makes no difference whether the plaintiff admits the existence of the under-tenure or the defendant proves such tenure to exist, although denied by the plaintiff. Ibid. This case has been explained in the case of Protap Chandra v. Judhistir, 19 C.W.N. 143 where the law laid down is this :—It is not the law that because a defendant is found to be a tenant of some land under plaintiff, the burden is thereby cast upon the plaintiff to establish that the land he seeks to recover is outside the tenancy of the defendant. The burden would ordinarily be on the defendant to prove the tenancy under which he claims to hold it. The case in 3 C.W.N. 763 has further been explained in the case of H. Manners v. Harihar, 19 C.W.N. 149 where it has been held that the owner of an estate is entitled to recover possession of lands within it unless the defendant can prove a subordinate interest.

In the case of Rhedhoy Kistto v. Nobin Chandra, 12 C.L.R. 457, s. c., 9 Cal. 813 it was held that in a case of a landlord suing his tenant, admitting the tenant's holding, and alleging that the land in dispute is land which the defendant has encroached upon beyond his proper boundaries, the onus is upon the landlord to prove the encroachment. But in a case where the zemindar alleges the land in question to be within the ambit of his zemindari, and does not admit there is any such under-tenure or holding as the defendant sets up, and the defendant admits the ambit of the plaintiff's zemindari, and sets up an adverse title by reason of an under-tenure, the burden of proof is upon the defendant. Contra.

The principle laid down in Rhidhoy Kristo Mistri's case, 9 Cal. 813, s. c., 12 C.L.R. 457, throwing the onus on the plaintiff should be held applicable to cases where the land sought to be recovered is admitted by the plaintiff to be contiguous to the holding of the defendant or that it has come to his possession by encroachment: Gopini Debi v. Ramtaran, 19 C.W.N. 140. (Per N: Chatterjea, J.). The mere fact that the defendant holds some land under the plaintiff's would not be sufficient to throw upon the plaintiff the burden of shewing that in respect of any other land in the zemindari which the defendant may be found to be in possession of, he has no right as tenant; the burden of proof in a case like this is on the tenant: Ibid.

In all actions for ejectment where the defendants are admittedly in possession, and a fortiori where, they had been in possession for a great number of years, and under a claim of title, it lies upon the plaintiff to prove his own title: Mohima Chunder v. Mohesh Chunder, 16 Cal. 473 (at p. 479), P.C.

In a suit by an auction purchaser of a permanently settled estate to recover certain julkars of which the defendants were in possession for a long time the onus was held to be on the plaintiff to prove his title affirmatively: Forbes v. Meer Mahomed, 12 B.L.R. 213.

When a defendant alleges that he holds a permanent tenure, the burden of proving that fact lies on him and it is not for the plaintiff to shew that he is not a tenure-holder but a raiyat: Nilmoni Maitra v. Mothura Nath Joardar, 4 C.W.N. 159 (notes).

Possession by the defendant of a tenure of a limited extent within the plaintiff's putni raises no presumption of title upon his seizure of a piece of land and claiming it as part of his tenure; the onus lies upon the defendant to prove that the land is included in his mokurari holding and not upon the plaintiff to shew that it is not; but when a tenant has been in long and peaceable occupation of land as part of an admitted tenure, it lies upon the landlord in a suit for ejectment to prove in the first instance that the land is his khas property and not the tenant's: Nanda Lal v. Jajneswar, 6 C.W.N. 105.

When a tenant holds lands of considerable extent, it is a matter peculiarly within his own knowledge of what that holding consists; and if he alleges that one or two plots occupied by him are held under a different title it is for him to shew it: Ram Coomar v. Beejoy Gobind, 7 W.R. 535.

In a suit for presumption of lands which are alleged by the defendant to be lakhiraj, the onus is on the plaintiff, in the first instance to shew that the lands are mal, and if he fails to make out a prima facie case, the suit should be dismissed: Narendra Narain v. Bishun Chundra, 12 Cal. 182; Bacharam v. Peary Mohun, 9 Cal. 813: s. c., 12 C.L.R. 475.

Where defendant claims to hold as the holder of a dependant taluk the zemindar in order to get enhancement of rent must shew that the land was included in the zemindari at the time of the Permanent Settlement: Assanulla v. Bussurat Ali, 10 Cal. 920.

Suit for resumption of lakhiraj lands.

A person seeking to resume lakhiraj land must give prima facie evidence to shew that rent has been paid for that land at some time since the 1st of December, 1790: Koylash Bashinee v. Gocool Mani, 8 Cal. 230; see also Parbati Charan v. Rajkrishna, B.L.R. Sup. vol. 162; Sonaton v. Moulvi Abdul, B.L.R. Sup. Vol. 109; *Huryhur v. Resumption: Mal.
Zemindar to make out a prima facie case.

A Zemindar in a suit for resumption of land as part of his mal zemindari for assessment is bound in the first instance to prove a prima facie case (1) the payment of rent since 1790, or (2) that the land formed part of the mal assets of the estate at the Decennial settlement; when such a prima facie case is made out, the onus is shifted on the defendant to prove that his tenure existed rent-free before the first of December, 1790; Huryhur v. Madhub Chunder, 14 M.I.A. 152: s. c., 8 B.L.R. 566.

The onus is upon the landlord in a suit for possession to prove his allegation that it is mal and not lakhiraj, although the land lies within the ambit of his zemindari: Sheikh Melan v. Mahomed Ali, 10 C.W.N. 434; the reason of the rule as regards the burden of proof is mainly that where possession for a long time by a defendant is admitted to be undisturbed, the plaintiff must give affirmative-proof of the land being part of his estate: Ibid; the fact of the land being pasture land raises a presumption in favour of the plaintiff: Ibid; see also Oooma Charan v. Umbica Charan, 20 W.R. 285.

Onus.
Where plaintiff's title is proved.

In a suit for ejectment where the defence sets up a tenure by right of purchase from the former tenants, if the plaintiff has proved that he is the owner of the land, it lies upon the defendant to make out that he is tenure-holder and is entitled to remain thereon: Hiramoti v. Annoda Prosad, 7 C.L.J. 553.

Onus in ejectment suit against under raiyat.

In an action for ejectment where the plaintiff alleged that he was a raiyat and the defendants were under-raiyats, held that the onus was upon the plaintiff to prove that the defendants were under-raiyats: Basiruddin v. Sahebullu, 32 C.W.N. 160. The cases of Abhoy v. Fultari, 57 I.C. 838 and Paran v. Khariz, 42 I.C. 262 were referred to. See note at p. 287.

Suit for
ment.

Where the purchaser of a tenure having obtained ex parte decree for rent against the tenant in occupation subsequently brought a suit for enhancement and was met by the plea that the tenancy was mokurari one, held that purchaser was not estopped from bringing a suit for ejectment: Arsali v. Ramsaiya, 7 C.L.J. 191.

There is no authority for the proposition that simply because a landlord does not for a time institute a suit for ejectment after the expiry of the tenant's lease, the presumption is that the tenant was allowed to hold over: Ratan Lal v. Farashi Bibee, 11 C.W.N. 826. Holding over.

Where the plaintiff is admitted to be the landlord, and it is further found that defendant has raiyati interest in respect of some of the lands in suit but there is nothing to show which of the lands are raiyati, it was held that it was for the defendant to identify the lands which he claims as raiyati: Bhaiyan v. Khawas Dilwar, [1920 Pat.] p. 39. The case of Rajah Sahib Perhlad Sein v. Doorga Pershad, 12 M.I.A. 286, followed. Where plaintiff is admitted as landlord.

In a suit for ejectment the initial onus is on the plaintiff to prove his title. As to the right of the defendant to hold the land, where there is no contract between him and the plaintiff or any privity of contract as between the parties, the defendant must also prove his right to remain on the land: Satis Chandra v. Debendra Nath, 85 I.C. 636.

II. Co-sharer landlords :—When tenants where originally let into possession of land by all the co-sharers in a zemindari, a co-sharer is not competent to obtain a partial ejectment of the tenants to the extent of his share, unless the tenancy has been determined by all the co-sharers: Gholam Mahiuddin v. Khairan, 31 Cal. 786; the cases of Radha Prasad Wasli v. Esuf, 7 Cal. 414; Hulodhur Sen v. Gooroodas Roy, 20 W.R. 126, and Kamal Kumari v. Kiran Chandra, 2 C.W.N. 329, were all distinguished on the ground that these were cases in which an individual co-sharer let a person into possession of the land as tenant without the consent of the co-sharer seeking to eject that person from the land. Co-sharer not entitled to eject unless the tenancy is determined by all the co-sharers.

When some of several joint landlords have assented to a transfer of a non-transferable holding, the other co-sharers are entitled to recover joint possession of their share: Hossein Mahomed v. Fakir Mahomed, 10 C.L.J. 618, referred to in Radhakissun v. Bhagawat, 38 I.C. 72.

In a suit for ejectment by a Putnidar against A, A set up that he was the tenant not under the Putnidar but under another who was the durputnidar and seputnidar and who was entitled to the land, the durputnidar and seputnidar was ordered to be made a party and the appellate court sent the case for retrial; Upendra Chandra v. Sheikh Sobhan, 15 C.L.J. 6. Party.

12. Suit for ejectment and arrears of rent :—A person may claim in an ejectment suit arrears of rent due up to the time of the institution of the suit: Shahwali v. Hussaini, 2 Pat. L.J. 595; s. c., 42 I.C. 655; see also Mansarali v. Abdul Karim, 10 C.L.J. 187, and Padmanabha v. Ranga, 20 M.L.J. 930; and see Fenton v. Barnett, (1898) Q.B. 276; s. c., 67 L.J. Q.B. 11, s. c., 77 L.T. 645. A decree holder who has obtained a decree for ejectment is entitled to bring a suit for the arrears of rent of the period prior to the ejectment decree: Mansar Ali v. Abdul Karim, 10 C.L.J. 187; (The cases of Jogeshuri Chowdhurani v. Mahomed Ibrahim, 14 Cal. 33 and Peer Pux v. Mowzahally, 1 Hay 89 were distinguished). Waiver by receipt of rent only applies to rent accruing subsequent to the forfeiture: Rajmohon v. Mati Lal, 22 C.L.J. 546. Where a suit was brought for ejectment on the ground of non-payment of rent the suit was dismissed as rent was claimed for a period subsequent to the default in payment of rent: Abdul Rasid v. Safar Ali, 21 C.W.N. 159 (notes). Ejectment suit-Arrears of rent. Waiver by receipt of rent.

Notice to quit, not necessary for ejectment of licensee.

Ejectment suit, not maintainable in respect of a portion of holding.

Breaking up a tenure.

Sub-tenant not a party.

Fair rent.

Recovery of possession.

No cause of action until tenancies determined.

13. Ejectment suit against a licensee :—For the ejectment of a licensee a notice to quit is not necessary : Gobinda Chandra v. Nandadulal, 27 C.L.J. 523.

14. Ejectment suit against a portion of the holding :—A suit for ejectment cannot be brought for a part of the holding : Bhagloo Shah v. Mahadeo Chaudhuri, 36 I.C. 283 ; see also Harihar v. Ram Sashi, 23 C.W.N. 77, s. c., 29 C.L.J. 117 ; (P.C.).

A landlord cannot break up his tenant's tenure by declaring that he has no longer any right to the portion of it although he still holds the remainder : Ramkanai v. Gones Chandra, 33 C.L.J. 513, a suit to eject a tenant on service of notice from a portion of the holding on the ground that he refused to pay him, (the landlord), any rent for that portion is not maintainable : Ibid.

In a suit for ejectment against a tenant, the sub-tenant is not a necessary party and the latter is bound by the decree obtained against the tenant : Ram Kissen Das v. Binraj Choudhury, 50 Cal. 419.

15. Suit for possession after expiry of lease :—Where it was stipulated that after the expiry of an ijara a fair rent should be settled and that until a fair rent was settled the old rent would continue, held that a landlord was entitled to recover possession in a suit for possession : Midnapur Zemindari Co. v. Naresh Narain, 48 I.A. 49 ; s. c., 48 Cal. 460.

A landlord has no cause of action to sue for khas possession of lands forming part of his tenant's holdings until the tenancies are determined, but he can get a decree declaring his title to the land and giving him possession through the tenants by receipt of rent : Kumudini Dasi v. Surendrabala Dasi, 82 I.C. 22.

Where a man, whether the owner or merely a tenant, creates a tenancy under him which entitles the tenant to the exclusive use of the land or of the house, as it may be, the man creating the tenancy, cannot have any right to actual possession, unless he has by the lease or by agreement with his tenant reserved to himself a right to re-enter and take possession : Ibid.

See notes under s. 23.

16. Recognition by thicadar :—Where the thicadar of the plaintiff accepted rent from the transferee of a holding, held that a suit for ejectment did not lie : Bhagloo Shah v. Mahadeo Chaudhuri, 36 I.C. 283.

Suit for ejectment Defence—
Specific performance.

17. Suit for ejectment—Defence—Specific performance :—A suit for ejectment by a person having a legal title can be met by one in possession under an agreement not formally executed and registered, though a suit for specific performance is barred : Mahammad v. Krishna Gobinda, 28 C.L.J. 77.

Parties.

18. Parties :—An action for damages against one or some of the several joint wrong-doers is maintainable. Such an action, however, is entirely distinct from an action in ejectment. The cause of action in the former, is the injury sustained, while in that of latter, is the detention of property. The two causes of action are essentially distinct.

The principles governing the rules of joinder of defendants in an action for ejectment are mainly two ; first, if any of the person in possession is left out, he remains in possession as not being affected by the decree, and the decree as one in ejectment and for possession becomes infructuous because the person ejected as being bound by the decree can always come in under the person who remains in possession ; and second, there is a certain amount of risk involved in not making the person in actual possession defendants for in execution of the decree, persons may happen to be turned out who may then bring action against the plaintiff for wrongful dispossession, not being bound by the decree. In a case where the plaintiff has alleged in the plaint that a person is in possession, and there is no question of any particular share of which he may be in possession, it is not possible to apply the principle embodied in the first part of the rule stated in Cole on Ejectment pages 84 and 85, namely : "If the name of any tenant in possession be omitted as a defendant those parts of the premises which are in his occupation cannot be recovered in the action."

For the application of the rule that in action in ejectment all persons in possession should be impleaded as defendants, there is no distinction in principle between the cases of trespassers and of tenants who claim to hold under a title, because all action in ejectment proceed on the assumption that the plaintiff has title and hence the right to possession and that the defendant has none.

The plaintiff in a suit for recovery of khas possession of certain lands on declaration of plaintiffs' maliki right thereto, stated that one R held an ordinary raiyati jote which he afterwards abandoned. Defendants Nos. 1 to 3 were the heirs of R, Nos. 4 to 6 were purchasers of part of the jote from R and defendants Nos. 7 to 8 were sub-tenants. Defendant No. 6 died pending suit and his heirs were not brought on the record ; an objection as to maintainability of suit held that the suit was not maintainable in the absence of heirs of the Defendant No. 6 : Arunadaya v. Mahamad Ali, 46 C.L.J. 435.

Measurements.

Measurements.

90 (1) Subject to the provisions of this section and any contract, a landlord may, by himself or by any person authorised by him in this behalf, enter on and measure all land comprised in his estate or tenure, other than land exempt from the payment of revenue.

Landlord right to measure land.

(2) A landlord shall not, without the consent of the tenant, or the written permission of the Collector, be entitled to measure land more than once in ten years, except in the following cases (namely) :—

- (a) where the area of the tenure or holding is liable, by reason of alluvion or diluvion, to vary from year to year, and the rent payable depends on the area;
- (b) where the area under cultivation is liable to vary from year to year and the rent payable depends on the area under cultivation;

(c) where the landlord is a purchaser otherwise than by voluntary transfer and not more than two years have elapsed since the date of his entry under the purchase.

(3) The ten years shall be computed from the date of the last measurement, whether made before or after the commencement of this Act.

2. Proceeding under this section is not a suit :—A proceeding under this section is not a suit and the order passed in such a proceeding is not a decree as defined in the Civil Procedure Code: Dya Gazi v. Ram Lal, 2 C.W.N. 351.

3. Appeal :—See notes under s. 91.

4. Right of measurement with a certain pole :—In a proceeding under this section the order should be limited to one directing in the words of s. 91, that the tenants do attend and point out the land, and a declaration made in such order that the applicant to measure is entitled to make the measurement with a pole of a certain measure is bad in law and without jurisdiction: Dya Gazi v. Ram Lal, 2 C.W.N. 351.

Right of

5. Right of landlord to measure where there is an inter-mediate tenant :—Every landlord has a right to measure under this section even if there is a mukuridar between him and the tenant: Matangini Dasi v. Ram Das, 7 C.W.N. 93; there was nothing in the old law which precluded the proprietor of an estate from making a general survey and measurement merely because his estate happened to be sublet to a number of tenure-holders: Brojendra v. Krishna, 7 Cal., 684 (at p. 689), 9 C.L.R. 444; see also Baboo Run Bahadoor v. Muloram Tewaree, 8 W.R. 149; J. Tweedie v. Ram Narain, 9 W.R. 151.

excess rent.

6. Landlord :—A kabuliyat executed before the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Act by defendant, the holder of a darmourashi patta in favour of his immediate landlord a mukuridar, provided that the former should have his name entered in the zemindar's sheristha in place of the mukuridar and pay rent direct to the zemindar, also in case the area of the tenure should exceed certain bighas, that he should pay rent on each excess bighas at a certain rate to the zemindar and makuraridar; the agreement was ratified by the zemindar; it was held that the zemindar had the right to measure the land: Matangini v. Ram Das, 7 C.W.N. 93.

7. Lakhraj land:—A landlord had no right under s. 9, Act VI 1862 (B.C.), to measure lakhiraj lands, as lakhraj lands until resumed form a distinct and separate estate: Prosunno v. Chunder Nath, 10 W.R. 361; Rang Lall v. Sreedhur, 11 W.R. 293; Golam Kheruj v. Ershine & Co., 11 W.R. 445.

8. Fractional co-sharer landlord:—It seems that by virtue of s. 188 of this Act a fractional co-sharer landlord has no right to make an application to measure. Under the old law also it was so decided: see Mahomed Bahadoor v. Rajah Raj Kishen, 15 W.R. 522; Moolook Chand v. Modhoosoodhun, 16 W.R. 126; Soorender v. Bhuggobut, 18 W.R. 332; Santeeram v. Bykunt, 19 W.R. 280; Pearee Mohun v. Raj Kisto, 20 W.R. 385. But it was held in the the case of Abdool Hossain v. Lall Chand, 10 Cal. 36: s.c., 13 C.L.R. 323, that a proprietor of a fractional share of an estate was competent under s. 38 of Act VIII (B.C.) of 1869 to apply for measurement of the lands, if he made all his co-proprietors parties to the proceeding. S. 188.
S. 38 of Act VIII of 1869 (B.C.)

But where one set of landlords obtains separate kabuliyats entering into separate contracts for rent with the tenants such landlords cease to be joint landlords and such a landlord is entitled to make an application for measurement of the land comprised in his estate under this section: Jognesh Prakash v. Maniraddi, 35 Cal. 417.

91. (1) Where a landlord desires to measure any land which he is entitled to measure under the last foregoing section, the Civil Court may, on the application of the landlord, make an order requiring the tenant to attend and point out the boundaries of the land. Power for Standard of measurement.

1 acre-4,840 square yards.

C.L.J. 231. A single suit to measure lands of several tenants although their rights and tenures are different was maintainable under s. 9, Act VI of 1862, B. C. : Shushee Bhusun v. Nubo Coomar, 8 W.R. 94.

2. Appeal :—A proceeding under s. 90 is not a suit and the order passed in such a proceeding is not a decree as defined in the Civil Procedure Code, and hence an order made under this section, on an application under s. 90 is not appealable, although a declaration is therein made that the petitioner is entitled to make the measurement with a pole of a certain measure: Dya Gazi v. Ram Lall, 2 C.W.N. 351.

3. Presumed to be correct :—"Under the present Act finality is not given to a measurement, and it would be open to a tenant to rebut the presumption of correctness which the Court is directed to make if he fails to attend when directed to do so." Per Macpherson and Ameer Ali, J.J., Dya Gazi v. Ram Lall, 2 C.W.N. 351. Where a landlord by virtue of an agreement with a tenant measured the lands on notice to the tenant who raised no objection at the time of the measurement, held in a suit by landlord for possession of alleged accreted land that the tenant could not defeat the suit merely on the ground of the incorrectness of the measurement, there being no fraud but that they were entitled to ask the Court to decide what the amount of the property was which the plaintiff was entitled to recover; Alimuddi v. Kali Krishna, 10 Cal. 895 (P.C.).

4. Court-fee :—It seems that the Court-fee for an application under sec. 90 is eight annas as provided for by Sch. II: Art. 1, cl. (b) of the Court-fees Act.

5. Standard of measurement :—A Court has no power to deal with the question as to the standard of measurement in a proceeding under ss. 90 and 91; Ashutosh v. Joylal, 17 C.L.J. 50.

92. (1) Every measurement of land made by order of a Civil Court, or of a Revenue officer, in any suit or proceeding between a landlord and tenant, shall be made by the acre, unless the Court or Revenue-officer directs that it be made by any other specified standard.

(2) If the rights of the parties are regulated by any local measure other than the acre, the acre shall be converted into the local measure for the purposes of the suit or proceeding.

(3) The Local Government may, after local inquiry, make rules declaring for any local area the standard or standards of measurement locally in use in that area; and every declaration so made shall be presumed to be correct until the contrary is shown.

Acre :—One standard bigha is equal to—14,400 square feet or 1,600 square yards—100 bighas are therefore equal to 33 acres (an acre being considered to be equal to 4,840 square yards).

Acre :—"A quantity of land, containing 160 square rods or perches or 4,840 square yards. This is the English Statute or Imperial acre which is employed over the United Kingdom and its Colonies and in the United States, though Scotland and Ireland have respectively an acre of their own, which is still to some extent used in measurements. The Scotch acre is larger than the English as it contains 6,104,128 square yards, 48 Scotch acres being equal to 61 English acres. The Irish acre is also larger than the English inasmuch as 100 Irish acres are nearly equivalent to 162 English acres. OGILVIE'S IMPERIAL DICTIONARY OF THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE.

MANAGERS.

Ss. 93 to 100.

Ss. 93 to 100 lay down the rules for the appointment of a Common Manager when there is a dispute between co-owners of an estate or tenure. The case-law on the several sections has been noted under the appropriate sections; still for convenience' sake a summary of the comparatively more important cases on the subject is given below :—

1. Where a co-owner is not concerned in a dispute :—Where there is a dispute amongst some only of several co-owners, the common manager is to be appointed with regard to the entire estate including the share of such co-owner with whom there is no dispute and who is in separate collection of rent¹ Dispute amongst some only of several co-owners.

2. Separate collection of rent :—Where the several co-owners in separate receipt of rent of their respective shares an application may be made for the appointment of a common manager.¹

3. Portion of an estate :—An appointment of a common manager with regard to one of several mouzahs comprising an estate is invalid.² See notes under sec. 93.

An "estate" means an "entire estate" [see definition of estate, s. 3, sub-sec. (1). A common manager cannot be appointed with regard to a share of an estate.^{2a} Part of an estate.

4. Dispute with regard to several estates :—Where there is a dispute between co-owners of several estates one application is maintainable in respect to such of them of whom the owners are common.³

5. Appeal :—An appeal does not lie against an order passed in a proceeding arising out of an application for appointment of a common manager.⁴ The remedy therefore lies in an application under s. 622, C. P. C.

6. Non-service of notices :—An appointment of a common manager without service of notices upon all the co-sharers is not valid.^{4a}

7. Revenue Sale Law :—S. 5 of Act XI of 1859 (Revenue Sale Law) has no application to the case of an estate managed by a common manager appointed under the Bengal Tenancy Act ; such management does not also fall within s. 17 of that Act.⁵

8. Appointment of common manager where parties did not agree to it:—Where parties consent to the estate being made over to the Court of Wards, such consent should be taken to limit to the Court of Wards, and a District Judge appointing a common manager without further proceedings after the Courts of Wards gives it up acts illegally.⁶

Such an order may be set aside by the High Court under s. 622, C. P. C. (s. 115 of the new Code).⁶

consent.

9. Appointment of common manager by consent:—An order of the District Judge formally appointing a manager with the consent of the co-owners is an order which should be treated as an order under s. 95 of the Act.⁷

A District Judge has no jurisdiction to appoint a common manager by consent of parties ; before he can make the order, he must find that there is dispute likely to cause inconvenience to the public or injury to private rights existing between the co-shares.⁸

Prima facie the provisions of s. 375 of the Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882) do not apply to such a case.⁸

10. Regular suit to set aside an order of appointment of common manager:—A regular suit lies to set aside an order of appointment of a common manager on the ground that the appointment was made in respect to a portion of the estate and without service of notices to all the co-sharers.⁹ It is not obligatory to apply in the first instance to the District Judge who had appointed the common manager.⁹

11. Security of manager:—The appointment of a common manager under s. 95 is only complete when the required security has been given and possession has been taken under the order.¹⁰

12. Power of a co-owner during common management:—The appointment of a common manager does not take away from a co-owner his power of dealing with his own share.¹¹

A purchaser or a mortgagor acquiring an interest from a co-owner during the period of common management is subject to a charge incurred by the manager.¹¹

13. Power of lessee under co-owner:—A person who takes a lease from a co-owner after the appointment of a common manager is in no better position than the co-owner.¹²

14. Death of common manager:—The powers of a Judge under s. 95 are not exhausted by the appointment of a person who has entered upon the duties of his office and has subsequently vacated the same by death, voluntary relinquishment or otherwise the application of the manager has not the effect of restoring the estate to the owner.¹³ But the case of Dwarka Nath v. Bankutesh, 10 C.W.N. 437, decides to the contrary; the case in 7 C.L.J. 109,¹³ seems to take the correct view.

15. Power of the District Judge :—(1) A District Judge has no power to call upon a person to deliver certain accounts and papers to the common manager.¹⁴

(2) A District Judge can in the exercise of his discretion consider the propriety of the appointment of a common manager whatever be the stage at which the proceedings may have arrived.¹⁵

16. Powers and duties of a common manager :—A common manager appointed under the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act—

(1) has power to mortgage or sell property with the permission of the District Judge.¹⁶

(2) has power to collect rent which is a part and parcel of the management of an estate.¹⁷

(3) is competent on behalf of the co-owners to sue for recovery of possession of land.¹⁸

(4) is competent to defend a suit;¹⁹

(5) shall get his name registered under s. 78 of the Land Registration Act before he can recover rent from the tenant.²⁰

17. Accountability of common manager :—See notes under ss. 95 and 98.

18. Dedicated or Shebait property :—It seems that where a dedicated property to an idol is under the common management of two or more co-shebait the provisions relating to the appointment of a common manager apply to such a case. It may be contended that a shebait is not an owner within the meaning of s. 93 and that the idol or deity is the owner and therefore when there is a dispute between co-shebait (who are not co-owners within the meaning of s. 93) these provisions have no application; such a contention does not seem to be sound; for, the management of the dedicated estate or tenure (as the case may be) rests with the co-shebait and the dispute is amongst the co-shebait. The right to possession and management of a dedicated property belongs to the shebait and the right to bring a suit for rent is vested in the shebait and not in the idol.*

The principle in the following case seems to support this view: Jagadindra v. Hemanta, 31 I.A. 203, s. c., 8 C.W.N. 809.

19. Proceeding under s. 93: Appointment of Receiver :—

A proceeding for the appointment of a common manager is a proceeding in the nature of a suit within the meaning of sec. 141 of the Civil Procedure Code, and a Receiver can be appointed during Managers.

Power to call upon co-owners to show cause why they should not appoint a common manager.

93. When any dispute exists between co-owners of an estate or tenure as to the management thereof, and in consequence there has ensued, or is likely to ensue,

(a) inconvenience to the public, or

(b) injury to private rights,

the District Judge may, on the application in case (a) of the Collector, and in case (b) of any one having an interest in the estate or tenure, direct a notice to be served on all the co-owners, calling on them to show cause why they should not appoint a common manager:

Provided that a co-owner of an estate or tenure shall not be entitled to apply under this section unless he is actually in possession of the interest he claims, and, if he is a co-owner of an estate, unless his name and the extent of his interest are registered under the Land Registration Act, 1876.

Dispute.
Co-owners.

3. Dispute :—Where there is a dispute amongst some only of several co-owners, the common manager is to be appointed with regard to the entire estate including the share of such co-owner with whom there is no dispute and who is in separate collection of rent;

Saradindu v. The Collector of Rungpur, 11 C.W.N. 143; see also Saradindu v. Girish Mohini, 21 C.W.N. 240.

A dispute as to the terms on which, or the person with whom, a particular holding or a number of holdings should be settled, is a dispute as to the management of the estate though only a part of the estate is involved: Ibid.

A dispute as to the boundaries between the common estate of the co-owners and another contiguous estate of which one of the co-owners of the common estate is the sole proprietor, is not a bar to the appointment of a common manager when there are other disputes between the co-owners: Ibid.

4. Notice:—An appointment of a common manager without service of notices upon all the co-sharers is not valid: Indu Bhusan v. Annapurna, 6 C.L.J. 216.

5. Estate:—An appointment of a common manager with regard to one of several mouzahs comprising an estate is invalid: Indu Bhusan v. Annapurna, 6 C.L.J. 216. An estate means an entire estate [definition of estate s. 3, sub-sec. (1).]* The appointment of a common manager must be to the entire estate and not to a portion thereof; Mohim v. Nagendra, 30 C.L.J. 261. An estate remains a single estate for revenue purposes though separate accounts may have been opened in respect of it: Sardindu v. Girish Mohini, 21 C.W.N. 240; see also Saradindu v. Collector of Rangpur, 11 C.W.N. 1143.

A common manager cannot be appointed to a part of an estate or tenure; it must be to an entire estate or tenure: Basanta Kumar Chakravarti v. Asutosh, 27 C.W.N. 1040.† After a common manager was appointed in regard to certain properties some of which were parts of tenure, the common manager was removed and his successor was appointed when a co-sharer made an objection to the original appointment of a common manager with regard to a part of certain tenures was bad, held that such objection was entertainable although not made at the time when the common manager was appointed originally: Ibid.

6. Separate receipt of rent:—Where the several co-owners are in separate receipt of rent of their respective shares an application may be made for the appointment of a common manager: Saradindu v. The Collector of Rangpur, 11 C.W.N. 1143.

7. Act XI of 1859:—S. 5 of Act XI 1859 (Revenue Sale Law) has no application to the case of an estate managed by a common manager appointed under the Bengal Tenancy Act: Bhawani Koer v. Afzal Hussain, 34 Cal. 51: s.c., 5 C.L.J. 425.

* It is submitted with great respect to the learned Judges who decided this case that it is doubtful whether the view taken is correct, for the meaning of the word "estate" as defined in the Act means land included under one entry unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context. Now if an estate is comprised of two moujahs—one in the 24-Parganas and another in Burdwan, and if A. and B. are co-owners of the moujah in the 24-Parganas and C. and D. are co-owners of the moujah in Burdwan, and if there is any dispute between A. and B. in the 24-Parganas, it is absurd that there should be an appointment of a common manager to manage the two moujahs. It therefore appears that there would be a repugnancy in construing the word "estate" as meaning land included under one entry. See notes under s. 3, sub-sec. (1).

† The cases of Indu Bhusan v. Annapurna, 6 C.L.J. 216, and Mohini v. Pakrasi v. Nogendra Nath Pakrasi, 30 C.L.J. 261 were referred to and followed.

8. Procedure :—A District Judge can, in the exercise of his discretion, consider the propriety of the appointment of a common manager whatever be the stage at which the proceedings may have arrived: Saradindu v. The Collector of Rungpur, 11 C.W.N. 1143. The proceeding may therefore be quashed at any stage: Ibid.

9. Appeal :—An order passed in a proceeding arising out of an application made under this section is not appealable inasmuch as the application is not a suit between a landlord and a tenant within the meaning of s. 143: Hossain Bux v. Matoodharee, 14 Cal. 312.

Procedure where application relates to more than one estate.

10. Co-owners of an estate or tenure: Court fees—
Notice :—An application was made for the appointment of a common manager of a property consisting of 243 estates, or taluks; 60 bore separate numbers on the Collector's Land Register, whilst other portions of the property were tenures and holdings; the petitioners were holders of different proportions of the entire property, and the persons who were called upon to shew cause held various shares in many of the estates; held, that there need not be as many applications as there are estates, but the applicants should be called upon to state whether all of them are entitled in common to the various estates, and tenures mentioned in the application, if not, to divide themselves into as many groups as there may be properties held by them in common and in the latter case it would be necessary that each group of shareholders should put in separate applications: Fazel Ali v. Abdul Majid, 14 Cal. 659. Separate court-fees are to be levied if separate applications have to be put in the above circumstances, Ibid.; the notice in the case of tenure will be as provided by this section and it will be of the same character and to the same effect as in the case of estates: Ibid. Where there is a dispute between co-owners of several estates one application is maintainable in respect of such of them of whom the owners are common: Fazel Ali v. Abdul Majid, 14 Cal. 659.

11. Application under s. 93—Original proceeding: Appointment of Receiver :—An application for the appointment of a common manager under s. 93 is an original proceedings contemplated in s. 141 of the Civil Procedure Code to which the procedure under O. 41, r. 4 (appointment of Receiver) seems to be applicable: Asadali Chowdhury v. Mahomed Hossein, 43 Cal. 986, s.c., 20 C.W.N. 1009.

Estate includes reformation and accretion.

12. Reformation of lands or accretion to the estate :—The word "estate" includes reformation of or accretion to the lands of an estate, which may come under the hands of the common manager subsequent to the date on which the common manager is appointed: Secretary of State v. Anada Mohon, 34 C.L.J. 205.

"Injury to private rights."

13. Injury to private rights :—The words "injury to private rights" are ambiguous, but they are wide enough to include an injury of a co-sharer however small his share may be i.e. if there is a loss of income of a co-sharer: Promotho v. Monmotho, 52 Cal. 231. The case of Saradindu v. Girish Mohini, 21 C.W.N. 240 was followed. As to whether "injury to private rights" includes invasion of the rights of tenants: See Abdul Azahar Chaudhury v. Collector of Backerganj, 44 C.L.J. (Greaves and Mukerji J. J.). See notes under sec. 99.

94. If the co-owners fail to show cause as aforesaid within one month after service of a notice under the last foregoing section, the District Judge may make an order directing them to appoint a common manager, and a copy of the order shall be served on any co-owner who did not appear before it was made.

Power to order them to appoint a manager if cause is not shown.

Headings of Notes.

1. REVENUE SALE LAW.
2. INVALID ORDER.
3. COMMON MANAGER APPOINTED BY CONSENT OF CO-OWNERS.
4. COMMON MANAGER APPOINTED UNDER THIS SECTION WHETHER UNDER THE CONTROL OF THE DISTRICT JUDGE.

1. Revenue Sale Law:—An estate for which a common manager is appointed is not an estate under attachment under Act XI of 1859: Bhawani v. Irshad, 34 Cal. 51; s.c., 5 C.L.J. 425.

2. Invalid order:—Where a common manager was appointed with regard to one of several mouzahs comprising an estate without notice to all the co-shares, held that a suit for recovery of possession by such co-shares who had no notice by setting aside the appointment of a common manager as invalid was maintainable: Indu Bhusan v. Annapurna, 6 C.L.J. 216.

3. Common manager appointed by consent of co-owner:—An order of the District Judge appointing a manager with the consent of the co-owners is an order under s. 95: Juggut Chunder v. Galoke Chunder, 23 Cal. 522 (at p. 524). But it has been now decided that a District Judge has no jurisdiction to appoint a common manager by consent of parties; prima facie the provisions of s. 375 of the Civil Procedure Code do not apply to such a case: Kali Charan v. Parbati, 4 C.L.J. 565.

Appointment of common manager without the consent of the parties without taking evidence.

Under sec. 94 of the B. T. Act, the Common Manager may be appointed by the co-owners themselves under orders of the District Judge. Such an appointment will not be an appointment by the District Judge, but by the co-owners themselves: Durga Prasad v. A. H. Forbes, [1925 Pat.] 109.

It is submitted that a District Judge should be satisfied upon evidence that the elements required by s. 93 have been proved to the satisfaction to enable him to make an order for Common Manager. The consent of parties cannot give the Judge the jurisdiction to appoint a Common Manager unless really there are good reasons.

4. Common manager appointed under this section whether under the control of the District Judge:—It is not clear whether a manager appointed by the co-owners under this section is under the control of the District Judge, for, s. 98 applies to a manager under s. 95; on the other hand s. 100 empowers the High Court to make rules defining the powers and duties of manager under this chapter, and the rules are made making them applicable to "every manager, appointed under Chap. IX of the Bengal Tenancy Act."

It is not clear whether a manager appointed by co-owners is under the control of the District Judge.

order under the last foregoing section, as the District Judge may fix in this behalf, or, where the order has been served as directed by that section, within a like period after such service, appoint a common manager and report the appointment for the information of the District Judge, the District Judge may, unless it is shown to his satisfaction that there is a prospect of a satisfactory arrangement being made within a reasonable time,—

- (a) direct that the estate or tenure be managed by the Court of Wards in any case in which the Court of Wards consents to undertake the management thereof; or
- (b) in any case appoint a manager.

I. Appointment of manager—Consent :—Where the parties, while objecting to the appointment of a common manager, agreed that the property should be made over to the Court of Wards, and under an order of the Judge it was made over to the Court of Wards, which assumed the management and continued it for some time but afterwards give it up, it was held that an order of the Judge appointing a common manager without taking any further proceedings under s. 93 was bad and the consent by virtue of which the Court of Wards took charge was limited to the Court of Wards, and did not give the Judge power to appoint any other manager: Ganada Kant v. Prohabati, 20 Cal. 881.

There was a proper application to the District Judge under s. 93 by some of the co-owners for the appointment of a common manager and notice was served on all the co-owners to shew cause why a common manager should not be appointed; no cause was shown, but the District Judge, instead of making an order under s. 94 directing the owners to appoint a common manager gave them time in order that they might come to some arrangement ; eventually they agreed to appoint a certain person and the Judge made a formal order appointing him as manager ; this order was treated as an order under s. 95 : Juggut Chander v. Goloke Chunder, 23 Cal. 522 (at p. 524). But it has been now decided that a District Judge has no jurisdiction to appoint a common manager by consent ; prima facie, s. 375, C.P.C., has no application to such a case : Kali Charan v. Parbati, 4 C.L.J. 564.

manager on consent of parties is an order under s. 95.

Where separate accounts were opened in regard to an estate and there is quarrel between the co-owners of one of the separate accounts, the proprietors of the other separate account being holding unconnected with the dispute and were in peaceful possession, held that if the Court appoints a common manager it should be in regard to the entire estate including the separate estate the proprietors of which are not concerned in the suit : Promotho v. Monmotho, 52 Cal. 231. But the powers under s. 93 given to a District Judge are discretionary and where the Judge in his discretion did not appoint a Common manager, because in such a case the co-owners of the separate account, who are not concerned in the dispute the High Court did not interfere specially because the applicant for the appointment of a common manager might bring a regular suit and get a Receiver appointed : Ibid.

Common Manager should be appointed in regard to entire estate.

District Judge's power discretionary.

2. Powers of Common Manager :—A common manager, appointed under the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act, has power to mortgage property with the permission of the District Judge : Amar Chunder v. Roy Goloke Chunder, 4 C.W.N. 769. The powers of the manager regarding sale or the grant or renewal of a lease stand on one and the same footing and are subject only to the District Judge : Ibid (at p. 774). A common manager is competent on behalf of the co-owners to sue for recovery of possession of land : Sibo Sundari v. Raj Mohun, 8 C.W.N. 214.

Mortgage.

Sale or lease.

A "common manager can bring a suit for declaration of title and recovery of possession of immoveable property on behalf of the co-owners and if he can bring a suit, there is no reason why he should not represent them for defending a suit," Kritibash v. Umesh Chundra, 14 C.L.J. 61 ; 16 C.W.N. 96. Where a common manager who was made a defendant actually in possession to the exclusion of the co-owners, the suit against him was held rightly to have been brought and as the suit had been brought within time it was immaterial whether the heirs of some of the co-owners were brought on the record too late for a suit against them, question of limitation did not therefore arise : Ibid.

Common Manager can bring suit and defend suit.

Suit not barred if common manager is made a party with-in time, although co-owners are made parties beyond time.

A common manager appointed under sec. 95 of the B. T. Act has under sec. 98 cl. (3) all the powers of the co-owners for the purposes of the management of the estate, subject to the control of the District Judge and the co-owners cease to exercise such powers so long as the appointment lasts. The payment of rents for tenures or holdings held by the co-owners is an act of management. The sanction should be obtained before proceedings are taken against the common manager for realisation of such rents, the position of the common manager so appointed being analogous to that of a Receiver appointed by the Court : Durga Prasad v. A. H. Forbes [1925 Pat.] 109. The case of Beni Madhab Sukul v. Deb Narain Sukul, 24 C.W.N. 138 was referred to.

Execution proceedings against common manager without sanction of District Judge, not valid.

Where at the time of the sale of the six annas share in an estate under a mortgage decree the estate was under the management of a Common manager appointed under Sec. 95, and all that the purchaser purchased was a six annas share subject still to the authority of the common manager, held the fact that the common manager had been made a party to the execution case will not make him liable under the decree. His authority as common manager still existed and the purchaser has no power to collect rents separately so long as the common manager continued to be the common manager: Abdul Gaffur v. Durga Prasad, 8 P.L.T. 611 s.c. 1927 A.I.R. (Pat.) 334.

3. Powers of co-owners during common management:—The appointment of a manager does not take away from a co-owner his power of dealing with his own share: Amar Chandra v. Shoshi Bhusan, 31 Cal. 305, s.c., 8 C.W.N. 225 (P.C.); The Midnapur Zemindary Company v. Abinash, 29 C.L.J. 297. Any interest which a mortgagee or a purchaser would acquire from a co-owner during the period of management would be subject to any charge on the estate that might properly be incurred by the manager during that period: Ibid. When a manager is appointed, co-owners, even though their names are registered, cannot collect the rents: Maqbul Ahmed v. Girish Chunder, 22 Cal. 634 (at p. 637).

A person taking a lease of the share of one of the co-owners after the appointment of a common manager can not realise his own share of the rent as he is in no better position than the co-owner from whom he takes the lease: Juggut Chunder v. Goloke Chunder, 23 Cal. 522. Where the share of a co-owner was in possession of the other co-owners as ijaradars when an order was made appointing a common manager with the consent of all the co-owners, it was held that where subsequent to the expiration of the ijara that share was let out in putni, the putnidar had no right to collect the rents but was bound by the order appointing the manager: Ibid.

Ss. 193 and 199, I.P.C.

4. Papers and accounts cannot be called for for delivery to manager:—The District Judge called upon a person to deliver certain accounts and papers to the common manager; on his failure to do so the Judge instituted a miscellaneous proceeding and in that proceeding the person who was called upon to deliver the accounts and papers made a certain statement and filed two affidavits on the ground that the statement and the allegations in the affidavit were false. The District Judge sanctioned his prosecution under ss. 193 and 199, I.P.C.; it was held that the District Judge had no authority to make any such enquiry or to pass an order for the delivery of the papers and to examine the person on oath in such proceedings: Abdul v. Krishna, 20 Cal. 724.

Collection
of rent.

5. Management:—Collection of rent is part and parcel of the management of an estate and it is so recognised in Regulation V of 1812: Maqbul Ahmed v. Grish Chunder, 22 Cal. 634 (at p. 637).

6. S. 78 of the Land Registration Act:—A manager who is appointed under this section must get his name registered under s. 78 of the Land Registration Act before he can recover rent from the tenants: Maqbul Ahmed v. Grish Chunder, 22 Cal. 634.

Successor to Manager.

7. Appointment of successors:—Having once made an appointment of a common manager under s. 95 of the Act it is not open to the District Judge to appoint a successor to the manager on his resignation: Dwarka Nath v. Bankutesh Lal, 10 C.W.N. 437, but the case of Dwarka Nath v. Bankutesh, 7 C.L.J. 109, which decides to the contrary seems to take the correct view.

Where a common manager dies, resigns or is removed the District Judge has inherent power to appoint a successor: Brindaban v. Jnanendra, 35 C.L.J. 75; s.c., 64 I.C. 819; the case of Dwarkanath v. Bankutesh, 10 C.W.N. 437 was dissented from.

Death, resignation or removal of common manager.

8. Security of manager:—The appointment of a common manager under s. 95 is only complete when the required security has been given and possession has been taken under the order: Dwarka Nath v. Bankutesh Lal, 7 C.L.J. 109.

Appointment of common manager, when complete.

9. Regular suit to set aside an order:—A regular suit lies to set aside an order of appointment of a common manager on the ground that the appointment was made in respect to a portion of the estate and without service of notice to all the co-sharers: Indu Bhusan v. Annapurna, 6 C.L.J. 216; it is not obligatory to apply in the first instance to the District Judge who had appointed its common manager: Ibid.

Appointment of manager of portion of estate without notice.

10. Appointment of Receiver of property in the hands of a Common manager:—A receiver may be appointed under O. 40 rule 1, sub-sec. (2) C.P.C. in respect of property in the hands of a common manager appointed under s. 95 of the Bengal Tenancy Act: Madaneswar v. Mahamaya Prosad, 15 C.W.N. 672; s.c., 13 C.L.J. 487; their Lordships observed as follows:—‘If, therefore, a Receiver is appointed in respect of property which is already in the possession of a common manager, the possession of the common manager need not necessarily be disturbed. The common manager, under the direction of the District Judge, may have to apply a certain portion of the income for the benefit of one or more of the co-sharers. If the interest of such co-sharers in the joint estate is the subject matter of the litigation in which the Receiver is appointed the effect of the appointment of the Receiver is to entitle him to obtain from the common manager whatever is payable to the co-sharers in question.

O. 40 r. 1, C. P. C. is not controlled by s. 95 of the Bengal Tenancy Act and a Receiver may be appointed in regard to property in the hands of the common manager. But the possession of the common manager is not to be disturbed.

11. Appointment of Receiver when an application is made for appointment of common manager:—The fact that an application of the appointment of a common manager of the property in a suit is pending before the District Judge does not preclude the Subordinate Judge before whom the suit is pending from appointing a Receiver in a proper case: Jibanessa v. Majudunessa, 17 C.W.N. 581. See also Asadali v. Syed Mohammed, 20 C.W.N. 1009.

Receiver.

Although the position of a common manager is somewhat analogous to a Receiver and it has therefore been held in the case of Nabokrishore v. Atul Chandra, 17 C.W.N. 846 and Benimadhav v. Upendra, 24 C.W.N. 138 that a suit against a Receiver does not lie without the previous sanction of the District Judge, yet an application for execution may be made and a suit for rent may be brought against the common manager without the sanction of the District Judge: Sarat Chandra v. Raj Kumar, 82 I.C. 327, s.c., A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 334.

Right of common manager to sue and to be sued—Receiver if analogous to.

12. Common manager by agreement of co-owners:—A Proprietor appointed by the other co-proprietors of an estate as manager thereof, for the purpose of realising its profits and appropriating them to the payment of their joint debt, is an agent of the other proprietors and of the legal representatives of a proprietor since deceased within Art. 89 of the Limitation Act of 1908, and the period of limitation of a suit for account brought by the latter against such manager is governed thereby: Chandra Madhub v. Nobin Chandra, 40 Cal. 108 ; s.c., 17 C.L.J. 103.

It seems that the accountability of a common manager appointed under the Bengal Tenancy Act is to the District Judge and not to the co-owners although the common manager is one of the co-proprietors and appointed by consent of all the co-owners.

13. Accountability of common manager to co-owners :—A common manager is in a position analogous to that of a Receiver: Naba Krishore v. Atul Chandra, 40 Cal. 150, s.c., 17 C.W.N. 846 ; he is entitled to the same protection as a Receiver by a civil court: Ibid ; where a common manager regularly submitted accounts which had been duly audited and passed by the District Judge, he cannot be sued by a co-owner to render a general account for the whole period of his management: Ibid. A co-owner is not however debarred from bringing a suit against a common manager for act of misconduct or misappropriation done outside the limit of his authority as common manager under the Act: Ibid.

14. Suit by common manager against ex-common manager for account :—A suit by a common manager against an ex-common manager for account is maintainable: Mahammad v. E. F. Sandys, 30 C.L.J. 263 ; such a suit should be brought with the sanction of the District Judge under rule 4 of the rules framed by the High Court in accordance with s. 100: Ibid, [Per C. M. Ghose J., (Geidt, J., contra)] ; where in such a suit the District Judge passed an order as follows: "It does not appear that my sanction is necessary: the manager can act on his own initiative: and subsequently the District Judge passed the following order: "I am informed to-day that a suit has been instituted against Mr. S. for recovery of monies received by him as manager ; till the suit is decided it would not be proper to return the security ;" held that the requirements of s. 98 and Rule 4 framed by the High Court under s. 100 were substantially complied with: Ibid.

Where a common manager was appointed and the estate released and it was found that the common manager's account had not been properly rendered and passed by the District Judge, held that he could be sued for account with the permission of the District Judge: Durga Prasanna v. Ishan Chandra, 44 Cal. 800.

A suit for accounts against a common manager is not maintainable without the sanction of the Court which appointed him: Beni Madhab v. Upendra Chandra, (Deb Narayan) 24 C.W.N. 138, s.c., 30 C.L.J. 279 ; no such suit is maintainable without a notice to the common manager under s. 80 C.P.C., as he is a public officer within the meaning of s. 2 (17) (d), C.P.C. ; Ibid. The liability of the common manager does not terminate by his ceasing to be a common manager: Ibid.

When a common manager is appointed under s. 95 for the whole estate, and he is afterwards released from one third of the estate and he continued to be in possession of the remaining two thirds share as common manager, held that he was defacto manager and was bound to render accounts as such: Beni Madhab v. Upendra Chandra, (Deb Narayan), 24 C.W.N. 138, s.c. 30 C.L.J. 279.

15. "A Manager":—Although according to the General Clauses Act, the singular includes the plural, it seems that the words "a manager" mean one manager, because according to the context of sections 93 to 100 it appears it would be repugnant to the context if two or more managers are appointed. For if the legislature had really meant that more than one manager could be appointed there would have been provisions in the Act defining rules of management in case of difference of opinion between the Managers. There is nothing in the statute to that effect nor there is anything in the Rules made by the High Court under s. 100.

96. The Local Government may nominate a person for any local area to manage all estates and tenures within that local area for which it may be necessary to appoint a manager under clause (b) of the last foregoing section; and, when any person has been so nominated, no other person shall be appointed manager under that clause by the District Judge, unless in the case of any estate the Judge thinks fit to appoint one of the co-owners themselves as manager.

Power to nominate person to act in all cases under clause (b) of last section.

97. In any case in which the Court of Wards undertakes under section 95 the management of an estate or tenure, so much of the provisions of the Court of Wards' Act, 1879, as relates to the management of immovable property shall apply to the management.

The Court of Wards Act, 1879, applicable to management by Court of Wards.

Notes :—Having regard to the provisions of this section the permission of the District Judge for a reference to arbitration by the Court of Wards is not necessary: Tweedie v. Joges Chandra Ray, 51 I.C. 999 (Teunon and Richardson J. J.).

Right of suit by Court of Wards :—This section gives power to the Court of Wards to sue in regard to an estate which comes into its management under s. 95: Secretary of State v. Ananda Mohon, 34 C.L.J. 205.

Power of Court of Wards to sue.

98. (1) A manager appointed under section 95 may, if the District Judge thinks fit, be remunerated by a fixed salary or percentage of the money collected by him as manager, or partly in one way and partly in the other, as the District Judge, from time to time, directs.

Provisions applicable to manager.

(2) He shall give such security for the proper discharge of his duties as the District Judge directs.

(3) He shall, subject to the control of the District Judge, have, for the purposes of management, the same powers as the co-owners jointly might but for his appointment have exercised, and the co-owners shall not exercise any such power.

(4) He shall deal with and distribute the profits in accordance with the orders of the District Judge.

(5) He shall keep regular accounts, and allow the co-owners or any of them to inspect and take copies of those accounts.

(6) He shall pass his accounts at such period and in such form as the District Judge may direct.

(7) He may make any application which the proprietors could make under section 103.

(8) He shall be removable by the order of the District Judge and not otherwise.

Power of manager.

1. Rule made by the High Court :—The following rule has been made by the High Court under s. 100 with regard to the power of a manager to sell or mortgage any property :—“No manager shall have power to sell or mortgage any property, nor shall he grant or renew a lease for any period exceeding three years, without the express sanction of the District Judge : Provided that this rule shall not render valid any lease for a shorter time than three years, if such lease is disapproved by the District Judge, or if the District Judge directs that his sanction is to be obtained as regards all leases granted by the manager.”

Mortgage.

2. Power of Manager to mortgage Property :—A common manager, appointed under the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act, has power to mortgage property with the permission of the District Judge : Amar Chunder v. Roy Goloke Chunder, 3 C.W.N. 769 ; (on P.C.) ; 31 Cal. 305 ; s. c. 8 C.W.N. 225. He has also power to sell : Ibid.

Power of co-owners in abeyance during common management.

3. Power of co-owners during existence of common management :—See notes under sec. 95. While the common management exists the powers of the co-owners must be regarded as in abeyance, and therefore a mortgage created by a co-owner during the existence of the common management cannot in any way interfere with, or derogate from, the rights created under any transaction made by the common manager with regard to the joint property : Amar Chunder v. Roy Goloke Chunder, 4 C.W.N. 769.

Case where title of a co-owner is in dispute.

4. Sub-section (3) :—Where the title of co-owner was disputed, the District Judge has jurisdiction under sub-section (3) s. 98 to direct the common manager to retain the disputed share of the rent in his hand ; it is the only possible course to adopt so long as the common manager remains in charge and so long as a competent court does not adjudicate upon the title of the co-owner which is in dispute : Bhabangana v. Horendra, 17 C.W.N. 445.

See notes under s. 95.

5. Right to bring or defend suit :—See notes under s. 95.

6. Accountability of Common Manager :—See notes under s. 95.

7. Remuneration of retired Common Manager :—Where the District Judge passed an order that the retired common manager should be paid what was due to him, held in a suit by him for his remuneration against the common manager for the time being no question of limitation arises: Trailokya Nath v. Durga Nath, 46 I.C. 686.

99. When an estate or tenure has been placed under the management of the Court of Wards, or a manager has been appointed for the same under section 95, the District Judge may at any time direct that the management of it be restored to the co-owners, if he is satisfied that the management will be conducted by them without inconvenience to the public or injury to private rights. Power to restore management to co-owners.

Common Manager not a necessary party in a proceeding under this section :—In an application by the co-owners under section 99 of the Bengal Tenancy Act for restoration of the management of the estate, the common manager is not and cannot be made a party to the proceeding: Bhagabati Debya Choudhurani v. Nil Kanter Satterjee, 24 C.W.N. 927.

Restoration of Estate :—When the question arises of the restoration of the estate under section 99 of the B. T. Act and it is alleged by the co-sharers that the dispute is no longer existing, what the Judge has to consider is whether it has been really or effectively settled in such a way that the management will be conducted by the co-owners without inconvenience to the public or injury to private rights. Where the District Judge refused the application of the co-sharers for restoration of their estate on the ground that the tenants were afraid that they would be oppressed if they were released to the proprietors and that at least the dispute probably lead to endless friction and to the danger to the peace, held that the order of the District Judge was in error: Abdul Azahar Chowdhury v. The Collector, Calcutta, 44 C.L.J. 569 (Greaves and Mukerji J. J.). At the moment that injury to private rights includes invasion of the tenants and not merely injury to the private rights of the co-owners and assuming also that the injury apprehended by the tenants comes within that category and granting that an apprehension of the breach of the peace is well founded, they would not be sufficient for the purpose of sec. 93 if there is no dispute between co-owners to which such injury, or invasion is attributable: Ibid. Restoration of estate.
Injury to private rights.

100. The High Court may, from time to time, make rules defining the powers and duties of managers under the foregoing sections. Power to make rules.

Rules of the High Court :—See Appendix VI.

When powers conferred by law are defined by rule the rules should not be interpreted as imposing any restriction on those powers, except such as in terms expressed or can be clearly inferred from the wording used: Mahammad F. Aziz v. E. F. andys, 30 C.L.J. 63.

The High Court having made rules under s. 100 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, defining the powers and duties of Managers, has power under s. 107 of the Government of India Act to revise the orders of a District Judge under Chap. IX. The position of a Common Manager under B. T. Act is analogous to that of a Receiver, appointed by the Court save and except that he is not liable to be sued: Satyendra Mohan v. Raj Mohun, 29 I.C. 177. The case in 40 Cal. 150 referred to.

I. Amendments of the provisions of Chapter X:—

This Chapter was substituted for the original Chapter X by the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Act 1898, (Beng. Act III of 1898), s. 7. Since then there has been amendments by Beng. Act I of 1907 and E. B. A. Act I of 1908.

Amendments!

The former Chapter X as it stood before the passing of the Act III B. C. 1898 is to be found in Appendix VII.

As regards proceedings under sections 104, 105, and 106 of the Bengal Tenancy Act as originally passed, see Act III B. C. 1898—sections 8 and 9 of Act III, B. C. of 1898.*

* Ss. 8 and 9 of Act III of 1898 (B.C.) are as follows:—

8. All records published under section 105 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, before the commencement of this Act, whether in draft or final form, shall be deemed to have been duly published.

9. (1) Every settlement of rent or decision of a dispute by a Revenue Officer under section 106 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, before the commencement of this Act, in respect of which no appeal has before the commencement of this Act, been preferred to the Special Judge appointed under

2. Non-agricultural Tenancies :—

Non-agricultural tenancies do not come under the purview of the Bengal Tenancy Act and therefore Chapter X has no application to such tenancies ; see notes under s. 101.

3. Municipal areas :—

Municipalities.

"Municipal areas will ordinarily be dealt with in the course of major operations under Chapter X of the Tenancy Act. The map should be prepared on such a scale as the local conditions require, and the Settlement Officer will consult the Director of Surveys in regard to the scale to be adopted for each municipality. In the absence of special orders, the cost should be merged in that of the general District operations, and will be recovered in the same way. If, however, the cost incurred in any municipality is so heavy as to make it inequitable to merge it in that of the general operations, or if other special local conditions exist the Director of Land Records will apply to Government for a special apportionment order, and the accounts should be kept in such a way as to give effect to that order. In large municipalities, or in other cases, when it is practically certain that a special apportionment order will be necessary, separate accounts of the operation should be kept from the outset."—Bengal Survey and Settlement Manual, 1917, Chap. II, para. 11.

In the absence of any notification, as is contemplated by sec. 1, the mere fact that land is situate within Municipal area is not sufficient for holding that Chap. X does not apply to it: Iswar Chandra v. Jogendra Lal, 98 I.C. 137, s.c. A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 126.

4. Survey and Settlement operations :—

"Survey and settlement operations or survey operations alone are conducted under the following Acts and Regulations:—Settlement Regulations VII of 1822, IX of 1825 and IX of 1833, Acts IX of 1847 (Assessment of Alluvion), V (B.C.) of 1875 (Survey), III (B.C.) of 1876 (Irrigation), VIII (B.C.) of 1879, VI (B.C.) of 1880 (Drainage), II (B.C.) of 1882 (Embankments), VIII of 1885 (The Bengal Tenancy Act) as amended up to date, I (B.C.) of 1887 (Calcutta Survey), I of 1894 (Land Acquisition), and V (B.C.) of 1897 (Partition of Estates). The rules of procedure and the technical rules relate primarily to surveys and settlements under the Settlement Laws, the Bengal Tenancy Act and the Survey Act, but they may also be followed, so far as they are applicable, in operations under the other Regulations and Acts mentioned."—Bengal Survey and Settlement Manual, 1917, Chap. I para. 2.

section 108 of that Act, shall have the force and effect of a decree of a Civil Court in a suit between the parties, and shall be final.

Provided that an appeal shall lie to the District Judge from any settlement or decision which was made or given within thirty days before the commencement of this Act, if the appeal be presented within thirty days from the date of such settlement or decision.

(2) The provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure relating to appeals shall, as nearly as may be, apply to all such appeals.

NOTE :—This Act (III of 1898 B.C.) came into force on the 2nd November 1898.

Sub-sec. (1) to s. 9 of Act III of 1898 did not give the force and effect of a Civil-Court decree to the decision of a dispute by a Settlement officer passed before the Act came into force, which it was beyond the jurisdiction of the Revenue officer to decide under s. 10: Birendra Kisore v. Kalitara, 43 Cal. 547, s. c., 20 C.W.N. 275. (Mookerjee and Breachcroft J.J.)

5. Initiation of Survey and Settlement Operations :—

“(1) Survey and Settlement operations are initiated under the following laws :—

- (a) Chapter X of the Bengal Tenancy Act.
- (b) Regulation VII of 1822.
- (c) Act VIII (B.C.) of 1879.
- (d) Act I (B.C.) of 1887.
- (e) Act III (B.C.) of 1884.

Laws under which proceedings can be initiated.

(2) Chapter X of the Bengal Tenancy Act is in force throughout the Presidency of Bengal except in the following areas :—

- (a) The Municipality of Calcutta.
- (b) The District of Darjeeling.
- (c) The Chittagong Hill Tracts.
- (d) Such Municipalities as have been excluded from the operation of the Act by a notification under section 1 (3).

(3) Regulation VII 1822 is used for the settlement of land revenue.

(4) Act VIII (B.C.) of 1879 is used in the district of Darjeeling. The rent law in force in this district is Act X of 1859.

(5) Under Act I (B.C.) of 1887 a survey can be ordered in the town of Calcutta. The relations of landlord and tenant in the town of Calcutta are governed by contract.

(6) Under section 223A of Act III (B.C.) 1884, a survey can be ordered in any Municipality other than Calcutta.

(7) Executive orders of Government control survey and settlement operations in the Chittagong Hill Tracts.”—Bengal Survey & Settlement Manual, 1917, Chap. II, para. 4.

6. Land Revenue Settlement :—

“Where the Bengal Tenancy Act is in force all operations for the revision or assessment of land revenue will in future be preceded by operations under Chapter X of that Act, unless there are good and sufficient reasons for not settling rents under that Act. The assessment of revenue in temporarily-settled private estates will always be made under Regulation VII of 1822. In such estates where there are proprietors but no tenants the whole settlement will be carried out under that Regulation.”—Bengal Survey & Settlement Manual, 1917, Chap. II, para. 5.

The following extracts from the Guide and Glossary to Survey and Settlement Manual, Bengal, 1917, will throw light on the subject.

5. The Bengal Tenancy Act was passed in 1885, about 20 years after the completion of the Revenue Survey.....there were then in existence—

- (a) in permanently settled estates the Thakbast maps and the Revenue Survey maps but no records-of-rights ;
- (b) in other estates, Thakbast maps, the Revenue Survey maps, and also the rough maps and records-of-rights prepared in the course of the periodical revisions of land revenue.

Reg. VII
of 1822.

Chapter X of the Act deals with preparation of "records-of-rights.".....It extends the system of "records-of-rights" to all kinds of estates, whether permanently settled or otherwise.....Regulation VII of 1822 has not been repealed by the Bengal Tenancy Act. In fact the Act is not inconsistent with the regulation, it merely lays down more clearly and definitely how a record-of-rights should be prepared. When, therefore, land revenue, has to be revised in any non-permanently settled estate—either in the course of a district operation or as a separate undertaking—the record-of-rights is now prepared under the provisions of Chapter X of Bengal Tenancy Act. The Act does not, however, deal with the assessment of land revenue as between a temporarily settled proprietor and Government. When a proprietor intervenes it is still necessary to use the old regulation so far as he is concerned.

Rules of the Local Government.

6. Operations under Chapter X of the Bengal Tenancy Act are carried out in accordance with rules framed by the Local Government. These rules have the force of law.....in the record as finally published the rents which are entered are those which were actually being paid at the time of the operations, not "fair rents" for future terms of year. Such fair rents can only be decreed by a distinct and subsequent proceeding (see paragraph 27 below). An exception is however made in the case of estates where land revenue is being revised ; in such estates fair rents for the ensuing period of settlement are determined before and not after final publication, and only these fair rents appear in the final record.

Fair rents.

Division into blocks.

7. When a district is taken up under Chapter X of the Bengal Tenancy Act, it is ordinarily divided into "blocks" of about 800 square miles each. The work in each block takes about five years. The various stages are briefly described below :—

First year.Traverse survey.
Boundary
dispute.

8. The Survey Department makes a "Traverse survey" of the area. In no case do the traverse surveyors record or decide boundary disputes.

Second year."Cadastral," meaning of

9. The detailed 16 inches map is now begun. This work is known as "cadastral survey." The expression is somewhat misleading. "Cadastral" is an old French word for a public register. It is said to be derived from a dog-latin word "capitastum"—i.e., a statement of the population head by head (caput). The word therefore indicates a record-of-rights rather than a map. It was probably used by the priests who prepared the record-of-rights for William the Conqueror, first in Normandy and then in England. Properly speaking, then, a cadastral survey simply means "a survey undertaken in connection with a record-of-rights."

Cadastral
survey.

10. The cadastral survey in Bengal was formerly carried out by the Survey Department. It is now carried out by surveyors or "amins" working under the Settlement Officer and his assistants, i.e., the "Revenue Officers" contemplated in Chapter X of the Bengal Tenancy Act.

Working of the Amin.

11. The cadastral amin, like the traverse surveyor, works downwards "from the whole to the part.".....for convenience, however, the amin is instructed to begin with the outside boundary of the village. If in the course of plotting this outside boundary he comes upon a dispute between the inhabitants of the two villages as to the correct position of the boundary he brings the dispute to the notice of the Assistant Settlement Officer, who decides it according to actual possession, in the manner laid down in the Bengal Survey Act of 1875.

Survey
Act.

12. We now come to the first stage in the preparation of the draft record-of-rights. This stage technically known as "Khanapuri, which means the "filling of columns.....The final record-of-rights will ultimately consist of a series of documents known as "Khatians." There will be a khatian* for each distinct group of proprietors and a khatian for each tenancy, of whatever degree. The khatian will show the person or persons who are in possession of the "interest" in question, together with their respective shares. It will show their status under the Bengal Tenancy Act and the special incidents (if any) which attach to their tenancy. It will give a list of the fields which are in their immediate possession, with the area of each field. It will also indicate the interests which are immediately superior to them and the rent and cess which are payable to each superior interest. Finally, it will indicate all the tenants who are immediately below this interest and the area of their tenancies. In other words each final khatian will be a complete statement of the rights and liabilities of the person or persons in question ; it will show who are immediately above them and who are immediately below them, and it will show all the land which they possess either directly or through others.

Draft
Record
Khanapuri
Khatian.

Khatian.

13. Although khanapuri is the "filling of columns" there are some very important columns which are not filled up at this stage. all the columns relating to area, rent, cess, status and special incidents remain for the present blank. In fact, the work of the khanapuri recorder practically consists in preparing an accurate description of the fields and crops, an accurate statement of the landlords and tenants and an accurate distribution of the fields among these personsHe will generally begin his work from the field in the north-west corner of the village and he will work down to the field in the south-east-corner.

Khanapuri

14. When the recorder has reached the south-east corner and has entered up the last field he will, therefore, have in his hands a bundle of khatians which constitute the first rough draft of the "record-of-rights" of the village. He will also have a khasra which constitutes a rough index of the fields. In the eye of the law the khasra is not part of the record-of-rights, any more than a biblical index is part of the Bible. The khasra is however a most useful document, without which it is practically impossible to understand the khatians. In addition to serving as an index of the fields the khasra is the basis of much of the statistical information which is collected in the course of the proceedings. While the recorder works his way through the village he notes in the khasra the classification draft.

Khasra.

* Formerly the documents of which a record of rights consisted were :—(1) the Khewat which was a record of the proprietor's proprietary rights and of the rights of tenure holders under him and (2) the Khatian which was a record of the cultivator's rights; these two documents were bound up together and deposited in the Collectorate record room, and it was to the entries in these documents that the presumption in s. 103 cl. (3) of the Act applied. See Board's Settlement Manual, 1908, Chap. III, Para. 871.

of each field (high arable land, low arable land, river, swamp, orchard, etc.). He also notes the crops which are grown in each field during the year in question. In a separate paper he records the number of cattle, ploughs, boats, etc., which are owned by each householder, as well as any other statistical information which he has been instructed to collect.

15. The map and the village bundle then go back to a central camp where the area of each field is "extracted" by a trained staff, using compasses and "combs.".....The area of each field is then entered in the khasra and khatians in "acres and cents." In the khatians there are additional entries in the local measure prevalent in the village.

BujharatLocal explanation.

16. The next stage is bujharat or "local explanation." Before it begins the landlord and the tenant each receives a "parcha", that is an exact copy of the khatian, including the entries of area both in "acres and cents" and in the local measure. The work of bujharat is carried out by a Kannungo personally. He goes from field to field, checking the map and the record and correcting every mistake in presence of the landlord (or his representative) and the tenants. He also makes preliminary entries of the rent, but he does not deal with status, or special incidents of tenancies.

Disputes.

17. Disputes which arise, both during khanāpuri and during bujharat, are decided by the Kannungo or (if complicated) by the Revenue Officer. The decisions are on the basis of actual possession and are entered in a Dispute Book. Dispute regarding rent are not decided until a later stage. The Kanungo simply notes the rent as stated by the two sides.

Bujharat.

18. Bujharat concludes the field work of the second season. During the recess the maps are further checked and the statistics of land, crops, etc., are worked out from the khasra.

Third year.Attestation.

19. In this year the "attestation" of the draft record takes place. This work is carried out at camps in or near the village concerned. The camps are presided over by officer not below the rank of Revenue officer. Each khatian is thoroughly examined by the presiding officer in presence of the landlord (or his representative) and the tenant. All remaining mistakes are corrected. Old disputes, if the parties so desire, are again brought up and re-examined. New disputes are also recorded and decided by the presiding officer. But the most important work of the attestation camp is the record of rent, status and special incidents. In the rent columns the attestation officer has before him the preliminary entries of the Bujharat Kanungos (vide paragraphs 17-18). The columns for status and special incidents are still blank. The Attestation Officer makes all his entries with his own hand. The rent which he enters is the rent which is actually being paid, provided that it is not illegal. Disputes often arise, both as to what is actually being paid and as to whether the sum is legal. The Attestation Officer decides these disputes as they arise. Having decided and entered the rent, he enters the case. In the case of "cultivating raiyats" this entry follows mathematically from the entry of rent, i.e., 6 pies for every rupee of rent. In the case of tenureholders the cess which is entered depends on the last "valuation" of the tenure under the Cess Act. If this cannot be ascertained the entry is left blank. As the legality of the rent, and the correct method of entering the cess, depend to a great extent on the status of the tenant the Attestation Officer should ascertain and record the status of the tenant before he deals with the rent and the cess. Extracts from Guide

& Glossary

20. As the Attestation Officer completes and corrects the khatians a writer (muharrir) makes similar entries in the "parchas" (see paragraph 16), of the tenants, while the landlord or his representative corrects the landlord's "parchas." When the Attestation Officer has completed each khatian he signs it, and seals it. The parchas of the parties are also sealed, but not signed.

21. When all the khatians have been attested the draft record is thoroughly checked, and the khatians are rearranged and renumbered. The draft record is then placed under formal "publication" in the camp. It lies open for public inspection for at least one month. All concerned have free access to the draft record and can take notes in pencil from it. Formal publication.

22. During this period of "publication" any one who is dissatisfied with any entry in the draft record, or any omission therefrom, may under section 103A of the Bengal Tenancy Act, file a written "objection." Blank forms of objection are kept in camp and are supplied free of charge. A court-fee of 8 annas must be affixed to each objection. The objections are heard in camp by an Assistant Settlement Officer, after due notice to all concerned. Any corrections which he orders are then made in the draft record. S. 103A.

23. The draft record is then put through a most detailed check, known as "final janch." Every entry is tested in order to ensure that there are no mistakes, that the record is consistent throughout, and that all orders in disputes and objection have been properly carried out. Janch.

Fourth year.

24. The record is now "finally framed."

"The final record shall be prepared in conformity with the draft record corrected as above, and shall consist of a series of khatians prepared in forms which are generally similar to the forms used for the khatians of the draft record. The khasra shall not form part of the final record. The final record shall be printed or prepared in manuscript, according as the Local Government may, by general or special order, determine." Record finally framed.

In accordance with this rule the final record is now generally printed in all the large settlements. Specimens of the standard draft khatian and the standard final (i.e., printed) khatian are annexed to this note. During printing the proof are carefully compared with the draft record. On completion every khatian is again checked against that record, a percentage being twice checked. The khasra is not printed, but a brief field-index is printed in its place. A specimen of the khasra is annexed. At this stage the village maps, which have hitherto been in cobalt blue (paragraph II), are marked in black Indian ink. Many additional maps are also printed by the Vandyke process, which secures that each map is absolutely accurate.

25. Further statistics are now prepared, and the work of computation of costs to be recovered from landlords and tenants is undertaken ; the total amount recoverable is three-fourths of the nett cost of the actual work done under Chapter X of the Bengal Tenancy Act ; the landlords and tenants' share in temporarily settled and Government estates under settlement of land revenue is borne by the Provincial Government. The proportion payable by landlords and tenants respectively in the remaining area is decided by the Local Government.

Extracts from Guide & Glossary.

Fifth year.Final publication.

26. The record-of-rights of each village is then finally published by placing it open for public inspection for a period of one month. At this time the costs of the operations are recovered in the locality ; every tenant receives a certified copy of his khatian and a map of the village in which his lands are situated ; the landlord receives his own khatian and copies of his tenants' khatians. The final copy of the records-of-rights is bound and prefaced by a certificate of final publication signed by a Revenue Officer ; every khatian is endorsed by a special seal. Further certified copies are prepared for the use of the Collector, the District Judge, the Subdivisional Officer and the Munsiffs' Courts ; these are eventually made over to the officers concerned. Special arrangements are made for the sale of extra copies to landlords and tenants.

Supplementary proceedings.

27. After final publication of the record and after distribution of the printed khatians and maps there are supplementary proceedings of three kinds :—

- (i) Proceedings under Section 105.
- (ii) Proceedings under Section 106.
- (iii) Proceedings under Section 108A.

29. In respect of each police-station printed maps are prepared from the settlement maps on the scale of 1-inch to the mile. Lists of the villages in each thana are also prepared. These printed maps and these lists may be purchased at the Collectorate. Printed maps on the scale of 4 inches to the mile are also prepared and published by the Director of Surveys.

Miscellaneous.Two points stated for clear understanding of the Record.

33. For clear understanding of the record two points remain to be noticed :

- (a) It has been noted that a separate record is prepared for each village. Cases, however, occur where the same interest of a proprietor, landlord or tenant recurs in more than one village ; in such cases full details are only entered in one khatian, a reference (barat) khatian being opened in the remainder.
- (b) When the heir of a deceased tenant is in possession of a holding a khatian is opened in his name whether the landlord has entered the new name in his papers or not. When however, a whole holding is transferred by any other means and the transfer is not binding against the landlord, the name of the original raiyat is entered in the khatian, followed by the name of the transferee with a remark showing the manner of transfer (e.g., by sale). If only part of the area of the holding has been transferred without the landlord's consent, the plots are recorded in the khatian of the original raiyat, the fact of transfer being noted against the transferred plots in the remarks column. The fact of a mortgage is also entered against each plot in the remarks column when the mortgagee is in possession of the land.

8. Resjudicata under former Chap. X:—A decision by Settlement-officer under Chapter X, as it stood before amendment, as to which of two persons claiming to be a tenant ought to be recorded as such does not operate as res judicata in a subsequent suit between the two tenants: Pandit Sirdar v. Meajan, 21 Cal. 378. Norris & Banerjee, J.J., in delivering judgment said as follows:—“If it had been intended by the Legislature that the decision of a Revenue-officer should operate as res judicata upon matters like this, the result would be to transfer to the Settlement-officer the jurisdiction to try all suits between tenant and tenant in regard to their rights in any land included in the area with reference to which the record-of-rights is made. It might happen that the person whose name the Settlement-officer records as tenant may not be entitled to the land in respect of which his name is recorded, and another person may set up a conflicting title to the same land, claiming it on grounds which might render it necessary to determine complicated questions of inheritance or of construction of wills, or other questions of a similar nature. We do not think that such a condition of things could have been intended by the Legislature.” The case of Pandit Sirdar, 21 Cal. 378, was followed in the case of Har Mohon v. Pran Nath, 4 C.W.N. 128.

9. Boundary dispute:—A Settlement-officer has jurisdiction to decide a question of boundary dispute between two neighbouring proprietors under his powers as a Survey-officer with which he is vested under s. 189 (b), and Rule 1, Chapter VI of the Government Rules made under the Tenancy Act; Irshad Ali v. Kanta Pershad, 21 Cal. 835.

See notes under s. 106.

10. Resumption of Lakhiraj:—In proceedings under Chapter X as it stood before the passing of Act III of 1898 (B.C.), it was held that a Settlement-officer had no power to resume and assess with rent land which had been held as lakhiraj: Padmanand v. Bajo, 20 Cal. 577.

A question as to mal or lakhiraj could not be decided by a Settlement-officer under the Act before its amendment; Mahomed Ashruff v. Ashutosh Nath, 2 C.L.J. 10 n.

11. Proceedings under the chapter as it stood before the passing of Act III. B. C. of 1898: Appeal:—Where all the proceedings in a settlement case as well as the Judge's order were of date prior to the passing of Act III of 1898, B.C., a second appeal which has heard after Act III came into force was disposed of under the provisions of the former Chapter X; Hara Mohon v. Pran Nath, 27 Cal. 364; s.c., 4 C.W.N. 127.

12. Suit for rent after final publication of record:—In a suit for rent which accrued due after the final publication of a record-of-rights, the plaintiff relied upon a rent-decree passed previous to those proceedings declaring a lower rate of rent as stated in the Settlement proceedings: held that the plaintiff was entitled to claim the rate of rent as stated in the Settlement proceedings: Padmanand v. Ghanshyam, 6 C.W.N. 914.

Title to land.

It was held under the chapter as it stood before amendment that a Settlement-officer had no power to entertain any dispute between the persons interested in neighbouring estates as to the title of any land: Norendranath v. Srinath, 19 Cal. 641; Bidhu Mukhi v. Bhugwan Chunder, 19 Cal. 643.

13. Weight to be attached to entries:—Record-of-rights under Chapter X are prepared with considerable formality, and the proceedings of Revenue-officers are conducted with publicity; entries in such records should not be lightly discarded: Kali Roy v. Protap Narayan, 5 C.L.J. 92. See notes under s. 103B.

Careless drafting of Chapter X.

14. Chapter X not clear of comprehension:—"Chapter X of the Bengal Tenancy Act has under-gone several amendments and it cannot be said that the successive amendments have made the law clearer of comprehension or easier of practical application": Pirithi Chand v. Basarat Ali, 37 Cal. 30 at p. 37 (F.B.), Jenkins C.J., remarks (in the case of Umedulla v. Ramchandra, 14 C.W.N. 812) "of the careless drafting which mars this very important Act." It was also remarked in the case of Gopinath v. Adaita, 21 Cal. 776 that the provisions of Chapter X are somewhat obscure.

15. Suit to set aside proceedings under Chapter X:—S. 109 does not present an effective bar to the maintainability of a suit for declaration that the proceedings under Chapter X were vitiated by fraud: Nawab Bahadur of Murshidabad v. Ahmad Hossain, 21 C.W.N. 1006.

Khewats and Khatians admissible under Evidence Act, s. 35, but Butwara Khasra under the Estates Partition Act not so admissible.

16. Reg. VII of 1822:—Entries in Khewats and Khatians made at settlements under Regulation VII of 1822 are admissible in evidence under s. 35 of the Indian Evidence Act; Robert Skinner v. Chandan Singh, 31 All. 247. Reg. VII of 1822 is used for the settlement of land revenue.

17. Estates Partition Act:—The Butwara Khasra prepared under the Estates Partition Act (VIII B.C. of 1876) is not a record within the meaning of s. 35 of the Evidence Act: Nandalal v. Mohanth Chanurpat, 17 C.L.J. 462.

18. Omission to make an entry:—The mere omission of the Settlement authorities to make an entry in the settlement records in respect of the tenures cannot affect the rights of the parties: Mohendra Nath v. Syam Lal, 19 C.L.J. 308.

Rights of parties not affected by omission of entries.

"5. Where the Bengal Tenancy Act is in force all operations for the revision or assessment of land revenue will in future be preceded by operations under Chapter X of the Act, unless there are good and sufficient reasons for not settling rents under that Act. The assessment of revenue in temporarily-settled private estates will always be made under Regulation VII of 1822. In such estates where there are proprietors but no tenants the whole settlement will be carried out under that Regulation."—Survey and Settlement Manual, 1917. Chap. 2, Rule 5.

Suit to set aside fraudulent entry.

19. Contract with Government to maintain Record of Right: Suit to set aside a fraudulent entry:—Where a person contracted with Government to maintain the rights of all tenure-holders entered in the Record of Rights prepared prior to the giving of a Kabulyat by the person, held, that a suit by the person who has made the contract with Government for a declaration that one of the tenure-holders covered by the Record-of-rights had obtained a fraudulent entry therein and had no such rights as those recorded, was not maintainable: Maharaja Kunwar Manmoth Nath Roy v. Sheikh Ameer Khan,* 3 Pat. L.J. 394.

20. Entry in Record of Rights, if evidence where parties are not landlords & tenants :—An entry in the record of rights operates in the same way between landlord and tenant as between landlords of the same or neighbouring estates and between tenant and tenant: Fazlar Rahaman Biswas v. Golam Kader Mia, 30 C.W.N. 689 (B.B. Ghose and Graham, J.J.). The cases of Bibi Wakilan v. Deo Nandan Prosad, 5 P.L.J. 681 and Mazharul Ekbal v. Gopal Lal Rai, [1924] Pat. 213 were followed.

21. Deduction of 10 p. c. from area found on measurement :—See notes under s. 52 heading No. 30.

PART I.

Record of Rights.

Power to order survey and preparation of record of rights.

101. (1) The Local Government may, in any case, if it thinks fit, make an order directing that a survey be made and a record-of-rights be prepared by a Revenue-officer, in respect of the lands in any local area, estate or tenure or part thereof.

* Formerly the documents of which a record of rights consisted were:— (1) the Khewat which was a record of the proprietor's proprietary rights and of the rights of tenure holders under him and (2) the Khatian which was a record of the cultivator's rights; these two documents were bound up together and deposited in the Collectorate record room, and it was to the entries in these documents that the presumption in s. 103 cl. (3) of the Act applied. See Board's Settlement Manual 1908, Chap. III, para. 871.

(2) In particular and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, the Local Government may make such an order in the following cases, namely :—

(a) where—

- (i) the landlord or tenants, or
 - (ii) a proportion of not less than one-half of the total number of landlords, or
 - (iii) a landlord, or a proportion of the landlords whose interest, or the aggregate of whose interests, respectively, in the lands of the local area, estate, or tenure or part thereof is not less than one-half of the total shares of all the landlords therein, or
 - (iv) a proportion of not less than one-fourth of the total number of tenants,
- applies, or apply, for such an order, depositing, or giving security for, such amount for the payment of expenses as the Local Government directs ;

- (b) where the preparation of such a record is calculated to settle or avert a serious dispute existing or likely to arise between the tenants and their landlords generally ;
- (c) where the local area, estate or tenure or the part thereof belongs to, or is managed by, the Government or the Court of Wards or a Manager appointed by the District Judge under section 95 ;
- (d) where a settlement of land revenue is being or is about to be made in respect of the local area, estate or tenure or of the part thereof.

Explanation 1.—The term “settlement of land-revenue,” as used in clause (d), includes a settlement of rents in an estate or tenure which belongs to the Government.

Explanation 2.—~~A superior landlord~~ may apply for an order under this section, notwithstanding that his estate or part thereof is temporarily leased to a tenure-holder.

(3) A notification in the official Gazette of an order under this section shall be conclusive evidence that the order has been duly made.

(4) The survey shall be made and the record-of-rights prepared in accordance with rules made in this behalf by the Local Government.

Amendments.

1. Amendments: Bengal and East Bengal:—Cl. (a) was substituted by Act I (B.C.) of 1907 and Act I of 1908 (E.B.A.) for the original cl. (a) as it stood before amendment. Cl. (a) as it stood before the passing of Act I (B.C.) of 1907 was as follows:—

(a) where the landlords or tenants for a large proportion* of the landlords or of the tenants apply for such an order and deposit, or give security for, such amount for the payment of expenses, as the Local Government directs;

To cl. (c) the following was added by the same Act: “or manager appointed by the District Judge under section 95”;

Sub-Sec. (1) and the first para of sub-sec. (2) were amended by the Devolution Act (XXXVIII of 1920) as follows:

In Section 101 sub-sec. (1) the words “with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council and may” and the words “without such sanction in any of the cases hereinafter mentioned” shall be omitted.

In sub-sec. (2) for the words from “the cases” to “the following” the following shall be substituted, viz., “in particular and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power the Local Government may make such an order in the following cases.”

2. Chapter X not clear of comprehension:—“Chapter X of the Bengal Tenancy Act has undergone several amendments and it cannot be said that the successive amendments have made the law clearer of comprehension or easier of practical application”; Prithi Chand v. Basarat Ali, 37 Cal. 30 at p. 37 (F.B.); Jenkins, C.J. remarks (in the case of Umedulla v. Ramchandra, 14 C.W.N. 812) “of the careless drafting which mars this very important Act.”

It was also remarked in the case of Gopinath v. Adaita, 21 Cal. 776 that the provisions of Chapter X are somewhat obscure as regards the procedure to be followed in cases under the Chapter.

* The words “a large proportion of the landlords” mean a large proportion of the landlords as determined by the interests they hold in the estate: Secretary of State v. Purnehdu Narayan, 40 Cal. 123, s. c., 17 C.W.N. 1151.

3. S. 101 as it stood before amendment by Act III B. C. of 1898: A large proportion of the landlords :—The words “a large proportion of the landlords” as used in s. 101 before amendment by Act III, B. C. of 1898 do not mean only a large numerical proportion of the individuals constituting the body of landlords but also a large proportion of the landlords as determined by the interests they hold in the estate: The Secretary of State for India in Council v. Purnendu Narain, 40 Cal. 123, s.c., 17 C.W.N. 1151. The discretion rests with Local Government to determine whether an application for preparation of record of rights is in due form, and after the Local Government has decided that point and issued the notification the jurisdiction of the Civil Court to interfere with the order and to determine that it was ultra vires and illegal is barred by cl. 3 of s. 101. Ibid; where the order of the Local Government under s. 101 (2) (a) is intra vires and legal and binding on the parties the order for apportionment of costs under s. 114 is also legal and binding: Ibid.

“A large proportion of landlords,” meaning of Discretion of Local Government. Want of jurisdiction of civil court. Costs.

4. Can a Record of Rights be ordered to be prepared after once a record has been prepared and finally published :— Reasons. In a record of rights which has been prepared and is finally published all the particulars specified in the order directing the preparation of the record of rights are recorded; every entry after the final publication is presumed to be correct unless the contrary is shown; [see s. 103 B (3)]. So, if after such final publication no changes occur, there cannot be any necessity for the preparation of a second record; it is submitted that in such circumstances a second record cannot be ordered to be prepared; for, it does not seem to be the intention of the Legislature that the Revenue officer in preparing the second record should revise or alter the finally published first record. Moreover, when after once a record has been finally published and there has been a decision of a dispute under s. 106, how can there be another record of rights giving an opportunity to a party to question an entry again under s. 106? Take the following illustration :—

Illustration.

A record is finally published in which there is an entry that X is a raiyat at fixed rate under Z. Z brings a suit under s. 106 and gets the entry corrected and X is declared to be an occupancy raiyat. Illustration.

Suppose three years after this, another record is ordered to be prepared and X is entered in the finally published record as an occupancy raiyat as was held in the previous s. 106 case. Should X be allowed to bring a suit under s. 106 to correct the second record notwithstanding the decision in the previous s. 106 case (which is final under s. 107)?

It is submitted that X ought not to be allowed to do so; since from a reading of the several sections of Chapter X it seems that the Chapter is not intended to give any person a renewal of rights and privileges under these sections when there have been no change in the circumstances. It seems therefore that when after once a record is made and finally published, there is an order made for a second Record of Rights, the Revenue Officers if they find on enquiry that the same state of things continues in any area, no second Record ought to be made.

Renewal of rights.

Conclusion.

It should however be pointed out here that in the case of Sheikh Latafat v. Kumar Kaliker, 1918 Pat. 225 a question arose as to whether a party has the right to bring a suit to have a declaration that an entry in a finally published record was wrong when a similar entry in an earlier record was not challenged by the party. But in the case the question as to whether a second record could be ordered to be prepared did not arise.

Act VII of
s. 12.

5. Effect of an entry:—Where in a record of rights prepared under sub-sec. (2) of s. 101 there was an entry in respect of an under-tenure, the existing rent was mentioned and the new rent settled was stated, but the Settlement Officer made a remark in the remark column as follows:—“The etnam is not binding upon the Government”; held that there was no recognition of the under tenure and the tenant was not protected by s. 12 of Act VII (B.C.) of 1868: Lakshidhar v. Saradacharan, 20 C.L.J. 41.

6. Local area:—“The term ‘local area’ is not defined in the Bengal Tenancy Act, and is obviously comprehensive enough to include an entire district. The term ‘local’ is frequently applied to an area smaller than an entire estate or country as a whole’ (Per Mookerjee J., Chapman J., concurring.): Brojendro Kishore v. Khalil Nagarchi, 21 C.L.J. 489.

7. Non-agricultural tenancies:—Non-agricultural tenancies do not come within the purview of the Bengal Tenancy Act; see the cases of Raniganj Coal Association v. Jadunath, 19 Cal. 489; Hassanali v. Gobind Lal, 9 C.W.N. 141; Umrao Bibi v. Syed Mahomed, 27 Cal. 205, s.c., 4 C.W.N. 76. So there cannot be a record of rights prepared under Ch. X of this Act in regard to non-agricultural tenancies.* The question as to whether s. 105 of the Bengal Tenancy Act applies to a non-agricultural (residential) tenancy Fruit trees.

Where a piece of land is let out containing fruit trees of which the tenant enjoys the fruits and on which may be planted fresh and additional trees, it was held in an unreported Second appeal that the lease does not come within the purview of the Bengal Tenancy Act. The following is the judgment in the unreported second appeal:—unreported second appeal no. 2371 of 1915 Rajkumar Nali, Defendant, Appellant v. Mohesh Chandra Guha, Plaintiff, Respondent, decided on the 19th July 1915:

Unreported
case.

The Judgment of the court (Fletcher and Newbould J.J.) was delivered by Fletcher J.:—This is an appeal by the defendant against a judgment of the learned Subordinate Judge of Barisal dated the 19th July 1915, reversing the decision of the Munsiff of the same place. The suit was brought by the plaintiff to recover rent at the rate of Rs. 20 per annum. The defendant alleged that he was only liable to pay a smaller rent because the tenancy was governed by the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act. Therefore the question in debate has been limited to as to whether this holding is or is not governed by the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act. It is not an agricultural holding; that is quite clear. No body has argued that it is so. The question is whether it is a horticultural holding. That is a question of fact to be determined in each particular case from the facts found by the learned Judge. In the lease, in this case, the word although it may mean a garden, may also mean an orchard. That seems to be common ground and the learned Judge of the lower appellate Court has found that the evidence on the record shows that since the creation of the sub-lease, that is, the sub-lease under which the defendant holds, the defendant has been possessing the land by enjoying the fruits of the trees standing thereon and also by growing new trees. There is nothing relating to a garden on this piece of land at all. This is what is called in the English language an orchard, namely, a piece of land let out containing fruit trees of which the defendant enjoys the fruits came up decision before Chapman and Newbould, J.J., in the case of Ram Das v. Bipra Das, 19 C.W.N. 35 and it was held that where the purpose of the tenancy is residential the Bengal Tenancy Act has no application and consequently an application for settlement of rent cannot be made under sec. 105 of the Act; the same view was taken by Woodroffe and Smither J.J., in the case of Bipra Das v. Azam Ostagar, 46 Cal. 441, s.c., 22 C.W.N., 116 (notes): Woodroffe J., in delivering judgment observed as follows:—"The legislature contemplated, I think, that only three classes of tenants should be regarded as holding lands within the meaning of the Bengal Tenancy Act, viz., a tenure holder who has been held to mean a person collecting rents from raiyats, raiyats holding lands for the purpose of cultivation and under-raiyats holding under themthere seems to me no doubt that in its general scope the Bengal Tenancy Act is a law for agricultural landlords and tenants. "Tenant" in s. 105 means a tenant as defined in s. 4. In s. 105 "landlord" means a landlord as defined in s. 4, and "land" means a land held by a tenant as so defined.

consequently Ch. X does not apply.

A homestead holding held by a raiyat otherwise than a part of his tenancy stands however on a different footing, since according to s. 182, such a homestead holding is governed by the same rules which apply to the raiyat's agricultural holding; see notes under s. 182. A raiyat under s. 76 can erect a suitable dwelling house on his holding; that fact will not take the holding from the operation of the Bengal Tenancy Act. Homestead holdings held under a raiyat are governed by the Bengal Tenancy Act. See notes at pp. 7 & 8.

Homestead holdings.

Homestead land within the Municipality even though recorded as bagan land in the Record of Rights is not governed by the Bengal Tenancy Act but by the Transfer of Property Act; Safarali v. Abdul Majid, 47 C.L.J. 27 (Duval and Mitter, J.J.). The mere fact that in the Record of Rights the land, which is only a few cottahs in area, was shewn as bagan is not sufficient to shew that it was used for horticultural purposes: Ibid.

Bagan.

Where a record of rights was prepared of Chandina (non-agricultural) lands, Sanderson, C.J. observed as follows:—"If the revenue authorities understood that it meant bazar land which was not subject to the provisions of the Tenancy Act at all, it is difficult to understand why they entered it upon the record of rights which was made in connection with lands which are subject to the Tenancy Act. The explanation of it may be that the revenue officer had not then the advantage which the two lower courts had, for the discussion as to what the word* really meant and the entry may have been made under a misapprehension as to the real meaning:" Sasi Kant v. Sadhyamoni, 34 C.L.J. 504, s.c., 26 C.W.N. 483 (Sanderson, C.J., Chotzner J.).

Chandina or bazar lands.

Observations of Sanderson C. J.

and on which may be planted fresh and additional trees. There is no suggestion that any portion of the land is under cultivation at all and that any such cultivation is being made for horticultural purposes. The view of the learned Judge on these facts is clearly right that this is not a garden in any sense of the word but is really let out as an orchard to which the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act do not apply. In that view, the learned Judge has come to the conclusion and rightly so—that the present case is governed by the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act. The appeal, therefore, fails and must be dismissed with costs.

Survey indispensably necessary.

S. 189.

Survey Act.

Particulars to be recorded.

8. Survey :—A survey is indispensably necessary for the preparation of a Record-of-Rights under s. 101 (1): Bibi Wakilun v. Deonondan, 5 Pat.L.J. 681, (Das and Adami, J.J.). The procedure of a Revenue officer under s. 189 to survey and demarcate any land must be in accordance with the Bengal Survey Act, 1875, and such survey and demarcation must be made with publicity and notice to all the parties concerned: Ibid.

102. Where an order is made under section 101, the particulars to be recorded shall be specified in the order, and may include, either without or in addition to other particulars, some or all of the following, namely:—

- (a) the name of each tenant or occupant ;
- (b) the class to which each tenant belongs, that is to say, whether he is a tenure-holder, raiyat holding at fixed rates, settled raiyat, occupancy-raiyat, non-occupancy raiyat or under-raiyat, and, if he is a tenure-holder, whether he is a permanent tenure-holder or not, and whether his rent is liable to enhancement during the continuance of his tenure ;
- (c) the situation and quantity and one or more of the boundaries of the land held by each tenant or occupier ;
- (d) the name of each tenant's landlord ;
- (dd) the name of each proprietor in the local area or estate ;
- (e) the rent payable at the time the record of rights is being prepared ;
- (f) the mode in which that rent has been fixed—whether by contract, by order of a Court, or otherwise ;
- (g) if the rent is a gradually increasing rent, the time at which, and the steps by which, it increases ;
- (gg) the rights and obligations of each tenant and landlord in respect of—
 - (i) the use by tenants of water for agricultural purposes, whether obtained from a river, jhil, tank or well, or any other source of supply, and
 - (ii) the repair and maintenance of appliances for securing a supply of water for the cultivation of the land held by each

- tenant, whether or not such appliances be situated within the boundaries of such land ;
- (h) the special conditions and incidents, if any, of the tenancy ;
- (i) any right of way or other easement attaching to the land for which a record-of-rights is being prepared ;
- (j) if the land is claimed to be held rent-free—whether or not rent is actually paid, and, if not paid, whether or not the occupant is entitled to hold the land without payment of rent, and if so entitled, under what authority.

1. Amendments and alterations :—Cl. (dd), cl. (gg) and [(i) and (ii)], and cl. (i) have been inserted, and the original clause (i) has been re-lettered cl. (j), by s. 20 of Act I (B.C.) of 1907 and s. 19 of Act I (E.B.A.C.) of 1908.

2. Clause (b) :—The entry in the record of rights describing the tenancies “Kaimi settled raiyats” is not an entry in compliance with the provisions of sec. 102 Cl. (b) of the B. T. Act, and that being so the presumption arising under s. 50 of the Act is not taken away: Shyamacharan v. Fakir Chandra, 101 I.C. 45 (Mukerji and Graham, J.J.).

3. Clause (dd) :—When there is a dispute between two neighbouring proprietors the case comes within the provisions of s. 102 (dd) ; in a suit instituted under the provisions of s. 106 the question between the two rival proprietors that the Court is to go into is as to which of these two rival proprietors was in possession of the land in question at the date of the final publication of the record: Maharaj Bahadur v. Bhagwan Das, 45 I.C. 781, (Fletcher and Shamsul Huda, JJ.), the following cases were relied on: Mohunt Padmalav v. Lukmi Rani, 12 C.W.N. 8 ; Kali Sundari v. Giriza Sankar, 15 C.W.N. 974 ; Ramchandra v. Nanda, 18 C.W.N. 938, s.c., 19 C.L.J. 197 ; Prankrishna v. Trailokya, 19 C.W.N. 911. These decisions, were considered and relied on in the case of Asfarannessa v. Heramba,* 54 Cal. 114, s.c., 44 C.L.J. 467 (Greaves and Mukerji, J.J.) where it has been held that the decision of a Revenue Court in a suit under sec. 106 of the B. T. Act does not operate as resjudicata in a subsequent suit by the aggrieved party in the civil courts notwithstanding the introduction of clause (dd) in sec. 102 of the B. T. Act, as the Revenue Officer has to go primarily upon the question of possession :

4. Cl. (gg) ; Retrospective effect :—According to sub-sec. (2) of s. 20 of Act I (B.C.) of 1907 and sub-sec. (2) of s. 19 of the East Bengal Act I of 1908, cl. (gg) inserted by these two Acts shall be deemed to have been inserted from the commencement of the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Act 1898, (i.e., Act III of 1898).

5. Homestead land and non-agricultural tenancies :—See notes under s. 101 ; heading no. 7 ; Chap. X does not apply to non-agricultural tenancies.

Purchaser of a non-transferable holding can not have his name entered.

6. Occupier and occupant :—The terms “occupier and “occupant” in clauses (a) and (c) (which were added subsequently by the Amending Act I of 1898 B.C.) were presumably added to cover the case indicated in clause (i) added at the same time ; a purchaser of a non-transferable occupancy holding, being a trespasser is not entitled to have his name entered in the record of rights under cl. (a) or (c) : Umedulla v. Ram Chandra, 14 C.W.N. 812 ; such an entry may be corrected in a proceeding under s. 106 : Ibid.

Relevancy of entries which do not come properly under s. 102.

7. Relevancy of entries :—Entries made in the Settlement khewats, even if they do not come under s. 102 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, are relevant under s. 35 of the Indian Evidence Act : Protap Chandra v. Jagadish Chandra, 40 C.L.J. 331.

The record of rights being a public record prepared by public officers appointed under the statutory authority of the Local Government in admissible under sec. 35 of the Evidence Act, and the record being an official act done within the jurisdiction of the public officer it has a presumptive value of its correctness : Fazlar Rahaman v. Golam Kader, 30 C.W.N. 689 (B. B. Ghose and Graham, J.J.).

‘Settled raiyat’ entry of.

The making of an entry of “settled raiyats” was a sufficient compliance with sec. 102, cl. (b) and when such an entry was made in the record of rights the presumption under sec. 50 of the Act was ousted by the operation of s. 115 : Mofizuddin v. Rajendra, 29 C.W.N. 209, s.c., 40 C.L.J. 248.

Provisions under s. 102 not mandatory.

The provisions of sec. 102 are not mandatory, but provide that certain matters may be included either without or in addition to the other particulars set out in the section : Ibid.

It is submitted that particulars which are not provided for in s. 102 if recorded, should not have any binding force upon any party even if those entries are finally published, unless both parties agreed to such entries.

A settlement officer has no jurisdiction to decide civil disputes arising between landlord and tenant : Horo Mohan v. Prannath, 27 Cal. 364, s.c., 4 C.W.N. 127 ; see also Pandit Sardar v. Meajan Mirdha, 21 Cal. 378.

* The names in 44 C.L.J. 467 are Asfarannessa v. Hemchandra.

8. Clause (h): Special conditions and incidents:—

Where occupancy rights may be obtained by under-raiyats as a result of local usage or custom, the Revenue officers are to record as an incident of the tenancy the fact that the under-raiyat possesses such rights and the presumption under sec. 103B of the B. T. Act applies to such an entry: Singheswar v. Parbal, 103 I.C. 471, s.c., 1927 A. I. R. (Pat.) 376 (James J.).

Under-raiyat with right of occupancy by custom.

A right of occupancy in an under-raiyat by local usage is not inconsistent with the provisions of the B. T. Act: Gopal Mandal v. Tapai Sankari, 46 Cal. 43, s.c., 22 C.W.N. 618, s.c., 28 C.L.J. 84.

See notes under sec. 4, heading no. 5, page 72 and under sec. 183.

"Attention should also be paid to the record of under-raiyat's rights. As indicated in sections 113 and 183 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, under-raiyats may acquire occupancy rights in accordance with local custom or usage. As the custom or usage on the subject is in many localities still in a fluid condition, the date from which the sub-tenancy has been in existence should invariably be recorded.

Status of under-raiyats. Board's instructions.

"Occupancy rights are most commonly acquired by under-raiyats in cases where they have reclaimed lands by their own exertions, or have occupied their holdings for a long period and been allowed by the superior raiyat to erect homesteads, dig tanks or plant trees on them. Where in such or analogous cases, occupancy rights have been acquired by under-raiyats, the occupancy right should be duly recorded. Where the local custom or usage is doubtful or is opposed to the acquisition of occupancy rights, no entry regarding occupancy rights need be made." Board's Settlement Manual, 1908, Part II, Chap. III, Rule 341, page 98.

The Revenue Officer has no power to record as part of the Record of Rights the existence of any local custom that may affect lands generally, since village customs are not among the particulars which have to be recorded under sec. 102 of the B. T. Act. When the Record of Rights contained entries of such local customs in the remarks column of the khatians as special incidents of each particular tenancy in the village, these entries should not be presumed to be correct under sec. 103B although they might be used as evidence under sec. 35 of the Evidence Act: Suresh Chandra v. Sitaram, 57 I.C. 126 (Patna case) per Das J.

Village custom. Hajabad land i.e., land liable to inundation.

Although a Revenue Officer may be travelling out of his sphere when he records as a special incident of every tenancy in that village a local custom by which special remissions may be made in time of flood as was held in the above case, that decision should be read with reference to the particular facts of the case and should not be extended to support a general rule that no incident of tenancy, how vitally it may affect the status of a tenant, can be properly recorded under sec. 102 (h) of the B. T. Act, if the right or the liability recorded is based on the existence of a local custom: Singheswar v. Parbal, 103 I.C. 471, s.c., 1927 A.I.R. (Pat.) 376 (James J.).

See in this connection the case of Sibnarain v. Bhuinath, 45 Cal. 475; s.c., 22 C.W.N. 422, s.c., 28 C.L.J. 148 (Mookerjee and Walmsley J.J.), where in a suit for rent the tenants claimed remission of interest payable on account of what are called hajabad land under an alleged custom under which in years of inundation, no portion of such rent, irrespective of the extent of the land inundated or of the crops destroyed, was recoverable from them, held that the custom was both unreasonable and uncertain and was in consequence invalid in law. See also Bejoychand v. Akhil Bhuiya, 51 Cal. 314, s. c., 28 C.W.N. 529.

Village
Custom :

"In my view in making an entry of village customs in the village note the Settlement officer is acting as a public servant in the discharge of his official duty." (Per Roe J., Chapman J. agreeing) : Maniram Singh v. Akloo Ahir, 1918 Pat. 36: Such an entry (which was regarding the rights of landlord and tenant in trees) is relevant under s. 35 of the Evidence Act: Ibid.

Trees.

An entry in the Record of Rights at variance with the common law in respect of right to trees would not carry with it the presumption of correctness under s. 103B because it must be based on a finding of local custom: Debi Dyal v. Gango Kuer, A.I.R. 1926 (Pat.) 68.

As to custom regarding right to trees: See notes under section 23, heading No. 2, page 163. See also Janki Koer v. Saudagar, [1920 Pat.] 177.

Right of way.

Under Chapter X as it stood before the passing of Act III (B. C.) of 1898, it was held that a Settlement Officer was not justified in recording the existence of a right of way which one tenant had upon the land of another: Horomohan v. Prannath, 27 Cal. 364, s. c., 4 C.W.N. 127.

Right to rear fish in another's tank is not an easement.

9. Clause (i).—Where in a record of rights there was an entry that A had the right to rear and catch fish in B's tank, held that B was entitled in a suit under s. 111A of the Act to have a declaration that A had no right to rear and catch fish in B's tank: Chand Mia v. Tuka Mia, 28 C.W.N. 516 (Newbould and B. B. Ghose J.J.); the right of a person to rear fish in another's tank is a novel right which a Court of law cannot recognise and is too vague to give a person a right in law in the nature of an easement.

10. Cl. (i) and cl. (j).—Rent-free title:—Under the chapter as it stood before the passing of Act III of (B. C.) 1898 it was held that in preparing a record-of-right under s. 102 a Revenue-officer was not competent to determine the validity of rent-free title set up by a person occupying lands within the area under enquiry, so as to resume such lands and to declare them liable to settlement of rent: The Secretary of State for India v. Nitaye Singh, 21 Cal. 38. But where the defendant claimed under a sanad granted by a predecessor of the Zemindar, and of a date subsequent to the decennial settlement and was therefore regarded as a tenant within the meaning of the Bengal Tenancy Act, held that the Revenue-officer had jurisdiction to enter the particulars of the land in his record-of-rights: Gokul Sahu v. Jadunandan, 17 Cal. 721.

The defendant in a case set up sanad from a person who was not apparently a predecessor of the plaintiff and it was of a date anterior to the decennial-settlement; the Revenue-officer was of opinion that no rent had ever been paid for the land and the land was mal and not lakhitaj, held that the Revenue-officer had no jurisdiction to make this determination: Karmi Khan v. Brojo Nath, 22 Cal. 244.

Rent-free.

In proceedings under Chapter X as it stood before the passing of Act III (B. C.) of 1898 it was held that a Settlement-officer had no jurisdiction to resume and assess with rent land which had been held as lakhiraj: Padmanand v. Bajo, 20 Cal. 577.

Cl. (j) expressly authorises the Settlement-officer to decide when the land is claimed to be held rent-free—whether or not rent is actually paid, and if not paid, whether or not the occupant is entitled to hold the land without payment of rent, and if so entitled under what authority: Birendra Kishore v. Kalitara, 43 Cal. 547, s. c., 22 C.L.J. 155, s. c., 20 C.W.N. 275. As to rent-free title see also the cases of Sobhan Baksh v. Birendra Kisore, 22 C.L.J. 144, Birendra Kisore v. Ram Charan, 22 C.L.J. 147; Birendra Kisore v. Ananda Priya, 22 C.L.J. 151; Birendra Kisore v. Ramchandra, 22 C.L.J. 153; Upendra Nath v. Anath Bandhu, 52 I.C. 406; Bipradas v. Manorama, 47 I.C. 49; see notes under s. 106.

According to cl. (j) the question as to rent-free title may be gone into and the particulars as to whether land is rent-free may be recorded.

II. Dispossession by landlord: Suspension of rent:—Where a tenant has been dispossessed by a landlord from a portion of the land, the Settlement-officer is correct in showing that no rent is payable: Dwijendra Nath v. Aftabuddi, 21 C.W.N. 492.

12. Khata number:—It has been the practice and custom of settlement officers to show a separate tenancy for a holding under a single khata number. A khata number will never consist of more than one holding: Dip Narayan v. Bhim Mondal, 101 I.C. 511, s. c., A.I.R. (1927) Pat. 207. (Adami and Scroope J.J.).

102A. The Local Government may, for the purpose of settling or averting disputes existing or likely to arise between landlords, tenants, proprietors, or persons belonging to any of these classes, regarding the use or passage of water, make an order directing that a survey be made, and a record-of-rights be prepared, by a Revenue-officer, in order to ascertain and record the rights and obligations of each tenant and landlord in any local area, estate or tenure or part thereof, in respect of—

Power to order survey and preparation of record of rights as to water.

- (a) the use by tenants of water for agricultural purposes, whether obtained from a river, jhil, tank or well, or any other source of supply; and
- (b) the repair and maintenance of appliances for securing a supply of water for the cultivation of the land held by each tenant, whether or not such appliances be situated within the boundaries of such land.

Note: This section was inserted by Act I, B. C. of 1907 and Act I, E. B. A. C. of 1908.

the raiyats, of an estate or tenure, and on the applicant or applicants depositing or giving security for the required amount for expenses, a Revenue-officer may, subject to and in accordance with rules made in this behalf by the Local Government, ascertain and record all or any of the particulars specified in section 102 with respect to the estate or tenure or any part thereof.

S. 103 redundant in view of amendment of s. 101 by the Devolution Act (XXXVIII of 1920).

1. S. 103 now redundant:—After the Amendment of s. 101 by the Devolution Act (XXXVIII of 1920), s. 103 has been redundant. S. 101 as it originally stood did not empower the Local Government to order the preparation of a Record-of-rights without the sanction of the Government of India, and therefore s. 103 was enacted to give powers to the Local Government to order in certain cases the preparation of a Record-of-rights without the sanction of the Government of India. Now, the limitation of the powers of the Local Government having been removed on account of the amendments by the Devolution Act, s. 103 is now redundant.

S. 188 does not apply to an application under s. 103.

2. One or more of the proprietors or tenure holders:—S. 188 :—S. 103 authorises one or more of several proprietors or tenure-holders to apply to a Settlement officer to ascertain and record all or any other particulars specified in s. 102. S. 188 is no bar to any such application by virtue of the amendments made in s. 103, but there has been no corresponding change in s. 105, so s. 188 is still applicable to an application under that section (s. 105) : Beharilal v. Priya Nath, 21 C.L.J. 305 ; there is a fundamental difference between the scope of s. 103 and s. 105. Section 103 contemplates a record of existing facts while section 105 contemplates an alteration of existing facts ; Ibid.

Whether particulars recorded constitute a record-of-rights.

3. Whether particulars recorded under s. 102 in a proceeding under s. 103 are a record-of-rights:—It is doubtful as to whether the particulars recorded under s. 102 in a proceeding under s. 103 constitute a record-of-rights. In s. 101 the expression "record-of-rights" has been used, whereas this expression has not been used in this section. If particulars recorded in a proceeding under s. 103 do not constitute a record-of-rights, ss. 105, 106 and the other sections will not apply to proceedings under s. 103.

Observations of Pargiter, J.

Pargiter, J., is of opinion that if all the particulars or almost all the particulars are recorded, those would constitute a record-of-rights, as the record would include rights, whereas, if only such particulars as are referred to in (a) or (c) of s. 102 are recorded that would not constitute a record as these particulars do not involve any rights :

Shurendra Narain v. Tarini Kanta, 32 Cal. 518, s. c. 9 C.W.N. 504 : s. c., 1 C.L.J. 239 ; the particulars referred to in s. 109 when recorded and compiled under s. 103 amount to a record-of-rights as contemplated in Chapter X : Per Ghose J. ; Ibid. Ss. 103A, 105, 106, &c., will apply to such a record-of-rights : Ibid. Ss. 104 to 108 (before the amendment of 1898) were held to apply to proceedings taken under s. 103 in the same way as to proceedings taken under s. 101 : Dharani Kant v. Gahar Ali, 30 Cal. 339 : a Revenue-officer can in such a proceeding decide the question as to relationship of landlord and tenant : Ibid. ; a survey and record-of-rights may be prepared without the order of Government in a proceeding under s. 103 : Ibid. As the present section 103 is almost similar to that before Act III of 1898 this ruling still applies.

Record-of-rights.

Ss. 104 to 108. Relationship of landlord and tenant. Record may be prepared without order of Govt.

Following the case of Sudhendu v. Gobind, 32 Cal. 518 it was held by Carnduff J., that proceedings under s. 103 of the Bengal Tenancy Act are not excluded from the category of record-of-rights merely because some only of the particulars set forth in s. 102 are to be excluded : Sheddhyan v. Maharani Beni Pershad, 9 C.L.J. 67 (notes).

Proceedings under s. 103 not excluded from the category of record of rights.

See notes under s. 102.

4. Old law :—The proceedings upon an application under s. 103, constitute a suit within the meaning of s. 143 by reason of the rules made by the Local Government (Ch. VI, paras. 27 and 32 of the old Rules) in 1885 under ss. 189 and 190 of the Act. The Civil Procedure Code is therefore applicable to such proceedings and it was held that a Special Judge who heard an appeal under s. 108, cl. (2), was entitled to review his judgment under s. 623, C. P. C. : Achha Mian v. Durga Churn, 25 Cal. 146, s. c., 2 C.W.N. 137. Ss. 107 and 108 of the former chapter were therefore considered to be superfluous. Ibid. See notes under s. 106.

Civil Procedure Code applicable.

5. Proceedings under ss. 103 and 104 :—Proceedings under ss. 103 and 104 of the former Chapter X were regarded as proceedings for record-of-rights and to which ss. 106 to 109 of the former chapter were applicable : (Per Ghose J.) Dharani Kant v. Gohar Ali, 7 C.W.N. 33 (at p. 39) ; see also Denga Kazi v. Nobin Kissori, 24 Cal. 462 : s. c., 1 C.W.N. 294 ; Achha Mian v. Durga Churn, 25 Cal. 146 : s. c., 2 C.W.N. 137 ; Ram Autar v. Sanoman, 27 Cal. 167 ; Durga Churn v. Basir, 6 C.W.N. 238.

Proceedings under ss. 103 and 104 of the former chapter.

6. Ascertain :—The following observations made by their Lordships with regard to s. 103 of the former chapter would seem to apply to the present section as the wording of both these sections are practically the same in this respect :—The section empowers the Revenue-officer to “ascertain, subject to and in accordance with rules made in this behalf by the Local Government,” the particulars to be recorded and we think it must be taken that the Local Government is empowered to authorise the Revenue-officer to do any act not contrary to law which may be necessary to enable him to ascertain those particulars : (Per Prinsep, Hill and Stevens, J.J.), Dharani Kant v. Gahar Ali, 7 C.W.N. 33 (at p. 50).

Particulars to be recorded.

7. Application of s. 104 to proceedings taken under s. 103 :—The following observations were made by Prinsep, Hill and Stevens, Prinsep, Observations of Prinsep,

Hill and J.J., in a case under Chapter X as it stood before the passing of Act
Stevens J.J. III, B. C. of 1898:—

With regard to the application of sec. 104 to proceedings taken under sec. 103, we think that as the former section by its terms applies to “any proceedings under this chapter,” that is, Chapter X of the Act, it must be applicable to proceedings under sec. 103 equally with proceedings under sec. 101. Similarly sec. 105 is by its terms applicable to a “record made under the chapter, and a record of the particulars specified in sec. 102 seems to us to come within that description none the less when it is prepared upon an application made under sec. 103 than when it is the result of an order passed under sec. 101. It follows that secs. 106, 107 and 108 are also applicable: Dharani Kant v. Gahar Ali, 7 C.W.N. 33 at p. 51, s. c., 30 Cal. 339.

See notes under s. 107.

Resjudicata

8. S. 101:—When an application is made by a proprietor or a tenant of an estate under sec. 103 of the Bengal Tenancy Act for the preparation of a record-of-rights, the Revenue Officer is competent to make a survey and measurement of the land and the procedure to be adopted by him shall be the same as in the case of a proceeding under sec. 101; and in such a proceeding when there is a denial of relation of landlord and tenant either by the landlord or the tenant, it is absolutely necessary for the Revenue-Officer to deal with the question in order to enable him to make the necessary entries under sec. 102, but the decision of the Revenue-officer does not operate as resjudicata in a subsequent suit by the landlord for declaration of his title and to eject the tenant and for mesne profits; Dharani Kant v. Gahar Ali, 30 Cal. 339, s. c., 7 C.W.N. 33.

103A. (1) When a draft record-of-rights has been prepared, the Revenue-officer shall publish the draft in the prescribed manner and for the prescribed period, and shall receive and consider any objections which may be made to any entry therein, or to any omission therefrom, during the period of publication.

(2) When such objections have been considered and disposed of according to such rules as the Local Government may prescribe, and (if a settlement of land-revenue is being or is about to be made) the Settlement Rent-roll has been incorporated with the record under section 104F, sub-section (3), the Revenue-officer shall finally frame the record, and shall cause it to be finally published in the prescribed manner; and the publication shall be conclusive evidence that the record has been duly made under this Chapter. ¶

(2) Separate draft or final records may be published under sub-section (1) or sub-section (2) for different local areas, estates, tenures or parts thereof.

9th January 1892, No. 321, S—In exercise of powers conferred by of Court-section 35 of the Court Fees Act, 1870 (VII of 1870), and the super- fees. session of the Notification of the Government of India in the Department of Finance and Commerce, No. 5087, S. R., dated the 11th October 1894, the Governor-General in Council is pleased to remit the fees chargeable on applications or petitions of objection referring to any entry made, or proposed to be made in a draft record-of-rights prepared under Chap. X of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885 (VIII of 1885), as amended by the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Act, 1898 (Bengal Act III of 1898) : Provided that such applications or petitions are presented before the publication of such draft record under sec.
103A, sub-sec (1), of the said Act: The Gazette of India, Part 1, p. 31, dated 31st January 1899.

In exercise of powers conferred by sec. 35 of the Court Fees Act, Remission 1870 (VII of 1870), the Governor-General in Council is pleased to of fees on remit the fees chargeable under the said Act on certified copies of certified entries in record-of-rights furnished in accordance with any rules for copies of the time being in force under Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885 (VIII of finally pub-1885), after the final publication of such record-of-rights under section lished 103A (2) of that Act; India Government Notification No. 4834 records.
Exc., dated Simla, 8th August 1905. See Settlement Manual, 1908, Part I, Ch. VII, p. 54.

2. S. 105 of chapter X as it stood before Act III. B. C. of Disposal of 1898 :—This section is analogous to s. 105 as it stood before the objection in passing of Act III, B. C. of 1898, which "lay down that during the a summary pendency of the draft publication any person affected by an entry in manner.
the record might raise an 'objection' with regard to it, which the Revenue-officer was to 'receive' and 'consider' and dispose of in" a summary manner: Sheikh Karban Ali v. Sheikh Dufer Ali, 28 Cal.
475, s.c., 5 C.W.N. 798. From an order disposing of such an 'objection' Appeal.
no appeal and no second appeal lay, and the order did not operate as res judicata. If "dispute" under s. 106 of the former chapter was to be 'heard, and decided by the Revenue-officer under the procedure laid down in the Code of Civil Procedure for the trial of suits and was subject to appeal and an order, disposing of such a dispute had the effect of res judicata : Ibid. Resjudicata.

3. Objection and dispute :—See notes under s. 106.

Effect of order disallowing objection.

4. Order disallowing an objection :—Where there has been a mere preparation of a record-of-rights but no settlement of rent or final publication, an order made under s. 103 is not a final order or an order having a judicial effect: 2 C.L.J. 22n.

Correction of entry.

5. Possession :—In framing a record-of-rights under s. 103A the Revenue-officer must record the proprietors according to possession: Mohunt Padmalav v. Lakmi Rani, 12 C.W.N. 8 (at p. 14).

How to be made.

6. Omission to make objection :—Where no objections were preferred and the record was finally published and the landlord applied for settlement of rent, held that the tenant was not entitled to ask the Settlement-officer to correct an entry in the record-of-rights that the lands were lakhraj and not mal and that in regard to certain land he was a settled raiyat: Shambu Chandra v. Purna Chandra, 35 Cal. 176: the Settlement-officer has no jurisdiction to alter an entry in the record upon such an objection is made in such a stage: Ibid. These disputes can only be decided by the presentation of a plaint on stamped paper under s. 106: Ibid 12 C.W.N. 122: s. c., 7 C.L.J. 103.

Irregular disposal of objection has no effect of resjudicata.
Order striking off not a judicial order.

7. Disposal of objection irregularly :—When a Revenue-officer disposes of an objection under s. 193A, of the Bengal Tenancy Act, without adopting the procedure laid down in the Code of Civil Procedure for the trial of suits, his order will not be open to appeal, or second appeal nor will it have the effect of res judicata: Nasuralla v. Amiruddi, 3 C.L.J. 133; see also Kurban Ali v. Jafar Ali, 28 Cal. 471; an order striking off an objection under s. 103A, for default is not a judicial order: Nasarulla v. Amiruddi, 3 C.L.J. 133.

Correction of an
error.

8. Inherent jurisdiction of Settlement officer to correct a mistake :—A Settlement-officer has inherent jurisdiction to correct an obvious error or incidental slip even after the final publication of records: Rajmohan v. Alamgazi, 17 C.W.N. 625 (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, J.J.); where after the settlement of rent under s. 105 and after the disposal of an appeal by the Special judge amended the record as to the area and the rent payable, (the question before the Special Judge being as to the rate of rent) held that the Settlement Officer had inherent jurisdiction to correct the obvious error: Ibid.

Draft record not admissible in evidence.

9. Draft Record of Rights :—Entries in a draft record-of-rights published under s. 103A are not admissible in evidence in a suit for rent: Galar Kuer v. Ramratan, 18 C.W.N. 896. See also Ambar Ali v. Lutfee Ali, 21 C.W.N. 996, s. c., 25 C.L.J. 690; see also Imrit Mahton v. Bahadur Singh, 34 I.C. 857.

Court bound to come to a finding whether presumption is rebutted.

A presumption no doubt attaches to a finally published entry, but where the Court has before it the evidence upon which the record was prepared, and a party denies the correctness of the record, the Court is bound to come to a finding whether that evidence is sufficient to justify the entry.* Janki Koer v. Saudagar, [1920 Pat.] 177. The cases of Sheonandan v. Bacha Raut, 9 C.L.J. 28, and Bhogha Mower v. Ram Lakhan, 27 C.L.J. 107, were referred to.

Proceedings
before final publication admissible.

In order to rebut the presumption which led to the final publication are admissible in evidence: the Court is entitled to take into consideration what took place at the Khanapuri and attestation stage and the decision of the Revenue officer at that stage:

* In this case the entry was to the effect that the tenants were entitled to appropriate trees. (This is not the ordinary law).

The entry in the record-of-rights must be presumed to be correct unless the contrary is proved but when the matter is investigated by the Civil Court and the parties adduce evidence on the point of controversy the entry loses its weight when the evidence discloses no foundation for it: Kiran Chandra v. Srinath, 31 C.W.N. (Panton and Chakravarti, J.J.).

Sec. 147B of the B. T. Act does not in any way limit the operation of sec. 103B of that Act, under which the presumption of correctness of an entry in a finally published record-of-rights arises generally and not merely in suits between landlords and tenants: Fazlur Rahman v. Golamkader, 30 C.W.N. 689 (B. B. Ghosh & Graham J.).

The record-of-rights being a public record prepared by public officers appointed under the statutory authority of the Local Government is admissible under sec. 35 of the Evidence Act, and the record being an official act done within the jurisdiction of the public officer it has a presumptive value of its correctness: Ibid.

An entry in the record-of-rights operates in the same way between landlord and tenant as between the landlords of the same or neighbouring estates and between tenant and tenant: Ibid.

In order to rebut the entry in the Record-of-rights that the tenant is a fixed raiyat, it was held in a suit under s. 106 that the quinquennial papers, even if admissible are not sufficient to rebut the entry: Probode Chandra v. Benoy Kumar, 27 C.W.N. 548, (C. C. Ghosh and Chotzner J.J.).

See notes under this section under heading: Draft Records.

The question whether the presumption is rebutted by a kabul is more a question of fact than of law: Yakubali v. Rajkumar I.C. 527.

Evidence of facts, oral and documentary, of a date prior to publication of the Record-of-Rights is admissible to rebut the presumption arising under s. 103B: Raghunath v. Ram Behara, 75 I.C. 427,* (Das and Adami J.J.). The Provincial Settlement Records are sufficient to rebut the Revisional Settlement Record, Ibid. An under raiyat cannot acquire the status of an occupancy raiyat, if he is so entered in the record of rights, the onus is upon him to prove the custom. (This was a case from Orissa).

Where there was an entry in regard to an occupant that no rent was actually paid but that he was not entitled to hold without payment of rent, and it was proved that since the grant to his predecessors no rent had ever been paid, held, that the proved possession free from rent was sufficient to rebut the presumption that the lands are liable to payment of rent: Bipradas v. Manorama, 45 Cal. 57. (Mookerjee and Walmsley J.J.), see also Bipradas v. Kedarnath, 47 I.C. 765.

A Settlement officer's decision though prior to the passing of the Amending Act III B. C. of 1898 but embodied in a record of rights published afterwards, as to the liability of land claimed to be held as rent-free, to pay rent does not operate as res judicata in a suit for rent of the same land brought in the Civil Court as the decision was not given by a competent Court. Birendra Kishore v. Kalitara Debi 43 Cal. 547: s. c., 20 C.W.N. 275, s. c., 22 C.L.J. 55. The case of Radha Kishore v. Durganath, 32 Cal. 162 was followed and the dictum

* The case of Sheonandan v. Bacha Raut, 9 C.L.J. 28 was followed.

The case of Nobin Chandra v. Radha Kisore, 11 C.W.N. 895 was sent from. See in this connection the case of Sobhan v. Birendra hore, 22 C.L.J. 144 and Nikunja Behari v. Radha Kishore, 22 C.L.J. 148.

The plaintiff sued for assessment of fair rent on the land in suit which he alleged that the defendant had an occupancy right only. The defence was that the land was held rent-free. The lands in suit were recorded in the record-of-rights as being on the possession of the defendant's or their predecessors with the remark that they were liable to be assessed with rent although no rent had been paid. The defendants adduced evidence to show that they and their predecessors were in possession for a long period and no rent was paid and that the lands were nishkar brahmattar, held that where the period during which the defendants have been in possession is left in an indefinite and nebulous state, that is not sufficient even when taken with the fact that no rent has been paid to show that the entry in the record-of-rights is incorrect: Brojendrakishore v. Mohim Chandra, 31 C.W.N. 32.

Where the land is proved to lie within the ambit of a certain state it lies upon those who claim the whole rent free to prove the same; an entry in a record-of-rights under sec. 103B that the land is rent-free is rebutted upon proof that the land lies within the estate of the Zemindar, and the onus is shifted; Jagdeo Narayan, v. Baldeo Singh, 49 I.A. 399, s. c., 27 C.W.N. 925, s. c., 2 Pat. 38 (P.C.), 36 C.L.J. 499. As to presumption of rent-free title by long possession without payment of rent: see Chattranath Chowdhury Babarali, 29 C.W.N. 333.

The burden of proving that an entry in the record of rights is wrong is on the party alleging it: Srinath v. Maharaja Pratap, 28 C.W.N. 145 (P.C.).

Where plaintiffs sued for declaration of their right to possession of lands which they claimed as Khud Kasht and the record-of-rights showed that the lands were Khud Kasht, held, that the onus was on the defendant to show that the entry was wrong: Gajudhar v. Sheo Nandan, 23 C.W.N. 304.

When a record of rights is challenged in a Civil Court, the party challenging must adduce evidence to rebut the presumption of its correctness, matters other than what happened during the proceedings before the Revenue officer before the final publication: Lakshikant v. Nabadwip Chandra, 31 C.W.N. 192. (B. B. Ghose and Cammiade, JJ.). When a record of rights has once been finally published, it cannot be attacked on the ground that certain procedure adopted by the revenue authorities in arriving at the final conclusion does not support the entry as finally published: Ibid. It is for the person who challenges an entry in the record of rights to show that it is incorrect: Ibid. A decision of the attesting officer which was arrived at before the final publication of the record of rights is not evidence to consider the question whether the record of rights is erroneous or not—Ibid.

In a suit for partition the plaintiff claimed certain land to be the malik's zeraif, while the defendants contended that it was their occupancy holding; the record of rights supported the defendants. The plaintiff contended that the presumption arising from the entry in the record of rights was rebutted by the fact of the disputed land falling within the ambit of the plaintiff's zamindari, held that the plaintiff had no presumptive right generally to possession of raiyati holdings and that, therefore, there being no conflict of presumption, the burden of proof lay on the plaintiff: Mahanth Ram v. Nandi Jha 5 Pat. 393, s. c., 7 P.L.T. 784, s. c., 96 I.C. 937.

Apart from the question whether or not a fard rewaj bhaoli if part of the Record of Rights to which a presumption of correctness attaches under section 103 (b) of the Bengal Tenancy Act, it is admissible in evidence under section 35 of the Evidence Act, being a public record prepared by a public servant in the discharge of his official duty: Sheo Prasad v. Lal Babu, 39 I.C. 505. Fard rewaj bhaoli.

The presumption which attaches to a Record of Rights under s. 103B, does not apply to the fard rewaj bhaoli as according to the Rules in the Settlement Manual it is not possibly a part of the Record; but the fard is clearly admissible under s. 35 of the Evidence Act: Tulsi Mahton v. Ishandoo Pandey, 2 Pat. L.J. 188, (Chamier, C.J., Sharfuddin, J., agreeing), s. c., 1 Pat. L.W. 238.

In a suit under s. 104A by a person who was entered as a tenure-holder for a declaration that he is a raiyat, held that the onus was up on him to prove that he was a raiyat: Rajani Kant v. The Secretaries, State, 45 I.A. 190, s.c., 46 Cal. 90, s.c., 23 C.W.N. 649, (P) resumption arising out of an entry that the trees belong to cannot be rebutted merely by shewing that the ordinary trees are the full right to trees to the landlord: Bishan Pragash v. Sh, n, 1 Pat. 368.

Rebuttal by evidence external to the settlement proceedings or evidence of apparent on the face of those proceedings: Ramanath Santil Trustee of Bengal, 29 C.W.N. 517. Rebuttal by evidence or evidence on the face of the record.

Evidence of facts, documentary and oral, of a date prior to that of publication of the record-of-rights, is admissible and should be taken into consideration in determining whether the presumption under s. 103B has been rebutted or not: Sheonandan v. Bachha Rani, 284, Pirthichand v. Sheik Mohamed, 1 Pat. L.J. 67 which approved of the case of Radha Kisore v. Umed Ali, 12 C.W.N. 904; see also Birendra Kisore v. Kailash Chandra, 22 C.L.J. 140. See Bhukhon Quassab v. Mardanali, 56 I.C. 40. The fact that an entry was made in the record of rights is not sufficient to save the person relying on the entry from the necessity of producing and proving a document on which the entry was based and by which he had settlement as a raiyat: Sheonandan v. Bachha Rani, 9 C.L.J. 284. Evidence prior to publication of record-of-rights admissible.

The proposition that evidence of payment anterior to the publication of the Record of Rights, is not admissible to shew that the plaintiff has a holding at fixed rates, is erroneous: Pirthichand v. Sheikh Mohamed, 1 Pat. L.J. 67 (Radha Kisore v. Umed Ali, 12 C.W.N. 904 approved). Evidence prior to publication.

Entries in a draft record of rights published under s. 103A are not admissible in evidence: Gulab v. Ramratan, 18 C.W.N. 896; see also Ambar Ali v. Lutfee Ali, 21 C.W.N. 996. Entries in draft record not admissible.

An entry in a draft record of rights that a certain tank is known by a certain name is not admissible in evidence: Ambarali v. Lutfee-ali, 25 C.L.J. 690.

If there is no settlement of rent under Chapter X, the entry in the record-of-rights, if it was duly published, would be only prima of Settlement of rent—effect as a decree.

facie evidence in favour of the landlord—evidence which may be rebutted by the tenant: Abdu Rasheed v. Jogesh Chandra Ray, 11 C.W.N. 153; but if there was an application for settlement of rent and the rent was settled and record-of-rights duly prepared, such record would have the effect of a decree (see section 9 of Act III of 1898): Ibid.

Entries not lightly to be discarded.

The entry of the record-of-rights is presumptive evidence as to the condition of things which existed at the time the record was prepared; such records are prepared with considerable difficulty and the proceedings of Revenue-officers are conducted with publicity; if the entries in such records were lightly to be discarded the result would be to frustrate the very object for which Chap. X was enacted: Kali Ray v. Protap Narain, 5 C.L.J. 92.

History of proceedings which resulted in a particular entry may be looked into.

The statutory provision in s. 103B says nothing as to the value to be attached to an entry in the Record of Rights; it only says that the entry must stand and be presumed to be correct until it is proved by evidence to be incorrect; it is often of the greatest value to very carefully consider the history of the proceedings which resulted in a particular entry in the Record of Rights for the history is frequently of the greatest assistance in enabling the court to estimate the value which should be attached to an entry in the record-of-rights: Mahtab Khan v. Sheobarat, 37 I.C. 353.

Entry cannot override the statutory prohibition contained in s. 20 of the Cess Act

An entry in the record-of-rights, which only raises a presumption, cannot override the statutory prohibition contained in s. 20 of the Cess Act (Act IX B.C. of 1880): Dhanukdhari v. Saiyid Huda, 1 Pat. L. J. 521.

Entry cannot override well settled principles of law.

An entry in the Record-of-rights cannot have the effect of overruling well settled principles of law." If therefore, the entry in the Record-of-Rights conflicts with the established law, I think the established law must prevail, and that the presumption attached to the entry in the Record-of-Rights must be deemed to have been rebutted." Raghubir v. Bhajan, 40 I.C. 987; where the trees in an Ar (boundary fence) were recorded as the property of one of the owners of the adjoining proprietor, held that the entry was wrong in as much as a boundary fence is owned by both the adjoining proprietors to the centre of the fence, each owner being entitled to claim the land forming the fence to its centre and the trees growing thereon: Ibid.

Presumption when the entries were made.

The presumption under s. 103B is a presumption that the entries were correct at the time of the preparation of the record: Luchmi v. Ekdeshwar, 13 C.W.N. 181.

Presumption in a suit before publication of record.

The presumption referred to in s. 103B, is applicable to a suit which has been instituted before the publication of the record-of-rights in which the entry is contained; C. R. Macdonald v. Babu Lall Purbi, 4 C.L.J., 519;—followed in Kamaliswari v. Ramphari, 19 C.L.J. 348.

Effect of s. 104 J.

When settlement of rent has been made under Part II of Chap. X, no evidence is admissible to prove that a different rate of rent is payable from that entered in the rent-roll, such entries being conclusive under s. 104 of the Act; s. 103B, does not operate to modify the effect of s. 104J., Ambika Charan v. Joychandra, 13 C.W.N. 210.

Sub-sec. 2 of s. 109

Sub-sec. (2) of s. 109 of the Act before amendment by Act III of 1898 provided that "every undisputed entry in the record shall be presumed to be correct until the contrary is proved." It was held that this presumption would be sufficiently rebutted by a decree passed in a contested suit between the parties and that the rule in sub-sec. (2) was only a rule of evidence and could not over-ride the rules of res judicata which are of general application: Ghanshyam v. Pudmanund Singh, 9 C.W.N. 610.

Where a person was inducted as a tenant by a proprietor after the last day fixed for payment of revenue and the auction-purchaser at the revenue-sale brought a suit to oust the tenant, held that although there is an entry in the record-of-rights that the person inducted into possession was the tenant, such presumption was rebutted from the fact that his occupation in its inception was that of a trespasser: Deonundun v. Meghu Mahton, 11 C.W.N. 225 (at p. 228, Per Mookerjee, J.).

Where in a suit for rent the Court gave a decree to the landlord at the rate admitted by the tenant and not at the rate in the entry in the record-of-rights held in a subsequent suit for rent that the khatian not having been considered in the previous suit, the Court should consider the same as evidence in the case: Sarifunnessa v. Sasodhar Moulik, 14 C.W.N. 364.

There is no limitation as to the nature of the suit to which the provisions of s. 103B applies: Tokhi Sahu v. Tori Munda, 13 C.W.N. III, s.c., 9 C.L.J. 83; the presumption as to the correctness of the entries will operate even in a suit to declare the entries incorrect: Ibid.

An entry in the column of the record-of rights that a tenure was under temporary settlement for thirty years is conclusive evidence that the settlement was made duly under the Regulation: Haider Ali v. Secretary of State, 9 C.L.J., 265.

In an appeal from the Judicial Commissioner's court, N. W. Frontier Province, the Judicial Committee held that though an entry in a Wazib-ul-arz "does not create a title, it gives rise to a presumption in its support, which prevails until its correctness is successfully impugned" Dakas Khan v. Ghulam Kasim, 28 C.L.J. 441.

A decision in a rent-suit as to the rate of rent is sufficient for rebutting an entry under s. 103 B.: Brajendra v. Somar Ali, A.I.R. 1923 Cal., 282.

As to whether the entry is money-rent or produce-rent: see the case of Gobinda v. Thakur Prasad, A.I.R. 1922 Pat. 181.

5. Remedy regarding an entry :- An entry in a finally published record does not create any title in favour of any person; the entry only raises a presumption that the entry is a correct one unless the contrary is proved. An entry raises a presumption merely and it is not necessary to bring a suit to avoid a presumption; Ramgolam v. Bishnu Pargash, 11 C.W.N. 48; a suit may however be brought for a declaration that the entry contains an erroneous statement: Ibid; Art 14 of Sch. II of the Limitation Act has no application to such a suit: Ibid. See also Agin Bindh v. Mohan Bikram, 30 Cal. 20. See also Brij Behari v. Sheo Sankar, 2 Pat. L.J., 12. An entry in a record of rights neither creates nor extinguishes merely a rebuttable piece of evidence: Ibid. It is not sufficient for a declaration that an entry is wrong before before amendment by Act III of 1898: presumption rebutted by decree.

How presumption is rebutted in a suit against a person inducted as a tenant by a proprietor in default. Where an entry was not considered in a rent-suit, the same may be considered in a subsequent rent suit. Presumption applies in all suits.

proceeding for enhancement of rent: Ibid. See also Ram Sahawan Misser v. Bachoo Misser, 11 C.W.N. 300. See notes under s. 106. Where there were two consecutive finally published records-of-rights, and in both there were entries prejudicial to the plaintiff, held that it was competent to him to bring a suit for a declaration in regard to the second record without first displacing any prejudicial entries in the finally published entries of the first record: Sheikh Latafat v. Kumar Kalikar Nund [1918 Pat.] p. 225; the time for bringing the suit runs from the subsequently published record: Ibid. As the plaintiff was found to be in possession there was no reason why he should sue upon every challenge of his rights: Ibid.

s. 50.

Where a tenant was entered as a Kaimi raiyat in the finally published record, and he brought a suit in the Civil Court for a declaration that he was a raiya at fixed rate, held that the suit was not one under the Bengal Tenancy Act but under the general law of the country: Pirthi Chand v. Sheikh Mohamed, 1 Pat. L.J., 67; although s. 50 of the B. T. Act has no application to such a suit, yet that does not prevent the court to take into consideration the evidence of long payment of rent at an unchanged rent as showing that the plaintiff had a holding at fixed rates: Ibid; also see Golab Misser v. Kumar Kalanand, 12 C.L.J., 108 and Nandlal v. Atermoni, 12 C.W.N. 432.

No suit lies in Civil Court for alteration or correction of entries made in the record of rights; persons aggrieved are to take recourse to the remedy provided by this Chapter: Jogendranath v. Krishna Pramada, 35 Cal. 1013, s.c., 12 C.W.N. 1032, s.c., 8 C.L.J. 322.

Suit with a stranger.

6. Entry whether evidence against strangers: A finally published entry does not seem to be admissible as presumptive evidence against a stranger who is not party to the proceedings under the Record-of-rights: where there is a dispute between a landlord and a tenant in regard to any matter, the dispute is decided in the presence of or with notice to the parties; a stranger is not a necessary party nor does he get any notice of the proceedings; it is therefore reasonable that the entry should be presumptive evidence only against persons who were parties in the record-of-rights. S. 147B provides that "a Civil Court shall, in all suits between landlord and tenant as such, have regard to the entries in such record-of-rights relating to the subject matter in dispute." It is submitted that if s. 103B and s. 147B are read together a finally published entry ought not to be admissible as presumptive evidence against a stranger.

S. 147B.

It has however been held in the case of Fazlar Rahaman v. Golam Kader, 30 C.W.N. 689 (B. B. Ghose and Graham, J.J.), that sec. 147B of the B. T. Act does not in any way limit the operation of sec. 103B of that Act under which the presumption of correctness of an entry in the record of rights arises generally and not merely in suits between landlords and tenants.

Chandina or bazar land.

Presumption is not of such weight as

7. Non-agricultural lands: In regard to an entry in the Record-of-rights in respect of non-agricultural land (Chandina land), Sanderson C.J. observed as follows:—"I am not prepared to go so far as to say that in this case no presumption arose from the entry in the Record-of-rights but I am prepared to say that the presumption cannot be of such great weight as would be the case of a presumption in regard to matter which are rightly and properly Record-of-rights:" Sasi Kant v. Sandhyamoni, 26 C.W.N. 483, s.c., 34 C.L.J. 504; (Per Sanderson C.J., Chotzner J.).

Following the case of Sashi Kant v. Sandhyamoni, 26 C.W.N. 483 it has been held by Newbould and B. B. Ghose, J.J., in the case of Chand Miya v. Tuka Miya, 28 C.W.N. 516 that although strictly speaking the presumption under s. 103B is not applicable to non-agricultural land to the extent to which it is applicable with regard to agricultural lands, still such entry raises some presumption with regard to the fact recorded in it. See also Brindaban Prasad v. Gopal Saran Narayan Singh, 104 I.C. 514 (Allanson and Sen, J.J.).

It is submitted with great respect that the rule laid down in these cases that an entry in the record-of-rights in regard to non-agricultural land raises some presumption is not correct, inasmuch as the proceedings under Chap. X in regard to non-agricultural land are without jurisdiction, and as such they are void; if a Revenue-officer proposes to deal under Chap. X non-agricultural tenancies, the parties interested are not bound to attend nor they are concerned with the same.

8. Weight to be attached to entries:—Record-of-rights under Chap. X are prepared with considerable formality, and the proceedings of Revenue-officers are conducted with publicity: entries in such records should not be lightly discarded: Kali Roy v. Partab, 5 C.L.J., 92.

The presumption is rebuttable but as to whether the evidence adduced is sufficient to rebut the presumption is a matter obviously within the competence of a final Court of fact and incapable of being revised in a second appeal: Ramkumar v. Birendra Kishore, 22 C.W.N. 449.

Where the disputed lands were shown to be part of the defendant's mouzas in the Revenue Survey Map of 1845 but were shown to be part of the plaintiff's mouza in the Cadastral Survey Map of 1907, it must be assumed that the defendants were in possession of the disputed lands at the date when the Revenue Survey Map was prepared. Similarly it must be assumed until the contrary is shown that the Plaintiffs were in possession of the disputed lands at the date when the Cadastral Survey Map was prepared. If the contrary is not shown by the defendants, it must be held that the plaintiffs are entitled to succeed in the action on their present possession: Mazharul Ekbar v. Gopal Lal, [1924 Pat.] p. 213. The entry in the record-of-rights operates in the same way between landlord and tenant as between landlords of the same or neighbouring estates, or between tenant and tenant. Ibid.

Non-agricultural lands are not subjected to the provisions of Chap. X of the B. T. Act. But in a suit for the recovery of rent an entry in the record-of-rights with respect to the amount of rent is admissible in evidence as corroborative of other evidence in the suit although the weight to be attached to such entry would depend on the circumstances of each case: Rakmijan v. Amar Krishna, A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 404.

An entry in the Record-of-Rights to the effect that certain lands are Zerail lands of the proprietor will be presumed to be correct, and the onus is on the tenants to prove the contrary: Ramjiram v. Banshi Raut, 4 Pat. 49; s. c., 84 I.C. 305.

Entry in regard to non-agricultural tenancy. Some presumption.

These decisions seem to be incorrect.

Entries should not be lightly discarded.

Presumption rebuttable.

The weight of entry depend on the circumstances of each case.

Zerail-lands onus.

Where the entry also shows that the tenants have acquired in those Zerai lands the rights of occupancy or non-occupancy rights, the landlords have to displace the entry and prove that the tenants have not acquired any such rights: Ibid.

Definite challenge.

9. Limitation: Regular suit :—Where there is a definite challenge to the plaintiff's right by an entry made in the Record-of-Rights and where the fact is patent that the plaintiff must have been aware of that challenge to his rights the suit if brought upon that challenge must be brought in accordance with the six years rule of limitation. If inspite of the challenge the plaintiff retains possession of the property he is not required to institute any suit upon that challenge but may institute a suit at any time within six years of any new challenge which has the effect of prejudicing his rights: Ramji v. Lala Sadhu, 2 Pat. L.J. 403. See also Saroj Kumar v. Umedali, 25 C.W.N. 1022.

Belagan,
meaning of.

10. Meaning of certain terms :—The entry belagan in a settlement record, while it may be indicative of a tenure, also shews that no rent was in fact paid and makes no pronouncement either way as to liability to pay rent: Keshwar Bhagat v. Sheo Prasad, 18 C.L.J., 166. The word Lakheraj is often used loosely: in strictness, it indicates a freedom from liability to revenue but it is constantly used as indicating exemption from liability to pay rent: Ibid. The expression "Kabillagan" describes a tenancy for which rent is not actually paid, but which is liable to pay rent: Ibid.

Lakheraj.

Kabillagan.

Baksh

The word 'Baksh' literary means "in the cultivation of": It has been invented by Revenue officers in Bihar and conveys to all intents and purposes the same meaning as Khudkast which is admittedly the same as Sir or Zerai: Dakheswar v. Gulab Kuar, 53 I.A. 176, s.c., 31 C.W.N. 341, s.c., 5 Pat. 735 (P.C.).

Claim of
title.

11. Claim of hostile title: Settlement Khatian :—The mere fact that the defendant in a suit had been in possession without payment of rent for 12 years was held not sufficient for basing a valid title in bar of the suit brought by the plaintiff; but where the Settlement khatian shewed that the defendant claimed the land as rent-free and the plaintiff's agent denied the claim, held that there was a claim of rent-free title unqualified by reference to any document and a denial of the same by the plaintiff's agents; a hostile title was thus claimed to the knowledge of the plaintiff and a suit brought after 12 years would be barred: Birendra Kishore v. Rosan, 15 C.L.J., 203. This case was distinguished in the case of Aman Gazi v. Birendra Kishore, 16 C.W.N. 920; in this case more than 12 years before the landlord's suit for assessment of rent the tenant in the course of settlement proceedings, set up a rent free title but no actual decision of the question by the Settlement-officer was proved, though the record-of-rights which was finally published within 12 years of the suit, shewed that the tenant was entered as a settled raiyat, h. that it was open to the landlord to rely upon the entry in the record-of-rights as a tacit recognition of his rights to have rent assessed, at any rate within 12 years of the date of final publication, and the suit was not therefore barred by limitation.

Recognition.

12. Settlement-holder bound to recognise intermediate interests :—Where defendants were recorded as intermediate tenure-holders and the plaintiff did not take the remedy mentioned in s. 106 but subsequently took a settlement from the Government and then sued to avoid the tenures of the defendants, held that the suit was not maintainable and that the settlement-holder was bound to recognise intermediate tenure-holder mentioned in the settlement papers: Tapanidhi v. Pitambar, 5 C.L.J. 67.

See notes under ss. 105 and 115.

13. Draft records :—See notes under s. 103A.

14. Where presumption does not arise :—Where a certain tract of land was recorded within the area of defendants' putni taluk, held that although the general rule is that the onus in such a case would prima facie lie on the plaintiff, the presumption would not apply for this circumstance that because the defendant holds a putni taluk under the plaintiff, a particular tract in dispute was comprised within the tenure: Jogendra Nath v. Jagadindra Nath, 34 C.L.J. 133.

Where defendant holds a putni taluk.

15. Neighbouring landlords :—An entry operates in the same way between landlords of neighbouring estates as between landlord and tenant: Bibi Wakilun v. Deonandan, 5 Pat. L.J. 681 (Das and Adami, J.J.). See also Mazharal Ekbal v. Gopal Lal Rai, (1924) Pat. 213. These cases were followed in Fazlar Rahman v. Golam Kade, 30 C.W.N. 689. (B. B. Ghose and Graham, J.J.).

16. Final publication during the pendency of an appeal :—Where during the pendency of an appeal, the Record-of-rights was finally published, an appellate Court may order a retrial of the suit: Bhairab Chandra v. Kalikumar, 37 C.L.J., 491. See also unreported second appeal no. 2358 of 1921. Indra Bhusan Saha v. Jonardan Saha, (decided by Suhrawardy and Chotzner J.J. ; on 25th Feb. 1924.)

Part II.—Settlement of Rents, preparation of Settlement Rent-roll, and disposal of objections, in cases where settlement of land-revenue is being or is about to be made.

Alterations :—In the heading the words “disposal of objections” were substituted for the words “decision of disputes” by Bengal Act I of 1907 and East Bengal Act I 1908.

Regulation VII of 1822 :—Regulation VII of 1822 has not been repealed by the Bengal Tenancy Act. In fact the Act is not inconsistent with the Regulation, it merely lays down more clearly and definitely how a record-of-rights should be prepared. When, therefore, land revenue has to be revised in any non-permanently settled estate—either in the course of a district operation or as a separate undertaking—the record-of-rights is now prepared under the provision of chapter X of the Bengal Tenancy Act. The Act does not, however, deal with assessment of land revenue as between a temporarily settled proprietor and Government. When a proprietor intervenes (see paragraph 2 above) it is still necessary to use the old Regulation so far as he is concerned: (Extracts from para 5 of Part I of the Guide and Glossary to the Survey and Settlement Records in Bengal 1917.)

Land Revenue Settlement :—Where the Bengal Tenancy Act is in force all operations for the revision or assessment of land revenue will in future be preceded by operations under Chapter X of that Act, unless there are good and sufficient reasons for not settling rents under that Act. The assessment of revenue in temporarily settled private estates will always be made under Reg. VII of 1822. In such estates where there are proprietors but no tenants the whole settlement will be carried out under that Regulation: (The Bengal Survey and Settlement Manual, 1917, Ch. II para 5, at page 2).

X of the Bengal Tenancy Act or under s. 52 of that Act or under any other appropriate law, the tenure-holder could not be fastened with liability to pay that rent to his landlord; held further that the determination of the said rent under Act XXXI of 1858 or Reg. VII of 1822 would not bind the tenure-holder to pay that rent to his landlord i.e., the proprietor who took the settlement; Dhirendra Chandra Roy v. Nawab Khaje Habibullah, 29 C.W.N., 595.

104. In every case in which a settlement of land-revenue is being or is about to be made, the Revenue-officer shall, after publication of the draft of the record-of-rights under section 103A, sub-section (1),—

- (a) settle fair and equitable rents for tenants of every class ;
- (b) notwithstanding anything contained in section 192, settle a fair and equitable rent for any land in respect of which he has recorded, in pursuance of clause (j) of section 102, that the occupant is not entitled to hold it without payment of rent, and
- (c) prepare a Settlement Rent-roll :

Provided that the Revenue-officer shall not settle the rents of tenants of every class in an estate or tenure belonging to the Government, if it does not appear to the Local Government to be expedient that he should do so.

1. Amendments :—In cl. (b) for the word, letter and brackets “cl. (i)” the word, letter and brackets “cl. (j)” have been substituted by s. 24 of Beng. Act. I of 1907 and s. 23 of East Bengal Act I of 1908.

By the same sections of the same Acts the proviso was added.

2. Act III of 1898, B. C. s. 9 :—S. 9 (1) Every settlement of rent or decision of a dispute by a Revenue-officer under section 106 of the Bengal enancy Act, 1885, before the commencement of this Act, in respect of which no appeal has, before the commencement of this Act, been preferred to the Special Judge appointed under sec. 108 of that Act, shall have the force and effect of a decree of a Civil Court in a suit between the parties, and shall be final :—

Effect of settlement of rent and decisions by Revenue-officers made before the commencement of this Act.

Provided that an appeal shall lie to the District Judge from any such settlement or decision which was made or given within thirty days before the commencement of this Act, if the appeal be presented within thirty days from the date of such settlement or decision.

(2) The provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure relating to appeals shall, as nearly as may be, apply to all such appeals.

3. Board's Survey and Settlement Manual, 1909, Part I. Ch. I. Page 1 :—In the Bengal Tenancy Act, the term “settling a rent” implies the determination of a rent payable for a term of years, and is used in contradistinction to the term “recording a rent,” which implies the ascertainment and record of a rent payable at the time of the preparation of record-of-rights.

Settlement of rent.

4. Land held by a person not a tenant :—It was held under s. 104 of Chap. X as it stood before Act III, B.C., of 1908, the only provision of law under which a Settlement-officer could make a settlement of rent in respect of excess land, was s. 104, and that did not apply to lands held by one who was not a tenant in respect of other lands to which they had become attached :—Padmanand v. Bajo, 20 Cal. 577.

5. S. 52 :—S. 104, sub-sec. 2 of the former chapter was held to be subject to s. 52 of the Act : Gouri Patro v. Reily, 20 Cal. 579.

6. Decision settling rent—a decree :—A settlement of rent under s. 104 (2) for the purposes of land revenue, has, under s. 107, the force of a final decree of a Civil Court, and as such, operate as res judicata upon the question of rent payable by the tenant, both as to its nature and amount : Brahmanund v. Arjun Raut, 1 C.L.J., 310.

S. 104 (2).

In a proceeding under s. 103 the rent of a tenant was settled under s. 104 (2), held that the decision amounted to a decree and the matter could only be re-opened on an appeal to the Special Judge and could not be re-opened by a suit : Durgacharan v. Hateen, 29 Cal. 252.

In a rent suit the amount of rent entered in the rent-roll prepared under Part II of Chap. X cannot be disputed by the tenant : Sarbeswar v. Rajani Kant, 51 I.C., 981.

Where the tenants hold over, it is open to the settlement officer Holding to determine fair rent after determining the true status of the tenants irrespective of the stipulation in the time expired kabuliyats : Karuna v. Secretary of State, 100 I.C. 466. (Duval and Mitter, J.J.).

of rent
when final.

Where a Settlement-officer made an assessment of rent under s. 104 which was not appealed against under s. 108, held that the decision of the settlement was in view of s. 107, read with s. 9 of the Bengal Tenancy Amendment Act, 1898, final: Dwarkanath v. Dambarudhar, 38 Cal. 274.

8. S. 113:—S. 113 applies to rents which have been finally settled under the provisions of one or other of the sections 104, 104J., 105 or 112 of chap. X, but it does not apply to rents otherwise settled. The provisions of s. 113 are not applicable to a mere entry of an existing rent in the Record-of-Rights: Meyajan v. Joymala, 34 I.C. 32.

9. Remedies of persons affected by Settlement proceedings prepared under Part II of Chap. X:—Any one aggrieved by an entry or omission may, before the final publication of the settlement rent roll;

(1) prefer "objection" before the Revenue Officer (Sec. 104F).

(2) prefer appeal against his decision to the Superior Revenue authority. (Sec. 104G).

and after the final publication of the record of rights, may

(3) bring a suit in the civil court. (Sec. 104H).

(4) bring a declaratory suit. (Sec. 113A).

Note.—The Board of Revenue may exercise its power of revision at any stage, either before or after the final publication of the record of rights.

104A. (1) For the purposes of settling rents under this Part and preparing a Settlement Rent-roll, the Revenue-officer may proceed in any one or more of the following ways or partly in one of those ways and partly in another, that is to say,—

(a) if in any case the landlord and tenant agree between themselves as to the amount of the rent fairly and equitably payable, the Revenue-officer shall satisfy himself that the rent so agreed upon is fair and equitable, and if he is so satisfied, but not otherwise, it may be settled and recorded as the fair and equitable rent;

(b) the Revenue-officer may himself propose what he deems to be the fair and equitable rent, and if the amount so proposed is accepted, either orally or in writing, by the tenant, and if the landlord, after notice to attend, raises no objection, the rent so proposed may be settled and recorded as the fair and equitable rent;

(c) if the circumstances are, in the opinion of the Revenue-officer, such as to make it practicable to prepare a Table of Rates showing for any local area, estate, tenure or village or part thereof, or for each class of land in any local area, estate, tenure or village or part thereof, the rate or rates of rent fairly and equitably payable by tenure-holders and raiyats and under-raiyats of each class, he may frame a Table of Rates and settle and record all or any of the rents on the basis of such rates in the manner hereinafter described ;

- (d) the Revenue-officer may settle all or any the rents by maintaining the existing rentals recorded in the record-of-rights published under section 103A, sub-section (1), or by enhancing or reducing such rentals.

Provided that, in taking any such settlement regard shall be had to the principles laid down in sections 6 to 9 (both inclusive), 27 to 36 (both inclusive), 38, 39, 43, 50 to 52 (both inclusive), 180 and 181.

(2) The Settlement Rent-roll shall show the rent of each landlord and of each tenant whose land has been settled, and the amount of each such rent payable for the area shown against his name.

104B. (1) If a Table of Rates is prepared, it shall specify—

- (a) the class or several classes of land for which the Table of Rates is prepared, having regard to the nature of the land, its situation, means of irrigation, and other like considerations, it is in the opinion of the Revenue-officer necessary or practicable to fix a rate or different rates of rent for each class and
- (b) the rate or rates of rent fairly and equitably payable by tenants holding land of each class whose rent is liable to be settled.

(2) When the Revenue-officer has prepared a Table of Rates, he shall publish it in the local language prevailing in the district, and in the prescribed manner.

(3) Any person objecting to any entry in the Table of Rates may present a petition to the Revenue-officer.

within a period of one month after such publication, and the Revenue-officer shall consider any such objection and may alter or amend the Table.

(4) If no objection is made within the said period of one month, or, where objections are made, after they have been disposed of, the Revenue-officer shall submit his proceedings to the Revenue authority empowered by rule made by the Local Government to confirm the Tables and Rent Rolls prepared under this Part (herein after called the "confirming authority"), with a full statement of the grounds of his proposals, and shall send any petitions of objection which he may have received.

The confirming authority may confirm a Table made under sub-section (4), or may disallow the same, or may amend the same in any manner which appears to it proper, and may allow in whole or in part any objection forwarded therewith or subsequently.

When a Table of Rates has been confirmed by the confirming authority, the order confirming it shall contain evidence that the proceedings for the confirmation of the Table have been duly conducted in accordance with this Act; and it may be presumed that the rates shown in the Table for tenants of each class of land, are the fair and equitable rates payable for land of that class within the area to which the Table applies.

104C. When a Table of Rates has been confirmed under section 104B, sub-section (5), the Revenue-officer shall settle all or any of the rents and prepare the Statement Rent-roll on the basis of the rates shown in the Table by calculating the rental of each tenure or holding of a raiyat or under-raiyat on the basis of such tenure or holding at the said rates:

Provided that the Revenue-officer shall not be bound to apply the said rates in any particular case in which he may consider it unfair or inequitable to do so.

104D. In framing a Table of Rates under section 104B, and in settling rents under section 104C, the Revenue-officer shall be guided by such rules as the Local Government may make in this behalf, and shall, so far as may be, and subject to the proviso to the said section 104C, have regard to the general principles of this Act regulating the enhancement or reduction of rents. in accordance therewith.

104E. (1) When a Settlement Rent roll for a local area, estate, tenure or village or part thereof has been prepared, the Revenue officer shall cause a draft of it to be published in the prescribed manner and for the prescribed period, and shall receive and consider any objections made to any entry therein, or omission therefrom, during the period of publication and shall dispose of such objections according to such rules as the Local Government may prescribe. Preliminary Publication and amendment of Settlement Rent Roll.

(2) The Revenue-officer may, of his own motion or on the application of any party aggrieved, at any time before a Settlement Rent roll is submitted to the confirming authority under section 104F, revise any rent entered therein :

Provided that no such entry shall be revised until reasonable notice has been given to the parties concerned to appear and be heard in the matter.

104F. (1) When all objections have been disposed of under section 104E, the Revenue-officer shall submit the Settlement Rent-roll to the confirming authority with a full statement of the grounds of his proposals and a summary of the objections (if any) which he has received. Final revision of Settlement Rent Roll, and incorporation of the same in the record-of-rights.

(2) The confirming authority may sanction the Settlement Rent roll, with or without amendment, or may return it for revision :

Provided that no entry shall be amended, or omission supplied, until reasonable notice has been given to the parties concerned to appear and be heard in the matter.

(3) After sanction by the confirming authority, the Revenue-officer shall finally frame the Settlement Rent-roll and shall incorporate it with the record-of-rights published in draft under section 103A.

1. Court fees :—When a survey and record-of-rights are undertaken with a view to the settlement of land revenue, applications or petitions to a Revenue-officer making a settlement of land revenue, relating to matters connected with the assessment of land or the ascertainment of rights thereto, or interest therein, if presented before the final confirmation of the settlement under section 104F (3) are not chargeable with any fee. [Section 19 (ix) of the Court Fees Act of 1870].

2. Civil suit :—An entry in the record-of-rights settling a rent in accordance with the provisions of ss. 104A to 104F, unless altered by means of a suit brought as contemplated by s. 104H is conclusive and no suit is afterwards maintainable for enhancement of rent on the ground of an excess in area in spite of there having been a stipulation to that effect in the kabuliyat executed by the tenant prior to the settlement proceedings: Prosanno Kumar v. Rachimaddin, 17 C. W.N. 153.

authorities

104G. (1) An appeal, if presented within two months from the date of the order appealed against, shall lie from every order passed by a Revenue-officer prior to the final publication of the record-of-rights on any objection made under section 104B, sub-section (3), or section 104E; and such appeal shall lie to such superior Revenue authority as the Local Government may by rule prescribe.

(2) The Board of Revenue may, in any case under this Part, on application or of its own motion, direct the revision of any record of rights, or any portion of a record-of-rights, at any time within two years from the date of the certificate of final publication, but not so as to affect any order passed by a Civil Court under section 104H.

Provided that no such direction shall be made until reasonable notice has been given to the parties concerned to appear and be heard in the matter.

I. Board's Survey and Settlement Manual, (1908), Part I, Chap. VII, p. 54 :—4. Court-fees :— Appeals presented under section 104G (1) to a superior Revenue authority and applications for revision presented under section 108 will bear a Court-fee of eight annas under Schedule II, 1 (b) of the Court Fees Act, if the superior Revenue authority is of lower standing than a Commissioner of a Division. If the authority is a Commissioner of a Division or the Director of the Department of Land Records, or if an application for revision is made to the Board under section 104G (2) the fee will be one rupee under Schedule II, 1 (c) of the Court Fees Act.

2. Notes :—Where a Record of Rights has been finally published before Act III of 1898, B. C. came into force, no proceedings could be taken under s. 104G: Behary v. Narain, 29 C.L.J. 237.

Jurisdiction of Civil Courts in matters relating to rent.

104H. (1) Any person aggrieved by an entry of a rent settled in a Settlement Rent-roll prepared under sections 104A to 104F and incorporated in a record-of-rights finally published under section 103A, or by an omission to settle a rent for entry in such Settlement Rent-roll, may institute a suit in the Civil Court which would have jurisdiction to entertain a suit for the possession of the land to which the entry relates or in respect of which the omission was made.

(2) Such suit must be instituted within six months from the date of the certificate of final publication of the record-of-rights, or, if an appeal has been presented to a Revenue authority under section 104G, then within six months from the date of the disposal of such appeal.

(3) Such suit may be instituted on any of the following grounds, and on no others, namely :

- (a) that the land is not liable to the payment of rent;
- (b) that the land, although entered in the record-of-rights as being held rent-free, is liable to the payment of rent;
- (c) that the relation of landlord and tenant does not exist;
- (d) that land has been wrongly recorded as part of a particular estate or tenancy, or wrongly omitted from the lands of an estate or tenancy;
- (e) that the tenant belongs to a class different from that to which he is shown in the record of-rights as belonging ;
- (f) that the Revenue-officer has not postponed the operation of the settled rent under the provisions of section 110, clause (a), or has wrongly fixed the date from which it is to take effect under the that clause;

(Bengal and Behar.)

(East Bengal.)

(g) that the special conditions and incidents of the tenancy, or any right of way or other easement attaching to the land which is the subject of the tenancy, have not, or has not, been recorded, or have or has been wrongly recorded.

(g) that the special conditions and incidents of the tenancy have not been recorded, or have been wrongly recorded.

[There is no sub-section (h) in Bengal.]

(h) that any right-of-way or other easement attaching to the land has not been recorded, or has been wrongly recorded.

The Secretary of State for India in Council shall not be made a defendant in any such suit unless the Government is landlord or tenant of the land to which the aforesaid entry relates or in respect of which the aforesaid omission was made.

(4) If it appears to the Court that the entry of rent settled is incorrect, it shall, in case (a) or case (c) mentioned in sub-section (3), declare that no rent is payable, and shall in any other case settle a fair rent; and, in any case referred to in clause (f) or clause (g) of the said sub-section (3), the Court may declare the date from which the rent settled is to take effect, or pass such order relating to the entry as it may think fit.

(5) When the Court has declared under sub-section (4) that no rent is payable, the entry to the contrary effect in the record-of-rights shall be deemed to be cancelled.

(6) In settling a fair rent under sub-section (4) the Court shall be guided by the rents of the other tenures or holdings of the same class comprised in the same Settlement Rent-roll, as settled under sections 104A to 104F.

(7) Any rent settled by the Court under sub-section (4) shall be deemed to have been duly settled in place of the rent entered in the Settlement Rent-roll.

(8) Save as provided in this section, no suit shall be brought in any Civil Court in respect of the settlement of any rent or the omission to settle any rent under sections 104A to 104F.

(9) When a Civil Court has passed final orders or a decree under this section, it shall notify the same to the Collector of the district.

I. 10 Amendments in Bengal :— The words in cl. (g) s. 104H “or any right of way or other easement.....has” were substituted for the original words "have not been recorded or have" by Bengal Act I of 1907, s. 25.

2. Amendments in East Bengal:—After cl. (g) of sub-sec. (3), cl. (h) was added by s. 24 of Act I (F. B. A. C.) of 1908.

3. Notice : In order to institute a suit against the Secretary of State under s. 104H for correction of an entry in the Settlement Roll a formal and distinct notice under s. 80 C. P. C. should be given : Hari Mohan Misra v. The Secretary of State, 18 C.L.J. 566 ; an objection made to an entry in the Settlement Roll under s. 104E is not a sufficient notice : Ibid. Notice to Secretary of State in a suit for correction of entry.

4. Finality to fixation of rental assets .—Clauses (a) to (g) of sub-sec. (3) are designed to safeguard the Government revenue and to attach reasonable finality to the fixation of the rental assets upon which the revenue is necessarily based : Nasarulla v. Amiruddi, 3 C.L.J. 133. These clauses do not bar a suit for rent against the recorded tenant : Ibid. Clauses (a) to (g) of subsec. (3).

See notes under s. III.

5. When rent cannot be altered in a suit :—In a suit under s. 104H by tenants who had been recorded as tenure holders to have themselves recorded as raiyats, the Court cannot disturb the rent settled unless the plaintiff succeeds in showing under s. 104H (3) (e) that in the record of rights their status has been wrongly recorded : Secretary of State v. Gobind Prasad, 21 C.W.N. 505.

6. Suit for settlement of fair rent :—A suit by a tenure-holder for settlement of fair rent is maintainable where the rent payable by the tenure-holder has not been settled but has been fixed on the basis of rent payable by raiyats to proprietors ; the Court has power under sub-sec. (4) to settle a fair rent : Profulla Nath v. The Secretary of State, 26 C.W.N. 100, s.c., 63 I.C. 892. Settlement of fair rent. Sub-Sec. (4).

7. Court fees. Declaratory suits &c. :—"A certain difficulty arises on the wording of s. 104H for although sub-clause (3) of that section expressly sets out the suits which may be instituted under that section from (a) to (g) and no others, and these causes of action are all of them purely declaratory, yet we find in the sub-clause (4) that if the court proceeds to make any declaration, it shall in some cases give one kind of consequential relief and in other cases give others, and that is quite contrary to the law which is laid down in Schedule II, Art. 17, of the Court Fees Act. There it is clearly set out that the plaint or memorandum of appeal can only be stamped as declaratory suit with a fee of Rs. 10 when the relief is to obtain a declaratory decree where no consequential relief is prayed." Pajiruddin v. The Secretary of State, 16 C.L.J. 383. Where a consequential relief is prayed ad valorem court-fees should be paid : Ibid ; a suit for declaration that the plaintiff is an occupancy raiyat and for settling fair and equitable rent does not come under Art. 17 of Sch. II of the Court Fees Act and the court fees must be paid ad valorem : Ibid. Declaratory suits. Consequential relief.

It has been held subsequently in a case by Mookerjee and Holmwood J.J., that the plaintiff in a suit under s. 104H is competent as to the entry of rent and not for a declaration that a tenant has not acquired right of occupancy : Jogendra Nath v. Secretary of State, C.W.N. 835, s.c., 16 C.L.J. 385.

Following the case of Pajiruddin v. The Secretary of State, 16 C.L.J. 383, it has been held that suits for declaration that the status of the plaintiffs is that of raiyats with rights of occupancy and not that of tenure holders as recorded in Settlement Revenue Roll prepared under ss. 104A to 104F and for settlement of fair and equitable rents on that basis in respect of their holdings are, regard being had to provisions of s. 104H, sub-sec. (4) brought to obtain consequential relief and ad valorem fees should be paid under section 7 (iv) of the Court Fees Act on the sum at which the plaintiffs value their suits or the relief sought: Trailakya Nath v. Secretary of State, 17 C.L.J. 426.

Relief in a suit under
s. 104H.

8. Remedies against incorrect entries or omission :—The only way in which a Record of Rights under ss. 104A to 104F can be altered is by a suit under s. 104II: Hajzuddi v. Prasanna, 38 I.C. 341; see also Prasanna v. Rachimuddin, 17 C.W.N. 153. The only relief which a plaintiff in a suit under s. 104II can claim is the alteration of an entry as to the amount of rent to be settled: Jogendra Nath v. Sec. of State, 17 C.W.N. 835, s. c., 16 C.L.J. 385. The plaintiff is not competent in a suit under this section to seek a declaration that part of the lands is nij-jote or that certain specific tenants have not acquired rights of occupancy therein: Ibid. But see notes under the previous heading.

S. 104II of the B. T. Act only contemplates a case where a person has been aggrieved so far an entry of rent is concerned. Therefore if a person is not really affected by an entry of rent in the Record-of-rights he would not be entitled to claim a revision of rent under cl. (4) of that section even if he can bring his case under any of the sub-clauses of cl. (3) of s. 104II: Secretary of State v. Ramcharan, A. I. R. 1924 Cal. 464.

9. Scope of a suit under this section : Where more than six months from the date of final publication the plaintiff brought a suit for a declaration that he was an occupancy raiyat, held that the suit came within the proviso to s. 111A and not under s. 104H and was not barred by limitation: Kumada Prosunna v. The Secretary of State, 19 C.W.N. 1017; see also Promada v. Basiraddi, 15 C.W.N. 896. See also notes under heading no. 12, Limitation.

"In a suit under s. 104H, it is not sufficient for the court to hold that the entry in the settlement Rent-Roll as to the status or the rent is erroneous; the court must affirmatively determine the exact conditions and incidents of the tenancy as also the rent to be settled on such basis; this is obvious as under sub-sec. (7), the rent settled by the court is deemed to have been duly settled in place of the rent entered in the settlement Rent Roll": Secretary of State v. Digambar, 46 Cal. 160, at p. 167; s.c., 27 C.L.J. 334.

A suit under sec. 104II of the Bengal Tenancy Act does not lie on the ground that an enhancement of rent made by reason of a rise in the price of staple food crops should not have been made: Kali Prosanno v. Secretary of State, 23 C.W.N. 383. The special conditions and incidents of the tenancy mentioned in sec. 104H (3), (g) of the Bengal Tenancy Act refer to the special conditions and incidents mentioned in sec. 102 (h), whilst the rent payable comes under sec. 102 (e) of the Act: Ibid.

Whether
Secretary of

10. Parties :— A suit under this section may be instituted either by the landlord or by the tenant, according as the one or the operate to modify the effect of s. 104J.: Ambika Charan v. Joy-chandra, 13 C.W.N. 210.

An entry in the record-of-rights is conclusive unless altered by means of a suit under s. 104H: Prosanno v. Rachimuddin, 17 C.W.N. 153. Entry conclusive.

It is settled that an entry as to the rent settled is conclusive under s. 104J: Priya Nath v. Tarachand, A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 341. Entry conclusive under s. 104J

An entry as to area in the Record-of-Rights is not conclusive under s. 104J. Such entry can only be presumed to be correct under s. 103B until the contrary is proved by evidence and, therefore, an under-raiyat can, in defence to a suit for ejection, give evidence to prove that the holding from which he is being ejected forms part of a larger holding: Uma Charan v. Lakshmi Narayan, 98 I.C. 498 (Cuming & Page, J.J.). Entry as to area.

It may also be considered that other entries in the record-of-rights upon which the rent is settled cannot be challenged so as to affect the rent settled i.e. in so far as they bear upon the rent settled and for that purpose only: Ibid.

The fact that the suit under s. 104H is to be instituted on the grounds mentioned in that section by a person aggrieved by an entry of a rent settled indicates that the other entries in the record-of-rights can be challenged under that section only for the purpose of showing the incorrectness of the entry as to the rent settled: Ibid.

But where the question in controversy is not as to the rent payable but the quantity of land included in the tenure, the determination of which is necessary not for deciding the amount of rent payable for the tenure, but for deciding the amount of rent payable for the tenure, but for deciding the question whether the rent should be suspended because the defendants had been dispossessed from a portion of the tenure, the entry as to the area is not conclusive under s. 104J: Ibid.

If the contention that as the rent of a tenancy is settled with reference to the area comprised in the tenancy, the entry as to the rent should be held to be conclusive ~~with the~~ with the ~~entry~~ conclusive.

sumption and being an irrebuttable presumption it is not open to a party to show that the rent settled is not correct: Baikuntha Nath v. Prasanna Kumar Mohapatra, 23 C.W.N. 516. Where it was alleged that the Settlement-officer has re-arranged certain holdings, and a certain rent was settled, held, that the rent settled was conclusive: Ibid.

S. 104J.

S. 104J., precludes any evidence from being given to contradict the settlement as to the rent mentioned in the record-of-rights where a settlement roll has been prepared: Prafulla v. Palku, 44 Cal. 90, s. c., 20 C.W.N. 860.

Irrebuttable presumption does not arise if made without jurisdiction.

Where entries cannot be challenged.

3. Irrebuttable presumption as to entry of rent—want of Jurisdiction :—As to the rent payable s. 104J., raises an irrebuttable presumption: Jyoti Prokash v. Bagala Kant, 36 C.L.J. 124, s. c. 70 I.C. 822, but the presumption is of no avail where the entry was made as a result of a proceeding without jurisdiction: Ibid.

Entry as to area not conclusive.

An entry in the Record-of-rights as to rent settled under Part II of Chap. X of the Bengal Tenancy Act cannot be challenged otherwise than by a suit under Section 104H, and except in so far as is allowed by such suit, the other entries in the Record-of-rights cannot also be challenged so as to affect the amount of rent settled and recorded in such entry. These other entries, however, are not conclusive for any other purpose. Where an entry in a Record-of-rights prepared under Part II of Chapter X of the Bengal Tenancy Act as to the area of a tenant's holding is questioned by the tenant in a suit for rent, for the purpose of shewing that the tenant has been dispossessed by the landlord of a portion of the holding and that therefore the rent should be suspended: held that the entry as to area in the Record-of-rights is not conclusive, under Section 104G presumed to be correct under Section 103B until the contrary is proved. Priya Nath Basu v. Tara Chand, 27 C.W.N. 982.

Rent in excess of entry cannot be recovered

4. Suit for rent in excess of entry :—It was held in the case of Protab Chandra v. The Secretary of State, 49 Cal. 1026, s. c. C.L.J. 304, that the Secretary of State was not competent to

I. Alterations :—In sub-sec. (2) for the word, letter and brackets “clause (i)” the word, letter and brackets “clause (j)” was substituted by both the Amending Acts of Bengal and East Bengal of 1907 and 1908, respectively. Sub-sec. (7) was added in East Bengal.

By the Devolution Act (XXXVIII of 1920) the following amendments have been made: In sub-sec. (3) of s. 105 for the words “Government of India” the words “Local Government” and for the words “Gazette of India” the words “local official Gazette” shall be inserted.

Sub-sec. (3) as amended stands as follows:—

(3) Every application under sub-section (1) or sub-section (2) shall, notwithstanding anything contained in the Court Fees Act, 1870, bear such stamp as the Local Government may, from time to time, prescribe by notification in the local official Gazette.

2. Redundant words in the section :—From the heading of this Part i.e., Part III of Chap. X, it will appear that this part applies where a settlement of land-revenue is not being or is not about to be made. Therefore the following words in sub-sections (1) and (2) are redundant: “in any case in which a settlement of land-revenue is not being made or is not about to be made.”

3. Act III of 1898, B.C., s. 8. :—All records published under s. 105 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, before the commencement of the Act, whether in draft or final form, shall be deemed to have been duly published. Validation of publication of past records.

4. Non-agricultural tenancies :—A decision settling a fair rent of a non-agricultural tenancy under s. 105 is without jurisdiction: Ramdas v. Biprodas, 19 C.W.N. 35; the same view has been taken in the case of Biprodas v. Azam Ostagar, 46 Cal. 441, s.c., 22 C.W.N. 116 (notes). Non-agricultural tenancies.

5. Sub-sec. (1) :—This sub-section is founded upon s. 104 of the former chapter, i.e. Chapter X as it stood before the passing of Act II, B. C. of 1898; see notes under s. 107: Durgacharan v. Basir Mandal, 6 C.W.N. 238. The former Ch. X is to be found in the Appendix VII.

6. Scope of the section :—By the introduction of s. 105A by Act I of 1907 B. C. and Act I of 1908 E. B. C., there has been some anomaly created. The real scope of s. 105 was to have a fair and equitable rent settled upon the entries finally published.

Questions as to the correctness of the entries could not properly form the subject of an enquiry under s. 105 before the passing of the Amending Act I, B. C. of 1907: Pandab Dewari v. Ananda Kishun, 14 C.W.N. 897, s.c., 12 C.L.J. 195. Correctness of entries.

Status.

In a proceeding under this section before the passing of Act I, (B. C.) of 1907, it was held that an entry in a finally published record-of-rights that land held by tenants were mal lands or that the status of the tenants was that of settled raiyats could not be corrected by the Settlement-officer: Shambhu Chandra v. Purna Chandra Pal, 12 C.W.N. 122. See also Preobast v. Murat Bai, 13 C.W.N. 204 (notes).

Law as it stood before the introduction of s. 105A.

If any one was dissatisfied with an entry, the remedy lay in a suit under s. 106; simultaneous proceedings could be taken under both the sections and in such cases the proceedings under s. 105 were to be stayed. But s. 105A provides that many matters which really fall within the scope of s. 106 may now be determined in proceedings under s. 105. The legislature in enacting s. 105A over-looked the fact, that s. 105 was not intended for the correction of any erroneous entry. It has been held by N. Chatterjee and Walmsley, J.J., in the case of Upendra Nath v. Jamini Mohon, 18 C.W.N. 268 that the correctness of the record of rights can be impugned by the landlord in an application under s. 105 and that issues mentioned in s. 105A. can be tried in a proceeding for settlement of rent under s. 105A.

Present law.

The questions as to the status of the tenant and also as to area may be gone into in a proceeding under s. 105: Behari Lal v. Priyanath, 21 C.L.J. 305.

The effect of the introduction of s. 105A may be explained by the following illustration:—

Effect of the introduction of s. 105A.

If a tenant is recorded as a raiyat, the question as to whether he is a tenure-holder could not (strictly speaking) be formerly raised by the tenant in a proceeding under s. 105 and it was necessary for him to bring a suit under s. 106 for that purpose; but by the introduction of s. 105A the tenant may now raise that question in a proceeding under s. 105. Likewise the correctness of the record of rights can be impugned by the landlord also in an application under s. 105; (See Upendra Nath v. Jamini Mohon, 18 C.W.N. 268, Per N. Chatterjea and Walmsley, J.J.).

Land liable for rent.

The question whether any land is liable for payment of any rent should be decided in a proceeding under s. 105: Promatha Nath v. Kaligunga, 19 C.W.N. 44 (notes). See also Upendra v. Anath, 52 I.C. 406.

S. 106.

Questions under s. 106 arising out of applications under s. 105 can be considered and determined by the Revenue officer without calling upon the tenants to file a separate suit under s. 106. Misri Chowdhry v. Rameshwar, 14 C.W.N. 275 (notes portion). S. 105 authorises the Settlement officer, in the course of proceedings under s. 105 for the settlement of fair and equitable rent, to investigate questions which would otherwise be determined at the instance of the aggrieved party in a suit instituted under s. 106. Nawab Bahadur of Murshidabad v. Ahmad Hossein, 44 Cal. 783, s.c., 21 C.W.N. 1004, s.c., 25 C.L.J. 556. S. 109 requires that the civil suit should have for its subject a matter which has already formed and not one which might have formed the subject of an application under s. 105: Ibid.

See notes under s. 109.

Alteration of entry.

It has been held in the case of Shambhu Chandra v. Purna Chandra, 35 Cal. 176: s.c., 7 C.L.J. 103; s.c., 12 C.W.N. 122, that in a proceeding under s. 105 a tenant cannot apply to the Settle ment-officer to alter the entry in a record finally published by correcting a mistake, viz., to record certain lands as lakheraj instead of mal, and to enter his status as a settled riyat in respect of certain lands. This is no longer the law after the introduction of s. 105A.

The decision of a Settlement officer in a proceeding initiated by Lakheraj, the landlord under s. 105 (before the introduction of s. 105A) as to fair and equitable rent is no bar to a suit by the tenant for a declaration that the land was lakheraj or was held at a fixed rent: Sashi Bhusan v. Sheikh Eshabar, 19 C.W.N., 636.

Where in a proceeding under s. 105 the issue as to whether the land was lakheraj was raised but for want of evidence, the land was assessed to rent, held that a suit in the Civil Court for declaration that the land was lakheraj was barred: Apurba Krishna v. Shyama Charan, 24 C.W.N. 223, see notes under ss. 107 & 109.

A revenue-officer has jurisdiction under s. 105 to settle fair and equitable rent on excess land found in the tenant's possession: Paltoo land. Pandey v. Sri Nawab Prosad, 18 C.W.N. 165. "The words 'in respect of the land held by the tenant' are wide enough to include excess lands held by the tenant": Ibid.

S. 105 applies to cases where no rent has been fixed by agreement of parties: as well as where such rent has been fixed by agreement of parties: Aktowhi v. Tarak Nath, 17 C.W.N. 774, s. c., 16 C.L.J. 328. See also, 16 C.L.J. 67.

Where the status of a tenant is determined in a proceeding under s. 105, a civil suit for its alteration is not maintainable in view of s. 109: Ram Dayal v. Genda Tewari, 37 I.C. 641, s.c., 1 Pat. L.J. 479. See also the case of Bepin Krishna v. Haridas, 27 C.L.J. 210, s.c., 44 I.C. 562; see notes under s. 109.

S. 105 may be availed of for the purpose of enhancement or re- S. 52. duction of rent under the various sections of the Act as well as for alteration of rent under s. 52; besides, a land-lord or a tenant may apply for settlement of a fair rent in accordance with an agreement or the terms of a written lease: the words in the section are wide enough to include all cases in which a settlement of fair and equitable rent may be made. In the case of Jogendra Mohan Das v. Janaki Nath Saha, 21 C.W.N. 427, it was held that in settling a fair rent under s. 105 though Cl. (4) says that the Revenue-officer shall have regard to the rules laid down in the Act for the guidance of the Civil court in increasing or reducing rents, there is nothing to prevent a Revenue officer and a court from taking into consideration the terms and conditions embodied in a lease or other written document by which the rights of the parties are regulated. Also see Jogendra v. Secretary of State, 16 C.L.J. 385, s.c., 17 C.W.N. 835.

See notes under s. 109.

Where in a proceeding under s. 105 the landlord abandons his claim for enhancement of rent and obtains a decree for additional area, the Special Judge on appeal cannot grant a decree for enhancement under s. 7: Ramrenu v. Midnapur men indary Co., 67 I.C. 1001.

Section 105 requires the Revenue Officer to assess a fair rent the area actually held by the tenant, and Section 105A empowers him either at the instance of the parties or of his own motion to issue orders regarding the area and other matters: Kesho Prasad S.

Terms and conditions of lease.

v. Bhagwat Saran, [1924 Pat.] p. 18; for a settlement for a fair rent the Revenue Officer may either accept the area entered in the record-of-rights or alter it after taking evidence, and it is not necessary that a direct issue should have been raised as to the area: Ibid.

7. Sub-sec. (4):—In settling rents under this section, the Revenue officer is to follow the provisions of this Act relating to enhancement or reduction of rents of tenants. In an application for settlement of fair rent, the landlord is entitled to have the rent enhanced under the various sections of the Act as well as additional rent assessed upon additional lands; in regard to lands for which there is no rent settled the landlord is entitled to have new rent assessed. Likewise the tenant is entitled to have his rent reduced or his rent assessed.

Rent may be enhanced under all the sections and additional rents may be assessed.

A claim for enhancement of rent on the ground of rise of prices under s. 30 (b) is to be determined under this section and the parties should not be referred to a separate suit: Sukraj Ray v. Lal Bahadur, 29 C.L.J. 253. See notes under the previous heading.

This sub-section covers cases both of enhancement of rent under sec. 30 and also of additional rent under sec. 52: Sheodhayan Pande v. Beni Pershad, 9 C.L.J. 67n.

S. 188.

8. S. 188: Co-sharer landlord:—S. 188 is a bar to the maintainability of an application made under s. 105 by one of two or more joint landlords: Krishna Das v. Poresb Sardar, 10 C.L.J. 458; see also Behary Lal v. Priya Nath, 21 C.L.J., 305.

S. 30.

Enhancement of rent of raiyati holding

Where a raiyat takes a lease from a co-sharer landlord of his undivided share in a holding and executes a separate kabuliyat with stipulations for enhancement of rent, such co-sharer landlord has no right to bring a suit for enhancement of rent, under s. 30 of the Bengal Tenancy Act; the reason is this: under s. 30 "the landlord of a holding...may...institute a suit to enhance the rent.... But a co-sharer landlord in respect to an undivided share of a holding is not the landlord of a holding, for a holding has been held to be an entire parcel of land: see Baidya Nath v. Sheikh Jhin, 2 C.W.N. 44; Haribole v. Tasiruddin, 2 C.W.N. 680; Ahadulla v. Gagan Molla, 2 C.L.J. 10; Parbuty v. Mathura, 40 Cal. 29, s.c., 16 C.W.N. 877, s.c., 16 C.L.J. 9; Harnandan v. Kesho Prasad, 2 Pat.L.J. 553, s.c., 16 C.L.J. 9; Harnandan v. Kesho Prasad, 2 Pat.L.J. 553, s.c., 1 Pat.L.W. 798; Haricharan v. Ranjit, 25 Cal. 917 (footnote), s.c., 1 C.W.N. 521. In the case of Binayak Das v. Sominaddi, 24 C.W.N. 521, it was held that a holding consisted of entire parcels of agricultural land and an undivided share of a holding was not a holding within the definition of "holding" in s. 30 (a).

Undivided share of holding.

But such a co-sharer landlord i.e., a co-sharer landlord in whose favour a raiyat has executed a separate kabuliyat with respect to his undivided share is entitled to make an application under s. 105 for settlement of rent, for the word used in s. 105 is not 'holding' but 'land'; see in this connection, Sarifunnessa Khatoon v. Saferad, 21 C.L.J. 592 at p. 595, confirmed in Letters Patent appeal.

Application for assessment of rent.

An application for assessment of rent at the instance of one or several joint landlords seems to be maintainable in accordance with the principle laid down in the case of Dhananjoy v. Upendra N, 21 C.W.N. 685. See notes under heading No. 11.

A suit to assess rent is consistent with and arises out of the general law and the land-revenue system of the country and s. 188 is no bar to such a suit by a co-sharer landlord: Dhananjoy v. Upendra Nath, 22 C.W.N. 685, the right to have rent assessed continues so long as the relationship of landlord and tenant continues: Ibid.

S. 188 does not apply to a suit for assessment of rent. Recurring cause of action.

Where an application is made by an entire body of landlords under this section the withdrawal of one of the plaintiffs on the suit does not disqualify the remaining co-sharer landlords from further proceeding with the case; all that sec. 188 requires is that all the landlords must join in making the application and that it does not say that if one co-sharer retires the other should not further act; when once the application is properly made further proceedings are governed by the Civil Procedure Code: Kali Charan v. Mahammad Ismail, 52 Cal. 139. See also Hazarilal v. Ambicka, [1923 Pat.]

As section 188 of the Bengal Tenancy Act applies to proceedings under s. 105, it is necessary that all the joint landlords should join in making an application under this section. The question which arises is as to what is the effect of the death of one of the joint landlords after the institution of the proceeding and the heirs refusing to get their names substituted in place of the deceased.

Death of one of joint landlords after institution of proceedings.

It is submitted that on the death of one of the joint-landlords, and his heirs refusing to get themselves substituted, the application may be proceeded on by the surviving plaintiffs and s. 188 of the Act will be no bar to the right of the surviving plaintiffs to continue the suit; the reason is as follows:—

s. 105 says:—“.....either the landlord or the tenant applies” Therefore all that is necessary is that in making the application all the joint landlords must join; but after once the application is made, the procedure is to be in accordance with the Civil Procedure Code, see s. 107 (1) of the B. T. Act.

It is submitted that the same principle will apply to cases where subsequent to an application made under s. 105, one of the joint landlords withdraws or refuses to proceed on with the case. The same principle will apply when one of two or more joint landlords prefers an appeal.

Withdrawal by one of joint landlords.

It is however desirable that in case of one of the plaintiffs withdrawing from the case or refusing to proceed, or in case of the heirs of a deceased plaintiff not substituting their names, they should be made defendants.

Where an application purported to have been signed by all the landlords, the subsequent conduct of some of them in repudiating the authority of the others to sign the application on their behalf and retiring from the case will not attract the provisions of s. 188 so as to defeat the application if the other joint landlords choose to proceed with it: Hazarilal v. Ambika Gir, [1923 Pat.] p. 273.

Effect of some of the co-sharers repudiating the authority of others.

Where the entire body of landlords were joined as plaintiffs in a proceeding under s. 105 but the Receiver of the estate of one of the landlords was not made a party plaintiff, held that s. 188 was not a bar to the maintainability of the application: Madheva v. Awadh, 65 I.C. 349.

Where a Receiver is not a party.

Sadar Malguzar.

The effect of the appointment of Sadar Malguzar under Regulation VII of 1822 as extended by Regulation XI of 1828 is to suspend or take away for the time being the proprietary rights of the estate; the Sadar Malguzars constitute the entire body of landlords within the meaning of s. 188 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. For the time being the tenants must be held to be holding under the Sadar Malguzars. The right of the other proprietors under the law remains in abeyance so long as the property is managed by the Malguzars under the Regulation; Malguzars may be considered as agents of the proprietor and as such they are entitled to maintain suits under s. 105 Bengal Tenancy Act. The word "agent" in s. 188 Bengal Tenancy Act includes "agents." There is no special provision in the Bengal Tenancy Act or any other law which would restrict the meaning of the word "agent" to a single individual: Ramijuddin v. Radhakanta, 80 I.C. 987.

Agent.

Question, referred to Full Bench
but not decided as they did not arise upon the findings of fact in the case.

In the case of Haridas Mazumdar v. Golam Mohiuddin, 53 Cal. 955 (F.B.) the following questions were referred to the Full Bench by Suhrawardy and Mukerji J.J. (1) as to whether a co-sharer, collecting his own share of the rent "separately from the other co-sharer or co-sharers, is a joint landlord within the meaning of s. 188 of the B. T. Act and (2) whether such a co-sharer is entitled to make an application under section 105 of the Act.

[Their Lordships in their order of Reference referred to the following cases* and in conclusion said as follows: "The authorities bearing upon those questions are numerous and conflicting. We are of opinion that this conflict should be set at rest."]

It was held by the Full Bench that as the proceedings were initiated by the landlord under s. 105 of the B. T. Act and as it appeared from the judgment of the Assistant Settlement Officer that it was an admitted fact that the sharers of the entire taluq passed into the hands of the plaintiff's predecessor gradually by sale the point involved in the two questions which had been referred to them did not arise.

Am-muktear

An Am-Muktear holding a proper power of attorney can duly sign on behalf of one of the co-sharer landlords an application under s. 105, although he may not happen to be an Am-Muktear of others; i.e., all the joint landlords making the application need not be represented by the same agent: Kali Charan v. Mahammad Ismail, 52 Cal. 139.

Institution of proceedings under s. 105 is a bar to a subsequent suit for enhancement of rent, even if the proceedings were withdrawn with the permission of the Revenue-officer concerned: Bijoy Kumar v. Nagendra, 83 I.C. 876. The following cases were discussed: Sasi Kant v. Salim, 27 C.W.N. 987; Dinanath v. Anada Krishna, 83 I.C. 873; Abeda Khatun v. Majubali, 24 C.W.N. 1020; Chiodith v. Tulsi Singh, 17 C.W.N. 467.

Proceedings
under s. 105
by one party

A landlord applied for the settlement of fair rent under s. 105. Then the tenant made an application under s. 106 alleging that he had held his tenancy at a uniform rate of rent for so long that he was entitled to the presumption under s. 50 of the Act. The hearing of the application under s. 105 was stayed until the disposal of the application under s. 106 on the ground, that the case under s. 106 would dispose of the question whether the rent was fixed or not and this argument was not challenged on behalf of the landlord. The application under s. 106 was dismissed for default and revived and decided eventually in favour of the tenant but between the date of its dismissal for default and the order for restoration, the application under s. 105 was taken up and a rent higher than that entered in the Record of Rights was fixed as fair rent; held, (Mukerji J., dissenting) that as by mutual consent of the landlord and tenant the question whether the rent could be enhanced or not was to be settled in application under s. 106 been not dismissed for default and the application under s. 105 not taken up by the Revenue-officer and the parties should be bound by the decision in application under s. 106 and not by that in application under s. 105: Prasanna Dev v. Achhiruddin, 82 I.C. 953 (Walmsley and Mukerji, JJ.).

Under cl. (6) of s. 105 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, where the parties agree among themselves, by compromise or otherwise, as to the amount of fair rent, it is incumbent upon the Revenue-officer to satisfy himself that the amount agreed upon is fair and equitable; and it is only if he is so satisfied that he can record the amount agreed upon as the fair and equitable rent; if he is not so satisfied, he has to settle a fair and equitable rent as provided in sub-sections (4) and (5). The decision of the Revenue-officer operates as a decree of a Civil Court in a suit between the parties and under s. 107 so long as this decree remains in force, effect should be given to it: Dharani v. Ashutosh, 40 C.L.J. 34.

The defendants-appellants who were the landlords applied under sec. 105, B. T. Act, for settlement of fair and equitable rent of certain holdings including one held by the plaintiffs-respondents which were recorded in the record-of-rights as appertaining to their estate. The issue was raised before the Revenue officer whether the suits were barred by sec. 188, B. T. Act, and was decided in favour of the Appellants, it being held that it was not proved that the Appellants were landlords jointly with others. Some of the defendants in those suits appealed against the decision of Revenue officer and were successful on the ground that the Appellants were landlords jointly with others, but the plaintiffs-respondents did not file any appeal. The plaintiffs-respondents subsequently brought a suit for declaration that the decree of the Revenue officer was without jurisdiction and null and void, held that the Revenue-officer has jurisdiction to decide whether or not the appellants when they made the application to him under sec. 105, B. T. Act, were joint landlords and his decision on this point not having been questioned by the plaintiffs-respondents by appeal was final and binding on them: Choudhury Upendranandan v. Umai Set, 30 C.W.N. 974 (Newbould and Graham, JJ.).

9. Application by a managing member of a Mitakshara family :—An application under s. 105 of the Bengal Tenancy Act is not maintainable at the instance only of the managing member of a joint Hindu Mitakshara family: Sati Prasad v. Sonaton Jhara, 25 C.W.N. 38. See also Sati Prasad v. Radhanath, 16 C.L.J. 427.

These cases were followed in the case of Kuldip Saran Singh v. Raghunandan Singh, 97 I.C. 436, s.c., 7 P.L.T. 540 (Ross and Kulwant Sahay, JJ.), where it has been held that where the sole plaintiff is not only the karta but he is the sole recorded landlord of the touzi, he can apply alone under s. 105 without joining his sons as plaintiffs.

10. Suit for enhancement or reduction of Rent :—The fact that a party does not avail of the remedy under s. 105 is no bar to a suit in the Civil Court for enhancement or reduction of rent or for alteration of rent for alteration of area.

Regular suit.

Assessment
of rent.

11. Suit for assessment of rent in a Civil Court :—Where certain lands were entered in the record-of-rights as rent free, and in a suit under s. 106 the Revenue officer having found that the lands were liable to payment of rent, (and the period within which an application was to be made under s. 105 having expired) the landlord brought a suit in the Civil Court for assessment of fair rent, held that the suit was maintainable, if not under the general law, as a suit in the nature of a declaratory suit, then as an application under s. 158: Berhamdutt Misser v. Ramji Ram, 18 C.W.N. 466. See notes under s. 158 and s. 144.

Where name does not appear on the record.

12. Application by a landlord whose name does not appear as landlord in the khatian :—Where a person who was an applicant under s. 105 purchased a tenure in an estate of which he himself was the proprietor, held that the mere fact that his name did not appear in the khatian as owner of the tenure was no ground for holding that he was not entitled to apply under s. 105: Upendra Nath v. Jamini Mohan, 18 C.W.N. 268.

Where land on which tenants were settled by a Zemindar A was in a Civil Court held to be land within the zemindari of B, and the tenants were entered in the record-of-rights as raiyats on the land, held that an application for settlement of rent under s. 105 by B against the tenants was competent: Kali Prasanna v. Bhagwan Mali, 17 C.W.N. 348, s.c., 17 C.L.J. 431.

13. Withdrawal of or non-prosecution of application, effect of :—See notes under s. 109.

S. 50.

14. Presumption under s. 50 :—In a proceeding under s. 105 the tenant is entitled to the benefit of the presumption under s. 50: Pirithi Chand v. Basarat Ali, 37 Cal. 30 (F.B.), s.c., 13 C.W.N. 1149; s.c.; 10 C.L.J. 343. See also Radha Kisore v. Umed Ali, 12 C.W.N. 904; Aktowli v. Tarak Nath, 16 C.L.J. 328; s.c., 17 C.W.N. 774.

But once the record of rights is finally prepared after all chances of correction under Chap. X are over, the presumption under s. 50 does not apply in view of sec. 115: Prasanna Kumar v. Durga Charan, 49 Cal. 919, s.c., 26 C.W.N. 947, s.c., 36 C.L.J. 291.

See notes under Ss. 50 and 115.

Presumption may be rebutted.

When a record is finally published under s. 103B an entry made in the record-of-rights shall be presumed to be correct unless the contrary is proved. So in a proceeding under s. 105 a tenant may shew that he is a settled raiyat although he was not entered as such and although he did not prefer any objections under s. 103A. He may likewise shew that the land is lakhiraj and not mal. The only benefit which is derived from the final publication of the record is that the entry shall be considered to be correct until the contrary is proved. See notes under s. 115 where the other cases are collected.

In a proceeding under s. 105, the landlord produced a Kabuliyat executed by the tenant after the inception of the tenancy shewing that the rent was liable to be enhanced, but there was nothing to shew that the rent had ever in fact been enhanced: held that the mere fact that the rent was enhanceable was not sufficient to rebut the presumption under s. 50 cl. (2): Dhirendra Nath v. Purna Chandra, 51 I.C. 904, see also Srimanta Kumar v. Sabar Ali, 52 I.C. 702. But see Upendranath v. Gopicharan, 22 C.W.N. 321.

See also notes under s. 50, heading No. 14 at p. 309.

15. Power of the Settlement officer to grant enhancement at reduced rate :—In settling additional rent for increased area it is open to the Settlement officer in consideration of possible errors in the original measurement to allow the enhancement at a reduced rate: Lukhi Narain v. Sri Ram Chandra, 15 C.W.N. 921. Terms of enhancement in Kabuliyat.
Enhancement at a reduced rate.

16. Regular suit to set aside result of proceedings under s. 105 :—A suit brought to impugn that which was the subject matter and the result of proceedings taken under s. 105 is not maintainable: Sheodhani v. Beni Pershad, 16 C.L.J. 67. Regular suit not maintainable.

17. Whether proceeding under s. 105 is a suit: Rule 63 (I) (Appendix I) :—It is doubtful whether a proceeding under s. 105 is a suit: Hazarilal v. Ambika Gir, [1923 Pat.] p. 273. Question doubtful.

S. 141 of the Civil Procedure Code has no application to applications under s. 105 of the Bengal Tenancy Act: Ibid. s. 107 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, which provides that the procedure for the trial of suits laid down in the Civil Procedure Code are applicable to proceedings under s. 105 Bengal Tenancy Act and not to applications initiating the proceedings; and consequently the provisions in the Civil Procedure Code about verification do not apply to proceeding under s. 105. Ibid. S. 141 C. P. C. does not apply.

The application under sub-sec. (1) of sec. 105 is merely an application to which no tenants, if the application is by the landlord, need be made parties. It is only after the application has been made that the proceeding becomes a suit or in the nature of a suit and the provisions of the Civil Procedure Code apply thereto. Rule 63 (1) of the Bengal Government Rules (see Appendix I) may well be read as applying when the proceedings have reached the suit stage: Birendra Kisore v. Ambika Charan, 31 C.W.N. 860, s. c., 43 C.L.J. 591. (Greaves, Mukerji and Chakravarti, JJ.). S. 105: Parties. Rule 63 (1).

18. Rule 63 (I), (Appendix I), if inconsistent with s. 105 (I) :—Rule 63 (1) [Appendix I] though not very happily worded may be read as applying when the proceedings have reached the suit stage. A Rule cannot govern the true construction of the Act, and if the Rule is not appositely worded, then it is the Rule that must give way to the section: Birendra Kisore v. Ambika Charan, 31 C.W.N. 860, s. c., 43 C.L.J. 591. Rule 63 (1).

19. Settlement of rent amounts to a decree :—When rent is settled and the record is prepared it amounts to a decree (s. 9 Act III of 1898): Abdul Rasheed v. Jogesh Chandra Ray, 11 C.W.N. 135. Act III of 1898, s. 9.

20. Rent-free title :—In a proceeding under Chapter X before the passing of Act III of 1898 the settlement authorities found that lands claimed by the tenants as their rent-free lands were not Rent free title.

rent-free and they accordingly assessed the same with rents, held that by the operation of s. 9 of Act III, B. C. of 1898, the Civil Court is precluded from adjudicating on the same matter: Nabin Chandra v. Radha Kisore, 11 C.W.N. 859.

Costs.

21. Costs:—A landlord is entitled to costs incurred by him in making applications under s. 105 and in serving them upon the tenants; Srinibas v. Ram Chandra, 14 C.L.J. 146.

Execution.

Execution of decree for costs.—Revenue officer must themselves execute decrees for costs in cases under ss. 105 and 106 which have been decided by them, if application is duly made: Survey and Settlement Manual (1908), Pt. III, Ch. 9, sec. 8, p. 102.

Execution of decree by other Revenue officer, when Settlement officer or Assistant Settlement-officer has left the district.

When the Settlement-officer or Assistant Settlement-officer who has passed a decree has left the district on transfer or at the close of the operations, any Revenue-officer [see the term defined in section 3 (17) of the Bengal Tenancy Act and also the Notification cited under rule 76 of this Manual] who would have had jurisdiction to try the suit in which the decree was passed, or who is in charge of the records of the case can execute it (vide section 649 of the Civil Procedure Code, and the ruling in Indian Law Reports, 6 Cal. 513): Settlement Manual (1909), Part II, Chap. X, Rules 519, 520, pages 136, 137.

Finality of a decree under s. 105.

22. Finality of decree under s. 105:—Where in a proceeding under sec. 105, for assessment of fair rent, the tenant contends that he holds the land rent-free, and the Revenue officer assesses an annual rent, by compromise or otherwise, the decision of the Revenue officer, by virtue of provisions of s. 107 (1) of the Act, has the force and effect of a decree of a Civil Court in a suit between the parties and if it is not challenged by way of revision or appeal, under sec. 108 and 109A of the Act, it operates as final decree, as deciding between the parties that the tenant holds the land subject to the payment of rent and that the fair annual rent is that fixed by Revenue officer: Dharani Mohon v. Asutosh, 82 I.C. 396; s. c., A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 907; Rajendra v. Sheikh Kalim, 26 C.W.N. 758. Gokul v. Padmanund, 6 C.W.N. 825 discussed.

Where proceedings under sec. 105 are based on the assumption that the land concerned is rent paying and owing to there being no appearance on behalf of the tenants the question whether the land is rent paying or lakheraj land could not be agitated, the plea that lands are not rent paying lands is not barred by the provisions of s. 105: Kshetra v. Prohlad, 101 I.C. 800, s. c., A.I.R. 1927 (Cal.) 603.

Court fees.

23. Court-fees:—The following Notification, issued by the Government of India in the Finance Department, published in the Gazette of India, dated the 10th August, 1918 was re-published for general information in the Calcutta Gazette, August 28, 1918, Part IA page 415: Notification: Separate Revenue: Stamp: Simla, the 8th August, 1918.

No. 2254F:—In exercise of the powers conferred by section 105, sub-section (3) of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885 (VIII of 1885), and in supersession of the Notification of the Government of India in the Department of Finance and Commerce, No. 322 S. R. dated the 19th January, 1899, published at page 31 of Part I of the Gazette of India, dated the 21st idem, so far as it relates to the Presidency

- (b) if, at any time “during the hearing of the applications an S. 105A. issue is raised by the applicant under section 105A of the said Act, in addition a stamp to the amount of an advalorem fee chargeable under Article 1 Schedule I of the Court-fees Act 1870 (VII of 1870), subject to a maximum of ten rupees.

Calcutta Gazette: July 26, 1922 Part I, p. 1451. No. 6954 L.R.—The 21st July, 1923—

In exercise of the powers conferred by s. 105, sub-sec. (3) of The Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885 (VIII of 1885), as amended by the Devolution Act, 1920 (XXXVIII of 1920) and in modification of the Government of India's Notification No. 2254F, dated the 8th August, 1918, published in the Gazette of India of the 10th idem and republished at p. 465, Part IA of the Calcutta Gazette of the 14th idem, the Governor in Council is pleased to direct that an application made under the said section for a settlement of rent during the preparation of a record of rights under Chapter X of the Bengal Tenancy Act shall bear—

- (a) a stamp of twelve annas for each tenant making or joining or joined in an application, and
- (b) if at any time during the hearing of the application, an issue is raised by the applicant under S. 105A of the said Act, in addition, a stamp to the amount of an ad valorem fee chargeable under Art. 1, Sch. I of the Court Fees Act 1870 (VII of 1870), as amended by the Bengal Court Fees (Amendment) Act, 1922 (IV of 1922), subject to a maximum of twenty rupees.

Court fees :
Secs. 105 &
105A.
Present Law.

A stamp of eight annas* is to be levied in respect of each tenancy, not in respect of each tenant who may be one of the group of tenants holding a particular tenancy: Sachidananda Thakur v. Mahes Chandra Das, 50 Cal. 903, s. c., 28 C.W.N. 116.

[Note.—As to Court-fees in BIHAR, See Appendix XIII at the end of this book. The Court-fee for application under s. 105, in Bihar, is 12 as. to be charged for each tenant or group of joint owners of a tenancy making or joining or joined in the application.]

Court fees :
Bihar.

24. Where application to be made :

Bengal Survey and Settlement Manual, 1917: Chap. XVI., Page 103, Para 425: Applications under these sections should be kept at first in the hands of the Settlement officer or of a Special Assistant Settlement officer. When they are made over to an Assistant Settlement officer a formal order under Rule 45 of the Government Rules is required. The Settlement officer should keep cases under sections 105 and 106 in his own hands, until he has mastered the difficulties and the principles involved, and he should not make them over to any assistant for decision, until he has trained him in the proper system.

Instructions in Settlement
Manual.

* The new Notification now requires twelve annas.

25. Where a single tenancy extends over more than one village :—See notes under heading No. 29.

Period of limitation to be counted from the date of schedule which is an essential part of the decision. Revision by High Court.

26. Appeal and Revision :—The period within which an appeal is to be preferred is thirty days from the date of the decree : See Sch. III Art. 4. It has been decided in the case of Dharani Kant v. Amir Sheikh, 22 C.W.N. 20 (notes portion), s. c., 44 I.C. 152 by Teunon and Newbould J.J., that the period of 30 days is to be counted from the date of the schedule in-as-much as schedule is an essential part of the decision, whether it be a decree or not.

Whether the rent settled in a proceeding under s. 105 is fair and equitable is a question into which the High Court cannot go, if the lower Court had jurisdiction : Ram Lal v. Satish Chandra, 53 I.C. 411.

Question of measurement—Appeal.

In an appeal arising out of a proceeding under s. 105, the Appellate Court is entitled to allow a deduction on the measurement on the ground that the measurement was not a scientific one : Midnapur Zemindari Company v. Kristo Prosad, 46 I.C. 544.

See notes under s. 109A.

Application against co-sharer landlord.

27. Right of a tenant to apply under s. 105 when he took settlement from a co-sharer :—Where a tenant obtained a settlement bona-fide for reclamation of waste land from a co-sharer landlord, held that he has a right to apply for settlement of rent against another co-sharer landlord who has got a portion of the lands by partition, although he had not settled the land; Dakhyani Dassi v. Mono Raut, 19 C.W.N. 407.

Whether a person not a party bound by a decree under s. 105.

28. If Purchaser at auction sale bound by a decree under s. 105 :—Where a proceeding under s. 105 was pending a tenure was sold in auction at the instance of the landlord, held that the purchaser was bound by the result of the proceeding and was bound to pay the rent settled, although he was not a party to the proceeding and although the sale proclamation had stated the previous rent payable : Rasik Chandra v. Syama Kumar, 46 I.C. 136, Where after the rent of a holding was enhanced in a proceeding under s. 105, but the landlord afterwards put the holding to sale and the sale proclamation stated the rent which was previously payable, held that the auction purchaser was not bound by the result of the proceedings under s. 105 : Rai Kiran Chandra Roy Bahadur v. Nirod Bhusan Basu, unreported appeal from order No. 333 of 1919 decided on the 30th July, 1920 by Teunon and Newbould, J.J.

Limitation.

29. Within two months from the date of the Certificate of final publication : Limitation :—Applications under sub-sections (1) and (2) are to be made within two months from the date of the Certificate of the final publication of the record-of-rights under s. 105A, sub-sec. (2). But it sometimes happens that the lands of a tenancy are included in different local areas for which separate records are framed and the final publications in the different local areas are published on different dates ; in such cases the period of two months according to clause (7) of this section begins to run in East Bengal from the date of the Certificate of final publication of the last record which contains entries to the tenancy.

For West Bengal and Behar there is no sub-section corresponding to sub-sec. (7) which applies to East Bengal.

It is submitted that in West Bengal and Behar, although there is no such sub-section as sub-section (7), for East Bengal, the period of limitation will be the same as is provided for East Bengal in sub-sec. (7); the reason is as follows:

"The date of certificate of final publication as is referred to in sub-secs. (1) and (2) refers to the date of final publication of the tenancy; where final publications are made peicemeal, it cannot be said that there has been final publication of the tenancy in its entirety; on the view which is submitted, cl. (7) is redundant."

The following instructions have been given by the Board of Revenue to Revenue-officers:—

Bengal Survey and Settlement Manual 1917, Page 96 Para 388 :— Delay in signing the certificate of final publication in special cases.
Where any difficulty is likely to arise in West Bengal in the matter of filing section 105 and section 106 suits from the fact that the lands in question lie in several villages, of which the records are finally published at different times, it is best to delay the signing of the certificates of final publication until the records of all the villages have been finally published. The actual work of final publication should not be delayed. If the signing of the certificates is not delayed, the plaintiff would be well advised to file his plaint within the period of limitation of the first village. The Settlement officer may allow supplementary plaints to be filed in respect of the subsequent villages; and the plaint will be stamped and the suit tried as though in respect of a single tenancy.

It is submitted that the advice given in the above instructions to file the applications or plaint within the period of limitation of the first village is upon a misconception of law, for, such application and suit will be wholly premature, if filed before the final publication of the record of rights of all the villages comprising the tenancy, and an application or suit prematurely filed cannot be entertained.

Where in a Mitakshara family a son was born subsequent to the final publication of the record-of-rights and previous to the date of the application made under s. 105, held that he ought to have been joined as an applicant, and a subsequent application when two months have expired from the date of the final publication to make him a party, was barred and the proceeding under s. 105 must therefore fail: Sati Prosad v. Sonaton, 25 C.W.N. 38. An application under s. 105 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, is to be dealt with as a suit under the Local Government Rules and s. 22 of the Limitation Act applies to it: Ibid. Subsequent application to make a member of a Mitakshara family party.

30. Clause (7) :—See notes under heading No. 29.

31. Rules and Instructions :—See Local Government Rules, Rules and Instructions. Appendix No. 1 of this book; see also Bengal Survey and Settlement Manual, 1917, Chap. XVI Page 103, Chap. XIV, para. 388, p. 96, also Appendix J. p. 185, Chap. VI p. 34. See also Technical Rules and Instructions of the Settlement Department, 1916, Part II, p. 107, Part I, p. 101.

32. Cess Act: s. 20 :—Where prior to a proceeding under s. 20 of the Cess Act, s. 105 the landlord had submitted a cess return shewing the rent different from what was subsequently settled under s. 105, held that s. 20 of the Cess Act did not prevent the landlord from claiming the rent settled under s. 105 of the Bengal Tenancy Act: Nazir Rai v. Kesho Prasad, 6 Pat. L. J. 622, s. c. [1922 Pat.] p. 57: S. 20 of the Cess Act, no bar to claim for higher rent under s. 105.

33. Back rent :—When the landlord applies under sec. 105 of the B. T. Act for settlement of fair and equitable rent and has Back rent.

obtained an enhanced rent fixed by the Settlement officer, he is bound by the terms of sec. 110 of that Act which provides that such settlement of rent shall take effect from the beginning of the agricultural year next after the date of the decision fixing the rent and it is not open to him to sue on the contract for back rents of the additional area found by the Settlement officer: Chandi Charan v. Meher Banu, 52 Cal. 910 (Cuming and Chakravarti, J.J.).

Tank.

34. Tank:—When a tank is leased for agricultural purposes it can be assessed to rent under section 105: Satindra v. Ramsundar, 88 I.C. 534, s. c. A.I.R. 1926 (Cal.) 239 (Suhrawardy and Cuming, J.J.).

S. 29.

35. Sec. 29:—Sec. 29 of the B. T. Act has no application to proceedings under sec. 105: Matta Majhi v. Gopinath, 89 I.C. 951, s. c., 1926 A.I.R. (Cal.) 353.

Service of notice.

36. Service of notice:—In the absence of a plea of fraud Court cannot try the question as to whether there was any service of notice on the defendant or not. If the defendant desires to challenge the proceedings under sec. 105 on the ground of non-service of notice, he ought to question the proceedings before the Settlement officer, or by appeal, or by way of proceedings proper for such relief: Taramonee v. Sheik Elim, 92 I.C. 714, s. c. A.I.R. 1926 (Cal.) 582 (Per Chakravarti, J.).
